pip'er·oid of gin'ger (pĭp'ĕr·oid). An oleoresin prepared by extracting ginger with ether and removing the solvent by evaporation.

pipe roll. Mach. A roller for supporting a pipe without restraining its longitudinal movement caused by expansion and contraction.

pipe rolls; sing. PIPE ROLL. Eng. Hist. The great, or annual, rolls containing the pipes, or statements of the accounts of the king's revenue and certain expenses and other matters affecting the public treasury. They date from 31 Hen. I (1131) to 1833.

pip'er·o·nal (pĭp'ĕr·ō·năl), n. [G., fr. piperin piperine.] Chem. A white crystalline aldehyde, $(CH_2O_2)C_6H_3CHO$, obtained by oxidation of piperic acid, and in other ways. It is a methylene derivative of protocatechualdehyde, related to vanillin. It has an agreeable odor like that of the heliotrope, and is used in perfumery.

pip'er·o·nyl (-nĭl), n. [piperonal + -yl.] Chem. a A univalent radical, $CH_2(O_2)C_6H_3CH_2$-, the hydroxide of which, piperonyl alcohol, $C_6H_3O_2(OH)$, is obtained by the reduction of piperonal. b A univalent radical, $CH_2(O_2)$-C_6H_3-, present in piperonal and related compounds.

pipe rot. = BUTT ROT.

pip'er's news (pĭp'ĕrz). Stale or already familiar news. Chiefly Scot.

pip'er·y (pĭp'ĕr·ĭ), n. [F. piperie, fr. Tupinamba piperi, periperi, a raft of rushes or canes; cf. Tupi peri, perij, rush or mat of rushes, Guarani piri.] A long narrow raft of tree trunks used in tropical America. Now Rare.

pi·per'y·lene (pĭ·pĕr'ĭ·lēn; pī-), n. [piperidine + acetylene.] Chem. An oily hydrocarbon, $CH_3.CH:CH.CH:CH_2$, obtained from oil gas and Boghead coal, and made artificially; — called also 1,3-pentadiene.

pipes (pīps), n. Scouring rush.

pipe shrub. Pipe vine.

pipe'stap'ple (pīp'stăp'l), n. [pipe + stapple, dial. form of stopple.] Chiefly Scot. & N. of Eng. a A pipestem. b The grass Cynosurus cristatus, whose stiff stalks are used for cleaning pipes.

pipe staves. See PIPE, n., 9 b.

pipe'stem' (pīp'stĕm'), n. 1. The hollow stem or tube of a pipe used for smoking tobacco, etc.

2. Something like a pipestem; specif., pl. very thin arms or legs.

3. Any of several slender-stemmed plants, as the fetterbush (Neopieris nitida) of the southern United States, and Clematis lasiantha of California. U. S.

pipe'stone' (pīp'stōn'), n. Petrog. A pink, or mottled pink-and-white argillaceous stone, carved by the Indians into tobacco pipes. Cf. CATLINITE.

pipe stop. An organ stop composed of flue pipes.

pipe tap. Mach. See 3d TAP, n., 10 a.

pipe thimble. = THIMBLE, n., 10 b.

pipe thread. A form of screw thread used on pipe and pipe fittings, characterized by a somewhat fine pitch and usually a tapering diameter. See SCREW THREAD.

pipe threader. Mach. See THREADER, n.

pipe tomahawk. A tomahawk with a bowl in the head to use as a pipe. It was used esp. in formal peace ceremonies.

pipe tongs. a Small tongs for picking up a live coal with which to light one's pipe. b A crude form of pipe wrench. Cf. CHAIN TONGS.

pipe tree. a The lilac, the elder, or the mock orange, the twigs of which were formerly used for pipe stems. b Local, U. S. The catalpa, the slender pods of which are smoked by children.

pi·pette' (pĭ·pĕt'), n. Also pi·pet'. [F., dim. of pipe tube. See PIPE cask.] 1. A small piece of apparatus with which fluids are transferred, measured, absorbed, etc., as in chemical operations. The simplest form is a narrow glass tube, the liquid being drawn up into it by suction and retained by closing the upper end.

1 Small Pipette, or Dropper; 2 Volumetric Pipette; 3 Absorption Pipette for gas analysis.

2. A funnel-shaped arrangement inserted near the middle of a barometer, with the small end down, to prevent air bubbles from rising to the top.

3. Ceramics. A small can with a pipe, for applying slip.

pi·pette', v. t. Also pi·pet'. To transfer, draw off, measure, or apply with a pipette.

pipe vein. = PIPE, n., 15 a.

pipe vine. Any climbing species of Aristolochia; esp., the Dutchman's-pipe (A. macrophylla).

pipe'-vine' swal'low·tail'. An American butterfly (Papilio philenor) with bluish-green, pale-spotted wings. The larvae feed on the pipe vine, or Dutchman's-pipe.

pipe'walk'er (pīp'wôk'ĕr), n. A watchman who patrols a pipe line.

pipe welder. See WELDER.

pipe wine. Wine drawn from a cask. Shak.

pipe'wood' (pīp'wŏŏd'), n. a A white-flowered shrub (Leucothoe populifolia) of the southern United States, from the wood of which pipe bowls are made. b The fetterbush; — so called because of its hollow stem.

pipe'work' (-wûrk'), n. a Piping; pipes collectively. b Geol. & Mining. = PIPE, 15 a. c Music. See ORGAN, 1 b.

pipe'wort' (-wûrt'), n. Any plant of the genus Eriocaulon.

pipewort family. The Eriocaulaceae.

pipe wrench. A wrench for gripping and turning a pipe. It usually has two serrated jaws, so designed as to grip the pipe when turning in one direction only. Cf. CHAIN TONGS, STILLSON WRENCH.

pi'pi (pē'pē), n. The astringent pods of Caesalpinia paipae, sometimes used like divi-divi for tanning.

pi'pi (pē'pē), n. [Maori.] A bivalve mollusk (Mesodesma novae-zelandiae) used as food. New Zealand.

Pip'i·dae (pĭp'ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL. See PIPA.] Zool. The family comprising the Surinam toad and its allies.

Pi·pil' (pē·pēl'), n. An Indian of Nahuatlan tribe, of southern Guatemala and western El Salvador.

Pip'i·le (pĭp'ĭ·lē), n. [NL.; cf. L. pipilare to chirp.] Zool. A genus of large crested South American guans known as piping guans.

Pip'i·lo (-lō), n. [NL.] Zool. A genus of American birds (family Fringillidae) of terrestrial habit. See TOWHEE.

pip'ing (pīp'ĭng), n. 1. a Act of playing on a pipe; also, the music of a pipe. b (1) The utterance of shrill sounds or notes, as of a bird; also, the sounds themselves. (2) Colloq. Weeping; crying.

2. Act of smoking a tobacco pipe. Rare.

3. Pipes collectively; material in, or suggestive of, the form of a pipe or pipes.

4. Cookery. Decorative icing forced from a pastry bag in small pipelike lines.

5. Dressmaking, etc. A narrow bias fold of material, sometimes covering a cord, used to decorate edges or seams, as of a dress; trimming or ornamentation by means of such a fold; also, fluting.

6. Harness. A leather tube to cover a trace chain, etc.

7. Hort. a A cutting of a jointed or hollow-stemmed plant, esp. of the carnation. b Act of propagating by cuttings.

8. Jewelry. Metal tubing attached to a thin plate to strengthen it.

9. Metal. A pipe or pipes formed in iron or steel ingots in cooling.

10. Mining. Act of hydraulicking.

11. Shoe Mfg. A narrow piece of fabric or leather sewed in with the seam or shoe edge to give it finish.

pip'ing (pīp'ĭng), adj. 1. Playing on a musical pipe. "Lowing herds and piping swains." Swift.

2. Characterized by the music of the pipe rather than of the martial drum and fife; hence, soft; tranquil.

Piping times of peace. Shak.

3. Emitting a high, shrill sound; also, shrill; whistling; high-pitched.

4. That has a pipelike cry or note; as, the piping plover. — pip'ing·ly, adv. — pip'ing·ness, n.

pip'ing, adv. So as to pipe, or hiss.

piping cord. The cord used in making piping, and in setting gathers; bobbin.

piping crow, piping crow shrike. Any Australian bird of the genus Gymnorhina and family Laniidae, esp. G. tibicen, which is black and white, and the size of a small crow. It is a good mimic, and therefore often kept in confinement.

piping frog. The spring peeper.

piping guan. See PIPILE.

piping hare. A pika.

piping hot. a So hot as to sizzle or hiss; very hot. b Very fresh or new, as if just from the fire.

piping plover. A small plover (Charadrius meloda) of eastern North America, smaller and paler than the semipalmated plover.

piping rock. A color, red-yellow in hue, of very low saturation and high brilliance. Cf. COLOR.

pi·pi'ri (pē·pē'rē), n. [Sp.] Any of several West Indian flycatchers; esp., the gray kingbird (see KINGBIRD).

pip'is·trel', pip'is·trelle' (pĭp'ĭs·trĕl'), n. [F. pipistrelle, fr. It. pipistrello.] A bat of the genus Pipistrellus, esp. the brown species (P. pipistrellus) of Europe.

Pip'is·trel'lus (-trĕl'ŭs), n. [NL.] Zool. A genus of very small vespertilionine bats of the Old and New Worlds. They have a blunt tragus and 34 teeth.

pip'it (pĭp'ĭt), n. [So named from its call note.] Any of various small singing birds of the family Motacillidae of nearly cosmopolitan range, esp. those of the genus Anthus. They resemble the true larks in habit, colors, and the long hind claw, and, like them, sing on the wing. Hence they are often called titlarks. The meadow pipit, tree pipit, and rock pipit (see these terms) are well-known European species. The common American pipit (A. spinoletta rubescens) is widely distributed. Sprague's pipit (A. spraguei) is found chiefly on the Great Plains.

American Pipit (Anthus spinoletta rubescens).

pip'kin (pĭp'kĭn), n. [Perh. dim. of pipe cask.] 1. A small earthen pot, usually one having a horizontal handle.

2. A piggin.

Pip'pa Pass'es (pĭp'ȧ). A dramatic poem (1841) by Browning. Pippa is a lighthearted Italian silk-factory girl. Her innocent singing is a cause of good to persons seemingly least susceptible to her influence.

pipped (pĭpt), adj. a Suffering from the pip. b Slang. Intoxicated.

pip'pin (pĭp'ĭn), pip'pen. Dial. var. of PIPKIN.

pip'pin (pĭp'ĭn), n. [ME. pipin, pepin, a seed, fr. OF. pepin, of uncert. origin. Cf. PIP a seed.] 1. A seed. = 2d PIP, 2. Obs. exc. Dial.

2. a A seedling apple. b Any of numerous varieties of apple; as, the Fall Pippin, Holland pippin, Missouri pippin, etc.

3. A highly admired or very admirable person or thing. Slang.

4. A grain of gold. Obs.

pip'pin, adj. Made from or containing pippins; dealing in pippins.

pip'pin·er (-ĭ·nĕr), n. A ship that carries cargoes of pippins. Defoe.

pip'pin·face' (pĭp'ĭn·fās'), n. A smooth round, red face. — pip'pin–faced' (-fāst'), adj.

pip'pin–heart'ed, adj. Faint-hearted; meek.

pip'–pip', interj. Used as a cheery phrase of farewell, greeting, etc.; as, pip-pip! toodle-oo! Brit. Slang.

pip'ple (pĭp'l), v. i. To murmur, as the wind or rippling water. Obs.

pip'py (pĭp'ĭ), adj.; PIP'PI·ER (-ĭ·ĕr); -PI·EST. Full of pips.

Pi'pra (pī'prȧ; pĭp'rȧ), n. [NL., fr. Gr. pipra a woodpecker.] Zool. a The genus of birds containing the typical manakins. b [not cap.] A manakin.

Pip'ri·dae (pĭp'rĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL.] Zool. The family of birds (suborder Tyranni) consisting of the manakins. It is sometimes treated as a subfamily, Pi·pri'nae (pĭ·prī'nē), of the Cotingidae. — pi'prine (pī'prīn; pĭp'-; -rĭn), adj. — pi'proid (pī'proid; pĭp'roid), adj.

pip·sis'se·wa (pĭp·sĭs'ē·wȧ), n. [Of Algonquian origin; cf. Cree pipisisikweu jack pine, lit., it (i. e. its juice) breaks it (i. e. stone in the bladder) into small pieces.] Any evergreen herb of the genus Chimaphila, esp. C. corymbosa. Its astringent leaves have been used as a tonic and diuretic.

Pipsissewa (Chimaphila corymbosa). (½) pip'–squeak' (pĭp'skwēk'), n. Slang. a A kind of small high-velocity shell used by the Germans in the World War; — from its sound in flight. b Something suggestive of a pip-squeak, as in size or sound; sometimes, Derogatory, an insignificant or futile person.

Pip'ta·de'ni·a (pĭp'tȧ·dē'nĭ·ȧ), n. [NL.] Bot. A large genus of tropical, but chiefly Brazilian, shrubs and trees of the mimosa family (Mimosaceae), with twice-pinnate leaves, small spicate flowers, and flat pods. P. rigida yields angico gum. See COHOBA.

pip'to·ste'gi·a root (pĭp'tō·stē'jĭ·ȧ). [NL. piptostegia, fr. Gr. piptein to fall + stegē roof.] Pharm. A variety of jalap from the root of a Brazilian bindweed (Piptostegia pisonis).

Pip'un·cu'li·dae (pĭp'ŭng·kū'lĭ·dē; pĭ'pŭng-), n. pl. [NL., fr. Pipunculus, type genus + -idae.] Zool. A family of two-winged flies (suborder Cyclorrhapha), including small flies having very large eyes. Their larvae are parasitic on other insects. — pi·pun'cu·lid (pĭ·pŭng'kū·lĭd; pī-), n. & adj.

pip'y (pĭp'ĭ), adj.; PIP'I·ER (-ĭ·ĕr); -PI·EST. a Like a pipe; hollow-stemmed, tubular, etc. b Having pipes. c Piping; whistling; shrill. d Colloq. Given to weeping.

piqu-. For various forms in piqu-, see those in PICK-.

pi'qua·ble (pē'kȧ·b'l), adj. Capable of being piqued. Rare.

pi'quance (pē'kăns), n. Piquancy. Rare.

pi'quan·cy (pē'kăn·sĭ), n. [From PIQUANT.] 1. Sharp, stinging quality; provocativeness. Obs.

2. Piquant character, taste, flavor, charm, etc.; the quality of being agreeably stimulating; pungency.

The piquancy of the pageant of life. Arnold Bennett.

pi'quant (pē'kănt), adj. [F., pres. part. of piquer to prick, sting. See PIQUE, v.] 1. Stinging; disagreeably sharp; provocative; cutting; as, piquant taunts. Archaic.

2. Agreeably stimulating to the palate; pleasantly tart, sharp, or biting; pungent; as, a piquant sauce.

3. Arousing or having the power to arouse pleasant mental excitement; engagingly provocative; agreeably challenging; as, piquant remarks, society or writing; also, having a lively arch charm; as, a piquant face.

Syn. and Ant. — See PUNGENT.

— pi'quant·ly, adv. — pi'quant·ness, n.

piquant sauce. Sauce piquante.

pique (pēk), n. [F., fr. piquer. See PIQUE, v.] 1. A quarrel or mutual animosity; a state of strife. Now Rare.

2. Offense taken by one slighted or disdained; vexation or anger excited by a wound to one's vanity; also, a fit of resentment; a dudgeon; as, with an air of pique; to go off in a pique.

Syn. — Offense, irritation, displeasure, resentment. — PIQUE, UMBRAGE agree in the idea of offense taken; neither word suggests malevolence. PIQUE denotes a quick and often transient feeling of resentment, due esp. to wounded vanity; UMBRAGE is properly a sense of being overshadowed or slighted (see etym.); but the word commonly suggests little more than ruffled pride or jealous suspicion; as, "When the wanton heroine chooses to . . . flirt with Sir Harry or the Captain, the hero, in a pique, goes off and makes love to somebody else" (Thackeray); "I should be very loath to give the least umbrage or offense by what I have said" (Swift). Cf. RESENTMENT; PRIDE, v. t.

pique (pēk), v.; PIQUED (pēkt); PI'QUING (pē'kĭng). [F. piquer to goad, nettle, spur, prick. See PIKE a weapon.] Transitive: 1. To arouse anger or resentment in; to nettle; irritate; to offend by slighting. "Pique her, and soothe in turn." Byron.

2. To excite or arouse by a provocation, challenge, rebuff, or the like; as, to pique ambition in a boy; to pique one's curiosity; also, to stimulate (one) by wounding his pride, inciting jealousy, rivalry, etc.; — usually with to; as, to pique one to effort.

3. To pride (oneself); — usually with on or upon; as, he piques himself upon his skill.

4. Aeronautics. To charge at or attack in an airplane, as by diving downward at.

—, Intransitive: 1. To cause annoyance or irritation.

2. Aeronautics. To dive vertically downward in an airplane.

Syn. — Displease, annoy, provoke; fret, sting, goad. See EXCITE; PRIDE, v. t.

Ant. — Please, gratify, flatter; soothe, mollify, appease.

pique (pēk), n. [F. pic. See PIKE weapon; cf. PIQUET.] In piquet, the making by one player of thirty points in hand and play before the other player scores. It counts thirty additional.

pique (pēk), v. t. & i. Piquet. To win a pique from; to score a pique.

pi'que (pē'kā; pēk), n. [Sp., fr. Quechua piqui.] a = 1st JIGGER. b Any of various ticks.

pique (pēk). Erron. for PEAK. Browning.

pi·qué' (pē·kā'), adj. [F.] Lit., pricked; specif.: a Designating a lapped seam in a glove. b Inlaid. c Cookery. Larded. d Music. Spiccato.

pi·qué' (pē·kā'), n. [F., past part. of piquer to prick.] 1. A ribbed cotton fabric, white, plain-colored, or printed, for dresses, waistcoats, etc.

2. Inlay, as in tortoise shell or metal; — more fully, piqué work.

pique of honor (pēk). An issue in which honor is involved; a point of honor. Obs.

pi·quet' (pē·kā'; pē·kĕt'), n. [F., dim. fr. pique spade, suit, fr. pique pike. See PIKE a weapon; cf. 3d PIQUE.] A card game with a euchre pack of 32 cards played by two (pi'quet' nor'mand' (pē'kĕ' nôr'mănd'), by three, pi'quet' vo'leur' (vô'lûr'), by four). See CAPOT, CARTE BLANCHE, PIQUE, POINT, REPIQUE, QUATORZE, QUINT, TALON.

‖pi'queur' (pē'kûr'), n. [F.] 1. An attendant directing the hounds in a hunt.

2. A servant who runs before a carriage to clear the way.

pi·qui'a (pē·kē'ȧ), n. [Galibi pekeiá.] A South American timber tree (Caryocar butyrosum), bearing edible oily nuts much like souari nuts; also, any species of this genus.

‖pi'quière' (pē'kyâr'), n. [F.] A sewer who repairs clothes.

pi·qûre' (pē·kûr'; F. pē'kür'), n. [F.] Puncture; also, wormhole; specif., Med. & Physiol., = SUGAR PUNCTURE.

---

pi·pet'. Var. of PIPETTE.

pipe'worm', n. A tubicolous worm. Obs.

pip'ey (pīp'ĭ). Erron. var. of PIPY.

pip'kin·et, n. See 1st -ET.

pip'less, adj. See -LESS.

pip'pa·la (pĭp'ȧ·lȧ). Var. of PIPAL.

pip'per·idge. Var. of PEPPERIDGE.

pippin file. See 4th FILE, 1.

pip·pi'ree. Var. of PIPIRI.

pip'pul (pĕp'ŭl). Var. of PIPAL.

pipt. Pipped. Ref. Sp.

Pip·tom'er·is (pĭp·tŏm'ĕr·ĭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. piptein to fall + meros a part.] Syn. of JACKSONIA.

pi'pul (pē'pŭl). Var. of PIPAL.

piq'uet·er. Var. of PICKETER.

---

pir (pēr), n. [Hind. (fr. Per.) pīr.] A Mohammedan saint or spiritual guide; also, his tomb.

pi'ra·cy (pī'rə·sĭ), n.; pl. -CIES (-zĭz). [ML. piratia, fr. Gr. peiratesa. See PIRATE.] 1. Law. At the common law, robbery on the high seas; an act of depredation animo furandi committed on the high seas that would if committed on the land amount to a felony, or such an act committed on unappropriated lands by a descent from the sea or using the sea as a basis of operations. In international law, in general, any act or practice of violence or depredation such as would be felonious if done ashore committed upon the high seas by one not acting under the authority of a politically organized community, or such an act or practice so committed upon unappropriated lands by a descent from the sea. Some authors consider that an act may be piracy when committed within the jurisdiction of a state if it be done by descent from the sea or with the sea as the basis of operations. 2. Any unauthorized appropriation and reproduction of another's production, invention, or conception; literary or artistic theft; specif., "Sometimes used, in a quasi-figurative sense, of violation of copyright; but for this, infringement is the correct and preferable term." Abbott. 3. Geol. = CAPTURE, n., 3.

pi·ra'gua (pĭ·rä'gwä; -răg'wä), n. [Sp. See PIROGUE.] Naut. a A canoe made of a hollowed tree trunk; a dugout. b A dugout widened by cutting in two and inserting planks in the bottom and at the ends. c A two-masted, flat-bottomed boat, undecked or decked only at the ends.

Pi·ran'ga (pĭ·răng'gȧ), n. [NL.] Zool. A genus of tanagers, including the scarlet, summer, and hepatic tanagers of North America. See TANAGER.

pi·ra'nha (pĭ·rän'yȧ), n. [Pg., fr. Tupi piranha, prop., toothed fish, fr. piro fish + sainha tooth.] A caribe (fish).

pi'rate (pī'rĭt), n. [L. pirata, fr. Gr. peiratēs, fr. peiran to attempt, attack. See PERIL.] 1. A robber or freebooter on the high seas; one who commits or practices piracy. 2. An armed ship or vessel, without a legal commission, which sails, to be employed in piracy. 3. A roving thief; a marauder. Poetic.

Each pirate of the skies. Burns.

4. An infringer of the law of copyright. 5. An omnibus not giving regular service, but getting fares by invading routes of other omnibuses; also, its driver. Colloq., Brit. 6. Geol. A stream which has captured another.

pi'rate (pī'rĭt), v.; -RAT·ED (-rĭ·tĕd; -tĭd; 119); -RAT·ING. Intransitive: To play the pirate; to commit piracy; to practice robbery on the high seas.

—, Transitive: 1. To commit piracy upon. 2. To take or appropriate as by piracy; specif.: a To publish, as books or writings, without proper authorization, esp. in infringement of copyright. b To take over and use in violation of exclusive assignment to another, as a wave length.

Pi'rate, The. A romance (1821) of the Shetland and Orkney islands, at the end of the 17th century, by Scott.

pirate bird. A jaeger gull.

pirate perch. A small perchlike fish (Aphredoderus sayanus) of sluggish streams from New Jersey and Minnesota southward, remarkable for having the vent in front of the pelvic fins. It constitutes an order, Xenarchi.

pi'rate·ry (pī'rĭt·rĭ), n. Also pi'rat·ry. [F. piraterie.] Piracy. Rare.

Pi'rates of Pen·zance', The (pĕn·zăns'). A comic opera (1879) by Gilbert and Sullivan.

pi·rat'i·cal (pī·răt'ĭ·kăl), adj. Also pi·rat'ic (-ĭk). [L. piraticus, fr. Gr. peiratikos.] a Of, pertaining to, like, or characteristic of, a pirate or piracy; acquired by, or practicing, piracy. b Specif.: Published illegally or without authorization; as, a piratical edition of a Shakespeare quarto. — pi·rat'i·cal·ly, adv.

pi'rat·ism (pī'rĭt·ĭz'm), n. Piracy. Rare.

pi'rat·y (-ĭ), adj. Piratelike.

Pi·re'ne, Pei·re'ne (pī·rē'nē), n. [L., fr. Gr. Peirēnē.] a A spring on Acrocorinth, the acropolis of ancient Corinth, where Bellerophon is said to have caught the winged horse Pegasus. b A fountain in the market place of ancient Corinth, supplied by conduits believed to bring water from the spring on Acrocorinthus.

Pi·ric'u·la'ri·a (pĭ·rĭk'ū·lā'rĭ·ȧ; pē-; 79), n. [NL., fr. L. pirum pear.] Bot. A form genus of imperfect fungi (family Moniliaceae) characterized by simple or slightly branched conidiophores producing terminal, two-septate to many-septate, solitary, hyaline pear-shaped spores. P. grisea causes a leaf spot of various grasses, and P. oryzae, the blast of rice.

pi'ri·pi'ri (pē'rē·pē'rē; colloq. pĭr'ĭ·pĭr'ĭ), n. [Maori. Cf. BIDDY-BID.] a N. Z. A troublesome weed (Acaena sanguisorbae) bearing burs covered with hooked bristles. b N. Z. The white mapau. c Tasmania. A fragrant Asiatic and Australasian herb (Haloragis micrantha), family Haloragidaceae; — commonly, but erroneously, called pi'ri·ji'ri.

pi'ri·ri'gua (pē'rē·rē'gwä), n. [Guarani.] A South American cuckoolike bird (Guira guira).

Pi·rith'o·ïs, Pei·rith'o·ïs (pĭ·rĭth'ō·ĭs), n. [L. Pirithoïs, fr. Gr. Peirithoos.] Gr. Myth. A king of the Lapithae, who became a bosom friend of Theseus. He first married Hippodamia. (In some accounts his bride is called Deidamia.) See LAPITHAE. After her death he attempted, with the aid of Theseus, to carry off Persephone from Hades, but the two were bound to a rock by Pluto, Theseus alone being eventually released.

pirl (pûrl; pĭrl). Var. of PURL. Obs. exc. Scot. & Dial. Eng.

pirl (pûrl), v. i. & t. [Perh. of imitative origin. Cf. 2d, 4th, and 6th PURL.] Chiefly Scot. & Dial. Eng. a To twist or twine. b To spin, as a top; to cause to revolve. c To move; to fumble.

pirl'ie (pûr'lĭ), n. Anything small, esp. the little finger. Scot.

pirl'ie (pûr'lĭ), n. Also pirl'ie-pig'. A money box. Scot.

pirn (pûrn; Scot. also pĭrn), n. [Origin uncert.] a A quill or reed on which thread or yarn is wound; a bobbin; also, the wound yarn on a pirn. b Scot. & Dial. Anything like a reel, as the reel of a fishing rod, a reel for flat hoisting rope, a mill wheel, etc.

pirn, n. A twitch or nose ring for a refractory animal. Dial.

pirned (pûrnd; pĭrnd), adj. Brocaded or striped in colors. Scot.

pirn'er (pûr'nĕr; pĭr'-), n. One who winds thread or yarn on pirns.

pirn'ie, pirn'y (pûr'nĭ; pĭr'-), n. A little pirn, or bobbin. Scot.

pirn'ie, pirn'y, adj. Striped with different colors. Scot. Oxf. E. D. — n. A woolen nightcap, usually striped. Scot.

Pi'ro (pē'rō), n. An Indian of a Tanoan tribe, formerly occupying several pueblos in central New Mexico. They were one of the chief pueblo tribes until reduced by Apache raids in the 17th century. Cf. PUEBLO.

Pi'ro (pē'rō), n. An Indian of an Arawakan tribe of eastern Peru.

pi·rogue' (pĭ·rōg'), n. [F., fr. Sp. piragua, of Cariban and Arawakan origin; cf. Galibi pirâua, Taino piraguas. Cf. PIRAGUA.] Naut. a A dugout canoe; loosely, any canoelike boat. b = PIRAGUA c.

pi·rol' (pē·rōl'), n. [G.] The golden oriole. See ORIOLE.

pi'ro·plasm (pī'rō·plăz'm), n. Zool. A piroplasma.

Pi'ro·plas'ma (pī'rō·plăz'mȧ), n. [NL., fr. L. pirum pear + plasma. See PLASMA.] Zool. a Syn. of BABESIA. b [not cap.; pl. -PLASMATA (-mȧ·tȧ).] A protozoan of the genus Babesia.

pi'ro·plas·mo'sis (-plăz·mō'sĭs), n.; pl. -PLASMOSES (-sēz). [NL.] Med. & Veter. Babesiasis.

pi·rot' (pē·rō'), n. A kind of long shellfish. Obs.

pir'ou·ette' (pĭr'ōō·ĕt'), n. [F., prob. blend of pivot pivot and girouette vane, weathercock.] Dancing. A whirling or turning on one or both toes.

pir'ou·ette', v. i.; PIR'OU·ET'TED (-ĕt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); PIR'OU·ET'TING. [F. pirouetter.] To perform a pirouette; to whirl as in a pirouette. — pir'ou·et'ter (-ĕr), n. — pir'ou·et'tist (-ĭst), n.

Pir·quet' test or re·ac'tion (pēr·kā'; pēr'kĕ'). [After C. von Pirquet (1874–1929), Vienna pediatrician.] Med. A form of tuberculin test made by applying a drop of tuberculin to a scarified spot on the skin. See TUBERCULIN TEST.

pirr (pĭr), n. [Imitative.] A gust, as of wind; also, a flurry.

pirr (pĕr), v. i. To blow with a whiz; to whiz, or speed, along.

pirr (pĭr; pĕr), n. [Imitative of the bird's cry.] A tern or small gull. Brit.

pir·rau'ra (pĭ·rou'rȧ), pir·rau'ru (-rōō), n. [Native name.] Among some primitive Australians, a legally designated sex mate, other than husband or wife; also, the relationship between such sex mates. — pir·rau'ra, pir·rau'ru, adj.

pirr'maw' (pĭr'mô'), n. [pirr a tern + maw a gull.] A tern. Brit.

pirs'son·ite (pûr'sŭn·īt), n. [After L. V. Pirsson, Am. geologist.] Mineral. A hydrous calcium sodium carbonate, $CaCO_3.Na_2CO_3.2H_2O$, occurring in white or colorless orthorhombic crystals. H., 3. Sp. gr., 2.35.

pi·sa'ca, pi·sa'cha (pē·sä'chȧ), n. [Skr. piśāca.] 1. Hindu Myth. A demon or demoness of the vilest class. 2. [cap.] The Dardic group of Indic languages. — Pi·sa'ca, Pi·sa'cha, adj.

pi·sa'chee, pi·sa'chi (-chē), n. [Skr. piśācī.] A shedemon or female pisaca; the spirit of one who has met with a violent death; also, one of the storms called devils. India.

‖pis' al'ler' (pē'-zä'lā'). [F.] Literally, to go worst; hence, a last resource.

Pi'san (pē'zăn), adj. Of or pertaining to Pisa. — n. A native or inhabitant of Pisa.

pi·sang' (pĭ·săng'), n., or pisang fig. [Malay pisaṅ.] The plantain Musa paradisiaca, the leaves of which yield a wax, pisang wax.

Pi·sa'ni·o (pĭ·zä'nĭ·ō), n. Servant to Posthumus in Shakespeare's Cymbeline.

pi·san'ite (pĭ·săn'īt), n. [After F. Pisani (1831–1920), French chemist and mineralogist.] Mineral. A hydrous iron copper sulphate, $(Fe,Cu)SO_4.7H_2O$, occurring in blue concretionary and stalactitic masses.

Pi·sau'ri·dae (pĭ·sô'rĭ·dē; pī-), n. pl. [NL., fr. L. Pisaurum, old name of Pesaro, an Italian town + -idae.] Zool. A family of hunting spiders related to the Lycosidae, which do not spin webs to catch their prey.

pi'say (pē'zä), n. Pisé.

pis'ca·ry (pĭs'kȧ·rĭ), n.; pl. -RIES (-rĭz). [L. piscarius relating to fishes or to fishing, fr. piscis a fish.] 1. Law. The right or privilege of fishing in another man's waters; — now in phrase common of piscary. 2. A fishing place; a fishery.

pis·ca'tion (pĭs·kā'shŭn), n. [LL. piscatio.] Fishing; fishery. Rare.

pis'ca·tol'o·gy (pĭs'kȧ·tŏl'ō·jĭ), n. [L. piscari, piscatus, to fish + -logy.] Science of fishing.

pis·ca'tor (pĭs·kā'tĕr), n. [L.] A fisherman; an angler.

pis'ca·to'ri·al (pĭs'kȧ·tō'rĭ·ăl; 181), adj. [See PISCATORY.] Of or pert. to fishers or fishing. — pis'ca·to'ri·al·ly, adv.

pis'ca·to'ri·al·ist (pĭs'kȧ·tō'rĭ·ăl·ĭst; 181), n. An angler.

pis'ca·to'ri·an (-ăn), adj. Piscatorial. — n. Angler.

pis'ca·to'ri·ous (-ŭs), adj. Piscatory.

pis'ca·to'ry (pĭs'kȧ·tō'rĭ or, esp. Brit., -tĕr·ĭ), adj. [L. piscatorius, fr. piscator a fisherman, fr. piscari to fish, fr. piscis a fish. See FISH.] 1. Piscatorial; living by or addicted to fishing. 2. Of fish; fishlike; — by confusion with piscine. Rare.

pis'ca·to'ry, n. 1. A literary work portraying piscatory life. Obs. 2. A variety of pastoral drama in which fishermen replace the shepherds.

Pis'ces (pĭs'ēz), n. pl.; gen. PISCIUM (pĭs'ĭ·ŭm). [L., fishes.] 1. Astron. a A zodiacal constellation directly south of Andromeda; the Fish or Fishes. It includes the first point of Aries, which is the vernal equinoctial point. b The twelfth sign of the zodiac (see SIGN, n., 12), which in Astrol. is a feminine northern sign, phlegmatic, common, bicorporal, watery, and cold; the night mansion of Jupiter, and the exaltation of Venus. 2. Zool. A class of vertebrates, variously limited, in old classifications comprising not only all the fishes, but the cyclostomes and lancelets, which two groups are now universally excluded. Most recent classifications further exclude certain peculiar groups of fossil fishes (the Ostracodermi and Arthrodira) and also the Elasmobranchii (sharks and rays), leaving the class Pisces to consist of the subclasses Teleostomi (ganoids and bony fishes), Crossopterygii, and Dipnoi (lungfishes). Some authorities rank the Teleostomi and Dipnoi as classes, Pisces being abandoned or made equiv. to Teleostomi.

pisci-. A combining form, Latin pisci-, from piscis, meaning fish, as in pisciculture; pis'ci·cap'ture, pis'ci·cap'tur·ist, pis·cic'o·lous, pis·cif'er·ous, pis'ci·form, pis·civ'o·rous. See -COLOUS, -VOROUS, etc.

pis'ci·an (pĭs'ĭ·ăn), adj. Piscine.

pis'ci·cul'ture (pĭs'ĭ·kŭl'tûr), n. [L. piscis fish + E. culture.] Fish culture. — pis'ci·cul'tur·al (-kŭl'tûr·ăl), adj — pis'ci·cul'tur·al·ly, adv. — pis'ci·cul'tur·ist, n.

Pis'cid (pĭs'ĭd), n. [Pisces + 1st -id.] Astron. Any of a shower of meteors whose radiant lies in the constellation Pisces.

Pis·cid'i·a (pĭ·sĭd'ĭ·ȧ), n. [NL. See PISCES; -CIDE.] A genus of trees (family Fabaceae) containing P. piscipula, the Jamaica dogwood.

pis'ci·fau'na (pĭs'ĭ·fô'nȧ), n. [NL. See PISCES; FAUNA.] The fishes of a given region.

pis·ci'na (pĭ·sī'nȧ; pĭ·sē'-), n. [L., a cistern, tank, basin, fishpond, fr. piscis a fish.] 1. Civil Rom. Antiq. An artificial reservoir or tank; specif.: a A fishpond. b A small reservoir in an aqueduct system. c A swimming tank, esp. one with cold water in a bath. 2. Eccl. A basin with a drain in the sanctuary or sacristy used for the disposal of the water from liturgical ablutions and the washing of altar linens.

— pis'ci·nal (pĭs'ĭ·năl; -n'l), adj.

pis'cine (pĭs'ĭn; -īn; 156), adj. [L. piscis a fish.] Zool. Of or pertaining to, or like, a fish or fishes.

pis'cine (pĭs'ĭn; pĭ·sēn'), n. 1. = PISCINA. 2. Also ‖pis'cine' (pē'sēn'). A public bath.

pis·cin'i·ty (pĭ·sĭn'ĭ·tĭ), n. The quality or condition of being a fish; piscine nature.

Pis'cis Aus·tra'lis (pĭs'ĭs ôs·trā'lĭs). Any of the meteors whose common radiant is in the constellation Piscis Australis.

Pis'cis Aus·tri'nus (ôs·trĭ'nŭs), Pis'cis Aus·tra'lis (ôs·trā'lĭs); gen. PISCIS AUSTRINI (ôs·trĭ'nī) or AUSTRALIS. [L., Southern Fish.] Astron. A southern constellation adjoining Aquarius on the south; the Southern Fish. It contains the bright star Fomalhaut.

Pis'cis Vo'lans (vō'lănz); gen. PISCIS VOLANTIS (vō·lăn'tĭs). [L., Flying Fish.] Astron. A small southern constellation, adjoining Argo (Carina) on the south; the Flying Fish; — now generally known as Volans.

pis'co (pĕs'kō), n. Aguardiente, or any similar liquor, formerly made at Pisco, Peru. Melville.

pi'sé' (pē'zā'; pē'zā), n. [F. pisé, fr. piser to stamp, pound, fr. L. pisare.] Arch. A kind of building material consisting of stiff earth or clay rammed in between molds; also, building done with this material. Cf. TAPIA.

Pis'gah (pĭz'gȧ), n. [Heb. Pisgāh, lit., prob. cleft.] Bib. The mountain, or mountain top, east of the north end of the Dead Sea, from which Moses viewed the Land of Promise just before his death; — used allusively chiefly in phrases, as in: Pisgah prospect, Pisgah sight, Pisgah view.

pish (pĭsh; psh), interj. An exclamation expressing impatient disgust or contempt. — n. An utterance of this exclamation.

pish, v. i. To say pish; to express contempt. — v. t. To say pish to; to dismiss, reject, or the like, by saying pish.

pi·shaug' (pĭ·shôg'), n. [Of Algonquian origin; cf. Narragansett npeshawog, pl., Pequot a'pishaug widgeons.] A female or young male surf scoter. Massachusetts.

pi·shogue' (pĭ·shōg'), n. [Ir. piseog.] Sorcery; witchcraft; a spell. Ir.

pish'-pash' (pĭsh'păsh'; -päsh'), n. Rice broth containing bits of meat. Anglo-Ind.

pish'-posh' (-pŏsh'), n. a Var. of PISH-PASH. b Hence, U. S., a weak, messy concoction or slop; also, inane views, ideas, amusements, etc.; — a vague term of contempt.

Pish'quow (pĭsh'kwō), n. An Indian of a Salishan tribe of northern Washington, now on the Yakima Reservation.

pi·shu' (pē·shōō'), n. [Can. F. pichou, fr. Cree pisiw.] The Canada lynx. See LYNX.

Pi·sid'i·um (pĭ·sĭd'ĭ·ŭm), n. [NL., dim. fr. L. pisum pea. See PEA.] Zool. A genus of nearly cosmopolitan freshwater bivalves (family Sphaeriidae) usually somewhat larger than those of the genus Sphaerium and having the siphons united at their ends.

pi'si·form (pī'sĭ·fôrm), adj. [L. pisum pea + -form.] 1. Like a pea or peas in size and shape; as, pisiform iron ore. 2. Anat. & Zool. Designating a bone on the ulnar side of the carpus, present in some vertebrates, as in many mammals, including man, and in crocodiles. In man it articulates only with the triquetrum.

pi'si·form, n. The pisiform bone.

Pi·sis'tra·te'an (pī·sĭs'trȧ·tē'ăn), or Pei·sis'tra·te'an (pī-). Of or pertaining to Pisistratus (see Biog.) or, esp., the recension of the Homeric poems due to him.

Pis'is·trat'i·dae (pĭs'ĭs·trăt'ĭ·dē), Pis'is·trat'ids (-ĭdz), n. pl. [L. Pisistratidae, fr. Gr. Peisistratidai.] Gr. Hist. The sons and successors of Pisistratus (605–527 B.C.; see Biog.), — Hippias and Hipparchus. Cf. ALCMAEONIDAE.

pisk (pĭsk), n. The common American nighthawk.

pisk'y (pĭs'kĭ). Dial. a Var. of PIXY. b A moth.

pis'mire' (pĭs'mīr'), n. [ME. pissemyre, fr. pisse piss + mire ant (prob. of Scand. origin; cf. Dan. myre, ON. maurr; akin to L. formica, Gr. myrmēx); — from its ejection of formic acid. See PISS; cf. FORMIC.] An ant, or emmet.

pis'mir·ism (-mĭr·ĭz'm), n. Petty saving.

pis'mo clam (pĭz'mō). [From Pismo beach, Calif.] A clam (Tivela stultorum) of the family Veneridae, occurring on the southwest coast of North America and used extensively for food.

pi'so (pē'sō), n. sing. & pl. [Ashanti pesa, pesewa, a pennyworth of gold dust.] See WEIGHT, Table.

pi'so·lite (pĭ'sō·līt; pĭz'ō-), n. [Gr. pison pea + -lite.] Petrog. A limestone composed of globular concretions about the size of a pea. Cf. OÖLITE. — pi'so·lit'ic (-lĭt'ĭk), adj.

Pi'son (pī'sŏn), Pi'shon (-shŏn), n. Bib. One of the four parts of the river in the garden of Eden.

Pi·so'ni·a (pĭ·sō'nĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., after Willem Pison (1611–78), Dutch botanist.] Bot. A genus of 20 species of tropical, often thorny, trees, shrubs, and vines (family Nyctaginaceae) having small dioecious apetalous flowers and utricular or burlike fruits. P. aculeata, one of the cockspurs, is a fiercely armed, woody vine.

piss (pĭs), v. t.; PISSED (pĭst); PISS'ING. [ME. pissen, fr. OF. pissier (F. pisser), prob. fr. an onomatopoeic interjection.] To urinate in or on; also, to discharge or let flow in the manner of urine. — v. i. To urinate. — n. Urine. All Now Vulgar.

piss'a·bed' (pĭs'ȧ·bĕd'), n. [In allusion to diuretic properties.] Any of various wild plants, as dandelion, bluet, oxeye daisy, etc. Local.

---

pir. † PEER, PIER.
Pi'ra (pī'rȧ). Bib. pi'race, v. t. & i. To pirate. Obs.
pi·rai' (pē·rī'). Var. of PIRANHA.
Pi'ram (pī'răm). Bib.
pi·ram'e·ter (pĭ·răm'ē·tĕr). Var. of PETRAMETER. pir'a·mid. Pyramid. Ref. Sp. pi'rate·like', adj. See -LIKE.
pi'rat·ess, n. Fem. of PIRATE.
Pir'a·thon (pĭr'ȧ·thŏn). Bib.
Pir'a·thon·ite (-īt). Bib. pi'rat·ize, v. t. See -IZE. pi·rau'ra, pi·rau'ru. Vars. of PIRRAURA, -RU. [RANHA.] pi·ra'ya (pē·rä'yȧ). Var. of PI-pire. † FEAR, FERRY, FIRE. pire. Pyre. Ref. Sp.
pi·ret'ic. Pyretic. Ref. Sp.
pir'i·form, pir'i·for'mis. Vars. of PYRIFORM, -FORMIS. pi'rite. Pyrite. Ref. Sp.
pirk. Var. of PERK. Obs. exc. Scot.
Pir·ke' A·both' (pĭr·kā' ä·vôth'). [Heb. pirqē ābhōth sections, or chapters, of fathers.] See ABOTH, 1. pir'lie·cue, pir'li·cue. Vars. of PURLICUE. pirl'y. Var. of PIRLIE. pi'ro·graf. Pyrograph. Ref. Sp.
pirogua. † PIRAGUA.
Pir'o·la. Var. of PYROLA.
Pir'o·la'ce·ae (pĭr'ō·lā'sē·ē). Var. of PYROLACEAE. — pir'o·la'ceous (-shŭs), adj. [Ref. Sp.
pi'ro·lig'ne·ous. Pyroligneous.
pi·roque'. Var. of PIROGUE. pi'ro·tec'ny. Pyrotechny. Ref. Sp. pir'ou·et'. Pirouette. Ref. Sp.
pir'rhic. Pyrrhic. Ref. Sp. [ULA.]
Pir'u·la (pĭr'ōō·lȧ). Var. of PYRU-Pi'rus. Var. of PYRUS. pirry (pĕr'ĭ). Var. of PERRIE, n.
Pisaca languages. See DARD LANGUAGES. pisang moth. = BANANA MOTH. pis'cash (pĕs'kŭsh). Var. of PESHKASH. [See PENNACOOK.] Pis·cat'a·qua (pĭs·kăt'ȧ·kwȧ), n.
Pis·cat'a·way (pĭs·kăt'ȧ·wā), n. = CONOY. [TRALIS.]
Pis'cis (pĭs'ĭs), n. = PISCIS AUS-Pis'ci·um (pĭs'ĭ·ŭm), n. gen. of PISCES. pise. † PIECE, PIEZE.
Pi'shon. Var. of PISON. pi·shrogue'. Var. of PISHOGUE. pisht. Pished. Ref. Sp.
Pis'pah (pĭs'pȧ). Bib.

---

piss'ant' (pĭs'ănt'), n. [piss + ant.] An ant. Obs. exc. Dial.
piss'ing con'duit (pĭs'ĭng). A small conduit running near the Royal Exchange, London. Obs. Shak.
pist (pĭst), interj. A call to attract attention; p'st. pist (pĭst). Var. of PISTE (track). pis·tache' (pĭs·tăsh'; F. pēs'tăsh'). 1. Var. of PISTACHIO. 2. The color pistachio green. pis·tach'i·o (pĭs·tăsh'ĭ·ō; pĭs·tä'shĭ-; pĭs·tä'-; 277), n.; pl. -CHIOS (-ōz). [It. pistacchio (cf. Sp. pistacho, F. pistache), fr. L. pistacium, fr. Gr. pistakion, fr. pistakē, the tree, fr. Per. pistah, the nut. ME. pistace is fr. OF. pistace. Cf. PISTIC, n., PUSTIC.] 1. a A small tree (Pistacia vera) of southern Europe and Asia Minor. It has leaves with 3–5 broad leaflets, greenish-brown paniculate flowers, and a large fruit. b The seed of this tree. See PISTACHIO NUT. c = WITCH HAZEL, 2 a.
2. = PISTACHIO GREEN.
3. Cookery. The flavor of the pistachio nut. pistachio green. A color, yellow-green in hue, of low saturation and high brilliance. Cf. COLOR. pistachio nut. The nut of the pistachio tree. It is properly the stone of the fruit, and contains a single oblong greenish edible seed. It is used as a flavoring substance in cookery and confectionery.
Pis·ta'ci·a (pĭs·tä'shĭ·ä), n. [L., pistachio tree. See PISTACHIO.] a Bot. A small genus of trees of the sumac family (Anacardiaceae), natives of southern Europe, Asia, and North America. They have simple or pinnate leaves, small dioecious apetalous flowers, and drupaceous fruit. P. vera is the pistachio; P. lentiscus, the mastic tree; and P. terebinthus, the terebinth tree. Syn. Terebinthus. b [not cap.] = PISTACHIO. pistacia gall. A gall formed on various trees of the genus Pistacia by the sting of a hemipterous insect. The galls are smoked for the relief of bronchitis and asthma.
pis'ta·cite (pĭs'tä·sīt), n. [G. pistazit; — from its green color. See PISTACHIO.] Mineral. Epidote. pis'ta·reen' (pĭs'tä·rēn'), n. [Prob. fr. Sp. peseta peseta.] A debased two-real piece of Spain, first issued early in the 18th century. It circulated in Spain, the West Indies, and the U. S. as ⅛ of the old piece of eight, or dollar. After 1827, it fell to seventeen cents in the U. S. — adj. Of small value; picayune.
‖piste (pēst), n. [F., fr. It. pista, fr. pistare to pound. See PISTON.] Spoor; path, track, or trail made by an animal; hence, a beaten path; also, racecourse; the ring of a riding school.
pis'te·ol'o·gy (pĭs'tē·ŏl'ō·jĭ), n. [Erron. form of PISTIOLOGY.] Science of faith or belief.
Pis'ti·a (pĭs'tĭ·ä), n. [NL., fr. Gr. pistos liquid.] Bot. A genus of tropical free-floating aquatic herbs of the arum family (Araceae), having as the only known species P. stratiotes, the water lettuce. pis'tic (pĭs'tĭk), adj. [LL. pisticus, fr. Gr. pistikos.] Pure; genuine; — of nard (nardos pistikē of Mark xiv. 3 & John xii. 3). This interpretation is now questioned.
pis'tic, adj. [Gr. pistikos faithful.] Of, pertaining to, or exhibiting, faith.
pis'til (pĭs'tĭl; -t'l), n. [F., fr. L. pistillum, pistillus, a pestle. See PESTLE; cf. PISTON.] Bot. The ovule-bearing organ of a seed plant; the ovary with its appendages. Pistil is often loosely used as a popular synonym of gynoecium; but it properly denotes only an individual member of a gynoecium, though when the latter is syncarpous it becomes an equivalent term. A pistil ordinarily consists of the ovary, style, and stigma. See OVARY, 2; STIGMA; CARPEL; GYNOECIUM; STYLE, n., 9; also, FLOWER, 7 & Illust. pis'til·la'ceous (pĭs'tĭ·lā'shŭs), adj. Bot. Pertaining to, or having the nature of, a pistil. Rare.
pis'til·lar (pĭs'tĭ·lĕr), -til·lar'y (-lĕr'ĭ; -lēr·ĭ), adj. Pistillaceous. pis'til·late (pĭs'tĭ·lāt), adj. Bot. Furnished with, or producing, a pistil or pistils; specif., of diclinous flowers, having pistils but no stamens. Cf. STAMINATE. pistilli-. A combining form from Latin pistillum, meaning pistil, as in pis'til·lif'er·ous, pis·til'li·form, pis'til·lig'er·ous. See -FEROUS; -FORM; -GEROUS. pis'til·lid (pĭs'tĭ·lĭd), -lid'i·um (-lĭd'ĭ·ŭm), n. [NL. pistillidium.] Bot. An archegonium. pis'til·line (pĭs'tĭ·lĭn; -līn), adj. Bot. Pertaining to, or consisting of, a pistil. pis'til·lode (-lōd), n. [From NL. pistillum pistil. See 1st -ODE.] A rudimentary pistil. pis'til·lo'dy (pĭs'tĭ·lō'dĭ), n. [NL. pistillum pistil + Gr. eidos form.] Bot. The metamorphosis of other organs into pistils. pis'til·loid (-loid), adj. [pistil + -oid.] Bot. Pistilline. pis·ti·ol'o·gy (pĭs'tĭ·ŏl'ō·jĭ), n. [Gr. pistis faith + -logy.] The doctrine of faith; as, the pistiology of St. Paul.
pis'tle (pĭs'l), n. [AS. pistol, fr. L. epistola.] Epistle; story; tale. Obs. pis'tle, v. t. To write a (satiric) epistle upon. Obs. pis'tler (pĭs'lĕr), n. The reader of the Epistle at Communion. Obs.
Pis'to·lese' (pĭs'tō·yēz'; -yēs'), n. [It.] The dialect of Pistoia, Italy.
pis'tol (pĭs't'l), n. [F. pistole, fr. G. pistole, fr. Czech pišťal, prop., a pipe; cf. OSlav. piskati to pipe, Czech pikati, piptěli, to peep, and E. PIPE, PEEP. Cf. PISTOLE.] A short firearm intended to be aimed and fired from one hand. Pistols were first used about 1540. They are now usually either revolvers (which see), or automatic, or semi-automatic, magazine pistols. See AUTOMATIC PISTOL, Illust. pis'tol, v. t.; -TOLED (-t'ld) or -TOLLED; -TOL·ING or -TOLLING. [Cf. F. pistoler.] To shoot with a pistol.
Pis'tol, n. A follower of Falstaff, his ancient, or ensign, in Shakespeare's Merry Wives of Windsor, 2 Henry IV, and Henry V. He is a ranting swaggerer who spouts fragments of bombastic blank verse. See MISTRESS QUICKLY a. pis'tol·ade' (pĭs't'l·ād'), n. [F.] A pistol shot or wound. Obs. — v. t. To fire on with pistols. Obs.
pistol carbine. A pistol having a removable butt piece, and so capable of use either as a pistol or as a carbine.
pis·tole' (pĭs·tōl'), n. [F., a name given in jest in France to a Spanish coin (Sp. & It. pistola have not this meaning), fr. pistole pistol. See PISTOL.] A former gold coin denomination, the double escudo of Spain, worth approximately $4 or 16s.; also, any of various former gold coins of Europe having the approximate value of the above.
pis'to·leer' (pĭs'tō·lēr'), n. Also pis'to·lier'. [F. pistolier.] One who uses a pistol; esp., a soldier armed principally with pistols.
pis'to·let (pĭs'tō·lĕt), n. [F. Cf. PISTOLE.] A gold coin struck in several European countries, of varying value, but worth about six shillings in the time of Elizabeth; later, a pistole. Obs. pis'to·lot (pĭs'tō·lĕt), n. [F.] A pistol. Obs. pis'to·let'er (pĭs'tō·lĕt'ĕr), pis'to·let·ier' (-lĕt·ēr'), n. A soldier armed with a pistol. Obs.
pis'tol·gram (pĭs't'l·grăm), n. [pistol + -gram.] An instantaneous photograph; a pistolgraph (photograph).
pis'tol·graph (-grăf; 83), n. [pistol + -graph.] A kind of instantaneous photographing apparatus; also, a picture made with this apparatus. — pis'tol·og'ra·phy (-ŏg'rä·fĭ), n.
pistol grip. A grip of a shotgun or rifle shaped like an old-fashioned pistol stock.

Part of Shotgun, showing: 1 Pistol Grip; 2 Triggers; 3, 3 Hammers; 4 Top Lever.

pis·tol'o·gy (pĭs·tŏl'ō·jĭ), n. [Gr. pistis faith + -logy.] That branch of theology which deals with faith.
pistol plant. Artillery plant.
pis'tol·proof' (pĭs't'l·prōōf'; 66), adj. Impenetrable by pistol shots. pis'ton (pĭs'tŭn; -t'n), n. [F., fr. It. pistone piston, also pestone a large pestle, fr. pistare, pestare, to pound, fr. L.L. pistare, fr. L. pinsere, pistum, to pound, to stamp. See PESTLE.] 1. Mach. A sliding piece moved by, or moving against, fluid pressure. It usually consists of a short cylinder fitting within a cylindrical vessel along which it moves, back and forth. In steam engines it receives motion from the steam; in pumps it moves a fluid. See CYLINDER, 8; SLIDE VALVE, Illust.
2. Music. a In certain brass-wind instruments, a sliding valve moving in a cylinder like an engine piston and serving, when depressed by a finger knob, to add a crook to the tube, and hence to lower its pitch. b A movable knob on an organ console for effecting a change of registration; — more fully piston knob.
piston displacement. Engin. a The volume displaced by a piston in a single stroke, — the product of piston travel and cross-sectional area of the containing cylinder. b The distance the piston has traveled from the beginning of its stroke.
piston drill. Mach. A pneumatic percussion drilling machine in which the drill forms a continuation of the piston rod.
pis'ton·head' (pĭs'tŭn·hĕd'), n. Steam Engin. That part of a piston which is made fast to the piston rod.
piston pin. Mach. = WRIST PIN. piston pump. Mach. See 2d PUMP, 1. piston ring. Mach. A spring packing ring, or any of several such rings, for a piston. See PACKING, 2 c. piston rod. Mach. A rod by which a piston is moved, or by which it communicates motion. piston spring. A spring for a piston ring.
piston valve. 1. Mach. A reciprocating valve, consisting of a piston, or connected pistons, working in a cylindrical case provided with ports that are traversed by the valve.
2. Music. See VALVE, n., 9. pis'trix (pĭs'trĭks), n.; pl. PISTRICES (-trĭ·sēz). [L. pistrix, pistris, fr. Gr. pistris, pristis.] Gr. & Roman Antiq. A sea monster sometimes represented in Greek and Roman art.
Pi'sum (pī'sŭm), n. [L., pea. See PEA.] Bot. A small genus of Eurasian herbaceous vines (family Fabaceae), distinguished from Lathyrus by the enlarged summit of the style. P. sativum is regarded as the original of the garden pea. pit (pĭt), n. [D., kernel, pith. See PITH.] The hard stone of a drupaceous fruit; as, a peach or cherry pit. — v. t. To remove the pit, or stone, from, as a cherry. U. S. pit, n. [ME. pit, put, fr. AS. pytt pit, hole, prob. fr. L. puteus well, pit; akin to L. putare to cut. See PAVE.] 1. A cavity or hole in the ground, natural or artificial.
Tumble me into some loathsome pit. Shak.
Specif.: a A large hole from which some mineral deposit is dug or quarried; as, a gravel pit; a stone pit. b The shaft of a coal mine, or the mine itself. c A hole in which some process is carried on; as: (1) A hole in the ground in which to burn something; as, a lime pit; a charcoal pit. (2) A vat, in tanning, dyeing, bleaching, etc.; as, a tan pit. d Archaic. A dungeon. e A pitfall for wild beasts; hence, a trap; a snare.
Whoso diggeth a pit shall fall therein. Prov. xxvi. 27.
2. A well; also, a water hole; a pool. Now Rare. Jer. xiv. 3.
3. A deep place; an abyss; specif.: a A grave. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng., exc. as used of an excavation for a number of bodies.
He keepeth back his soul from the pit. Job xxxiii. 18.
b Hades; hell, or a part of it, as in the pit of hell.
4. A surface depression or hollow; as: a The pit of the stomach, the depression below the lower end of the breastbone. b The indentation or mark left by a pustule, as in smallpox; any similar depressed scar.
5. An enclosed hole or area in which wild beasts are kept, or where gamecocks, dogs, or other animals are caused to fight, or dogs are trained to kill rats. "As fiercely as two gamecocks in the pit." Locke.
6. An excavation beneath a furnace or the like for receiving cinders or ashes.
7. A pocket; esp., an inside coat pocket. Slang.
8. Agric. A covered excavation in a field for storing vegetables.
9. Automobiles. a An emergency servicing and repair station at an automobile racecourse. b An excavation in a garage floor or open service station ground for convenience in servicing and repairing.
10. Bot. A depression or unthickened spot in the cell wall of a cell which has undergone lignification. Pits sometimes exhibit a marginal rim, and are then known as bordered pits.
11. Bowling. The slightly depressed space at the end of an alley into which the pins usually fall when bowled from the alley.
12. Cards. A game, played with a special pack, in mimicry of a grain exchange. See sense 13, below.
13. Exchanges. That part of the floor of some exchanges devoted to a special branch of business; as, wheat pit; provision pit. Each pit is usually surrounded by a circle of steps. U. S.
14. Founding. A cavity in the floor to receive cast metal.
15. Hort. An excavation, often covered with a glass frame, used for the protection of plants in cold weather or for forwarding early growth.
16. Lumber. a The hole where a pit sawyer stands. b A skidway elevated so that it is on a level with the logging car. c A cleared space at the rear end of a sawmill.
17. Mil. a A depressed section in a modern mortar battery in which a group of mortars, usually four, are mounted. b On a target range, the space between the parapet and the butt, for sheltering the materials and men used in manipulating the targets.
18. Plant Pathol. A small, depressed lesion, characteristic of certain diseases; also, the disease itself; as, pit of sweet and Irish potatoes. See BITTER PIT.
19. Theater. a Formerly, that part of the floor below the level of the stage and behind the orchestra; now, in England, commonly, the cheaper part behind the stalls. In the United States the name is not used. Cf. PARQUET; ORCHESTRA, 2; ORCHESTRA PIT. b The audience that occupies this part of a theater.
☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:

pit boots	pit-eyed	pit-marked pit boss	pit hand	pit-rotted pit brink	pitmaker	pit-specked pit craneman	pitmaking	pit-working, adj.
pit-dwelling, adj.	pitmark

-pit (-pĭt). A combining form of the noun pit, as in arm*pit*, coal*pit*, cock*pit*.
pit (pĭt), v.; PIT'TED (pĭt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); PIT'TING. Transitive: 1. To place, cast, bury, or store in a pit or hole.
Pitted like beasts, tumbled into the grave. T. Granger.
Wondered at her letting Sanders pit his own potatoes. Barrie.
2. To form pits in; to mark with little hollows, as scars left by variolous pustules; as, a face pitted by smallpox.
3. To set in a pit (sense 5) to fight, as cocks, dogs, or pugilists; more widely, to put in competition, rivalry, or antagonism; to set forward in opposition; — with against; as, to pit A against B. "Pitted against the forces which he understood." Masefield.
—, Intransitive: 1. To dig a pit or pits; to excavate.
2. To become marked with pits, or depressions; specif., Med., to preserve for a time an indentation made by pressure (of the finger, etc.), as in edema.
pit (pĭt), n. [Imitative.] The sound of something small striking, as a raindrop; — usually reduplicated, as pit, pit, pit. — pit, adv. & v. i. pit (pĭt). Var. of PUT. Scot. & Dial.
pi'ta (pē'tä), n. [Guarani guazupitá, fr. guazu deer + pitá red.] A South American brocket (Mazama rufa). pi'ta (pē'tä), n. [Sp., prob. fr. Quechua pita fine thread.] a The fiber obtained from the common century plant (Agave americana), utilized for cordage and in the Azores for beautiful drawn work; also, the plant itself. b Istle fiber, derived from various species of Agave. See ISTLE. c The similar fiber of several other plants, as Mauritius hemp, and species of yucca. These various fibers are called also pita fiber, pita flax, pita hemp, pita thread. d A kind of wild pineapple (Ananas magdalenae) of Central America, the leaves of which yield a fine strong silky fiber, resistant to salt water; — often called pi'ta flo'ja (flō'hä). e = KARATAS c. pi'ta·ha'ya (pē'tä·hä'yä), n. [Sp., fr. Taino pitahaya.] a Any of various cacti, esp., the saguaro (Carnegiea gigantea), Lemaireocereus thurberi of the southwestern United States and adjacent Mexico, and Acanthocereus pentagonus. b The edible, juicy fruit of any of these plants. In some species it is highly colored, as big as a large peach, and the red juice of some species colors urine like blood.
Pi'ta·ka (pĭt'ä·kä), n. [Skr. piṭaka, lit., basket.] One of the three divisions of the Buddhist Scriptures. See TRIPITAKA.
Pit and the Pendulum, The. A short story (1843) by Poe. pi·tan'gua (pĭ·tăng'gwä), n. [Pg. pitanguá, fr. Tupi pitanguá, lit., murmuring suddenly.] A large-billed flycatcher (Megarhynchus pitangua) of Central and South America.
Pi·tan'gus (-gŭs), n. [NL. See PITANGUA.] Zool. A genus of tyrant flycatchers including the South American P. sulphuratus and its northern subspecies, P. s. derbianus, the Derby flycatcher.
pit'a·pat' (pĭt'ä·păt'), adv. [An onomatopoeic reduplication of pat a light, quick blow.] With quick succession of pats or beats; in a flutter; with palpitation; as, her heart went pitapat. — v. i. To move or beat pitapat. — pit'a·pat·a'tion (-păt·ā'shŭn), n. Humorous.
pit'a·pat', n. A light, repeated sound; a pattering; palpitation; as, the pitapat of her heart or of feet.
pit'a·pat', adj. Making pitapats; pattering; throbbing. pi·ta'rah (pē·tä'rä), n. Also pat·ta'ra (pă-), pe·ta'ra (pē-). [Hind. piṭārā, peṭārā, fr. Skr. piṭa, peṭa.] A basket or box used to carry clothing in traveling by palanquin. India.
pi'ta wood (pē'tä). The pithlike wood of the Mauritius hemp plant. Cf. PITA c. pit bank. Mining. a = HEAPSTEAD. b Eng. The place near a shaft where coal is screened and stored. pit'bird' (pĭt'bûrd'), n. Reed warbler. Eng.
pit'-black' (66), adj. Extremely black or dark, as in a pit. — pit'-black'ness, n.
Pit·cair'ni·a (pĭt·kâr'nĭ·ä), n. [NL., after Archibald Pitcairn (1652–1713), Scot. physician.] Bot. A large genus of tropical American herbs, often epiphytic, of the pineapple family (Bromeliaceae) having fleshy spiny-margined leaves, and sometimes cultivated for their flowers which have showy bracts. pitch (pĭch), n. [ME. pich, fr. AS. pic, fr. L. pix, picis; akin to Gr. pissa, pitta, Lith. pikis, and to E. fat; basic idea: moisture. See FAT; cf. 1st PAY.] 1. A black or dark-colored viscous substance obtained as a residue in distilling coal tar, wood tar, petroleum, bone oil, fixed oils, etc., and occurring naturally as asphalt (which see). Artificial pitch, like asphalt, consists chiefly of hydrocarbons, but varies much in composition and consistency according to the way it is produced. Thus, that from wood tar is hard and brittle; that from coal tar may be either hard or soft. Pitch is widely used in manufacturing fuel, varnishes, roofing paper, etc., for calking seams, as a preservative coating, as a lubricant, in insulating, for street paving, etc.
2. Any of various bituminous substances; — sometimes with a limiting word; as, mineral pitch; Jew's pitch.
3. The resin, often of medicinal value, obtained from certain coniferous trees; as, Canada, or hemlock, pitch; etc.
4. Metalcraft. A mixture of crude pitch, powdered resin, plaster of Paris, and tallow (or similar materials), used to form a base for supporting and fixing work while tooling, or used as a supporting filling for vessels as when chasing or when doing repoussé work.
☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

pitch-blackened	pitch-colored	pitch-marked pitch-brown	pitch-lined	pitch-stained pitch (pĭch), v. t.; PITCHED (pĭcht); PITCH'ING. [AS. pician, fr. pic. See PITCH, n.] To cover over, smear, or soil, with, or as with, pitch.

The welkin pitched with sullen clouds. Dryden.

pitch (pĭch), v.; PITCHED (pĭcht), also, Obs., PIGHT (pīt); PITCH'ING. [ME. picchen; prob. akin to E. PICK to pierce. Cf. 2d PICK.] Transitive: 1. To thrust or plant in the ground, as stakes or poles; hence, to fix or fasten firmly, literally or, now rarely, figuratively, as by embedding in mortar, or the like. Now Rare.
2. To place and set up or erect; as, to pitch a tent, camp, lodge, or the like; to fix in a certain position or location; as, to pitch a beacon on the summit of a hill.

In my face deep furrows eld hath pight. Spenser.

3. To pierce with something pointed; to transfix. Obs.
4. To throw, fling, hurl, or toss, usually with a definite aim or purpose; as, to pitch a spear, a quoit; specif., to throw, as hay, dirt, etc., with a pitchfork, shovel, etc.
5. To furnish, fill, or load with something; now specif., to set, face, or pave with rubble or undressed stones.
6. To set in order or arrange, esp. for battle; as, a pitched field. Archaic, except in phrase pitched battle.
7. To place or expose for sale, as goods in a market. Brit.
8. To fix in one's thought; to determine; ascertain; appoint; specif., to fix, as a price, value, or rate. Now Rare.
9. To fix or set at a particular pitch or level; as, to pitch a tune or the voice. "Hath man no second life? — Pitch this one high." Matthew Arnold.
10. To square (a stone).
11. To set forward in competition; to pit. Rare.
12. To plant; as, I have already pitched my crop. Chiefly Dial.
13. To tell; relate. Slang, Brit.
14. Baseball. To deliver or throw (the ball) to the batsman.
15. Brewing. To start fermentation in (wort) by adding yeast.
16. Card Playing. In certain games, to lead (a card of a certain suit) and thereby establish trumps; to establish (the trump) in this way. Cf. 4th PITCH, 12.
17. Cricket. a To set up (the wickets, or stumps) by implanting. See 2d CRICKET. b Now Colloq. To bowl.
18. Golf. To play (the ball) with a pitch shot.
19. Naut. To loosen and throw out or overboard (spars, etc.) by pitching in a heavy sea; — said of a vessel.
20. Soap Mfg. To fit.

—, Intransitive: 1. To fix or place a tent or temporary habitation; to encamp; settle; locate. Now Rare.
2. To plunge or fall; esp., to fall forward; as, to pitch from a precipice; also, to decline or slope.
3. To pitch hay, etc.; — often with on or off.
4. To fix one's choice; to decide; select; also, to select at random; — with on or upon; as, they pitched upon an expedient.
5. To light; to settle; to seat oneself. Chiefly Dial.
6. To buck; — said of a horse. Rare.
7. Hence, to move with a motion like a pitching ship.
8. Baseball. To deliver or throw the ball to the batsman; to act as pitcher. b Cricket, Now Colloq. To bowl.
9. Mach. To fit or interlock; to mesh; engage.
10. Naut. To plunge so that the bow and stern alternately rise and fall in the water, as a ship in a head sea; — often used specif. of the downward motion of the bow. Cf. SCEND.

pitch and pay. To pay on the spot or dot. Shak.
pitch in. To set to work energetically; also, to begin eating. Colloq.
pitch into. To attack; assail; also, to scold vigorously. Colloq.
pitch out. Baseball. Intentionally to pitch the ball wide of the home plate, as in order to facilitate a throw of the catcher to prevent a base runner from stealing a base.
pitch pennies. To throw or toss pennies at a mark, a wall, etc., in gambling, the player whose penny rests nearest the mark winning all coins pitched.
pitch the bar. Figuratively, to exaggerate.

pitch (pĭch), n. 1. Act or manner of pitching or throwing; as: a A throw; toss; cast, as of something from the hand; as, a good pitch in quoits. b Act of plunging forward and downward; esp., the plunging of a vessel in making longitudinal oscillations, as in a head sea. c Rare. Act of fixing one's choice; choice.
2. That which is pitched; specif.: a A net cast or set for catching fish. b The amount of hay, grain, or the like, thrown up at once with a pitchfork. c A quantity exposed for sale. d Something put down as a payment or contribution.
3. A place at, from, or on, which something is pitched; esp., a place or spot on which one pitches, or which is allotted to or appropriated by one for a stay, residence, business, or work; specif.: a Brit. The stand of a street merchant, bookmaker, or performer. b Cornwall. The ground assigned to a tributer. c A place in a river chosen for angling.
4. A point or peak; the extreme point or degree of elevation, depression, or projection; any point, degree, or stage, esp. the extreme; hence, the extreme reach; the acme; as, the pitch of merriment.

To lowest pitch of abject fortune. Milton.

Specif.: a The height to which a bird of prey, esp. a falcon, rises before swooping on its prey. Also figuratively. b Obs. Apex; vertex; also, elevation; altitude.
5. A slope or a degree of slope; a sloping place; a declivity; also, a sloping piece or object; specif.: a Of an arch or a roof, the inclination or slope of the sides expressed by the ratio of the height to the span; as, one half pitch; whole pitch; or by the height in parts of the half span, esp. in engineering practice; or, of a roof, by degrees; or by the rise and run, that is, the ratio of the height to the half span; as, a pitch of six rise to ten run; or by inches and feet; as, a pitch of one inch [1″] to one foot [1′]. b Of stairs, the inclination of the nosing line with the floor; hence, a flight of stairs. c Angle of setting of a plowshare, a carpenter's plane iron, etc. d The angle that the cutting edge of a saw tooth makes with a line parallel to the points of the teeth.
6. A bar, stone, or stake used in pitching. Cf. 2d PITCHER. Local, Eng.
7. Pitch farthing. Now Dial.
8. A talk, story, or yarn. Slang.
9. Obs. a Stature. b A projecting part of the body, as the hip or shoulder.
10. Aeronautics. = Sense 17 b, below. Aerodynamic, or zero torque, pitch is the distance that a propeller would have to advance in one revolution in order that the torque might be zero; effective pitch is the distance an aircraft advances along its flight path for one revolution of the propeller; geometrical pitch is the distance an element of a propeller would advance in one revolution if it were turning in a solid nut; that is, if it were moving along a helix of a slope equal to the angle between the chord of the element and a plane perpendicular to the propeller axis; standard pitch, or pitch of a propeller, is usually the geometrical pitch taken at two thirds of the radius; virtual, or zero thrust, pitch is the distance a propeller would have to advance in one revolution so that there might be no thrust.
11. Baseball. Act, instance, or turn of serving the ball to the batter.
12. Cards. A game, a variety of all fours, in which the trump suit is determined by the first card led, or "pitched," by a certain hand.
13. Cricket. a = LENGTH, 13. b The specially prepared part of the playing ground between the bowling creases.
14. Elec. The distance between two points on the circumference of an armature. The pole pitch is equal to π times the armature diameter divided by the number of poles.
15. Geol. & Mining. a Dip or inclination of a vein or bed. b = PLUNGE, 5.
16. Golf. A pitch shot.
17. Mech. & Mach. Distance apart of two things, esp. of consecutive equidistant ones in a series as: a The distance from a point on a gear tooth to a corresponding point on the next tooth measured on the pitch line (circular, or arc, pitch) or in a straight line (chordal, or chord, pitch). Cf. DIAMETRAL PITCH. b The distance from any point on a thread of a screw or other helical figure to the corresponding point on an adjacent thread measured parallel to the axis. See SCREW THREAD, Table; DIVIDED PITCH. Also, the number of such turns or teeth in a unit length; as, a pitch of 4 (to the inch). c The distance between the paddles of a wheel on the circle passing through their centers. d The distance between the centers of rivet holes. e The distance between stays in steam boilers.
18. Mountaineering. A short, steep rise in the rock bed of a gully.
19. Music & Acous. a That property of a musical tone which is determined by the frequency of vibration of the sound waves which strike the ear. The larger the number of vibrations per second the higher the pitch. The relative pitch of a tone is determined by its position in a scale. Its absolute pitch is determined by computing the number of its vibrations per second, called its vibration number, and is given a letter name and represented by a particular staff degree. (See Illust.) b A standard of pitch (sense a) with which musical tones may be compared for the purpose of tuning instruments; as, concert pitch. Various standards have been in use. Classical, or classic pitch, used in the latter half of the 18th century, gave treble A (a') a vibration number between 415 and 429. From about 1816 on, the desire of instrument makers to secure brilliancy led to a continual raising of the pitch, until it reached undesirable heights, as in the concert, or high, pitch, with a' at about 450, which is still the official standard of the British army bands, and is retained in some organs, chiefly English. Stuttgart, or Scheibler's, pitch, with a' at 440, was adopted by the Stuttgart Congress of Physicists in 1834. The diapason normal, called French, international, or low, pitch, established by the French government in 1859 gave a' 435. This was for many years the standard pitch of the entire musical world but has been superseded by a slightly higher pitch, called philharmonic pitch, with a vibration rate of 440 (in Eng. 439) for a'. Philosophical pitch, used for convenience in calculations, is a theoretical pitch giving middle C (c') at 256 (with a', 427), that being the power of 2 nearest the ordinary vibration number for c'. The absolute pitch of each note in the octave c' to c'' of the major diatonic scale both pure and tempered (see 6th SCALE, 11 a), is:

	Pure	Tempered		Pure	Tempered
c'	261.000	258.652	g'	391.500	387.540
d'	293.625	290.327	a'	435.000	435.000
e'	326.250	325.881	b'	489.375	488.270
f'	348.000	345.259	c''	522.000	517.304

20. Naut. A single plunge of the bow in pitching.
21. Shoe Mfg. The angle at which a shoe sets; esp. the angle at which the heel is attached to the shoe.

pitch accent. 1. Music. Stress deriving from the relative acuteness of tones, a higher pitch tending to accentuate a tone.
2. Phonet. Prominence given to a syllable or word by means of raised pitch or change of pitch; thus in black'-bird high pitch joins with force to make black- prominent, while in black' bird' a fall in pitch within bird helps to make this more prominent. The same prominence may be got even without change of force. See Pron., §§ 60–61; cf. ACCENT, n., 2 b.

pitch'-and-run', n. Golf. A stroke in which the player pitches the ball a part of the distance to be covered and allows it to roll the rest of the way.

pitch and toss. A game in which the victor in pitching coins at a mark tosses all the pitched coins in the air and wins those that fall heads up. When several play, the next best player tosses the coins that remain, and so on.

— to play pitch and toss with. To be careless or trust to luck about.

pitch apple. A common tropical American tree (Clusia rosea) in youth often half-epiphytic or vinelike, and frequently strangling other trees. It has coarse evergreen leaves, solitary white or rose flowers, and a whitish, resinous fruit.

pitch black. a A black approximating to dark brown, resembling pitch. b A black of the lowest possible brilliance, or nearly so.

pitch'-black' (66), adj. a Dark as pitch. b Of the color pitch black. — pitch'-black'ness, n.

pitch'blende' (pĭch'blĕnd'), n. [G. pechblende. Cf. 1st PITCH; BLENDE.] Mineral. A brown to black massive mineral with pitchlike luster occurring in certain metalliferous veins, as in Bohemia. It consists largely of uranium oxide, and is usually regarded as a massive and altered (hydrous) form of the crystallized uraninite (which see). It is a source of uranium, but is more important as a source of radium.

pitch bowl. Metalcraft. = BULLET, n., 6.

pitch box. Metalcraft. A shallow box of wood or metal for holding pitch in order to form a bed for fixing, or holding, the work while tooling.

pitch chain. A chain specially designed to gear with a sprocket wheel. See CHAIN GEAR, Illust., 2.

pitch circle. See PITCH LINE.

pitch coal. A brittle, lustrous, bituminous coal or lignite.

pitch cone. Gearing. See PITCH SURFACES.

pitch cylinder. See PITCH SURFACES.

pitch'-dark' (66), adj. Pitch-black (sense a). — pitch'-dark'ness, n.

pitch diameter. Gearing. The diameter of the pitch circle of a wheel. See MODULF, 6; PITCH LINE.

pitch discharger. See DISCHARGER.

pitch'er (pĭch'ĕr), n. [ME. picher, fr. OF. pichier, through Teut. (cf. OLG. bikeri), fr. LL. becarium. See BEAKER; cf. PECK measure.] 1. A vessel for holding and pouring out liquids, usually of earthenware, glass, or metal, with a handle or, now rarely, ears, and usually with a lip or spout. In the United States pitcher is applied to nearly all vessels of fairly wide opening with a handle, used merely for holding and pouring out liquids. In England jug is the usual name of such vessels.
2. Bot. A tubular or cuplike appendage or modification of the leaves in certain plants, notably of the families Sarraceniaceae and Nepenthaceae; an ascidium.

pitch'er, n. 1. One who pitches anything, as hay, quoits, a ball, etc.; a stacker, meat porter, etc.
2. A thing used in pitching; as: a Obs. A sort of crowbar for digging. b A small set, or rough paving stone. c A stone, marble, or the like used in boys' games.
3. A street vender having a pitch. See 4th PITCH, 3. Eng.
4. Baseball. The player who pitches the ball to the batsman.
5. Golf. a A light iron club with a broad face lofted more than a mashie niblick. Cf. IRON, n., 10. b Any well-lofted club.
6. Mining. Local, Eng. a One who loads cars underground in a colliery. b One who attends to the laying down and taking up of temporary railways at the working faces. c One who picks over dumps for pieces of ore.

Pitcher, Molly. See MOLLY PITCHER.

pitch'ered (pĭch'ĕrd), adj. Bot. Having pitchers, or ascidia.

pitcher engine. Paper Mfg. A bucking or bleaching kier.

pitcher house. Wine cellar. Obs.

pitcher molding. Ceramics. The molding of clay ware in molds made of lightly fired clay in distinction from plaster molds. — pitcher mold.

pitcher plant. Any plant with leaves wholly or partly modified into pitchers, or ascidia; specif., a species of Nepenthes, Cephalotus, Sarracenia, etc. The pitchers differ widely in form and function; some merely contain water, in which captured insects are macerated and dissolved, probably by the aid of proteolytic enzymes; others digest their prey by acid secretions. The common pitcher plant of the northeastern United States is Sarracenia purpurea; that of South America is Heliamphora nutans (see HELIAMPHORA). See Illusts. under NEPENTHES, CEPHALOTUS.

pitch'er-plant' fam'i-ly. a The Nepenthaceae. b The American pitcher-plant family.

pitcher sage. A Californian mint (Sphacele calycina) with large white flowers.

pitch'-faced' (pĭch'fāst'), adj. Stonecutting. Quarry-faced but having the arris defined by a line beyond which the rock is cut away, so as to give nearly true edges.

pitch factor. Elec. The ratio of the voltage induced in a short-pitch winding to the voltage that would be induced if the winding were full pitch.

pitch farthing. Chuck farthing.

pitch'field' (pĭch'fēld'), n. A field of pitched battle. Obs.

pitch fir. Pitch pine.

pitch'fork' (pĭch'fôrk'), n. [Also pickfork, fr. pick a tool; influenced by pitch to throw.] 1. A fork, usually long-handled, used in pitching hay, grain, etc.
2. Music. A tuning fork. Obs.
3. The pronglike fruit of any of several herbs of the genus Bidens.

1 Pitch-faced Work; 2 Pitching Chisel.

pitch'fork', v. t. To pitch or throw with or as with a pitchfork; hence, to put or thrust suddenly, haphazardly, or without due consideration or preparation; as, to pitchfork troops into a battle or a book into the press.

pitchfork grass. A slender weedy grass (Paspalum setaceum) of the southern United States.

pitch'hole' (pĭch'hōl'), n. a A recess in a stone otherwise dressed true for setting. b = CAHOT. c An opening through which hay, grain, or the like, can be pitched, as into a barn.

pitch hyperboloid. See PITCH SURFACES.

pitch'i (pĭch'ĭ), n. [Native name.] A shallow elongated wooden vessel, practically the only container used by Australian natives.

pitch'i-ness (pĭch'ĭ-nĕs; -nĭs; 119), n. [From PITCHY.] Quality of being pitchy, esp. pitch-dark; darkness.

pitch'ing, n. a Act of fixing, planting, or erecting, as in or on the ground. b Exposure of merchandise for sale; also, a payment for labor connected with this. c Act of facing a bank with stone; also, the stone facing. d Rough paving

Staff Notation of Pitch, 19, showing the equivalent of each line and space in Letter Notation for Absolute Pitch. The notes of the accented octaves are also written with lines above the letter, as $\bar{c}$, $\bar{\bar{c}}$, $\bar{\bar{\bar{c}}}$, or with numerals, as a^1, a^2, a^3, a^4. Those of the contraoctave are also written with one line below the letter, as $\underline{C}$, with two letters, as CC, or with a numeral, as C_1; those of the subcontraoctave with two lines below, as $\underline{\underline{A}}$, three letters, as AAA, or a numeral, as A_2.

of a street to a grade with coarse stone, cobbles, or sets; also, a pavement so made. e Act of throwing or casting; a cast; a pitch. f Naut. The continued plunging of a vessel that pitches in a seaway.

pitch'ing (pĭch'ĭng), adj. That pitches.

pitching bar. A kind of pick used, esp. by miners, in beginning a hole.

pitching change. See SOAP, n., 1.

pitching chisel. See STONECUTTER'S CHISEL.

pitching hole. = PITCHHOLE c.

pitching piece. Carp. A beam supporting a staircase and located at the top of the stairs; — opposed to apron piece.

pitching tool. a Stonecutting. = PITCHING CHISEL. b Archaeol. = FLAKER, 2. c A watchmaker's tool for placing wheels in position. d = PITCHING BAR.

pitch kettle, or pot. A vessel for heating pitch.

pitch language. A language in which variations in pitch, or tone, have grammatical function, indicating number, case, tense, or the like, as in certain Sudanic and American Indian tongues.

pitch line. Gearing. The line on which the pitch of teeth is measured; an ideal line, in a toothed gear or rack, bearing such a relation to a corresponding line in another gear, with which the former works, that the two lines will have a common velocity as in rolling contact. The line in a circular gear forms a circle (pitch circle) concentric with the axis of the gear.

a a and c c Pitch Lines.

pitch'man (pĭch'măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). [See 4th PITCH, 3.] A vender of small novelties on the street, at fairs, circuses, etc. U. S.

pitch man. = TAR BABY a.

pitch mining. The mining of steeply inclined coal beds.

pitch moth. Any of several moths, the larvae of which bore in the wood of coniferous trees causing the exudation of pitch, as the sequoia pitch moth (Vespamima sequoia), injurious to the sequoia and pines, and the pitch twig moth (Evetria comstockiana), to the pitch pine.

pitch of a propeller. See 4th PITCH, 10.

pitch·om'e·ter (pĭch·ŏm'ĕ·tĕr), n. [pitch + -meter.] An instrument to measure the pitch of a ship's propeller.

pitch opal. See OPAL, 1.

pitch ore. Pitchblende.

pitch'out' (pĭch'out'), n. Baseball. An act of pitching out.

pitch peat. A black homogeneous peat, with a waxy luster.

pitch'pike' (pĭch'pīk'), n. A pitchfork. Dial.

pitch pine. 1. Any of several pitch-yielding species of pine, esp. Pinus rigida, P. palustris, P. ponderosa, and P. echinata; also, their wood.
2. A color, yellowish-green in hue, of low saturation and low brilliance. Cf. COLOR.

pitch pipe. Music. A small flue pipe or reed pipe, giving one or several tones, blown with the breath, for regulating the pitch, especially of singers.

pitch plaster. A plaster made with pitch as an ingredient.
— pitch'–plas'ter, v. t.

pitch pocket. A cavity in lumber that contains or has contained resin.

pitch point. Gearing. Point of contact of the pitch lines of two gears, or of a rack and pinion, when in mesh.

pitch'poll' (pĭch'pōl'), pitch'pole' (-pōl'), n. A somersault.
— v. i. To turn over in or as in a somersault.

pitch pot. = PITCH KETTLE.

pitch shot. Golf. A shot of medium short range in which the ball is played with a well-lofted club and made to take a high trajectory so that it may stop with little roll after striking the ground.

pitch'stone' (pĭch'stōn'), n. [1st pitch + stone, after G. pechstein.] Petrog. A glassy rock with a resinous luster, containing more water than obsidian.

pitch streak. A resin-filled seam in wood.

pitch surfaces (of either of two gears in mesh). Mach. The surface of either of two tangent imaginary friction wheels having the same axes and the same angular velocities as the actual gears. The pitch surface of a spur gear is a cylinder (called pitch cylinder), of an ordinary bevel gear a cone (called pitch cone), of a skew bevel a hyperboloid (called pitch hyperboloid).

pitch tree. Any of various resinous conifers; specif., the kauri pine, the Amboina pine, or the Norway spruce.

pitch twig moth. See PITCH MOTH.

pitch'work' (pĭch'wŭrk'), n. The work of a coal miner paid by a share of the output. Eng.

pitch'y (pĭch'ĭ), adj.; PITCH'I·ER (-ĭ·ĕr); PITCH'I·EST. [From 1st PITCH.] 1. Of the quality or nature of pitch; resembling pitch; as, a pitchy mass.
2. Abounding in or smeared with pitch; as, pitchy logs.
3. Pitch-dark; black; also, of darkness, intense; profound.
4. Pitchlike morally; blackly or foully wicked; defiling.
Pitchy taint of vice. Crabbe.

pit coal. Coal dug from the earth; mineral coal, as distinguished from charcoal.

pit committee. The joint committee of employer and workers dealing with the labor problems of a mine. Eng.

pit dwelling. = PIT HOUSE.

pit'e·ous (pĭt'ē·ŭs; 129), adj. [ME. pitous, fr. OF. pitous (F. piteux), fr. (assumed) VL. pietosus, fr. pietas. See PITY.] 1. Pious; devout. Obs. Chaucer.
2. Pitying; compassionate; tender. Obs.
Piteous of her woes. Milton.
3. Exciting pity or compassion; pitiful; as, piteous cries.
4. Pitiable; paltry. Now Dial. "Piteous amends." Milton.
Syn. — PITEOUS, PITIABLE, PITIFUL are sometimes interchangeable. But PITEOUS commonly applies to that which moves to compassion or sympathy; that is PITIABLE which excites commiseration or (often) contempt; PITIFUL, as here compared, applies to that which is felt to be pathetic or (more frequently) paltry or mean; as, "her sweet piteous countenance" (Shelley); "Piteous was the cry" (Tennyson); "His experience was of that pitiable kind which shrinks from pity" (G. Eliot); "her poor wan face with its wistful, pitiful little smile" (M. Hewlett); "The courage that dares only die is on the whole no sublime affair, . . . pitiful when it begins to parade itself" (Carlyle). Pitiful, in modern usage, applies to that which is full of pity; as, "tenderhearted, meek, and pitiful" (Shelley). Cf. PITY.

Ant. — Repulsive, contemptible, loathsome. See REPELLENT.
— pit'e·ous·ly, adv. — pit'e·ous·ness, n.

pit eye. Coal Mining. The bottom of a shaft, or the junction of a shaft with any level. Eng.

pit'fall' (pĭt'fôl'), n. [pit + fall, fr. AS. fealle a trap; akin to E. FALL, v.] 1. A trap or snare; esp., a pit with the opening masked, into which animals or men may fall and be captured or injured; as, natural pitfalls in a forest.
2. Hence: a A snare for the unwary; a lure to one's downfall, defeat, etc.; as, to set pitfalls for the enemy. b A danger, difficulty, or error into which one may fall unsuspectingly; as, the pitfalls of ignorance or of reasoning.

pit'fall', v. t. Rare. a To set pitfalls in. b To entrap.

pit game fowl. See GAME FOWL.

pith (pĭth), n. [AS. pitha; akin to D., LG., & Fris. pit pith, kernel. Cf. 1st PIT.] 1. a The loose spongy conjunctive tissue occupying the center of the stem within the vascular cylinder in dicotyledonous plants. It consists of typical parenchyma, the thin-walled cells of which often tend to disintegrate, leaving hollow stems, as in many umbellifers. In certain plants the pith is large and strong enough to be of commercial value for lining boxes, etc., and in microscopy for section cutting. b Any loose pithlike tissue. The stems of monocotyledons, as Indian corn, have the bundles scattered through the ground tissue, and hence show no true pith.
2. The soft or spongy interior of a part of the body, as: a Now Rare. The spinal cord or bone marrow. b The medulla of a hair. c The spongy interior of a feather.
3. Hence, that which contains the strength or life; the vital or essential part; concentrated force; vigor; importance; as, the speech lacked pith.
Enterprises of great pith and moment. Shak.
4. The core of a log; the center of a knot, etc.
Syn. — Marrow, kernel, nucleus, gist, essence.

pith (pĭth), v. t.; PITHED (pĭtht); PITH'ING. 1. To give pith, vitality, or substance to. Rare.
2. To kill, as cattle, by piercing or severing the spinal cord.
3. To destroy the spinal cord or entire central nervous system of (an animal, as a frog), as by passing a wire or needle up and down the vertebral canal.
4. To remove the pith from (the stem of a plant).

pith'a·nol'o·gy (pĭth'ȧ·nŏl'ō·jĭ), n. [Gr. pithanologia, fr. pithanos persuasive + logos speech.] The rhetorical use of persuasive arguments. Obs.

pith ball. A ball of pith, used, because of its lightness, in physical experiments.

pit head, pit'head' (pĭt'hĕd'), n. Mining. The top of a pit or coal shaft; also, the ground and buildings immediately adjacent.

pit'–head'ed, adj. Having a pit on the surface of the head; — designating the pit vipers.

pith'e·can (pĭth'ē·kăn), adj. [Gr. pithēkos ape.] Of or pertaining to the apes, esp. the anthropoids; resembling the anthropoids in nature or structure.

pith'e·can'thro·pid (pĭth'ē·kăn'thrō·pĭd), adj. Pertaining to or showing affinity with Pithecanthropus erectus.

Pith'e·can·throp'i·dae (-kăn·thrŏp'ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL. See -IDAE.] Zool. A formerly recognized family containing the genus Pithecanthropus.

Pith'e·can·thro'pus (pĭth'ē·kăn·thrō'pŭs; -kăn'thrō·pŭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. pithēkos ape + anthrōpos man.] a A hypothetical extinct primate intermediate between man and anthropoid apes. b (1) A genus of two species, erectus and robustus, regarded as primitive forms of extinct man, known from skulls of five individuals, more or less fragmentary, found (a single skullcap in 1891, additional fragments 1936–37) in Trinil, Java, hence called Java man, Trinil man. The two species are apelike in profile, with extremely low foreheads, and chinless, but stand between man and ape, leaning toward man; brain capacity is estimated as 900 to 1000 cc. The distinct species robustus was identified in 1944 by Franz Weidenreich. Cf. MAN, 17. (2) [not cap.] pl. -THROPI. An animal of this genus. — pith'e·can'thrope (-kăn'thrōp), n. — pith'e·can·throp'ic (-kăn·thrŏp'ĭk), adj. — pith'e·can'thro·poid (-kăn'thrō·poid), adj.

Skull of Pithecanthropus (P. erectus). The dotted lines show the conjectured restoration. See also MAN, Illust.

Pi·the'ci·a (pĭ·thē'shĭ·ȧ; -sĭ·ȧ), n. [NL.; fr. Gr. pithēkos an ape.] Zool. The genus of monkeys consisting of the sakis, which with the ouakaris constitute the subfamily Pi·the'ci·i'nae (-ĭ'nē). — pi·the'cian (pĭ·thē'shăn), pi·the'ci·ine (-shĭ·ĭn; -sĭ·ĭn; -ĭn), adj.

pith'e·cism (pĭth'ē·sĭz'm), n. Pithecoid characteristics present in man.

pi·the'coid (pĭ·thē'koid; pĭth'ē·koid), adj. [Gr. pithēkos ape + -oid.] Zool. a Pertaining to Pithecia or the Pitheciinae. b Pertaining to the higher apes, esp. the anthropoids. — pi·the'coid, n.

Pi·the'co·lo'bi·um (pĭ·thē'kō·lō'bĭ·ŭm), n. [NL., fr. Gr. pithēkos ape + lobion a lobe.] Bot. A large genus of tropical shrubs and trees of the mimosa family (Mimosaceae) having bipinnate leaves and globose heads of flowers with many stamens. The flat pod is curiously twisted or coiled, and in some species is edible. P. saman is the saman, or rain tree. See ALGARROBILLA, RAIN TREE, WILD TAMARIND, CAT'S-CLAW a.

pi·the'co·log'i·cal (pĭ·thē'kō·lŏj'ĭ·kăl), adj. [Gr. pithēkos ape + -logical.] Pert. to the study of apes. Rare.

pi·the'co·met'ric (-mĕt'rĭk), adj. [Gr. pithēkos ape + -metric.] Relating to measurements of the skeletons of the great apes.

pi·the'co·mor'phic (-môr'fĭk), adj. [Gr. pithēkos ape + -morphic.] Resembling the great apes. — pi·the'co·mor'phism (-fĭz'm), n.

-pi·the'cus (-pĭ·thē'kŭs). [NL.] Zool. A combining form from Greek pithēkos, meaning an ape, denoting a genus of apes, as in Sivapithecus.

pith fleck. A minute spot in the wood of certain trees, due to injury to the cambium by the boring of small larvae of certain flies.

pith helmet or hat. A light hat made of pith to protect the head in tropical countries.

pith'i·ly (pĭth'ĭ·lĭ), adv. In a pithy manner.

pith'i·ness (pĭth'ĭ·nĕs; -nĭs; 119), n. 1. The quality or state of being pithy; terse cogency.
2. Plant Pathol. A disease of celery characterized by pithy stalks and hearts.

pith knot. Lumber Trade. A sound knot with a pith hole not more than ¼ inch in diameter.

pith of the Nile. = AMBATCH.

pit'hole' (pĭt'hōl'), n. A pit; specif.: a A pockmark. b The grave. — v. t. To bury. Both Now Dial.

Pi'thom (pī'thŏm), n. Bib. A treasure city supposed to have been built by the Israelites for the Pharaoh. Ex. i. 11.

pith'os (pĭth'ŏs), n.; pl. PITHOI (-oi). [Gr.] Class. Archaeol. A large caskliike vessel of earthenware, frequently made without a base, since such jars were often set in the earth. Pithoi are found throughout the Greek world, some dating from the Minoan period.

Pithos.

pit house. Archaeol. A primitive habitation consisting of a roofed-over excavation.

pith paper. = RICE PAPER, 2.

pith plant. Bot. The rice-paper tree.

pith ray. = MEDULLARY RAY b.

pith rush. The staff rush.

pith'some (pĭth'sŭm), adj. Pithy; robust. Rare.

pith tree. The ambatch.

pith'y (pĭth'ĭ), adj.; PITH'I·ER (-ĭ·ĕr); PITH'I·EST. 1. Consisting of, filled with, or abounding in pith; as, a pithy stem or fruit.
2. Strong; vigorous. Obs. exc. Dial.
3. Having substance and pointedness of expression; tellingly brief; tersely cogent; as, a pithy remark or style.

pithy gall. A large, rough, furrowed, oblong gall, formed on blackberry canes by a small gallfly (Diastrophus turgidus).

pit'i·a·bil'i·ty (pĭt'ĭ·ȧ·bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. Pitiableness; a pitiable thing. Carlyle.

pit'i·a·ble (pĭt'ĭ·ȧ·b'l; 159), adj. [OF. piteable, pitiable (F. pitoyable).] 1. Deserving or exciting pity; miserable; lamentable; as, in a pitiable condition.
2. Lamentably insignificant or mean; despicable; as, a pitiable exhibition of party strength; pitiable makeshifts.
Syn. — Sorrowful, woeful, sad. See PITEOUS.
— pit'i·a·ble·ness, n. — pit'i·a·bly, adv.

pit'i·er (-ĭ·ĕr), n. One who pities.

pit'i·ful (-fŏŏl; -f'l), adj. 1. Full of piety. Obs.
2. Full of pity; tenderhearted; compassionate. Archaic.
Fair maid, be pitiful to my great woe. Keats.
3. Arousing pity; eliciting compassion; lamentable; as, a pitiful sight; pitiful poverty.
4. Pitiably small or mean; paltry; contemptible.
'T is pitiful to court a grin, when you should woo a soul. Cowper.
Syn. — Pathetic; despicable, mean. See CONTEMPTIBLE, PITEOUS. — pit'i·ful·ly, adv. — pit'i·ful·ness, n.

pit'i·kins, pit'ti·kins (pĭt'ĭ·kĭnz), interj. Dim. of pity, formerly used, usually with Ods (God's), as a petty oath.

pit'i·less, adj. 1. Destitute of pity; merciless; ruthless.
2. Exciting no pity; not pitiful. Rare.
— pit'i·less·ly, adv. — pit'i·less·ness, n.

pit lathe. Mach. See 2d LATHE, 1.

pit'man (pĭt'măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). 1. One who works in a pit, as in mining, in sawing timber, etc.
2. Rare. a A gravedigger. b One living in a pit; a pit dweller.
3. pl. PITMANS (-măn*z*). Mach. A connecting rod.

pitman chest. Organ Building. An improved type of wind chest used frequently in the modern organ.

pit'mirk' (pĭt'mŭrk'), adj. [See 2d PIT; MURK, adj.] Intensely dark. Scot. & N. of Eng.

pit'mirk', n. Intense darkness. Scot. & N. of Eng.

pi·tom'e·ter (pĭ·tŏm'ĕ·tĕr), n. [Pitot + -meter. See PITOT TUBE.] Hydraulics. An instrument for autographically recording variations of velocity of flowing water. It consists essentially of two Pitot tubes, one pointed upstream and one downstream.

‖pi'ton' (pē'tôn'), n. [F.] 1. A sharp peak.
2. Mountaineering. An iron peg or stanchion, often with a circular head for attaching a rope.

pit organ. Zool. In fishes, a pit or depression containing a nerve eminence.

Pi'tot'–stat'ic tube (pē'tō'stăt'ĭk). Aeronautics. A combination of a Pitot tube and a static tube, forming a pressure nozzle, and used in connection with a manometer to determine the relative speed of a fluid.

Pi'tot', or Pi'tot's', tube (pē'tō', -tōz'). [After Henri Pitot (1695–1771), French physicist and engineer.] Hydraulics. A tube with a short right-angled bend, placed vertically in a moving body of fluid with the bent part lowermost and its mouth normal to the direction of flow, to measure the velocity of the fluid.

Pitot Tube.
i Height of the Fluid.

pit'pan' (pĭt'păn'), n. [Of Cent. Am. Ind., prob. Ulvan, origin.] A long, flat-bottomed canoe, used in Central America.

pit'–pat'ter, v. i. To pitter-patter.

pit'pit' (pĭt'pĭt'), n. [Cf. GUITGUIT.] A guitguit.

pit'–pit', adv. With a rapid succession of slight sounds of unvarying quality and stress. — pit'–pit', adj. — n. A series of pit-pit sounds.

pit prop. Mining. A vertical column or upright, usually of timber, for the support of the roof of a mine working.

Pi'tri (pē'trĭ), n. [Skr. pitṛ father.] Hindu Myth. One of the semidivine fathers, patriarchs, or manes; specif.: a A departed forefather. b One of the ten Prajapatis, or progenitors of the human race. c One of the ancestors of the gods, the demons, or the four castes.

Pit River Indian. [From Pit River, Calif.] = PALAIHNIHAN.

pit run. Sand or gravel which is used as it comes from the sand or gravel pit without any attempt at grading for size of grains; — called also bank run.

pit saw, or pit'saw', n. Mech. A saw worked by two men, one (the top sawyer) standing on the log, and one (the pit sawyer) beneath it, often in a pit. See SAWYER, 1. — pit'saw', v. t. & i.

---

pitch'-ket'tled (pĭch'kĕt''ld), adj. Perplexed; puzzled. Obs. pitch'like', adj. See -LIKE. pitcht. Pitched. Ref. Sp.
pitch'u·ri. Var. of PITURI. pitch'u·rim (pĭch'ū·rĭm). Var. of PICHURIM. pite. ✝ PIGHT.
pite. ✝ PIT, PITY.
piteable. ✝ PITIABLE. pit'fold', n. Trap; pitfall. Obs.
Pi·thag'o·re'an. ✝ PYTHAGOREAN. pith'-ball' e·lec'tro·scope. Physics. See ELECTROSCOPE. pit'-head' frame. = HEADFRAME. pith'ful, adj. See -FUL. pith'less, adj. See -LESS. — pith'less·ly, adv.
Pi'tho. Var. of PEITHO.
Pi·thoi'gi·a (pĭ·thoi'gĭ·ȧ), Pi·thoe'gi·a (pĭ·thē'-), n. [Gr. Pithoigia.] See ANTHESTERIA. pi'thon. Python. Ref. Sp.
Pi'thon (pī'thŏn). Bib. pitht. Pithed. Ref. Sp.
pith'work', n. See -WORK. pit'i·a·bi. Pitiable. Ref. Sp. pit'id. Pitied. Ref. Sp.
pit'ied·ly, adv. of pitied, past part. & part. adj. of PITY. — pit'ied·ness, n.
pi·tir'ri (pē·tĕr'rē). Var. of PIPIRI. pi'tie (pĭ'tĭ). Var. of PIGHTLE. pit'less, adj. See -LESS. pit'like', adj. See -LIKE.
pi'to (pē'tō). Var. of PITA. pit'o·mie, n. Short for EPITOME. Obs. pitos, pitous. ✝ PITEOUS. pit'pat', Var. of PITAPAT. pit'-saw' file. See 4th FILE, 1.

pit'side' (pĭt'sīd'), n. The vicinity of a pit.

pit stall. See STALL, n., 14 a.

Pit'ta (pĭt'ä), n. [NL., fr. Telugu pitta bird, perh. fr. Skr. paksin.] Zool. a A large genus of chiefly terrestrial, practically songless birds (family Pittidae), mostly of southern Asia, Australia, and adjacent islands. They have the wings and tail short, the legs long, and the bill stout. Their colors are very brilliant and sharply contrasted. Though not related to the true thrushes, they are often called ground thrushes or ant thrushes. b [not cap.] A bird of this genus.

Bengal Pitta (Pitta brachyura).

pit'ta-cal (pĭt'ä-käl), n. [G. pittakal, fr. Gr. pitta, pissa, pitch + kalos beautiful.] Chem. Eupitonic acid, or a salt of it.

pit'tance (pĭt'ăns; 91), n. [ME. pitance, pitaunce, fr. OF. pitance allowance of food in a monastery, (earlier) pity, fr. pitie. See PITY.] 1. Hist. Orig., a gift or bequest to a religious house or order to provide anniversary masses for one deceased and extra or special allowances or food and drink for the community on certain occasions; hence: a The food or drink, or the individual portion of such, allowed as the result of this endowment. b A year's mind, or mass, provided for by such a bequest. Rare.
2. Hence, a charity gift; a dole, esp. of food; an alms.
3. A portion or dole; a small quantity, amount, or number; a slight share, grant or allotment. "The small pittance of learning they received." Swift. Specif.: a A small allowance of food. b A very small amount of money; often, a meager wage or compensation; as, his weekly pittance.

pit'tance (pĭt'ăns), v. t. To allow (one) a pittance. Rare.

pit'tanc-er (-ăn-sĕr), n. [OF. pitancier.] In religious houses, the administrator of pittances. Hist.

pit'ted (pĭt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. Marked with, having, or in the form of, a pit or pits. See 2d PIT, 4 b & 10.

pitted duct or vessel. Bot. A trachea, or vessel, marked with bordered pits.

pit'ter (pĭt'ĕr), n. One who or that which removes the pits from peaches, plums, etc.

pit'ter, v. i. [Imitative.] To make a sound suggesting that of pit; as, pittering streams. Obs.

pit'ter-pat'ter (pĭt'ĕr-păt'ĕr), n. A rapid rhythmical succession of light sounds or beats; a pattering, as of words.

pit'ter-pat'ter, adv. With a pitter-patter of sounds or pulses; as, his heart went pitter-patter.

pit'ter-pat'ter, v. t. & i. To patter; to move, go, utter, etc., with a pitter-patter.

pit'ti-cite (pĭt'ĭ-sīt), n. [G. pittizit, fr. Gr. pitta pitch.] A brown massive mineral, a hydrous ferric arsenate and sulphate.

Pit'ti-dae (pĭt'ĭ-dē), n. pl. [NL.] Zool. A family of passerine birds of the suborder Tyranni, typified by the genus Pitta. — pit'tine (-īn), adj.

pit'ting (pĭt'ĭng), n. a Act or process of forming pits; specif., irregular corrosion in metalwork. b Pits, or indentations, collectively. c Beekeeping. The wintering of bees in covered trenches.

Pitt'ism (pĭt'ĭz'm), n. Eng. Hist. The political policy of William Pitt, the statesman (1759–1806). — Pitt'ite (-īt), n.

pit'tite (pĭt'īt), n. Theat. An auditor in the pit, esp. one who often sits there. Eng.

pit'toid (-oid), adj. Zool. Of or like the Pittidae.

pit tomb. Archaeol. A tomb made by the excavation of a shaft or pit with vertical sides, in which the actual place of burial is excavated laterally.

Pit'to-spo-ra'ce-ae (pĭt'ō-spō-rā'sē-ē), n. pl. [NL. See PITTOSPORUM.] Bot. A family of chiefly Australian shrubs and trees (order Rosales), with regular pentamerous flowers and an ovary with many ovules. — pit'to-spo-ra'ceous (-shŭs), adj.

pit'to-spore (pĭt'ō-spōr; 181), n. A plant of the genus Pittosporum.

Pit-tos'po-rum (pĭ-tŏs'pō-rŭm; pĭt'ō-spō'rŭm), n. [NL., fr. Gr. pitta pitch + sporos seed.] Bot. a A large genus of evergreen trees and shrubs of Asia, Africa, and Australasia, typifying the family Pittosporaceae. They have white or yellow, often fragrant, flowers, succeeded by berries with seeds embedded in a viscous substance. See TARATA, LAUREL, 2 f. b [not cap.] A plant of this genus.

Pittosporum (P. undulatum). (¼) Pitts'burgh'er (pĭts'bûr'gĕr), n. A native or resident of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

pi-tu'i-tal (pĭ-tū'ĭ-tăl; pĭt'ū-ĭ'tăl; -t'l), adj. Pituitary.

pi-tu'i-tar'y (pĭ-tū'ĭ-tĕr'ĭ or, esp. Brit., -tĕr-ĭ; 242), adj. [L. pituita phlegm, pituite. See PINE tree.] 1. Anat. a Secreting mucus or phlegm. b Pertaining to or designating the pituitary body.
2. Designating a type of physique believed to be due to excessive secretion of the pituitary and characterized by obesity, extensive growth of the long bones, and enlargement of bones of the face, usually with masculine type of pelvis and masculine distribution of body hair. See ACROMEGALY.

pi-tu'i-tar'y, n. 1. Anat. The pituitary body or gland.
2. Pharm. The cleaned, dried, and powdered posterior lobe of the pituitary body of cattle. It is used in uterine atony and hemorrhage, in shock, and in intestinal paresis.
3. A person of the pituitary type of physique.

pituitary body or gland. Anat. & Zool. A small, oval, reddish-gray vascular body attached to the infundibulum of the brain and occupying the sella turcica; — so called because formerly erroneously supposed to secrete the mucus of the nose. The pituitary body is present in all craniate vertebrates, and consists of two parts or lobes (more distinct in lower vertebrates than in mammals) and separated from each other by the pars intermedia. The anterior lobe arises from a diverticulum (the pouch of Rathke) of the primitive oral cavity. (In the lampreys this diverticulum is represented by a large tubular pouch connected with the nasal cavity.) The posterior lobe arises as a down growth of the floor of the diencephalon. The anterior and posterior lobes have entirely different, possibly independent, functions. Extracts, pituitary extracts, of the anterior lobe promote growth of the suprarenal cortex, the thyroid gland, the reproductive glands, and the skeleton (cf. GIGANTISM, ACROMEGALY). Extracts of the posterior lobe cause increase in blood pressure, decrease in pulse rate, contraction of smooth muscle, esp. of the intestine, uterus, and the arterioles, increase, then decrease of urine secretion, stimulation of melanophores, and, according to some observers, increase in blood sugar. Tumors and diseased conditions preventing normal secretion of the pituitary body lead to a state of general adiposity.

pituitary fossa. Anat. = SELLA TURCICA.

pituitary membrane. = SCHNEIDERIAN MEMBRANE.

pi-tu'ite (pĭ-tū'ĭt), n. [L. pituita; cf. F. pituite. See PITUITARY.] Mucus; phlegm.

pi-tu'i-tous (pĭ-tū'ĭ-tŭs; 242), adj. [L. pituitosus; cf. F. pituiteux.] Consisting of or resembling pituite, or mucus; full of, or due to, mucus; discharging mucus. — pi-tu'i-tous-ness, n.

Pi-tu'i-trin (-trĭn), n. [See PITUITARY; -IN, 2.] Pharm. A trade-mark for a slightly acid aqueous solution of the fresh posterior lobe of the pituitary body of cattle; hence [sometimes not cap.], this preparation.

pit'u-ri (pĭt'ū-rē), n. [Native name.] An Australian shrub (Duboisia hopwoodii); also, a narcotic drug, prepared by drying its leaves and twigs, chewed by the aborigines as a stimulant.

pit viper. Any of a group of highly specialized and very venomous snakes distinguished by having, between the eye and the nostril, a hollow or pit, which is lined with sensory epithelium and innervated by branches of the trigeminal nerve. They have hollow perforated fangs ordinarily folded back in the upper part of the mouth, but erected in striking. They constitute a family, Cro-tal'i-dae (krō-tăl'ĭ-dē), or in some classifications a subfamily, Crot'a-li'nae (krŏt'ä-lĭ'nē), of the family Viperidae, including the rattlesnakes and some forms without rattles, as the copperhead, water moccasin, and fer-de-lance. Most of them are American; a few inhabit Asia.

pit'wood' (pĭt'wŏŏd'), n. Timbers used for posts, props, etc., in mines.

pit'work' (-wûrk'), n. a The system of pump rods, pumps, etc., in a mine shaft. b Work, esp. mining, in a pit.

pit'wright' (-rīt'), n. A pit carpenter. Eng.

pit'y (pĭt'ĭ), n.; pl. PITIES (-īz). [ME. pite, fr. OF. pite, pitie (F. pitié), fr. L. pietas piety, kindness, pity, fr. pius pious. See PIOUS; cf. PIETY, PITTANCE.] 1. Obs. a Mercy; clemency. b Repentance; remorse. c Piety.
2. A feeling for the sufferings of others; sympathy, or capacity for sympathy, with the grief or misery of another; compassion; fellow feeling; commiseration.
He that hath pity upon the poor lendeth unto the Lord. Prov. xix. 17.
3. A reason or cause of pity, grief, or regret; a thing to be regretted; as, Colloq., it is a thousand pities. "The more the pity." Shak.
O Iago, the pity of it, Iago! Shak.
4. Something or someone deserving pity, as a person, lot, etc. Rare.
☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:
pity-begging pity-moved pity-seeking pity-bound pity-moving pity-worthy

Syn. — PITY, SYMPATHY, COMPASSION, COMMISERATION, CONDOLENCE. PITY is feeling for another's suffering or distress, and sometimes regards its object as not only suffering, but weak or inferior; SYMPATHY, as here compared (cf. CONGENIAL), is fellow feeling with others, esp. in their grief or affliction; the word implies a certain degree of equality in situation, circumstances, etc.; COMPASSION is deep tenderness for another, esp. under severe or inevitable suffering or misfortune; as, "instead of scornful pity or pure scorn" (Tennyson); "This is a sight for pity to peruse . . . till sympathy contract a kindred pain" (Cowper); "My heart was pierced with sympathy for woe which could not be my own" (Shelley); "There was a dead man carried out, the only son of his mother, and she was a widow. . . . And when the Lord saw her, he had compassion on her" (Luke vii. 12–13). COMMISERATION implies profound pity or sorrow, esp. as it finds expression, for another's misfortune; CONDOLENCE always suggests the expression (often formal) of sympathy; as, "While we look at Samson . . . we are forced to think of Milton, of his blindness, of his abandonment, with as deep a commiseration" (Landor); a message of condolence. See PATHOS; cf. MERCY, COMFORT, HUMANE, PITEOUS.

Ant. — Indifference, callousness; cruelty, mercilessness.

— a pity of. A cause of feeling sorrow, compassion, or regret for or about (a person or thing). Archaic & Dial.

— to have, or take, pity on or upon (Obs. of). To feel pity for or show pity to; as, have pity upon us.

pit'y (pĭt'ĭ), v.; pt. PITIED (-ĭd); PITY'ING. [Cf. OF. piteer (F. pitoyer). See PITY, n.] Transitive: 1. To feel sorrow or compassion for the suffering, misfortune, or weakness of; to have sympathy with; to compassionate; commiserate.
2. To move to pity; — chiefly impersonal. Archaic & Dial.

—, Intransitive: To be compassionate; to feel pity.
I will not pity, nor spare, nor have mercy. Jer. xiii. 14.

pit'y-ing, adj. Expressing or feeling pity; as, a pitying eye, glance, or word. — pit'y-ing-ly, adv.

Pit'y-lus (pĭt'ĭ-lŭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. pitys pine.] Zool. A genus of Central and South American grosbeaks related to the cardinal bird but lacking a crest.

pit'y-o-cam'pa (pĭt'ĭ-ō-kăm'pä), n. Also pit'y-o-cam'pe (-pē). [L. pityocampa, fr. Gr. pityokampē, fr. pitys, pityos, pine tree + kampē caterpillar.] The larva of a European processionary moth (Cnethocampa pityocampa) found on pine or fir trees, and believed by the ancients to be very poisonous.

pit'y-ri-as'ic (pĭt'ĭ-rĭ-ăs'ĭk), adj. Of, or affected with, pityriasis.

pit'y-ri'a-sis (pĭt'ĭ-rī'ä-sĭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. pityriasis, fr. pityron, lit., bran.] 1. Med. A superficial affection of the skin, characterized by irregular patches of thin scales.
2. Veter. A disease of domestic animals characterized by dry epithelial scales, and due to digestive disturbances and alteration of the function of the sebaceous glands.

‖pi'ty-ri'a-sis ver-si'co-lor (pĭt'ĭ-rī'ä-sĭs vĕr-sĭk'ō-lŏr) [NL.] Med. A parasitic disease of the skin, characterized by reddish or brownish patches.

Pit'y-ro-gram'ma (pĭt'ĭ-rō-grăm'ä), n. [NL.] Bot. A small genus of tropical terrestrial ferns (family Polypodiaceae), some species called gold fern and silver fern from the yellowish or white powdery under surface of their bipinnate fronds. They have linear, dorsal sori.

pit'y-roid (pĭt'ĭ-roid), adj. [Gr. pityron bran + -oid.] With the form of, or like, bran.

‖più (pyōō), adv. [It., fr. L. plus. See PLUS.] Music. More; — used in directions; as, ‖più allegro, more lively.

piu'ri (pyōō'rē), n. [Hind. piūrī, fr. Skr. pīta yellow.] = INDIAN YELLOW a.

Pi'us (pī'ŭs), n. [L.] Lit., pious; filial; — masc. proper name. F. Pie (pē); It. Pio (pē'ō).

piv'ot (pĭv'ŭt), n. [F., of uncert. origin.] 1. A point, fixed pin, or short axis, on the end of which something turns.
2. The end of a shaft or arbor which rests and turns in a support; as, the pivot of an arbor in a watch.
3. A That upon which something turns or depends; the central, cardinal, or crucial factor, member, part, etc.; as, the pivot of a football team. b In Japanese poetry, an equivocal word.
4. Basketball. An act of stepping once or more than once in any direction with the same foot while keeping the other foot at its point of contact with the floor.
5. Dent. The metallic pin by which an artificial crown is affixed to the root of a tooth.
6. Golf. The turn of the body from left to right on the backswing and the reverse on the downswing.
7. Mil. The soldier or element around which a body of troops turns in changing front.

a Pivot, 1.

piv'ot (pĭv'ŭt), adj. a Turning on or as on a pivot; also, permitting or causing pivoting. b Pivotal; crucial.

piv'ot (pĭv'ŭt), v. t.; -OT-ED (-ĕd; -ĭd; 119), -OT-ING. To place or mount on, or to furnish with, a pivot or pivots. — v. i. 1. To turn or swing on or as on a pivot; to hinge.
2. Cards. To rotate about the table at intervals. One player sits still; the other three move to the right.
3. Dancing. To turn as if on a pivot.

piv'ot-al (-ăl; -l), adj. Of, pertaining to, or constituting, a pivot; serving as a pivot, or central or crucial member, factor, etc. — n. A pivotal man. — piv'ot-al-ly, adv.

pivotal fault. Geol. A rotational fault. See FAULT, n., 6.

pivot bearing. = STEP BEARING.

pivot blow. A blow delivered with the fist striking sideways, added momentum being given by swinging the body.

pivot bridge. A form of drawbridge in which one span, called the pivot span, turns about a central vertical axis.

piv'ot-er (-ĕr), n. 1. One who pivots.
2. One who makes or adjusts pivots.

pivot gearing. Mach. Gearing permitting the driving shaft to be pivoted or turned in various directions.

pivot gun. A gun on a pivot or revolving carriage.

pivot joint. Anat. An articulation permitting only rotation, consisting of a bony pivot in a ring of bone and ligament, as that of the odontoid and atlas.

pivot man. Mil. = PIVOT, 7.

pivot of maneuver. Mil. That part of an attacking force which engages the enemy with the intention of immobilizing him while another part strikes a decisive blow.

pivot pier. The pier on which a swing bridge rotates. See DRAWBRIDGE.

pivot stand. Ordnance. The part of certain gun mounts secured to the platform, in which the pivot is enclosed.

pivot tooth or crown. Dent. An artificial crown attached to a root by a pivot.

pix'y, pix'ie (pĭk'sĭ), n.; pl. PIXIES (-sĭz). [Origin uncert.; cf. E. dial. pisky, and Sw. dial. pysk, pyske, fairy, goblin.] A mischievous sprite or fairy delighting in leading people astray; — chiefly used in local English folklore.

pix'y-led', adj. Led astray by pixies; bewildered.

pixy ring. 1. Eng. Folklore. A fairy ring or circle.
2. A spinning whorl. Local, Eng.

pixy stool. A toadstool or mushroom. Eng.

pize (pīz). A mild imprecation; — chiefly in: a pize on or of. Obs. exc. Dial.

piz'zi-ca'to (pĭt'sē-kä'tō; pēt-), adj. [It., pinched.] Music. Plucked; — a direction to players of bowed instruments to pluck the string instead of bowing. Abbr. pizz. — n.; pl. -TI (-tē). A tone so produced; also, the process of plucking.

piz'zle (pĭz'l), n. [Cf. LG. pesel, D. pees.] The penis of an animal, as the bull, sometimes formerly used as a whip.

pla'ca-bil'i-ty (plä'kä-bĭl'ĭ-tĭ; plăk'ä-), n. [L. placabilitas.] Quality or state of being placable.

pla'ca-ble (plä'kä-b'l; plăk'ä-; 277), adj. [ME., fr. OF. placable, fr. L. placabilis, fr. placare to quiet, pacify. See PLACATE.] 1. Giving pleasure; agreeable; pleasing. Obs.
2. Capable of being, or ready to be, placated; willing to forgive.
3. Peaceable; peaceful; calm. Rare.
— pla'ca-ble-ness, n. — pla'ca-bly, adv.

Pla-cae'an, Pla-ce'an (plä-sē'ăn), adj. Of or pertaining to the French Protestant Joshua Placaeus, or Placeus (Laplace) (1606–55), who held that man's native depravity, which God imputes to the individual, has been inherited from Adam, but that there is no direct imputation of Adam's sin to his descendants.

‖pla'card (plăk'ärd; 277), n. [F., fr. (assumed) Pr. placat, fr. placa plaque. See PLAQUE; cf. PLACKET.] 1. Hist. A formal or official document; specif.: a An official license or permit. b An official proclamation, manifesto, or edict. "The Saxon lads, wi' loud placa(r)ds." Burns.
2. A notice, as an advertisement or announcement, posted, or to be posted, in a public place; a poster; a bill.
3. = PLACCATE a. Obs.
4. A kind of stomacher, often adorned with jewels, worn in the 15th century and later. Obs.

‖la-card' (plä-kärd'; plăk'ärd), v.; -CARD'ED; -CARD'ING. Transitive: 1. To post placards on or in; as, to placard a wall or a city.
2. To announce or advertise by placards; as, to placard a sale.
3. To post as a placard; as, to placard a bill.

—, Intransitive: To post or affix placards.

pla-card'er (plä-kärd'ĕr; plăk'är-), n. One who placards.

---

pittard. ✝ PETARD. [CRAWLEY.]
Pitt' Craw'ley (pĭt' krô'lĭ). See Pitt diamond, or Pitt (pĭt), n. [After Thomas Pitt (1653–1726), Governor of Madras.] See REGENT DIAMOND. pitted scab. See POTATO SCAB.

pit'ten. Scot. past part. of PUT.
pit'ti-kins. Var. of PITIKINS. pit'ti-zite (pĭt'ĭ-zīt). Var. of PITTICITE. pit'to-resque'. ✝ PICTURESQUE. pit'trel. ✝ PETREL.
Pitts'burgh-plus' plan. [From Pittsburgh, Pa.] See BASING POINT, 1. pit'ty-pat'. Var. of PITAPAT. pit'ty-pat'ty. Scot. var. of PITAPAT. pi-tu'i-tose', adj. Pituitous. Obs. pit'y-proof' (66), adj. See -PROOF.

Pius IX. See ORDER, n., 1.
Pi'ute (pī'ūt). Var. of PAIUTE. pi-val'ic (pĭ-văl'ĭk; pī-), adj. [Perh. fr. pinacolin + valeric + -ic.] Chem. See VALERIC. pi-war'oo (pē-wŏr'ō), pi-war'ris. Vars. of PAIWARI.

pix. Var. of PYX.
pix, n. [Cf. PICKAX.] = PICKAX. Obs. exc. Dial.
pix'ie, pix'y. Vars. of PYXIE. pix'is. Var. of PYXIS.
pix'-ju'ry, n. = PYX-JURY.
‖pix li'qui-da (pĭks lĭk'wĭ-dä). [NL. See 1st PITCH; 1st LIQUID.] = PINE TAR. pi'zen (pī'z'n). Dial. var. of POISON. plac-. = PLACO-. pla'ca-bl. Placable. Ref. Sp. plac'ard-eer', n. = PLACARDER. Contemptuous.

pla'cate (plā'kāt; plăk'āt; or, esp. Brit., plā-kāt'; 277), v. t.; PLA'CAT·ED (plā'kāt-ĕd; plăk'āt-ĕd); PLA'CAT·ING (-ĭng). [L. placatus, past part. of placare to placate. See PLEASE.] To appease; pacify; conciliate.

They reject the idea of attaining salvation by placating God. Walter Lippmann.

Syn. and Ant. — See PACIFY.

— pla'cat·er (plā'kāt-ĕr; plăk'āt-ĕr), n.

pla·ca'tion (plā-kā'shŭn), n. [Obs. F., fr. L. placatio.] Act of placating; also, a propitiatory offering.

pla'ca·tive (plā'kā-tĭv; plăk'ā-tĭv), adj. Placatory; as, a placative little laugh. — pla'ca·tive·ly, adv.

pla'ca·to'ry (plā'kā-tō'rĭ; plăk'ā-; or, esp. Brit., -tĕr·ĭ), adj. [LL. placatorius.] Designed to placate; conciliatory.

plac'cate (plăk'ĭt), n. [Cf. PLACARD.] Hist. In armor: a A plate forming an extra piece of body armor, esp. over the lower part of the breast. b A form of brigandine, a jacket or doublet lined with steel splints.

place (plās), n. [ME., fr. OF. place, fr. L. platea a street, area, courtyard, fr. Gr. plateia a street, prop. fem. of platys flat, broad; akin to Skr. prthu, Lith. platus, to L. planta a sprig, planta sole of the foot, and ult. to L. palma palm of the hand. See PALM; cf. FLAT, FLAWN, FLOUNDER fish, PIAZZA, PLAICE, PLANE tree, PLANT, 1st PLAINTAIN, PLAT flat, PLATE, PLAZA.] 1. An open space, or square, in a city or town. Now Rare.

2. Space; specif.: a Archaic. Room; as, make place for the ladies. b A region; locality; spot.

The mournful place where Adonais lay. Shelley.

c A village, town, or city; as, one's native place. d (1) A locality or spot occupied as a dwelling place or the like. (2) A manor house; the chief house on an estate or in a locality; also, farm; homestead. (3) A fortified town or fortress; esp., the body of a fortification; a stronghold. e A portion of space reserved for actual occupancy, as a seat in a theatre, on a coach, at a table, etc.; as, we engaged our places in advance.

3. a A portion of space occupied by a body; hence, the position in space of a body. "I will shake the heavens and the earth shall remove out of her place." Is. xiii. 13. b Vacated or relinquished space; room; stead; as, resignation in place of contentment; I would not have done that if I had been in his place.

4. Any particular spot or locality; as, a sore place on one's body; in one place the author says, etc. Also, Now Rare, a definite portion or passage of a book or document; locus.

The place of the scripture which he read. Acts viii. 32.

5. Station in order of priority, advancement, dignity, etc.; esp., social rank or position; degree; status.

I know my place as I would they should do theirs. Shak.

6. A proper or suitable spot or location considering all things; as, a time and place for all things; this is no place for children. Also, formerly, a suitable time or occasion.

7. A building, part of a building, or other spot, set apart for a special purpose; as, a place of worship, of amusement.

8. A short street, or court, a private residence terrace, or some similar variation from the ordinary street.

9. Official status or position; an office or employment, specif. in public service; as, a place at court; also, its duties or function; as, it is my place to advise.

Good servants need not want places. Fielding.

10. Extension in space; space, esp. as contrasted with time.

Our bourne of Time and Place. Tennyson.

11. Ordinal relation; position or point in the order of proceeding; as, he said in the first place.

12. With any, some, no, etc., = -WHERE; as, I can't find it any place. Chiefly Dial.

13. An eating room; restaurant or lunch counter; loosely, any establishment, resort, etc.; a "joint." Slang.

14. A subject; theme. Obs.

15. Astron. Position in the heavens as defined by the right ascension and declination of the object. See MEAN PLACE, APPARENT PLACE.

16. Drama. In early English drama, the locality in which the action proceeds.

17. Falconry. Highest point of a bird's pitch. Archaic.

18. Math. a Arith. The position of a figure, or a figure in position, with reference to its relation to others of a row or series; — used esp. of figures occurring after a decimal point; as, a number of five places; the number in the first decimal place. b Obs. Geom. A locus.

19. Racing. The position of first, second, or third at the finish, esp. the second position. In betting, to win a bet on a horse for a place it must, in the United States, finish first or second, in England, usually, first, second, or third.

Syn. — Situation, position, location, site. See OFFICE.

☞ COMBINATIONS (in sense 9) are:

place-begging, adj.	place hunter	placemongering place-grabbing, adj.	place-hunting, adj.	place-proud place holder	place-loving, adj.	place seeker place-holding, adj.	placemonger	place-seeking, adj.

— have place. To have lodgment or room for existence; as, such base desires can have no place in a good heart. — in place. a Obs. Present; on the spot. b = IN SITU. c In proper or suitable place or time; timely; seasonable. — in place of. As a substitute, or in exchange, for. — on, or upon, the place. = IN PLACE a. Obs. — out of place. a Not in the usual or proper place; hence, unsuited to time, surroundings, or the like; inopportune; as, his remarks were out of place. b Out of employment. — take place. a To assume position; as, he took his place in line. b To occur; happen; as, when that takes place the end is near.

place (plās), v.; PLACED (plāst); PLAC'ING (plās'ĭng). [From PLACE, n.] Transitive: 1. To put in a particular spot or place, or in a certain relative position; to fix; settle; locate; dispose; as, to place a book on a shelf.

Upon my head they placed a fruitless crown. Shak.

2. To put or set in a particular rank, office, position, or condition of life; to secure a position, office, or the like, for; as, in whatever sphere one is placed.

3. To dispose of (a thing) in a desired or selected way; as, to place one's favors where they may bring returns; to place a play with a manager; specif., to invest or lay out at interest; as, to place money in a bank, or in mines.

4. To set; fix; repose; as, to place confidence in a friend.

My resolution's placed. Shak.

5. To perceive or know the location of; to identify by assigning to, or connecting with, some place, time, station, circumstance, or the like; to assign to a particular place, time, rank, or the like; as, the garden of Eden has been placed in various countries; I cannot place him.

6. To attribute; ascribe. Obs.

7. In singing or speaking, to produce tones of (voice) with reference to the vocal organs and resonance cavities involved in the process; hence, to produce or cause to produce free and well-resonated tones of (voice); to use or cause to use (one's voice) effectively; as, to place one's own or a pupil's voice.

8. Card Games. To realize the position of (an unplayed card).

9. Football. In Rugby, to place-kick (a goal).

10. Racing. To determine or announce the place of at the finish. Usually, in horse racing, only the first three horses are placed officially.

—, Intransitive: To admit of being placed.

||place (plās), n. [F.] Place; open space, or square, in a city or town (cf. PLACE, n., 1); specif. [cap.], in the names of famous squares of Paris, as Place de la Bastille, Place de la Concorde, Place Vendôme. Cf. PLAZA.

||place' aux dames' (plăs'-sō dăm'). [F.] Room for, or make way for, the ladies.

place bill. A bill in Parliament to exclude all persons holding government office from membership in the House of Commons. Eng.

pla·ce'bo (plā-sē'bō), n.; pl. -BOS, -BOES (-bōz). [L., I shall please, fut. of placere to please. See PLEASE.] 1. R.C.Ch. The initial word of the first antiphon (Psalm cxiv. 9. Vulgate) of the Vespers for the dead; hence, Vespers for the dead.

2. One who servilely echoes another; a toady. Obs.

3. Med. A medicine or preparation, esp. an inactive one, given merely to satisfy a patient.

4. Something intended to soothe, conciliate, or gratify.

With this placebo she concluded her note. Scott.

— to play, sing, etc., placebo. To agree servilely with one in his opinion; to toady; to play the sycophant. Obs. or Archaic.

Placebo and Dirige. R.C.Ch. The Office of the Dead. See PLACEBO; DIRGE, 1.

place brick. Formerly, a soft brick laid on a prepared place to dry and harden before burning; now, a brick not fully burned.

place card. A small, usually decorated, card inscribed with the name of a guest and set at the place he is to occupy at table.

||place' d'armes' (plăs' dărm'). [F.] Literally, place of arms; a military place of assembly, parade ground, station, or depot. Specif.: Fort. = PLACE OF ARMS.

place isomerism. See ISOMERIC, 1.

place kick. Football. Act of kicking the ball after it has been placed on the ground, or an instance of this; — disting. from a drop kick or a punt. In the Rugby and American games a place kick (unless it be a kickoff) which sends the ball over the crossbar between the lines of the goal posts counts as a goal. — place kicker.

place'-kick', v. t. & i. To make a place kick; to make (a goal) by a place kick.

place'mak'ing (plās'māk'ĭng), n. a The making of a place. b Change Ringing. Act of two bells that make places. See MAKE PLACES. — place'mak'er (-māk'ĕr), n.

place'man (plās'măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). One who holds or occupies a place or office, esp. under government; — usually contemptuous. — place'man·ship, n.

place'ment (-mĕnt), n. Act of placing, or fact of being placed; specif.: a The finding of employment for a worker; as, the placement work of public employment offices. b Amer. Football. The placing of the ball on the ground to make a place kick for a goal from the field; also the position of the ball for a place kick; as, a kick from placement; a place kick. c Educ. The assignment of students to classes of different advancement in accordance with their mastery of the subject, determined often by placement tests. d Lawn Tennis. A return of the ball which is so placed that an opponent is unable to play it. e Music. The art or practice of placing the voice; as, to have good placement; to teach voice placement.

placement examination. An examination of students, esp. recent matriculants, to place them according to their individual abilities and deficiencies.

placement kick. Amer. Football. A place kick.

placement test. Educ. A test to determine the fitness of students for assignment to classes of a given grade or degree of advancement.

place'-mon'ey, n. Racing. Money paid to those who backed the horse for a place.

place name. The name of a place; specif., the name of a geographical place, as a village, city, etc.

pla·cen'ta (plā·sĕn'tā), n.; pl. -TAE (-tē), -TAS (-tăz). [L., a cake, fr. Gr. plakous a flat cake, fr. plax, plakos, anything flat and broad. See PLANK.] 1. Anat. & Zool. In mammals (except monotremes and most marsupials), the vascular structure by which the fetus is nourished in the uterus. It is usually expelled after the young is born, constituting the chief part of the afterbirth. The placenta consists of a modified part of the chorion of the fetus, which develops villi that are received into the modified mucous membrane of the uterus. There is no admixture of maternal and fetal blood, but an interchange of the dissolved substances by diffusion. The fetus is attached to the placenta by the umbilical cord. In the nondeciduate type of placenta the chorionic villi are simply received into depressions in the uterine portion and withdrawn at parturition. In the deciduate type, characteristic of the higher mammals, the relationship is so intimate that more or less of the uterine wall is torn off in parturition. (See DECIDUA.) When nearly the whole chorion is studded with villi and functions as a placenta, as in the perissodactyls, hogs, camels, cetaceans, etc., the placenta is called diffuse. When the villi occur in small isolated groups, as in ruminants, it is called cotyledonary. These two types are always nondeciduate. When they are arranged in a zone or band, as in carnivora, elephants, and some edentates, it is called zonary; when they are restricted to a disklike area, as in Insectivora, rodents, bats, it is called discoidal. Apes and man exhibit a form of discoidal placenta supposed to be a modification of the diffuse type and called metadiscoidal.

2. Anat. & Zool. In other groups of animals, any of certain analogous organs for the attachment of the young to the mother and its nourishment by her, as in some viviparous sharks and certain free-swimming tunicates.

3. Bot. Any sporangia-bearing surface; specif.: a In seed plants, that part of the carpel bearing ovules. See PLACENTATION, 2. b In ferns and fern allies, the point on the leaf or sporophyll on which sporangia are borne.

pla·cen'tal (plā·sĕn'tăl; -t'l), adj. [NL. placentalis. See PLACENTA.] Pertaining to the placenta or Placentalia; characterized by a placenta. — n. A placental mammal.

Plac'en·ta'li·a (plăs'ĕn·tā'lĭ·ă), n. pl. [NL.] Zool. A subclass or division of mammals including all except the monotremes and marsupials; equivalent to Monodelphia.

plac'en·ta'li·an (plăs'ĕn·tā'lĭ·ăn; 159), adj. Zool. Placental. — n. A placental mammal.

||pla·cen'ta pre'vi·a (plā·sĕn'tă prē'vĭ·ă). [NL. See PREVIOUS.] Med. A state of abnormal position of the placenta in which the latter is implanted near the internal opening of the cervix uteri, and therefore tends to precede the child in labor, usually causing severe hemorrhage.

plac'en·tar'y (plăs'ĕn·tĕr'ĭ; -tĕr-ĭ; plā·sĕn'tā·rĭ), adj. Zool. & Bot. Placental; pertaining to the placenta. — n. Zool. A placentate mammal.

pla·cen'tate (plā·sĕn'tāt), adj. Having a placenta.

plac'en·ta'tion (plăs'ĕn·tā'shŭn), n. 1. Anat. & Zool. a The process or means by which the placenta is attached to the uterus. b The formation, or the type of structure, of a placenta.

Transverse sections of Ovaries, showing: 1 Axile Placentation of Dianthus; 2 Parietal Placentation of Passiflora.

2. Bot. The arrangement or mode of attachment of the placentas. When attached to the united edges of the carpellary leaves, the placentation is parietal; the parietal placentation of a monocarpellary ovary is called marginal. When the compound ovary is plurilocular, the placentae are grouped in the center and the placentation is axile. A free central placentation is one in which the placenta is unconnected with the wall of the ovary. See Illust.

plac'en·tif'er·ous (plăs'ĕn·tĭf'ĕr·ŭs), adj. Bearing a placenta.

pla·cen'ti·form (plā·sĕn'tĭ·fôrm), adj. Having the shape of a placenta, or concave disk; resembling a placenta.

plac'en·tig'er·ous (plăs'ĕn·tĭj'ĕr·ŭs), adj. Placentiferous.

plac'en·ti'tis (plăs'ĕn·tī'tĭs), n. [NL., fr. placenta + -itis.] Med. Inflammation of the placenta.

pla·cen'toid (plā·sĕn'toid), adj. [placenta + -oid.] Placentiform.

plac'en·to'ma (plăs'ĕn·tō'mā), n.; pl. -TOMATA (-mă·tā), -TOMAS (-măz). [NL., fr. placenta + -oma.] Med. A tumor developed from the placenta or placental remnants.

place of arms. Fort. An enlarged space, usually along the covered way, serving esp. as a rallying place for sortie groups. Called salient or re-entering, according to the location.

place of articulation. Phonet. See ARTICULATION, 8.

place plate. = SERVICE PLATE. See PLATE, n., 6 a.

plac'er (plās'ĕr), n. One who places or puts in place.

plac'er (plăs'ĕr), n. [Sp., placer, sand bank, fr. placel sand bank, fr. the stem of Sp. plaza place, L. platea. See PLAZA, PLACE.] A place where gold is obtained by washing; an alluvial or glacial deposit, as of sand or gravel, containing particles of gold or other valuable mineral. In the United States mining law, mineral deposits, not veins in place, are treated as placers, so far as locating, holding, and patenting are concerned. Various minerals, besides metallic ores, have been held to fall under this provision, but not coal, oil, or salt.

plac'er claim (plăs'ĕr). Mining. A mining claim on a placer deposit. Cf. LODE CLAIM.

placer mining. The process of obtaining the valuable material from placers by washing, by dredging, or by hydraulic or other methods. — placer miner.

pla'cet (plā'sĕt; -sĭt; 119), n. [L., it pleases. See PLACEBO.] An expression, declaration, or vote of assent manifested by the use of the word placet; specif., formerly, the assent of the civil power to the promulgation of an ecclesiastical ordinance.

plac'id (plăs'ĭd), adj. [L. placidus, fr. placere to please. See PLEASE.] Unruffled; undisturbed; peaceful; quiet; gentle; as, a placid disposition, face, or sleep. — plac'id·ly, adv. — plac'id·ness, n.

Syn. and Ant. — See CALM.

||pla·ci'da·men'te (plä·chē'dä·mĕn'tā), adv. [It.] Music. Placidly; calmly; — used as a direction.

pla·cid'i·ty (plā·sĭd'ĭ·tĭ), n.; pl. -TIES (-tĭz). [L. placiditas.] Quality or state of being placid; calmness; serenity; mildness.

plac'ing-out' (plās'ĭng·out'), n. The system of caring for dependent children by placing them in private families instead of putting them in institutions, such as orphanages.

plac'i·ta co·ro'nae (plăs'ĭ·tā kō·rō'nē). [ML.] Pleas of the crown.

plac'i·tum (plăs'ĭ·tŭm), n.; pl. -TA (-tā). [ML. See PLEA.] Obs. exc. Hist. 1. The decision or decree of a judge, a court, or public assembly; also, a proceeding or assembly in which such a decree was made; specif., in the Middle Ages, a general council or assembly held for consultation upon affairs of state and presided over by the king. 2. pl. The proceedings of courts or councils of state.

plack (plăk), n. [MD. (Flem.) placke. See PLAQUE.] 1. A minor coin of base silver which circulated in Scotland, France (plaque), and the Low Countries (plak) in the 15th century and later. Obs.

2. Hence, anything of the least possible value.

No, stretch a point to catch a plack. Burns.

plack'et (plăk'ĕt; -ĭt; 119), n. [Perh. the same word as placard.] 1. A petticoat; figuratively, a woman. Archaic. 2. A finished slit or opening in a garment, esp. a skirt, made for convenience in putting it on; — called also placket hole.

3. A pocket, esp. one in a woman's skirt.

plack'less (plăk'lĕs; -lĭs; 119), n. [plack + -less.] Penniless. Scot. & N. of Eng.

plac'o- (plăk'o-), plac-. [See PLEASE.] A combining form, Greek plako-, plak-, from plax, plakos, meaning a tablet, a flat plate, as in *Placo*phora, *Placo*dus.

plac'o·chro·mat'ic (plăk'ō·krō·măt'ĭk), adj. [placo- + chromatic.] Bot. Having chromatophores arranged in plates; — said of diatoms. Cf. COCCOCHROMATIC.

plac'ode (plăk'ōd), n. [plac- + 1st -ode.] Zool. In vertebrate embryos, a thickening of the ectoderm forming the anlage of various sense organs.

plac'o·derm (plăk'ō·dûrm), adj. [placo- + -derm.] Bot. Having the cell wall consisting of two, rarely more, pieces, as certain desmids. See DESMIDIACEAE. — plac'o·der'ma·tous (-dûr'mā·tŭs), adj.

Plac'o·der'mi (-dûr'mĭ), n. pl. [NL., fr. placo- + Gr. derma skin.] Paleontol. In some classifications, a group of extinct fishes with an armor of large bony plates. As usually defined, it corresponds to the Antiarcha and Arthrodira taken together. — plac'o·derm (plăk'ō·dûrm), adj. & n. — plac'o·der'mal (-dûr'măl), adj. — plac'o·der'moid (-moid), adj.

Plac'o·dus (plăk'ō·dŭs), n. [NL., fr. plac- + -odus.] Paleontol. A genus of rather large extinct reptiles of the subclass Synaptosauria from the marine Trias of central Europe. They are known chiefly from the skull and lower jaw, and have broad flat molar teeth on the palate and dentary bones. The genus is the type of an order, Plac'o·don'ti·a (-dŏn'shĭ·ȧ). — plac'o·dont (plăk'ō·dŏnt), adj. & n.

Plac'o·ga·noi'de·i (-gȧ·noi'dē·ī), n. pl. [NL., fr. placo- + Ganoidei.] Paleontol. A group equiv. to Placodermi. — plac'o·gan'oid (-găn'oid), adj. & n. — plac'o·ga·noi'de·an (-gȧ·noi'dē·ăn), adj. & n.

plac'oid (plăk'oid), adj. [plac- + -oid.] Zool. a Designating, or having the form of, scales characteristic of the elasmobranchs. In structure these scales resemble teeth, consisting of a basal plate of dentine of dermal origin embedded in the skin and bearing a projecting point or spine tipped with enamel. In the sharks they are usually very minute and numerous, giving the skin a rough granular surface (cf. SHAGREEN). b Of or pertaining to the Placoidei. — n. One of the Placoidei.

Pla·coi'de·i (plȧ·koi'dē·ī), n. pl. [NL.] Zool. In former classifications, a group of fishes with placoid scales, equivalent, or nearly so, to Elasmobranchii. As used by Agassiz, the term included the cyclostomes. — pla·coi'dal (-dăl; -d'l), pla·coi'de·an (-dē·ăn), adj.

plac'o·plast (plăk'ō·plăst), n. [placo- + -plast.] Bot. An elaioplast attached to the chromoplast of a diatom. Cf. LIBROPLAST, SPARSIOPLAST.

plac'u·la (plăk'ū·lȧ), n. [NL.] Zool. The flattened blastula of urochordates.

plaḋ'a·ro'ma (plăḋ'ȧ·rō'mȧ), n.; pl. -ROMATA (-mȧ·tȧ), -ROMAS (-mȧz). [NL., fr. Gr. pladarōma abundance of fluids.] Med. A soft tumor of the eyelid.

‖pla'fond' (plȧ'fŏN'), n. [F.] 1. Arch. A ceiling formed by the underside of a floor, esp. when of elaborate design. 2. Contract bridge.

pla'ga (plā'gȧ), n.; pl. -GAE (-jē). [L. plāga a blow.] Zool. A stripe of color.

pla'gal (plā'găl), adj. [ML. plagalis, fr. plaga plagal mode, fr. Gr. plagios sidewise, slanting, in MGr., plagal. See PLAGIARY.] Music. a Of a mode or melody, having its final or keynote in the middle of its compass. See 1st MODE, 7. b Of a cadence, see CADENCE, n., 6 c.

pla'gate (plā'gāt), adj. Zool. Having elongated color spots.

plage (plāg), n. [F., fr. L. plaga. See 1st FLUKE.] Obs. a A region; country; zone. b One of the quarters of the compass. c In a church, one of the divisions, esp. a transept.

‖plage (plȧżh), n. [F.] A beach.

Pla'gi·an'thus (plā'jĭ·ăn'thŭs), n. [NL., fr. plagi- + -anthus.] Bot. A small genus of Australasian shrubs and trees of the mallow family (Malvaceae). P. betulinus, of New Zealand, is the ribbon tree.

pla'gi·ap'lite (plā'jĭ·ăp'lĭt), n. [*plagio*clase + aplite.] Petrog. Diorite-aplite.

pla'gi·ar'i·cal (-ăr'ĭ·kăl), adj. Plagiaristic. Rare.

pla'gi·a·rism (plā'jĭ·ȧ·rĭz'm; plā'jȧ-), n. Act of plagiarizing; also, something plagiarized.

pla'gi·a·rist (-rĭst), n. One who plagiarizes; one guilty of literary or artistic theft. — pla'gi·a·ris'tic (-rĭs'tĭk), adj. — pla'gi·a·ris'ti·cal·ly (-tĭ·kăl·ĭ), adv.

pla'gi·a·ri·za'tion (-ȧ·rĭ·zā'shŭn; -rī·zā'-), n. Plagiarism. Rare.

pla'gi·a·rize (plā'jĭ·ȧ·rīz; plā'jȧ·rīz), v. t.; -RIZED (-rīzd); -RIZ'ING (-rīz'ĭng). To steal or purloin and pass off as one's own (the ideas, words, artistic productions, etc., of another); to use without due credit the ideas, expressions, or productions of (another). — v. i. To commit plagiarism. — pla'gi·a·riz'er (plā'jĭ·ȧ·rīz'ẽr; plā'jȧ-), n.

pla'gi·a·ry (-rĭ), n.; pl. -RIES (-rĭz). [L. plagiarius kidnaper, plagiarist, fr. plagium kidnaping, fr. Gr. plagios oblique, crooked, treacherous. See FLUKE flatfish; cf. PLAGAL.] 1. Kidnaper. Obs.
2. A plagiarist. "The plagiary has a greater latitude of choice than we." Landor.
3. Plagiarism; literary theft; also, a case of it.
Among good authors [it] is accounted plagiary. Milton.

pla'gi·ar'y (plā'jĭ·ĕr'ĭ; -ĕr·ĭ), adj. 1. Obs. a Kidnaping. b Practicing plagiarism.
2. Plagiarized. Rare.

pla'gi·he'dral (plā'jĭ·hē'drăl), adj. [plagi- + Gr. hedra base, seat.] Cryst. Having an oblique spiral arrangement of faces, as quartz crystals; specif., designating a group of the isometric system represented by the mineral cuprite.

pla'gi·o- (plā'jĭ·ō-), pla'gi- (plā'jĭ-). [See PLEASE.] A combining form, Greek plagio-, plagi-, from plagios, meaning oblique, aslant, as in *plagio*tropic, *plagi*hedral.

pla'gi·o·ceph'a·lism (-sĕf'ȧ·lĭz'm), -ceph'a·ly (-lĭ), n. [See PLAGIO-; CEPHALO-; -ISM.] Med. A condition of malformation of the head, marked by obliquity of the main axis of the skull, usually caused by closure of half of the coronal suture. — pla'gi·o·ce·phal'ic (-sē·făl'ĭk), adj.

Pla'gi·o·chi'la (plā'jĭ·ō·kī'lȧ), n. [NL. See PLAGIO-; CHILO-.] Bot. a A genus of over 400 species of mostly tropical, leafy liverworts (family Jungermanniaceae) having succubous, toothed or lobed leaves. P. asplenioides is common in moist woodland soils in temperate regions. b [not cap.] A hepatic of this genus.

pla'gi·o·clase' (plā'jĭ·ō·klās'), n. [G. plagioklas, fr. Gr. plagios oblique + klasis a breaking.] Mineral & Petrog. Triclinic feldspar in general, the species microcline and anorthoclase often being excepted because their cleavage angle is very close to 90°; hence, esp., the soda-lime group. See FELDSPAR. — pla'gi·o·clas'tic (-klăs'tĭk), adj.

pla'gi·o·clase–ba·salt', n. Petrog. Normal basalt; — as disting. from nephelite basalt, leucite basalt, etc.

pla'gi·o·clase–gran'ite, n. Petrog. A granite rich in plagioclase; — called also quartz-monzonite.

pla'gi·o·clase–por'phy·ry, n. Petrog. A porphyry whose phenocrysts are plagioclase; — called also pla'gi·o·clase–por'phy·rite.

pla'gi·o·clase–rhy'o·lite, n. Petrog. A porphyritic extrusive rock with phenocrysts of plagioclase and quartz in a groundmass of orthoclase and quartz; — called also deltenite, plagioliparite.

pla'gi·o·clas·ite (plā'jĭ·ō·klăs·īt), n. Petrog. A holocrystalline granular rock composed essentially of plagioclase. It includes andesinite, oligoclasite, labradoritite, anorthosite, bytownitite, etc.

pla'gi·o·cli'nal (plā'jĭ·ō·klī'năl; plā'jĭ·ō·klĭ'n'l), adj. [plagio- + -clinal.] Geol. Designating or pertaining to structural or topographic features oblique to the general strike of the rocks.

pla'gi·o·dont' (plā'jĭ·ō·dŏnt'), adj. [plagi- + -odont.] Zool. Having the palatal teeth set obliquely or in two convergent series, as certain snakes.

pla'gi·o·graph' (-grȧf'; 83), n. [plagio- + -graph.] A kind of pantograph or parallelogram device with the fixed pivot in a side, or a side produced, of the parallelogram, one tracing point at a corner and the other tracing point in a side produced so that the two tracing points and the pivot are in the same straight line; a skew pantograph. This device turns everything round at a given angle.

pla'gi·o·nite (plā'jĭ·ō·nīt), n. [G. plagionit, fr. Gr. plagios oblique; — in allusion to its unusually oblique crystallization.] Mineral. A lead antimony sulphide, of a blackish lead-gray color and metallic luster. Sp. gr., 5.4.

pla'gi·o·pa·ta'gi·um (-pȧ·tā'jĭ·ŭm), n. [NL., fr. plagio- + patagium.] Zool. An extensile membrane connecting the forelimb and hind limb used when spread in scaling, as in flying squirrels, or, as in bats, for flying.

pla'gi·o·phyre' (plā'jĭ·ō·fīr'), n. [plagio- + -phyre.] Petrog. A leucocratic plagioclase-porphyry or porphyrite.

Pla'gi·os'to·mi (plā'jĭ·ŏs'tō·mī), n. pl. [NL., fr. plagio- + Gr. stoma, -atos, mouth.] Zool. A group of fishes more or less exactly equivalent to Elasmobranchii or ranking as an order and including the existing sharks and rays, as distinguished from the chimaeras and the extinct primitive groups Pleuropterygii, Acanthodii, and Ichthyotomi. See SELACHII. — pla'gi·o·stome' (plā'jĭ·ō·stōm'), adj. & n. — pla'gi·o·stom'a·tous (-stŏm'ȧ·tŭs; -stō'mȧ-), adj. — pla'gi·os'to·mous (plā'jĭ·ŏs'tō·mŭs), adj.

pla'gi·o·trop'ic (plā'jĭ·ō·trŏp'ĭk), adj. [plagio- + -tropic.] Plant Physiol. Having the longer axis inclined away from the vertical line, as most roots and lateral branches. — pla'gi·o·trop'i·cal·ly (-ĭ·kăl·ĭ), adv.

pla'gi·ot'ro·pism (-ŏt'rō·pĭz'm), n. State or quality of being, or tendency to be, plagiotropic. Cf. ORTHOTROPISM.

pla'gi·ot'ro·pous (plā'jĭ·ŏt'rō·pŭs), adj. [plagio- + -tropous.] Plant Physiol. Plagiotropic.

pla'gi·um (plā'jĭ·ŭm), n. [LL.] 1. Civil Law. Kidnaping.
2. Plagiarism. Obs.

pla·gose' (plȧ·gōs'), adj. [L. plagosus. See PLAGUE.] Fond of flogging. — pla·gos'i·ty (-gŏs'ĭ·tĭ), n. Both Rare.

plague (plāg; colloq. or dial. plĕg), n. [L. plāga a blow, stroke, plague, prob. fr. Gr. plaga, plēgē. See PLAINT; cf. APOPLEXY.] 1. That which smites or troubles. Specif.: a Obs. A stroke; a wound. b Any afflictive evil; a scourge; an infestation.
And men blaspbemed God for the plague of hail. Wycliffe.
2. Anything troublesome or vexatious; a nuisance. Colloq.
3. Any malignant, esp. a contagious, disease or pestilence; specif., Med., an acute malignant contagious disease caused by Pasteurella (syn. Bacillus) pestis and occurring in several forms, of which the bubonic and pulmonary, or pneumonic, are the most common. Bubonic plague is characterized by fever and chills, great prostration, and the formation of buboes. Rats, which are susceptible to the infection, are the most important agents of its spread, fleas acting as carriers and transmitting it to man. Pulmonary plague, which is characterized by the symptoms of a severe pneumonia, is transmitted directly from person to person. Both forms occur commonly in Asia and have visited the large cities of Europe with frightful mortality. The Black Death of the Middle Ages is believed to have been the plague.

☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

plague-beleaguered	plague-infected	plague-smitten plague-breeding	plague-infested	plague-spotted plague-free	plague-poisoning	plague-stricken plague-haunted	plague-ridden	plague-stuffed

— a plague of or on, or plague take. A mild imprecation; an ejaculation expressing annoyance.
A plague of all cowards, I say. Shak.

plague, v. t.; PLAGUED (plāgd; colloq. or dial. plĕgd); PLA'GUING (plā'gĭng). 1. To smite, infest, or afflict, as with disease, calamity, or natural evil.
Thus were they plagued . . . with famine. Milton.
2. To vex; tease; harass; torment.
When you plague a fool. Pope.

Syn. and Ant. — See HARASS.

plagu'ed (plĕg'ĭd), adj. Plaguy. Scot. & U. S.

plague mark. = PLAGUE SPOT, 1.

plag'uer (plā'gẽr; colloq. or dial. plĕg'ẽr), n. One who plagues or annoys.

plague'some (plāg'sŭm), adj. [plague + 1st -some.] Pestiferous; plaguing; plaguy; also, marked by plague. — plague'some·ness, n.

plague spot. 1. A spot or mark of the plague on the skin; hence, a token of disease or fault, physical or moral.
2. A place afflicted with the plague; hence, a locality regarded as a source of pollution or infection; as, the plague spots of a city.

plague stripe. = PLAGUE SPOT, 1.

plag'gui·ly (plăg'ĭ·lĭ; plĕg'ĭ-), adv. In a plaguy manner; hence, Colloq., to a provoking extreme; excessively.

plag'guy (plăg'ĭ; colloq. or dial. plĕg'ĭ), adj. 1. Of, like, pertaining to, or afflicted with, the plague. Now Rare.
2. Harassing; troublesome; tormenting; vexing; — often used in annoyance as an intensive; as, it was a plaguy nuisance to go. Colloq.

plag'guy, adv. Plaguily (see FLAT, adj., 11). Colloq.

plaice (plās), n. sing. & pl. [ME. plaice, plais, fr. OF. plais, plaïz (F. plaise, plais, plie), fr. LL. platessa flatfish, plaice (or a kindred form), prob. fr. Gr. platys broad, flat. See PLACE.] a A European flounder (Pleuronectes platessa), growing to the weight of eight or ten pounds or more. b In America, the summer flounder (Paralichthys dentatus) or any of various other flatfishes. c The flesh of this fish, usually as a steak or fillet, cooked and served as food. d Dial. Eng. A fluke (worm).

European Plaice. (⅛)

plaice mouth. A small, puckered, or wry mouth like that of a plaice. Obs. — plaice'–mouthed' (-mouth'd'; -mouth'), adj.

plaid (plăd; Scot. plād), n. [Gael. plaide a blanket, prob. fr. peallaid sheepskin, fr. peall skin, hide. See PILLION.] 1. A rectangular garment or piece of cloth, usually of tartan, worn by both sexes in Scotland in place of a cloak. See KILT, Illust.
2. The woolen fabric with a tartan pattern of which plaids are made; now, any fabric with a woven or printed design imitating a tartan pattern or similarly cross-barred; as, a stock of Scottish plaids. See TARTAN.
3. A tartan or similarly cross-barred pattern, or design; as, an invisible plaid.

plaid, adj. Having a plaid for its design; made of a fabric in a plaid (design); as, plaid fabrics.

plaid'ed (plăd'ĕd; Scot. plād'ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. Wearing a plaid or plaids; made of plaid; woven or printed in a plaid.
"In plaided vest." Wordsworth.

plaid'man (plăd'măn; Scot. plād'-), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). A Highlander.

plaid neuk (plād nūk). A pocket formed by the sewed-up corner of a plaid. Scot.

‖plai'do'yer' (plĕ'dwȧ'yȧ'), n. [F.] An address or plea, esp. one made by an advocate in court.

plain (plān), adj. [OF. plein full, fr. L. plenus. See PLENTY.] Full; entire; complete; perfect. Obs.

plain (plān), v. t. & i.; PLAINED (plānd); PLAIN'ING. [ME. playne, fr. OF. plaindre, fr. L. plangere. See PLAINT.] 1. Short for COMPLAIN. Archaic & Dial.
2. To whinny. Chaucer.

plain, n. [From PLAIN to complain.] A plaint. Obs. exc. Dial.

plain (plān), adj.; PLAIN'ER (-ẽr); PLAIN'EST. [OF., fr. L. planus level, flat. In some uses confused with plain full. See FLOOR; cf. EXPLAIN, LLANO, PIANO, PLAN, PLANE level.] 1. Without elevations or depression; flat; level; smooth; even. See PLANE, adj.
The crooked shall be made straight, and the rough places plain. Is. xl. 4.
2. Open; clear; free from obstructions, etc.; as, plain fields. Now Dial., exc. in in plain sight, view, etc.
3. Open to the mind; manifest; clear; as, in plain words; also, candid; guileless; outspoken; as, a plain man and true; plain speech is best. "'T is a plain case." Shak.
4. Void of extraneous beauty or ornament; without embellishment; not rich; simple; specif.: a Not luxurious; simple; as, plain food; plain living. b Without beauty; homely; as, a plain woman. c Of playing cards, not court, or picture, cards; sometimes, of suits and cards, not trumps. d Of cloth, untwilled; also, not variegated, dyed, or figured. e In livestock judging, coarse, inferior.
5. Not highly born, stationed, cultivated, or gifted; of, or characteristic of, the common people; simple; homely; as, plain manners. "The plain people." A. Lincoln.
6. Not intricate; simple; as, a plain pattern.
7. Using or pert. to the plain language.
8. Glass Mfg. Clear; free from air, gas bubbles, etc.
9. Music. Of or pertaining to harmony in which only essential chord tones are used; as, plain harmony, bass.
Syn. — Artless, unaffected, genuine, undisguised, downright, blunt; distinct, obvious, apparent. See FRANK.
Ant. — Intricate, complex, complicated; ambiguous, misleading; elaborate, luxurious; affected, cultivated; beautiful.

☞ COMBINATIONS are:

plain-bodied	plain-featured	plain-mannered, adj.
plain-clothed	plain-garbed	plain-meaning, adj.
plain-dressing, adj.	plain-going, adj.	plain-pranked
plain-edged	plain-headed	plain-seeming, adj.
plain-faced	plain-looking, adj.	plain-soled

— in plain battle, fight, etc. In formal, regular battle, etc. Obs.

plain (plān), n. [OF., fr. L. planum, fr. planus level. See PLAIN, adj.] 1. Level land; esp., an extensive open field or broad stretch of land having few inequalities of surface; as, the plain of Jordan.
2. pl. In North America and the British colonies, broad tracts of almost treeless level country; prairies; with the, the territory extending from North Dakota to Texas and from the Mississippi River to the Rocky Mountains.
3. An open space amid houses; a square. Local, Eng.
4. Obs. a A field of battle. b A flat, plane, or level surface or area; a plane. c Plain cloth.
— the Plain [F. la Plaine]. F. Hist. In the National Convention at the time of the Revolution, the benches, the lowest, occupied by the deputies of the moderate party; hence, these deputies or their party. Cf. the Mountain under MOUNTAIN.

plain (plān), adv. In a plain manner; specif.: a Plainly; clearly; without obscurity or ambiguity. b Obs. Evenly. c Obs. exc. Dial. Entirely; absolutely. d Obs. Directly. (See FLAT, adj., 11.)

plain, v. t. 1. = PLANE, v. t.
2. Of glass, to make plain or clear; to free from bubbles. See 4th PLAIN, 8.

plain, v. t. To bewail; bemoan. Archaic & Dial. Eng.

plain aerial. A mode of connecting a spark transmitter in which the spark gap and aerial are in series.

plain as a packstaff, pikestaff, or pike. Entirely evident or obvious.

plain'back' (plān'băk'), n. Also, pl. in form but sing. in construction, plain'backs' (-băks'). A kind of worsted or merino fabric.

plain ball. See WHITE BALL.

plain band. A falling band or turndown collar of linen without lace or frills worn esp. by 17th-century and 18th-century Puritans.

plain bob. See CHANGE RINGING.

plain'–bred' (66), adj. Having in the pedigree few or none of the animals whose blood is most desired by breeders or purchasers at a given time plain chant. = PLAIN SONG

plain chart. Naut. A chart laid down on Mercator's projection.

plain chocolate. See CHOCOLATE, 1.

plain clothes. Unofficial clothes; the dress of an ordinary citizen; — opposed to uniform.

plain'–clothes' (plān'klōz'; colloq. -klōz'; 66), adj. Not uniformed or costumed; hence, Colloq., plain–clothes man, a detective, or police officer, not in uniform.

plain cooking. Cooking of those dishes most generally in use. — plain cook. — plain'–cook', v. t. & i.

plain counterpoint. See 3d COUNTERPOINT.

plain currant. An Australian tree (Grewia polygama); also, its fruit.

Pla·coi'des (plȧ·koi'dēz), n. pl. [NL.] Zool. = PLACOIDEI.

Pla·coph'o·ra (plȧ·kŏf'ō·rȧ), n. pl. [NL., fr. placo- + -phora.] Zool. Syn. of POLYPLACOPHORA. — pla·coph'o·ran (-răn), adj. & n. — pla·coph'o·rous (-rŭs), adj.

placque. Var. of PLAQUE.

plac'un·ti'tis (plăk'ŭn·tī'tĭs), n. [NL.] = PLACENTITIS.

plac'u·to'ma (-tō'mȧ), n. [NL.] = PLACENTOMA.

Pla'cus (plā'kŭs), n. [NL.] Syn. of BLUMEA.

plad (plăḋ). Dial. var. of PLAID.

plaḋ'a·ro'sis (plăḋ'ȧ·rō'sĭs), n. [NL.] = PLADAROMA.

plaḋ'dy (plăḋ'ĭ). Var. of PLAIDIE.

plaget. † PLEDGET.

plagi-. = PLAGIO-.

pla'gi·o·lip'a·rite (plā'jĭ·ō·lĭp'ȧ·rīt), n. = PLAGIOCLASE-RHYOLITE.

Pla'gi·o·sto'ma·ta (-stō'mȧ·tȧ), n. pl. [NL.] Syn. of PLAGIOSTOMI.

plague'ful, adj. See -FUL.

plague'less, adj. See -LESS.

plague'proof' (66), adj. See -PROOF.

pla'guey. Var. of PLAGUY.

plaid'en (plăḋ'ĭn). Scot. var. of PLAIDING.

plaid'ie, plaid'y (plĕḋ'ĭ; plăḋ'ĭ), n. Dim. of PLAID. Scot. & N. of Eng. [n. Plaid cloth; plaid.

plaid'ing (plăḋ'ĭng; Scot. plăḋ'-). plaik (plāk). Var. of PLAYOCK.

plain darning. Darning with a simple cross pattern. — plain'-darn', v. t. & i.
plain dealer. One who practices plain dealing.
plain dealing. Open, frank, and candid dealing; straightforward conduct and speech. — plain'-deal'ing, adj.
plain English. Straightforward, unambiguous language; as, he is, in plain English, a thief. plain'er (plān'ĕr), n. [From PLAIN to complain.] 1. Complainant. Obs.
2. A complainer. Dial.
plain'ful (-fōōl; -fĭl), adj. Lamentable; also, lamenting. Archaic.
plain'-heart'ed (plān'här'tĕd; -tĭd; 66; 119), adj. Sincere; artless.
plain hunt or hunting. See CHANGE RINGING. plain'ish, adj. Rather plain.
plain knitting. = GARTER STITCH. plain'-laid', adj. Consisting of three, four, or six strands twisted together in a direction opposite to that of the twist in the strands; — said of a rope. See CORDAGE, Illust.
plain language. The mode of speech adopted by the Society of Friends, or Quakers plain live axle. See AXLE, 1. plain'ly (plān'lĭ), adv. of PLAIN; also, Obs., = PLAIN, adv., c. plain milling machine. Mach. See MILLING MACHINE. — plain milling. plain muscle. Anat. A nonstriated muscle. See MUSCLE, n., 1. plain'ness, n. [plain + -ness; in ME. partly fr. OF. planece smoothness, levelness, fr. L. planitia.] Quality or state of being plain (in any sense of the adjective).
plain of Mars. See PALMISTRY. plain omelet. See OMELET.
plain paper. a Unruled paper. b In photography, any paper without gloss.
plain'-said' (plān'sĕd'), adj. Plain-spoken. plain sail. Naut. The ordinary working canvas of a vessel, or one of the sails composing it. Topgallant sails, royals, and a flying jib are usually included in plain sail. plain sailing. [Cf. PLANE SAILING.] Sailing on a clear course without obstacles; plane sailing (see SAILING, n., 1); hence, any simple, easy line of action or progress. Hence, plain'-sail'ing, adj.
plain'-sawed' (-sôd'; 66), adj. Tangent-sawed. plains'craft' (plānz'krăft'; 83), n. The specific arts, skill, and practices required of plainsmen. plain seam. A seam made with a single line of stitching below the evened edges of the material.
plain service. Eccl. Divine service unaccompanied with music.
plain sewing. Needlework of a simple and useful nature.
plains'folk' (plānz'fōk'), n. People who dwell on the plains; plainsmen and plainswomen collectively.
Plains Indian. An Indian of the group of tribes, formerly inhabiting the great plains of central United States and Canada. They are of six distinct stocks: Algonquian, Athapascan, Caddoan, Kiowan, Siouan, and Uto-Aztecan; but in spite of linguistic diversity, a common environment, frequent contact, and especially their dependence upon the buffalo, produced marked cultural similarity among them. Many of them practiced agriculture, but they were all, to some degree, nomadic, and the introduction of the horse into the area in the 17th century increased their freedom of movement. They are sometimes called Buffalo Indians.
plain singing. = PLAIN SONG. Rare.
plains'man (plānz'măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). A man who lives on the plains.
Plains of Abraham. See Quebec, under BATTLE, Table.
plain'soled' (plān'sōld'), adj. Flat-footed. Scot.
plain song. Music. a The ancient chant melody of the church service. It is unisonous, nonmetrical, and conforming to one or other of the ecclesiastical modes (see 1st MODE, 7). It is austere and devotional and especially adapted to liturgical uses. b Such a melody used as a cantus firmus for contrapuntal treatment; hence, any cantus firmus. Cf. PRICK SONG. c A simple air or melody.
plain speaker. A plain-spoken person. — plain speaking. — plain'-speak'ing (66), adj.
plain'-spo'ken (plān'spō'kĕn; 66), adj. Speaking or spoken plainly, unreservedly, or bluntly. — plain'-spo'ken-ly, adv. — plain'-spo'ken-ness, n.
plain'stones' (plān'stōnz'), plain'stanes' (-stānz'), n. pl. Flagstones; sidewalks. Scot.
plain suit. Card Playing. A suit the cards of which are not trumps.
plain suit echo. See ECHO, n., 5. plains'wom'an (plānz'wŏŏm'ăn), n.; pl. -WOMEN (-wĭm'ĕn; -ĭn). A woman who lives on, or who has been brought up on, the plains. Chiefly Western U. S. plaint (plānt), n. [ME., fr. OF. plaint, fr. L. planctus, fr. plangere, planctum, to beat, beat the breast, lament; akin to Gr. plēgē a blow, stroke, plēssein to strike, Lith. plakti, MIr. lén woe. Cf. COMPLAIN, PLAW of wind, FLICKER, PLAGUE, PLANGENT, PLECTRUM.] 1. Audible expression of sorrow; lamentation; complaint; hence, a mournful song; a lament. Poetic.

The Psalmist's mournful plaint. Wordsworth.

2. A complaint or protest because of an injury, injustice, or the like.
3. Specif., Law, a complaint. Now Rare. plaint, v. i. [From PLAINT, n.] To complain; bewail. Obs. — v. t. To cover with complaints. Obs plain'tail' (plān'tāl'), n. The escolar. plain text. A text without annotations.
plain'tiff (plān'tĭf), n. [OF. plaintif making complaint, plaintive; also, plaintiff. See PLAINT; cf. PLAINTIVE.] 1. Law. a One who commences a personal action or suit to obtain a remedy for an injury to his rights; — opposed to defendant. Cf. PROSECUTOR. b In recent usage, the complaining party in any litigation, including demandant in real actions, complainant in equity, and libelant in divorce.
2. One who complains; a complainer. Obs.
plaintiff in error. Law. A party who proceeds by writ of error or statutory substitute to obtain reversal of a judgment or order for errors of law appearing in the record.
plain'tile' (plān'tīl'), n. A plain (flat) roofing tile.
plain tire. = BLIND TIRE. plain'tive (plān'tĭv), adj. [OF. plaintif. See PLAINTIFF, n.] 1. Repining; complaining; lamenting. Now Rare.

Or plaintive martyrs, worthy of the name. Burns.

2. Of, pertaining to, or in the role of, plaintiff. Obs.

Pleading her plaintiffe cause. Spenser.

3. Expressive of sorrow or melancholy; mournful; sad.

Adieu! Adieu! Thy plaintive anthem fades. Keats.

Syn. — Sorrowful, melancholy; discontented, peevish, pettish, petulant, fretful, cross. — PLAINTIVE, QUERULOUS. PLAINTIVE associates with the idea of complaining the implication of melancholy or sadness, or of expression in a minor key; QUERULOUS adds to plaintive the connotation of fretfulness or peevish discontent; as, "She sang plaintively, the wounded, aggrieved, hurt notes of the nightingale" (M. Hewlett); "The distant bleat of some belated goat, querulous to be disburthened of her milky load" (Lowell); "Perhaps the plaintive numbers flow for old, unhappy, far-off things" (Wordsworth); "her querulous and never-ending complaints" (Mrs. Gaskell). Cf. PEEVISH.
— plain'tive-ly, adv. — plain'tive-ness, n.
plain tooth. See 2d SAW, n., 1, Illust.
plain wanderer. A small Australian bird (Pedionomus torquatus) similar to the button quails. See TURNIX. plain'ward (plān'wĕrd), adv. Toward a plain.
plain weave. Weaving. The simplest form of weave, in which the threads interlace alternately with each other; — called also taffeta weave.

Plain Weave. a, b Warp Threads; 1, 2 Weft Threads.

plain work. a Plain sewing. b Masonry. The surface produced on stone by simply chiseling off projections.
plain'y (plān'ĭ), adj. Marked by plains; level-surfaced. plait (plāt; plĕt; Brit. usually, and in senses 2 & 4 often in the U. S., plăt; see note below), n. [ME. playt, pleyt, fr. OF. pleit, fr. L. plicitum, past part. of plicare to fold; akin to L. plectere to plait. See PLY; cf. PLAT to weave, PLEAT, PLIGHT fold.] 1. A flat fold; a doubling back, as of cloth on itself, esp. in a vertical direction; a pleat. A combination of two plaits is called a box plait when the edges are turned in opposite directions, and an inverted (box) plait when the edges are turned to each other so as to meet or nearly meet. A kick plait is a variation of the latter used to give breadth to a narrow skirt.
2. A braid, as of hair or straw; a plat.
3. Hence: a Any fold or crease like a plait in cloth; as, a forehead wrinkled into plaits. b A hidden or devious phase of character, motive, or course of action; an instance of or inclination to guile, deceit, or the like.
4. Plaited fiber, as for straw hats.
☞ The correct spelling for the pron. plāt is plait, that for plĕt is pleat, and for plăt is plat, but usage is confused. plait (plāt; plĕt; Brit. usually, and in senses 2, 3, 4 in the U. S. often, plăt; cf. PLAIT, n.), v. t.; PLAIT'ED; PLAIT'ING. 1. To fold, esp. in pleats; to draw together or crease in narrow folds or corrugations; as, to plait a skirt; to plait a ruffle.
2. To interweave the strands or locks of, by braiding or plaiting; as, to plait hair; to plait rope.
3. To make by plaiting, or braiding; as, to plait a rug. Rare.
4. Hat Mfg. To felt.
Syn. — BRAID, KNIT, PLAIT, WEAVE. As here considered, these terms refer to the process of uniting filaments or strands of material, by interlacing. Braid and knit are the most limited in meaning. To braid is to entwine three or more strands, as of hair, cord, or cloth strips, by passing one strand over another in such a manner that each strand winds a sinuous course through the ribbonlike or ropelike contexture that is thus produced. To knit is to form a fabric, a garment, or the like, from a single yarn through the use of two needles alternately holding the material and forming a new row of interlacing loops. To weave is often, generally, to unite crossing rows of filaments, strands, etc. into a web, without regard to method, material, or pattern. Specifically, it means to interlace warp and weft yarns by means of a loom into a textile fabric, the yarns being passed over and under each other according to a predetermined pattern. To plait is sometimes identical in meaning with to braid, but the tendency now is to restrict it to the interlacing of straw or the like as in hatmaking or basketmaking, whether the method approaches that of braiding or weaving. plait'ed (plāt'ĕd; plĕt'-; plăt'-; -ĭd; cf. PLAIT, v.), adj. 1. Pleated; braided; corrugated.
2. Involved; artful; not straightforward.

Time shall unfold what plaited cunning hides. Shak.

plaited filter. See FILTER, n., 2. plaited stitch. a A stitch that produces a herringbone pattern. b A stitch that forms a basket-weave pattern.
plait'er (plāt'ĕr; plĕt'-; plăt'-), n. One who plaits, esp. in basketmaking; also, a textile worker who tends a plaiting machine.
plait'ing (plāt'ĭng; plĕt'-; plăt'-; cf. PLAIT, v.), verbal n. 1. The act of making plaits, or the state of being plaited. Specif., a combination of many plaits; the plaits of a garment collectively. The chief forms are: (1) accordion plaiting, plaits whose arrangement resembles the bellows of an accordion; (2) box plaiting, see PLAIT, n., 1; (3) knife plaiting, small plaits all turned in the same direction; (4) sunburst plaiting, clustered plaits radiating from a center and increasing in size as they spread out.
2. A pleat; a type of pleat; also, pleats collectively.
plait'work' (plāt'wŭrk'; plĕt'-; plăt'-; cf. PLAIT, v.), n. A pattern of plaited or interlacing bands.
pla·kat' (plä·kät'; plăk'ăt), n. The fighting fish. plan (plăn), n. [F. plan, plant, fr. It. piano (fr. L. planum flat surface), and fr. It. pianta, fr. L. planta sole of the foot. See PLACE, PLANE surface.] 1. A draft or form; properly, a representation drawn on a plane, as a map; esp., a top view, as of a machine, or the representation of a horizontal section of anything, as of a building; an orthographic projection on a horizontal plane; a graphic representation; a diagram.
2. Method or scheme of action; a way proposed to carry out a design; project; as, a plan of campaign.

A method or scheme of arrangement, as of a literary work.
A mighty maze! but not without a plan. Pope.

4. a In the study of perspective, one of a number of planes conceived as perpendicular to the line of vision, and interposed between the eye and the pictured objects. b In relief sculpture, one of a number of possible planes raising certain figures in the design above the ground.
5. A list of assignments of Methodist preachers to a circuit; hence, an assignment in such a list. Eng.
6. A schematic table or program indicating parts, items, etc. in their arrangement; as, a plan of study.
7. A large-scale map of a small district.
Syn. — PLAN, DESIGN, PROJECT, SCHEME. PLAN is the general word for a proposed method of action or procedure; DESIGN, as here compared (cf. INTENTION), implies a settled plan, and heightens the suggestion of purpose or intention; the word is sometimes used in a bad sense; as, "Enoch lay long pondering on his plans" (Tennyson); "He learnt and turned me of their fierce design against my house" (id.). A PROJECT is a tentatively devised and often impracticable plan; a SCHEME is a more or less speculative project; as, "One of those projects which people of lively imaginations . . . admire for a few days" (Cowper); "the stoical scheme of supplying our wants by lopping off our desires" (Swift). Cf. DEVICE, EXPEDIENT, CONSPIRACY. plan (plăn), v.; PLANNED (plănd); PLAN'NING. Trans.: 1. To form a plan of or for; to represent, as by a diagram.
2. To devise or project as a method or course of action; to prearrange the details of; as, to plan a campaign.

Even in penance, planning sins anew. Goldsmith.

3. To appoint in a plan (sense 5). Eng.
—, Intransitive: 1. To scheme; devise; contrive; project.
2. To intend; to propose; — sometimes with on. Colloq.
pla·nae'a (plā·nē'ä), n. [NL., fr. L. planus flat.] Biol. A hypothetical organism in the form of a ciliated planula, supposed to be a stage in the evolution of the higher animals. Haeckel.
pla'nar (plā'nĕr), adj. [LL. planaris flat, plane.] Of a plane lying in one plane. — pla·nar'i·ty (plā·năr'ĭ·tĭ), n.
Pla·na'ri·a (plā·nā'rĭ·ä; 79), n. [NL. See PLANARIAN.] a Zool. A genus of fresh-water triclad planarians. Formerly it included many species now referred to other genera. b [not cap.] A planarian of this genus; rarely, any planarian. pla·nar'i·an (plā·nâr'ĭ·ăn; 79), n. [LL. planarius level.] Zool. Any of the numerous small, soft-bodied, leaf-shaped, completely ciliated flatworms of the class Turbellaria. Their mouth, on the ventral surface of the body, opens into a usually blindly ending intestine which may be straight and simple (order Rhabdocoelida), much branched (order Polycladida), or divided into three large divisions (order Tricladida). There is no body cavity. Planarians are mostly aquatic in either fresh or salt water, a few being terrestrial and a few parasitic. — pla·nar'i·an, adj.
pla·nar'i·form (-fôrm), adj. Zool. Shaped like a planarian. pla·nar'i·oid (-oid), adj. Zool. Like a planarian. pla'nate (plā'nāt), adj. [L. planatus, past part. of planare to flatten.] Flattened; plane.
pla·na'tion (plā·nā'shŭn), n. Phys.Geog. Process by which a stream develops its flood plain by erosion and deposition. planch, planche (plänch; 83; 185), n. [OF. planche. See PLANK; cf. PLANCIER.] 1. A plank, board, or slab; a floor. Now Dial. Eng.
2. A flat shoe for a mule.
plan'ché·ite (plăn'chā·īt; plän·chā'ĭt), n. [F., after M. Planché, French mineralogist.] Mineral. A blue fibrous copper silicate, $H_3Cu_7(Cu.OH)_8(SiO_3)_{12}$. Sp. gr., 3.4. planch'er (plăn'chĕr), n. [OF. See PLANCIER.] 1. A floor or platform of wood; also, a plank; planking. Now Dial.
2. Obs. a A wooden ceiling. b A bed; a pallet.
3. Arch. = PLANCIER. planch'er, v. t. To plank. Obs. planch'et (plăn'chĕt; -chĭt; 119), n. [See PLANCHETTE.] A disk of metal ready to be stamped as a coin. Cf. FLAN. plan·chette' (plăn·shĕt'; 83), n. [F., dim. of planche. See PLANCH.] 1. A small plank. Rare.
2. A circumferentor (which see).
3. A small, usually heart-shaped, board supported on casters at two points and on a vertical pencil at a third. It is said that when the fingers of one or more persons are lightly rested on the board it sometimes moves, without conscious volition or effect of the operator, so that the pencil point traces words or sentences.
planch'ing (plănch'ĭng), n. Planking; a boarded floor; flooring. Dial.
planching nail. A flooring nail. planch'ment (plănch'mĕnt), n. A ceiling. Local, U. S. plan·cier' (plăn·sēr'), n. [Collat. form of OF. planchier floor, ceiling (F. plancher), fr. planche a plank. See PLANCH; cf. PLANCHER.] Arch. The under side of a cornice; a soffit.
Planck radiation law (plängk). [After M. Planck (b. 1858), Ger. physicist.] Physics. The law that radiation is given off discontinuously in multiples of a unit quantum.
Planck's con'stant (plängks). Physics. The constant in the expression for the quantum of energy. Its symbol is h; its numerical value is 6.55×10^{-27}. Its dimensions (see DIMENSION, 8) are the same as those of action.
plan'dok (plăn'dŏk), n. [Malay pĕlando'.] The mouse deer. Malaysia. plane (plān), n., or plane tree. [F., fr. L. platanus, fr. Gr. platanos, fr. platys broad; — so called on account of its broad leaves and spreading form. See PLACE.] Any tree of the genus Platanus. plane, adj. [L. planus; cf. F. plan. See PLAIN level.] 1. Without elevations or depressions; even; level; flat; forming part of a plane; as, a plane surface.
2. Math. Involving only plane surfaces or only two-dimensional extents of any kind; in n-dimensional geometry, sometimes designating any linear manifold, ordinarily called flat or homaloidal, of zero curvature.
☞ In science, plane (instead of plain) is almost exclusively used to designate a flat or level surface.
plane, n. [L. planum, fr. planus level, flat. See PLANE, adj.] 1. A surface, real or imaginary, in which if any two points are taken, the straight line that joins them lies wholly in that surface; or, a surface any section of which by a like surface is a straight line; a surface determined completely by any three of its points not collinear; a two-dimensional extent of zero curvature. It is a two-dimensional locus of points P derived from three points A, B, C, which do not lie in a line in such a way that at least one of the three pairs of lines (AP, BC), (BP, CA), (CP, AB) consists of two intersecting lines.
2. A surface more or less approximating to a geometrical plane; a flat or level material surface; as, an inclined plane.
3. A level or stage of development or existence; grade; as, to live on a low plane; a lofty plane of discussion.
4. a Colloq. An airplane. b One of the main supporting surfaces of an airplane or a wing; — a use now discarded in scientific terminology, except in biplane, triplane, etc.
5. Mech. A block or plate having a perfectly flat surface, used as a standard of flatness; a surface plate.

---

plaind. Plained. Ref. Sp. plaine. † PLAIN, PLANE. plainer. † PLANER.
plain'ing, pres. part. & verbal n. of PLAIN.
Plains Cree. See CREE. [Obs.] plaint'ful, adj. Complaining. plain'tif. Plaintiff. Ref. Sp.
plain'tiff-ship, n. See -SHIP. plain'tiv. Plaintive. Ref. Sp. plaint'less (plānt'lĕs; -lĭs; 119), adj. See -LESS. Rare. plaise (plāz). Var. of PLEASE. Now Dial. plaise. Var. of PLAICE. plais'ter (plās'tĕr). Var. of PLASTER. [PLASTERER.] plais'ter-er. Archaic var. of plait'less, adj. See -LESS. plak, n. See PLACK, n., 1. plan-. = 1st PLANO-. plan'a·ble, adj. See -ABLE.
Pla·nar'i·da (plā·nâr'ĭ·dä), n. pl. [NL.] Syn. of TURBELLARIA. — pla·nar'i·dan (-dăn), adj. & n. plan·chet'. Planchette. Ref. Sp.
Planck'i·an rə/di·ə/tor (plängk'-ĭ·ăn). [After M. Planck (b. 1858), Ger. physicist.] = BLACK BODY.
pland. Planned. Ref. Sp.

6. Mining & Railroading. An inclined track over which transportation of a string of cars or a train is effected by gravity or by external power, as by a stationary engine.
7. Theos. Any of the seven stages or states of manifestation of being; a sphere of existence.

plane (plān), n. [F., fr. planer to plane. See PLANE to level.] 1. A kind of trowel used in various trades to smooth or surface sand, clay (in molding for bricks), etc.
2. Joinery. A tool for smoothing boards or other surfaces of wood, for forming moldings, etc. It consists of a smooth-soled stock, as of wood or iron, from the under side or face of which projects slightly the steel cutting edge of a chisel, called the iron, which inclines backward, with an aperture in the front for the escape of shavings. A smoothing*, or smooth, plane is a short, finely set plane, about 8 inches long, for smoothing and finishing work. A jointer is a long finishing plane, usually from 22 to 24 inches long, used esp. for truing up the edges of boards to be accurately joined. A fore plane is a short jointer, being usually about 18 inches long. In size and use it ranks between a jack plane and a jointer plane. A jack plane, usually about 14 inches long, is used for coarse work, as in the preparation of the work for the use of a jointer or fore plane. Smooth, jointer, fore and jack planes are collectively known as bench planes. A scrub plane, usually about 10 inches long, is a narrow plane with a rounded cutting edge used for the removal of an excessive amount of stock. A block plane, about 7 inches long, cuts across the grain on the ends of boards. Its plane iron is set at a more acute angle with the face than in ordinary planes and with the bevel upwards. A rabbet plane is an openside plane with the plane iron extending to the outer edge of the open side to permit planing sharp corners. It is also used for planing grooves. A circular plane differs from a smoothing plane in having a flexible face adjustable as to radius so that it may be set to fit circular work. A routing plane consists of a horizontal bar or plate that supports a vertically inserted, narrow cutter and handles on each end of the bar by means of which the plane is operated by pulling and pushing. It is used for cutting recesses and smoothing the bottoms of grooves. A core-box plane is a plane whose face consists of two surfaces at right angles to each other and the point of whose plane iron lies in the line of intersection of the surfaces. It is used for planing concave semicylindrical surfaces. Cf. BULLNOSE, n., 2; COMBINATION PLANE; GROOVING PLANE; HEAD, n., 30 a; TOOTHING PLANE; THUMB PLANE; REED PLANE; MATCH PLANE; SCRAPER PLANE; DADO PLANE; FILLETSTER PLANE; CHAMFER PLANE; EDGE PLANE; BEADING PLANE; SASH PLANE; DOVETAIL PLANE.

Brick Molder's Plane.

Planes, 2. 1 Plane Iron; 2 Steel Jack Plane; 3 Routing Plane; 4 Tonguing and Grooving Plane; 5 Block Plane; 6 Wooden Jack Plane; 7 Wooden Trying Plane (6 and 7 are of English pattern).

plane, v. t. [OF. planer, fr. LL. planare, fr. planus. See PLANE, adj.; cf. PLANISH.] Transitive: 1. To make smooth or even; to level; specif., to pare off the inequalities of the surface of, as of a board, with or as with a plane.
What student came but that you planed her path? Tennyson.
2. To efface or remove with or as with a plane.
The mountainside had come away bodily, planed clean. Kipling.
3. To explain; to make clear or plain; also, to explain away or excuse; — often written plain. Obs.
4. Machine Shop Practice. To produce a plane surface or an approximately plane surface on (work) by supporting the work on a machine whose horizontal table moves to and fro in a straight line while the cutting tool is held stationary except during a short period following each cutting stroke, when it is advanced into the required position for the succeeding cut. If the tool, rather than the table, moves to and fro in a straight line while the table is held stationary except during the short period following each cutting stroke when it is advanced into the required position for the succeeding cut, the surface produced is shaped. If the plane surface is produced by means of a rotating milling cutter, the surface is milled.
—, Intransitive: To work with a plane; also, to do the work of a plane; as this tool planes well.

plane, v. i. To soar on, or as if on, wings; specif.: a Of a boat, to lift more or less out of the water while in motion, as a hydroplane does. b Colloq. = VOLPLANE. c Colloq. To travel in an airplane. — n. A soaring on, or as if on, outspread wings. Obs.

-plane. A combining form from aeroplane, as in bi*plane*, mono*plane*.

plane angle. Math. A measure of the difference in direction between two straight lines lying in a plane or of the amount of turning necessary to bring one straight line into coincidence with, or parallel to, another. The lines must be directed in order that the definition be unambiguous. The measure of an angle may be expressed in degrees on the system which assigns 360° to a complete turn. The natural unit of measure is that which measures the angle between two half lines meeting at a point O by the length of the arc of a circle, of unit radius and with center at O, intercepted by the two lines. On this system, the measure of a complete turn is 2π radians. Cf. ALGEBRAIC ANGLE.

plane at infinity. Geom. The aggregate of all points at infinity in projective geometry of three dimensions. See INFINITY, 4 b.

plane bit. = PLANE IRON.

plane block. Joinery. A stock.

plane chart. A depiction of a small portion of the earth's surface as plane, meridians and parallels of latitude appearing as two systems of straight lines at right angles and all arc degrees as equal.

plane curve. Geom. A curve that lies wholly in a single plane.

plane cyclic curve. See CYCLIC CURVE.

plane figure. Math. A geometrical configuration all of whose points lie in a plane. See FIGURE, n., 17.

plane geometry. That part of geometry which treats of plane figures.

plane iron. The blade of a plane. See 4th PLANE, 2.

plane linear perspective. See PERSPECTIVE, n., 2.

plane linkage. See LINKAGE, n., 6.

plane of comparison. = PLANE OF SIGHT.

plane of defilade. Mil. The plane tangent to the mask and passing through the point from which protection (from fire or observation) is desired. See DEFILADE, n.

plane of delineation. See PERSPECTIVE, n., 2.

plane of fixation. Physiol. Optics. A plane passing through the lines of fixation of both eyes.

plane of incidence. Optics. An imaginary plane drawn through the incident ray, the normal to the surface at the point of reflection, and the reflected ray. Cf. LAW OF REFLECTION.

plane of osculation. Math. A plane which is the limit of all planes containing the tangent to the curve at a given point P and passing through a second point P', as P' is made to approach P indefinitely.

plane of polarization. Optics. See POLARIZATION, 2.

plane of projection. a = PICTURE PLANE. See PERSPECTIVE, n., 2. b Geom. A plane to which points are referred to determine their relative position in space.

plane of rectification. Math. = RECTIFYING PLANE.

plane of refraction or reflection. Optics. The plane containing the refracted or reflected ray and the line normal to the surface at which reflection or refraction takes place. Cf. LAW OF REFLECTION.

plane of regard. Optics. The plane on which lie the two lines of regard.

plane of sight. Gun. The vertical plane containing the line of sight.

plane of the ecliptic. The plane of the earth's orbit extended to meet the celestial sphere. See ECLIPTIC, n., 1.

plane of the quaternion. See QUATERNION, 5.

plane pair. Geom. Two planes regarded as a degenerate quadric.

plane'-par'al·lel (66), adj. Physics. Having its two opposite faces plane and parallel.

plane polarization. Optics. See POLARIZATION, 2.

plane'-po'lar·ized (66), adj. Optics. Vibrating in a single direction. See POLARIZATION, 2.

plane problem. Geom. A problem of plane geometry.

plan'er (plān'ẽr), n. One who or that which planes; specif.: a A machine tool consisting essentially of a fixed bed, a reciprocating table, or platen, to which the work is secured, and a device for holding the cutting tool stationary while each cut is taken and for moving the tool in position for the succeeding cut at the end of each cutting stroke. Usually, the power for moving the table is transmitted to the table from the driving shaft by gearing. A planer so constructed is a geared planer, further classified as spur-geared planer, worm-geared planer, and spiral-geared planer, depending on the kinds of gears used. The tool cuts, usually, only when the table is moving in one direction. To save time, some form of quick-return motion is used to return the table in position for each succeeding cutting stroke. The time for the table to return is from ½ to ¼ that of a cutting stroke. A planer can take as many cuts each stroke as it has toolheads. The smaller planers have usually one toolhead, the larger planes two toolheads, on the crossrail. Planers whose crossrail is supported by housings on each of the two sides are called closed planers; those in which the crossrail is supported by a housing on one side only, so as to permit the planing of very wide work, are called openside planers. The size of a planer is denoted by the width of table, maximum height from table to crossrail, and length of table, in the order named. Cf. SHAPING PLANER, CRANK PLANE, ROTARY PLANER, WALL PLANER. b Print. A smooth-faced block of wood to lay on the surface of type and beat with a mallet to level the type, or such a block (called a proof planer) with thick cloth on the surface for use in making a proof impression.

Planer, a. 1 Table, or Platen; 2 Vees, or Ways; 3, 3 Tool Slides; 4 Tool-holding Straps; 5 Saddle; 6 Feed Mechanism; 7 Crossrail; 8, 9 Feed Screws; 10 Vertical Feed Rod; 11 Driving Shaft; 12 Return Driving Pulley; 13 Loose Pulley; 14 Forward Driving Pulley; 15 Belt Shifter; 16 Sidehead; 17, 18 Stop Clogs; 19 Reversing Latch or Trip; 20 Driving-wheel Shaft; 21 Cross-feed Drive; 22 Swivel; 23 Controlling Handle; 24 Gears for raising Crossrail; 25 Pulley Drive for raising Crossrail.

Plan'er·a (plān'ẽr·ȧ), n. [NL., after J. J. Planer, Ger. physician.] Bot. A genus of trees (family Ulmaceae) having as the only known species P. aquatica (called planer tree) of the southeastern United States, somewhat resembling the hackberry, but with an oval, ribbed, nutlike fruit.

planer center. Mach. One of a pair of centers, or an index center, bolted to the table of a planer and used to support work which is to be planed round, or in which radial slots are to be cut. Cf. INDEX CENTERS.

plan'er head (plān'ẽr). That part of a planer which secures the cutting tool to the crossrail or housing and which contains the mechanism that feeds it toward the work.

planer knife. = PLANE IRON. See 4th PLANE, 2.

plan'er tree (plān'ẽr). a See PLANERA. b The related tree Zelkova serrata.

plane sailing. a See SAILING, n. b = PLAIN SAILING.

plane scale. A Gunter's scale.

plane sectioning. Civ. Engin. A method of laying down sections, as of a railroad, using as a datum line the line of direction, plotting cuts on one side and fills on the other.

plane surveying. Surveying in which the curvature of the earth is disregarded, as in ordinary field and topographical surveying.

plane symmetry. Math. Symmetry with respect to a plane.

plan'et (plăn'ĕt; -ĭt; 119), n. [ME. planete, fr. OF. planete, fr. LL. planeta, fr. Gr. planḗtēs, prop., wandering, fr. planasthai to wander. See PLAUNT.] 1. Astron. Among the ancients, any of the seven seemingly "wandering" celestial bodies (sun, moon, Venus, Jupiter, Mars, Mercury, and Saturn), as distinguished from the fixed stars. In modern astronomy, any body, except a comet or a meteor, that revolves about the sun of our solar system. The inferior planets (nearer to the sun than is the earth) are Mercury and Venus; the superior planets (more distant than the earth) are Mars, the asteroids (planetoids, or minor planets), Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus, Neptune, and Pluto. All the planets, except Mercury, Venus, Pluto, and the asteroids, are accompanied by satellites, which are sometimes called secondary planets. Mercury, Venus, the Earth, and Mars are often called the terrestrial planets, and Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus, and Neptune the major planets. From its size Pluto would be classed as a terrestrial planet.

TERRESTRIAL AND MAJOR PLANETS

Symbol	Name	Mean distance from the sun, that of the earth being unity	Period in days or years	Orbital eccentricity	Orb. inclin. to ecliptic	Diameter in miles
☿	Mercury	.3871	87.97 d.	.2056	7° 0′	3,000
♀	Venus	.7233	224.70 d.	.0068	3 24	7,600
⊕	Earth	1.0000	365.26 d.	.0167	0 00	7,918
♂	Mars	1.5237	686.98 d.	.0933	1 51	4,200
♃	Jupiter	5.2028	11.86 y.	.0484	1 18	87,000
♄	Saturn	9.5388	29.46 y.	.0558	2 29	72,000
♅	Uranus	19.1910	84.02 y.	.0471	0 46	31,000
♆	Neptune	30.0707	164.79 y.	.0086	1 47	33,000
♇	Pluto	39.5	248 y.	.25	17 9	4,000?

2. a Astrol. A star, as influencing the fate of men. b Figuratively, anything real or imaginary, having or supposed to have such an influence.
3. A candle; — after Spanish Gypsy planeta. Longfellow.

plan'et, v. i. To use the planets in divination. Obs. — v. t. To locate on a planet. Obs.

pla·ne'ta (plȧ·nē'tȧ), n.; pl. -TAE (-tē). [ML.] 1. Rom. Antiq. A cloak which enveloped the person, leaving the face free.
2. Eccl. A chasuble; — used chiefly in Italy where it is still called pianeta.

plane table. a Surv. An instrument for plotting the lines of a survey directly from the observations. It consists essentially of a drawing board on a tripod, with a ruler, the ruler being pointed at the object observed. See ALIDADE, FIDUCIAL EDGE. b Engin. A large surface plate. c Mining. An inclined plane used as a buddle.

plane'-ta'ble, or plane'ta'ble, v. t. & i. Surv. To plot with, or make use of, a plane table. — plane'-ta'bler, plane'ta'bler (plān'tā'blẽr), n.

plan'et·al (plăn'ĕt·ăl), adj. Planetary.

plan'e·tar'i·an (plăn'ĕ·târ'ĭ·ăn; 79), adj. Planetary.

plan'e·tar'i·an, n. 1. An astrologer. Obs.
2. An inhabitant of a planet. Rare.

plan'e·tar'i·um (plăn'ĕ·târ'ĭ·ŭm; 79), n.; pl. -IA (-ȧ). [NL. See PLANETARY.] An orrery; also, a model or representation of the planetary system. See ZEISS PLANETARIUM.

plan'e·tar'y (plăn'ĕ·tĕr'ĭ; plăn'ĭ-; or esp. Brit., -tĕr-ĭ), adj. [Cf. LL. planetarius an astrologer, F. planétaire planetary. See PLANET.] 1. Of or pert. to a planet or the planets; caused or influenced by, or like, a planet or the planets; as, planetary inhabitants, year.
2. Having the nature of a planet; erratic; wandering.
3. Of or pertaining to the earth; terrestrial; world-wide.
The evolution of a planetary consciousness. Irish Statesman.
4. Astrol. Under the dominion or influence of a planet.
5. Mach. Designating, or pertaining to, an epicyclic train of gear wheels, esp. one constituting an automobile transmission gear. See EPICYCLIC TRAIN.
6. Physics. Having a motion like that of a planet, as planetary electrons.

plan'e·tar'y, n.; pl. -IES (-ĭz). [LL. planetarius an astrologer.] Obs. a An astrologer. b Astron. A planetary nebula. c A planet.

planetary aberration. Astron. See ABERRATION, 3. planetary atom. Physics & Chem. An atom conceived as built up of a nucleus with electrons revolving about it in orbits. See Bohr theory under ATOMIC THEORY.

planetary days. The days of the week as allotted to the planets known to the ancients, each having its day.

planetary ellipsoid. Math. An oblate spheroid.

planetary gearing. = PLANET DIFFERENTIAL.

planetary hour. Astrol. = HOUR, 8. planetary house or mansion. = 3d HOUSE, 14 b.

planetary nebula. Astron. See NEBULA, 1.

planetary precession. Astron. See PRECESSION OF THE EQUINOXES.

planetary transmission. Transmission, or a transmission system, as in an automobile, using a planet differential (which see).

planetary wind. Any one of the major winds, as trade wind, countertrade, prevailing westerly.

planet differential. Mach. An epicyclic gear train having two contiguous, parallel, main wheels, usually of equal diameter, meshing with a single pinion, one of the wheels having one or more teeth than the other. Usually, one of the two wheels is fixed to the frame of the mechanism, the other then being slowly rotated as the pinion moves about the pair.

plan'et·ed (plăn'ĕt·ĕd; -ĭt-; -ĭd; 119), adj. Living upon a planet. Edward Young.

plan'e·tes'i·mal (plăn'ĕ·tĕs'ĭ·măl), adj. [From PLANET; cf. INFINITESIMAL.] Astron. Of or pertaining to the exceedingly small bodies of space. See PLANETESIMAL, n.

plan'e·tes'i·mal (plăn'ĕ·tĕs'ĭ·măl), n. A small solid body, probably similar to a meteorite in composition but differing from one in that it revolves in an orbit around a central gaseous nucleus as do the planets around the sun.

planetesimal hypothesis. Cosmog. A hypothesis to explain cosmical evolution, especially the evolution of the solar system, propounded originally by Chamberlin and Moulton. It postulates the growth of the planets by aggregation from minute but numerous secondary bodies called planetesimals. See SPIRAL-NEBULA HYPOTHESIS; cf. NEBULAR HYPOTHESIS.

planet gear. A planetary gear.

pla·net'i·cose (plȧ·nĕt'ĭ·kōs), adj. [See PLANETIC; 1st -OSE.] Wandering. Rare.

plan'et·ing (plăn'ĕt·ĭng; -ĭt·ĭng), n. Music of the spheres.

plane'-faced', adj. See -FACED. plane'ness, n. See -NESS. plan'er-type' milling machine. See MILLING MACHINE. plane'-shear', n. = PLANK-SHEAR. plan'et·ar'i·ly, adv. of PLANETARY. pla·net'ic, pla·net'i·cal, adj. [LL. planeticus wandering, fr. Gr. planētikos.] Planetary; vagrant; erratic. Obs.

plan'et-og'e-ny (plăn'ĕt-ŏj'ē-nĭ; plăn'ĭt-), n. [See -GENY.] Any theory relating to the origin of planets and satellites.

plan'et-og'ra-phy (-ŏg'rȧ-fĭ), n. [See -GRAPHY.] Astron. The descriptive science treating of planets; also, a treatise on the planets. plan'et-oid (plăn'ĕt-oid; plăn'ĭt-), n. [planet + -oid.] A body resembling a planet; asteroid. — plan'et-ol'dal (-oi'dăl; -d'l), adj.

plan'et-ol'o-gy (-ŏl'ō-jĭ), n. [planet + -logy.] Study and interpretation of surface markings of planets and satellites. — plan'et-o-log'ic (-ō-lŏj'ĭk), adj. — plan'et-ol'o-gist (-ŏl'ō-jĭst), n.

plane tree. = 1st PLANE.

plane'-tree' fam'i-ly. The Platanaceae.

plane trigonometry. Trigonometry that deals with plane triangles.

plan'et-strick'en, adj. Also plan'et-struck'. Affected by the influence of planets; blasted; hence, panic-stricken.

planet wheel. Mach. A gear wheel which revolves around the wheel with which it meshes, in an epicyclic train. See SUN-AND-PLANET WHEELS, Illust.

plan'ful (plăn'fŏol), adj. Full of plans or schemes; resourceful. — plan'ful-ly, adv. — plan'ful-ness, n.

plang (plăng), n. [Imitative.] A deep reverberating sound. — plang, v. i.

plan'gen-cy (plăn'jĕn-sĭ), n. The quality or state of being plangent; a beating sound; also, plaintiveness.

plan'gent (-jĕnt), adj. [L. plangens, -entis, fr. plangere to beat. See PLAINT.] Sounding with deep or loud reverberation, as breaking waves or tolling bells; as, a plangent wail; of a metallic, thrilling, esp. plaintive sound; clangorous. "Plangent wars." Stevenson. — plan'gent-ly, adv.

plan'gor (plăng'gĕr), n. [L.] Loud wail or lamentation. Rare.

plan'gor-ous (-ŭs), adj. [L. plangor lamentation.] Expressive of loud lamentation; wailing.

P'-lan'guage, n. 1. A P-Celtic language.

2. Any language, as Oscan, that has p for Indo-European qu. See P-CELTIC.

pla'ni- (plā'nĭ-; plăn'ĭ-). [See PLANE, adj.] A combining form, Latin plani-, from planus, meaning flat, level, plane, as in *plani*metry, *plani*sphere. The meanings of the following can be understood from the definitions of their elements.

planicaudate	planifolious	planiphyllous
planicipital	planipetalous	planirostrate planidorsate

-pla'ni-a (-plā'nĭ-ȧ). [NL.] Med. A combining form, Greek -plania, from planē, meaning a wandering, used to denote passage, esp. of a fluid, into a tract not normally its own, as in meno*plania,* uro*plania.*

pla'ni-form (plā'nĭ-fôrm; plăn'ĭ-), adj. Anat. Designating a joint with nearly flat articular surfaces.

pla'ni-graph (-grăf; 83), n. [plani- + -graph.] An instrument, consisting essentially of two different scales joined end to end and turning about a pivot at their junction, used for enlarging or reducing drawings.

pla-nil'la (plȧ-nĭl'yȧ; -nē'yȧ), n. [Amer. Sp., dim. of Sp. plana a level.] Mining. A level place used as a cleaning floor.

pla-nim'e-ter (plȧ-nĭm'ĕ-tĕr), n. [F. planimètre. See PLANI-; -METER.] An instrument for measuring the area of any plane figure by passing a tracer round the boundary line. See HATCHET PLANIMETER.

Planimeter. The Arm a is fixed at b; the Arm a' carries a Tracer (t) which is passed round the periphery of the area to be measured, thereby moving the flange wheel, which either turns or slides on the paper according to its direction. The readings on the Wheels f and g, together with graduations on a', afford the data for computing the area.

pla-nim'e-try (plȧ-nĭm'ĕ-trĭ), n. [Cf. F. planimétrie.] The mensuration of plane surfaces; — disting. from stereometry, or the mensuration of volumes. — pla'ni-met'ric (plā'nĭ-mĕt'rĭk; plăn'ĭ-), -met'ri-cal (-rĭ-kăl), adj.

plan'ing ma-chine' (plăn'ĭng). Mach. a = PLANER, n. a. b A stationary machine for planing wood. See BUZZ PLANER, CYLINDER PLANER, MATCHING MACHINE. c A portable machine for planing a floor or deck. d A machine for planing stone slabs. e A rotary hand machine, fitting over an engine steam chest, for planing the valve seat.

planing mill. A mill in which material, esp. lumber, is planed.

Pla'ni-pen'ni-a (plā'nĭ-pĕn'ĭ-ȧ), n. pl. Also Pla'ni-pen'nes (-ēz). [NL., fr. plani- + L. penna wing.] Zool. A suborder of Neuroptera, including forms having broad, flat, many-veined wings, as ant lions, lacewings, etc.; also, sometimes used as equivalent to Neuroptera. — pla'ni-pen'nate (-ăt), adj. — pla'ni-pen'nine (-ĭn; -īn), adj. & n.

pla'ni-ros'tral (-rŏs'trăl), adj. Having a broad flat beak.

plan'i-scope (plăn'ĭ-skōp), n. [plani- + -scope.] Photog. A type of supplementary lens. — plan'i-scop'ic (-skŏp'ĭk), adj.

plan'ish (plăn'ĭsh), v. t.; -ISHED (-ĭsht); -ISH-ING. [MF. planir, aplanir, fr. plain level, flat. See PLAIN level; cf. 2d -ISH.] To make smooth or plane, as a sheet-metal surface; to condense, toughen, and polish by hammering lightly with smooth-faced hammers or their equivalent.

plan'ish-er (-ĕr), n. One who or that which planishes; specif., a tool used for planishing, as an oval, flat-faced punch or a flat-faced steel hammer.

plan'ish-ing rolls. Coining. Rolls between which cold metal strips are passed to bring them to the required thickness.

plan'i-sphere (plăn'ĭ-sfĕr), n. [See PLANI-; SPHERE.] The representation of the circles of the sphere on a plane; esp., a polar projection of the celestial sphere and the stars on a plane with adjustable circles, or other appendages, for showing the position of the heavens, the time of rising and setting of stars, etc., for any given time. — plan'i-sphe'ral (-sfē'răl), -spher'ic (-sfĕr'ĭk), -spher'i-cal (-rĭ-kăl), adj.

pla'ni-spi'ral (plā'nĭ-spī'răl; plăn'ĭ-), adj. [plani- + spiral.] Zool. Having the whorls coiled in one plane, as certain snail shells.

plank (plăngk), n. [ME. planke, fr. ONF. planke (OF. planche), fr. LL. planca, prob. of Gr. origin; cf. Gr. plakinos made of planks, plax, plakos, anything flat and broad. See PLEASE; cf. PLACENTA, PLANCH.] 1. A heavy thick board. Local usage varies both in England and America as to the size of a plank, the dimensions in the usage of the U. S. Department of Agriculture being, thickness 1½ to under 6 inches, width 6 inches or upwards.

2. Any of various things made of a plank or planks, as a bench, table, etc., a narrow footbridge, or the like.

3. Timber in planks; planking; as, 1,000 feet of plank.

4. That which supports, as a plank does a swimmer.

His charity is a better plank than the faith of an intolerant and bitter-minded bigot. Southey.

5. A slab of stone, esp. a gravestone. Obs.

6. A more or less regularly shaped oblong division of land, also, a local measure of land. See PLANK, v. t., 2. Dial. Eng.

7. One of the separate articles in a program, or platform, of a party or cause; as, a tariff plank.

8. Cookery. A heavy board, usually oak, grooved to catch the drip, and used in cooking and serving planked food.

plank (plăngk), v.; PLANKED (plăngkt); PLANK'ING. [Cf. ONF. plankier, planquier.] Transitive: 1. To cover, floor, or lay with planks; as, to plank a floor or a ship.

2. To allocate (land) in considerable lots of compact shape as by reapportioning land held runrig or rundale. Scot.

3. Colloq., Chiefly U. S. a To lay down, as on a plank or table, forcibly or with emphasis; to slam down. b To pay; — often with down, out; as, to plank down money.

4. To cut logs into planks. Rare.

5. To cause to sleep on a bare plank, as in a jail. Colloq., Brit.

6. Cookery. To cook and serve on a plank usually with an elaborate garnish of potato and other vegetable; as, to plank shad; planked steak.

7. Hat Mfg. To size. Brit.

8. Woolen Mfg. To splice together the ends of slivers of (wool) for subsequent drawing.

—, Intransitive: 1. To lie or sleep on a plank or bare boards; — often with it. Colloq.

2. To sag or bend downward, as under a weight. Dial. Eng.

plank, adj. Consisting, esp. made, of planks; as, a plank bed, bridge, road.

plank'age (plăngk'ĭj), n. [OF. plancage.] A port charge for the use of planks in unloading or loading. Obs.

plank buttress. Buttress root.

plank'er (plăngk'ĕr), n. 1. One who planks, as hat bodies.

2. Agric. Mach. = FLOAT, n., 10.

plank'ing, n. Act of one who or that which planks; also, planks collectively.

plank root. Buttress root.

plank scraper. Agric. Mach. a = FLOAT, n., 10. b A V-shaped or trapezoidal-shaped drag for the leveling of land for irrigation, for the construction of border levees, and for the cleaning out of lateral distributing ditches.

plank'-sheer' (-shĕr'), n. [See PLANCHER, n.] Shipbuilding. a The heavy plank forming the outer edge of the deck of a vessel, over the heads of the frames-covering board. b = WATERWAY, 5.

plank-tol'o-gy (plăngk-tŏl'ō-jĭ), n. Also plank'ton-ol'o-gy (plăngk'tŏn-ŏl'ō-jĭ). [plankton + -logy.] The biological study of plankton. — plank-tol'o-gist (plăngk-tŏl'ō-jĭst), adj.

plank'ton (plăngk'tŏn), n. [G., fr. Gr. plankton, neut. of planktos wandering, fr. plazesthai to wander.] Biol. The passively floating or weakly swimming animal and plant life of a body of water; — by some applied chiefly to the organisms found near the surface. It is chiefly minute organisms, the plants being chiefly diatoms and blue-green algae (Cyanophyceae) and the animals largely protozoans, entomostracans, and various eggs and larvae, but it includes also larger forms, as jellyfishes and salpas, that have only weak powers of locomotion. Fishes and other large actively swimming animals are not included. (Cf. NEKTON.) Opposed to benthos. — plank-ton'ic (plăngk-tŏn'ĭk), adj. -plank'ton. [NL.] A combining form of plankton, used with word elements denoting type, or habitat, as in hali*plankton,* zoo*plankton.*

plankton net. Biol. A tow net, usually made of fine-mesh silk bolting cloth, used for the capture of plankton.

plank'tont (plăngk'tŏnt), n. Biol. Any planktonic organism.

plank'ways' (-wāz'), plank'wise' (-wīz'), adv. In the direction of the length of timber, as a plank is cut; lengthwise.

plan'less (plăn'lĕs; -lĭs; 119), adj. Having no plan. — plan'less-ly, adv. — plan'less-ness, n.

planned (plănd), adj. Executed or designed by planning.

plan'ner (plăn'ĕr), n. One who plans; a projector; designer; specif., Scot., a landscape gardener.

plan'ning board, commission, conference, etc. A board or similar body of citizens appointed to prepare a city plan (see CITY PLANNING, ZONE, v. t.).

plan'o- (plăn'ō-), plan-. A combining form, Greek plano-, plan-, from planos, meaning roaming, as in *plano*gamete, *plan*uria.

pla'no- (plā'nō-). [See 4th PLAIN.] A combining form from Latin planus, meaning plane, used to denote: a Flatly, as in *plano*rotund. b Plane and, as in plano-concave.

plan'o-blast (plăn'ō-blăst), n. [1st plano- + -blast.] Zool. The medusa form of a hydroid. — plan'o-blas'tic (-blăs'-tĭk), adj.

Plan'o-coc'cus (plăn'ō-kŏk'ŭs), n. [NL., fr. 1st plano- + coccus.] Bacteriol. In Migula's classification, a genus of motile cocci now included in the genus Micrococcus.

pla'no-con'cave, adj. [2d plano- + concave.] Plane or flat on one side, and concave on the other. See LENS.

pla'no-con'vex, adj. [2d plano- + convex.] Plane or flat on one side, and convex on the other. See LENS.

plan of campaign. Irish Hist. A plan originated in 1886, by which tenants, under a political leader, aided each other in refusing to pay the unjust rents.

pla'no-fer'rite (plā'nō-fĕr'ĭt), n. [2d plano- + ferrum + -ite.] Mineral. A hydrous iron sulphate, $Fe_2O_3.SO_3.15H_2O$, occurring in yellowish-green to brown, tabular crystals.

plan'o-ga-mete' (plăn'ō-gȧ-mēt'), n. [1st plano- + E. gamete.] Bot. One of the motile ciliated gametes, or zoogametes, found in many green algae (Chlorophyceae). Cf. APLANOGAMETE.

pla'no-graph (plā'nō-grăf; 83), v. i. [2d plano- + -graph.] To print from a flat surface. Cf. PLANOGRAPHY.

plan-og'ra-phy (plăn-ŏg'rȧ-fĭ), n. [See PLAN, 2d PLANO-; -GRAPHY.] 1. The art of drawing maps or plans.

2. A process of printing from a flat or plane surface, such as stone, zinc, or aluminum, in lithographic processes or offset printing.

— pla'no-graph'ic (plā'nō-grăf'ĭk), adj. — plan-og'ra-phist (plăn-ŏg'rȧ-fĭst), n.

pla-nom'e-ter (plȧ-nŏm'ĕ-tĕr), n. [2d plano- + -meter. Cf. PLANIMETER.] Mach. A surface plate or other device for gauging a plane surface.

pla-nom'e-try (-trĭ), n. The art or process of producing or gauging a plane surface, as with a planometer.

pla'no-mill'er (plā'nō-mĭl'ĕr), n. Mach. A planer-type milling machine.

Pla-nor'bis (plȧ-nôr'bĭs), n. [NL., fr. 2d plano- + L. orbis a circle.] Zool. A widely distributed genus of fresh-water snails having a more or less flattened or discoid shell and slender tentacles with eyes at the base. It typifies a family, Pla-nor'bi-dae (-bĭ-dē), of the order Pulmonata. — pla-nor'bi-form (plȧ-nôr'bĭ-fôrm), adj. — pla-nor'bine (-bĭn; -bīn; 156), adj. — pla-nor'boid (-boid), adj.

Planorbis (P. antrosus). Nat. size.

Pla'no-sar'ci-na (plā'nō-sär'sĭ-nȧ), n. [NL., fr. 2d plano- + L. sarcina bundle, pack.] Bacteriol. In Migula's classification, a small genus of nonpathogenic flagellated bacteria now included in the genus Sarcina.

plan'o-some (plăn'ō-sōm), n. [1st plano- + -some.] Biol. In the spermatogenesis of spiders, a supernumerary chromosome which divides independently of the heterochromosomes.

plan'o-spore (plăn'ō-spōr; 181), n. [1st plano- + -spore.] Bot. A motile spore; a zoospore.

plant (plănt; see Pron., § 83), n. [AS. plante, fr. L. planta sprout, shoot, slip, cutting; cf. F. plante, fr. L. In some senses fr. the v. See PLACE; cf. CLAN, PLAN, PLANT, v., PLANT sole of the foot.] 1. A young tree, shrub, or herb, planted or ready to plant; a slip, cutting, or sapling; as, he has cabbage plants for sale. "A plant of stubborn oak." Dryden.

2. A sapling used as a cudgel, pole, etc. Now Chiefly Dial.

3. Any member of the group of living organisms which, although characterized by irritability, or excitability (responding to stimuli), are typically lacking in locomotor movement or any rapid motor response, and do not exhibit recognizably voluntary motion or possess obvious sensory and nervous organs; a vegetable in the broad sense, as distinguished from an animal. Owing to the close relationship between the lower members of the animal and vegetable kingdoms it is impossible to define plant in terms that will include all plants and exclude all animals (see ANIMAL, n., 1). The majority of plants have cells commonly invested with a membrane or wall composed of cellulose; they obtain food elements from the soil in the form of salts in solution, and from the air in the form of carbon dioxide; and they form carbon compounds in the tissues by means of the green coloring matter chlorophyll (see CHLOROPHYLL, PHOTOSYNTHESIS). Ontogenetic development is practically continuous, at least at certain points, during the life of the organism. In reproduction, the alternation of generations is usually marked, the sexual giving rise to the asexual, and vice versa. But even these criteria are not conclusive, as the fungi and other saprophytes have no chlorophyll, and depend, like animals, on plants for their nourishment. Their cell walls do not contain true cellulose, which is also wanting in the bacteria. In many fungi, moreover, the sexual generation is altogether suppressed, while in some algae it is the only phase of the life cycle. The plant body (thallus) may consist of a single cell, a group of cells, or a tissue of increasing complexity and differentiation. In the seed plants it exhibits three grand structural systems (fundamental, tegumentary, and vascular), each adapted to some particular function. Ecologically, plants are variously grouped in communities with similar environmental conditions, guilds with special physiological relations to other organisms, and associations (or formations) with specific growth requirements in common and certain types dominating; consociations and societies may also be recognized within the associations. Plants have been classified according to artificial or natural systems (see CLASSIFICATION, 3). The most notable artificial system was that of Linnaeus (1735), by which plants were divided into 24 classes according to the stamens. The classification of Engler and Prantl has been very generally followed. It takes account of all plants, recognizing phyla or divisions, classes, orders, families, genera, and species. The following modified arrangement of the phyla, observed in this Dictionary, is in common use among American botanists (the slime molds, however, are often included among the Thallophyta, or regarded as animals); Myxophyta (slime molds), Thallophyta (algae, fungi, and bacteria), Bryophyta (mosses and liverworts), Pteridophyta (ferns and fern allies), Spermatophyta (seed plants.)

4. a The machinery, apparatus, fixtures, etc., employed in carrying on a trade or a mechanical or other industrial business; as, an electric-light plant, a fishing plant, etc. In the commercial sense, a plant may include real estate and all else that represents capital invested in the means of carrying on a business, exclusive of the raw material or the manufactured product. b A factory, workshop or apparatus complete, for the manufacture of a particular product; as, a bicycle plant. c By extension, the equipment of any institution; as, the plant of a college. d A set or group of parts in machinery, machine equipment, or the like, functioning together; as, an interlocking plant in a railroad switch mechanism.

5. Slang. a Stolen goods or a place for storing them. b [Cf. obs. F. plant, and E. PLAN.] A swindling plot or artifice, esp. when elaborate; a swindle; trick. c Brit. A detective; a spy. d A decoy or trap for wrongdoers; as, a plant for motorists traveling at an illegal speed. e Anything, as evidence, an object, etc., deliberately placed so that its discovery may deceive or may cause a false inference.

6. Pose; position; way of standing.

7. A crop or growth of something planted.

8. An oyster which has been bedded, in distinction from one of natural growth; also, a young oyster suitable for transplanting. Chiefly U. S.

9. In dramatic composition, a planting of something in the mind, as a point to be remembered in a plot.

10. Agric. = 3d CATCH, 6. Eng.

11. Theater. An actor planted in the audience to take some part in a performance as if he were a nonmember of the profession.

☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:

plant-bearing, adj.	plant-eating, adj.	plant-hunting, adj.
plant breeder	plant feeder	plant-naming, adj.
plant-breeding, adj.	plant-feeding, adj.	plant worship plant breeding	plant-growing, adj.	plant worshiper plant-covering, adj.	plant-grown, adj.

plant (plănt; see Pron., § 83), v.; PLANT'ED; PLANT'ING. [AS. plantian, fr. L. plantare; cf. F. planter, fr. L. See PLANT, n.; cf. IMPLANT.] Transitive: 1. To put in the ground and cover, as seed, for growth; as, to plant maize; also, to set in the ground for growth, as a young tree, or a vegetable with roots, or mushroom spawn.

---

plan'et-ist, n. Astrologer. Obs. plan'et-kin, n. See -KIN. plan'et-less, adj. See -LESS. plan'et-like, adj. See -LIKE. plan'et-ule (-ūl), n. See -ULE.

plan'i-sfere. Planisphere. Ref. Sp. plan'isht. Planished. Ref. Sp.
plan'i-tes'i-mal. Var. of PLANETESIMAL.

plan'i-ty (plăn'ĭ-tĭ), n. [L. planus level + -ity.] See -ITY. plank'bulit', adj. See -BUILT. plank'less, adj. See -LESS. plank'like', adj. See -LIKE.

plankt. Planked. Ref. Sp.
plank'ter (plăngk'tĕr), n. = PLANKTONT. plank'y (-ĭ), adj. See -Y. pla'no-con'i-cal, adj., pla'no-cylin'dric, -dri-cal, adj. See 2d PLANO-. pla'no-hor'i-zon'tal, adj. See 2d [PLANO-. pla'no-mill'ing ma-chine', = PLANOMILLER.

pla'no-or-bic'u-lar, adj. See 2d PLANO-. pla'no-ro-tund', See 2d PLANO-. pla'no-spi'ral, adj., pla'no-su'bu-late, adj. See 2d PLANO-.

2. To set firmly, as, or as if, in or on the ground; to fix; to set in position; to establish; to attach or fix in place; as, to plant cannon against a fort; to plant a standard; to plant one's feet on solid ground.

Authorizing them to plant a colony in Virginia. John Fiske.

3. To implant or engender, as a passion, sentiment, idea, principle, habit, or the like; to introduce; as, to plant Christianity among the heathen. "It planteth anger." Shak.

4. To stock or provide with something, esp. plants; as, to plant a river with fish, a field with oaks; to plant a garden.

5. To colonize or settle; to populate.

Intending to return and plant Delaware. Winthrop.

6. To establish (an animal) in a place in order to stock the locality; to introduce; as, to plant oysters in beds.

7. Slang. a Thieves' Cant. To conceal; to hide, as stolen goods. b To cause (by blow or the like) to strike, usually in a specified place; to "land." c To prearrange (a scheme or plot) fraudulently or with intent to deceive. d To place (something, as evidence) in a spot where its discovery may deceive or may lead to a false inference; as, to plant a gun in the prisoner's room; to plant gold with a shotgun in a mine. e Colloq., Now Chiefly U. S. To inter (a body).

8. To leave behind; desert. Colloq.

9. Chess. To establish (a piece) where it cannot easily be dislodged.

——, Intransitive: 1. To perform the act of planting.

2. To settle in a new country or place, as colonists.

3. To grow; to become a plant. Cf. PLANT, n., 3.

plant out. a To transplant from a frame or pot to open ground. b Landscape Arch. To conceal by plants.

plant (plănt; 83), n. [F. (16th century). See PLAN.] Ground plan. Obs.

plant, n. [OF. plante, fr. L. planta. See PLACE.] Sole of the foot. Obs.

plant. Var. of PLAINT. Obs.

plan'ta (plăn'tȧ), n.; pl. PLANTAE (-tē). [L., sole.] Zool. a The sole of the foot. b The back side of the shank of a bird's leg. c The first joint of the tarsus of an insect. d An anal clasping leg of a caterpillar.

plan'tad (plăn'tăd), adv. [See PLANTAR; 1st -AD.] Anat. Toward the plantar surface, or sole of the foot.

Plan'tae (plăn'tē), n. pl. [L.] Plants collectively; the plant kingdom. See KINGDOM, n., 4.

Plan·tag'e·net (plăn·tăj'ē·nĕt; -nĭt; 119), n. [Ult. fr. L. planta sprig + genesta, or genista, broom plant; cf. F. genêt.] A member of the English royal house founded by Geoffrey, Count of Anjou. He was father of Henry II by Matilda (daughter of Henry I of England), whom he married in 1128. Plantagenet was adopted as a surname about 1450 by Richard of York (father of Richard III), and probably originated as a nickname of Geoffrey, alluding to a sprig of broom worn in his bonnet. Henry II, Richard I, John, Henry III, Edward I, II, and III, Richard II, Henry IV, V, and VI, Edward IV and V, and Richard III were the Plantagenet kings. Cf. ANGEVIN.

Plan'ta·gi·na'ce·ae (plăn'tȧ·jĭ·nā'sē·ē), n. pl. [NL. See PLANTAGO.] Bot. A family of dicotyledonous plants, the plantain family, constituting the order Plan'ta·gi·na'les (-lēz), having spicate or capitate tetramerous flowers with a membranous or scarious corolla, and the fruit a pyxis or an indehiscent nutlet. Plantago is the type genus. — plan'ta·gi·na'ceous (-shŭs), adj.

Plan·ta'go (plăn·tā'gō), n. [L., plantain.] Bot. a A large genus of acaulescent or short-stemmed herbs (one European species a subshrub), typifying the family Plantaginaceae, and having very small inconspicuous flowers in close-bracted spikes or heads. They are widely distributed, several species, as P. lanceolata (the ribwort), also P. rugelii and P. major (the plantains), being among the commonest weeds. b [not cap.] A plant of this genus.

plan'tain (plăn'tĭn), n. [OF., fr. L. plantago, -ginis, fr. root of planta sole of the foot; — named from its flat leaves. See PLACE.] Any plant of the genus Plantago, esp. the commonest species P. major and P. rugelii. They are chiefly dooryard or roadside weeds with narrow or elliptic leaves and spikes of minute greenish flowers.

Plantain (Plantago major). (¼) plan'tain, n. [Sp. plátano, plátano, of Arawakan or Cariban origin; cf. Arawak prattana, platena, Baniva palatana, Galibi paratanon, balatanna. The Sp. has been influenced by plátano plane tree (see 1st PLANE); the Eng. by 1st PLANTAIN. See BANANA.] a A kind of banana (Musa paradisiaca) sometimes treated as a variety of the common M. sapientum. b The fruit of this plant, which, when cooked, is a staple article of food throughout the tropics. It is larger than the ordinary banana, greenish in color, less sweet, and more starchy.

plan'tain, n. [MF.] The plane tree Platanus orientalis. Rare.

plantain eater. Also plantain cutter. A bird of the family Musophagidae; a touraco.

plantain family. The Plantaginaceae.

plantain flour or meal. = BANANA FLOUR.

plantain lily. = DAY LILY b.

plantain shoreweed. A small weed (Littorella uniflora) of Europe and North America. See LITTORELLA.

plantain squirrel. An East Indian squirrel (Sciurus notatus).

plantain tree. = 2d PLANTAIN a.

plant'al (plăn'tăl; -t'l), adj. [From PLANT.] Belonging or relating to plants; vegetative.

plant anatomy. = ANATOMY, 2 b.

plant'-an'i·mal, n. 1. A zoophyte. Now Rare.

2. A very stupid person. Obs.

plan'ta·no (plăn'tȧ·nō), n. [Sp. plántano. See 2d PLANTAIN; cf. BANANA.] A plantain or its fruit. Obs.

plan'tar (plăn'tĕr), adj. [L. plantaris, fr. planta the sole of the foot. See PLACE.] Anat. & Zool. Of or pertaining to the sole of the foot.

plantar arteries. Anat. The two branches into which the posterior tibial artery divides. The lateral plantar artery anastomoses with a branch of the dorsalis pedis artery to form the plantar arch.

plantar cushion. Veter. A thick pad of fibrous tissue behind and under the navicular and coffin bones.

plantar fascia. Anat. A dense fibrous membrane of the sole of the foot, binding together the deeper structures.

plan·ta'ris (plăn·tā'rĭs), n. [NL. See PLANTAR.] Anat. A small muscle of the calf of the leg. It arises from the lower end of the femur and the posterior ligament of the knee joint, and is inserted, with the tendon of Achilles, by a very long, slender tendon into the calcaneus.

plan·tar'i·um (plăn·târ'ĭ·ŭm), n. [NL., fr. L. planta a sprout + -arium.] A plant nursery.

plantar ligament. Anat. Specif., the superficial part of the inferior calcaneocuboid ligament in the sole of the foot.

plantar nerves. Anat. The two nerves into which the tibial nerve divides.

plantar reflex. A reflex movement of flexing the foot and toes, which, after the first year, is the normal response to tickling of the sole. Cf. BABINSKI REFLEX.

plantar veins. Anat. The veins which accompany the plantar arteries.

plan·ta'tion (plăn·tā'shŭn), n. [L. plantatio; cf. F. plantation.] 1. The act or practice of planting; also, that which is planted. Rare.

2. The founding or establishing of something; esp., colonization; also, Obs. exc. Hist., a colony, esp. in a new country.

3. A group, usually large, of plants or trees planted and under cultivation; esp., a grove or wood of planted trees.

4. A place planted; land cultivated; esp., in the southern United States, West Indies, and many tropical and semi-tropical countries, an estate, usually large, and cultivated by laborers, formerly often slaves; as, a cotton plantation.

5. Local, U. S. In Maine, a minor civil division, having a very simple form of government with little power.

6. In Massachusetts, as classified by statute for taxation, land without trees of merchantable value.

7. That upon which something is built; — foundation. Obs.

8. In Newfoundland, an establishment including buildings and apparatus for handling fish; a fishery plant.

9. Organ Building. The arrangement of the pipes on the wind chest.

plantation acre. The Irish acre. See ACRE, 2.

plantation rubber. See RUBBER, n., 3.

plant cane. A stalk or shoot of sugar cane of the first growth from the cutting. Cf. RATOON, 1.

plant cutter. a Any of several finchlike South American clamatorial passerine birds constituting the genus Phytotoma and family Phytotomidae, having a serrated bill with which they cut off young shoots and buds of plants. b A plantain eater.

Plan'té' bat'ter·y (plăn'tā'). [After G. Planté, a Frenchman.] Elec. A type of storage battery with both electrodes of lead and the electrolyte of dilute sulphuric acid.

plant'er (plăn'tĕr), n. 1. One who or that which plants or sows; specif.: a A farmer; an agriculturist. b A planting machine.

2. One who founds or establishes (something, as a religion, institution or the like).

3. A colonist in a new or uncultivated territory.

4. One who owns or cultivates a plantation.

5. An owner or operator of a fishing or shipping plant. Newfoundland.

6. A cattle thief who plants, hides, or disguises his plunder. Australia.

7. One settled on forfeited lands or in the holding of an evicted tenant. Ireland.

8. A snag fixed at one end in the river bed and standing almost rigidly; — disting. from sawyer. Local, U. S. Slang.

9. One who makes a plant (sense 5). Slang.

plant'er·ly (plăn'tĕr·lĭ), adj. Of or appropriate to a planter (sense 2).

plant'er's punch (plăn'tĕrz). A punch consisting of Jamaica rum, lime or lemon juice (and sometimes pineapple juice), syrup or grenadine, served with cracked ice and decorated with fruit, often with a little cognac floated on the top.

plant factor. Mech. & Elec. Engin. The ratio of the average load of the plant to its rated capacity.

plant fibrin. = FIBRIN, n., 1 b.

plant food. a Any food materials used by plants. b Specif., any of various commercial products supplying the principal mineral nutrients, used esp. for house plants.

plant formation. Ecology. See FORMATION, 4 a.

plant geographer. = PHYTOGEOGRAPHER.

plant geography. = PHYTOGEOGRAPHY.

plant hair. = 1st HAIR, 3.

plant hemp. Jute.

plant house. Any structure in which plants are kept or grown; a glasshouse or conservatory.

Plan'ti·gra'da (plăn'tĭ·grā'dȧ; plăn·tĭg'rȧ·dȧ), n. pl. [NL. See PLANTIGRADE.] Zool. The plantigrade carnivores, as bears. Cf. DIGITIGRADA.

plan'ti·grade (plăn'tĭ·grād), adj. [F., fr. L. planta sole + gradi to walk. Cf. DIGITIGRADE.] Zool. Walking on the sole with the heel touching the ground, as the bears and man. — n. A plantigrade animal; esp., a plantigrade carnivore. — plan'ti·grad'y (plăn'tĭ·grăd'ĭ; plăn·tĭg'rȧ·dĭ), n.

plant'ing (plănt'ĭng), n. 1. A setting in the ground for cultivation, as seeds or plants; the forming of plantations, as of trees.

2. That which is planted; a plantation. Chiefly Dial.

3. Masonry. The laying of the first foundation courses. Eng.

plant'ing, adj. Owning or operating a plantation; as, the Southern planting aristocracy.

planting stick. A dibble.

plant insulin. Biochem. & Med. = GLUCOKININ.

plan·tiv'o·rous (plăn·tĭv'ō·rŭs), adj. [L. planta plant + -vorous.] Eating plants; — said esp. of destructive insects or worms.

plant'let (plănt'lĕt; -lĭt; 119), n. A little plant.

plant life. Vegetation; flora; also, the mode of life of plants.

plant'ling, n. A plantlet.

plant louse. a Any of the small insects of the family Aphididae, which live on plants and suck their juices; an aphid. b Any of other small insects of similar habits, esp. of the family Psyllidae, which leap, and are called jumping plant lice.

plan·toc'ra·cy (plăn·tŏk'rȧ·sĭ), n. [planter + -cracy.] Government by planters; planters as a ruling class.

plant pathology. Pathology dealing with the diseases of plants; also, a treatise on this subject.

plant physiology. Physiology relating to plants.

plants'man (plănts'măn), n.; pl. -MEN. A dealer in, or grower of, plants; a horticulturist, nurseryman, or market gardener.

plant thermal efficiency. See THERMAL EFFICIENCY.

plan'tu·la (plăn'tū·lȧ), n.; pl. -LAE (-lē). [NL., dim. See PLANTA.] Zool. A small cushionlike structure between the claws of many insects; a pulvillus. — plan'tu·lar (-lĕr), adj.

plant'ule (plănt'ūl), n. [Dim. fr. L. planta; cf. F. plantule.] A plantlet; an embryo plant.

plan'u·la (plăn'ū·lȧ), n.; pl. -LAE (-lē). [NL., dim. fr. L. planus flat. See PLANE.] 1. Embryol. A hollow single-layered blastula.

2. Zool. The very young, free-swimming larva of coelenterates. It usually has a flattened oval or oblong form, and consists of an outer layer of ciliated ectoderm cells and an internal mass of endoderm cells. Sometimes, a similar larva of some other animal.

A Planula of Jellyfish. B The same in a later stage when fixed and developed into a hydrula.

— plan'u·lar (-lĕr), plan'u·late (-lāt), adj., plan'u·li·form' (-lĭ·fôrm'), adj., plan'u·loid (-loid), adj.

plan'u·lan (plăn'ū·lăn), n. Zool. A planula.

‖pla'num (plā'nŭm), n. [L. os planum flat bone. See 4th PLAIN.] Anat. A flat surface of bone, esp. of the skull; as, the ‖pla'num or'bi·ta'le (ôr'bĭ·tā'lē), the orbital surface of the maxilla.

pla·nu'ri·a (plȧ·nū'rĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. Gr. planos a wandering + -uria.] Med. Discharge of urine through an abnormal passage, as a fistula.

planx'ty (plăngks'tĭ), n. Music. An Irish melody for the harp, in triplets and slower than the jig; also, a dance to this music.

plap (plăp; cf. PLOP), v. i.; PLAPPED (plăpt); PLAP'PING. [Imitative.] To fall or strike with a sound suggestive of the word plap.

plaque (plăk; pläk), n. [F., fr. D. plak flat piece of wood, MD. placke piece, patch, spot, a coin; akin to MHG. placke, G. placken. Cf. PLACARD, PLACK, PLECK.] 1. Any flat, thin piece of metal, clay, ivory, or the like, used, as on a wall, for ornament, inserted in furniture, etc.

2. An ornamental brooch or the like worn on the person, esp. as the badge of an honorary order.

3. A piece of thin material reinforcing the dome or clasp of a glove.

4. Anat. A blood platelet.

5. Med. & Dent. A patch or flat area, as of color on the skin, or of mucus-harboring bacteria on a tooth.

pla·quette' (plȧ·kĕt'), n. [F., dim. of plaque.] 1. A small plaque, esp., in modern medal engraving, a small and delicate bas-relief, whether cast or struck from a die.

2. Anat. A blood platelet.

plash (plăsh), v. t.; PLASHED (plăsht); PLASH'ING. [OF. plaissier, plassier, plessier, fr. (assumed) VL. plectiare, fr. L. plectere to weave. See PLY; cf. PLEACH.] 1. To cut partly, bend, and intertwine (branches, stems, etc.) into a hedge; also, to make or trim (a hedge) by so treating its branches, etc.; to pleach.

2. To bend down, interweave, or entwine. Obs.

plash (plăsh), n. A plashed branch, or, rarely, a plashed bush or the like. See 1st PLASH, 1 (above). Obs. exc. Dial.

plash, n. [ME. plasche, fr. AS. plæsc (Oxf. E. D.); akin to MD. plasch, D. & LG. plas.] A small pool; a puddle.

plash, v. t. & i. [Cf. D. plassen, G. platschen, prob. of imitative origin. Cf. SPLASH.] To strike and break the surface of (water, dust, etc.) with a spattering noise; to splash; also, to dash or tumble about with such a noise.

Far below him plashed the waters. Longfellow.

A heavy headdrop plashed a little star pattern in the dust. Galsworthy.

plash, n. [See PLASH to splash.] 1. A plashing; a splash.

2. A heavy fall of water, esp. rain. Chiefly Dial.

3. A splash or dash (of color or light).

plash, adv. With a plash or sound of plashing.

plash'er (plăsh'ĕr), n. A stem used in plashing hedges; also, a workman employed in plashing hedges. Local, Eng.

plash'et (plăsh'ĕt; -ĭt), n. [plash pool + -et.] A pool; a puddle. Now Dial.

plash wheel. = DASHWHEEL.

plash'y (plăsh'ĭ), adj.; PLASH'I·ER (-ĭ·ĕr); PLASH'I·EST. [From PLASH pool.] Abounding with or characteristic of pools or puddles; marshy.

plash'y, adj. [See PLASH a splash.] That plashes; also, marked with plashes. "A serpent's plashy neck." Keats.

-pla'si·a (-plā'zhĭ·ȧ; -zĭ·ȧ). [NL., fr. Gr. plasis a molding, fr. plassein to mold.] A combining form denoting development, formation, as in hetero*plasia,* macro*plasia.*

-plasis. [NL. See PLASIA.] Biol. A combining form, Greek -plasis, meaning a molding, equivalent to -plasia, as in ana*plasis,* cata*plasis,* meta*plasis,* para*plasis.*

plasm (plăz'm), n. [LL. plasma anything formed or molded, fr. Gr. plasma, -atos, fr. plassein to form, mold. Cf. PLASMA, PLASTER.] 1. A mold or matrix. Obs.

2. = PLASMA, in any of various senses.

-plasm. A combining form, Greek -plasma, from plasma, meaning a thing molded, used to denote: a A plastic formative material, as in mytho*plasm.* b Biol. (1) A formation of living matter, esp. the viscous material of an animal or vegetable cell, as in disco*plasm,* proto*plasm,* neo*plasm.* (2) Protoplasm, as in cyto*plasm,* karyo*plasm,* meta*plasm.* Derivative adjectives are formed in -plasmic.

plasm-. = PLASMO-.

plas'ma (plăz'mȧ), n. [LL. See PLASM.] 1. Mineral. A cryptocrystalline variety of quartz, of various shades of green, and faintly translucent.

2. Anat. & Physiol. The fluid part of blood, lymph, or milk, as opposed to the corpuscles, the fat globules, etc., suspended in it; also, the juice that can be expressed from muscle. Plasma of blood differs from serum essentially in containing the antecedent substance of fibrin, in addition to the constituents of serum.

3. Biol. Protoplasm.

4. Pharm. A mixture of starch and glycerol, used as an ointment base.

-plas'ma. Var. of -PLASM.

plasma body. A phagocytic and probably amoeboid leucocyte resembling the mononuclear leucocyte of inflammatory exudates.

plasma cell. Zool. A type of cell in connective tissue with large round nuclei eccentrically placed and filled with deeply staining chromatin masses.

plasma membrane. Biol. The external membrane formed by the cytoplasm of a cell; ectoplasm.

plas'ma·pher'e·sis (plăz'mȧ·fĕr'ē·sĭs), n. [NL., fr. plasma + Gr. aphairesis a taking away.] Physiol. & Med. Removal of blood plasma; esp., the removal of a large quantity of blood from a living animal, separation of the plasma from the corpuscles by centrifuging, and injection of the corpuscles into the animal's blood stream again.

---

plant'a·ble, adj. See -ABLE.

plant'age, n. [F.] Vegetation; also, planting. Obs.

plan'ta·gin'e·ous (plăn'tȧ·jĭn'ē·ŭs), adj. = PLANTAGINACEOUS.

plant'ain-leaved', adj. See -LEAVED. [PLANFARICM. Obs.

plant'a·ry (plănt'ȧ·rĭ), n. = 1 plan·ta'tion-like', adj. See -LIKE.

plan·ta'tor (plăn·tā'tĕr), n. [LL.] = PLANTER, a colonist; also, a transplanter. Obs.

plant'dom, n. See -DOM.

plant'er-dom, n. See -DOM.

plant'er-ship, n. See -SHIP.

plant'less, adj. See -LESS.

plant'like', adj. See -LIKE.

Plan'u·loi'de·a (plăn'ū·loi'dē·ȧ), n. pl. [NL.] Syn. of MESOZOA.

plan'u·ry (plăn'ū·rĭ), n. = PLANURIA. [Coins. = BLAFFERT.]

plap'pert (plăp'ĕrt), n. [G. dial.]

plaq'uet. Var. of PLACCATE.

plase. † PLACE, PLAICE.

plash'ing-ly, adv. of PLASHING.

plash'ment, n. See -MENT, 3.

plasht. Plashed. Ref. Sp.

plas'ma·phar'e·sis (plăz'mȧ·fĕr'ē·sĭs). Var. of PLASMAPHERESIS.

plas·mat'ic (plăz·măt'ĭk), adj. Pertaining to, or of the nature of, plasma; protoplasmic.

plas·mat'i·cal (-ĭ·kăl), adj. [Gr. plasmatikos.] Formative; molding. Rare.

plas·ma'tion (-mā'shŭn), n. [From LL. plasmatio, or OF. plasmacion.] A forming or molding, esp., formerly, in the process of creation.

plasmato-. A combining form, Greek plasmato-, from plasma, plasmatos, meaning form, equivalent to plasmo-, as in *plasmato*parous.

plas'ma·top'a·rous (plăz'mȧ·tŏp'ȧ·rŭs), adj. [See PLASMA; -PAROUS.] Bot. Discharging the protoplasmic contents of a conidium in an undivided mass; — said of certain downy mildews.

plas'ma·tor·rhex'is (plăz'mȧ·tō·rĕk'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. plasmato- + -rrhexis.] Biol. The disruption of a cell by internal pressure due to swelling.

-plas'mi·a (-plăz'mĭ·ȧ). [NL.] Med. A combining form from plasma (see -IA), denoting a (specified) condition of the blood plasm, as in oligo*plasmia.*

plas'mic (plăz'mĭk), adj. Protoplasmic; plasmatic.

-plas'mic. See -PLASM.

plas'mo- (plăz'mō-), plasm-. A combining form for plasma, as in plasmolysis, plasmodium; denoting also cytoplasm, as in plasmolysis; protoplasm, as in plasmogen.

plas'mo·cyte (plăz'mō·sīt), n. [plasmo- + -cyte.] A white blood corpuscle.

plas'mo·cy·to'ma (-sĭ·tō'mȧ), n.; pl. -TOMATA (-mȧ·tȧ), -TOMAS (-mȧz). [NL., fr. plasmocyte + -oma.] A myeloma composed of plasma cells.

plas'mo·desm (plăz'mō·dĕz'ĭm), n.; pl. -DESMS (-dĕz'mz), -DESMA (plăz'mō·dĕz'mȧ). [See PLASMO-; DESMO-.] Biol. A protoplasmic connection between two cells; a cell bridge.

plas'mo·des'mus (-dĕz'mŭs), n.; pl. -DESMI (-mī). [NL.] Biol. A plasmodesm.

plas·mo'di·al (plăz·mō'dĭ·ăl), adj. Also plas·mod'ic (plăz·mŏd'ĭk). Of or pertaining to a plasmodium.

plas·mo'di·ate (plăz·mō'dĭ·āt), adj. Biol. Plasmodial.

plas·mo'di·o·carp' (-mō'dĭ·ō·kärp'), n. [plasmodium + -carp.] Bot. A fructification in certain slime molds, consisting of an elongated, sometimes branched, body within which spores develop. It is a modification of the plasmodium. Cf. AETHALIUM. — plas·mo'di·o·car'pous (-kär'pŭs), adj.

plas·mo'di·oph'o·ra (plăz·mō'dĭ·ŏf'ō·rȧ), n. [NL. See PLASMODIUM; -PHORUS.] Bot. A genus of minute, slime-moldlike, parasitic organisms typifying a family, Plas·mo·di·oph'o·ra'ce·ae (-rā'sē·ē), formerly regarded as constituting an order, Plas·mo·di·oph'o·ra'les (-rā'lēz), of the class Myxomycetes, but sometimes considered algal fungi and placed within the order Chytridiales. P. brassicae causes clubroot of cabbage.

plas·mo'di·um (plăz·mō'dĭ·ŭm), n.; pl. -DIA (-ȧ). [NL. See PLASMA; 1st -ODE.] 1. Biol. a A multinucleate mass of naked protoplasm formed by the union of a number of amoebalike organisms; specif., Bot., the vegetative body of the slime molds (Myxomycetes) formed by union of individuals (myxamoebae) developed from the spores. These plasmodia often occur on decaying logs. See MYXOMYCETES. Among animals, certain of the protozoans form plasmodia. b A syncytium.

2. Zool. [cap.] A genus of protozoans of the class Sporozoa containing the malaria parasites. See MALARIA.

plas'mo·gen (plăz'mō·jĕn), n. [plasmo- + -gen.] Essential substance of protoplasm. Rare.

plas·mol'y·sis (plăz·mŏl'ĭ·sĭs), n. [NL., fr. plasmo- + -lysis.] Physiol. Contraction or shrinking of the cytoplasm in a living cell, as of a plant, due to loss of water by exosmosis (see OSMOSIS). — plas'mo·lyt'ic (plăz'mō·lĭt'ĭk), adj. — plas'mo·lyt'i·cal·ly (-ĭ·kăl·ĭ), adv.

plas'mo·lyze (plăz'mō·līz), v. t. & i. To subject to or to undergo plasmolysis.

plas·mo'ma (plăz·mō'mȧ), n.; pl. -MOMATA (-mȧ·tȧ), -MOMAS (-mō'mȧz). [NL., fr. plasm- + -oma.] Med. A tumor or tumorlike mass composed of plasma cells.

Plas'mon (plăz'mŏn), n. [Cf. PLASMA.] A trade-mark applied to a flourlike preparation of the sodium salt of casein, used as a food; hence [sometimes not cap.], the preparation bearing this trade-mark.

Plas·mop'a·ra (plăz·mŏp'ȧ·rȧ), n. [NL., fr. plasmo- + L. parere to bring forth.] Bot. A genus of downy mildews (family Peronosporaceae) having conidia that always form swarm spores. P. viticola causes a destructive mildew of the grape.

plas·moph'a·gous (plăz·mŏf'ȧ·gŭs), adj. Eating plasma. — plas·moph'a·gy (-jĭ), n.

plas·mop'ty·sis (plăz·mŏp'tĭ·sĭs), n. [NL., fr. plasmo- + Gr. ptysis a spitting.] Biol. Bursting forth of protoplasm from a cell through rupture of the cell wall.

plas'mo·so'ma (plăz'mō·sō'mȧ), n.; pl. -SOMATA (-sō'mȧ·tȧ). [NL.] A plasmosome.

plas·mot'o·my (plăz·mŏt'ō·mĭ), n. [plasmo- + -tomy.] Zool. In certain protozoans, division of a plasmodium into two or more plasmodia.

pla'some (plā'sōm; plăs'ōm), n. [G. plasom, short for plasmatosom, fr. Gr. plasma, -matos, thing molded + sōma body; a trans. of G. elementargebilde.] Biol. A biophore or pangen. See BIOPHORE. Wiesner.

plass (plăs), n. [A blend of plastic and glass.] A tough, malleable material resembling glass.

plas'son (plăs'ŏn), n. [G., fr. Gr. to plasson that which forms or molds.] Biol. The protoplasm of a cytode. Haeckel.

-plast (-plăst). A combining form, Greek -plastos, from plastos, meaning formed, used to denote: a A thing made, as in gypso*plast,* melo*plast.* b Biol. (1) An organized particle or granule, cell, as in bio*plast,* leuco*plast.* (2) = PLASM b (2). (3) Sometimes equiv. to -blast, in sense of formative cell, as in odonto*plast.*

plas'te·in (plăs'tē·ĭn), n. [G. plasteïn, fr. Gr. plastos formed, molded + -eïn as in caseïn casein; — from its tendency to pass over into hydrogel.] Biochem. Any of several proteinlike substances produced as coagula by the action of proteolytic enzymes, as pepsin or papain, on the digestion products of protein.

plas'ter (plăs'tĕr; see Pron., § 83), n. Formerly also plais'ter. [AS., a plaster (in sense 1), fr. L. emplastrum, fr. Gr. emplastron, emplaston, fr. emplassein to daub on, stuff in, fr. en in + plassein to mold; in sense 3 fr. OF. plastre (F. plâtre), fr. L. Cf. PLASTIC, EMPLASTER, PLASTER, PLASM.] 1. Pharm. An external application of a consistency harder than ointment, prepared for use by spreading it on linen, leather, silk, or the like; as, a porous plaster; adhesive plaster. It is adhesive at the ordinary temperature of the body.

2. Anything applied to heal or soothe; a salve.

3. A pasty composition, hardening on drying, used for coating walls, ceilings, and partitions. Ordinary plaster is made by mixing sand and water with gypsum plaster, quicklime, or hydrated lime. Hair or fiber may be added to act as a binder.

4. Calcium sulphate, esp. plaster of Paris.

plas'ter (plăs'tĕr), v.; -TERED (-tĕrd); -TER·ING. [Cf. OF. plastrer (F. plâtrer). See PLASTER, n.] Transitive: 1. To overlay or cover with plaster or a similar material, as walls or ceilings.

2. Hence, to smear or bedaub as if with plaster; as, cheeks plastered with rouge; to plaster one with flattery.

3. a To smooth over; to conceal, as with a covering of plaster; to repair superficially, as with plaster. b To smooth (down), as with a sticky or shiny substance.

His hair was plastered down into his eyes with grease. Masefield.

4. a To apply a medicinal plaster to, as to a wound. b Figuratively, to soothe; to mitigate pain; hence, Colloq., to compensate; to pay damages to.

5. To make into a soft plasterlike mass.

6. To treat with plaster of Paris, as land, grapevines, wine, etc.; specif., to treat (wine) with plaster of Paris to improve the color, keeping qualities, etc., either, as is generally supposed, by abstraction of water with increase of alcoholic strength, or, chiefly, as some believe, by precipitation of albuminous matter.

7. a To affix (something) to; as, to plaster a poster upon a wall. b Slang, U. S. To paste a legal or official notice upon; as, to plaster an automobile. c Slang, U. S. Intoxicated; drunk; — used in past part.

—, Intransitive: To form into a hard mass; to cake.

plas'ter, adj. Sham; hypocritical; as, a plaster saint. Colloq.

plaster baker. See BAKER.

plaster bandage. = PLASTER CAST, 2. plas'ter·bill' (plăs'tĕr·bĭl'), n. The surf scoter. Massachusetts.

plas'ter·board' (-bōrd'; 181), n. A board consisting of a gypsum plaster core and surfaces of fibrous felt pressed together in sheets of various thicknesses from ¼ in. to ½ in. and used as a plaster base. — plas'ter·board', adj.

plaster bond. A bituminous coating applied to the inside surface of outside walls of buildings to exclude dampness.

plaster burner. See BURNER.

plaster cast. 1. A model in plaster, esp. plaster of Paris, of a person or thing.

2. Surg. A rigid dressing made from gauze impregnated with plaster of Paris, and used for immobilizing injured parts of the body, esp. to permit the healing of bone defects.

plaster chopper. See CHOPPER.

plaster clover. White melilot.

plas'ter·er (plăs'tĕr·ĕr), n. One who plasters; hence: a One who applies plaster or mortar. b One who makes plaster casts.

plas'ter·ing, n. 1. Act or process of applying plaster or a plaster.

2. a A covering of plaster. b = PLASTER, n., 3.

plaster jacket. Surg. A plaster cast applied to the chest.

plaster of Paris. [So called because orig. brought from a suburb of Paris.] a A fine white powder consisting essentially of the hemihydrate of calcium sulphate, $CaSO_4.\frac{1}{2}H_2O$ (or $(CaSO_4)_2.H_2O$), formed by calcining gypsum till it is partially dehydrated. It forms with water a paste which soon sets, and is used for casts, moldings, stuccowork, and for surgical bandages (see PLASTER CAST, 2). b Loosely, native gypsum.

plaster spreader. See SPREADER.

plaster stone. = GYPSUM, n.

plas'ter·work' (plăs'tĕr·wŭrk'), n. Plastering used to finish architectural constructions, esp. for the lining of rooms.

plas'ter·y (-ĭ), adj. Of the nature of, or resembling, plaster. — plas'ter·i·ness (-ĭ·nĕs), n.

plas'tic (plăs'tĭk), adj. [L. plasticus, fr. Gr. plastikos, fr. plassein to form, mold. Cf. PLASTER.] 1. Giving form or fashion to a mass; formative.

2. Causing or directing production or development; creative; as, the plastic force of nature; plastic imagination.

3. Capable of being molded, or modeled, as clay or plaster; hence, pliable; impressionable.

4. Characterized by modeling; also, giving the effect of that which is molded or sculptured; as, plastic dancing.

5. Biol. & Surg. Capable of undergoing metabolic transformation; formative; hence, pertaining to the growth, repair, and transformation of tissues; as, plastic lymph, plastic surgery; also, capable of structural adaptation to changing environment; as, a plastic race, genus.

6. Physics. Capable of being deformed continuously and permanently in any direction without rupture, under a stress exceeding the yield value.

Syn. — See DUCTILE.

plas'tic, n. The art of fashioning modeled or sculptured figures or, as in dancing, of posing or moving so as to suggest sculptured form; also, pl., the figures modeled.

plas'tic, n. a Obs. A sculptor or molder. b A substance that is plastic; specif., any of a large group of organic materials, synthetic or not, that are molded or cast (with or without fillers) and used variously, as for making small articles, cabinets, airplane bodies, and as a substitute for glass. Some are cellulose derivatives, some proteins, and many are resins formed by chemical condensation or polymerization. Rubber and similar materials (as neoprene) are sometimes included among plastics. Plastics are commonly known by their trade-mark names, for example Celluloid and Bakelite.

-plas'tic. A combining form, Greek plastikos, meaning fit for molding, plastic, used to denote developing, forming, growing, as in cyto*plastic,* xylo*plastic;* — also in adjectives corresponding to nouns ending in -PLASM, -PLAST, or -PLASTY.

plas'ti·cal·ly (plăs'tĭ·kăl·ĭ), adv. of PLASTIC.

plastic art. Art, or an art, in which modeling is used.

plastic flow. A permanent deformation or change in shape of a solid body without fracture, under the action of a sustained force.

plas'ti·cim'e·ter (plăs'tĭ·sĭm'ē·tĕr), n. [plasticity + -meter.] A device for measuring the plasticity of cement, lime pastes, mortars, etc.

Plas'ti·cine (plăs'tĭ·sēn), n. A trade-mark applied to an artificial substitute for clay or wax used in modeling; hence [sometimes not cap.], the substance bearing this trade-mark. — plas'ti·cine, adj.

plas'ti·cism (-sĭz'm), n. 1. Philos. The doctrine of the plastic principle formerly supposed to reside in nature.

2. Theory or practice of plastic art.

plas·tic'i·ty (plăs·tĭs'ĭ·tĭ), n. 1. Plastic quality or state.

2. The ability to retain a shape attained by pressure deformation; specif., Physical Chem., the ability of particles to be displaced relatively to one another without at the same time being removed from their sphere of attraction.

3. Physiol. Plastic force.

plas'ti·cize (plăs'tĭ·sīz), v. t. [See -IZE.] To render plastic; to break down (rubber). — plas'ti·ci·za'tion (-sĭ·zā'shŭn; -sĭ·zā'shŭn), n.

plas'ti·ciz'er (plăs'tĭ·sīz'ĕr), n. That which renders plastic; specif., a chemical compound added to natural and synthetic rubbers and resins to impart softness, flexibility, or resiliency.

plas'tic·ly (plăs'tĭk·lĭ), adv. Plastically.

plastic operation. An operation in plastic surgery.

plas'tics (plăs'tĭks), n. Plastic surgery. See -ICS.

plastic sulphur. See SULPHUR, 1.

plastic surgery. That branch of surgery concerned with the repair or restoration of lost, injured, or deformed parts of the body, chiefly by transfer of tissue.

plas'tid (plăs'tĭd), n. [G. plastiden, pl., fr. Gr. plastides, pl. of plastis, fem. of plastēs one who forms or molds.] Biol. 1. A unit of protoplasmic matter; a cell. Haeckel.

2. Any of certain small bodies of specialized protoplasm lying in the cytoplasm of some cells, esp. plant cells and certain protozoans, and serving in many cases as organs or centers of special metabolic activities. Plastids are now generally regarded as persistent cell constituents multiplying by self-division. Chloroplasts, chromoplasts, and leucoplasts of plants are examples. See CELL, n.

-plas'tid (-plăs'tĭd). Also -plas'tide. A combining form of plastid, as in chloro*plastid,* leuco*plastid.*

plas·tid'i·um (plăs·tĭd'ĭ·ŭm), n.; pl. -IA (-ȧ). [NL.] Plastid.

plas'ti·dome (plăs'tĭ·dōm), n. [See -OME.] Biol. The total plastid content of a cell.

plas'ti·dule (-dūl), n. [G. plastidul, dim. of plastid. See PLASTID.] Biol. A primordial cell of protoplasm; a plastid (sense 1). — plas·tid'u·lar (plăs·tĭd'ū·lĕr), adj.

plas'ti·fy (plăs'tĭ·fī), v. t.; -FIED (-fīd); -FY'ING. To plasticize.

plas'tin (-tĭn), n. [See -PLAST.] Biol. An oxyphilic substance in cells; — usually equiv. to linin.

plas'ti·noid (plăs'tĭ·noid), adj. [See -OID.] Biol. Resembling, or of the nature of, plastin.

plas'to- (plăs'tō-). A combining form, Greek plasto-, from plastos, meaning formed, molded, as in *plasto*gamy, used also for plasticity, as in *plasto*meter.

plas'to·chon'dri·a (plăs'tō·kŏn'drĭ·ȧ), n. pl. [NL.] Biol. Mitochondria.

plas'to·dy·na'mi·a (plăs'tō·dĭ·nā'mĭ·ȧ; plăs'tō·dĭ·nā'mĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. plasto- + Gr. dynamis power.] Physiol. Formative power. — -nam'ic (-năm'ĭk), adj.

plas·tog'a·my (plăs·tŏg'ȧ·mĭ), n. [plasto- + -gamy.] Biol. In lower organisms, temporary or permanent cytoplasmic union of individuals unaccompanied by nuclear fusion. — plas'to·gam'ic (plăs'tō·găm'ĭk), adj.

plas'to·mere (plăs'tō·mēr), n. [plasto- + -mere.] Biol. The chondriosomal, or cytoplasmic, portion of a sperm cell; a cytomere, or chondriomere.

plas·tom'e·ter (plăs·tŏm'ē·tĕr), n. [plasto- + meter.] An instrument for measuring plasticity.

plas'to·some (plăs'tō·sōm), n. [plasto- + -some.] A mitochondrium.

plas'to·type (-tīp), n. [plasto- + -type.] Biol. An artificial specimen cast or molded directly from a type specimen, esp. of a fossil.

plas'tral (plăs'trăl), adj. Zool. Of or pert. to a plastron.

plas'tron (plăs'trŏn), n. [F., fr. It. piastrone, fr. piastra. See PLASTER.] 1. a In medieval armor, a metal breastplate, worn under the hauberk. b A protection for the breast of a fencer, usually a piece of leather stuffed or padded.

2. Zool. a The ventral part of the shell of a tortoise or turtle, consisting typically of nine symmetrically placed bones overlaid by horny plates. Also, the ventral armor of other animals, as of certain extinct amphibians or glyptodonts. b The modified posterior interambulacral area on the under side of spatangoid sea urchins.

3. A trimming for the front of a woman's dress, often of different material, and narrowing from the shoulders to the waist. Also, the starched front of a man's shirt.

plas'trum (-trŭm), n. = PLASTRON, 2.

-plas'ty (-plăs'tĭ). [Cf. PLASTO-.] A combining form, Greek -plastia, meaning a molding, used to denote: 1. Act or process of forming, development, growth.

2. Surg. Plastic surgery applied to a (specified) bodily part, as in dermato*plasty,* osteo*plasty,* or from a (specified) source of material, as in auto*plasty,* zoo*plasty,* or for a (specified) purpose, as in kine*plasty.* Corresponding adjectives end in -plas'tic (-tĭk). See -IC.

☞ COMBINATIONS are:

arterioplasty	cystoplasty	labioplasty
balanoplasty	dermoplasty	meloplasty batrachoplasty	enteroplasty	neuroplasty blepharoplasty	fascioplasty	pharyngoplasty bronchoplasty	gastroplasty	pyloroplasty canthoplasty	gennyoplasty	rhinoplasty cardioplasty	gnathoplasty	thelyplasty colpoplasty	heteroplasty	zooplasty

-plasy. = -PLASIA.

plat (plăt), v. t.; PLAT'TED; PLAT'TING. [A var. of plait; perh. influenced by plat flat. See PLAIT.] To interweave, or form by braiding or interweaving; to plait.

They had platted a crown of thorns. Matt. xxvii. 29.

plat, n. Work done by platting; a braid; plait. Now Dial.

plat, adj. [ME. plat, platte, fr. OF. plat (fr. LL.), and perh. through AS. (cf. PLAT a slap) fr. (assumed) VL. plattus, fr. Gr. platys broad, flat. See PLACE; cf. PLAT flat thing, PLATE, PLATFORM, PLATITUDE.] Flat; level; also, plain; straightforward; absolute. Obs. exc. Dial.

plat (plăt), adv. 1. Obs. a Flatly. b Directly; straight.

2. (Scot. pron. plăt) Chiefly Scot. a Absolutely; quite. b Bluntly; straightforwardly.

plat (plăt), n. [ME. plat, platte, fr. plat, platte, flat, and fr. OF. plat a flat surface or thing, fr. plat flat. See PLAT, adj.; cf. PLAT of ground, PLATE, 6, PLATEAU.] 1. A flat thing, as the flat of a sword, a flat piece of stone, the sole of the foot, etc.; also, a horizontal beam, plank, etc. Obs.

2. A surface; hence, place; locality. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng.

3. A plateau; tableland. Rare, U. S.

4. Mining. A platform, floor, or surface for shoveling, loading and unloading ore, etc.

plat, n. [ME. plat, platte, a piece of ground, plan, fr. plat, platte, a flat thing or surface. See PLAT flat thing; cf. PLOT of ground.] 1. A small plot of ground.

This flowery plat, this sweet recess of Eve. Milton.

plas'mase (plăz'mĕs), n. [plasma + -ase.] = THROMBIN.

plas'ma·tor, n. [L., or fr. OF. plasmateur.] Creator. Obs.

plas'ma·ture, n. Form; also, things formed, as in molds. Obs.

plas'mode (plăz'mōd), n. Biol. = PLASMODIUM, 1 a.

plas·mo'di·a. See PLASMODIUM.

plas'mo·lyz'a·ble (plăz'mō·lĭz'ȧ·b'l), adj. See -ABLE. — plas'mo·lyz'a·bil'i·ty, n.

plas'mo·some (-sōm), n. Biol. See NUCLEOLUS a. [Table.]

Plas'sey (plăs'ē), n. See BATTLE, plas'terd. Plastered. Rej. Sp.

plas'ter·like', adj. See -LIKE.

plas'ter·wise', adv. See -WISE.

plas'ti·cal, adj. Plastic. Obs.

plas'tide. Var. of PLASTID.

Plas'ti·do·so'a (plăs'tĭ·dō·zō'ȧ), n. pl. [NL., fr. plastid + -soa.] Syn. of PROTOZOA. [PLASTIC, n.

plas·tique' (plăs·tēk'). Var. of

2. A plan, map, or chart; esp., a plan of a town site, a division of land, or the like. Now Chiefly U. S.

To note all the islands, and to set them down in plat. Hakluyt.

3. A plan, scheme, or outline, as of a course of action, a work of fiction or art, etc.; arrangement; design. Obs.

4. Scot. Eccl. Hist. A plan for securing adequate stipends, from the endowments of the pre-Reformation church, for the ministry of the reformed church of Scotland, and so an efficient ministry for the whole country; also, a commission in charge of such a plan, especially that appointed in 1573.

plat (plăt), v. t. 1. To plan; arrange; lay out. Obs.

2. To make a plat, map, chart, or diagram of; to plot.

plat, v. t. [AS. plættan, fr. plætt. See PLAT a slap.] To strike; slap. Obs. — v. i. To hasten; hurry. Obs.

plat, n. [ME. plat, platt, fr. AS. plætt, perh. fr. (assumed) AS. plæt flat, fr. (assumed) LL. plattus. See PLAT, adj.] A buffet; a slap. Obs. exc. Dial. Scot.

plat, v. i. [From PLAT, adj.] To fall flat. Obs. — v. t. To flatten. Now Rare.

plat, n. [From F. plate.] A kind of flat-bottomed boat. Obs.

‖plat (plä), n. [F.] A dish of food; esp., one of the several dishes at a meal.

plat-. = PLATY-.

Pla·tae'an (plȧ·tē'ăn), adj. Of or pertaining to Plataea, a city of Boeotia, ancient Greece. — n. A citizen of Plataea.

Plat'a·le'i·dae (plăt'ȧ·lē'ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. L. platalea a spoonbill.] Zool. A family of birds consisting of the spoonbills. It is usually ranked as a subfamily of the Threskiornithidae (syn. Ibididae) and then called Plat'a·le·i'nae (-lē·ĭ'nē). Pla·ta'le·a (plȧ·tā'lē·ȧ), containing the European spoonbill and allied species, is the type genus. — pla·ta'le·ine (-īn; -ĭn; 156), adj.

plat'a·le'i·form (-fôrm), adj. [L. platalea the spoonbill + -iform.] Zool. Spoon-billed.

plat'an (plăt'ăn), plat'ane, n. [L. platanus. See PLANE tree.] The plane tree. See 1st PLANE.

Plat'a·na'ce·ae (plăt'ȧ·nā'sē·ē), n. pl. [NL. See PLATANUS.] Bot. A family of trees (order Rosales), consisting of the single genus Platanus. — plat'a·na'ceous (-shŭs), adj.

plat'a·nist (plăt'ȧ·nĭst), n. [L. platanista a sort of fish, fr. Gr. platanistēs; cf. F. plataniste.] The susu.

pla'ta·no (plȧ'tä·nō), n. [Sp. plátano. See 2d PLANTAIN, BANANA.] In Spanish America, the plantain Musa paradisiaca, and, less frequently, the banana.

Plat'a·nus (plăt'ȧ·nŭs), n. [NL. See PLANE tree.] Bot. a A small genus of trees, the plane trees, having light-brown, often deciduous, flaky bark, large palmately lobed leaves, and small monoecious flowers in globose heads. They are natives of temperate regions. P. acerifolia, the London plane, is widely planted as a street tree. P. occidentalis is the American plane, buttonwood, or sycamore. b [not cap.] A tree of this genus.

plat'band' (plăt'bănd'), n. [F. plate-bande, fr. plat, plate, flat, level + bande a band.] 1. Arch. a A horizontal band forming a member of a building. The platband may be a lintel course, or it may be a flat arch, or one of a group of moldings. b Sometimes, an architrave or epistyle. c A list or fillet between the flutings of a column.

2. A border of flowers, as in a garden; hence, any border.

platch (plăch), v. t. & i. [Imitative.] To splash; to besmear. Scot.

‖plat' du jour' (plȧ' dü zhōōr'). [F.] A special dish, emphasized as a feature of a restaurant bill of fare on a particular day.

plate (plāt), n. [ME., fr. OF. plate plate of metal, fr. (assumed) VL. platta, fr. plattus flat. See PLAT, adj.; cf. PLATEN, PLATINUM, PLATTER.] 1. A smooth, often nearly flat, and relatively thin, piece of any material, orig. only of metal; a thick sheet, slice, or lamina; esp., a perfectly flat sheet of material of uniform thickness throughout; as, the back plate of a watch, etc.; a boiler or armor plate.

2. Metal in sheets, whether beaten, rolled, or cast.

3. A flat, smooth piece of metal on or from which anything is, or is to be, engraved, molded, embossed, grained, deposited, or written; as, a name plate; specif., a piece of metal on which anything is engraved to be printed; hence, an impression from the engraved metal, or, loosely, from a woodcut; also, a full-page illustration printed on different paper from the rest of the book; as, a book with plates; a fashion plate.

4. [Cf. Sp. plata silver.] a Obs. A coin, usually of silver. b Hist. Hence, precious metal or bullion, esp. silver. c Silver; Spanish silver money; — translating the Sp. plata; as, a real of plate. See REAL.

5. a Domestic vessels, utensils, ornaments, etc., esp. such as platters, dishes, flagons, cups, etc., of gold or silver or later, by extension, of other metal or of plated ware. b Metalware which is plated, esp. with silver.

6. [OF. plat platter, orig., flat object. See PLAT flat thing.] a A shallow, usually circular, vessel of china, earthenware, metal, or wood, from which food is eaten. The standard crockery plates range from six to eleven inches in diameter. In order of size they are: bread-and-butter plate, dessert plate, tea plate, breakfast plate, dinner plate, and service, or place, plate. b A similarly shaped but often more ornamental dish from which food is served; as, a cake plate; a butter plate.

7. Hence, a plateful; also, a course or dish; as, a fish plate. Also, the food and service supplied to one person at table; as, dinner at five dollars a plate.

8. A dish similar to a table plate passed in churches, etc., in taking collections; hence, a collection for worthy purposes; as, the plate was a generous one.

9. The thin under portion of the forequarter of beef or the back half of this cut as distinguished from the brisket; — called also plate piece. See BEEF, Illust.

10. Short for BOOKPLATE, FASHION PLATE, PLATE GLASS, etc.

11. Anat. & Zool. A lamina; a scute; a plaque or platelet.

12. Arch. a A horizontal timber laid on a wall or supported on posts or corbels to carry the trusses of a roof or the rafters directly; — called also wall plate and roof plate. b A sill, as of a partition or other frame. Eng. Cf. def. 16.

13. Armor. One of the broad pieces of metal, often on a backing, as of leather, which were used to reinforce and complete armor of linked mail; afterwards, that which made up plate armor; hence, armor of such plates. See ARMOR, 1.

14. Bacteriol. A flat glass dish, esp. a Petri dish; also, a film of more or less solid culture medium (as agar), or a culture, contained in such a dish. In a pour, or poured, plate, the medium is inoculated before pouring in the plate, thereby securing an even distribution of material throughout. In a streak plate, the sterile medium is solidified in the plate and then streaked with the inoculum.

15. Baseball. a A small five-sided area, properly a plate of whitened rubber, enveloping a diamond-shaped area one foot square, beside which the batter stands and which must be touched by some part of a player on completing a run; — called also home base, or home plate. See BASEBALL, Illust. b A slab of hard rubber, 24 inches long by 6 inches wide, set in the ground flush with its surface to mark the spot where the pitcher must stand when delivering the ball to the batter, one foot of the pitcher being required to be in contact with the slab during the act of delivery. See BASEBALL, Illust. c A flat, usually triangular, piece of metal with projecting corners which is attached to the sole or heel of a shoe to prevent slipping; also, a pitcher's toeplate.

Plate, 15 a.

16. Building. Either of the horizontal members at the top and bottom of a stud partition between which the studs are placed. The member on top is called the top plate and the member at the bottom, on which the studs rest, is called the bottom plate or soleplate. Cf. def. 12.

17. Cookery. A kind of flat cake or sweetmeat. Obs.

18. Dent. a That part of an artificial set of teeth which fits to the mouth and holds the teeth in place. b Any similar device for supporting artificial palates or straightening irregular teeth.

19. Elec. In an electron tube, the anode or electrode to which the electrons flow. It is usually a thin metal plate.

20. Engineering. A sheet of rolled iron or steel a quarter of an inch or more thick.

21. Furriery. A piece of fur made up of fragments of valuable skins fitted, matched, and sewed together.

22. Hat Mfg. The edge of a brim turned on a plate and stitched, making a double edge.

23. Her. A roundel of silver.

24. Horse Racing. A very light steel racing horseshoe.

25. Mach. A leaf of a laminated, or leaf, spring.

26. Mining. a A heavy framed timber; as, end plate; wall plate. b A copper plate coated with silver amalgam, used in the amalgamation process. c Slaty rock; shale.

27. Photog. A sheet of glass, metal, porcelain, etc., coated with a light-sensitive emulsion. See PHOTOGRAPHY, n., 1.

28. Print. A page of stereotype, electrotype, or the like, to be printed from.

29. Railroads. a A plate rail; also, locally, a rail of an ordinary railroad. b Australia. A footplate.

30. Sports. A prize, orig. a cup or the like, given to a winner in a contest; hence, loosely, a sporting contest for a prize; specif., in horse racing, a race for a prize, the contestants not making a stake.

☞ COMBINATIONS are:

plate bender	plate-drilling, adj.	plate-rolling, adj.
plate-bending, adj.	plate-incased	plate-scarfing, adj.
plate-collecting, adj.	platemaker	plate-shaped, adj.
plate cutter	platemaking	plate-shearing, adj.
plate-cutting, adj.	plate-mounting, adj.	plate-tossing, adj.
plate driller	plate-punching, adj.

-plate (-plāt). A combining form of the noun plate, as in book*plate,* breast*plate,* door*plate;* — also of the verb plate, as in electro*plate.*

plate (plāt), v. t.; PLAT'ED (plăt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); PLAT'ING (plāt'ĭng). 1. To cover with an adherent layer (usually of metal), mechanically, chemically, or electrically.

2. a To overlay with metal plates; arm with armor plate.

Thus plated in habiliments of war. Shak.

b To adorn with plated metal; as, a plated harness. c To fit with a plate, as a bookplate.

3. To beat into thin, flat pieces, or laminae.

4. Bacteriol. To inoculate and culture (microorganisms) upon a plate; — often with out.

5. Horse Racing. To shoe (a horse) with racing plates.

6. Mech. To fix or secure with a plate or plates.

7. Paper Mfg. To impart a very high gloss to by subjecting to heavy pressure between polished metal plates.

8. Philately. To reconstruct a sheet of stamps as printed by the original plate or stone, fixing each stamp relatively in its position by study of pairs, strips, blocks, and singles, and identifying by minor defects of design.

9. Print. To make a stereotype or electrotype plate of.

10. Textiles. To spin (yarn) or to weave (a fabric) so that a richer textile material, as silk or wool, is on the surface or face, and a cheaper one, as cotton, is on the inside or back.

pla·te'a (plȧ·tē'ȧ), n. [ML. See PLACE, n.] On the English medieval stage, a level space between stations.

plate'-and-frame' fil'ter. A form of filter press in which the spaces for the caked solid matter are formed by inserting hollow frames between each pair of plates instead of providing the plates with raised edges; — called also flush-plate filter.

plate armor. a Defensive armor of plates of metal. b Strong metal plates for protecting war vessels, forts, etc.

plat'e·asm (plăt'ē·ăz'm), plat'ei·as'mus (-ī·ăz'mŭs), n. [Gr. plateiasmos.] Broad pronunciation; Doric accent.

pla·teau' (plȧ·tō'; Brit. also plăt'ō), n.; pl. -TEAUS (-tōz'), -TEAUX (-tōz'). [F., fr. OF. plat a flat thing. See 5th PLAT.] 1. A tract of land of considerable summit area, which is high, or distinctly above adjacent land on at least one side, a tableland. It may be but a few hundred feet above sea level or many thousands of feet above. See CONTINENTAL PLATEAU.

2. An ornamental dish or salver; also, a plaque.

3. A style of woman's hat having a flat or plate-shaped top; also, a flat round or square piece of straw or cloth material used to make toques or crowns of hats.

4. In a graph, a region of little or no change in the dependent variable; specif., Educ., a section of a learning curve, or the period of time it represents, in which there is no indication of progress or lapse.

plate battery. Elec. = B BATTERY.

plate beam. = PLATE GIRDER.

plate bone. The scapula.

plate budding. Hort. Budding by the insertion of a bud in a rectangular incision of the bark, the flap of which is turned down.

plate bulb. A steel or iron plate with a thickened edge of bulbous section.

plate calender. A calender for glazing paper by squeezing it between polished copper or zinc plates.

plate'-car'ri·er, n. Photog. A removable frame or kit of frames fitting in a plateholder permitting the use of a plate smaller than that for which the holder was made.

plate circuit. Elec. The electric circuit including the plate and cathode of an electron tube.

plate clutch. Mach. A disk clutch. See FRICTION CLUTCH.

plate column. A plate tower.

plate coupling. Mach. = FLANGE COUPLING.

plate culture. A culture, as of bacteria, contained on a plate (def. 14); also, the cultivation of such a culture.

plate current. Elec. The current flowing between cathode and plate of an electron tube.

plate cylinder. Print. On a rotary press, the cylinder which carries the curved printing plates constituting the form.

plat'ed (plāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. 1. Covered or furnished with plates or with metal, as for defense, ornament, strength, or the like.

2. Overlaid with a different and richer material, esp. gold or silver; as, plated forks; a plated hat (cf. PLATE, n., 22); plated ware.

3. Consisting of, or made into, thin sheets or plates.

plated parquet. Parquetry in which the inlays, usually of selected hardwoods, are fixed on a framed deal backing.

plate fulcrum scale. See 1st SCALE, 2.

plate gear. Mach. A gear having a solid web of material between the hub and rim.

plate girder. A built-up girder resembling an I beam in cross section but with a rolled-steel plate for a web, and flanges usually consisting of angles alone or angles and plates.

plate glass. A fine quality of sheet glass with parallel plane sides, usually made by casting, rolling, grinding, and polishing a plate of glass, or by drawing a thin sheet from a tank of molten glass and rolling, grinding and polishing it. — plate'-glass' (66), adj.

plate'-glazed', adj. Paper Mfg. Glazed in the plate calender. Cf. WEB-GLAZED. — plate glazing.

plate heater. See HEATER.

plate'hold'er (plāt'hōl'dĕr), n. 1. One who holds plates; one who places plates for molds.

2. Photog. A flat, lighttight container in which plates may be held for use in a camera.

plate horse. = PLATER, 2.

plate jig. Mach. = CLAMP JIG.

plate keel. Shipbuilding. A keel made of a flat plate or plates; — opposite of bar keel.

plate'lay'er (plāt'lā'ĕr), n. a One who lays and maintains rails. b One who builds up or mounts plates, as in printing.

plate'let (plāt'lĕt; -lĭt; 119), n. [plate + -let.] A minute platelike body; specif., Anat. a blood platelet.

plate lock. a A lock having the outer case of hard wood b A lock whose works are pivoted on a metal plate.

plate machine. a Elec. A frictional machine with a flat plate or disk of glass revolvable against rubbers. b Ceramics. A potter's wheel adapted esp. for molding plates, etc.

plate'man (plāt'măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). a One who cleans plates. b Metal. = MIDDLER, 4.

plate mark. 1. = HALLMARK.

2. The depressed margin of an engraving made by the pressure of the plate upon the dampened paper while printing.

plate matter. = BOILER PLATE, 2. Cf. PATENT INSIDES.

plate metal. Refined iron run in molds and broken up for remelting or for use in a mix.

plate modulation. Radio. Modulation in which the modulating voltage is introduced into the plate circuit of the tube which provides the carrier. Cf. HEISING MODULATION.

plate money. Rectangular pieces of copper, with a die impress in each corner and at the center, issued in Sweden (17th and 18th centuries).

plat'en (plăt'n), n. [F. platine, fr. OF. plate plate of metal. See PLATE.] 1. A flat plate of metal; now, esp., one that presses against something, or against which something is pressed; specif.: Mach. a The part of a printing press which presses the paper against the type and by which the impression is made. b An analogous part of a typewriter. c The movable table of a planer or similar machine tool. d Founding. A diaphragm or plate, in a molding machine, against which the flask is forced by pressure from below.

2. = PATEN, 3. Obs.

platen press. a Any form of printing press that employs a platen. b Specif., a modern kind of printing press in which an upright movable part, carrying a flat platen supporting the paper, is made to close like a jaw with hinge at the bottom, pressing the paper against the type form, locked against a fixed vertical backing.

plate of wind. In an organ flue pipe, the sheet or jet of air from the flue, which impinges on the upper lip of the mouth and sets in vibration the air column of the pipe.

plate oven. Glass Mfg. A double oven in one part of which the split cylinders of sheet or cylinder glass are heated before being flattened, the sheets then being placed in the other chamber to be annealed.

plate paper. a Orig., a somewhat soft unsized paper with a smooth dull finish used in printing from incised (engraved) plates. b Paper of similar appearance, as a heavy book paper calendered to a dull finish. c Plated paper.

plate piece. See PLATE, n., 9.

plate press. A press with a flat carriage and a roller, used for printing from engraved steel or copper plates.

plate printing. Act or process of printing from an engraved plate or plates. In printing from a copper or steel plate the lines are filled with ink, and the impression taken by pressing it under the roller of a plate press. — plate printer.

plate proof. Print. A proof taken from a plate.

plat'er (plāt'ĕr), n. 1. One who plates; one who designs, makes, or places in position a kind of plate or plating.

2. A machine for calendering paper.

3. Horse Racing. A horse that runs chiefly in plate races, esp. selling races; hence, an inferior race horse.

plat'er. Var. of PLAITER.

plate rail. 1. A primitive type of flat rail of cast iron with an upright ledge on the outer edge to keep wheels on the rail.

2. A rail or narrow shelf along the upper part of a wall to hold plates, etc.

plat'er·er (plāt'ĕr·ĕr), n. One who plates articles. Obs. — plat'er·y (-ĭ), n. Obs.

plat'er·esque' (plăt'ĕr·ĕsk'), adj. [Sp. plateresco, fr. platero silversmith, fr. plata silver.] Arch. Resembling silver plate; — said of the early Renaissance architecture of Spain, with reference to its rich ornamentation.

plate'-roll' (plāt'rōl'), v. t.; -ROLLED' (-rōld'); -ROLL'ING To press or glaze (paper) in a plate calender.

plate ship. A treasure ship, esp. one of the Spanish treasure ships from America. Hist.

Pla·tae'a (plȧ·tē'ȧ), n. See BATTLE, Table.

Plat'a·nis'ta (plăt'ȧ·nĭs'tȧ), n. [NL.] Zool. Type genus of Platanistidae.

Plat'a·nis'ti·dae (-tĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL.] Zool. Syn. of SUSUIDAE.

plate'band'. Var. of PLATBAND.

plate'ful (plāt'fŏŏl), n.; pl. -FULS (-fŏŏlz). See -FUL, 2.

plate glass insurance. See INSURANCE, n., 1.

plate'less, adj. See -LESS.

plate'like', adj. See -LIKE.

plat'el·min'thes (-mĭn'thēz), plat'el·min'th (plăt'ĕl·mĭnth), etc. Vars. of PLATYHELMINTH, PLATYHELMINTHES, etc.

plate system. Mech. Refrig. See ICE MAKING. plate tower. Chem. Tech. A tower or column packed with plates, esp. of stoneware. See 1st TOWER, 6; GLOVER TOWER. plate tracery. See TRACERY.
plate tumbler. = SLIDING TUMBLER.
plate valve. Mach. An automatic valve in which a lightweight thin disk, strip, or ribbon, is constrained to move between the valve seat and valve cover, according to variations in fluid pressure on its sides.
plate vein. A horse's cephalic vein. Obs.
plate voltage. Elec. The voltage of a B battery. plate'way' (plāt'wā'), n. A railway having plate rails.
plate wheel. Mech. A wheel the rim and hub of which are connected by a continuous plate of metal. plate'work' (plāt'wŭrk'), n. Plated work. — plate'work'er (-wŭr'kĕr), n. Rare.
plat'-eye' (plăt'ī'), n. In the West Indies and among American Negroes, a spook or evil spirit with fiery eyes. plat'-foot'ed (66), adj. [See PLAT, adj.] Flat-footed; shambling. Dial.
plat'form' (plăt'fôrm'), n. [F. plateforme. See PLAT, adj.; FORM.] 1. Obs. a Geom. A plane surface or figure; any surface. b A plan; map; ground plan; chart; hence, a pattern; design; outline; scheme of action.
2. A plan of ecclesiastical or religious polity or principles; as, the Cambridge platform.
3. The site or area of a building or the like. Obs. Figuratively: a Rare. Ground, foundation, or basis of anything. b A plane, as of conduct, thought, discussion, etc.
4. A horizontal and generally flat surface, usually higher, and rarely lower, than the adjoining ground or floor; as, a streetcar platform; the platform of a depot; a gun platform; an elevated ledge or shelf of a machine, as for reception of material esp., a raised flooring, stage, or dais, in a hall or the like, on which speakers, performers, etc., sit or stand.
5. Figuratively: a Public speaking; public addresses collectively. b Eng. The supporters of a movement who sit on the platform at a meeting in its support.
6. A place for the public discussion of questions and principes; a lecture forum; a lyceum; also, the public discussion of questions and principles.
7. A declaration of the principles on which a group of persons or a party stand and on which they appeal for support; esp., a declaration of principles and policies of government adopted by a political party. Also, such a declaration by an individual.
8. Mountaineering. A small level place on steep rocks.
9. Naut. A light partial deck next below the orlop or, when there is no orlop, the berth deck. There may be several platforms forward and aft, called upper and lower. See also DECK.
10. Phys.Geog. a A continental plateau. b A continental shelf. plat'form' (plăt'fôrm'), v. Transitive: 1. To formulate; to outline. Obs.
2. To furnish with a platform.
3. To place on or as on a platform.
——, Intransitive: To speak from or as from a platform.
plat'form', adj. Of or pertaining to a platform, esp. a lecture platform; as, a platform speaker.
plat'form'al-ly (-fôr'măl-ĭ), adv. As one platforming. platform balance. A platform scale.
platform car. Railroads. A car without permanent raised sides or covering; a flat car.
platform carriage. A low-hung four-wheeled truck for transporting heavy material, guns, etc.
platform deck. = PLATFORM, n., 9. plat'formed' (plăt'fôrmd'), adj. Furnished with, or formed as, a platform; level on top.
platform elevator. = ELEVATOR, n., 1 b. plat'form'er (-fôr'mĕr), n. 1. A schemer. Obs.
2. A platform speaker.
platform frame. A light timber frame for buildings in which a platform is constructed at each floor and the studs for the next floor are erected on this platform. Cf. BALLOON FRAME.
platform harvester. A corn-harvesting machine having a sled platform or a wheel-mounted platform which carries knives to cut the cornstalks.
plat'form'ist (plăt'fôr'mĭst), n. A platform speaker. — plat'form-is'tic (-fôr-mĭs'tĭk), adj.
platform scale. A weighing machine with a flat platform on which objects are weighed. See 1st SCALE, 2. platform spring. In automotive vehicles, a suspension consisting of two longitudinal half-elliptic springs pivoted or shackled to the frame at the forward end, and one transverse inverted half-elliptic spring attached to the rear of the two longitudinals by double shackles or crosses.
platform wagon. A platform carriage.
plat'ic (plăt'ĭk), adj. [LL. platicus general, summary, fr. Gr. platykos broad.] Astrol. Not exact; imperfect; — said of the conjunction or aspect of two planets when not within a degree, but within half the sum of the "orbs" of the two planets. — plat'ic-ly, adv.
plat'ie (plăt'ĭ), n. A little plate. Scot.
pla·til'la (plȧ-tĭl'ȧ), n. [Sp.] A kind of Silesian white linen. plat'i·na (plăt'ĭ-nȧ; plȧ-tē'nȧ), n. [Sp. or NL. See PLATINUM.] Chem. Platinum, esp. crude native platinum. plat'in·am'mine (plăt'ĭn-ăm'ēn; -ȧ-mēn'; 157), n. Also plat'in·am'ine, -am'min, -am'in. [platinum + ammonia + -ine.] Chem. A platinum ammine; specif., one derived from a platinic salt. See PLATINUM AMMINE. plat'i·nate (plăt'ĭ-nāt), n. Chem. A salt of platinic acid.
plat'i·nate (plăt'ĭ-nāt), v. t. To platinize. platina yellow. The color gold pheasant. plat'ine (plăt'ĭn), n. [F.] In an old form of loom, a piece of lead used to counterbalance the treadle. Obs.
Plat'ine (plăt'ĭn), adj. Bordering upon the River Plate (Argentina and Uruguay) or upon its chief tributaries (Paraguay). plat'ing (plăt'ĭng), n. 1. The art or process or an instance of covering anything with a plate or plates, esp. with a coating of metal.
2. Preparation of metal plates, esp. for use in erecting boilers, plate-girder work, etc.
3. A coating of metal plates; specif., defensive armor of metal (usually steel) plates.
4. A thin coating of metal laid on another metal.
5. In decorative windows, the practice of getting a color not obtainable in one piece of glass, by superimposing one piece upon another by the application of heat. Also, the secondary piece itself.
6. Bacteriol. The process of inoculating and growing organisms upon plates.
7. Horse Racing. a Act of shoeing a horse with plates. b Eng. Racing for plates. See PLATE, n., 24.
8. Shipbuilding. The plates forming the hull, the decks, and bulkheads of a ship.
9. Textiles. Giving a yarn or a fabric an outer surface of material, as silk, of finer quality than the core or inner material, as cotton; also, the outer surface so made.
plating number. See LLOYD'S NUMBERS. plat'i·ni- (plăt'ĭ-nĭ-). A combining form for platinum, as in plat'i·nif'er·ous (see -FEROUS); specif., Chem., platinic.
pla·tin'ic (plȧ-tĭn'ĭk), adj. Chem. Of, pertaining to, or containing, platinum; specif., designating those compounds in which the element has a higher valence. Cf. PLATINOUS. platinic acid. Platinic hydroxide, $Pt(OH)_4$ or $H_2Pt(OH)_6$, acting as a weak acid. It is obtained as yellowish-white precipitate which dissolves in excess of caustic alkalies, forming platinates.
plat'i·ni·chlo'ride (plăt'ĭ-nĭ-klō'rīd; -rĭd; 157), n. Also -rid. A chloroplatinite. plat'in·i·rid'i·um (plăt'ĭn-ĭ-rĭd'ĭ-ŭm), n. A natural alloy of iridium with platinum and other allied metals, occurring in silver-white or grayish metallic grains. Sp. gr., 22.6–22.8. plat'i·nize (plăt'ĭ-nīz), v. t.; -NIZED (-nīzd); -NIZ'ING (-nīz'ĭng). To cover, treat, or combine with platinum; specif., Electroplating: a To deposit platinum upon by simple immersion. b To coat with platinum black by electrodeposition or by chemical precipitation. — plat'i·ni·za'tion (-nĭ-zā'shŭn; -nī-zā'shŭn), n.
plat'i·no- (plăt'ĭ-nō-), platin-. A combining form for platinum, as in *platino*type, *platin*iridium; specif., Chem., platinous.
plat'i·no·chlo'ride (-klō'rīd; -rĭd; 157), n. Also -rid. A chloroplatinite.
plat'i·noid (plăt'ĭ·noid), adj. [platin- + -oid.] Resembling platinum. — n. a An alloy chiefly of copper, nickel, and zinc, used for forming electrical resistance coils and standards. b Any metal allied to platinum.
plat'i·no·type' (plăt'ĭ-nō-tīp'), n. [platino- + -type.] Photog. A permanent print in platinum black obtained by the use of a platinum salt in the sensitizing solution or developer; also, the process of making such pictures.
plat'i·nous (plăt'ĭ-nŭs), adj. Chem. Of, pertaining to, or containing, platinum; specif., designating compounds in which the element has a lower valence. Cf. PLATINIC. plat'i·num (plăt'ĭ-nŭm), n. [NL., fr. earlier platina, fr. Sp. platina, fr. plata silver, orig., a thin plate of metal. See PLATE; cf. PLATINA.] 1. A very heavy, typically grayish-white, noncorroding, precious metallic element; — formerly called also platina. Symbol, Pt; at. no., 78; at. wt., 195.23; sp. gr., 21.45. Most of the world's platinum is found in the Ural mountains and Colombia, as grains and nuggets in alluvial material. It is malleable and ductile but fusible with difficulty (melts at 1755°C., 3191°F.), resists the action of most chemical reagents (though it dissolves slowly in aqua regia), expands only slightly when heated and has a relatively high electric resistance. It is used for certain chemical apparatus (as crucibles, dishes, foil, wire), and as a catalyst, for dental fillings, for spark points, etc., and (since its price rose above that of gold) for jewelry. See also PLATINUM BLACK. Native platinum is alloyed with iron, copper, iridium, osmium, etc.; the principal native compound is the arsenide, sperrylite. Chemically, platinum is chiefly bivalent (platinous compounds) and quadrivalent (platinic compounds).
2. A nearly neutral gray, slightly bluish, of medium brilliance. Cf. COLOR.
plat'i·num, adj. Pertaining to or made of platinum; of the color platinum. platinum ammine. Chem. Any of a large number of complex compounds of platinum containing ammonia. There are two series: those derived from a platinous salt, as $[Pt(NH_3)_4]Cl_2$, and those derived from a platinic salt, as $[Pt(NH_3)_4]Cl_4$. platinum black. Chem. A soft, dull-black powder of metallic platinum obtained by reduction and precipitation from solutions of its salts. It is more active than platinum sponge, occluding over 800 times its volume of oxygen, and is used as a catalyst.
platinum gray. = PLATINUM, n., 2. platinum lamp. a A kind of incandescent electric lamp having a platinum filament. b An aphlogistic lamp. c Döbereiner's lamp.
platinum metals. Chem. The group of metallic elements which in their chemical and physical properties resemble platinum. These are the light platinum group, viz., rhodium, ruthenium, and palladium, whose specific gravities are about 12, and the heavy platinum group, viz., osmium, iridium, and platinum, whose specific gravities are over 21.
platinum paper. Photog. Photographic paper sensitized with a solution of potassium chloroplatinite and ferric oxalate.
platinum process. Photog. The platinotype process. platinum sponge. Chem. Metallic platinum in a gray, porous, spongy form, obtained by reducing ammonium chloroplatinate. It occludes (see OCCLUDE, 3) oxygen, hydrogen, and certain other gases, to a high degree, and is employed as a catalyst. platinum thermometer. See THERMOMETER.
plat'i·tude (plăt'ĭ-tūd), n. [F. (after altitude, rectitude, etc.), fr. plat flat. See PLAT, adj.] 1. Quality or state of being dull or insipid; triteness; commonplaceness; staleness of ideas or language.
2. A thought or remark which is flat, dull, trite, or weak; a dull, stale, or insipid truism; a commonplace.
Syn. — See COMMONPLACE. plat'i·tu'di·nal (plăt'ĭ-tū'dĭ-năl; -n'l), adj. Platitudinous. Rare.
plat'i·tu'di·nar'i·an (-tū'dĭ-nâr'ĭ-ăn; 79), adj. Characterized by or addicted to platitude. — n. One given to platitudes. — plat'i·tu'di·nar'i·an·ism (-ĭz'm), n.
plat'i·tu'di·nism (-tū'dĭ-nĭz'm), n. Utterance of platitudes.
plat'i·tu'di·nist (-nĭst), n. A platitudinarian. plat'i·tu'di·nize (-tū'dĭ-nīz), v. i.; -NIZED (-nīzd); -NIZ'ING (-nīz'ĭng). To utter platitudes. — plat'i·tu'di·ni·za'tion (-nĭ-zā'shŭn; -nī-zā'-), n. — plat'i·tu'di·niz'er (-tū'dĭ-nīz'ĕr), n.
plat'i·tu'di·nous (plăt'ĭ-tū'dĭ-nŭs), adj. Of the nature of a platitude; abounding in platitudes. "Platitudinous moralizings." Aldous Huxley. — plat'i·tu'di·nous·ly, adv. — plat'i·tu'di·nous·ness, n.
plat'oid (plăt'oid), adj. [platy- + -oid.] Zool. Broad and flat; resembling a flatworm.
Pla·to'ni·an (plȧ-tō'nĭ-ăn; plā-; 159), n. Platonist. Rare.
Pla·ton'ic (plȧ-tŏn'ĭk; plā-), adj. [L. Platonicus, fr. Gr. Platōnikos; cf. F. platonique.] 1. Of or pertaining to Plato, or his philosophy, school, or opinions.
2. [often not cap.] Experiencing or professing Platonic love.
3. [not cap.] Divested of substantiality; theoretical; nominal. Cf. PICKWICKIAN SENSE.

If the majority has only a platonic belief in it, the law will break down. Walter Lippmann.

Pla·ton'ic, n. 1. A follower of Plato; a Platonist.
2. [often not cap.] One who loves with a Platonic love.
3. [often not cap.] Emotion or behavior of a Platonic lover; — usually used in the plural.
Pla·ton'i·cal (plȧ-tŏn'ĭ-kăl; plā-), adj. Platonic.
Pla·ton'i·cal·ly (-ĭ-kăl-ĭ), adv. of PLATONIC, PLATONICAL.
Platonic bodies or solids. Geom. The five regular geometrical solids; namely, the simple tetrahedron, hexahedron or cube, octahedron, dodecahedron, and icosahedron.
Platonic love. a Love, according to Plato, conceived as an urge to union with the beautiful, ascending from passion for the individual to ecstasy in contemplation of the universal and ideal. b Originally among late Renaissance writers, a spiritual comradeship or love, in which there is no element of sexual desire, esp. between persons of opposite sex.
Platonic period. The period of complete revolution of the equinoctial points by precession. = PLATONIC YEAR.
Platonic solids. = PLATONIC BODIES.
Platonic year. Astron. The cycle of about 26,000 years in which a complete revolution of the equinoctial points is accomplished. See PRECESSION OF THE EQUINOXES.
Pla'to·nism (plā'tō-nĭz'm), n. 1. The philosophy of Plato (427–347 B.C.), pupil of Socrates and teacher of Aristotle, founder of the Academy, universally regarded as one of the greatest philosophers of all time. The Dialogues of Plato present not a unified system of philosophy but a series of developments, probably representing the progress of Plato's thought. His most famous doctrines may be summarized as follows: I. The theory of ideas or forms. The true or ultimate reality consists of transcendent universals, corresponding to perfect concepts such as may be exemplified in mathematics. These perfect, eternal realities are the objects of true knowledge. Our apprehension of them, though we are stimulated to it by sense perception, is like a reminiscence which the soul recovers of its own powers. The idea of the good, or the ideas of the good, the beautiful, and the true, are in some sense the highest. II. The things of sense are not completely real; they participate in the ideas and are like shadows of them or an admixture with these true realities of an element of nonbeing (matter). Such phenomena are objects of opinion or probable knowledge rather than of true rational insight. III. The soul of man is tripartite, including the soul of the appetitive functions, the soul of spirit or the higher feelings, and the soul of intellect or reason. The kinship of the highest or rational soul to the ideas evidences its immortality. IV. The right life is one which is directed by reason, but in which the necessary appetitive functions are performed with pleasure. Such pleasures of the body, however, are subordinated to pleasures of the mind and particularly to contemplation of that beauty and perfection represented by the ideas, to which the rational soul is akin. V. The ideal state (the "Republic") would be an aristocracy, with three castes, artisans, soldiers, and (the highest, not hereditary), philosopher-rulers. The life prescribed for the ruling caste is monastic to a high degree, and communistic.
2. The philosophic tradition established by Plato and extending, through the Academy, to the Alexandrian School and Plotinus; also, later revivals of such philosophic conceptions as during the Renaissance in Florence, or in the 17th century in Cambridge University.
3. A tenet of Platonic philosophy; a saying of Plato or one resembling his; also, loosely, any expression of idealism; as, Platonism in the poetry of Shelley.
4. The doctrine or practice of Platonic love.
Pla'to·nist (plā'tō-nĭst), n. One who adheres to the philosophy of Plato; a follower of Plato, or of the Platonic tradition.
Pla'to·nist, adj. Platonistic.
Pla'to·nis'tic (-nĭs'tĭk), adj. Characteristic of, or pertaining to, Plato, Platonists, or Platonism.
Pla'to·nize (plā'tō-nīz), v. i. To adopt, imitate, or conform to, Platonic opinions, reasoning, or philosophy. — v. t. To adapt or explain in accordance with Platonic doctrines; to idealize. — Pla'to·ni·za'tion (plā'tō-nĭ-zā'shŭn; -nī-zā'shŭn), n. — Pla'to·niz'er (plā'tō-nīz'ĕr), n.
Pla·tonne' (plȧ-tŏn'), n. [In imitation of F. feminines in -onne; cf. F. Platon Plato.] A woman Platonic lover. Obs.
pla·toon' (plȧ-tōōn'), n. [F. peloton a ball of thread, a group of men, a platoon, fr. pelote, a ball of things wound round. See PELLET; cf. COMPLOT.] 1. Mil. a Obs. exc. Hist. A body of men firing together; also, a small body of soldiers drawn up in a hollow square to strengthen the angles of a formation. b A subdivision of a military tactical unit such as a company, troop, field battery, etc., consisting of a headquarters unit and two or more subunits, usually sections, but sometimes squads. It is normally commanded by a lieutenant.
2. A company of people; a squad; a set; a coterie.
3. A volley.
4. A subdivision of police. See PLATOON SYSTEM.
5. One of the divisions of a platoon school.
platoon school. A departmentalized school in which the pupils of each grade are organized into divisions (platoons) which take turns in using the classrooms, shops, auditorium, gymnasium, and other physical resources of the school plant; — frequently called Gary school, because of its origin in Gary, Indiana.
platoon system. A system of assignment of divisions of the police of a large city to duty at stated times so that the city is equally policed at all hours.
pla·top'ic (plȧ-tŏp'ĭk; plā-tō'pĭk), adj. = PLATYOPIC. pla·to'sam·mine (plȧ-tō'sȧ-mēn; -mĭn; plā-tō'sȧ-mēn'; 157), n. Also pla·to'sa·mine, -sam·min, -sa·min. [platos- + ammonia + -ine.] Chem. A platinum ammine derived from a platinous salt. See PLATINUM AMMINE.

plat'e·trope (plăt'ē-trōp), plat'e·tro'py (-trō'pĭ). Var. of PLATYTROPE, -TROPY. [GIRDER.] plate'-web' gird'er. = PLATE plat'formd'. Platformed. Ref. Sp. plat'form'ish, adj. See -ISH. plat'form·ism, n. See -ISM. plat'form'less, adj. See -LESS. plat'form'y, adj. See -Y. plat'in. Var. of PLATEN. platin-. = PLATINO-. plat'i·ni·chlo'ric (plăt'ĭ-nĭ-klō'rĭk; 181), adj. = CHLOROPLATINIC. plat'i·nide. Var. of PLATINIZE. plat'i·nite, n. Mineral. = PLATYNITE. plat'i·no·chlo'ric (plăt'ĭ-nō-klō'rĭk; 181), adj. = CHLOROPLATINOUS. [= CYANOPLATINOUS. plat'i·no·cy·an'ic (-sĭ-ăn'ĭk), adj.
plat'i·no·cy'a·nide (-sī'ȧ-nīd; -nĭd; 157), n. Also -nid. = CYANOPLATINITE. plat'i·no'so-. See PLATOSO-. plat'i·num·smith', n. See -SMITH. plat'i·pus. Platypus. Ref. Sp. plat'i·rhin. Platyrrhine. Ref. Sp. plat'ly, adv. Flatly; plainly; simply; directly. Obs. plato-. = PLATOSO-.
Pla·to'da (plȧ-tō'dȧ), Pla·to'des (-dēz), n. pl. [NL., fr. Gr. platys flat + eidos form.] Syns. of PLATYHELMINTHES. — plat'ode (plăt'ōd), adj. & n.
Pla'to·nesque', adj. See -ESQUE.
Pla·ton'i·cal·ness, n. See -NESS.
Pla'to·ni'cian (plăt'ō-nĭsh'ăn), n. = PLATONIST, n. Rare.
Pla·ton'i·cism (plȧ-tŏn'ĭ-sĭz'm), n. = PLATONISM, 3. Rare.

pla·to'so- (plā·tō'sō-), platos-. Chem. A combining form, short for platinoso- meaning platinous, used to denote the presence of, or derivation from, platinous platinum.

Platt Amendment (plăt). [After Orville H. Platt, sen. fr. Conn.] U. S. Hist. The basis of the American protectorate over Cuba. It was passed Feb. 27, 1901, in the Senate as an amendment to the Army Appropriation Bill and required Cuba (1) to enter into no foreign agreements contrary to the interests of the United States, (2) to contract no debt the interest upon which could not be paid by the revenues of the island, (3) to cede lands for United States naval stations, (4) to maintain sanitary conditions in ports, and (5) to grant to the United States the right to intervene, if necessary to keep order.

Platt'deutsch' (plăt'doich'), n. [G., fr. platt flat (cf. PLAT flat) + deutsch German.] The language of North Germany, a Low German tongue now spoken chiefly by the less educated classes. It comprises a number of dialects, and until about the middle of the 17th century was cultivated as a literary language. See LOW GERMAN; INDO-EUROPEAN LANGUAGES, Table. Cf. SAXON.

plat'ted (plăt'ĕd; -Id; 119), adj. Plaited.

plat'ten (plăt'n), v. t. [From PLAT, adj.] Glass Mfg. To flatten and make into sheets or plates.

plat'ten, n. Glass Mfg. A flat cake of well-rammed clay on which the glass is placed in the plate oven.

plat'ten. Var. of PLATEN.

plat'ter (plăt'ĕr), n. [ME. & AF. plater, fr. OF. plat. See PLATE, 6.] A large plate or dish for serving meat, etc.

plat'ter (-ĕr), n. One who plats or braids; a plaiter.

plat'ter-face' (plăt'ĕr-fās'), n. A broad, flat face. — plat'ter-faced' (-fāst'), adj.

plat'ting (-Ing), n. 1. Act of one who plats or braids; also, plaiting; that which is plaited.

2. Plaited strips of bark, cane, straw, etc., as for hats.

platt'ner·ite (plăt'nĕr-īt), n. [After K. F. Plattner, Ger. mineralogist.] Mineral. Native lead dioxide, PbO_2, usually in iron-black masses of submetallic luster.

Platt'ner proc'ess (plăt'nĕr). [See PLATTNERITE.] Metal. A process for extraction of gold from ores, etc., by chlorination, solution, and precipitation.

Platts'burg Camp (plăts'bûrg). Mil. Any of the series of officers' training camps established at Plattsburg, N. Y., shortly before the entry of the United States into the World War; also, a similar camp elsewhere.

plat'ty (plăt'I), adj. [Cf. PLAT of ground.] Growing unevenly; — said of crops; capricious. Dial. Eng.

pla·tu'rous (plā·tū'rŭs), adj. [platy- + Gr. oura tail.] Zool. Having a flat tail.

plat'y (plăt'I), adj. Like a plate; consisting of plates; flaky. Obs. exc. Petrog.

plat'y- (plăt'I-), plat-. [See PLAT, adj.] A combining form, Greek platy-, plat-, from platys, meaning broad, wide, flat, as in platypus, platycephalous.

☞ The meanings of the following can be understood from the definitions of their elements.

platybasic	platydolichocephalous	platynotal platybrachycephalic	platyglossal	platyodont platybrachycephalous	platyglossate	platypetalous platybregmatic	platyglossia	platyphyllous platycarpous	platyhieric	platypygous platycheiria	platylobate	platyrhynchous platycnemia	platymesaticephalic	platysternal platycnemic	platymesocephalic	platystomous platydolichocephalic

Plat'y·car'pus (plăt'I-kär'pŭs), n. [NL., fr. platy- + -carpus.] Paleontol. A genus of Cretaceous aquatic reptiles similar to Mosasaurus, but with five instead of four toes on the hind limbs. Skeletons 20 feet long have been found in Kansas. Syn. Lestosaurus.

Plat'y·ca'ry·a (-kā'rI·ä; -kăr'I·ä), n. [NL. See PLATY-; CARYO-.] Bot. A small genus of Asiatic trees of the walnut family (Juglandaceae) with alternate, pinnate leaves, small monoecious flowers in catkins, followed by a small winged nut.

plat'y·ce'lous, plat'y·coe'lous (-sē'lŭs), adj. Also plat'y·ce'li·an, plat'y·coe'li·an (-sē'lI·ăn). [See PLATY-; -COELOUS.] Of vertebrae, flat or concave ventrally and convex dorsally. Cf. OPISTHOCOELOUS.

Plat'y·ce·phal'i·dae (-sē·făl'I·dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. platy- + Gr. kephalē head.] Zool. A family of sculpinlike mailcheeked fishes. Plat'y·ceph'a·lus (-sĕf'ä·lŭs) is the chief genus. See FLATHEAD, n., 2 b.

plat'y·ceph'a·loid (-sĕf'ä·loid), adj. [See -OID.] Craniol. Tending toward platycephaly. — n. A platycephaloid individual.

Plat'y·ceph'a·lus (-lŭs), n. [NL.] 1. Zool. See PLATYCEPHALIDAE.

2. [not cap.] Craniol. A platycephalic individual.

plat'y·ceph'a·ly (-sĕf'ä·lI), n. [platy- + Gr. kephalē head.] Craniol. Flatness of the crown of the head due to synostosis of a temporal with the parietal bones. Cf. CLINOCEPHALY. — plat'y·ce·phal'ic (-sē·făl'Ik), adj. — plat'y·ceph'a·lism (-sĕf'ä·lIz'm), n. — plat'y·ceph'a·lous (-lŭs), adj.

Plat'y·cer·ci'nae (-sûr·sī'nē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Gr. platykerkos flat-tailed.] Zool. A large subfamily of parakeets, chiefly of Australia, New Zealand, and adjacent islands. The type genus is Plat'y·cer'cus (-sûr'kŭs), including the rosella and others. — plat'y·cer'cine (-sĭn; -sīn), adj.

Plat'y·ce'ri·um (-sē'rI·ŭm), n. [NL., fr. platy- + Gr. kērion honeycomb.] Bot. A genus of tropical Old World ferns (family Polypodiaceae) chiefly epiphytic, with large, flat, curiously lobed fronds often resembling the antlers of a stag, whence they are called staghorn, or elkhorn ferns.

Plat'y·co'don (-kō'dŏn), n. [NL., fr. platy- + Gr. kōdōn bell.] Bot. a A genus of handsome perennial herbs of the bellflower family (Campanulaceae), having as the only known species P. grandiflorum, the balloonflower. b [not cap.] A plant or flower of this genus.

plat'y·co'ri·a (-kō'rI·ä; 181), n. [NL., fr. platy- + Gr. korē pupil.] Med. Abnormal dilatation of the pupil of the eye.

plat'y·cra'ni·a (-krā'nI·ä), n. [NL., fr. platy- + -crania.] The condition of a skull caused by artificial flattening. See HEAD-FLATTENING, Illust. — plat'y·cra'ni·al (-äl), adj.

Plat'yc·te'ne·a (plăt'Ik·tē'nē·ä), n. pl. [NL. See PLATY-; CTENO-.] Zool. An order of ctenophores (Tentaculata), in which the body is much flattened, giving distinct dorsal and ventral surfaces. It contains the genus Ctenoplana (which see).

plat'y·dac'tyl, plat'y·dac'tyle (plăt'I·dăk'tĭl), adj. Also plat'y·dac'ty·lous (-tĭ·lŭs). [platy- + Gr. daktylos finger, toe.] Zool. Having flat digits; — said esp. of lizards and frogs having suckerlike adhesive tips to the toes.

plat'y·fish' (plăt'I·fĭsh'), n. The moonfish Platypoecilus maculatus.

Plat'y·hel·min'thes (plăt'I·hĕl·mĭn'thēz), n. pl. [NL., fr. platy- + Gr. helmins, helminthos, worm.] Zool. A phylum of soft-bodied, bilaterally symmetrical, usually much flattened worms comprising the planarians, flukes, tapeworms, etc., and usually also the nemerteans; the flatworms. They may be unsegmented, or composed of a series of proglottides formed by strobilation. The body is built up of ectoderm, endoderm, and mesoderm, but a body cavity is wanting, the space between the body wall and the various organs being filled up with parenchyma. The excretory system is typically a system of tubules permeating the body and usually communicating with the exterior, which end in flame cells. A part of the ovary is often modified into a vitellarium. — plat'y·hel'minth (-hĕl'mĭnth), n. — plat'y·hel·min'thic (-hĕl·mĭn'thĭk), adj.

plat'y·me'ri·a (-mē'rI·ä), n. Also pla·tym'er·y (plā·tĭm'ĕr·I). [NL. See PLATY-; -MERIC.] Anat. The condition of having an unusually broad femur. — plat'y·mer'ic (-mĕr'Ik), adj.

pla·tym'e·ter (plā·tĭm'ē·tĕr), n. [platy- + -meter.] Elec. An apparatus for measuring the capacity of condensers, or the inductive capacity of dielectrics.

plat'y·my'oid (plăt'I·mī'oid), adj. [platy- + myoid.] Anat. Designating muscle cells whose contractile stratum presents an even surface.

plat'y·nite (plăt'I·nīt), n. [Gr. platynein to widen, flatten.] Mineral. A lead sulpho-selenobismuthite, $PbS.Bi_2Se_3$, occurring in thin, iron-black metallic plates.

plat'y·op'ic (plăt'I·ŏp'Ik; -ō'pĭk), adj. [platy- + Gr. ōps, ōpos, face.] See ORBITONASAL INDEX. — plat'y·ope (plăt'I·ōp), n. — plat'y·o'pi·a (-ō'pI·ä), n.

plat'y·pel'lic (-pĕl'Ik), adj. [platy- + Gr. pella a wooden bowl (but taken to mean, pelvis).] Anat. Having a broad pelvis. See PELVIC INDEX.

plat'y·pod (plăt'I·pŏd), adj. [platy- + -pod.] Zool. Broad-footed.

Pla·typ'o·da (plā·tĭp'ō·dä), n. pl. [NL.] Zool. A group of mollusks forming the major division of the suborder Taenioglossa, having the foot adapted for creeping; — opposed to Heteropoda. — pla·typ'o·dous (-dŭs), adj.

plat'y·po'di·a (plăt'I·pō'dI·ä), n. [NL., fr. platy- + -podia.] Med. Flat-footedness.

Pla·typ'ter·a (plā·tĭp'tĕr·ä), n. pl. [NL., fr. platy- + -ptera.] Zool. Formerly, an order of insects including the termites, bird lice (Mallophaga), and allied forms, now placed in several orders.

plat'y·pus (plăt'I·pŭs), n.; pl. -PUSES (-pŭs·ĕz; -Iz; 119), -PI (-pī). [NL., fr. platy- + Gr. pous foot.] The duckbill.

Plat'yr·rhi'na (plăt'I·rI'nä), n. pl. [NL., fr. platy- + Gr. rhis, rhinos, nose.] Zool. A division of monkeys, the American as distinguished from the Old World apes and monkeys. They have a broad nasal septum, usually thirty-six teeth, and often a prehensile tail. Opposed to Catarrhina.

plat'yr·rhine (plăt'I·rīn; -rĭn; 156), adj. a Anthropom. = PLATYRRHINIAN. b Zool. Of or pertaining to the Platyrrhina. — n. A platyrrhine person or animal.

plat'yr·rhin'i·an (plăt'I·rĭn'I·ăn), adj. [platy- + Gr. rhis, rhinos, nose.] Having a short broad nose or a high nasal index; of a human skull, having a nasal index exceeding 51. — n. A platyrrhinian person. — plat'yr·rhin (plăt'I·rĭn), n. — plat'yr·rhin·ism (-Iz'm), plat'yr·rhi'ny (-rī'nI), n.

pla·tys'ma (plā·tĭz'mä), n.; pl. -MATA (-mä·tä). [NL., fr. Gr. platysma flat piece.] Anat. A broad, thin layer of muscle on each side of the neck immediately under the superficial fascia, belonging to the group of facial muscles and innervated by the facial nerve; — called also ‖pla·tys'ma my·oi'des (mī·oi'dēz).

Plat'y·som'i·dae (plăt'I·sŏm'I·dē; -sō'mI·dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Gr. platysōmos broad-bodied, fr. platys + sōma body.] Paleontol. A family of Carboniferous and Permian ganoids having a deep compressed body covered with rhombic scales joined by peg-and-socket joints. The type genus is Plat'y·so'mus (-sō'mŭs). — plat'y·so'mid (-mĭd), adj. & n.

plat'y·staph'y·line (plăt'I·stăf'I·lĭn; -līn), adj. [See PLATY-; STAPHYLION; 1st -INE, 1.] Anat. Characterized by a broad, flat palate.

Plat'y·st'mon (plăt'I·stĕ'mŏn), n. [NL., fr. platy- + Gr. stēmōn warp. See STAMEN.] Bot. A Californian genus of small annual herbs of the poppy family (Papaveraceae), with linear leaves and pale-yellow flowers.

plat'ys·ten·ceph'a·ly (plăt'Is·tĕn·sĕf'ä·lI), n. [Gr. platystatos widest + enkephalos brain.] Craniol. A form of dolichocephalism characterized by a wide pentagonal occiput associated with a prognathous jaw, as found in some South African natives. — plat'ys·ten'ce·phal'ic (-tĕn'sē·făl'Ik), adj.

Plat'y·ster'ni·dae (plăt'I·stûr'nI·dē), n. pl. [NL. See PLATY-; STERN-; -IDAE.] Zool. A family of Asiatic freshwater turtles (suborder Cryptodira) comprising one species (Platysternon megacephalum) with a relatively huge head.

Plat'y·stom'i·dae (-stŏm'I·dē; -stō'mI·dē), n. pl. [NL. See PLATY-; STOM-; -IDAE.] Zool. A family of snout beetles with short beak, trapezoidal prothorax and flexible palpi. Syn. Anthribidae.

plat'y·trope (plăt'I·trōp), n. [platy- + -trope.] Biol. One of a pair of symmetrical bilateral parts. — plat'y·tro'py (-trō'pI), n.

plau·da'tion (plô·dā'shŭn), n. Plaudit.

plau'dit (plô'dĭt), n. [From L. plaudite (said by players at the end of a performance), 2d pers. pl. imperative of plaudere to applaud. Cf. PLAUSIBLE.] An act of applauding, esp. by clapping the hands; a round of applause; figuratively, approval.

Syn. — Acclamation, encomium, approbation.

Ant. — Odium, condemnation. See OBLOQUY.

plau'dit, v. i. & t. Applaud. Rare.

plau'di·te (plô'dĭ·tē), n. [See PLAUDIT, n.] 1. An appeal for applause; — from the custom of ancient Roman actors of requesting applause by this word.

2. A plaudit. Obs.

plau'di·tor (-tĕr), n. Applauder. Rare.

plau'di·to'ry (plô'dĭ·tō'rI; -tĕr·I), adj. Applausive; laudatory.

plau'en·ite (plou'ĕn·īt), n. [From Plauen, Germany.] Petrog. A syenite rich in plagioclase.

plau'si·bil'i·ty (plô'zĭ·bĭl'I·tI), n.; pl. -TIES (-tIz). Quality or state of being plausible; also, something plausible.

plau'si·ble (plô'zĭ·b'l), adj. [L. plausibilis praiseworthy, fr. plaudere, plausum, to applaud, clap the hands, beat. Cf. EXPLODE.] 1. Obs. a Worthy of being applauded. b Applausive; plauditory; expressing approval.

2. Obtaining approbation or favor; agreeable; affable; obtaining general approval; popular. Now Rare.

3. a Superficially fair, reasonable, or valuable; specious; as, a plausible pretext. b Of persons, apparently trustworthy, or fair; superficially pleasing or persuasive; using specious arguments.

4. Superficially worthy of belief; credible. Colloq.

Syn. — See SPECIOUS. Ant. — Genuine, forthright, honest. — plau'si·ble·ness, n. — plau'si·bly, adv.

plau'si·ble (plô'zĭ·b'l), n. Often pl. That which is plausible; a plausibility.

plau'sive (plô'sIv), adj. [L. plaudere, plausum, to applaud.] 1. Applauding; manifesting praise or approval.

2. a Pleasing; agreeable. Shak. b Rare. Specious.

plaus'tral (plôs'trăl), adj. [L. plaustrum wagon.] Of or pertaining to a wagon or cart. Jocose.

Plau'tine (plô'tĭn; -tīn), adj. [L. Plautinus.] Of, pertaining to, or in the style of, the Roman comic dramatist Plautus (d. 184 B.C.), noted for vivacious broad humor.

Plau'tus (plô'tŭs), n. [NL., fr. L. plautus flat, flat-footed.] Zool. The genus consisting of the great auk, characterized by its reduced wings with flattened bones.

play (plā), v.; PLAYED (plād); PLAY'ING. [ME. pleien, fr. AS. plegian, plegan; akin to AS. plega play, game, quick motion, prob. to MD. pleyen to frolic, and perh. to D. plegen to care for, do, commit, be wont. See PLIGHT a pledge.] Intransitive: 1. a To move swiftly, or erratically; to gambol; to frisk. "The beasts of the field play." Job. xl. 20. b To engage in sport or lively recreation; to amuse or divert oneself; to frolic; also, to deal gently or frivolously; to dally; trifle; toy; to touch lightly; to finger; — often followed by with.

"Nay," quod this monk, "I have no lust to play." Chaucer.

2. To perform on an instrument of music; hence, of the instrument, to work or operate so as to give forth music; of music, to be performed; as, the organ plays.

Play, my friend, and charm the charmer. Granville.

3. To contend, or take part, in a game; as, to play at cards; hence, to gamble; game; as, he played for heavy stakes.

4. To act; to behave; — with a specifying adverb or the like; as, to play fair; to play false, foul, or foully.

5. Of inanimate things, to move, operate, or have effect in a lively or brisk and irregular, intermittent, or alternating manner, as wind, flame, lightning, waves, or iridescence; specif.: to dart or fly to and fro; to flutter, vibrate, or the like.

Even as the waving sedges play with wind. Shak.

6. To act on or as on the stage; to perform.

A lord will hear you play tonight. Shak.

7. a To move or function freely within prescribed limits; as, a piston rod plays within a cylinder; to have free, or full play (see PLAY, n., 8). b To discharge, eject, or fire something, or to be discharged, ejected, or fired, repeatedly or so as to make a stream; as, the fountain plays daily.

8. Of a cockbird, to exhibit itself, as by strutting, etc.

9. To take part or engage in any activity as if in a game; — usually with a negative; as, he wouldn't play. Colloq.

10. Archaic & Dial. a To exercise or contend with weapons, esp. for amusement; to fence; joust; tourney. b To refrain from or discontinue work; to be out of work or idle, as during a strike or lockout; to take a holiday. Cf. PLAY, n., 11. c To boil.

11. Obs. a To exercise or occupy oneself; to have operation or effect; to work. b To dally amorously; to have sexual intercourse. c To make sport or fun; to mock; ridicule; jest.

——, Transitive: 1. a To engage in, or occupy oneself with (a game, contest, or the like); as, to play baseball. b To treat, practice, or deal with by way of amusement, sportive imitation or representation, or without serious purpose; to trifle with; to pretend to engage in; to make believe; to pretend; as, to play schoolkeeping.

2. a To do or execute esp. for amusement, profit, edification, or deception; as, to play a part or a prank.

The part (in a decision) played by conscious choice. George F. Stout.

b To bring about or work, esp., a devastating action or condition; as, to play havoc with.

3. a To act or perform (a play); to represent in mimic action; as, to play a comedy; also, to act in the character or part of; to represent by acting; to represent or act in or as in a play; as, to play King Lear; to play the woman.

Thou canst play the rational if thou wilt. Scott.

b To perform or act the part of in real life; to act or behave like or in the character of; as, to play the man, the fool, the ape; to play truant. c To perform the part of some specified disorganizing, disrupting, or ruinous agency; as, to play hob with one's digestion; to play the deuce, the Old Harry, the mischief with someone or something.

4. a To contend against in a game; also, to use as a contestant in a game. b To risk at play; to wager in a game; to stake; also, to contend in a game for, or to win by such action; also, to wager on; as, to play the races. c Archaic. To carry on, or take part in, by way of contest with weapons, as by fencing or jousting.

5. a To perform or execute (music or a piece of music), as on an instrument or instruments; as, to play a waltz. b To perform music upon; to cause to sound or give forth music; as, to play the flute, organ, or violin.

6. a To perform some action with as an item in the conduct of a game; as: Chess, Checkers, etc., to move (a man); Card Playing, to throw (a card) from one's hand on the table in one's turn; in some ball games, to send (the ball) in some direction or to some place. b To use as if in playing a game; to put in action as a contestant, esp. for one's own ends or benefit.

The sectional interests of North and South were played off against one another in this scramble for spoils. A. T. Hadley.

7. To put in action or motion; to actuate; operate; work; ply; specif.: a To wield or ply briskly, vigorously, or freely; as, to play a weapon or implement. b Obs. To deal with; to treat. c To discharge, fire, set off, or the like, with more or less repeated or continuous effect, or to eject, throw, or force out in such a way; as, to play cannon upon a fort; to play off fireworks; to play a hose; to play a stream of water. d To keep in action, as a hooked fish, as to produce exhaustion or for sport; to give play to. e Colloq. To keep in action or give play to in a specified character or part; — often with for; as, the swindler played him for a fool. f To make to play, or move, act, or operate, briskly, lightly, and irregularly or intermittently; to cause to ripple, flutter, vibrate, change rapidly, etc.

8. To effect, do, drive, etc., by or as by playing; as, to play away one's time; to play oneself into condition.

9. To attend in some action or movement with accompanying music; — with in, out, up, down, etc.; as, to play an audience out.

10. To boil. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng.
11. To amuse or divert (oneself). Obs.
12. Theat. To act or perform in, as, to play the leading dramatic houses; to play a circuit of vaudeville houses.
play a hunch. To act in, or as in, gambling, upon a hunch. Slang.
play around. To trifle; to act lightly; specif., to flirt. Colloq.
play at. a To engage or participate in, as a game.

Cupid and my Campaspe play'd At cards for kisses. Lyly.

b To dally or toy with; trifle at. "Playing at Christianity." J. H. Newman. c To make pretense of; as, to play at being a king.
play a trick on. To deceive or defraud by trickery. play away. To waste; squander; as, he played away his youth; specif., to lose in gambling.
play back. To play over or reproduce, as a newly recorded phonograph disk. play booty. To play so as to victimize or mislead one's opponent; hence, to act falsely. Now Archaic.
play both ends against the middle. To play (as in gambling) on alternative possibilities so as to win something in any event; esp., in political use, to play off opposing interests against each other to one's own ultimate profit. Colloq.
play cases. At faro, to bet only on cards of which only one is left in the dealing box, and therefore cannot lose on a "split." Hence, Colloq., to enter on any wager or undertaking in which a person has an even chance, or is playing safe.
play chuck farthing with. To risk, put in jeopardy, or endanger carelessly or needlessly.
play cricket. Slang. To play the game; to stick to the rules.
play dead. To play possum. See under POSSUM. play down. a To depreciate; to pay little attention to; to neglect; as, to play down a piece of news. Colloq. b At bridge, after leading the top of a weak three-card suit, to play the second-best next time, keeping the lowest until the last.
play down to. To accommodate one's action, discourse, etc., to a lower level, esp. in order to propitiate or curry favor with; as, to play down to the moron vote. Colloq.
play, or play at, ducks and drakes with. See DUCK AND DRAKE. play fair. To deal or act fairly; to conform to the rules of a game.
play false. To deceive or betray. play, or play at, fast and loose. See FAST AND LOOSE. play first, or second, fiddle. To take a leading, or a subordinate, part or position.
play for splits. In bridge, to play to find each adversary with an equal number of a suit.
play gooseberry, play old gooseberry. See old gooseberry, under GOOSEBERRY. play hooky. See HOOKY. play horse with. Slang, U. S. a To take advantage of; to treat contemptuously or as a weakling; to do as one likes with. b To disrupt; disarrange; make a mess of.
play in the hand. Archery. To bend at the grip; — said of a bow. play into a person's hands, or into the hands of (a person). To act, or to manage matters, to a person's advantage or benefit.
play it on one. Slang. To play a trick on one; to take a mean advantage of one.
play off. a To put in exercise; do; perform; practice; as, to play off tricks. b To make a spectacle or butt of. c To pass or palm off. d To feign; to make pretense; to make believe. e Obs. To finish drinking (liquor); to toss off (Shak.); also, to display by imitating; to imitate; to take off. f Colloq., Brit. To lay off (workmen); to lock out. g Sports. To play or complete the playing of (a match or the like) that has been delayed or interrupted; to break (a tie) by means of a play-off; also, to participate in a play-off. play on or upon. To touch lightly; also, to fall upon or be directed to, as a searchlight; to flicker over or upon; as, moonlight plays upon the waters.

The happy winds upon her play'd. Tennyson.

play on. Cricket. To bat (the ball) so that it breaks the wicket. play on, or upon, a word or words. To make a play or plays upon words; to pun. play one's cards. To manage one's means or opportunities; to contrive.
play opposite. Theater. To play a complementary or corresponding part (esp. the leading part of opposite sex). play or pay. Designating a wager in which the backer of a contestant agrees to pay the bet as if lost in case the contestant does not actually enter the contest.
play out. To perform to the end; figuratively, to bring to an end; to finish; to render obsolete or worn out; reflexively, to exhaust oneself; to render oneself superannuated; to come to an end; to wear out; to become ineffective; as, such methods soon play out.
play politics. To practice artful scheming, intrigue, or dishonest management of affairs.
play possum. See under POSSUM. play rex. Obs. a To play pranks (see REX, n. = REAKES). b Also play the rex. To play the master; to domineer. play safe. To play, as a game, cautiously; to play defensively in a game in which one's side is ahead; to be cautious; to act conservatively. Colloq.
play second fiddle. See play first fiddle, above.
play the game. To play according to rule; hence, to play fair; to act honorably; esp., to follow a prescribed course under difficulties. Colloq.
play the jack. To act knavishly. play the market. To speculate on the stock or produce exchanges. Colloq. play the ponies. To bet on horse races. Slang.
play to the gallery or galleries. To act with a view to the applause of the multitude. Colloq.
play to the score. In games, esp. of cards, to shape one's play according to the state of the score.
play truant. To stray away; esp., to stay away from school without permission.
play up. a To play or act courageously and well. b To respond well to an emergency. Colloq. c To give emphasis or prominence to; as, to play up a piece of news or a brand of goods. d To buck or rear; — of horses. e To annoy or tease (one) sportively.
play upon. a Also play on. To make use of; to practice or work upon; impose upon.

He could play on her devotion to the children. Dorothy Canfield Fisher.

b To recur to or dwell upon repeatedly; to harp on.
play up to. To play, or act, as support to; hence, to support; to back up. Slang, orig. Theatrical.
play with. a To play in company with. b To play against. c To treat lightly; as, to play with a subject.
play with edge, or edged, tools. To deal with, handle, or treat carelessly or triflingly, dangerous matters.
play with fire. To engage in a highly dangerous game; to act so as to incur grave danger.

play (plā), n. [AS. plega. See PLAY, v.] 1. a Brisk handling, using, or plying; as, the play of a sword. b Any exercise or series of actions intended for diversion; a particular amusement; a game; a sport.
2. a The representation or exhibition of some action or story on the stage; the performance of a comedy, tragedy, or other dramatic piece; as, he attends every play. b A dramatic composition; a drama; also, sometimes, a pantomime.
3. a Exercise or action intended for amusement or diversion; amusement; diversion; sport; frolic.

John naturally loved rough play. Arbuthnot.
All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy. Proverb.
She is weary of dance and play. Tennyson.

b Fun; sport; jest; as, he said it in play, not in earnest.
4. a Gaming; gambling; as, to lose a fortune in play. b The conduct or carrying on of a game; playing; also, a particular act, maneuver, or point in play; manner or trick of play; turn to play; as, rain interfered with play; your play is to lead trumps.
5. Act, action, or way, method, or manner of acting or proceeding, often with implication of trickiness or the like; dealing; conduct. Obs., except in fair play and foul play.
6. Action; activity; working; operation; movement, literally or figuratively, esp. of mental phenomena; as, play of wit or fancy; to be in full play; to come into, or in, play; to make play. "This universal play of life."

Gamaliel Bradford.

The sturdy arm . . . never stopping play. Browning.

7. Brisk, quick, or nimble motion, or change, alternation, or intermittence, of movement, action, or effect; as, a play (prismatic variation) of colors; a play of light.
8. Freedom, room, or scope for motion or action; liberty of action; space for motion, as of a part of a machine, or the movement in the space.

The joints are let exactly into one another, that they have no play between them. Moxon.

9. The strutting and gesture of a cock bird to attract the hens.
10. Abstinence or freedom from work; state of not working or attending school.
11. Archaic & Dial. a A holiday or period of idleness. b A fair or wake.
12. Obs. a Brisk and vigorous physical action or exercise. b Pleasure; joy; enjoyment; cause or source of pleasure or delight. c Dalliance; disport, as by way of sexual intercourse. d Performance on an instrument of music.

☞ COMBINATIONS AND PHRASES (in sense 2) are:

play acting	playgoing	playmongering
play actor	play-judging, adj.	play-producing, adj.
play actorism	play-loving, adj.	play-reading, adj.
play actress	playmaker	playwoman
playfolk	playmaking	playwriter
playgoer	playmonger	playwriting

Syn. — PLAY, GAME, SPORT, DIVERSION, RECREATION. PLAY, as here compared, is the general term for exercise, whether physical or mental, for the sake of amusement; a GAME is play under the form of a contest, commonly in accordance with fixed rules; SPORT applies esp. to outdoor or athletic games or pastimes; DIVERSION suggests whatever pleasurably distracts the mind from cares or business; RECREATION is diversion for the sake of refreshment or relaxation, esp. after fatigue. Cf. AMUSE.
Ant. — Work, labor, effort, toil.
— in play. a Occupied or employed; in exercise or practice. "I . . . will hold the foe in play." Macaulay. b Sports. In such a condition or position as to be legitimately played; regarded as properly in the game; not dead; — said esp. of the, or a, ball. Specif., Golf, of the ball, being anywhere on or off the course from the time the player makes a stroke on the teeing ground until holed out, except as it may be lifted as provided in the rules. — out of play. a Obs. Out of occupation or office; inactive. b Games. Not in play; dead.
-play (-plā). A combining form of the noun play, as in by-play, horse*play,* sword*play.*
pla'ya (plä'yȧ), n.; pl. PLAYAS (-yȧz). [Sp.] Geol. The flat-floored bottom of an undrained desert basin, becoming at times a shallow lake, which, on evaporation, may leave a deposit of salt or gypsum; a salt pan.
play'a·ble (plā'ȧ·b'l), adj. Capable of, or suitable for, being played or played on. — play'a·bil'i·ty (-bil'ĭ·tĭ), n.
play'-act', v. i. To perform in theatrical productions, esp. for a livelihood; hence, contemptuously, to behave as if acting a theatrical part; to indulge in insincere behavior. Colloq.
play'back' (plā'bȧk'), n. Act or process of playing back or over again.
play'bill' (plā'bĭl'), n. A bill (sense 5) advertising a play, usually announcing the cast.
play'book' (-bo̅o̅k'), n. One or more dramatic compositions in book form; a book of the play.
play'box' (-bŏks'), n. A box to hold toys.
play'boy' (-boi'), n. 1. A boy actor in plays.
2. An epithet of the title character of a drama (1907) by J. M. Synge, The Playboy of the Western World.
3. An irresponsible, sporty young fellow bent upon pleasure seeking. Slang, U. S.
4. A clown; a buffoon; a fool; a tricky, untrustworthy person. Ir.
5. Spoilfive. Jack of trumps. play'bro'ker (-brō'kĕr), n. An agent who acts as middleman between dramatists and managers or actors. play club. Golf. A driver. play'crafts'man (plā'krȧfts'mȧn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). A dramatist; also, a person concerned in the production of plays.
play'day' (-dā'), n. 1. A day of play or diversion; a holiday.
2. Among workmen, esp. miners, a day of enforced idleness through lack of work. Brit.
play debt. A gambling debt. play doctor. One who is called in to revise a play before its final acceptance; — called a play fixer when the revision is less thorough. Colloq.
played (plād), adj. Performed; executed; also, tired out. played out. Performed to the end; finished; also, exhausted; used up.
play'er (plā'ĕr), n. [AS. plegere.] 1. One who or that which plays; specif.: a One who amuses himself; one who occupies himself, or works, without serious aims or for diversion; an idler; a trifler; as, a player at gardening. Shak. b One who plays in, or makes a practice of playing, some (usually specified) game. c A gamester; a gambler. d One who plays on an instrument of music. e One who makes a profession of acting in stage plays; an actor. f A mechanical device for automatically playing a musical instrument; esp., a piano player. See PIANO PLAYER.
2. Obs. a A performer of tricks for others' amusement, as an acrobat or juggler. b A pendant to a horse's bit.
3. Billiards, Croquet, etc. The ball to be played next.
4. Card Playing. In three-handed card games, as skat, the person who plays against the two others.
5. A professional cricketer. Brit. play'er·ess (plā'ĕr·ĕs; -ĭs; 119), n. An actress. player piano. A piano containing a mechanical piano player. See PIANO PLAYER.
Play'ers, The (plā'ĕrz). See PAGLIACCI, I. play'fel'low (plā'fĕl'ō), n. A playmate. play'field' (-fēld'), n. A field for playing in.
play fixer. See PLAY DOCTOR.
play'ful (plā'fo̅o̅l; -fĭ'l), adj. 1. Full of play; sportive.
2. Indulging a sportive fancy; humorous; jocular.
— play'ful·ly, adv. — play'ful·ness, n.
play'ground' (plā'ground'), n. 1. A piece of ground used for recreation, esp. by children under supervision.
2. A locality, as the Riviera, resorted to for recreation. playground ball. A modified form of baseball played out of doors with a soft ball resembling an indoor baseball; also, the ball used in this game.
play'house' (plā'hous'), n. [AS. pleghūs.] 1. A building used for dramatic exhibitions; a theater.
2. A house for children to play in; a toyhouse; also, a place built for play.
play'ing, adj. That plays; recreative; used in playing. See PLAY, v. — play'ing·ly, adv.
playing card. A card used in playing games; specif., any of the cards, used in playing various games, composing a pack divided into four suits (hearts, diamonds, clubs, and spades), usually of thirteen cards (ace, king, queen, jack, and ten to two spots). The full pack contains 52 cards and is usually accompanied by a joker. In Italian playing cards, the pack consists of 40 cards, the trey and deuce ranking above the ace, and the tens, nines, and eights being deleted.
playing field. A public field for various games as football, cricket, tennis, etc.; in the United States, esp. that part of the field officially marked off for play.
playing suit. Card Games. Hearts or spades. Clubs and diamonds are helping suits.
play'let (plā'lĕt; -lĭt; 119), n. A short or slight play. play'man (plā'mȧn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). A gamester; a gambler. Rare.
play'mate' (-māt'), n. A companion in play; playfellow. play'ock (plā'ŭk), n. [Prob. dim. of play, n.] Plaything. Scot.
play'-off' (plā'ôf'; 185), n. Sports. A final contest or series of contests to determine the winner among two or more competitors, teams, etc., that have ended prior contests in a tie or in some other manner that necessitates further trial.
play pipe. A metal pipe at the end of a fire hose for playing a stream of water.
play'read'er (plā'rēd'ĕr), n. One who reads manuscript plays in a manager's or playbroker's office and recommends them to his superior or rejects them. play right. Exclusive right to represent on the stage a dramatic composition. Eng.
play'room' (plā'rōōm'; 200), n. A room fitted out or reserved for children to play in.
play'script' (plā'skrĭpt'), n. A manuscript or typewritten copy of a play.
play'some (-sŭm), adj. Playful; wanton; sportive. — play'some·ly, adv. — play'some·ness, n.
play song. Music. A kind of action song used in play.
play'stead (plā'stĕd), n. A playground. Rare.
play'thing' (plā'thĭng'), n. A thing to play with; a toy; any thing, as a person, animal, or thing, that is played with.
play'time' (plā'tĭm'), n. 1. Time for play or diversion.
2. Time for the beginning of a stage performance.
play upon words. The use of a word or words in a double meaning or in a sense different from that in which it has already been used (in the same sentence or statement), or the use of words similar in sound but different in meaning, as to give a fantastic or humorous effect; paronomasia; punning; also, an instance of this; a pun; a paronomasia.
play'ward (-wĕrd), adj. Playful. Dial. "A playward girl." Hardy. play'wom'an (-wo̅o̅m'ȧn), n.; pl. -WOMEN (-wĭm'ĕn; -ĭn; 119). Actress. Rare.
play'work' (-wûrk'), n. 1. Work that is like play; easy or trifling work.
2. Work at stage performances.
play'wright' (-rīt'), n. A maker or writer of plays; a dramatist. — play'wright'ing, play'wright'ry (-rĭ), n. pla'za (plä'zȧ; plȧz'ȧ; Sp. plä'thä; 267), n. [Sp., fr. L. platea. See PLACE.] a A public square in a city or town; a market place; an open square. b A fortified place or town.
plaz'o·lite (plȧz'ō·līt), n. [Gr. plazein to bewilder + -lite.] Mineral. A hydrous calcium aluminum silicate and carbonate, occurring in small, colorless isometric crystals. H., 6.5. Sp. gr., 3.1.
plea (plē), n. [ME. plee, plai, plait, fr. OF. plait, plaid, plet, fr. L. placitum that which is pleasing, an opinion, decision, decree, orig. past part. neut. of placere to please. See PLEASE; cf. PLACITUM, PLEAD.] 1. Obs. exc. Scot. a Law. An action or cause in court; a lawsuit; the presentation of a cause to the court; as, to hold pleas. See COMMON PLEAS a, PLEAS OF THE CROWN. b Strife; contention; controversy; quarrel.
2. That which is alleged or pleaded, in defense, excuse, or justification; a pleading; an excuse; apology; argument; pretext. "Necessity, the tyrant's plea." Milton.
3. A prayer, entreaty, appeal, or pleading; as, he made a plea for mercy, tolerance, or justice.
4. Obs. a A proposal; an offer; a conditional promise. b A claim. Shak.
5. Law. An allegation made by a party in support of his cause; a pleading; specif.: a An allegation of fact, as distinguished from a demurrer. b In common-law practice, a defendant's answer to the plaintiff's declaration and demand, or, in criminal practice, the accused person's answer to the charge or indictment against him. Under modern statutory pleading in civil cases this is now technically called the statement of defense, or the defense, in Great play. † PLEA.	playd. Played. Ref. Sp.	play'fel'low·ship, n. See -SHIP.	play'less, adj. See -LESS.	(the figure). Scot.

play'boy·ism, n. See -ISM.	play'er·dom, n. See -DOM.	play'fere', n. [play + fere companion.] Companion. Obs.	play'like', adj. See -LIKE.	playte. † PLAIT; PLAT, a boat; PLATE; PLEAD, v.
play'craft', n. See -CRAFT.	play'er·ly, adj. Playerlike. Obs.		play'mare', n. = HOBBYHORSE, 1	plaza gray. = PEARL GRAY. play'wright'ess, n. Fem. of PLAYWRIGHT.

Britain, and, generally, in the United States the answer. c In equity practice, a special answer (called a special plea) showing, or relying upon, one or more things as a cause why the suit should be either dismissed, delayed, or barred, but not putting in issue the merits of the action.
Syn. — See PRETENSE.

plea (plē), v. t. & i. Plead; quarrel. Chiefly Scot.

pleach (plēch), v. t.; PLEACHED (plēcht); PLEACH'ING. [ME. *pleche*n, fr. ONF. plechier (F. plécher), corresponding to OF. plessier, plaissier to weave. See 1st PLASH.] To unite by interweaving, as branches of trees; to plash; interlace; plait, as hair; to make, form, dress, or renew, as a hedge, by interweaving.

pleached (plēcht or, esp. in verse, plēch'ĕd), adj. 1. Intertwined; interlaced. "Pleached arms and legs." Carl Van Vechten.
2. Formed by pleaching of branches; fenced or covered over by intertwined boughs. "The pleached bower." Shak.

pleach'er (plēch'ĕr), n. A plasher. Local, Eng.

plead (plēd), v.; past tense & past part. PLEAD'ED (-ĕd; -ĭd; 119), Colloq. PLEAD (plĕd) or PLED; pres. part. & verbal n. PLEAD'ING (plēd'ĭng). [ME. pleden, plaiden, fr. OF. plaidier (F. plaider), fr. (assumed) VL. placitare, fr. L. placitum. See PLEA.] Intransitive: 1. To institute or prosecute an action in court; to go to law; to litigate; hence, to contend in debate or argument; to wrangle. Obs.
2. Law. To make a plea, or conduct pleadings, in a cause or proceeding in a court; to present an answer or pleading in defense or prosecution of an action. See PLEA, n., 5.
3. To argue for or against a claim; to urge reasons for or against a thing; hence, to entreat or appeal earnestly; supplicate; beg; implore; as, to plead with a judge.
—, Transitive: 1. To bring legal action against; also, to urge or make a plea of (the law) in court. Obs.
2. Law. To discuss, defend, and attempt to maintain by arguments or reasons presented to a tribunal or person having authority to determine; to argue at the bar; as, to plead a cause before a court or jury.
3. To allege or cite in, or by way of, a legal plea or defense; to answer to a declaration, charge, or indictment; as, to plead usury; to plead not guilty.
4. To allege in support or vindication; to offer as a plea, as in defense, apology, or excuse.
I will neither plead my age nor sickness, in excuse. Dryden.

plead (plēd), n. [From PLEAD, v.] A plea; a suit at law; dispute; claim; also, pleading; debate. Obs.

plead (plĕd). Colloq. past tense & past part. of PLEAD.

plead'a·ble (plēd'ȧ·b'l), adj. [OF. plaidable.] That may be pleaded; capable of being lawfully maintained, or of being alleged in defense, excuse, or vindication.

plead'er (-ẽr), n. [OF. plaideor (F. plaideur).] 1. Law. One who conducts legal pleas, esp. in court; an advocate.
2. One who pleads; an advocate; entreater; intercessor.

plead'ing, n. 1. Law. a Litigation. Obs. b The acting as an advocate or pleader in a cause; also, the science or art of drawing pleas or of conducting causes as an advocate, or the body of rules governing this art. c pl. The successive statements, now usually written, by which the plaintiff sets forth his cause and claim, and the defendant his defense; the formal allegations and counter allegations made by plaintiff and defendant, or by prosecutor and accused, in an action or proceeding until issue is joined.
2. The act, or an instance, of making a plea.
3. Advocacy; intercession; entreaty; supplication.

plead'ing, adj. Imploring; suppliant. See PLEAD, v. — plead'ing·ly, adv. — plead'ing·ness, n.

pleas'ance (plĕz'ȧns), n. [OF. plaisance. See PLEASE.] 1. Pleasure; joy; gaiety; delight. Archaic & Poetic.
2. Obs. a A pleasing, or disposition to please; pleasing behavior; courtesy. b That which pleases one; pleasure.
3. Poetic. a A pleasing or playful act; a pleasantry. b Pleasantness. c A source of pleasure; a delight.
4. A pleasure ground, typically a spacious shaded formal garden attached to a mansion.

pleas'ance, n. [F. Plaisance, fr. L. Placentia (It. Piacenza), Italy.] A fine lawn or gauze used for kerchiefs, veils, etc., esp. in the 15th and 16th centuries. Obs.

pleas'ant (plĕz'ȧnt; -'nt), adj. [OF. plaisant, prop., pres. part. See PLEASE.] 1. That gives pleasure; pleasing; now, more vaguely, grateful; agreeable; as, pleasant weather.
2. Having, or characterized by, pleasing manners, behavior, or appearance; agreeable; as, a pleasant fellow.
3. Archaic. a Humorous; gay; sprightly; merry, sportive. b Laughable; amusing; diverting.
4. Merrily drunk or tipsy; intoxicated. Rare.
☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

pleasant-eyed	pleasant-minded	pleasant-tasted
pleasant-faced	pleasant-natured	pleasant-tasting pleasant-featured	pleasant-sounding	pleasant-tongued pleasant-looking	pleasant-spirited	pleasant-voiced pleasant-mannered	pleasant-spoken	pleasant-witted

Syn. — PLEASANT, PLEASING, AGREEABLE. PLEASANT suggests rather a quality of the object to which it is applied, PLEASING, the effect of the object upon us; as, a pleasant day, a pleasing prospect; cf. a pleasant face, a pleasing face. But the two words are often indistinguishable. That is AGREEABLE which is in harmony with one's tastes or likings; as, an agreeable (cf. a pleasant) taste, odor; "if I was obliged to define politeness, I should call it the art of making oneself agreeable" (Smollett).
Ant. — Distasteful, disagreeable, unpleasant, offensive.

pleas'ant, n. [F. plaisant.] A jester; a buffoon. Obs.

pleas'ant, adv. Pleasantly. Obs.

pleas'ant, v. t. & i. [From PLEASANT, adj.] To indulge in pleasure or pleasantry. Rare.

pleas'ant·ness (plĕz'ȧnt·nĕs; -nĭs; 119), n. 1. Quality or state of being pleasant.
2. Psychol. That one of the two generally recognized elementary feelings which is aroused by agreeable stimuli.

pleas'ant·ry (plĕz'ȧnt·rĭ; plĕz'nt-), n.; pl. -RIES (-rĭz). [F. plaisanterie.] 1. An agreeable playfulness in conversation; facetiousness; jocularity; fun; good-humored banter.
2. A humorous act or speech; a joke; jest.
3. Pleasantness; pleasure. Obs.

pleas'ant·some (plĕz'ȧnt·sŭm; -'nt-), adj. Somewhat pleasant. Rare.

please (plēz), v.; PLEASED (plēzd); PLEAS'ING (plēz'ĭng). [ME. plesen, plaisen, fr. OF. plaisir, fr. L. placere; akin to L. placare to reconcile, Gr. plax flat surface, Lett. plakt to become flat, ON. flaga layer of earth or stone, OHG. fluoh a cliff. See FLUKE flatfish; cf. COMPLACENT, FLAG stone, PLACABLE, PLACID, PLANK, PLEAD.] Intransitive: 1. To afford or give pleasure, delight, or agreeable satisfaction; to be agreeable.
2. To have the pleasure, will, desire, kindness, or humor; to be pleased; to be willing, as a matter of affording pleasure or showing favor; like; vouchsafe; think proper; choose.
Heavenly stranger, please to taste
These bounties. Milton.
☞ This idiom, which arose about 1500, is exactly equivalent to the then already existing passive to be pleased, and apparently was substituted for the impersonal use with dative object (as he pleases for it pleases him, still used, or him pleases). The verb like (see 7th LIKE) underwent the same change about 1430, but necessarily, because an equivalent passive did not exist. The imperative or optative please, apparently originally short for the impersonal please you, may or let it please you, is now usually taken as short for may it please you, if it please you, if you please, or, before an infinitive, as equivalent to be pleased.
—, Transitive: 1. To give pleasure to; make glad; gratify; — orig. an intransitive use with dative object; as, to please oneself, to gratify oneself; Colloq., to do as one likes.
I pray to God that it may please you. Chaucer.
2. To be the will or pleasure of; — used impersonally, as, so please you. "It pleased the Father." Col. i. 19.
3. To placate; appease; satisfy; specif., to satisfy by sexual intercourse. Now Dial. Eng.
4. To have or take pleasure in; to like. Obs. Scot.
5. To amuse; to move to laughter. Dial.
Syn. — Content. Cf. GRATIFY.
Ant. — Displease, anger, antagonize, offend.
— if you please. If it is your pleasure, will, desire, or humor; if you like; — used by way of courtesy, politeness, or emphasis; as, answer, if you please; pass me the salt, if you please; he was, if you please, a rascal. — to be pleased. To have or take pleasure; to have the desire, humor, or will; choose; as, to be pleased with a present; he was pleased to send for me. — as pleased as Punch. Thoroughly delighted or gratified. See PUNCH.

pleased (plēzd), adj. Affected with or manifesting pleasure; gratified; contented. — pleas'ed·ly (plēz'ĕd·lĭ; -ĭd·lĭ; 119), adv. — pleas'ed·ness, n.

please'man (plēz'mȧn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). A person servile in seeking to please. Shak.

pleas'er (plēz'ẽr), n. One who or that which pleases.

plea'ship (plē'shĭp), n. [plea, n.+ -ship.] Litigation. Rare.

pleas'ing (plēz'ĭng), n. 1. Act of one who pleases, or fact of being pleased; giving of pleasure.
2. Obs. a Pleasure; desire; will. b Pleasingness.

pleas'ing, adj. Giving pleasure; agreeable; as, pleasing manners. — pleas'ing·ly, adv. — pleas'ing·ness, n.
Syn. and Ant. — See PLEASANT.

pleas of the crown, or plac'i·ta co·ro'nae (plăs'ĭ·tȧ kō·rō'nē). Eng. Law. Orig. [often caps.], in English and Scots law, those pleas or actions of which the crown claimed exclusive jurisdiction as affecting the king's peace (which see); hence, later, all criminal actions or proceedings; or, in Scots law, the actions of murder, rape, robbery, and willful fire-raising.

pleas'ur·a·bil'i·ty (plĕzh'ẽr·ȧ·bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. Pleasurable quality; also, that which is pleasurable. Rare.

pleas'ur·a·ble (plĕzh'ẽr·ȧ·b'l), adj. 1. Capable of affording pleasure or satisfaction; pleasant; gratifying.
2. Pleasure-seeking; pleasure-loving. Obs.
— pleas'ur·a·ble·ness, n. — pleas'ur·a·bly, adv.

pleas'ure (plĕzh'ẽr), n. [ME. plesure, plesir, fr. OF. plesir, plaisir, orig. an infinitive. See PLEASE.] 1. State of gratification of the senses or mind; agreeable sensation or emotion; the excitement, relish, or happiness produced by expectation or enjoyment of something good, delightful, or satisfying; delight; enjoyment; joy; — opposed to pain, sorrow, etc.
2. What the will dictates or prefers as gratifying or satisfying; hence, will; choice; wish; purpose; — with a possessive. "He will do his pleasure on Babylon." Is. xlviii. 14.
Use your pleasure; if your love do not persuade you to come, let not my letter. Shak.
3. That which pleases or delights; a cause, source, or object of pleasure; a delight; joy; gratification.
Festus, willing to do the Jews a pleasure. Acts xxv. 9.
4. Pleasure-giving quality; pleasantness. Now Rare.
5. Sensuous gratification for its own sake; amusement; sport; diversion; self-indulgence; frivolous or dissipating enjoyment; sensual gratification; — opposed to self-denial, etc.
He that loveth pleasure shall be a poor man. Prov. xxi. 17.
6. A pleasure ground; a pleasance. Obs.
7. Psychol. = PLEASANTNESS, 2.
☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:

pleasure-bent	pleasureman	pleasure-taking, adj.
pleasure-bound	pleasuremonger	pleasure-tempted pleasure-feeling, adj.	pleasure seeker	pleasure-tired pleasure giver	pleasure-seeking, adj.	pleasure-trading, adj.
pleasure-giving, adj.		pleasure-wasted pleasure-greedy	pleasure-shunning, adj.	pleasure-weary pleasure ground		pleasure-yielding, adj.
pleasure-hating, adj.	pleasure-sparkling, adj.
pleasure lover
pleasure-loving, adj.	pleasure taker

Syn. — Satisfaction, happiness, cheerfulness; gaiety, mirth, merriment, jollity, hilarity. — PLEASURE, DELIGHT, DELECTATION, GLADNESS, JOY, ENJOYMENT. PLEASURE (opposed to pain) is the general term for the feeling of satisfaction or gratification; DELIGHT (which may be relatively transient) implies a high degree of pleasure or lively satisfaction; DELECTATION is now chiefly humorous in its connotation; as, "when these wild ecstasies shall be matured into a sober pleasure" (Wordsworth); "She played with grave cabinets as a cat plays with a mouse, and with much of the same feline delight in the mere embarrassment of her victims" (J. R. Green); her oddities afforded him the utmost delectation. GLADNESS suggests esp. such happiness as shows itself (often quietly) in the face or demeanor; joy is deeper-rooted than delight, more radiant or demonstrative than gladness; ENJOYMENT is a milder term than joy, and denotes the pleasure or satisfaction which is felt in something; as, "They . . . did eat their meat with gladness" (Acts ii. 46); "the gladness in his face" (G. Eliot); "Break forth into joy" (Is. lii. 9); "All the while her thought was trying to justify her delight in the colors by merging them in her mystic religious joy" (G. Eliot); "All its aching joys are now no more, and all its dizzy raptures" (Wordsworth); "the contented use and enjoyment of the things we have" (Mary Wilkins). Cf. HAPPINESS, CHEERFULNESS, JOCULAR.
Ant. — Pain, hurt, injury; sorrow, displeasure.
— at one's pleasure. At one's liking, will, or discretion.
— at pleasure. a Obs. Pleased. b At will or discretion.
— during (one's) pleasure. As long as one likes. — to (one's) pleasure. So as to please.

pleas'ure (plĕzh'ẽr), v. t.; -URED (-ẽrd); -UR·ING (-ẽr·ĭng). To give or afford pleasure to; to please; gratify. — v. i. To take pleasure; delight; Colloq., to seek pleasure; take a holiday or outing; as, to go pleasuring.

pleas'ure·ful (plĕzh'ẽr·fo͝ol; -f'l), adj. Full of pleasure; delightful; pleasing.

pleas'ure·ment (-mĕnt), n. Pleasure taking.

pleas'ure–pain' (66), adj. Associating pleasure and pain correlatively, esp. in the motivation of conduct.

pleasure principle. Psychol. The principle of seeking immediate gratification of desire and immediate relief from pain.

pleas'ur·er (plĕzh'ẽr·ẽr), n. One who gives or takes pleasure; specif., a pleasure seeker; holiday taker.

pleas'ur·ing (-ĭng), n. Act or instance of taking or giving pleasure; also, a pleasure trip or vacation. — adj. Designed or used for pleasure.

pleas'ur·ist (-ĭst), n. A pleasure seeker; a voluptuary.

pleas'ur·ous (-ŭs), adj. Given over to pleasure. Rare.

pleat (plēt; cf. PLAIT), n. [ME. pleten, v. See PLAIT, n. & v.] 1. A fold (of cloth, etc.); a plait (sense 1). Also, anything resembling such fold; as, a pleat of skin.
2. A braid or interlacing of strands; a plait (sense 2). Obs.

pleat, v. t. 1. To fold (cloth, etc.); to plait (sense 1).
2. To braid (hair, etc.); to plait (sense 2). Now Dial. Eng.

pleat'er (plēt'ẽr), n. One who pleats, esp. cloth or paper.

pleb (plĕb), n. Slang. a A plebeian. b = PLEBE, 2.

plebs (plēb), n. [F. plèbe, fr. L. plebs. See PLEBEIAN.]
1. The Roman plebs; the common people; the mob. Obs.
2. a A member of the lowest class in the military academy at West Point. b A first-year midshipman in the naval academy at Annapolis.

ple·be'ian (plē·bē'yȧn; -ȧn), adj. [L. plebeius, fr. plebs, plebis, the common people; akin to Gr. plēthos throng, the people. See FULL; cf. FOLK MANIPLE, PEOPLE.] Of or pertaining to the Roman plebs (which see), or commons; hence, of or pertaining to the common people; crude or coarse in manner or taste; vulgar; common; as, plebeian sports; a plebeian throng. — n. One of the plebs; one of the common people; a plebeian person.
Syn. — Ordinary, lowborn; ill-bred.
Ant. — Aristocratic, patrician, noble.
— ple·be'ian·ly, adv. — ple·be'ian·ness, n.

ple·be'ance (-bē'yȧns; -ȧns), n. Plebeian quality. Rare.

ple·be'ian·ism (plē·bē'yȧn·ĭz'ĭm; -ȧn·ĭz'ĭm), n. Plebeian state, character, or manners; vulgarity.

ple·be'ian·ize (-īz), v. t.; -IZED (-īzd); -IZ'ING (-īz'ĭng). To render plebeian, common, or vulgar.

ple·bic'o·lar (plē·bĭk'ō·lẽr), adj. Also ple·bic'o·lous (-lŭs). [L. plebicola one who courts the favor of the common people.] That courts the favor of the common people. Rare. — ple·bic'o·list (-lĭst), n. Rare.

pleb'i·fi·cate (plĕb'ĭ·fĭ·kāt), v. t. [plebs + L. -ficare (in comp.) to make. See -FY.] Plebify. — pleb'i·fi·ca'tion (-fĭ·kā'shŭn), n. Both Rare.

ple·be'i·ty (plē·bē'ĭ·tĭ), n. Plebeian class or rank. Obs.

ple'bi·fy (plē'bĭ·fī; plĕb'ĭ-), v. t.; -FIED (-fīd); -FY'ING. [plebs + -fy.] To render plebeian; vulgarize. Rare.

ple·bis'ci·tar'i·an (plē·bĭs'ĭ·tȧr'ĭ·ȧn), adj. Plebiscitary. — n. An advocate of a plebiscite.

ple·bis'ci·ta·rism (-bĭs'ĭ·tȧ·rĭz'ĭm), n. Principle or practice of calling for plebiscites.

ple·bis'ci·tar'y (plē·bĭs'ĭ·tĕr'ĭ; -tĕr·ĭ), adj. Of, pertaining to, or of the nature of, a plebiscite.

pleb'i·scite (plĕb'ĭ·sīt; -sĭt; plē'bĭ·sīt; 277), n. [F. plébiscite, fr. L. plebiscitum.] 1. = PLEBISCITUM, 1.
2. A vote or decree of the people (now usually by universal suffrage) on some measure submitted to them by some person or body having the initiative, as where the referendum (which see) is employed.
3. A vote of the people (usually by universal adult suffrage) of some specified district or region on the question, put before them by a treaty of peace or by an international body, as to choice of sovereignty; the political machinery for expressing self-determination (which see).
Syn. — See REFERENDUM.

pleb'i·scit'ic (plĕb'ĭ·sĭt'ĭk), adj. Of, pertaining to, or put in power by, a plebiscite.

pleb'is·ci'tum (plĕb'ĭ·sī'tŭm; plē'bĭ-), n.; pl. -TA (-tȧ). [L., fr. plebs, plebis, common people + scitum decree. See PLEBS; SCIENCE.] 1. Rom. Hist. A vote or decree made by the Comitia tributa. Prior to 287 B.C. Plebiscita were binding only on the plebs.
2. = PLEBISCITE, 2.

plebs (plĕbz), n.; pl. PLEBES (plē'bēz). [L. See PLEBE.] 1. Rom. Hist. The plebeians as a whole; the lower or secondary class of the people of ancient Rome, originally probably clients of the patrician gentes (see CLIENT, 1, GENS, 1), but in the later republic having practically equal political rights.
2. The common people; the populace; mob.

pleck (plĕk), n. [ME. plecke; akin to MD. plecke, D. plek. Cf. PLAQUE.] 1. A plot of ground; a small enclosure. Obs. exc. Dial.
2. A spot or stain; speck. Obs.

Ple·cop'ter·a (plē·kŏp'tĕr·ȧ), n. pl. [NL., fr. Gr. plekein to twine + -ptera.] Zool. An order of insects constituted by the stone flies. Cf. NEUROPTERA. — ple·cop'ter·an (-ȧn), n. — ple·cop'ter·id (-ĭd), n. & adj. — ple·cop'ter·ous (-ŭs), adj.

Ple·co'tus (plē·kō'tŭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. plekein to twist + ous, ōtos, ear.] Zool. The genus consisting of the common long-eared bat of Europe and Asia. It typifies a subfamily Plec'o·ti'nae (plĕk'ō·tī'nē). — plec'o·tine (plĕk'ō·tīn; -tĭn), adj.

plec'to- (plĕk'tō-), plect-. A combining form from Greek plektos, meaning twisted, as in *Plectop*tera.

Plec·tog'na·thi (plĕk·tŏg'nȧ·thī), n. pl. [NL., fr. plecto- + Gr. gnathos jaw.] Zool. A group, usually an order, of fishes generally having the maxillary bone united with the premaxillary, the posttemporal united with the skull, and the gill openings greatly reduced in size. The ventral fins are rudimentary or wanting, and the body is usually covered with bony plates, spines, or small rough ossicles. The group includes the filefishes, globefishes, triggerfishes, trunkfishes, sunfishes (Molidae), and related kinds. — plec'tog·nath (plĕk'tŏg·nȧth), adj. & n. — plec'tog·nath'ic (-nȧth'ĭk), plec·tog'na·thous (plĕk·tŏg'nȧ·thŭs), adj.

Plec'to·spon'dy·li (plĕk'tō·spŏn'dĭ·lī), n. pl. [NL., fr. plecto- + Gr. spondylos, sphondylos, a vertebra.] Zool. A group of fishes having the anterior vertebrae modified and united; — sometimes equivalent to Eventognathi, but usually including the characineids. — plec'to·spon'dyl (-dĭl), adj. & n. — plec'to·spon'dyl·ous (-dĭ·lŭs), adj.

pleacht. Pleached. Ref. Sp.

plead'a·ble·ness, n. See -ABLE. — plea'ble·ness, n.

plean (plēn). Var. of PLAIN, v. New Dial.

plea'proof' (66), adj. See PROOF.

pleas'a·ble (plĕz'ȧ·b'l), adj. See -ABLE. — plea'ble·ness, n.

pleas'an·cy (plĕz'ȧn·sĭ), n. Pleasantry; pleasantness. Obs. [Obs.] pleas'ant·a·ble, adj. Pleasurable.

pleas'ant·ish, adj. See -ISH.

pleas'ant·ly, adv. of PLEASANT.

pleas'ants. Scot. var. of PLEASANCE.

pleasd. Pleased. Ref. Sp.

pleas'ure·hood, n. See -HOOD.

pleas'ure·less, adj. See -LESS. —pleas'ure·less·ly, adv. [-PROOF.]

pleas'ure·proof' (66), adj. See.

pleat'less, adj. See -LESS.

ple·be'ious (plē·bē'yŭs; -ĭs), adj. [L. plebeius.] Plebeian. Obs.

ple'bes (plē'bēz), n., pl. OF PLEBS.

pleb'i·scit. Var. of PLEBISCITE.

Plec·top'ter·a (plĕk·tŏp'tĕr·ȧ), n. pl. [NL., fr. plecto- + -ptera.] Syn. of EPHEMERIDA. — plec·top'ter (-tĕr), n. — plec·top'ter·an (-ȧn), adj. & n. — plec·top'ter·ous (-ŭs), adj.

plec'tre (plĕk'tĕr), n. [F.] Plectrum. Rare.

plec·trid'i·al (plĕk·trĭd'ĭ·ăl), adj. [See PLECTRUM.] Having the form of a drumstick.

plec·trid'i·um (-ŭm), n.; pl. -IA (-ä). [NL. See PLECTRIDIAL.] Bacteriol. Any hammer-shaped or drumstick-shaped cell; esp., any of certain rod-shaped bacteria (formerly classed as a genus, Plectridium) in which one end becomes enlarged by the production of an endospore, as Clostridium tetani.

plec'tron (plĕk'trŏn), n. = PLECTRUM, 1.

plec'trum (plĕk'trŭm), n.; pl. -TRA (-trä), -TRUMS (-trŭmz). [L., fr. Gr. plēktron anything to strike with, fr. plēssein to strike. See PLAY.] 1. A small thin piece of ivory, wood, metal, horn, or quill, used in playing on the lyre and other plucked stringed instruments.
2. Anat. a The uvula. b The malleus. c The tongue. d The styloid process of the temporal bone.

pledge (plĕj), n. [OF. plege, pleige, pledge, guaranty, fr. ML. plebium, plevium, appar. (perh. with influence of L. praebere to offer, allow, cf. PREBEND) of Teut. origin; cf. OS. & OHG. plegan to pledge. See PLIGHT a pledge; cf. REPLEVIN.] 1. Law. a In early English law, a person whose body is given as security for the performance of an obligation, as a member of a frankpledge; a bail; a hostage, — the modern chattel pledge being then called a gage. Now Hist. "I am Grumio's pledge." Shak. b A chattel, or object of personal property, delivered by a debtor or obligor to a creditor or obligee to be kept by the latter until the debt or obligation is satisfied; an object given as security by pledge. c A bailment of a chattel, or object of personal property as security for the satisfaction of a debt or other obligation; also, the contract, obligation, or form of property, incidental to such a bailment; as, to give or put in pledge. Originally, in this sense, pledge was used of the delivery (without transfer of title) of movables, or objects capable of physical delivery, corresponding to the pignus of the Roman law, and was sharply distinguished from a common-law mortgage by the fact that in a pledge the title was not transferred, while in the mortgage it was. Later pledge was applied to the transfer of a chose in action by delivery and transfer of title, and by equity and statutory law the title to the mortgage came to be viewed as remaining in the mortgagor, so that now in many cases a transaction may be construed either as a mortgage or as a pledge according as one or the other appears to have been intended. Transfer of possession, however, is essential to a pledge, but not to a mortgage.
2. Something given or considered as a security for the performance of an act and, usually, liable to forfeiture in case of nonperformance; a guaranty.
3. Specif.: a A child, as evidence of the bond between its parents. b A gage of battle. c A thing pawned.
4. State of being given or held as a security or guaranty; pawn; — in phrases; as, in pledge, to pledge, out of pledge.
5. Something considered as a token, sign, evidence, or earnest of something else.
6. An assurance of good will or favor given by drinking one's health; a sentiment thus attested; a toast; a health. Also, formerly, a person, esp. a lady, so pledged or toasted.
7. A promise or agreement by which one binds oneself to do or forbear something; a promise; as, the mayor made no pledges. Specif.: a Colloq. With the, a promise in writing to refrain from using intoxicants or the like; as, to sign the pledge. b College Slang, U. S. A promise to join a fraternity or secret society; also, a person who has made such a promise.
Syn. — See EARNEST.
☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:
pledge-bound, pledge keeper, pledge-signing, adj. pledge-breaking, adj. pledge-keeping, adj. pledge taker pledge-free, pledge-making, adj. pledge-taking, adj.

pledge (plĕj), v.; PLEDGED (plĕjd); PLEDG'ING (plĕj'ĭng). [Cf. OF. plegier (F. pleiger) to give security for. See PLEDGE, n.] Transitive: 1. To become surety for. Obs.
2. To give as a pledge; to deposit, as a chattel, in pledge or pawn; to make a pledge of; to pawn. Specif., to assign as security for the repayment of a loan. Cf. COLLATERAL.
3. To bind by or as by a pledge; to engage; to plight.
We mutually pledge to each other our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honor. Declaration of Independence.
4. a Rare. To secure or assure performance of, as by a pledge. "To pledge my vow, I give my hand." Shak. b To promise solemnly; to undertake.
5. To give assurance, promise, or evidence of good will, favor, or the like, by or in drinking: a To drink at the invitation of (another); to drink to a toast or sentiment proposed by (another). b To drink the health of; to toast.
Pledge me, my friend, and drink till thou be'st wise. Cowley.
6. To cause (one) to make or sign a pledge; as, to pledge (one) to join a college fraternity. Colloq.
——, Intransitive: To give or make a pledge; to become surety; to drink a pledge.
Syn. — See PROMISE.

pledg'ee' (plĕj'ē'), n. The one to whom a pledge is given, or one who holds property as a pledge.

pledge'or', pledg'or' (plĕj'ôr'), n. Law. A pledger; — opposed to pledgee.

pledg'er (plĕj'ĕr), n. One who pledges anything or anyone.

pledge'shop' (plĕj'shŏp'), n. A pawnbroker's shop. Rare.

pledg'et (plĕj'ĕt; -ĭt; 119), n. [Origin uncert.] 1. Med. A compress, or small flat mass of lint, absorbent cotton, or the like, laid over a wound, ulcer, etc., to exclude air, retain dressings, or absorb the matter discharged.
2. Naut. A thread of oakum used in calking.

Pleg'a·dis (plĕg'ä·dĭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. plēgas sickle.] Zool. A genus including the glossy ibises.

pleg'a·pho'ni·a (plĕg'ä·fō'nĭ·ä), n. [NL., fr. Gr. plēgē a stroke + phōnē sound.] Med. Auscultation of the chest during percussion of the larynx.

-ple'gi·a (-plē'jĭ·ä). Also -ple'gy (-plē'jĭ). [See PLAINT.] A combining form, Greek -plēgia, from plēgē, meaning stroke, used in medicine to signify stroke (of paralysis), paralysis, palsy, as in hemi*plegia,* para*plegia,* para*plegy,* mono*plegia,* etc.

ple·gom'e·ter (plē·gŏm'ē·tĕr), n. [Gr. plēgē a stroke + -meter.] An instrument to measure (and record) the force of blows.

Ple'iad (plē'ĭ·ăd; -ăd; plī'ăd), n. 1. Any of the Pleiades.
2. [also not cap.] A group or cluster of illustrious or brilliant persons or things, usually seven; specif., with the, any of various groups of seven celebrated persons; as: a The Philosophical Pleiad. See SEVEN WISE MEN OF GREECE. b The Pleiad of Alexandria, a group of poets in the time of Ptolemy Philadelphus, 3d century B.C., composed of Callimachus, Apollonius of Rhodes, Aratus, Homer the Younger, Lycophron, Nicander, and Theocritus. c [F. La Pléiade.] A group of seven contemporary 16th-century poets (usually listed as Ronsard, Baïf, Du Bellay, Dorat, Jodelle, Remi Belleau, and Ponthus de Thyard) who tried to ennoble the language by enriching its vocabulary from Greek and Latin and by reviving the literary genres of antiquity. Called also The Plé'iade' (pron. plā'yäd').
3. [not cap.] Chem. A group of isotopes.

Ple'ia·des (plē'yä·dēz; plē'ä-; plī'ä-; 277), n. pl. [L., fr. Gr. Pleiades.] 1. Gr. Myth. The seven daughters of Atlas and the nymph Pleione, whose names were Alcyone, Celaeno, Electra, Maia, Merope, Steropе or Asterope, and Taygeta. They were transformed into the group of stars so named, the invisible seventh, or "lost," one (Merope) concealing herself out of shame for having loved a mortal.
2. [gen. PLEIADUM.] Astron. A conspicuous loose cluster of stars in the constellation Taurus. Six stars (for names see sense 1) are visible to the average eye, but the telescope reveals many hundreds more, while by photography the number is increased to thousands. Commonly either Merope or Electra, sometimes Celaeno, is regarded as the "lost Pleiad."

plein'-air' (plān'âr'), adj. [F.] Of, pertaining to, or dealing with, the open (literally, full) air; specif., designating, or pertaining to, certain schools of painting, called plein-air or open-air schools, founded in France about 1865, or their work. The chief principle of these schools is the representation of actually existing effects of outdoor life, esp. of air and light, not observable in the studio. See IMPRESSIONISM, 2.

plein'-air'ist, n. A painter of a plein-air school.

plei'o- (plī'ō-), ple'o-. [See PLEONASM.] A combining form from Greek pleiōn (poet., pleōn), meaning more, as in *Pleiocene, pleo*morphism, plei'o·tax'is (see -TAXIS).

plei'o·bar (plī'ō·bär), n. [pleio- + Gr. baros weight.] Meteorol. a An area of high barometric pressure. b An isobar of high pressure.

plei'o·chro'mi·a (-krō'mĭ·ä), n. [NL., fr. pleio- + -chromia.] Med. Increased color or pigment, as in the blood, specif., that due to increase in secretion of bile pigment. — plei'o·chro'mic (-mĭk), adj.

plei·om'er·y (plī·ŏm'ĕr·ĭ), n. [pleio- + Gr. meros part.] Bot. The state of having more than the normal number of floral leaves. — plei·om'er·ous (-ŭs), adj.

plei'on (plī'ŏn), n. [Gr. pleiōn more, greater.] Meteorol. A region of positive departure (increase) from the normal of any element, as pressure, temperature, rainfall, etc. — plei·o'ni·an (plī·ō'nĭ·ăn), adj.

plei'o·phyl'ly (plī'ō·fĭl'ĭ), n. [See PLEIO-; -PHYLL.] Bot. An abnormal increase or excess in the number of leaves or leaflets. — plei'o·phyl'lous (-fĭl'ŭs), adj.

Pleis'the·nes (plīs'thē·nēz), n. [Gr. Pleisthenēs.] See ATREUS.

Pleis'to·cene (plīs'tō·sēn), adj. [Gr. pleistos most, superl. of polys + kainos new. See FULL; RECENT.] Geol. Of, pertaining to, or designating, the epoch following the Tertiary and next below the present. See GLACIAL EPOCH; GEOLOGY, Chart. — n. The Pleistocene, or glacial, epoch or deposits. — Pleis'to·cen'ic (-sĕn'ĭk; -sē'nĭk), adj.

Pleistocene lakes. Geol. Several fresh-water lakes formed in the interior of North America during the retreat of the ice sheets in the Pleistocene period. Lake Bonneville covered the eastern part of the Great Basin; Salt Lake, Utah, is a remnant. Lake Lahontan covered northwestern Nevada; Pyramid, North Carson, South Carson, and Walker Lakes are remnants. Lake Agassiz occupied portions of Saskatchewan, Manitoba, N. Dakota, and Minnesota; it drained through the Mississippi Valley. Lake Maumee, which drained into the valley of the Wabash River, developed into Lake Duluth (draining into the Mississippi) and Lake Chicago (draining through the valley followed by the Chicago drainage canal). These, becoming Lake Algonquin, had an outlet into Lake Iroquois. The Great Nipissing Lakes occupied the Superior, Michigan, and Huron basins, and drained into an arm of the sea. Lake Arkona, in the Erie and Ontario basins, had an outlet to the west, and developed successively into Lakes Whittlesey, Warren, Dana, and Lundy. Lake Iroquois, of the Ontario basin, succeeding them, drained through the Mohawk and Hudson valleys.

Pleistocene period. A period embracing the Pleistocene.

pleis'to·seist (plīs'tō·sīst), n. [pleisto- + seismo- + -ist.] That isoseismic line on which the decline in the energy of earthquake vibrations is most rapid.

ple·moch'o·e (plē·mŏk'ō·ē), n.; pl. -CHOAI (-ī). [Gr. plēmochoē, fr. plēmē flood + cheein to pour.] Gr. Antiq. A vessel of pottery for pouring. In modern archaeological usage, a vase with a standard and an incurved rim, frequently fitted with a cover.

plem'y·ram'e·ter (plĕm'ĭ·răm'ē·tĕr; plē'mĭ-), n. [Gr. plēmmyra the high tide + -meter.] An instrument for measuring differences of level of a body of water.

ple·nar'i·um (plē·nâr'ĭ·ŭm), n. Also ple'na·ry (plē'nä·rĭ). [See PLENARY, adj.] A complete set (of books of scripture).

ple'nar·ty (plē'nĕr·tĭ; plĕn'ĕr·tĭ), n. [OF. plenereté, plenerité.] State of a benefice when occupied.

ple'na·ry (plē'nä·rĭ; plĕn'ä·rĭ), adj. [LL. plenarius, fr. L. plenus. See PLENTY.] 1. Full; entire; complete; absolute; perfect; unqualified; as, a plenary license, authority.
2. Fully attended or constituted; including all entitled to be present; — said of an assembly, meeting, etc.
3. Having full powers. Rare.
4. Law. Complete; as, a plenary proceeding, including all steps in due order; — opposed to summary. Now Rare.
Syn. — See FULL.
Ant. — Restricted, incomplete, limited.

plenary ability. The Pelagian doctrine that all men have full power at all times to do God's will.

plenary council. See COUNCIL, 2.

plenary indulgence. R.C.Ch. The remission of the entire temporal punishment due to sin. See INDULGENCE, 6.

plenary inspiration. See INSPIRATION, 2 a.

‖ple'ne ad·mi'ni·stra'vit (plē'nē ăd·mĭn'ĭ·strā'vĭt). [L.] Law. Literally, he has fully administered; — used to designate a certain plea in bar by an executor or administrator.

ple'ni- (plē'nĭ-; plĕn'ĭ-). A combining form, Latin pleni-, from plenus, meaning full, as in plenicorn.

ple'ni·corn (-kôrn), adj. [pleni- + L. cornu horn.] Zool. Solid-horned, as a deer. — n. A solid-horned ruminant. Rare.

ple·nil'o·quence (plē·nĭl'ō·kwĕns), n. [pleni- + L. loquentia a talking.] Fullness of talk; much speaking. Rare.

ple'ni·lu'nal (plē'nĭ·lū'năl; -n'l; plĕn'ĭ-), adj. Plenilunar.

ple'ni·lu'nar (-nĕr), adj. Also ple'ni·lu'na·ry (-nä·rĭ). Of, pertaining to, or like, the full moon.

ple'ni·lune (plē'nĭ·lūn; plĕn'ĭ-; 242), n. [L. plenilunium, fr. plenus full + luna the moon.] The time of full moon; also, a full moon. Chiefly Poetic.

plen'i·po (plĕn'ĭ·pō). Short for PLENIPOTENTIARY. Colloq. — v. i. To plenipotentiarize. Colloq.

ple·nip'o·tence (plē·nĭp'ō·tĕns), n. Also ple·nip'o·ten·cy (-tĕn·sĭ). Quality or state of being invested with authority or power to transact business. Rare.

ple·nip'o·tent (-tĕnt), adj. & n. [LL. plenipotens, fr. L. plenus full + potens, -entis, potent. See FULL; POTENT.] Plenipotentiary. Rare.

plen'i·po·ten'tial (plĕn'ĭ·pō·tĕn'shăl), adj. Plenipotentiary. — plen'i·po·ten'ti·al'i·ty (-shĭ·ăl'ĭ·tĭ), n. Obs.

plen'i·po·ten'ti·a·rize (-shĭ·ä·rīz; -shä·rīz), v. i. To act as a plenipotentiary.

plen'i·po·ten'ti·ar'y (plĕn'ĭ·pō·tĕn'shĭ·ĕr'ĭ; -ēr·ĭ; -shä·rĭ; 277), n.; pl. -IES (-īz). [ML. plenipotentiarius; cf. F. plénipotentiaire.] A person invested with full power to transact any business; esp., a diplomatic agent (ambassador, envoy, or minister) having full power to negotiate, subject to ratification, for the government he represents in the transaction of such business as is expressed in his letters. He may or may not be accredited. See DIPLOMATIC AGENT.

plen'i·po·ten'ti·ar'y, adj. 1. Containing or conferring full power; absolute; unlimited; invested with full power.
2. Of or pertaining to a plenipotentiary.

plen'ish (plĕn'ĭsh), v. t. [OF. plenir. See REPLENISH.]
1. To fill up; replenish. Chiefly Scot. & Dial.
2. To furnish, as a house or farm; to equip with house furnishings. Brit.

plen'ish·ing, n. Chiefly Scot. Furniture; equipment; stock; esp., household furniture or a bride's wedding outfit of household goods.

plen'ish·ment (plĕn'ĭsh·mĕnt), n. Plenishing; outfit. Scot.

ple'nism (plē'nĭz'm), n. The theory that all space is a plenum. See PLENUM, n., 1. — ple'nist (-nĭst), n. & adj.

plen'i·tude (plĕn'ĭ·tūd), n. [OF., fr. L. plenitudo, fr. plenus full. See PLENTY.] 1. Quality or state of being full; completeness; plentifulness; as, the plenitude of space.
2. State of being filled; fullness; specif., Obs.: a Of a flower, doubleness. b Med. Animal fullness; repletion; plethora. c Physics. = PLENUM, n., 1. d Affluence.
3. An abundance; a sufficiency.
A plenitude, nay, a plethora of work. Galsworthy.

plen'i·tu'di·nous (-tū'dĭ·nŭs), adj. Characterized by plenitude, or fullness; humorously, stout; portly. Rare.

‖ple'no ju're (plē'nō jōō'rē; 242). [L.] With full right.

plensh'ing nail (plĕn'shĭng). [See PLANCH, v.] A flooring nail.

plen'te·ous (plĕn'tē·ŭs; 159), adj. [ME. plaintiose, plentivous, plentevous, fr. OF. plentious, plentivous, plentevous, fr. plentif (cf. plenteïf), abundant, fr. plenté. See PLENTY.] 1. Constituting, characterized by, or existing in, plenty; abundant; copious; plentiful.
2. Yielding abundance; productive; fruitful. Gen. xli. 34.
3. Having plenty; abounding; rich. Archaic.
4. Liberal; generous; bountiful; bounteous. Archaic.
Syn. and Ant. — See PLENTIFUL.
— plen'te·ous·ly, adv. — plen'te·ous·ness, n.

plen'ti·ful (-tĭ·fŏol; -f'l), adj. 1. Yielding or containing plenty; prolific; fruitful; opulent; as, a plentiful table.
2. Constituting, characterized by, or existing in, plenty; copious; abundant; ample; as, a plentiful harvest.
3. Lavish; profuse. Obs. "Plentiful in expenses." Bacon.
Syn. — Full, abounding, bountiful, liberal, profuse, rich. — PLENTIFUL, PLENTEOUS, ABUNDANT, COPIOUS, EXUBERANT. That is PLENTIFUL or PLENTEOUS of which there is great or sufficient supply; plenteous is now somewhat bookish; that is ABUNDANT which is very plentiful, or of which there is more than enough; as, "If reasons were as plentiful as blackberries" (Shak.); "Plenteous grace with Thee is found" (C. Wesley); "thy abundant goodness" (Shak.). That is COPIOUS which exists or is supplied in great abundance; EXUBERANT implies superabundant richness; as, "copious quotations" (Irving); "He was the best conversationalist in London, so rapid, so full of fancy, so copious in information" (Jowett); "the exuberant richness of Asiatic phraseology" (Milton); exuberant gaiety. Cf. PROFUSE, CAPACIOUS, LUXURIOUS, RICH.
Ant. — Meager, scarce, scanty, inadequate, insufficient.
— plen'ti·ful·ly, adv. — plen'ti·ful·ness, n.

plen'ty (plĕn'tĭ), n.; pl. -TIES (-tĭz). [ME. plentee, plente, fr. OF. plenté, fr. L. plenitas, fr. plenus full. See FULL; cf. 1st PLAIN, PLENITUDE, REPLETE.] 1. Full or abundant supply; enough and to spare; abundance; an adequate quantity, amount, or number (of something); — when used with a, now chiefly U. S.
2. Quality or state of being abundant or copious; abundance; copiousness; as, corn and wine in plenty.
3. Fullness or completeness; perfection; plenitude. Obs.
4. a Copiousness or abundance of material things, as the products of the earth, that satisfy human wants.
Houses of office stuffed with plenty. Chaucer.
b pl. Formerly, the necessaries and comforts abundance of which constitutes plenty. c Condition or a time when such things abound.

plen'ty, adj. 1. Plentiful; abundant; — used predicatively.
If reasons were as plenty as blackberries. Shak.
2. Before a noun, plenty of; as, there are plenty ways to do it; after a noun, in plenty; as, gold and silver plenty. Now Chiefly Dial.

plen'ty, adv. Abundantly; as, plenty good enough. Colloq.

ple'num (plē'nŭm), n.; pl. PLENUMS (-nŭmz), PLENA (-nä). [L., prop., neut. of plenus full.] 1. A space or all space every part of which is full of matter; — opposed to vacuum.
2. Fullness; — generally connoting homogeneity.
3. A condition in which the pressure of the air in an enclosed space is greater than that of the outside atmosphere.
4. A general or full assembly, esp. a joint assembly of all parts of a legislative or other body pled. Colloq. & dial. past & past part. of PLEAD. pledgd. Pledged. Ref. Sp. pledge'a·ble, adj. See -ABLE.

---

pledge'less, adj. See -LESS.
pledge of prosecution. Law. See DECLARATION, 7 a. plee. Var. of PLAY, v.; PLEA. Now Dial. pleen (plēn). Dial. var. of pleid. ✝ PLAID, PLEAD.
‖plein (plān), n. [D., fr. OF. plain. See PLAIN field.] Public square. [PLIOCENE.] Plei'o-cene (plī'ō-sēn). Var. of Plei·o·hip'pus (-hĭp'ŭs). Var. of PLIOHIPPUS. plei'o·mas'ti·a (-măs'tĭ·ä), plei'o·ma'zi·a (-mä'zhĭ·ä; -zĭ·ä), n. [NL., fr. pleio- + Gr. mastos, mazos, breast.] = PLEOMASTIA. plei'o·mor'phic (-môr'fĭk), adj., plei'o·mor'phism (-fĭz'm), n., plei'o·mor'phy (plī'ō·môr'fĭ), n. = PLEOMORPHIC, etc.
Plei·o'ne (plī·ō'nē), n. [Gr. Pleionē, the mother of the Pleiades.] a See PLEIADES, 1. b See STAR, Table.
Plei'o·sau'rus (plī'ō·sô'rŭs), n. [NL.] Var. of PLIOSAURUS. ple'nal (plē'năl; -n'l), adj. [L. plenus full.] Plenary. Obs. — ple'nal·ly, adv. Obs.
ple'nar (plē'nĕr), adj. [ME. plener, fr. OF. plenier.] Plenary. Obs.
ple'na·ri·ly, adv. of PLENARY. ple'na·ri·ness, n. See -NESS. plen'i·po·ten'ti·ar'i·ly, adv. of PLENIPOTENTIARY. [See -SHIP.]
plen'i·po·ten'ti·ar'y·ship, n. plen'isht. Plenished. Ref. Sp.
plen'i·tide', n. [Irreg. fr. L. plenus full + tide.] Flood tide. Obs. plen'i·tu'di·nar'i·an (plĕn'ĭ·tū'dĭ·nâr'ĭ·ăn), n. A plenist. Obs. plen'i·tu'di·nar'y, adj. Having plenitude; full. Obs. plen'i·ty (plĕn'ĭ·tĭ), n. [OF. plenité, fr. L. plenitas.] Plenitude. Obs. plen'ti·fy, v. t. [plenty + -fy.] To make plenteous. Obs. [Obs.] plen'ti·ness, n. Plentifulness. plentious. ✝ PLENTEOUS. plentith. ✝ PLENTY.
plen'ti·tude. Erron. for PLENITUDE, influenced by PLENTY.

ple'num (plē'nŭm), adj. Pertaining to or designating a space, as a room or a duct, in which a plenum exists.

ple'ny (plē'nĭ), adj. Full; as, pleny tide. Naut.

ple'o- (plē'ō-). Var. of PLEIO-.

ple'o·chro'ic (plē'ō·krō'ĭk), adj. Having pleochroism.

ple·och'ro·ism (plē·ŏk'rō·ĭz'm), ple'o·chro'ma·tism (plē'-ō·krō'mȧ·tĭz'm), n. [pleo- + Gr. chroa color.] Cryst. The property, possessed by some crystals, of showing different colors when viewed in the direction of different axes. It includes dichroism and trichroism. — ple·och'ro·it'ic (plē·ŏk'rō·ĭt'ĭk), ple'o·chro·mat'ic (plē'ō·krō·măt'ĭk), adj.

ple·och'ro·ous (plē·ŏk'rō·ŭs), adj. Pleochroic.

ple'o·crys'tal·line (plē'ō·krĭs'tăl·ĭn; -ĭn), adj. [See PLEIO-.] Petrog. Holocrystalline.

ple'o·dont (plē'ō·dŏnt), adj. [pleo- + -odont.] Zool. Having solid teeth.

ple'o·mas'ti·a (-măs'tĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. pleo- + -mastia.] Anat. The condition of having more than two mammary glands or nipples. — ple'o·mas'tic (-tĭk), adj.

ple'o·me·tro'sis (-mē·trō'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. pleo- + 2d metro- + -osis.] Zool. In certain kinds of ants, the occurrence of several fertile females (queens) in a single nest. — ple'o·me·trot'ic (-trŏt'ĭk), adj.

ple'o·mor'phic (plē'ō·môr'fĭk), adj. Pertaining to, or characterized by, pleomorphism.

ple'o·mor'phism (-fĭz'm), n. [pleo- + Gr. morphē form.] 1. Cryst. The property of crystallizing under two or more distinct fundamental forms. It includes dimorphism and trimorphism.
2. Bot. Occurrence of more the one distinct form in the life cycle of some plants, esp. certain fungi.
3. Biol. = POLYMORPHISM.

ple'o·mor'phist (-fĭst), n. An advocate of a (biological) theory of pleomorphism.

ple'o·mor'phous (-fŭs), adj. Pleomorphic.

ple'o·mor'phy (plē'ō·môr'fĭ), n. Pleomorphism.

ple'on (plē'ŏn), n. [NL., fr. Gr. pleōn, pres. part. of plein to swim, sail.] Zool. a A crustacean's abdomen. b Telson of a king crab. — ple'o·nal (-ō·nȧl; -n'l), adj. — ple·on'ic (plē·ŏn'ĭk), adj.

ple'o·nasm (plē'ō·năz'm), n. [LL. pleonasmus, fr. Gr. pleonasmos, fr. pleonazein to be more than enough, to abound, fr. pleon, neut. of pleōn, pleiōn, more, compar. of polys much. See FULL; cf. POLY-, PLUS.] 1. Gram. & Rhet. Redundancy or fullness of language in speaking or writing; the use of more words than are necessary to express the bare idea (I saw it with my own eyes; the eye, too, it looks out); also, a case of this, or the redundant or unnecessary word or expression.
2. Redundancy; a redundant thing.
Syn. — See REDUNDANCY.

ple'o·nast (plē'ō·năst), n. One addicted to pleonasm. Rare.

ple'o·naste (plē'ō·năst), n. [LGr. pleonastos abundant, rich; — with ref. to number of faces.] Spinel of a black transparent variety used as a gem; ceylonite.

ple'o·nas'tic (plē'ō·năs'tĭk), adj. Of or pertaining to, of the nature of, characterized by, or constituting, pleonasm.

ple'o·nas'ti·cal (-năs'tĭ·kȧl), adj. Pleonastic. Rare.

ple'o·nec'tic (-nĕk'tĭk), adj. Covetous.

ple'o·nex'i·a (-nĕk'sĭ·ȧ), n. [Gr.] Covetousness; avarice.

ple'o·pod (plē'ō·pŏd), n. [pleon + -pod.] Zool. One of the abdominal limbs of a crustacean.

ple·op'o·dite (plē·ŏp'ō·dīt), n. Zool. A pleopod.

Ple·os'po·ra (plē·ŏs'pō·rȧ), n. [NL., fr. pleo- + -spora.] Bot. A genus of sphere fungi (order Sphaeriales) having brown muriform ascospores in scattered or gregarious perithecia. P. gramineum causes barley stripe. It typifies the family Ple'o·spo·ra'ce·ae (plē'ō·spō·rā'sē·ē). Cf. HELMINTHOSPORIUM.

pler·er'gate (plēr·ûr'gāt), n. [Gr. plērēs full, gorged + ergatēs worker.] Zool. An ant worker that has the abdomen greatly swollen with stored liquid food, as a honey ant.

ple'ro·cer'coid (plēr'ō·sûr'koĭd), n. [Gr. plērēs full + cerc- + -oid.] Zool. The solid, elongate larva of certain tapeworms, esp. that of the fish tapeworm. — adj. Of or pertaining to such a larva.

ple·ro'ma (plē·rō'mȧ), n. [Gr. plērōma.] 1. Fullness; specif.: a Bib. Theol. The fullness of divine excellences and powers (cf. Eph. iii.19; Col. i.19, ii.9). b Gnosticism. The fullness of being of the divine life, comprising the aeons as well as the uncreated monad (or, according to some, dyad) from which they have proceeded.
2. Bot. = PLEROME.
— ple'ro·mat'ic (plēr'ō·măt'ĭk), adj.

pleroma violet. A color, bluish blue-red in hue, of medium saturation and low brilliance. Cf. COLOR.

ple'rome (plē'rōm), n. [Gr. plerom, fr. Gr. plērōma that which fills up.] Bot. The central portion of the primary meristem at the growing points of stems and roots. It lies within the periblem, and has been supposed to give rise to the stele.

ple'ro·morph (plēr'ō·môrf), n. [Gr. plērēs full + -morph.] Cryst. A kind of pseudomorph believed to have been formed by infiltration.

ple·roph'o·ry (plē·rŏf'ō·rĭ), n. [Gr. plērōphoria, fr. plērēs full + pherein to bear.] Subjective complete assurance.
— ple'ro·phor'ic (plēr'ō·fŏr'ĭk), adj. Rare.

ple·ro'sis (plē·rō'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. plērōsis a filling up, fr. plēroun to fill.] Med. Restoration of lost tissue, as after illness. — ple·rot'ic (-rŏt'ĭk), adj. & n.

ple'si·o- (plē'sĭ·ō-), ple'si- (plē'sĭ-). A combining form, Greek plēsio-, plēsi-, from plēsios, meaning near, close, as in *plesio*morphous.

ple'si·o·bi·o'sis (plē'sĭ·ō·bī·ō'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. plesio- + -biosis.] Zool. Symbiosis in which two species, as of ants or termites, regularly nest in close proximity. — ple'si·o·bi·ot'ic (-ŏt'ĭk), adj.

ple'si·o·mor'phous (plē'sĭ·ō·môr'fŭs), adj. [plesio- + -morphous.] Cryst. Crystallizing in closely similar forms while unlike in chemical composition. — ple'si·o·mor'phic (-fĭk), adj. — ple'si·o·mor'phism (-fĭz'm), n.

Ple'si·o·sau'ri·a (-sô'rĭ·ȧ), Ple'si·o·sau'ri (-sô'rī), n. pl. [NL. See PLESIOSAURUS.] Paleontol. A suborder of Mesozoic marine reptiles (Sauropterygia) including Plesiosaurus, Pliosaurus, etc. — ple'si·o·sau'r(i) (plē'sĭ·ō·sôr'), n. — ple'si·o·sau'ri·an (-sô'rĭ·ăn), adj. & n. — ple'si·o·sau'roid (-roid), adj.

Ple'si·o·sau'rus (-sô'rŭs), n. [NL., fr. plesio- + -saurus.] Paleontol. a A genus of marine reptiles, of the Mesozoic of Europe and North America, having a very long neck, a small head, and all four limbs developed as paddles for swimming. Several species are known, the largest (P. conybeari) about sixteen feet long. b [not cap.; pl. -RI (-rī).] An animal of this genus.

Plesiosaurus (P. dolichodeirus). A Ventral view of Skeleton; B C Dorsal and Lateral views of Skull.

ple'si·o·type' (plē'sĭ·ō·tīp'), n. [plesio- + -type.] An apotype specimen used by an author other than the original describer.

ples'si·graph (plĕs'ĭ·grȧf; 83), n. [Gr. plēssein to strike + -graph.] Med. A form of pleximeter.

ples'sor (plĕs'ôr), n. [Cf. Gr. plēssein to strike.] Med. A small hammer employed in percussion.

‖plet (plĕt), n. Also plete. [Russian plet'.] A kind of whip having three lashes tipped with lead balls.

Pleth'o·don (plĕth'ō·dŏn), n. [NL., fr. Gr. plēthys fullness + -odon.] Zool. The genus including the common red-backed, or dusky, salamander (P. cinereus). It is the type of a family, Pleth'o·don'ti·dae (-dŏn'tĭ·dē), comprising numerous mostly small, chiefly North American, terrestrial or brook-inhabiting forms which have neither lungs nor gills when adult. — pleth'o·don'tid (-tĭd), n. & adj.

pleth'o·ra (plĕth'ō·rȧ; the etymological plē·thō'rȧ is but little used), n. [NL., fr. Gr. plēthōrē, fr. plēthein to be or become full. See FULL.] 1. a Med. A morbid condition characterized by an excess of blood in the body. b Old Med. A superabundance of nutritive material in the organs of the body.
2. Carpentry. A defective or diseased condition of wood due to hypertrophy of the tissues.
3. State of being overfull; excess; superabundance.
He labors under a plethora of wit and imagination. Jeffrey.

ple·thor'ic (plē·thŏr'ĭk; plĕth'ō·rĭk; 277), adj. [ML. plethoricus, fr. Gr. plēthōrikos; cf. F. pléthorique.] 1. Having a full habit of body; characterized by plethora; as, a plethoric constitution.
2. Overfull; overloaded; inflated; turgid; bombastic; as, a hamper grown plethoric. "Plethoric phrases." Sydney Smith.

ple·thor'i·cal (plē·thŏr'ĭ·kȧl), adj. Plethoric. Rare. — ple·thor'i·cal·ly, adv.

pleth'o·rous (plĕth'ō·rŭs), adj. Plethoric.

pleth'o·ry (plĕth'ō·rĭ), n. Plethora. Now Rare.

ple·thys'mo·graph (plē·thĭz'mō·grȧf; plē·thĭs'-; 83), n. [Gr. plēthysmos an enlargement + -graph.] Physiol. An instrument for determining and registering variations in size of an organ or limb, and hence variations in the amount of blood occurring there. — ple·thys'mo·graph'ic (-grȧf'ĭk), adj. — ple·thys'mo·graph'i·cal·ly (-ĭ·kȧl·ĭ), adv.

pleth'ys·mog'ra·phy (plĕth'ĭz·mŏg'rȧ·fĭ; plĕth'ĭs-), n. Physiol. The art of using the plethysmograph.

pleur- (pron. varies between plōōr- and plŏŏr-; 242). = PLEURO- (which see), as in pleur·al'gi·a, pleur·al'gic, pleur·ec'to·my, pleu'ro·dyn'i·a, pleu'ro·dyn'ic. See -ALGIA, etc.

pleu'ra (plōōr'ȧ; 242), n.; pl. PLEURAE (-ē). [ML., fr. Gr. pleura a rib, the side. See PLEURISY.] 1. Anat. & Zool. The delicate serous membrane which lines each half of the thorax of mammals and is reflected over the surface of the lung of the same side. Each has the form of a completely closed sac, one wall of which (the pulmonary layer, or ‖pleu'ra pul'mo·na'lis) is closely adherent to the lung as far as the root of that organ, where it is continuous with the other wall (the parietal layer, or ‖pleu'ra cos·ta'lis [kŏs·tā'lĭs], which passes outward to adhere to the pericardium, the side of the thorax, the superior surface of the diaphragm, etc. The space between the two walls (the cavity of the pleura) contains a small quantity of serous fluid by which respiratory movements are rendered almost frictionless.
2. Zool. a A lateral part, as a mollusk radula. b A pleuron.

-pleu'ra. [NL.] 1. Bot. A combining form from Greek pleura, meaning side, used to denote a lining or girdle, as in endo*pleura.*
2. Zool. A combining form for pleura, as in di*pleura*, epi*pleura.*

Pleu'ra·can'thus (plōōr'ȧ·kăn'thŭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. pleuron rib + akantha spine.] Paleontol. A genus of Paleozoic elasmobranchs of the group Ichthyotomi of the Carboniferous and Lower Permian of Europe and North America, having a terminal mouth, long dorsal fin, and a strong serrated spine on the nape. It is the type of a family Pleu'ra·can'thi·dae (-thĭ·dē). — pleu'ra·can'thoid (-thoid), adj. & n.

pleu'ral (plōōr'ȧl; 242), adj. a Anat. Of or pertaining to the pleura or pleurae, or the sides of the thorax. b Zool. Of or pertaining to a pleuron or pleurite.

pleu'ral, n. Zool. a A bony process in turtles, lying superficial to the ribs and uniting them, and thereby forming most of the carapace. b In fishes, a rib, or long ray of bone, articulating with a vertebra and extending ventrally into the abdominal wall.

pleural effusion. Med. a An exudation of fluid from the blood or lymph capillaries into a pleural cavity. b An exudate in a pleural cavity.

pleural ganglion. Zool. In most mollusks, either of a pair of ganglia sending nerves to the mantle, parts of the body wall behind the head, etc. They often lie close to, or are fused with, the cerebral ganglia.

pleu'ra·poph'y·sis (plōōr'ȧ·pŏf'ĭ·sĭs; 242), n.; pl. -SES (-sēz). [NL. See PLEURA; APOPHYSIS.] Zool. A laterally or more or less ventrally directed process or appendage of a vertebra forming a rib or part corresponding to a rib; a rib considered as a part of a vertebra. See 1st RIB. — pleu·rap'o·phys'i·al (plōō·răp'ō·fĭz'ĭ·ȧl), adj.

pleur·en'chy·ma (plōōr·ĕng'kĭ·mȧ; 242), n. [NL., fr. pleur- + enchyma.] Bot. Wood tissue. — pleur'en·chym'a·tous (plōōr'ĕng·kĭm'ȧ·tŭs), adj. Both Rare.

pleu'ri- (see PLEUR-) = PLEURO-, as in pleu'ri·sep'tate.

pleu'ric (plōōr'ĭk), adj. [Gr. pleurikos costal.] Pleural.

pleu'ri·sy (plōōr'ĭ·sĭ; 242; 277), n. [OF. pleurisie (F. pleurésie), fr. LL. pleurisis (ML. pleuresis), fr. pleuritis, fr. Gr. pleuritis, fr. pleura rib, side, of obscure origin.] 1. Med. Inflammation of the pleura, usually accompanied with fever, painful and difficult respiration, cough, and exudation into the pleural cavity.
2. Usually plu'ri·sy. [As if fr. L. plus, pluris, by confusion.] Superabundance; excess; plethora. Obs.

pleurisy root. The butterfly weed Asclepias tuberosa; also, its root, used as a diaphoretic and expectorant, esp. in pleurisy.

pleu·rit'ic (plōō·rĭt'ĭk), adj. [F. or L.; F. pleurétique, fr. L. pleuriticus, pleuriticus, fr. Gr. pleuritikos.] Med. Of or pertaining to pleurisy; suffering from pleurisy.

pleu·ri'tis (-rī'tĭs), n. [Gr. See PLEURISY.] Med. Pleurisy.

pleu'ro- (see PLEUR-), pleur-. A combining form, Greek pleuro-, pleur-, from pleura, meaning rib, side, used to denote relation to a side; specif., connection with, or situation in or near, the pleura, as in pleuroperitoneum, pleu'ror·rhe'a, pleu'ro·spasm. See -RRHEA, SPASM. Pleuro- in adjectives denotes also pleural and, as in pleu'ro·per'i·car'di·al, pleu'ro·per'i·to·ne'al, pleu'ro·per'i·to·nae'al, pleu'ro·pul'mo·nar'y, pleu'ro·ty'phoid. See PERICARDIAL, PERITONEAL, etc.

Pleu'ro·bra'chi·a (plōōr'ō·brā'kĭ·ȧ; -brăk'ĭ·ȧ), n. [NL. See PLEURO-; BRACHIUM.] Zool. A genus of globose or ovoid relatively firm-bodied ctenophores, the type of a family, Pleu'ro·bra·chi'i·dae (-brā·kĭ'ĭ·dē), of the Cydippida.

pleu'ro·branch (plōōr'ō·brăngk), n. Also pleu'ro·bran'chi·a (-brăng'kĭ·ȧ), pl. -CHIAE (-ē). [NL. See PLEURO-; -BRANCHIA.] Zool. In crustaceans, a gill arising from the side of the thorax. — pleu'ro·bran'chi·al (-ȧl), pleu'ro·bran'chi·ate (-āt), adj.

pleu'ro·bron·chi'tis (-brŏng·kī'tĭs), n. [NL.] Med. Combined pleurisy and bronchitis.

Pleu'ro·cap'sa (plōōr'ō·kăp'sȧ), n. [NL., fr. pleuro- + L. capsa case.] Bot. A genus of branching, filamentous, epiphytic, blue-green algae sometimes classed among the Chamaesiphonaceae, but often regarded as the type of a separate family, Pleu'ro·cap·sa'ce·ae (-kăp·sā'sē·ē). — pleu'ro·cap·sa'ceous (-shŭs), adj.

pleu'ro·carp (plōōr'ō·kärp), n. Bot. Any pleurocarpous moss.

Pleu'ro·car'pi (-kär'pī; 242), n. pl. [NL.] Bot. A group of mosses of the order Bryales comprising the pleurocarpous forms.

pleu'ro·car'pous (-pŭs), adj. Also pleu'ro·car'pic (-pĭk). [pleuro- + -carpous.] Bot. In bryology, bearing the archegonia and sporogonia on short lateral branches; — opposed to acrocarpous.

pleu'ro·cele (plōōr'ō·sēl), n. [pleuro- + -cele.] Med. Hernia of the pleura.

pleu'ro·cen·te'sis (-sĕn·tē'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. pleuro- + centesis.] Surg. The operation of puncturing the pleura.

pleu'ro·cen'trum (-sĕn'trŭm), n.; pl. -TRA (-trȧ). [NL. See PLEURO-; CENTRUM.] Paleontol. One of a pair of dorsal and lateral elements of the centrum of the vertebrae of certain fishes and extinct amphibians. They represent, or are formed from, dorsal arcualia. — pleu'ro·cen'tral (-trȧl), adj.

Pleu·roc'er·a (plōō·rŏs'ĕr·ȧ; 242), n. [NL., fr. pleuro- + Gr. keras horn.] Zool. A large genus of American fresh-water snails similar to Melania, but having the mantle edge entire and the copulatory organ not developed. It is the type of a family, Pleu'ro·cer'i·dae (plōōr'-ō·sĕr'ĭ·dē), of the suborder Taenioglossa. — pleu·roc'er·oid (plōō·rŏs'ĕr·oĭd), adj.

An American Pleurocera. Nat. size.

pleu'ro·cer'e·bral (plōōr'ō·sĕr'ē·brȧl), adj. Zool. Connecting the pleural and cerebral ganglia of a mollusk.

Pleu'ro·coc'cus (plōōr'ō·kŏk'ŭs), n. [NL., fr. pleuro- + -coccus.] Bot. A genus of unicellular green algae constituting a family, Pleu'ro·coc·ca'ce·ae (-kō·kā'sē·ē), and typified by the common terrestrial species P. vulgaris (syn. naegelii), abundant as a green film on tree trunks, moist rocks, flowerpots, etc. The mature cells are rounded and solitary but when dividing often occur in characteristic groups of two or more. There is one large peripheral chloroplast, usually, perhaps always, without a pyrenoid. This genus is much confused with Chlorococcum and is commonly, esp. in older classifications, placed in the order Chlorococcales, but sometimes classed among the Chaetophorales. Syn. Protococcus. — pleu'ro·coc·ca'ceous (-kō·kā'shŭs), adj.

Pleu'ro·dei'ri·dae (-dē'ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Pleurodeles, type genus + -idae.] Syn. of SALAMANDRIDAE (in part).

Pleu'ro·di'ra (plōōr'ō·dī'rȧ), n. pl. [NL., fr. pleuro- + Gr. derē, deirē, the neck.] Zool. An extensive group (commonly ranked as a suborder) of fresh-water turtles in which the neck cannot be retracted, but is bent laterally beneath the front of the carapace. The matamata is an example. — pleu'ro·di'ran (plōōr'ō·dī'răn), adj. & n. — pleu'ro·dire (plōōr'ō·dīr), adj. & n. — pleu'ro·di'rous (-dī'rŭs), adj.

pleu'ro·dis'cous (plōōr'ō·dĭs'kŭs), adj. [pleuro- + disc- + -ous.] Biol. Laterally attached to a disk, as an appendage.

pleu'ro·dont (plōōr'ō·dŏnt; 242), adj. [pleur- + -odont.] Zool. Having the teeth consolidated with the inner edge of the jaw, as in guanas. — n. Any pleurodont lizard.

pleu'ro·gen'ic (plōōr'ō·jĕn'ĭk; 242), adj. [pleuro- + -genic.] Med. Originating in the pleura.

pleu'ro·hep'a·ti'tis (-hĕp'ȧ·tī'tĭs), n. [NL.] Inflammation of pleura and liver.

pleu'ro·lith (plōōr'ō·lĭth; 242), n. [pleuro- + -lith.] Med. A concretion in the pleura.

pleu'ron (plōōr'ŏn; 242), n.; pl. -RA (-ȧ). [NL., fr. Gr. pleuron a rib.] Zool. One of the sides of an animal; esp.: a One of the lateral parts or pieces of a thoracic segment of an insect, generally consisting of a lower posterior part, called the epimeron, and an upper anterior part, the episternum. b One of the lateral processes of a somite of a crustacean between the tergum and sternum.

Pleu'ro·nec'ti·dae (plōōr'ō·nĕk'tĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. pleuro- + Gr. nektēs a swimmer.] Zool. A family formerly including all the flatfishes but now either regarded as consisting of the halibuts, plaice, dabs, and related forms or restricted to the plaice and its near allies. The type genus is Pleu'ro·nec'tes (-tēz). See FLATFISH, FLOUNDER. — pleu'ro·nec'tid (-tĭd), n. & adj. — pleu'ro·nec'toid (-toid), adj. & n.

plenum ventilation. See VENTILATION.

ple'o·ma'zi·a (plē'ō·mȧ'zhĭ·ȧ; -zĭ·ȧ), n. = PLEOMASTIA.

ple'o·morph (plē'ō·môrf), n. [pleo- + -morph.] = 2d POLYMORPH.

ple'o·nas'ti·cal·ly, adv. of PLEONASTIC, -ICAL.

pleonastic genitive. Gram. = DOUBLE POSSESSIVE. See POSSESSIVE. Rare. [PHYLETIC.]

ple'o·phy·let'ic, adj. = POLYple'rom. Var. of PLEROME.

ples, pleasance, etc. † PLEASE, PLEASANCE, etc.

ples·sim'e·ter (plĕ·sĭm'ē·tĕr), ples·sim'met·ric (plĕs'ĭ·mĕt'rĭk), ples·sim'e·try (plĕ·sĭm'ē·trĭ), n. [F. plessimètre.] = PLEXIMETER, etc. [var. of PLAT, PLAIT.]

plet (plĕt). Scot. & dial. Eng.]

plete. † PLATE, PLEA, PLEAD, PLEAT.

pleth'o·ret'ic (plĕth'ō·rĕt'ĭk), adj. Plethoric. Rare.

pleth'ron (plĕth'rŏn), -rum (-rŭm), n.; pl. -RA (-rȧ). [NL., fr. Gr. plethron.] Gr. Antiq. See MEASURE, Table.

pleu (plū), pleuch, plough (plūk). Vars. of PLOW. Now Dial.

pleu'ra, n., pl. of PLEURON.

Pleu'ra·can'the·a (plōōr'ȧ·kăn'thē·ȧ). Pleu'ra·can·thi'ni (-kăn·thī'nĭ), n. pl. [NL.] Syns. of ICHTHYOTOMI. [RITIC. Obs.] pleu·rat'ic. Erron. for PLEUpleu'rite (plōōr'ĭt; 242), n. = PLEURON b.

pleu·rit'i·cal (plōō·rĭt'ĭ·kȧl), adj. = PLEURITIC. — pleu·rit'i·cal·ly, adv.

pleu·rog'e·nous (plōō·rŏj'ē·nŭs), adj. = PLEUROGENIC.

pleu'roid, adj. = PLEURAL, adj.

pleu·rol'y·sis (plōō·rŏl'ĭ·sĭs), n. [NL.] = PNEUMOLYSIS.

Pleu'ro·ne'ma (plōōr'ō·nē'mȧ), n. [NL., fr. pleuro- + -nema.] Zool. A genus of holotrichous infusorians of fresh and salt water having an ovoid body with a folding undulating membrane. See HOLOTRICHA.

pleu·rop'e·dal (plōō·rŏp'ē·dăl; plōōr'ō·pē'dăl; -d'l; 242), adj. Zool. Connecting a mollusk's pleural and pedal ganglia.

pleu'ro·per'i·car·di'tis (plōōr'ō·pĕr'ĭ·kär·dī'tĭs), n. [NL.] Med. Inflammation of the pleura and the pericardium.

pleu'ro·per'i·to·ne'um (-tō·nē'ŭm), n. Also pleu'ro·per'i·to·nae'um. [NL.] Zool. The membrane lining the body cavity and covering the surface of the enclosed viscera of vertebrates having no diaphragm, — regarded as representing both pleura and peritoneum. It is often called simply peritoneum (which see).

pleu'ro·pneu·mo'ni·a (-nū·mō'nĭ·ȧ; 159), n. [NL.] 1. Med. Inflammation of the pleura and lungs; a combination of pleurisy and pneumonia.
2. Veter. Any of various inflammatory states of the lungs and pleura of animals, as infectious pleuropneumonia, a pulmonary form of equine influenza. — pleu'ro·pneu·mon'ic (-mŏn'ĭk), adj.

pleu'ro·po'di·um (plōōr'ō·pō'dĭ·ŭm), n.; pl. -DIA (-ȧ). [NL., fr. pleuro- + -podium.] Zool. One of a pair of glandular organs of unknown function on the first abdominal segment of some insects.

Pleu·rop'ter·yg'i·i (plōō·rŏp'tĕr·ĭj'ĭ·ī), n. pl. [NL., fr. pleuro- + Gr. pterygion fin.] Paleontol. An order of small primitive Devonian elasmobranchs, including only the family Cladoselachidae in which the paired fins were supported by unjointed, parallel radial cartilages extending straight outward to the foldlike fin membrane. — pleu·rop'ter·yg'i·an (-ăn), adj.

Pleu'ro·sau'rus (plōōr'ō·sô'rŭs), n. [NL., fr. pleuro- + -saurus.] Paleontol. A genus of parapsidan reptiles from the Upper Jurassic of Europe. They had serpentiform body, short legs, and slender head.

Pleu'ro·sig'ma (-sĭg'mȧ), n. [NL., fr. pleuro- + sigma.] Bot. A genus of diatoms of the family Naviculaceae. P. angulatum has very fine striae and is used to test the definition of lenses.

Pleu·ros'te·on (plōō·rŏs'tē·ŏn), n. [NL., fr. pleur- + Gr. osteon a bone.] Zool. The anterolateral piece of the sternum of a young bird. — pleu·ros'te·al (-ăl), adj.

Pleu'ro·stic'ti (plōōr'ō·stĭk'tī; 242), n. pl. [NL., fr. pleuro- + Gr. stiktos pricked.] Zool. A division including most scarabaeid beetles, having only the anterior three abdominal spiracles on the connecting membranes. — pleu'ro·stict (plōō'rō·stĭkt), adj. & n.

Pleu'ro·stig'ma (-stĭg'mȧ), n. pl. [NL., fr. pleuro- + -stigma.] Zool. A subclass of Chilopoda, including the majority of the centipedes.

pleu'ro·thot'o·nus (plōōr'ō·thŏt'ō·nŭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. pleurothen from the side + tonos a stretching.] Med. Tonic spasm in which the body is curved laterally. It sometimes occurs in tetanus. — pleu'ro·tho·ton'ic (-thō·tŏn'ĭk), adj.

Pleu·rot'o·ma (plōō·rŏt'ō·mȧ; 242), n. [NL., fr. pleuro- + Gr. tomē a cut.] Zool. A genus of marine snails (suborder Stenoglossa) having a spindle-shaped shell, type of a family, Pleu'ro·tom'i·dae (plōōr'ō·tŏm'ĭ·dē). — pleu·rot'o·mine (plōō·rŏt'ō·mĭn; -mīn; 156), adj. — pleu·rot'o·moid (-moid), adj. & n.

Pleurotoma (P. babylonica).

Pleu'ro·to·ma'ri·a (plōōr'ō·tō·mā'rĭ·ȧ; 79; 242), n. [NL., fr. pleuro- + Gr. tomē a cutting + -aria.] Zool. & Paleontol. An extensive genus of two-gilled gastropods (Rhipidoglossa) having usually a trochiform nacreous shell with a broad sinus in the outer margin of the last whorl, extending back around the whorls as a raised band. It has existed since the Silurian, but the living species are few, confined to the deep sea in a few parts of the world, and individuals are very rare. It is the only living genus of a large family, Pleu'ro·tom'a·ri'i·dae (-tŏm'ȧ·rĭ'ĭ·dē), known from the early Ordovician, but almost extinct during the Tertiary. — pleu'ro·to·mar'i·oid (-tō·mär'ĭ·oid), adj. & n.

pleu·rot'o·my (plōō·rŏt'ō·mĭ), n. [pleuro- + -tomy.] Surg. The cutting of the pleura.

Pleu'ro·tre'ma·ta (plōōr'ō·trē'mȧ·tȧ; -trĕm'ȧ·tȧ), n. pl. [NL., fr. pleuro- + -tremata.] Zool. In some classifications, an order of elasmobranchs including the sharks. Cf. HYPOTREMATA.

pleu'ro·tribe (plōōr'ō·trīb; 242), adj. [pleuro- + Gr. tribein to rub.] Bot. Touching or rubbing the side; — said of certain heterogamous flowers cross-pollinated by visiting insects. Cf. NOTOTRIBE.

pleu·rot'ro·pous (plōō·rŏt'rō·pŭs; 242), adj. [pleuro- + -tropous.] Bot. Flattened on the sides.

Pleu·ro'tus (plōō·rō'tŭs), n. [NL., fr. pleur- + Gr. ous, ōtos, ear.] Bot. A genus of white-spored agarics having the pileus laterally sessile or with an eccentric stipe. P. ostreatus is the common oyster mushroom and P. phosphoreus is the olive-tree agaric.

-pleu'rous (see PLEUR-). A combining form from Greek pleura, rib, side, as in anisopleurous.

pleu'ro·vis'cer·al (plōōr'ō·vĭs'ēr·ăl), adj. Zool. Connecting the pleural and visceral ganglia of mollusks.

pleu'rum (plōōr'ŭm), n. [NL.] The pleuron.

plew (plōō), n. [Can. F. plus, pêlu; F. pelu, poilu, hairy.] A beaver skin. Canada & Western U. S.

plew, plewe (plū; plōō), plewch, plewgh (plūk). Scot. & dial. Eng. vars. of PLOW.

plex (plĕks), v. i. & t. [See PLEXUS.] To form a plexus, or network; to make plexiform.

-plex (-plĕks). A combining form, Latin -plex, meaning -fold, from plicare, to fold, as in decem*plex*.

plex'al (plĕk'săl), adj. Pertaining to a plexus or plexuses.

-plex'i·a (-plĕk'sĭ·ȧ). [NL.] Med. A combining form, Greek -plexia, from plēxis, a stroke, as in holo*plexia*. Cf. -PLEGIA.

plex'i·cose (plĕk'sĭ·kōs), adj. Of the character of a plexus, or formed of plexuses.

plex'i·form (plĕk'sĭ·fôrm), adj. [plexus + -form; cf. F. plexiforme.] Like a network, or plexus; complicated.

plex·im'e·ter (plĕks·ĭm'ē·tĕr), n. [Gr. plēxis stroke (fr. plēssein to strike) + -meter.] Med. A small, hard, flat plate, as of ivory, placed in contact with the body to receive the blow, in mediate percussion. — plex'i·met'ric (plĕk'sĭ·mĕt'rĭk), adj. — plex·im'e·try (plĕks·ĭm'ē·trĭ), n.

plex'o·dont (plĕk'sō·dŏnt), adj. [plexus + -odont.] Anat. & Zool. Characterized by molar teeth having complicated crown patterns and multiple roots.

plex'or (plĕk'sôr), n. [Gr. plēxis stroke.] Med. A plessor.

plex'ure (plĕk'shĕr), n. [See PLEXUS.] A weaving together; that which is woven together.

plex'us (plĕk'sŭs), n.; pl. PLEXUSES (-ĕz; -ĭz; 119), PLEXUS. [L., a twining, braid, fr. plectere, plexum, to twine, braid. See PLY.] 1. Anat. A network, esp. of anastomosing or interlacing blood vessels or nerves. Cf. BRACHIAL PLEXUS, SOLAR PLEXUS, etc.
2. An intricate or interwoven combination of elements or parts in a coherent structure; a network; as, a plexus of mutual rights.

‖plex'us my'en·te'ri·cus (mī'ĕn·tĕr'ĭ·kŭs). [NL.] = AUERBACH'S PLEXUS.

plex'us of Au'er·bach (ou'ĕr·bäk). = AUERBACH'S PLEXUS.

plex'us of Meiss'ner (mīs'nĕr). Meissner's plexus.

pli'a·ble (plī'ȧ·b'l), adj. [F., fr. plier to bend. See PLIANT.]
1. Capable of being bent; easy to be bent or worked; flexible; pliant; supple; limber; as, osier twigs are pliable.
2. Flexible in disposition or character; easily influenced; — sometimes in a bad sense; as, a pliable judge.
3. Applicable; suitable; — aphetic for APPLIABLE. Obs.
Syn. and Ant. — See FLEXIBLE.
— pli'a·bil'i·ty (plī'ȧ·bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — pli'a·ble·ness, n. — pli'a·bly, adv.

Pli'a·ble, n. A character in Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress.

pli'ant (plī'ănt), adj. [OF., pres. part. of plier to bend. See PLY.] 1. Bending; readily yielding without breaking; flexible; pliable; workable; as, a pliant thread; pliant wax. Also, figuratively, easily influenced; yielding; compliant.
The will was then ductile and pliant to right reason. South.
2. Favorable to yielding. Rare. "A pliant hour." Shak.
3. Capable of adaptation; as, a pliant style.
Syn. and Ant. — See FLEXIBLE.
— pli'an·cy (plī'ăn·sĭ), n. — pli'ant·ly, adv. — pli'ant·ness, n.

pli'ca (plī'kȧ), n.; pl. -CAE (-sē). [NL., a fold, fr. L. plicare to fold. See PLY.] 1. A disorder of the hair in which it becomes twisted, matted, and crusted, usually as a result of neglect, filth, and infestation by vermin. Reported in the sixteenth century and reputed to be endemic in Poland (L. Polonia), it was known as pli'ca po·lon'i·ca (pō·lŏn'ĭ·kȧ) or, translated, Polish plait.
2. A fold or folded part; a bend, as a fold of skin.
3. Bot. A lamella or gill of a fungus.
4. Medieval Music. A kind of ligature.

The Long Plica (4): a Ascending; b Descending.

‖pli'ca a·la'ris (ȧ·lā'rĭs). [NL. alaris of the wing.] Zool. The fold of skin along the front of a bird's wing, stretching from the shoulder to the wrist joint.

plic'a·ble (plĭk'ȧ·b'l), adj. Pliable. Rare.

‖pli'ca cir'cu·la'ris (sûr'kū·lā'rĭs); pl. PLICAE CIRCULARES (plī'sē sûr'kū·lā'rēz). [NL.] Anat. One of numerous permanent crescentic folds of mucous membrane found in the small intestine, esp. the lower part of the duodenum and the jejunum; — called also valvula connivens.

‖pli'ca e'pi·gas'tri·ca (ĕp'ĭ·găs'trĭ·kȧ); pl. PLICAE EPIGASTRICAE (ĕp'ĭ·găs'trĭ·sē). [NL.] Anat. One of two peritoneal folds on either side of the mid-line, covering the inferior epigastric artery, and extending from the abdominal inguinal ring to the umbilicus.

‖pli'ca fim'bri·a'ta (fĭm'brĭ·ā'tȧ); pl. PLICAE FIMBRIATAE (plī'sē fĭm'brĭ·ā'tē). [NL. See FIMBRIATE.] Anat. A fringelike fold on the under surface of the tongue on either side of the frenulum, said to represent the under tongue of some mammals, as the lemurs.

pli'cal (plī'kăl), adj. Bot. Pert. to, or exhibiting, plicae.

‖pli'ca se'mi·lu·na'ris (sĕm'ĭ·lū·nā'rĭs); pl. PLICAE SEMILUNARES (-rēz). [NL. semilunaris like a half-moon.] Anat. a The vertical fold of conjunctiva occupying the inner canthus of the eye. It represents the nictitating membrane. b = PLICA SEMILUNARIS COLI.

‖pli'ca se'mi·lu·na'ris co'li (kō'lĭ); pl. PLICAE SEMILUNARES COLI. [NL.] Anat. One of various heavy crescentic folds of mucous membrane separating the pouches, or haustra, of the large intestine.

‖pli'ca sub'lin·gua'lis (sŭb'lĭng·gwā'lĭs); pl. PLICAE SUBLINGUALES (-lēz). [NL.] Anat. A transverse fold of mucous membrane at the base of the tongue on either side of the frenulum, overlying the sublingual gland, and studded with the ten or twelve openings of the sublingual ducts, or ducts of Rivinus.

pli'cate (plī'kăt), adj. [L. plicatus, past part. of plicare to fold.] 1. Plaited; folded like a fan; as, a plicate leaf.
2. Zool. a Folded. b Having parallel ridges on the surface.
— pli'cate·ly, adv. — pli'cate·ness, n.

-plicate. A combining form of plicate, as in quadru*plicate,* tri*plicate.*

pli'cate (plī'kăt), v. t. To fold; to pleat.

pli'cat·ed (plī'kăt·ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. Plicate.

plic'a·tile (plĭk'ȧ·tĭl; 155), adj. [L. plicatilis, fr. plicare to fold.] Capable of being folded; specif., Zool., folding lengthwise, as the wings of certain insects.

pli·ca'tion (plī·kā'shŭn; plĭ-), n. [OF.] 1. Act of folding, or state of being folded.
2. A folding or fold; a plait.
3. Geol. a Folding. b A fold in a stratum.

pli·ca'to- (plī·kā'tō-; plĭ-). A combining form for plicate, denoting plicately, plicate and, as in pli·ca'to·con·tort'ed, pli·ca'to·cris'tate, pli·ca'to·la·cu'nose, pli·ca'to·lo'bate, pli·ca'to·pap'il·lose, pli·ca'to·un'du·late. See the word with which plicato- is combined.

pli·ca'tor (plī·kā'tĕr; plĭ-), n. Anything that makes folds; specif., a plaiting attachment to a sewing machine.

‖pli'ca trans'ver·sa'lis rec'ti (plī'kȧ trăns'vûr·sā'lĭs rĕk'tĭ); pl. PLICAE TRANSVERSALES RECTI (plī'sē, -lēz). [NL.] Anat. The rectal valve.

pli·cat'u·late (plī·kăt'ū·lăt; plĭ-), adj. Minutely plicate.

plic'a·ture (plĭk'ȧ·tûr), n. [L. plicatura, fr. plicare to fold.] Plication.

‖pli'ca um·bi'li·ca'lis la'te·ra'lis (plī'kȧ ŭm·bĭl'ĭ·kā'lĭs lăt'ē·rā'lĭs); pl. PLICAE UMBILICALES LATERALES (-lēz). [NL.] Anat. One of two peritoneal folds on either side near the mid-line, covering the remnant of the umbilical artery, and extending from the sides of the bladder to the umbilicus.

‖pli'ca um·bi'li·ca'lis me'di·a (mē'dĭ·ȧ); pl. PLICAE UMBILICALES MEDIAE (mē'dĭ·ē). [NL.] Anat. A median fold of peritoneum covering the remnant of the urachus from the bladder to the umbilicus.

plici-. A combining form for plica, as in pli·cif'er·ous, plic'i·form. See -FEROUS, -FORM.

pli'er (plī'ĕr), n. [From PLY to apply.] 1. One who or that which plies; also, formerly, a trader.
2. A tout; specif., formerly, one employed to facilitate Fleet marriages. Slang.

Pliers, 2. 1 Ordinary Pliers with long, flat nose; 2 Open-throat Pliers with parallel jaws; 3 Pliers with milled jaws and slip joint combined with Wire Cutter and Screw Driver.

pli'er (plī'ĕr), n. [From PLY to bend.] 1. One who or that which plies.
2. pl., sometimes construed as sing. A kind of small pincers with long jaws, used for bending or cutting metal rods or wire, for handling small objects, etc.

plight (plīt), n. [ME. plit condition, state, manner, prop., a folding, fold, for plet, fr. OF. ploit, earlier pleit; perh. influenced by ply to bend. The spelling with gh is from influence of plight risk, pledge. See PLEAT, PLAIT.] 1. A fold; plait. Obs.
2. Condition; state; — originally good, or indifferent, now usually qualified as bad; as, a luckless plight.
3. Rare. a Bodily state, as to health; also, good health. b A plait of hair. c Attire; dress.
4. Obs. a Of lawn, a certain length or piece; prob. orig., the length or size of a fold. b State of mind; mood.
5. Law. Legal state, position, or status. Obs.
Syn. — See PREDICAMENT.

plight, v. t. [ME. plyten. See PLIGHT a fold.] To plait; braid, fold; embrace. Obs.

plight (plīt), n. [ME. pliht danger, engagement, fr. AS. pliht danger; akin to AS. plēon to risk, also to D. plicht duty, G. pflicht, and to D. plegen to care for, be wont, G. pflegen, OS. plegan to pledge. Cf. PLAY, PLEDGE.] 1. Obs. a Danger; risk. b Sin; guilt; blame; also, defect; want.
2. Pledge (under penalty); engagement. Now Rare.

plight, v. t.; PLIGHT'ED; PLIGHT'ING. [AS. plihtan to expose to danger. See PLIGHT a pledge.] 1. To put in danger of forfeiture; to pledge; to engage; as, to plight faith, troth, honor, word; — never applied to property or goods.
2. To put under a pledge; to bind by a pledge; promise; engage; betroth; — often in the passive; as, a plighted bride.
3. To pledge oneself to do or give; to promise. Obs.

plight. Obs. past tense & past part. of PLITCH.

plight'ed (plīt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. Pledged; engaged.

plight'ed, adj. Folded. "Plighted clouds." Milton.

plight'er (plīt'ĕr), n. One who or that which plights.

plim (plĭm), v. t. & i. [Cf. dial. plum to swell.] To swell; grow plump. Chiefly Dial. — adj. Swollen; filled out. Dial.

plim'soll (plĭm'sŏl; -sŭl), n. A canvas shoe. Australia.

Plim'soll, or Plim'soll's, mark (plĭm'sŏl, -sŭl; -sŏlz, -sŭlz). Also Plimsoll, or Plimsoll's, line. Naut. The load-line mark conspicuously painted on the sides of all British merchant vessels, to indicate the limit of submergence allowed by law; — so called from Samuel Plimsoll, by whose efforts the act of Parliament to prevent overloading was procured. A similar mark has been required since 1930 on all ships registered in the United States.

Plimsoll Mark (for starboard side of vessel; on the port side the markings are reversed). The center of the disk is placed at the middle of the load line. The lines are one inch thick. The letters signify: LR Lloyd's Register of Shipping; TF Tropical Fresh-Water Mark; F Fresh-Water Mark; T Tropical Load Line; S Summer Load Line; W Winter Load Line; WNA Winter Load Line, North Atlantic; LTF Lumber, Tropical, Fresh; LF Lumber, Fresh; LT Lumber, Tropical; LS Lumber, Summer; LW Lumber, Winter; LWNA Lumber, Winter, North Atlantic.

Plin'i·an (plĭn'ĭ·ăn; 159), adj. [L. Plinianus.] Of, pert. to, or named after, either Pliny, esp. the elder. See Biog.

plinth (plĭnth), n. [L. plinthus, fr. Gr. plinthos a brick or tile, a plinth. See FLINT.] 1. Arch. a In classical architecture, a vertically faced member immediately below the circular base of a column; also, the lowest member of a pedestal; hence, in general, the lowest member of a base; a subbase; a block upon which the moldings of an architrave or trim are stopped at the bottom. b A course of stones forming a continuous plinth, as of ashlars forming the foundation or base course of a rubble wall; — called also plinth course.
2. A square block serving as a base for a statue, vase, etc.; also, the squared base of a vase, piece of furniture, etc.
3. Carp. A skirting or baseboard without a molded edge.
4. A couch or low table used for massage, corrective exercises, etc.

plinth'er (plĭn'thĕr), n. One who fits plinth courses.

plinth'i·form (plĭn'thĭ·fôrm), adj. [See -FORM.] Shaped like a plinth.

Plin'y (plĭn'ĭ), n. [L. Plinius.] Masc. proper name.

Plin'y·ism (-ĭz'm), n. A thing characteristically Plinian; esp., a dubious or fantastic assertion concerning natural history.

pli'o- (plī'ō-). Var. of PLEIO-; specif., Pliocene.

Pli'o·cene (plī'ō·sēn), adj. [plio- + -cene.] Geol. Of, pertaining to, or designating, the latest period of the Tertiary. See GEOLOGY, Chart; TERTIARY. — n. The Pliocene period or system. The known Pliocene formations are largely of terrestrial origin. The life of the period was similar to that of the present time.

Pli'o·hip'pus (plī'ō·hĭp'ŭs), n. [NL., fr. Pliocene + Gr. hippos horse.] Paleontol. A genus of extinct one-toed horses, from the North American Pliocene, having strongly hypsodont molar teeth.

---

pleu·rot'o·nus (plōō·rŏt'ō·nŭs), n. [NL.] = PLEUROTHOTONUS. — pleu'ro·ton'ic (plōōr'ō·tŏn'ĭk), adj.

pleu'ro·tri'bal (plōōr'ō·trī'băl), adj. = PLEUROTRIBE.

plev'in, n. [OF. plevine. See REPLEVIN.] Law. Pledge; warrant; assurance. Obs. [Table.]

Plev'na (plĕv'nȧ), n. See BATTLE.

plex·om'e·ter (plĕks·ŏm'ē·tĕr), n. = PLEXIMETER.

pley (dial. plā). Var. of PLEA. Obs. exc. Dial.

Pley'dell rule (plā'dĕl). [After A. C. Pleydell, expert on municipal taxation.] See DEPTH TABLE.

pleye. † PLAY.

pley'fere'. † PLAYFERE.

pleyne. † PLAIN.

plez'ant. Pleasant. Ref. Sp.

plez'ur·a·bl. Pleasurable. Ref. Sp.

plez'ure. Pleasure. Ref. Sp.

pli'a·bl. Pliable. Ref. Sp.

pli'ant·bod'ied, adj. See -BODIED.

pli'ant·necked', adj. See -NECKED.

pli·ca'ter, n. = PLICATOR. [-IVE.

plic'a·tive (plĭk'ȧ·tĭv), adj. See plie. Var. of PLY. [of PLY.

plied (plīd), past tense & past part.

plies (plīz), n., pl. of PLY. — v., 3d pers. sing. of PLY, v.

plinth'less, adj. See -LESS.

plinth'like', adj. See -LIKE.

Pli′o·pi·the′cus (plī′ō·pĭ·thē′kŭs), n. [NL., fr. Pliocene + -pithecus.] Paleontol. A genus of anthropoids found in the Upper Miocene and Lower Pliocene strata of Europe. It is believed to be ancestral to the gibbons, having a very similar dentition.

Pli′o·sau′rus (plī′ō·sô′rŭs), n. [NL., fr. plio- + -saurus.] Paleontol. An extinct genus of marine reptiles allied to Plesiosaurus, but having a much shorter neck and larger head. It is sometimes made the type of a family, Pli′o·sau′ri·dae (-rĭ·dē). — pli′o·saur (plī′ō·sôr), pli′o·sau′ri·an (-sô′rĭ·ăn), adj. & n.

pli′o·ther′mic (-thûr′mĭk), adj. [plio- + therm- + -ic.] Geol. Pertaining to periods of more than average (miothermic) warmth of climate.

Pli′o·tron (plī′ō·trŏn), n. Elec. & Radio. A trade-mark applied to a three-electrode electron tube; hence [sometimes not cap.], the tube bearing this trade-mark. It is used principally for transmission purposes where considerable power is required.

‖pliqué′-à-jour′ (plē̄k′ä·zhōōr′), n. [F.] A style of enameling in which more or less transparent enamels are fused into a framework of cloisons without the foundation or backing found in cloisonné.

plis′kie, plis′ky (plĭs′kĭ), n. A trick; frolic; also, plight. Scot. & N. of Eng. — adj. Mischievous. Scot.

‖plis′sé′ (plē·sā′), n. [F.] Gathering or plaiting.

‖plis′sé′, adj. [F.] Plaited.

plissé crepe. [F. plissé crêpe.] A cotton crepe material, crinkled by mercerizing in stripes, used for undergarments, night clothes, children's garments, etc.

ploat (plōt), v. i. Also plott (plŏt). [D. ploten to remove the wool.] To pluck; fleece. Scot. & N. of Eng.

ploat. Var. of PLOT. Scot. & N. of Eng.

plo′ce (plō′sē; plŏs′ē), n. [L., fr. Gr. plokē complication.] Rhet. Emphatic repetition of a word, with pregnant reference to its special significance ("His wife's a wife indeed").

Plo·ce′i·dae (plō·sē′ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Gr. plokeus, a plaiter, braider.] Zool. A large family of finchlike Old World birds consisting of the weaverbirds. The main subfamily, Plo′ce·i′nae (plō′sē·ĭ′nē), is chiefly African; but the type genus, Plo′ce·us (plō′sē·ŭs), including the baya, is Indian. — plo·ce′i·form (plō·sē′ĭ·fôrm), adj.

plock (plŏk), v. i. To make a sound suggestive of the word plock.

plod (plŏd), v.; PLOD′DED; PLOD′DING. [Prob. imitative of the sound of heavy steps.] Intransitive: 1. To walk heavily; to move or travel slowly but steadily; to trudge. 2. To work laboriously, steadily, and monotonously, as to study laboriously and patiently; to toil; drudge.
3. Hunt. To hang behind, searching too long for the scent in one place; — said of hounds. Obs.
4. By confusion or influence: = PLOT, v. i., 1. Obs.
——, Transitive: 1. To walk slowly or heavily along; to trudge along or through; to make (one's way) thus.
The plowman homeward plods his weary way. Gray.
2. By confusion or influence: = PLOT, v. t.

plod, n. 1. Act or period of plodding; a plodding walk.
2. The sound of a heavy tread, as that of a horse; thud.
The plod-plod of honest old horses. Tarkington.

plod (plŏd). Var. of PLAID. Now Dial.

plod′der (-ēr), n. 1. One who plods; esp., a drudge.
2. Soap Mfg. A machine for plotting.

plod′der·ly (plŏd′ēr·lĭ), adv. Clumsily. Obs.

plod′ding (plŏd′ĭng), adj. That plods; drudging. — plod′ding·ly, adv. — plod′ding·ness, n.

plodge (plŏj), v. i. To wade or walk heavily. Dial.

-ploid (-ploid). Biol. A combining form, Greek -ploos (as in diploos twofold; see DOUBLE), meaning -fold + -oid, used in cytology and genetics to denote, in adjectives and nouns, possessing the basic (haploid) number of chromosomes characteristic of a given group (plant or animal), as in diploid, triploid, etc. Corresponding nouns denoting the condition are formed in -plot′dy (-ploi′dĭ).

Plo′i·ma (plō′ĭ·mä), n. pl. [NL., fr. Gr. plōimos fit for sailing.] Zool. An extensive order of rotifers in which locomotion is performed by the ciliated disc only and which usually have a forked and more or less retractile tail. — plo′i·mate (-māt), adj. & n.

plom-. For words formerly spelled plom-, see PLUM-.

plomb (plŏN), n. [F.] The color lead. Rare.

Plon′-Plon′ (plŏn′plŏn′), n. [F.] Sobriquet of Napoleon Joseph Charles Paul Bonaparte (1822–91).

plop (plŏp), v. i.; PLOPPED (plŏpt); PLOP′PING. [Imitative. Cf. PLAP.] To fall, drop, or move suddenly, as on or to the surface of water, with a sound suggestive of the word plop.
The body plopped up, turning on its side. Kipling.
— v. t. To drop or throw (something) with a plop.

plop, n. Act of plopping; the sound made in plopping, as by a stone dropping into water without splashing.

plop, adv. or interj. With a plop; plump.

plo·ra′tion (plō·rā′shŭn), n. — plo′ra·to′ry (plō′rä·tō′rĭ; plŏr′ä-; 181), adj. [L. ploratio.] Weeping. Both Rare.

plo′sion (plō′zhŭn), n. [From explosion, implosion.] Phonet. Explosion.

plo′sive (plō′sĭv), adj. & n. Phonet. Explosive.

plot (plŏt), v. t.; PLOT′TED; PLOT′TING. [F. peloter to roll into a ball. See PELLET.] To press (milled soap) into cakes.

plot (plŏt), plote (plōt), v. t. [Origin uncert.] To scald; burn; scorch. Scot. & N. of Eng.

plot (plŏt), n. [ME. plot, plotte, patch, a piece of ground, prob. by labialization fr. plat, platte, a piece of ground, plan, and plat, platte, a flat surface. In the sense of a secret design or scheme prob. influenced by complot. AS. plot is isolated and doubtful. See PLAT of ground, PLAT flat thing.] 1. A small, or not large, area of ground or something on the ground; a plat; as, a garden plot; a plot of herbs.
2. A ground plan, as of a building or area; a map; chart; diagram; specif., Surv., a plan or draft of a field, farm, estate, etc., drawn to a scale. Now Chiefly U. S.
3. Any secret scheme, project, design, or plan, usually evil; a conspiracy; intrigue; as, the Gunpowder Plot.
I have overheard a plot of death. Shak.
4. The plan or main story of a literary composition, as a play, novel, romance, or poem, comprising a complication, or causally connected series, of motived incidents which are gradually unfolded, sometimes by unexpected means; also, a similar subordinate complication.
5. Obs. a A spot or mark, as on the skin or on clothing. b Place or situation; location; site, as of a town, laid out. c A plan, scheme, or outline of a literary composition. d A plan or scheme; design. e A share or participation (in something plotted). ‖ Contrivance; ability to devise literary plots. Syn. — See CONSPIRACY.

-plot (-plŏt). A combining form of the noun plot, as in grass*plot*, mar*plot*.

plot (plŏt), v.; PLOT′TED; PLOT′TING. Transitive: 1. To make a plot, map, or plan, of (something in existence); to mark the position of on a plan; to delineate; to draw, esp. by filling in after marking the principal points of, as a diagram.
2. To make a plan of (something to be made or built); to map out; also, to map (land) in plots; — often with out.
3. Specif.: To locate and mark (a point), as on plotting paper, by means of its co-ordinates; to make (a curve) by marking out a number of points in this way; hence, to represent graphically (a mathematical equation) by means of a curve so constructed.
4. To plan; scheme; devise; contrive, esp. secretly or clandestinely. "Plotting an unprofitable crime." Dryden.
5. To invent or devise the plot of, as a play.
6. To lay out or divide (land) in plots. U. S.
——, Intransitive: 1. To form a plot, plan, or scheme, usually of evil or hostile purpose, as against a government or those who administer it; to contrive; scheme; conspire.
The wicked plotteth against the just. Ps. xxxvii. 12.
2. To plan; prepare; intend. Dial., U. S.

plot′ful (plŏt′fōōl; -fl), adj. Full of plots; given to scheming.

Plo·tin′i·an (plō·tĭn′ĭ·ăn), adj. Of or pertaining to Plotinus, the Plotinists, or Plotinism.

Plo·tin′ic (plō·tĭn′ĭk), adj. Also Plo·tin′i·cal (-ĭ·kăl). Plotinian.

Plo·ti′nism (plō·tī′nĭz′m; plō′tĭ·nĭz′m), n. The doctrines of Plotinus (A.D. 205–270), the chief philosopher of the Alexandrian school of Neoplatonists. See NEOPLATONISM. — Plo·ti′nist (-nĭst), n.

Plo·ti′nize (plō·tī′nīz; plō′tĭ·nīz), v. i. To imitate Plotinus.

plot′proof′ (plŏt′prōōf′; 66), adj. Secure against harm by plots.

plot′tage (plŏt′ĭj), n. [plot- + -age.] The increment of value resulting from the combination of small tracts of land or lots into larger ones. Hence plottage increment, plottage value.

plot′ted (plŏt′ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. Planned. Specif.: a Delineated; charted. b Having a plot. c Laid out in plots. d Prearranged, as a conspiracy.

plot′ter (plŏt′ēr), n. One who or that which plots; specif.: a One who makes a plot or map. b A device for plotting, as a pencil holder in an instrument for plotting co-ordinates. c One who plots or schemes; a contriver; planner; now, esp., a conspirator; a schemer.

plot′ter. Var. of PLOUTER. Scot. & N. of Eng.

plot′ter·y (plŏt′ēr·ĭ), n. Plotting. Byron.

plot′ting (plŏt′ĭng), adj. That plots. — plot′ting·ly, adv.

plotting board. Mil. In artillery firing, a device for showing graphically the position of the target (or periodic positions if it is a moving target) with reference to the battery.

plotting paper. Graph paper.

plot′ty (plŏt′ĭ), n. [From PLOT to scald.] A hot drink, as mulled wine. Scot.

plouk, plook (plōōk), n. [Origin uncert.] Chiefly Scot. a A pimple. b A small knob near the brim of a metal measure for liquids to mark the place of exact measure. — plouk′ed (plōōk′ĭt; plōōkt), adj. — plouk′y (plōōk′ĭ), adj.

plounce (plouns), v. t. & i. To plunge; flounder. Obs. exc. Dial.

plou′si·oc′ra·cy (plōō′sĭ·ŏk′rä·sĭ), n. [Gr. plousios rich + -cracy.] Plutocracy. Sydney Smith.

plout (plout), n. A dash; splash; plash. — v. i. To splash; to fall heavily. Both Chiefly Scot.

plout (plout). Var. of PLOT, scald. Scot.

plout′er (plout′ēr), v. i. [Prob. imitative.] To wade or move about with splashing; to dabble; also, to potter. Chiefly Scot.

plout′er, n. Act of ploutering; floundering; act or sound of splashing. Chiefly Scot.

Plou′to·nei′on (plōō′tō·nī′ŏn), n. [Gr. Ploutōneion.] A Plutonium.

plov′er (plŭv′ēr; in U. S. also plō′vēr), n.; pl. PLOVER, PLOVERS (-ērz). See PLURAL, Note. [OF. plovier (F. pluvier), prop., the rain bird, fr. (assumed) VL. pluviarus, fr. L. pluvia rain; akin to L. pluere to rain. See FLOW; cf. PLUVIAL.] 1. Any of certain shore-inhabiting birds of the family Charadriidae, which differ from the sandpipers in the short bill, hard at the tip, though more or less soft at the base, and in their usually stouter and more compact build. They are mostly gregarious and migratory, frequenting plains, grassy uplands (where they usually nest), and beaches. The ring plovers are well-known small species; some larger forms, as the golden and black-bellied plovers, the lapwing, dotterel, etc., are important game birds. Plovers' eggs, esp. those of the lapwing, are extensively eaten in Europe.
2. Any of various other allied birds, as the turnstone, called chicken plover, and various sandpipers, esp. the Bartramian sandpiper, called upland, or field, plover, etc.; — used esp. with qualifying terms. Cf. CRAB PLOVER, WRYBILL.
3. The color broccoli brown.
4. Obs. Slang. a A dupe. b A courtesan.

plover egg. A wooden darning ball, egg-shaped, with one end elongated to form a handle. Hist.

plover page, or plover's page. The dunlin or other small sandpiper, sometimes accompanying the larger plovers. Scot.

plover quail. The plain wanderer.

plov′er·y (plŭv′ēr·ĭ), adj. Abounding in plovers.

plow, plough (plou), n. [ME. plouh, plow, fr. late AS. plōh (perh. of Scand. origin); akin to D. ploeg, G. pflug, OHG. pfluoq, pfluoh, ON. plōgr, Sw. plog, Dan. ploug, plov.] 1. An implement used to cut, lift, invert, and partly pulverize soil in the preparation of a seed bed, to break up the subsoil only, or to make underground drains. The modern steel moldboard plow, or turnplow, comprises essentially (1) a share or cutting edge of which the point is the part first penetrating the soil and the heel is the outside corner, (2) a moldboard forming a curved face which turns the furrow, (3) a landside which takes the side pressure produced when the furrow is turned, (4) a frog or metal shape to which the moldboard, landside, and share are attached, and (5) a beam for drawing the plow. Frequently a colter is suspended from the beam to split the sod or surface soil ahead of the plow, and a jointer is used in sod or trashy soil to aid in complete covering. In general, the two extreme types of moldboard plow are the breaker, or prairie breaker, designed with a long low moldboard for turning the furrow slice of virgin land slowly and with a minimum of resistance, and the stirring plow designed with a high, abruptly curved moldboard for turning the furrow slice of old land less completely but quickly.

1, 2 Walking Plows, showing: A Share; B Moldboard; C Landside; D Beam; E Jointer; F Gauge Wheel (to regulate depth of furrow); G Clevis; H Handles. 3 Subsoil Plow; 4 Sulky Plow; 5 Three-furrow Gang Plow; 6 Four-furrow Tractor Disk Plow.

The average of these is the general-purpose plow, with high, fairly short, and abruptly curved moldboard. A breaker whose moldboard is replaced by bent rods to reduce friction, and, hence, draft, is called a rod breaker. The moldboard of a swivel plow is reversible, making the plow capable of throwing the furrow either to the right or left. A subsoil plow has no moldboard. It is used to loosen the soil (without turning it up) beneath previously plowed furrows. A shovel plow has a shovel share. It is used for cultivating. A rotary plow has rapidly revolving blades or hooked fingers. It is designed for the complete preparation of the seed bed in one operation. The disk plow substitutes a concave, edged, steel disk for the moldboard plow bottom and is especially adapted for use in sticky or very hard dry soils. In a reversible-disk plow, the disk is reversible so that the soil can be thrown in the same direction at all times regardless of the direction of travel. Cf. CAST PLOW; COMBINATION PLOW; DRILL PLOW; SCOOTER, 2; SEED PLOW; STAG GANG; VINEYARD PLOW.
2. Land, or a piece of land, plowed; plowland.
3. Any of various devices operating like a plow. Specif.: a A snowplow. b A ballast spreader. c An implement for unloading cars of earth or ballast. d A machine mounted on the side of a car body for ditching or grading at the side of the roadway. e A knifelike instrument for creasing the sides of lean mackerel to give them the appearance of fatness.
4. Chiefly Dial. a A team of horses or oxen for a plow or wagon. b A wagon or cart and horses or oxen; hence, a wagon or cart.
5. [cap.] Astron. Charles's Wain, or the Dipper; sometimes, the constellation Ursa Major.
6. Bookbinding. A wooden block sliding in a groove or guide, and equipped with a wedge to hold a knife or chisel against a book, while trimming the edges.
7. Carp. A rabbet or grooving plane.
8. Electric Railways. A device for making contact with the live wire or rail in a conduit.
9. [See PLOW, v. t., 8.] Eng. Univ. A pluck; — always plough in this sense. Slang.
10. Moham. Law. A certain share of land. See PATTIDARI.
11. Naut. An instrument for measuring angles. Obs.
12. O. Eng. Hist. = PLOWLAND, 1.
☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES (with variants in plough-) are:

plowboy	plowmaker	plow team plow-bred	plowmaking	plow-torn plow-cloven	plow-shaped	plowwoman plow hand

plow, plough (plou), v.; PLOWED or PLOUGHED (ploud); PLOW′ING or PLOUGH′ING. Transitive: 1. To turn up, break up, or trench, with a plow; to till with or as with a plow; to make, as a furrow, with a plow; as, to plow a field.
2. To make furrows, grooves, or ridges in; to furrow; to break, throw, root, or cut (up) with or as with a plow; to scratch or trench by action likened to that of a plow; also, to bring or cause to be by or as if by plowing (in sense 1); — often with up, over, etc.; to plow in manure; figuratively, to reinvest; to plow back earnings or profits.
3. To move, cut, or cleave through, as the water in sailing.
With speed we plow the watery way. Pope.
4. To use a plow on (mackerel). See PLOW, n., 3 e.
5. Bookbinding. To trim, or shave off the edges of, as a book or paper, with a plow. See PLOW, n., 6.
6. Brewing. To turn over grain in malting, so as to expose fresh surfaces to the air and equalize temperature.
7. Carp. To cut a groove in, as in a plank, or the edge of a board; esp., to make with a plow (a rectangular groove to receive the end of a shelf, the edge of a panel, etc.).
8. Eng. Univ. To pluck; — always plough in this sense. Slang.
——, Intransitive: 1. To use a plow; to till with a plow; to prepare for something as if with a plow; also, to bear or admit of plowing; as, the field plows hard. Shak.
Doth the plowman plow all day to sow? Is. xxvii. 24.

---

plitch, v. t. [AS. plyccan; akin to E. PLUCK.] Pluck; pull. Obs.

pliver. † PLOVER.

ploi′ter (ploi′tĕr). Var. of PLOUTER. Chiefly Scot.

plombe (plŏm). Var. of PLUMB.

plonge. † PLUNGE.

plonk (plŏngk). Var. of PLUNK.

plonk′et. † PLUNKET.

ploo (plōō). Dial. var. of FLOW.

plook. Var. of PLOUK.

ploom (plōōm). Var. of PLUM. Scot. & N. of Eng.

plosh (plŏsh). Var. of PLASH.

plotch, n. A blotch. Obs.

plot′cock′, n. [Prob. an alteration of Pluto. Oxf. E. D.] The Devil. Obs. Scot.

plote (plōt), v. t. = 2d PLOT.

plot′less, adj. See -LESS. — plot′less·ness, n.

plot survey. Forestry. See VALUATION SURVEY.

plott (plŏt). Var. of PLOAT.

plotton. † PLATOON.

Plo′tus (plō′tŭs), n. [NL.] Syn. of ANHINGA.

plough, plough′land′, plough′share′, etc. Vars. of PLOW, PLOWLAND, PLOWSHARE, etc.

plounge, ploungen. † PLUNGE.

plou·toc′ra·cy (plōō·tŏk′rä·sĭ; plou-). Var. of PLUTOCRACY.

plow′er-billed′, adj. See -BILLED.

plow′er-like′, adj. & adv. See -LIKE.

2. To go, move, or cut, as through water or snow, as a plow does through soil; to proceed laboriously; to plod.
3. Carp. To cut with a plow.
plow a lonely furrow. To proceed on a course alone.
plow around. To plow (a field) by driving around it.
plow the sands. To labor fruitlessly.

plow alms. A penny formerly paid annually to the church for every plowland. plow and press. = PLOW, n., 6. plow beam. = BEAM, n., 2. plow day. a Obs. A day on which a tenant had to plow for his lord. b [caps.] Plow Monday. plow drill. Agric. Mach. See 5th DRILL, 2 a. plow'er, plough'er (plou'ĕr), n. One who plows; a plowman. plow'fish', plough'fish' (plou'fĭsh'), n.; pl. -FISH, -FISHES (-fĭsh'ĕz; -iz; 119). See PLURAL, Note. A large ray (Rhina ancylostoma) of the eastern coast of Asia and the East Indies, closely resembling a guitarfish. Phil. I. plow'foot', plough'foot' (-fo͝ot'), n. An adjustable staff on the plow beam to fix the depth of furrow. Obs.
plow'gang', plough'gang' (plou'găng'), n. [plow, n. + gang, n.] Scot. Hist. A measure of land; prob., an eighth of a carucate or hide of land; an oxgang. See BOVATE, n. plow'gate, plough'gate (plou'gāt; -gât), n. Old Eng. Law. Probably orig. a plowland, but later a much smaller measure of land. Cf. PLOWGANG. plow'graith' (-grāth'), n. [See 2d GRAITH.] The equipment of a plow. Scot.
plow'head', plough'head' (plou'hĕd'), n. a Obs. A beam or frame to which a plowshare was fixed. b The clevis, or draft iron, of a plow. plow horse. A horse used to plow furrows.
plow'ing, plough'ing (plou'ĭng), n. Act of one who plows; also, the result, as a furrow or groove. plowing iron. Agric. Mach. A plow iron. plow iron. Agric. Mach. Any iron part of a plow; usually, in pl., the share and colter. plow'jog'ger, plough'jog'ger (plou'jŏg'ĕr), n. Plowman. plow'land', plough'land' (plou'lănd'), n. 1. O.Eng.Law. One of the units of area into which land was divided for cultivation; esp., a carucate or hide of land. See 1st HIDE.
2. Arable land; also, a plot of such land.
plow'light' (plou'lĭt'), n. A light anciently burned before an image in church during the plowing season; — called also hoggler's light. See PLOW MONDAY.
plow'line', plough'line' (-lĭn'), n. a The level of the bottom of a plowed furrow. b A rein to guide a plow horse.
plow'man, plough'man (plou'măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn).
1. One who plows; hence, a husbandman.
2. A rustic; a countryman; a field laborer.
plow'man's-spike'nard, plough'man's-spike'nard (plou'mănz-), n. The cinnamonroot. plow'man's-wort', n. A marsh fleabane (Pluchea camphorata) common in salt marshes from Massachusetts to Mexico.
plow'mell', plough'mell' (plou'mĕl'), n. A mallet formerly used for breaking clods to aid plowing. Eng.
Plow Monday. The Monday after Epiphany, or Twelfth Day. Formerly the beginning of plowing was celebrated in many parts of England on this day by a procession drawing a plow from door to door.
plow paddle, pattle, or pettle. Agric. Mach. A plowstaff. plow pan. A plow sole.
plow plane. = PLOW, n., 7. plow'point', or plough'point' (plou'point'), n. The point of a plowshare, sometimes made separate from the share. plow press. The press used in a plow (def. 6).
Plow·right'i·a (plou·rĭt'ĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., after Charles Bagge Plowright, Eng. botanist.] Bot. A genus of parasitic fungi (family Dothideaceae) having perithecia with hyaline, 2-celled spores formed in dark stromata. P. morbosa causes the black knot of plum and cherry trees. plow'share', or plough'share' (plou'shâr'), n. Agric. Mach. That part of a moldboard plow which cuts the furrow slice at the bottom and side. It is of irregular shape and comprises a point which penetrates the soil first, a horizontal cutting edge, and a heel or outside corner. It may be welded to the landside, as a bar share, or be independent thereof, as a slip share. The ordinary plowshare is made of cast iron and does not hold a cutting edge. In soils containing roots, etc., a steel share is used, as it remains sharp. See PLOW, Illust.; STONY SHARE.
plowshare bone. a The vomer. b The pygostyle of a bird.
plow'shoe', or plough'shoe' (plou'shо͞o'), n. A casing or support for a plowshare.
plow sole. Agric. A compacted layer of earth formed at the bottom of the furrow by the passage of the plow, especially when plowing continually at the same depth; — called also plow pan, and sometimes hardpan.
plow spade. Agric. Mach. = PLOWSTAFF. plow'staff', or plough'staff' (plou'stâf'; 83), n. A kind of spade or paddle for cleaning the plowshare; also, a plow handle. plow steel. Steel of high quality containing 0.5 to 0.95 per cent carbon and used esp. for wire made into rope.
plow'stilt', or plough'stilt' (plou'stĭlt'), n. A plow handle. Scot. & N. of Eng. plow'tail', or plough'tail' (-tāl'), n. Agric. Mach. The hind part or handle of a plow. plow tree. A plow handle. plow truck. A seat attachment on a pair of wheels, to enable the plowman to ride. See PLOW, Illust.
plow'wise', or plough'wise' (plou'wīz'), adj. Boustrophedon. plow'wright', or plough'wright' (plou'rīt'), n. One who makes or repairs plows.
ploy (ploi), v. i. & t. [F. ployer. See PLY.] To bend. Obs.
ploy, v. i. [Perh. fr. deploy.] Mil. To diminish front; esp., to form a column from a line.
ploy (ploi), v. t. Aphetic for EMPLOY. Dial. ploy (ploi), n. [Cf. EMPLOY.] Some action or proceeding; an affair; esp., a merrymaking, pastime, sport, or frolic; also, an escapade. Chiefly Scot.
ploy'ment (-mĕnt), n. Mil. The act or movement of ploying. plu-. A combining form from Latin plus, used for more than, super-, as in pluperfect, plupatriotic.
Plu'che·a (plо͞o'kē·ȧ), n. [NL., after N. A. Pluche (1688–1761), French naturalist.] Bot. A genus of herbs or subshrubs, the marsh fleabanes (family Carduaceae), found in warm regions. They have small corymbose heads of tubular flowers, and often aromatic or fetid foliage. P. camphorata and five other species are found in the U. S.

pluck (plŭk), v.; PLUCKED (plŭkt); PLUCK'ING. [AS. plucian; akin to LG. & D. plukken, G. pflücken, ON. plokka, plukka; fr. (assumed) VL. piluccare. See PLUSH.] Transitive: 1. To pull or pick off or out; to gather; pick; to cull; as, to pluck feathers from a fowl; to pluck grapes.
2. To pull off the feathers, hair, etc., of; to strip of or as of feathers; as, to pluck a fowl.
3. To pull; drag; — with out, off, from, down, asunder, etc.
My spirit. . . struggles hard to wring Thy bolts apart, and pluck thy captives thence. Bryant.
4. To pull with sudden force, as a musical string; to give a pull at, as a person or his clothes; jerk; twitch; hence, to make (a musical string or stringed instrument) sound by such action; to twang; plunk.
5. To rob; plunder; fleece. Now Slang.
6. To disentangle and straighten (wool) with a plucker.
7. To reject (a candidate for a degree or for some position) for some deficiency or misdemeanor, as, now only, for failure to pass in an examination. Orig. Eng. Univ. Slang.
8. Fur Dressing. To free (furs) from the overhair.
9. Geol. To break loose and bear away in large masses; — said of glaciers acting on solid rock. Contrasted with abrade.
—, Intransitive: 1. To drag; also, to grab; steal.
2. To make a motion of sharp pulling or twitching; to tug; — usually with at; as, to pluck at one's gown.
pluck a crow. To settle, or engage in the settlement of, a dispute or the like; to clear up a matter requiring explanation. Cf. a crow to pluck, under 4th CROW. Obs.
pluck down. To pull down; to humble.
pluck up. a To gather up; to summon; as, to pluck up courage. b To pull or tear up violently; to eradicate; as, to pluck up a plant, a nation. Jer. xii. 17.

pluck, n. 1. Act of plucking, or pulling; a pull, esp. a quick or sudden and forcible one; a twitch; tug; jerk.
2. Figuratively, a turn, or set-to; a bout; a go. Obs.
3. That which is plucked.
4. Hence, the heart, liver, lungs, and windpipe of an animal killed for food; also, by extension, the similar parts of a human being.
5. Spirit; courage; resolution.
6. A plucking, or state of being plucked. See PLUCK, v. t., 7.
7. Photog., etc. Distinctness; sharpness; boldness. Slang.
Syn. — See DECISION.

pluck'-buf'fet (plŭk'bŭf'ĕt; -ĭt; 119), n. A competition between archers in which the loser received a buffet. Archaic.
plucked (plŭkt), adj. a Picked, as cotton. b Made bare of feathers. c Pulled sharply, as a guitar string. d Slang., Brit. Rejected at an examination. — plucked'ness (plŭkt'nĕs; -nĭs; 119), n. plucked (plŭkt), adj. [From PLUCK, n., 5.] Having or possessed of pluck, or courage, spirit, or resolution; — chiefly in comb.; as, good-plucked; hard-plucked, hardhearted. Colloq., Eng.
plucked wool. Sheep's wool plucked after death.
pluck'er (plŭk'ĕr), n. One who or that which plucks; as: a One who plucks, as wool or poultry. b A machine with spiked rollers for disentangling long-fibered wool before combing.
Plück·e'ri·an (plük·ē'rĭ·ăn), adj. Math. Of or pertaining to Julius Plücker, German mathematician and physicist (1801–68), his ideas, methods, or inventions.
Plück'er planes (plük'ĕr). Math. The fifteen planes in which lie, in fours, the sixty Pascal lines of a fifteen-line configuration.
Plück'er's co-or'di·nate (plük'ĕrz). See 3d CO-ORDINATE, 2.
Plücker's equations. Math. Certain equations connecting the six Plücker's numbers of a plane algebraic curve; all are deducible from the three independent equations $m = n(n-1) - 2\delta - 3k$; $n = m(m-1) - 2r - 3i$; $i = 3n(n-2) - 6\delta - 8k$.
Plück'er sur'face (of a line) (plük'ĕr). Math. In the theory of quadratic line complexes, the surface containing the conics enveloped each by the lines of the complex which lie in a plane of a given pencil of planes.
Plücker tube. Elec. a A form of Geissler tube in which the part through which the discharge takes place is a capillary, producing intense incandescence. b A Crookes tube.

pluck'y (plŭk'ĭ), adj.; PLUCK'I·ER (-ĭ·ĕr); PLUCK'I·EST.
1. Having, or marked by, pluck or courage; courageous; spirited; brave; resolute; as, a plucky man.
2. Sticky; adhesive; — said of clay. Dial. Eng.
3. Euphemism for BLOODY. Rare.
Plucky lot she cared for idols. Kipling.
4. Photog., etc. Distinct; sharp; bold, as a drawing.
5. Stonecutting. Designating a stone or rock that breaks with a conchoidal fracture under the hammer or chisel. Flint, obsidian, and some limestones are examples.
— pluck'i·ly, adv. — pluck'i·ness, n.

pluff (plŭf; plо͞of), v. t. [Imitative.] To emit in puffs; to puff. Dial. — v. i. To explode gunpowder; to fire off a gun; shoot; also, to swell; puff up; rise. Dial.

pluff, n. Scot. a A quick puff, as of smoke from a pipe or a gun; a slight explosion; a shot. b A powder puff.

pluff'er (plŭf'ĕr; plо͞of'-), n. Scot. & N. of Eng. a A shooter; marksman. b A popgun. pluff'y (plŭf'ĭ; plо͞of'ĭ), adj. Puffy; fat; fluffy. Scot. & Dial. Eng.

plug (plŭg), n. [MD. plugge (D. plug); akin to Dan. plyg, Sw. plugg, and to G. pflock.] 1. Any piece of wood, metal, or other substance used to stop or fill a hole; a stopple; hence, a small piece removed by plugging (see PLUG, v. t., 2).
2. One of the natural divisions, or sections, of certain fruits, as of the orange or sweetsop.
3. A blow; punch; knock; also, punching; boxing. Slang.
4. Slang. Something inferior or defective, esp. through deterioration or damage; as: a U. S. An inferior or worn-out horse; a jade. b Australia & New Zealand. A horse of a good, steady, slow sort. c A slow-selling book; pl., remainder. d A plugged coin. e An inferior operator. f A drudging student.
5. Short for FIREPLUG, PLUG HAT, etc.
6. Angling. Any cylindrical casting bait. Specif., a floating cylindrical casting bait, to the forward part of which metal wings or propeller blades are attached; — called top water plug. A plug which sinks and is reeled in below the surface is called an underwater plug.

Plug, 6.

7. Boilers. A fusible plug.
8. Civil Engin. A reference peg driven in flush with the surface of the ground.
9. Dent. The filling of a hollow tooth.
10. Elec. a A male fitting for making electrical connections by insertion in a receptacle or body. It may have one or more contact-making parts or blades and may serve to close a circuit or to attach a conductor or some other piece of electrical equipment to a circuit. An attachment plug connects a flexible conductor to a lamp holder or receptacle. It usually consists of a screw-shell body and a cap. When the cap is removable from the body, it is called a separable attachment plug. b A spark plug. c A device for connecting electric wires to a jack. d A device (plug fuse), called also fuseplug, consisting of an Edison screw-shell body containing a fuse for the protection of circuits of 30-ampere capacity or less. Cf. FUSE, Illust.
11. Geol. A more or less columnlike mass of intrusive igneous rock; the filling of the conduit leading to a volcanic vent. Cf. NECK, 8; BYSMALITH.
12. Locks. In a pin-tumbler cylinder, the cylindrical piece containing the keyhole and rotated by the key. See LOCK, n., 1, Illust.; KEY PLUG.
13. Mach. a A plug gauge. b The piece in a cock which can be turned to permit or check the flow. c See PLUG AND FEATHER. d A piece of soft steel impressed by a punch to form a die. e The piece of material removed by a punch in forming a hole.
14. Med. An obstructing mass of fibrin or other material in a vessel or opening.
15. Railroads. The wedge or key used to secure a rail in a chair.
16. Tobacco. A flat oblong cake.

plug (plŭg), v.; PLUGGED (plŭgd); PLUG'GING (-ĭng). Transitive: 1. To stop, make tight, or secure by means of a plug; to insert a plug in; — often with up.
2. To remove a small section (plug) from; as, to plug a watermelon.
3. To close (a rivet) by hammering or pressing, so as to cause it to fill the hole.
4. Slang. a To hit with a bullet; put a bullet into; shoot. b To strike with the fist; to punch.
5. Dent. To fill (a cavity in a tooth).
6. Elec. To stop (a motor), reversing its direction of rotation.
7. Quarrying & Stonecutting. To break off or proportion (a piece of stone) with the plug and feather; — with off.
—, Intransitive; Slang. a To keep perseveringly or doggedly at work or in action; to plod. b To fire shots; to shoot. c = 3d ROOT. plug in. Elec. To establish a circuit by inserting a plug.

plug (plŭg), adj. That plods like a plug. Slang.

plug and feather. A device for splitting stones, etc., consisting of two tapered pieces, and a wedge-shaped key variously called a feather or a plug. The tapered pieces are referred to as a (divided) plug or sometimes as feathers (when the contrivance is designated plug and feathers).

plug bib. A plug cock.

plug'board' (plŭg'bōrd'; 181), n. 1. Elec. A switchboard in which connections are made by means of plugs.
2. That part of a tabulating machine where adjustments are made that determine the place at which a card is punched or stamped.

plug cap. Elec. = CAP, n., 5 f (1).

plug casing. Elec. A casing for adapting a plug-fuse cutout base to a cartridge fuse.

plug center bit. A center bit ending in a small cylinder instead of a point.

plug cock or bib. a A cock turned on or off by a plug. b A spigot that is merely driven into a barrel.

plug'draw'er (plŭg'drô'ĕr), n. A participator in the plug riots. Eng.

plug drill. A stonecutter's percussion drill.

plug frame. = PLUG ROD a.

plug fuse. See PLUG, n., 10 d.

plug'ga·ble (plŭg'ȧ·b'l), adj. That can be plugged.

plug gauge. See 2d GAUGE, 10.

plugged (plŭgd), adj. 1. Furnished with a plug, as a shell.
2. Of a coin, containing a plug of base metal.

plug'ger (plŭg'ĕr), n. One who or that which plugs; as: a One who fits in plugs; — also, a winder. b One who works steadily or doggedly, esp. as a student. c Sporting Slang. One who noisily applauds or encourages a contestant; a rooter. d Dent. An instrument for driving in and consolidating plugs. e Mining. A jackhammer.

plug'ging (plŭg'ĭng), verbal n. Act of one that plugs; also, a Act of stopping with a plug. b Material used for a plug or plugs; specif., Building, soundproof material laid between floor joists, in partitions, etc.

plug'ging, adj. That plugs. — plug'ging·ly, adv.

plug'gy (plŭg'ĭ; plо͞og'ĭ), adj. Dial. Eng. a Short and stout; thickset; sturdy. b Stiff; tenacious, as clay.

plug hat. A top hat. — plug'-hat'ted (66), adj. Both Slang, Chiefly U. S.

plug'hole' (plŭg'hōl'), n. An opening in which a plug fits.

plug key. A switch plug.

plug'man (plŭg'măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). 1. U. S. Nav. The member of a gun's crew whose duty is to open and close the breech plug or block, in firing.
2. A man who attends engine, pumps, etc., in a mine. Obs.

plug riots. Certain riots in 1842, when cotton mills in Lancashire, Eng., were prevented from working by the drawing of "plugs" (bolts) from the boilers.

plug rod. Steam Engin. a A rod fixed to the beam to work the valves, as in the Cornish engine. b An air-pump rod.

plug switch. Elec. A switch in which connection is made by means of a plug or plugs.

plug tap. See 3d TAP, 10 a.

plug tobacco. Tobacco in the form of plugs.

plug'tray' (plŭg'trā'), n., or plug tray. See 1st TRAY, 7.

plug tree. A plug rod for working the valves in a beam engine.

plug'-ug'ly (plŭg'ŭg'lĭ; 66), n. A kind of city rowdy, ruffian, or disorderly tough; — a term said to have been originated by a gang of such in Baltimore. — plug'-ug'ly, adj. Both Slang, U. S.

plug valve. Mach. A valve or cock opened or closed by the turning of a plug, usually conical.

plug weld. A butt weld made in the opening of a slotted lap joint.

plum (plŭm), n. [AS. plūme, fr. LL. pruna, fr. L. prunum, pl. pruna, fr. Gr. prounon, fr. proumnon, of obscure origin. Cf. PRUNE plum.] 1. The fruit of any of various species of Prunus. The plum is a true stone fruit, or drupe, differing plow'a·bl. Plowable. Ref. Sp.

---

plow'a·ble, plough'a·ble (plou'ȧ·b'l), adj. See -ABLE.
plow'bote', or plough'bote', n. See BOTE, 2 b. plowd. Plowed. Ref. Sp. plow'man·ship, plough'man·ship, n. See -SHIP. plowp. Scot. var. of PLOP, v. plow'swain', or plough'swain', n. A plowman. Obs. [PLOUTER.] plow'ter (plou'tĕr). Var. of pluck'age, n. See -AGE b. pluck'less, adj. See -LESS. — pluck'less·ness, n.
pluckt. Plucked. Ref. Sp.
plud, n. A puddle; a pool. Obs. exc. Dial.
pluff, interj. = PUFF. pluff, adj. Puffed. Dial.
plugd. Plugged. Ref. Sp.
plug'less, adj. See -LESS. plug'like', adj. See -LIKE.
pluke. Var. of PLOUK.

from the cherry by its larger size and oblong stone, and from the peach by the smooth skin and unwrinkled stone. The most important cultivated plums are the damsons, greengages, prunes, etc., descended from P. domestica of southwestern Asia, the wild-goose types, from P. munsoniana; and the true American plums, from P. americana. See PRUNE. Also, the tree which bears plums. See PRUNUS; cf. CHERRY, 1.
2. Any of various unrelated trees having an edible plumlike fruit; also, the fruit itself. The plums of Mexico and the West Indies are species of Spondias; of Australia, species of Diospyros and other genera; of India, species of Flacourtia; of Africa, Parinarium, etc.
3. a A raisin, when used in puddings, etc. b Something like a plum, as in shape or sweetness; as, a sugar*plum;* also, short for SUGARPLUM.
4 The sum of £100,000 sterling; also, formerly, a person possessing it. Slang, Eng.
5. A color like that of some plums, blue-red in hue, of low saturation and very low brilliance. Cf. COLOR.
6. A stone or mass of rock embedded in a matrix of a different kind, as a pebble in a conglomerate.
7. Something likened to a plum in desirableness; a good or choice thing of its kind, as among appointments, positions, parts of a book, etc. Cf. PRUNE.
☞ COMBINATIONS are:
plum-blue, adj. plum-green, adj. plum-sized plum-brown, adj. plum-purple, adj. plum-tinted plum-colored plum-shaped plum (dial. plŭm), v. i. To rise; swell; plim. — v. t. To shake. Both Obs. exc. Dial.

plum, adj. Now Dial. a Rounded out; plump. b Light; mild; soft. plum (plŭm). Var. & ref. sp. of PLUMB. plum (plōōm). Scot. var. of 1st PLUMB (sense 3). plu'ma (plōō'mȧ; 242), n.; pl. -MAE (-mē). [L.] Contour feather. plu·ma'ceous (plōō·mā'shŭs; 242), adj. [NL. plumaceus, fr. L. pluma feather.] Pennaceous. plu·mach' (plōō·mȧsh'), n. [F. plumache.] A plume. Hist. plum·ade' (plōōm·ād'), n. [Perh. after cockade. See PLUME.] A plume on horses in funeral processions. Obs.
plum'age (plōōm'ĭj; 242), n. [OF., fr. plume a feather.]
1. The entire clothing of feathers of a bird.
2. A bunch or tuft of feathers used for ornament.
3. Elaborate or ceremonial dress. Humorous.
An upper middle-class family in full plumage. Galsworthy.
4. Falconry. Feathers given as a casting. Obs. plum'aged (plōōm'ĭjd; 242), adj. Having plumage. plum'age·ry (-ĭj·rĭ), n. Feather working. Rare.
plu'mas·ite (plōō'mȧs·īt), n. [From Plumas Co., Calif.] Petrog. A corundum-pegmatite composed essentially of oligoclase-albite and corundum.
‖plu'mas'sier' (plü'mä'syā'), n. [F.] One who prepares or deals in ornamental plumes or feathers.
plu'mate (plōō'māt), adj. [L. plumatus feathered.] Zool. Plumaged; — said of hairs, antennae, etc., in which the main shaft bears many smaller hairs or hairlike parts.
Plu'ma·tel'la (plōō'mȧ·tĕl'ȧ; 242), n. [NL., dim. fr. L. plumatus feathered.] Zool. A genus of fresh-water phylactolaematous bryozoans having a chitinous ectocyst and forming branching colonies. It is the type of a family, Plu'ma·tel'li·dae (-ĭ-dē). — plu'ma·tel'lid (-lĭd), n. & adj. — plu'ma·tel'loid (-oid), adj.
plumb (plŭm), n. [F. plomb, fr. L. plumbum lead, prob. fr. same source (perh. Iberian) as Gr. molybdos. Cf. PLUMBAGO, PLUMMET, PLUNGE.] 1. A little mass or weight of lead, or other heavy material (commonly brass), attached to a line, and used by builders, etc., to indicate a vertical direction; a plummet; a plumb bob.
2. A weighting lead, or plummet, as a mariner's sounding lead, a fishline sinker, a sinker used to sound a stream or lake for fishing, a clock weight, or the like; a missile of lead.
3. (pron. plōōm). A deep pool. Scot. & N. of Eng.
— out of, or off, plumb. Out of the vertical; out of true.
plumb, adj. Also plum. 1. Conforming to the direction of a line attached to a plumb; vertical; as, the wall is plumb.
2. Downright; complete; absolute. Now Chiefly Colloq.
3. Cricket. Of a wicket, perfectly true.
Syn. — See VERTICAL.
plumb, adv. Also plum. 1. In a plumb direction or condition; vertically. "Plumb down he falls." Milton.
2. Directly; exactly; also, immediately.
3. Completely; absolutely. Now Chiefly Colloq., U. S. plumb, v.; PLUMBED (plŭmd); PLUMB'ING (plŭm'ĭng). Transitive: 1. To sound with a plumb, or plummet; to measure the depth of (water) by sounding; hence, to ascertain the depth, quality, dimension, etc., of; sound; fathom; reach the bottom of; examine; as, to plumb one's motives.
2. To weight or load with lead, as an oar.
3. To seal with lead; as, to plumb a trunk.
4. To adjust or test by a plumb line; to cause to be perpendicular; as, to plumb a building or a wall.
5. To be or place in a perpendicular line with.
6. [From PLUMBER.] To supply with a system of plumbing; also, to work upon (something) as a plumber.
——, Intransitive: 1. To fall like a plumb. Obs.
2. To be vertical; to hang perpendicularly.
3. To do plumbing. Colloq.
plumb. Var. of PLUM, PLUMP. Now Dial. plumb'age (plŭm'ĭj), n. Leadwork. Rare.
Plum·bag'i·na'ce·ae (plŭm·băj'ĭ·nā'sē·ē), n. pl. [NL. See PLUMBAGO.] Bot. A family of plants (order Primulales) containing about 10 genera and 350 species, widely distributed, often in saline situations. They have basal or alternate leaves and small clustered tubular flowers. The fruit is a utricle or an achene. The principal genera are Plumbago, Limonium, and Statice. — plum·bag'i·na'ceous (-shŭs), adj.
plum·ba'gine (plŭm·bā'jĭn; -jēn), n. [F. plombagine.] Obs. a A natural alloy of silver and lead. b The mineral plumbago.
plum·bag'i·nous (plŭm·băj'ĭ·nŭs), adj. Resembling plumbago; consisting of, or containing, plumbago.
plum·ba'go (plŭm·bā'gō), n.; pl. -GOS (-gōz). [L., a kind of lead ore, a plant, leadwort, fr. plumbum lead.] 1. Graphite.
2. Bot. a [cap.] A small genus of woody herbs or subherbs, the leadworts, typifying the family Plumbaginaceae and widely distributed in warm climates. They have alternate sessile leaves and spicate blue or white flowers with a glandular calyx and a salver-shaped corolla. b [not cap.] A plant of this genus. plumbago blue. A color, reddish-blue in hue, of low saturation and high brilliance. Cf. COLOR.
plumbago family. The Plumbaginaceae. plumbago gray. A color, blue-red in hue, of low saturation and medium brilliance. Cf. COLOR.
plumbago slate. A color, blue-red in hue, of low saturation and low brilliance. Cf. COLOR. plum'bate (plŭm'bȧt), n. Chem. A salt of plumbic acid plumb bob. The bob, or weight, of a plumb line. plumb bond. See 3d BOND, 17. plum'be·an (plŭm'bē·ăn), adj. [See PLUMBEOUS.] Like lead; leaden. plum'be·ous (-ŭs), adj. [L. plumbeus, fr. plumbum the metal lead.] 1. Consisting of, or resembling, lead; leaden; of the color lead; specif., Ceramics, lead-glazed.
2. Leaden; dull; heavy; stupid. Obs.
plumb'er (plŭm'ẽr), n. [ME. plummer, fr. OF. plummier, plommier (F. plombier), fr. L. plumbarius, fr. plumbum lead. See PLUMB.] Orig., a worker in lead; now, an artisan who works in lead, zinc, tin, sheet metal, etc.; esp., a tradesman who furnishes, fits, and repairs gas, water, and soil pipes, cisterns, tanks, baths, water closets, and their fittings, and other sanitary and fire-protection apparatus for a house or other building, including the junctions to the mains and sewers. The trade of the gas fitter has in many parts become separated from that of the plumber. Cf. 1st LEAD, 2 C.

Plumb Bob.

plumber block. A plummer block.
plumb'ers' soil (-ẽrz). Lampblack mixed with glue and water, used as a paint to prevent adhesion of solder.
plumb'er·y (plŭm'ẽr·ĭ), n.; pl. -ERIES (-ĭz). [OF. plommerie (F. plomberie).] 1. A workshop for plumbing or lead working. Now Rare.
2. The business or work of a plumber; plumbing.
plumb'et (plŭm'ĕt; -ĭt), n. [Prob. fr. F. plomb lead, from its color. Oxf. E. D.] A fabric for clothing, usually of silk or wool. Obs.
plumbi-. A combining form from Latin plumbum, meaning lead, as in plum·bif'er·ous (see -FEROUS); specif., Chem., plumbic.
plum'bic (plŭm'bĭk), adj. [From PLUMBUM.] Pertaining to, or containing, lead; specif., Chem., designating compounds in which lead has a relatively high valence. plumbic acid. Chem. Either of two acids of which lead dioxide is the anhydride: (1) orthoplumbic acid, H_4PbO_4, known only in salts, the orthoplumbates, as calcium orthoplumbate, Ca_2PbO_4. (2) metaplumbic acid, H_2PbO_3, formed in colloidal solution by hydrolysis of its potassium salt. Its salts, called metaplumbates, are formed by reaction of caustic alkalies with lead dioxide.
plumb'ing (plŭm'ĭng), verbal n. 1. Act of using a plumb, or plummet, or plumb line; specif., Surv., plumming.
2. Art of working in lead; now esp., a plumber's occupation or trade; also, leadwork; plumber's work.
plum'bism (plŭm'bĭz'm), n. [From PLUMBUM.] Med. Lead poisoning. plum'bite (-bīt), n. [plumbum + -ite.] Chem. A salt of lead hydroxide, $Pb(OH)_2$, formed when the hydroxide acts as a weak acid.
plumb joint. In sheet-metal work, a soldered lap joint.
plum bladder. Plum pocket.
plumb'less (plŭm'lĕs; -lĭs; 119), adj. Not plumbable; fathomless. plumb level. A level consisting of a horizontal arm and a plumb line at right angles to the arm.
plumb line. a A line or cord having at one end a weight (plumb bob) usually conoidal and of brass or lead, used to determine verticality; a plummet; sometimes, a plumb rule. b A line directed to the center of gravity of the earth; a vertical line; also, Obs., a line perpendicular to another. c A sounding line.
plumb'·line', v. t. To test the verticality or find the depth of, by means of a plumb line; hence, to test.
plum blotch. Plant Pathol. A disease of plums caused by the imperfect fungus Phyllosticta congesta, characterized by minute, brown or gray, angular leaf spots and irregular, brown or gray blotches on the fruit.
plumb'ness, n. State of being plumb or vertical.
plum'bo- (plŭm'bō-). A combining form from Latin plumbum, meaning lead, used to denote: a In chemistry, plumbous. b In mineralogy, containing lead and.
plum'bog (plŭm'bŏg), n. The dwarf raspberry. plum'bo·jar'o·site (plŭm'bō·jär'ō·sīt; -jȧ·rō'sĭt), n. [plumbo- + jarosite.] Mineral. A variety of jarosite in which lead takes the place of potassium. See JAROSITE and NATROJAROSITE. plum'bo·ni'o·bate (-nī'ō·bāt), n. [plumbo- + niobate.] Mineral. A niobate of complex composition resembling samarskite, but containing lead and found in dark-brown to black masses in pegmatite veins or massive slate. H., 5–5.5. Sp. gr., 4.8. plum'bo·sol'vent (-sŏl'vĕnt), adj. [plumbo- + solvent.] Able to dissolve lead. — plum'bo·sol'ven·cy (-vĕn·sĭ), n.
plum'bous (plŭm'bŭs), adj. [L. plumbosus full of lead.] Pertaining to, or containing, lead; specif., Chem., designating compounds in which lead has a low valence.
Plumb plan (plŭm). [After G. E. Plumb (1866–1922), Am. lawyer.] A proposed plan of government ownership of the railroads with operation by the employees. plum broth. Formerly, a thick richly flavored soup containing prunes, used esp. at Christmas.
plumb rule. A narrow board with a plumb line and bob, used by builders and carpenters. plum'bum (plŭm'bŭm), n. [L. See PLUMB.] Lead. Chem. symbol, Pb (no period). plum'cot' (plŭm'kŏt'), n. [plum + apricot.] Hort. A hybrid between the plum and the apricot.

Plumb Rule.

plum curculio. An American weevil (Conotrachelus nenuphar) which is very destructive to plums, cherries, nectarines, peaches, and other stone fruits. The adult feeds on the leaves of these trees, but lays its eggs in crescent-shaped incisions made in the fruit. The larva lives upon the pulp around the stone.

Plum Curculio. Larva in a plum and Adult Curculio. (× 2).

plum·dam'as (plŭm·dăm'ȧs), -dam'is (-ĭs), n. [F. Damas Damascus.] A damson. Scot. plum duff. A plain flour pudding containing raisins or currants, boiled in a bag or cloth.
plume (plōōm; 242), n. [OF., fr. L. pluma. See FLEECE.] 1. A feather; — now chiefly Poetic, exc. specif.: A long, conspicuous, or handsome feather; also, an ornamental tuft of feathers on a bird.
2. Plumage, esp. soft or downy feathers.
3. A feather, group of feathers, or tuft of hair or the like, esp. when worn as an ornament, as on a helmet.
His high plume, that nodded o'er his head. Dryden.
4. Figuratively: a That which adorns, or is displayed, like plumage; as, stripped of borrowed plumes. b A token of honor or prowess; a prize or reward. "Ambitious to win from me some plume." Milton.
5. Something likened to a feather, as in shape, appearance, or lightness, as a column of smoke or a long cloud.
6. Astron. A projection of the solar corona.
7. Bot. a Obs. A plumule. b Any plumose appendage, as the pappus of a dandelion or the coma of a milkweed seed.
8. Zool. a A plumate part or structure, as the bushy tail of certain animals. b A plume moth.
☞ COMBINATIONS are:
plume-bearing, adj. plume-fronted plume-plucking, adj.
plume-crowned plume-gay plume-soft plume-decked plumemaker plume-stripped plume-dressed plumemaking plume-uplifting, adj.
plume-embroidered plume-plucked plume-waving, adj.

plume (plōōm; 242), v.; PLUMED (plōōmd); PLUM'ING (plōōm'ĭng). [Cf. OF. plumer to pluck, strip, L. plumare to cover with feathers, and E. PLUME, n.] Intransitive: 1. To pull out the feathers of the prey, — said esp. of a hawk. Obs.
2. To plume, pride, or congratulate oneself. Obs.
——, Transitive: 1. To pull out (feathers) from a bird; to pluck; hence, to strip; bare; rob; despoil. Now Rare.
2. To provide or adorn with plumes or plumage.
3. a To dress the feathers of (itself); — said of a bird. b To dress or adorn (oneself) with or as with feathers or plumes; hence, to pride, congratulate, take credit to; — used reflexively; as, he plumes himself on his skill.
4. To place or fix as a plume. Milton.
5. To pick and adjust the plumes or feathers of; to preen. Pluming her wings among the breezy bowers. Irving.
6. Archery. To feather (an arrow).
Syn. — See PRIDE.
Plume, Captain. See SILVIA, 2. plumed (plōōmd; poet. or rhetorical plōōm'ĕd; -ĭd; see -ED), adj. 1. Plucked; stripped of feathers. Obs.
2. Provided or adorned with plumes; wearing a plume.
-plumed (-plōōmd). A combining form of plumed, denoting having (such) plumes, as in:
black-plumed, long-plumed, red-plumed, white-plumed.
Plumed Knight. James G. Blaine (1830–93); — first so called by Col. R. G. Ingersoll in a nominating speech at the Republican Convention of 1876. plumed tussock grass. See GRASS, Table.
plume grass. Any grass of the genus Erianthus, esp. E. ravennae; — so called from its plumelike spikes. plume'let (plōōm'lĕt; -lĭt; 119), n. [plume + -let.]
1. Bot. = PLUMULE, 1. Obs.
2. A small plume. "Rosy plumelets." Tennyson.
plume moss. The moss Hypnum crista-castrensis; — so called from its feathery branches.
plume moth. Any of many small, slender moths constituting the family Pterophoridae. Most have the wings deeply divided into two or more plumelike lobes.

Plume Moth of the Grapevine (Oxyptilus periscelidactylus). Nat. size.

plume nutmeg. An aromatic Australian tree (Atherosperma moschatum), whose carpels are tipped with long plumose persistent styles.
plu'me·o·pi'ce·an (plōō'mē·ō·pī'sē·ăn; 242), adj. [L. plumeus downy + piceus of pitch.] Consisting of tar and feathers.
plu'me·ous (plōō'mē·ŭs; 242), adj. [L. plumeus.] Feathery. Rare.
plume polypody. See FERN, Table.
plume poppy. Any of several Asiatic herbs of the genus Macleaya, esp. M. cordata, widely cultivated for their beautiful, plumelike panicles of flowers.
plum'er (plōōm'ẽr), n. One who plumes; specif., one who hunts birds for their plumes.
plum'er·y (plōōm'ẽr·ĭ; 242), n. Plumes; plumage.
plume stick. Anthropol. A prayer stick having feathers.
plum'et (plōōm'ĕt; -ĭt; 119), n. [F.] A small plume. plume thistle. The bull thistle.
‖plume'tis' (plüm'tēs'), n. [F.] 1. Tambour work.
2. A kind of muslin dress goods.
plum·ette' (plōōm·ĕt'), n. [See -ETTE.] A small plume. plum family. The Amygdalaceae. plum fir. A Chilean evergreen tree (Podocarpus andina), with an edible plumlike yellowish-white fruit.
plum gouger. A weevil, or curculio (Anthonomus scutellaris), which destroys plums. The larva eats the kernel.
plum granite. An American wild plum (Prunus americana). plum grape. The fox grape Vitis labrusca.

Plum Gouger.

plumi-. A combining form, Latin plumi-, from pluma, meaning feather, as in plu'mi·fi·ca'tion, plu'mi·ty, plu'mi·form, plu'mi·form'ly, plu·mig'er·ous. See -FICATION, etc. plu'mi·corn (plōō'mĭ·kôrn; 242), n. [L. pluma feather + cornu horn.] Zool. One of the tufts of lengthened feathers on the head of certain owls. They are popularly called horns, or ears.
plum'ier (plōōm'yẽr; 242), n. One who feathers arrows.
Plu'mi·e'ra (plōō'mĭ·ē'rȧ; 242), n. [NL., after Charles Plumier, French botanist.] Bot. A genus of tropical American shrubs or trees of the dogbane family (Apocynaceae) having large white, yellow, red, or pink flowers with a twisted corolla. P. rubra is the frangipani, or red jasmine, of the West Indies.
plu'mi·e'ride (plōō'mĭ·ē'rĭd; -rĭd), n. Also -rid, -rin. Chem. A bitter crystalline glucoside, $C_{30}H_{40}O_{18}$, found in trees of the genus Plumiera; — called also agoniadin.
plu'mi·ped, plu'mi·pede (plōō'mĭ·pĕd, -pēd; 242), adj. [L. plumipes, -edis, fr. pluma feather + pes foot.] Having feet covered with feathers. — n. A plumiped bird. plum'ist (plōōm'ĭst; 242), n. A plumassier. Rare.
plum juniper. The Syrian juniper. plum knot. Black knot.
plum line. Plumb line. Ref. Sp.
plum'mer (plŭm'ẽr), n. Also plummer block. A pillow block or bearing block. See BEARING, n., 11; PILLOW BLOCK.

plumb'a·ble, adj. See -ABLE.
plumbeous gnatcatcher. See GNATCATCHER. plumb'er·ship, n. See -SHIP. plum'bi·sol'vent (plŭm'bĭ·sŏl'vĕnt), adj. = PLUMBOSOLVENT, etc. —sol'ven·cy (-vĕnsĭ), n. plumd. Plumbed. Ref. Sp. plume'less, adj. See -LESS. plume'like', adj. See -LIKE.
Plu·me'ri·a (plōō·mē'rĭ·ȧ; 242), n. Erron. for PLUMIERA. plume'y. Var. of PLUMY. plum'i·ness (plōōm'ĭ·nĕs; -nĭs; 119; 242), n. See -NESS. Rare. plum'less, adj. See -LESS. plum'let, n. See -LET.
plum'like', adj. See -LIKE.

plum'mer (plŭm'ĕr). Var. of PLUMBER. Obs. exc. Ref. Sp.

Plum'mer, Caleb. In Dickens's The Cricket on the Hearth, a poor, dispirited old toymaker, so devoted to his blind daughter that, to make her happy, he makes her believe him prosperous.

plum'met (plŭm'ĕt; -ĭt; 119), n. [ME. plommet, fr. OF. plommet, fr. plom lead (F. plomb). See PLUMB.] 1. A plumb bob; also, a plumb rule; hence, figuratively, a test or criterion.
2. A sounding lead.
3. Something that weighs down or depresses; a weight. "The heaviest plummet of despair." Wordsworth.
4. Obs. a A lump, ball, or weight (of lead), as for a missile, at the end of a scourge, in a cestus, for a clock weight (hence, fig., actuating force), for an angler's sinker, etc. b Scot. The pommel of a sword. c A piece of lead formerly used to rule paper for writing.

plum'met, v. t. To sound or fathom; also, formerly, to let fall or draw (a line) by use of a plummet. — v. i. To fish with a plummet line.

plum'met-ed (-ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. Furnished with or as with plummets.

plum'met-less (-lĕs; -lĭs; 119), adj. Unfathomable.

plummet line. A line with a plummet.

plum'my (plŭm'ĭ), adj.; PLUM'MI-ER (-ĭ-ĕr); -MI-EST. [From PLUM.] Full of, consisting of, of the nature of, or like, plums; hence, Slang, very desirable; advantageous; rich.

plu'mose (ploo'mōs; see -OSE), adj. [L. plumosus, fr. pluma feather.] 1. Having feathers or plumes; feathered.
2. Having hairs, or other parts, arranged along an axis like a feather; feathery, plumelike; as, a plumose stigma. — plu·mos'i·ty (ploo·mŏs'ĭ·tĭ; 242), n. — plu'mose·ly, adv. — plu'mose·ness, n.

plu'mous (ploo'mŭs; 242), adj. Plumose; feathery. Rare.

plump (plŭmp; dial. also ploomp), n. A cluster; group; flock; clump. Archaic & Dial. "A plump of ducks." Thoreau.
The plump of proselytes . . . waiting. George Moore.

plump, v. t. To sow (seed) in plumps, or clumps. — v. i. To form crowds; to crowd (together). Obs.

plump (plŭmp), adj.; PLUMP'ER (plŭmp'ĕr); PLUMP'EST. [MD. plomp, MLG. plumpen, orig., falling, heavy, clumsy, and of imitative origin. Cf. PLUMP to fall.] 1. Blunt; rude; dull. Obs.
2. Well rounded or filled out; esp., chubby; fat; as, a plump baby; plump cheeks; a plump ear of corn. Also, ample; rich; as, a plump fee. Specif., of a coin, not clipped; of full weight.
Ant. — Lean, spare, lank. See THIN.

plump (plŭmp), v. t. & i.; PLUMPED (plŭmpt); PLUMP'ING. To make or become plump; to fill (out); dilate; distend.

plump, v. [MD. plompen, MLG. plumpen, of imitative origin. Cf. PLUMP, adj.] Intransitive: 1. To drop, fall, sink, or come in contact, suddenly or heavily; to come or go plump. "Dulcissa plumps into a chair." Spectator.
2. To give or vote a plumper. See 2d PLUMPER, 2.
——, Transitive: 1. To drop, cast, or plunge all at once or suddenly and heavily; as, to plump a stone into water.
She plumped him into his little chair. D. H. Lawrence.
2. To utter, as an opinion, plump or suddenly; blurt (out).
3. To give (one's votes) as a plumper. See 2d PLUMPER, 2.

plump, n. 1. Act of plumping, or falling, plunging or striking abruptly or heavily; a sudden plunge or heavy fall; also, the sound made by such a fall. Colloq.
2. A heavy or sudden shower. Chiefly Scot.

plump, adv. [Cf. D. plomp, interj., LG. plump, and E. PLUMP to fall.] 1. With a sudden or heavy drop; suddenly and heavily; as, to fall plump.
2. Straight down; vertically; perpendicularly; also, straight ahead; directly in front.
3. Without hesitation, circumlocution, or concealment; unqualifiedly; straight; directly; bluntly; flatly.

plump, adj. [See PLUMP, adv.] 1. Descending or facing directly.
2. Done or made suddenly and without reservation; blunt; direct; unqualified. "The plump question disturbed her." D. H. Lawrence. "Plump assurance." J. Martineau.
3. Plumped down; paid at one time. "One plump sum." Dickens.

plump (plŭmp), n. & v. Pump. Obs. exc. Dial.

plump'en (plŭmp'ĕn), v. t. To make plump or chubby. — v. i. To become plump.

plump'er (plŭmp'ĕr), n. 1. One who or that which plumps or swells out something else; esp., something carried in the mouth to fill out the cheeks; also, a false bosom.
2. Tanning. A solution that removes acid from the hide, thus allowing the tanning material to act quickly; also, one who applies this solution.

plump'er, n. 1. Act or an instance of plumping, or falling suddenly or heavily, as from a horse; a cropper.
2. [Cf. PLUMP, adv.] A vote or votes given to one candidate only, when the voter might vote for more than one for the same office, as for several candidates for a county council.
3. Slang. a A heavy blow. b A downright lie.

plump'ing, adj. Large; big. Colloq.

plum pocket. Plant Pathol. A swollen distorted plum in which the stone is aborted, leaving a hollow cavity. It results from attacks of the parasitic fungi Taphrina pruni and T. communis which develop in the young branches of wild and cultivated plums. Also, usually pl., the disease caused by this fungus. Called also bladder plum.

plum porridge. An old-time Christmas dish made of broth thickened with cereal to which dried plums, raisins, currants, etc., and spices have been added.

plumps (plŭmps), n.; pl. in form, but construed as sing. [Imitative.] A game of marbles in which the marble shot must hit the one shot at before striking the ground.

plum pudding. a A pudding containing plums; specif., a pudding of flour or bread crumbs, raisins, currants, and other fruits, suet, eggs, spices, etc., often boiled in a bag or cloth; also, an ordinary suet pudding with raisins. b Whaling. A muscular fibrous tissue which permeates the blubber of the tongue of certain whales. — plum'-pud'ding (66), adj.

plum'-pud'ding stone. Petrog. Conglomerate; pudding stone.

plum purple. The color plum.

plump'y (plŭmp'ĭ), adj. Plump; chubby.

plum scab. See PEACH SCAB.

plum thrips. The pear thrips.

plum tree. a A tree which bears plums. b Slang, U. S. A source of favors, political appointments, etc. — plum'-tree', adj.

plu'mu·la (ploo'mū·lȧ; 242), n.; pl. -LAE (-lē). [L.] Bot. & Zool. A plumule.

plu'mu·la'ceous (-lā'shŭs), adj. Pertaining to or like a plumule.

plu'mu·lar (ploo'mū·lĕr; 242), adj. Relating to a plumule.

Plu'mu·la'ri·a (ploo'mū·lā'rĭ·ȧ; 79; 242), n. [NL.] 1. Zool. A genus of calyptoblastic hydrozoans with sessile zooids arranged on only one side of the branching plumelike stems. It is the type of a family, Plu'mu·la·ri'i·dae (-lȧ·rī'ĭ·dē).
2. [not cap.] Any member of the family Plumulariidae.
— plu'mu·lar'i·an (-lâr'ĭ·ăn), adj. & n.

Plumularia (P. setacea).

plu'mu·late (ploo'mū·lāt), adj. Bot. Finely plumose.

plu'mule (ploo'mūl; 242), n. [L. plumula, dim. of pluma a feather; cf. F. plumule.] 1. Bot. The primary bud of an embryo or germinating seed plant. It is usually at the apex of the hypocotyl (in dicotyledonous plants between the pair of cotyledons) and continues in its development the ascending axis or primary stem.
2. Zool. a A down feather. b An androconium.

Seedling of Morning-glory. 1 Hypocotyl; 2 Plumule; 3, 3 Cotyledons.

plu'mu·li·form' (ploo'mū·lĭ·fôrm'), adj. Like a plumule.

plu'mu·lose (-lōs), adj. Like, or of the nature of, a plumule.

plum violet. A color, bluish-red in hue, of medium saturation and low brilliance. Cf. COLOR.

plum weevil. The plum curculio.

plum'y (ploom'ĭ), adj. 1. Downy. Poetic.
2. Covered or adorned with, abounding in, or like, plumes; plumed; feathery.

plum yew. Any plant of the genus Cephalotaxus.

plun'der (plŭn'dĕr), v. t.; -DERED (-dĕrd), -DERING. [G. plündern to plunder, fr. plunder household goods, lumber.] To take the goods of by force, as in war, or wrongfully; to pillage; spoil; sack; rob; as, to plunder travelers. Hence, to take or appropriate by force or wrongfully; as, the enemy plundered all the goods they found; to steal; loot. — v. i. To commit robbery, spoliation, or looting.
They would run any hazard to plunder. Defoe.
Syn. — Despoil, loot, rifle, strip, ravage.

plun'der, n. 1. Act of plundering, as in war; pillaging; hence, spoliation by extortion.
2. That which is taken by open force, as from an enemy, or by theft or fraud; pillage; spoil; booty; loot.
3. Profit; gains; makings. Slang.
4. Personal property; baggage. Colloq. U. S.
Syn. — See BOOTY.

plun'der, v. t. To perplex. Obs.

plun'der·age (-ĭj), n. A plundering; specif., Mar. Law, embezzlement of goods on shipboard; also, the plunder so got.

plun'der·bund' (plŭn'dĕr·bŭnd'), n. [plunder + G. bund confederacy.] A league of commercial, political, or financial interests that exploits the public. See 3d BUND, 2. Colloq., U. S.

plun'der·er (-ĕr), n. One who plunders; pillager.

plun'der·ess (-ĕs; -ĭs; 119), n. A female plunderer.

plun'der·ing (-ĭng), part. adj. That plunders. — plun'der·ing·ly, adv.

plun'der·ous (-ŭs), adj. Given to, or characterized by, plundering.

plun'der-proof' (-prōōf'; 66), adj. See -PROOF.

plunge (plŭnj; 140), v.; PLUNGED (plŭnjd); PLUNG'ING (plŭn'jĭng). [ME. plungen, plongen, fr. OF. plongier (F. plonger), fr. (assumed) VL. plumbicare, fr. L. plumbum lead. See PLUMB.] Transitive: 1. To cause to penetrate or enter quickly and forcibly; to thrust or force (into or in liquid, a penetrable substance, or a cavity); to immerse; submerge; as, to plunge the body into water; to plunge a dagger into the breast. Also figuratively; as, to plunge a nation into war.
2. Obs. a To baptize by immersion. b To overwhelm; overcome; embarrass. c To thrust or cast oneself into; to dive into.
3. Hort. To sink (a potted plant) in the ground or in a bed of prepared material.
4. a Surv. To set (the horizontal cross wire of a theodolite) in the direction of a grade in plunging a grade. b To turn over (the telescope of a transit) on its horizontal transverse axis.
——, Intransitive: 1. To thrust or cast oneself, as into water; to submerge oneself; to dive or rush in; to penetrate, sink, or enter, suddenly or impetuously, as into a forest. Also figuratively; as, to plunge into debt.
Forced to plunge naked in the raging sea. Dryden.
2. To descend or dip suddenly, as a road.
3. a To pitch or throw oneself headlong or violently forward and downward, as a horse or ship.
Some wild colt, which . . . flings and plunges. Bp. Hall.
b Hence, to act with reckless haste.
4. To bet or gamble heavily and with seeming recklessness; to risk large sums in hazardous enterprises. Slang.
5. Geol. To incline downward; — usually said of a pipelike ore deposit.
Syn. — Drive, thrust, plump; douse, sink, souse. Cf. PUSH, DIP.

plunge a grade. Civ. Engin. a Surv. To establish a grade between two points of known level by sighting the target, set up at either point, through a theodolite fixed at the other point, clamping the instrument, and then bringing the target into the fixed line of sight at any desired intermediate points on the grade. Cf. 4th BONE. b To test a railroad embankment or the like as to its reliability or condition by prodding with a light pointed steel rod.

plunge (plŭnj), n. 1. A place for plunging or diving, as a swimming tank; a deep place (in water); a deep pool.
2. A dive, leap, rush, or pitch into, or as into, water; act of pitching oneself headlong or violently forward and, esp., downward; as, to take the water with a plunge. Hence: a A breaking of a wave. b A heavy fall, as of rain. c A heavy downward stroke.
3. Now Dial. a Submergence in difficulty, danger, or the like; a strait; difficulty. b An illness.
4. Act or instance of engaging in heavy and reckless betting or hazardous speculation or expenditure. Slang.
5. Geol. & Mining. The vertical angle between the line of maximum elongation of an ore body and a horizontal plane. Called also pitch and rake.

plunge bath. A bath in which the bather is immersed in or as in a pool.

plunge battery. Elec. A voltaic battery so arranged that the plates can be plunged into, or withdrawn from, the exciting liquid at pleasure.

plung'er (plŭn'jĕr), n. 1. One who plunges; as: a A diver. b Slang. A reckless gambler or speculator. c Mil. Slang. Now Rare. A cavalryman. d Steel Mfg. A workman who operates the guides on a rod-rolling mill.
2. That which plunges; as: a Automobiles. The rod carrying the valves in the inner assembly of a tire valve unit. b Mach. (1) A sliding reciprocating piece driven by or against fluid pressure; a piston; esp., a long valveless piston, used as a forcer in a force pump (which see), as a ram in a hydraulic press, or the like. (2) A piece with a motion more or less like that of the foregoing, as a device for firing the charge in a cartridge or a contact mine, the dasher of a churn, the iron core of an electric sucking coil, etc. c Pottery. A tank in which clay is worked with water to the proper consistence; a blunger.

plunger bucket or lift. A piston, without a valve, in a pump.

plunger elevator. A hydraulic elevator.

plunger magnet. An electromagnet in which an iron core is attracted into a tubular coil, or solenoid.

plunge rod. Civ. Engin. A leveling rod or a pointed steel rod used in plunging a grade (see plunge a grade, under PLUNGE, v.). plunger piston. = PLUNGER, n., 2 b (1).

plunger pump. A force pump.

plung'ing (plŭn'jĭng), adj. That plunges. — plung'ing·ly, adj.

plunging battery. A plunge battery.

plunging fire. Gun. Direct fire on a target from a superior elevation.

plunging rod. A plunge rod.

plunk (plŭngk), v.; PLUNKED (plŭngkt); PLUNK'ING. [Imitative.] Intransitive: 1. To make a quick, hollow, metallic, or harsh sound, as by pulling hard on a taut string and quickly releasing it; of a raven, to croak.
2. To drop or sink down suddenly or heavily; to plump.
3. To play truant, or "hooky." Scot.
——, Transitive: 1. To cause (a musical string) to plunk.
2. To throw, push, drive, pull, drop, etc. (something) so as to make it plunk; as, to plunk down a dollar.
3. To be a truant from (school). Scot.

plunk, n. 1. Act or sound of plunking; a blow. Colloq.
2. Slang. a Obs. A large sum of money. b U. S. A dollar.

plunk, adv. & interj. With a plunking sound; plump.

plun'ther (plŭn'thĕr), v. i. To plod; flounder. Rare.

plu'pa·tri·ot'ic (ploo'pā·trĭ·ŏt'ĭk), adj. [plu- + patriotic. Cf. PLUPERFECT.] Extravagantly patriotic.

plu'per'fect (ploo'pûr'fĕkt; ploo'pûr'fĕkt; -fĭkt; 66), adj. [L. plus-quam-perfectum (sc. tempus tense) more than perfect; cf. F. plus-que-parfait. See PLUS; PERFECT.]
1. Gram. Past perfect.
2. More than perfect or complete; superlative.
3. Music. Augmented; — of an interval. Rare.
— plu'per'fect·ly, adv. — plu'per'fect·ness, n.

plu'per'fect (ploo'pûr'fĕkt; ploo'pûr'fĕkt; -fĭkt; 66), n. The pluperfect tense; also, a verb or verb form denoting it.

plu'ral (ploor'ăl; 242), adj. [OF. or L.; OF. plurel (F. pluriel), fr. L. pluralis, fr. plus, pluris, more. See PLUS.]
1. Gram. Designating or pertaining to the form of a word denoting more than one, or in some languages having a dual form, as ancient Greek, more than two.
2 More than one; pertaining to, containing, consisting of, or equal to, more than one. "Plural faith." Shak.

plu'ral (ploor'ăl; 242), n. Gram. The plural number, the inflectional form denoting it, or a word in that form.
☞ NOTE. The plurals of nouns in Modern English are formed in various ways:
I. The ending s or es is added: hats; logs; crosses.
II. The ending en is added: ozen.
III. The stem vowel is changed by an old umlaut: foot, feet.
IV. A foreign-language ending is retained: foci; crises.
V. Many two-word and three-word compounds take the plural ending on the first element: captains general; fathers-in-law.
VI. Singular and plural are alike: deer; species.
VII. Some names of tribes (Iroquois), and names of peoples ending in -ese (Chinese), are alike in the singular and the plural.
VIII. Many names of fishes, birds, and mammals have a plural form in s, es, en, etc., and also an unchanged plural (identical with the singular).
☞ Other questions concerning plural forms and usage are dealt with in sections IX to XIV, below.
I. The ending s or es is added.
(1) Most nouns add s: book, books [pron. s]; bag, bags [pron. z]; boy, boys [pron. z].
(2) Nouns ending in s, z, x, ch, or sh, add es [pron. ĕz, ĭz]: gas, gases; buzz, buzzes; vase, vases; breeze, breezes; face, faces; fox, foxes; torch, torches; dash, dashes; edge, edges. Nouns ending in se, ze, ce, or dge with silent e add s [pron. ĕz, ĭz].
(3) Nouns ending in y preceded by a consonant change y to i and add es: mercy, mercies; lady, ladies; sky, skies; army, armies; pity, pities.
(4) Nouns ending in quy change y to i and add es: colloquy, colloquies; soliloquy, soliloquies.
(5) Proper nouns ending in y preceded by a consonant add s: Mary, Marys.
(6) Nouns ending in y preceded by a vowel, including those ending in ey, add s: day, days; key, keys; alloy, alloys, guy, guys; chimney, chimneys; monkey, monkeys; attorney, attorneys.
(7) Words ending in o preceded by a vowel add s: cameo, cameos; duo, duos; embryo, embryos; folio, folios; radio, radios; ratio, ratios; studio, studios; trio, trios.
(8) Words ending in oo add s: kangaroo, kangaroos; halloo, halloos; tattoo, tattoos; coo, coos; cuckoo, cuckoos.
(9) Most words ending in o preceded by a consonant add s: albino, albinos; alto, altos; armadillo, armadillos; banjo, banjos; burro, burros; canto, cantos; casino; chromo; contralto; dido; duodecimo; dynamos; egos; halos; juntos; kimonos; lassos; magnetos; mementos; Merinos; octavos; pianos; provisos; quartos; salvos; solos; sopranos; stilettos; tobaccos; torsos; tyros; zeros.
(10) Some words ending in o preceded by a consonant add es: bastinado, bastinadoes; bilbo, bilboes; bravo, bra-

---

plum'ming. Plumbing. Ref. Sp.
plump'ish, adj. See -ISH. plump'ly, adv. of PLUMP. plump'ness, n. See -NESS. plumpt. Plumped. Ref. Sp. plum'rock', plum'rose'. Corruptions of PRIMROSE. Scot.
Plum'stead pe-cul'iars (plŭm'stĕd; -stĭd). = PECULIAR PEOPLE b. plun'der-a·ble, adj. See -ABLE.
plun'derd. Plundered. Ref. Sp. plun'der-less, adj. See -LESS.
plun'geon (plŭn'jŭn), n. [F. plongeon.] A diver (bird). Obs. plunk'et, adj. & n. [OF. plonquié lead-colored (stuff), fr. plonquier to cover with lead, fr. (assumed) VL. plumbicare. See PLUNGE; cf. BLUNKET.] = BLUNKET. Obs. plunkt. Plunked. Ref. Sp.
plup. Var. of PLOP; — suggesting a softer sound.

voes; bubo, buboes; buffalo, buffaloes; calico, calicoes; cargo, cargoes; domino, dominoes; echo, echoes; embargoes; frescoes; grottoes; heroes; innuendoes; jingoes; mangoes; manifestoes; mosquitoes; mottoes; negroes; noes; porticoes; pomatoes; potatoes; tomatoes; tornadoes; torpedoes; vetoes; volcanoes.

(11) Words ending in i add s: taxi, taxis; macaroni, macaronis; ski, skis. But alkali adds es: alkali, alkalies.

(12) Some nouns ending in f change the f to v and add es [pron. z]: beef, beeves; calf, calves; elf, elves; half, halves; leaf, leaves; loaf, loaves; self, selves; sheaf, sheaves; shelf, shelves; thief, thieves; wharf, wharves; wolf, wolves.

(13) Some nouns ending in fe change to ves; life, lives; wife, wives; knife, knives.

(14) Letters, numbers, figures, signs, etc., add an apostrophe and s: two A's; three 4's.

II. The ending en is added to a few nouns: ox, oxen; child, children; brother, brethren (or brothers).

III. (1) A few nouns retain an umlauted plural: foot, feet; goose, geese; louse, lice; man, men; mouse, mice; tooth, teeth.

(2) Compounds formed with man (or woman) form the plural with men (or women): Dutchman, Dutchmen; Englishman, Englishmen; Frenchman, Frenchmen; woman, women; Englishwoman, Englishwomen.

(3) But many words ending in man, which are not English compounds, form the plural with s: German, Germans; Norman, Normans; Ottoman, Ottomans; Roman, Romans; Turcoman, Turcomans; cayman, caymans; talisman, talismans.

(4) Compounds formed with foot, mouse, and tooth, form the plural with feet, etc.: forefoot, forefeet; dormouse, dormice; eyetooth, eyeteeth.

IV. Many words of foreign origin retain the foreign plural; some have an English regular plural and a foreign plural, sometimes with a difference in meaning. For such differences, see the word in the Vocabulary.

abscissa, -scissas, -scissae acropolis, -lises, -leis addendum, addenda adieu, adieus, adieux administratrix, -trices adytum, adyta
aegis, aegises agendum, agenda
alga, algae alluvium, -viums, -via alto-rilievo, alti-rilievi alumna, alumnae alumnus, alumni amanuensis, amanuenses amoeba, -bae, -bas analysis, analyses animalculum, animalcula antenna, -nae, -nas anthropophagus, -gi
antithesis, antitheses antrum, antra
apex, apexes, apices aphis, aphides apotheosis, apotheoses apparatus, -ratus, -ratuses appendix, -dixes, -dices apsis, apsides aquarium, -iums, -ia arboretum, -retums, -reta arcanum, arcana arena, arenas, arenae automaton, -ta, -tons
axis, axes
bacillus, bacilli bacterium, bacteria bambino, bambini bandit, bandits, banditti basis, bases
basso-rilievo, bassi-rilievi bateau, bateaux beau, beaux, beaus biennium, biennia bronchus, bronchi bureau, bureaus, bureaux cactus, cacti, cactuses calculus, -li, -luses calix, calices callus, calluses, calli calyx, calyxes, calyces candelabrum, -bra, -brums carcinoma, -nomata, -nomas catalysis, catalyses cerebellum, -bellums, -bella cerebrum, -brums, -bra chapeau, chapeaux, chapeaus château, châteaux cherub, cherubim, cherubs chrysalis, -lises, -lides cicatrix, -trices, -trixes cicerone, ciceroni, cicerones cirrus, cirri coagulum, coagula coccus, cocci codex, codices colossus, colossi, colossuses compendium, -diums, -dia conidium, conidia convolvulus, -luses, -li corona, coronas, coronae corpus, corpora corrigendum, corrigenda cortex, cortices cranium, -niums, -nia crisis, crises criterion, -ria, -rions crux, cruxes, cruces cumulus, cumuli curriculum, -lums, -la custos, custodes cyclops, -clopes, -clopses datum, data decennium, -niums, -nia desideratum, desiderata diaeresis, diaereses diagnosis, diagnoses dictum, dicta, dictums dilettante, -ti, -tes diluvium, -viums, -via directrix, -trixes -trices dogma, dogmas, dogmata drachma, -mas, -mae, mai duodenum, duodena dux, duces, duxes
effluvium, -via, -viums elenchus, elenchi ellipsis, ellipses elysium, -ums, -a emphasis, emphases emporium, -riums, -ria encomium, -miums, -mia ephemera, ephemerae, ephemeras ephemeris, ephemerides ephemeron, ephemera, ephemerons epithalamium, -miums, -mia epithelium, -liums, -lia equilibrium, -riums, -ria erratum, errata esophagus, esophagi executrix, -trices, -trixes exegesis, exegeses exordium, -diums, -dia fellah, fellahin, fellaheen, fellahs femur, femurs, femora fibroma, -mata, -mas fibula, -lae, -las flambeau, flambeaux, -beaus focus, focuses, foci folium, foliums, folia formula, -las, lae fungus, fungi, funguses ganglion, -glia, -glions gemma, gemmae genius, geniuses, genii gens, gentes genus, genera
gladiolus, -li, luses gonidium, gonidia gravamen, -vamina, -vamens gumma, gummata gymnasium, -siums, -sia haruspex, haruspices helix, helices, helixes herbarium, -iums, -ia hiatus, hiatuses, hiatus hippocampus, -pi
hippopotamus, -muses, -mi honorarium, -ia, -iums humerus, humeri hypnosis, hypnoses hypothesis, hypotheses iambus, iambi
ibex, ibexes, ibices ictus, ictuses, ictus imago, imagoes, imagines imperium, imperia
incubus, -bi, -buses index, -dexes, -dices interregnum, interregna iris, irises, irides isthmus, isthmuses, isthmi jinni, jinn labium, labia labrum, labra lacuna, -nae, -nas lamina, -nae, -nas larva, larvae larynx, larynges, larynxes latex, latices, latexes lazzarone, lazzaroni lemma, -mas, -mata lex, leges libretto, -tos, -ti lipoma -mata, -mas locus, loci, loca
logos, logoi lustrum, -trums, -tra madame, mesdames maestro, maestros, maestri magus, magi mantis, -tes, -tises matrix, matrices, matrixes mausoleum, -leums, -lea maximum, -ma, -mums meatus, -tuses, -tus medium, mediums, media memorandum, -dums, -da metamorphosis, -phoses metathesis, metatheses metempsychosis, -choses miasma, -mata, -mas millennium, millenniums, millennia minimum, -ma, -mums minutia, minutiae momentum, -ta, -tums moratorium, -ria, -riums narcissus, -cissuses, -cissi nebula, nebulae, nebulas necropolis, -lises, -leis nemesis, nemeses neurosis, neuroses
nexus, nexuses, nexus nidus, nidi, niduses nimbus, nimbi, nimbuses nomen, nomina nucleolus, nucleoli nucleus, nucleuses, nuclei nympha, nymphae
oasis, oases octopus, -topuses, -topodes, -topi oesophagus, oesophagi operculum, -cula, -culums operetta, -ettas, -ette opus, opera
ovum, ova palazzo, palazzi palladium, palladia palpus, palpi papilla, papillae pappus, pappi papyrus, papyri paralysis, paralyses parenthesis, parentheses parhelion, parhelia pelvis, pelves penumbra, penumbrae, -bras periosteum, periostea periphrasis, periphrases phalanx, phalanxes, phalanges phantasma, phantasmata phasis, phases phenomenon, -mena, -menons philtrum, philtra phylum, phyla phyma, phymata pinna, pinnae, pinnas planetarium, planetaria plateau, -teaus, -teaux plexus, plexuses, plexus polypus, polypi pons, pontes pontifex, pontifices portmanteau, -teaus, -teaux praenomen, praenomina proboscis, -boscises, -boscides pròces-verbal, pròces-verbaux prolegomenon, prolegomena prothalamium, -mia prothallium, prothallia psychosis, psychoses quadrennium, quadrennia quantum, quanta quinquennium, quinquennia rachis, rachises, rachides radius, radii, radiuses radix, radices, radixes ranunculus, -culuses, -culi referendum, -dums, -da residuum, residua
rex, reges
rostrum, -tra, -trums sacrum, sacra
sanatorium, -ria, -riums sarcophagus, sarcophagi schema, schemata scholium, scholia, scholiums scleroma, scleromata scutellum, scutella septum, septa sequela, sequelae seraglio, seragli, seraglios seraph, seraphim, seraphs serum, serums, sera simulacrum, simulacra sinus, sinus, sinuses solidus, solidi solo, solos, soli soprano, -nos, -ni spadix, spadices
spectrum, spectra speculum, -la, -lums sphinx, sphinxes, sphinges stadium, stadia stamen, stamens, stamina stasis, stases stemma, stemmata sternum, -na, -nums stigma, -mas, -mata stimulus, stimuli stoma, stomata stratum, -ta, -tums stratus, strati stria, striae succedaneum, succedanea syllabus, -buses, -bi symposium, -posia, -posiums synopsis, synopses synthesis, syntheses syrinx, syringes
tableau, tableaux, tableaus tempo, tempi, tempos tempus, tempora terminus, termini testatrix, testatrices testatum, testata thema, themata thesaurus, thesauri thesis, theses thorax, thoraxes, thoraces tibia, tibiae, tibias trapezium, -ziums, -zia trousseau, trousseaux, trousseaus tumulus, tumuli tympanum, -nums, -na ultimatum, -tums, -ta umbra, umbrae vacuum, -ums, -a vas, vasa vertebra, -brae, -bras vertex, -texes, -tices vertigo, vertigoes, vertigines vesica, vesicae viaticum, viatica virtuoso, -sos, -si vortex, -texes, -tices.

V. In many two-word and three-word compounds, consisting of a noun with an adjective or a phrase, the first word (a noun) takes the plural form:

accountants general aides-de-camp
attorneys at law attorneys general battles royal beaux ideal billets-doux brothers-in-law captains general
cartes de visite chargés d'affaires coats of mail commanders in chief commissaries general commissioners-general Comptrollers General
consuls general courts-martial cousins-german daughters-in-law fathers-in-law governors general heirs apparent
heirs-at-law heirs general inspectors general knights-errant laws merchant letters patent men-at-arms men-of-war mothers-in-law
notaries public paymasters general poets laureate postmasters general sergeants at arms sergeants-at-law sergeants major sisters-in-law solicitors general sons-in-law surgeons general surveyors general tables d'hôte
vicars-general

In similar-appearing terms, when the principal word (a noun) is second, it takes the plural form:

brigadier generals director-generals judge advocates
lieutenant colonels
lieutenant generals
major generals

VI. Some nouns have the same form in the plural as in the singular: cattle, mankind. In species, series, and superficies this is due to the identity of singular and plural nominative forms in Latin.

VII. (1) Many names of tribes of savage or semicivilized peoples have the same form in the singular and the plural: Abnaki; Bantu; Iroquois; Kabonga; Kongo; Sioux.

(2) Certain names of peoples, dwellers in cities, etc. ending in -ese, are used as both singular and plural:

Andamanese
Angolese
Aragonese
Assamese
Bolognese
Burmese
Cantonese
Ceylonese
Chinese
Cingalese
Genovese
Japanese
Javanese
Maltese
Milanese
Modenese
Parmese
Pekingese
Portuguese
Siamese
Sudanese
Tyrolese
Viennese

VIII. Names of fishes, birds, and mammals vary between the use of a plural form differing from the singular (s, es, en, ies, eys, ves, umlauted, etc.) and of the unchanged form (identical with the singular): Some use a different form in the plural always. Some use the same form as singular or plural always. Some use the different plural to denote different varieties or species or kinds, and the unchanged plural to denote that the idea is collective.

(1) The following always use a plural form differing from the singular: (Some words in this list, as dog, goat, horse, pig, ox, cow, if preceded by certain adjectives, esp. wild, native, sea, mountain — use the unchanged form as plural; many wild pig; a band of musk ox, esp. in the language of sportsmen.)

alewife
bigeye bigmouth
bird (and its compound names of songbirds, as robin, thrush, wren.) cow cravo
crow cuckoo cuddy cunner dab dabchick dingo diver
dog dolphin dormouse dory dove dragonet drake dugong
eagle echidna emu fair maid falcon fathead fieldfare finfoot finnan haddie flathead gallinule galliwasp gentoo gibbon gilthead glutton goat godwit gorilla goshawk grampus grig grunt gudgeon gunnel halfbeak hardtail harpy harrier hawk hedgehog hen hobby horse humpback jaeger jerboa kestrel kinkajou kipper kite knot koala lamprey
lark latchet lemur loach longfin longspur loon lump mademoiselle maigre manatee mandrill marlin marmoset marmot medico merlin miller's-thumb mole mongoose monkey mooneye moray mossbunker mouse muffiejaw noddy oldwife opah osprey ounce owl ox oyster catcher paca panda pangolin pargo parrot pelican penguin petrel phalanger phalarope pig pika
pilchard pintado platypus pompano
pope puddingwife puffer puffin pullet rat ratel raven ray redfin redwing reedbird remora roker ruff sargo sauger saurel saury sculpin serrano shag shark sheartail shearwater shoveler
shrew shrike siamang silverfin skua skylark sloth smew smolt sole sparrow spoonbill sprat squaretail starling stickleback sucker swallow swelltoad tang tarwhine tattler
tautog thornback threadfin thresher titmouse toucan turnstone viscacha vole vulture wallaby wallaroo walleye weever whaup wheatear whimbrel windowpane wombat wrasse wrymouth wryneck yellowfin zander zorilla

(2) The plurals of the following usually have a different form (s, -es, ies, etc.), but may, esp. in the language of those who hunt or fish, have the unchanged form:

albatross
anchovy antelope argali badger bear beaver bighorn bittern blackcock blenny blower boar bobcat bobwhite bonito brant buck buffalo canvasback carabao
caribou cat char chub clam cock codling coot cougar coyote crake
crane crappie curlew dhole doe
dog dotterel dowitcher drum duck duiker dunlin
eel egret eider elephant ermine fisher flounder
fowl
fox gadwall gannet gayal gazelle giraffe
gnu
goat
goby goldeneye
goose goral grebe greenhead grouper grubby guanaco gull gurnard hare hart hartebeest heron herring hind hippopotamus hog horse
ibex ibis impalla jack jackal jacksnipe jaguar kiang killdeer kittiwake klipspringer kudu lemming leopard lion llama lobster lynx mallard marten meadow lark merganser mink minnow mouflon mullet murre muskrat nilgai ocelot okapi opossum oryx ostrich otter
ox
panther parr partridge peacock peafowl peccary pheasant
pig pigeon pintail plover pochard poggy polecat porcupine porgy porpoise pronghorn ptarmigan puma
quail rabbit raccoon rail requin rhinoceros robalo rockling sable sambar sambur sandpiper sardine scaup scooter scoter seal sheldrake shiner shrimp sitatunga skate skipjack skunk smelt snapper snipe squid squirrel stag stilt stint stoat stork sturgeon surmullet swan tailor tapir tarpon teal tench tiger tortoise tunny turkey turtle vicuna walrus wapiti weasel whale whippoorwill whiting widgeon wildcat wildebeest willet
wolf wolverine woodcock yak yellowtail zebra
zebu

(3) The following always use the same form in singular and plural:

bison	menhaden	saithe
brit	moose	salmon
burbot	muskellunge	shad
chamois	musquash	sheep
dace	ouananiche	squeteague deer	pickerel	swine
gaur	plaice	tai grayling	reindeer	turbot
grilse	roach	vendace
grouse	sailor's-choice

(4) The following use either the different or the unchanged form:

barracouta	cavalla, n.	gambusia
barracuda	cero, n.	ling
barramunda	cusk	quagga
beluga	escolar	torsk
bleak	eulachon	tuna
capelin, n.

(5) The following use the different plural form only to signify diversity in kind or species (trouts of the Rocky Mountains; fishes of the Atlantic):

bass	elk	reedbuck
bass, black bass, etc.	fish (and its compounds, as blackfish)	reitbok rhebok
blaubok	gemsbok	roe
blesbok	grysbok	scad
bontebok	haddock	scup
bream	hake	sheepshead
brill	halibut	snook
carp	mackerel	springbok
cod	perch	steelhead
duikerbok	pike	steinbok
eelpout	pollack	trout
eland	pout	waterbuck

IX. Collective Nouns.

(1) Some collective nouns have no plural form: cattle, mankind, police, rest (remainder).

(2) Many collective nouns are used in the singular form with either a collective singular or a plural meaning, requiring a singular or plural verb according to the unity or plurality of the concept (see COLLECTIVE NOUN); they are used also in the plural form, meaning more than one group or collection of individuals:

aristocracies	families	peasantries armies	firms	peoples
artilleries	fleets	populaces assemblies	flocks	populations associations	generations	posteriors bands	gentry, gentries	poultries boards	groups	professions
broods	herds	publics
bundles	households	rabbles cabinets	humanities	races cavalries	infantries	regiments classes	juries	remainders
clergy, clergies	legislatures	remnants cliques	majorities	senates clubs	masses	sexes
committees	ministries	sheafs companies	minorities	shoals complexes	mobs	societies
conferences	multitudes	soldiers congregations	nations	squadrons congresses	nobilities	staffs councils	numbers	swarms coveys	packs	teams
crews	pairs	throngs
crowds	parishes	tribes
electorates	parties	trios enemies

(3) A few nouns may be used either in the collective singular form or in the plural form: cannon, cannons; shot, shots; shell, shells.

(4) Several terms for numbers are used in the singular form with either a collective singular or a plural meaning, and are used also in the plural form, meaning several such groups: dozen, dozens; score, scores; hundred, hundreds; thousand, thousands; million, millions; myriad, myriads.

Dozen, score, hundred, thousand, and million, when preceded by a numeral and followed by a prepositional phrase with of, use the same form in the plural as in the singular (ten thousand of the soldiers).

(5) A few terms for numbers or weights have the same form in singular and plural: brace; gross; hundredweight.

X. Mass-words (see MASS-WORD) may be used in the singular or plural. In the singular (wheat, tea, copper, meat) they mean a product, commodity, food, etc., not consisting of countable units. But the plural (wheats, teas, coppers, meats) is used to mean kinds or varieties of (wheat, tea, copper, meat).

barley	iron	rye
brass	linen	silk
coffee	millet	steel
copper	oak	tea
corn	pepper	wheat
fruit	pine	wool

Many nouns (truth, vileness) which are abstract in the singular have a plural form (truths, vilenesses) meaning instances of (truth, vileness).

CONSTRUCTION WITH VERBS, etc.

XI. Many nouns which are plural in form (s) offer difficulties as to their agreement with a verb:

(1) Several nouns are plural in form (s), but singular or plural in meaning, and take a corresponding singular or plural verb:

alms	links (a golf course)	pains amends	[illegible]	sweepstakes innings

(2) Nouns ending in ics are construed as singular when the word denotes a subject of scientific study, or a scientific treatise or its subject matter; they are often or usually construed as plurals when the word denotes matters of practice (gymnastics, tactics), activities (athletics), qualities (acoustics); a singular noun as the grammatical complement often causes such a word to be construed as a singular (dramatics is his chief interest).

The following (when denoting a subject of specialized study) are singulars:

acoustics	eugenics	mnemonics aeronautics	gymnastics	optics aerostatics	hydraulics	phonetics aesthetics	hydrostatics	physics ballistics	kinematics	poetics calisthenics	kinetics	politics
civics	linguistics	psychics dioptrics	mathematics	semantics dynamics	mechanics	statistics economics	metaphysics	thaumaturgics ethics	metrics	therapeutics

(3) Names of certain tools, implements, apparatus, and garments consisting of or having two parts occur in the plural form and take a plural verb:

bellows	knickers	snuffers
bloomers	nippers	spectacles braces	overalls	stays (corset)
breeches	pantaloons	stocks (instrument of punishment)
calipers	pants
compasses	pincers	suspenders drawers	pliers	tights
fleshings	scales	tongs
forceps	scissors	trousers
glasses	shears	tweezers
knickerbockers	shorts (trousers)

But gallows, though plural in form, is construed as a singular and has a plural gallowses.

(4) Many nouns (including certain senses of some nouns otherwise used in the singular) are plural in form, in meaning or implication, and in construction:

banns	flannels	oddments
betters	fleshings	odds (betting)
bowels	funds	pickings
clothes	gains	proceeds
commons	giblets	receipts
contents	goods	riches
damages	grits (meal)	settlings doings	grounds (sediment, gardens, lawns, etc.)	shorts (flour) dregs		suds
earnings	grouts	surroundings effects (possessions)	internals	sweepings lees	tailings
entrails	manners	takings
environs	middlings	victuals
externals	morals	vitals
filings	munitions	winnings

(5) A number of nouns (including certain senses of some nouns otherwise used in the singular) are singular in meaning but plural in form (s), and take a plural verb:

assizes	diggings (apartment)	quarters blues (depression)	doldrums	remains (a body) brains (mind, intelligence)	headquarters	thanks lodgings	tidings
colors (a flag)	matins	vespers
customs (duty)	nuptials	wages

(6) Certain nouns are plural in form but singular in meaning, and take a singular verb: billiards, glanders, hustings, measles, molasses, mumps, news, shambles, staggers, summons, works (a factory, etc.).

(7) Names of certain games played with a number of objects or pieces are plural in form but are construed as singular: cards; checkers; draughts; marbles; quoits.

(8) Barracks is singular or plural in meaning, but usually takes a plural verb.

(9) Vermin, originally only singular in meaning and construction, is now almost always used as a plural.

PRONOUNS

XII. (1) Personal pronouns have singular and plural forms as follows:

I	we	him	them
my, mine	our, ours	she	they
me	us	her, hers	their, theirs
thou	ye	her	them
thy, thine	your, yours	it	they thee	you	its	their, theirs
he	they	it	them
his	their, theirs

(2) Compound personal pronouns form the plural as follows:

myself	ourselves	himself	themselves thyself	yourselves	herself	themselves yourself	yourselves	itself	themselves

(3) The demonstrative pronouns this and that form the plurals these and those.

ADJECTIVES

XIII. The only adjectives in English with plural forms are the demonstratives this and that:

sing.	pl.
this (book)	these (books)
that (boy)	those (boys)

VERBS

XIV. (1) The only simple tense form of the English verb which distinguishes between singular and plural is the 3d person singular present indicative active:

sing.: (he) works pl.: (they) work

(2) Verb phrases using indicative present tense forms of the auxiliaries to be, to have, and to do distinguish between singular and plural:

sing.	pl.
(I) am (working)	(we) are (working)
(he) is (working)	(they) are (working)
(I, he) was (working)	(they) were (working)
(he) has (worked)	(they) have (worked)
(he) does (work)	(they) do (work)

(3) Be has singular and plural forms in the present and past indicative: am, art, is–are, was–were.

plu'ral·ism (plōōr'əl·Iz'm; 242), n. 1. Quality, state, or instance of being plural.

Prima facie the world is a pluralism; as we find it, its unity seems to be that of any collection. William James.

2. The holding by one person of two or more offices at once.

3. Anthropol. The theory that human beings originated from more than one type of humanoid ancestor.

4. Eccl. = PLURALITY, 2 a.

5. Philos. a The doctrine that there is more than one kind of ultimate reality (and, usually, more than two); — contrasted with monism, 1 a (and, usually, with dualism). b The doctrine that reality is not organic but is composed of a plurality of independent entities, whether material or spiritual or both; — contrasted with monism.

6. Sociol. The theory which interprets social phenomena as due to the like reactions of a large (plural) number of individuals to the same or like stimuli.

plu'ral·ist (plōōr'əl·Ist; 242), n. 1. a Eccl. A clergyman holding more than one benefice or living at a time. b A person having two or more offices, professions etc., at once.

2. One who holds a theory of pluralism.

plu'ral·is'tic (-Is'tĭk), adj. Also plu'ral·ist. Of, pertaining to, or characterized by pluralism. — plu'ral·is'ti·cal·ly (-tĭ·kəl·I), adv.

Modern society is pluralistic . . . Each man . . . is attached to a very complex social situation. Walter Lippmann.

plu·ral'i·ty (plōō·răl'I·tĭ; 242), n.; pl. -TIES (-tĭz). [OF. pluralité, fr. LL. pluralitas.] 1. State of being plural; also, state of being numerous; a large number or quantity; a multitude; as, a plurality of persons or worlds.

2. Eccl. a The holding by one person of two or more benefices or livings at one time. b Any of the benefices or livings so held. c Hence, the holding by one person of two or more offices or positions at one time.

3. The greater number or part; majority.

4. U. S. Politics. In an election, an excess of votes over those for any other candidate for the same office, esp. over the number for the next opponent. See MAJORITY, 2.

plurality of causes. The doctrine that the true cause of an event is the sum total of the conditions required to produce it; also, the doctrine that a given effect can be produced in more than one way, or by more than one cause.

plu'ral·ize (plōōr'əl·Iz; 242), v. t.; -IZED (-Izd); -IZ'ING (-Iz'Ĭng). To make plural by using the plural termination; to attribute plurality to; to express in the plural form. — v. i. To take a plural; to assume a plural form; also, to be or become a pluralist. — plu'ral·i·za'tion (-I·zā'shŭn; -I·zə̄'shŭn), n. — plu'ral·iz'er (plōōr'əl·Iz'ĕr), n.

plu'ral·ly (plōōr'əl·I), adv. In a plural manner.

plural marriage. Polygamy, as formerly practiced by Mormons.

plural number. Gram. See NUMBER, n., 13.

plural vote. The casting or right of casting more than one vote, or of voting in more than one constituency. Hence: plural voter, plural voting.

plural wife. A wife in a plural marriage.

plu'ra·tive (plōōr'ə·tĭv; 242), adj. [L. pluralivus plural.] Rare. a Gram. = PLURAL, 1. b Logic. Denoting a quantity more than half but less than all.

plu·ren'ni·al (plōō·rĕn'I·əl; 159), adj. Lasting for many years. — n. [See PLURAL; -ENNIAL.] A plant that lives for many years.

plu'ri- (plōōr'I-; see PLEUR-; 242). A combining form, Latin pluri-, from plus, pluris, meaning several, mani-; — chiefly in adverbial sense with adjectives, as in *pluri*literal, *pluri*axial. The meanings of the following can be understood from the definitions of their elements.

pluricapsular	plurifetation	pluripetalous pluricarinate	puriflagellate	pluripotence pluricarpellary	pluriflorous	pluripotent pluricellular	plurifoliate	pluriseptate pluricentral	plurifoliolate	pluriserial pluricipital	pluriguttulate	pluriseriate pluriculspid	plurilocular	pluriseriated pluriculspidate	plurimammate	plurisetose pluridentate	plurinucleate	plurispiral plurifacial	pluripartite	plurisporous plu'ri·ax'i·al (-ăk'sI·əl), adj. Having more than one axis. Specif., Bot., designating plants of which the flowers are developed on secondary shoots; — opposed to monaxial.

plu'ri·es (plōōr'I·ēz; 242), n. [From LL. pluries many times, a word in the writ.] Law. Any of one or more writs issued after the first and alias writs have been exhausted.

plu'ri·fy (plōōr'I·fI), v. t. [See -FY.] To make plural; specif., Obs., to put on the basis of an ecclesiastical plurality. — plu'ri·fi·ca'tion (-fI·kā'shŭn), n.

plu'ri·glan'du·lar (plōōr'I·glăn'dŭ·lĕr), adj. [pluri- + glandular.] Of, pertaining to, affecting, or derived from, several types of glands, as in pluriglandular syndrome, syndrome from simultaneous disorder in several glands.

plu'ri·lat'er·al (-lăt'ĕr·əl), adj. [pluri- + lateral.] Having more than two sides; hence, of a contract or treaty, having more than two parties.

plu'ri·lin'gual (-lĭng'gwəl), adj. Speaking several languages. — plu'ri·lin'gual·ism, n. — plu'ri·lin'gual·ist, n. & adj.

plu'ri·nom'i·nal (-nŏm'I·nəl; -n'l), adj. Consisting of or characterized by more than one name; polynomial.

plu·rip'a·ra (plōō·rĭp'ə·rə; 242), n.; pl. -RAE (-rē). [NL., fr. pluri- + L. parere to bring forth.] Med. A multipara. — plu'ri·par'i·ty (plōōr'I·păr'I·tĭ; 242), n. — plu·rip'a·rous (plōō·rĭp'ə·rŭs; 242), adj.

plu'ri·pres'ence (plōōr'I·prĕz'ĕns), n. Theol. Presence in more than one place at the same time.

‖plu'ris pe·ti'ti·o (plōō'rĭs pē·tĭsh'I·ō). [Law.] See PLUS PETITIO.

plu'ri·sy. Archaic var. of PLEURISY.

plu'ri·syl'la·ble (plōōr'I·sĭl'ə·b'l), n. Any word of more than one syllable. — plu'ri·syl·lab'ic (-sI·lăb'Ĭk), adj.

plu'ri·va'lent (plōōr'I·vā'lĕnt; plōō·rĭv'ə·lĕnt; 242), adj. [pluri- + L. valens, pres. part.] Biol. Designating a chromatin rod consisting of several chromosomes.

plu'ri·valve (plōōr'I·vălv), adj. Bot. & Zool. Multivalve.

plu·riv'o·rous (plōō·rĭv'ō·rŭs), adj. [pluri- + -vorous.] Bot. Living upon several or many hosts, as certain fungi. — plu·riv'o·ry (-rĭ), n.

plus (plŭs), prep. [L., more; akin to Gr. pleiōn, pleōn. See PLEONASM; cf. PLURAL.] Increased by; with the addition or increment of; with an addition; — orig. used to render the mathematical symbol +; as, four plus five (or mathematically expressed 4 + 5); the debt plus interest; — opposed to minus.

plus, adj. 1. Indicating addition or requiring to be added; positive (in mode or direction of reckoning); not negative; as, the plus sign [+]; a plus quantity or value; — used orally to render the sign +. Opposed to minus.

2. Hence; a Colloq. In predicate use, having as an addition or gain; as, he was plus a coat. b Additional; extra.

3. Denoting a greater value than usual in the (specified) grade; as, A plus; hence, possessing in superior degree the (specified) character; as, style plus. Colloq.

4. Bot. Pertaining to or designating a physiological, sex-like differentiation comparable to male, in certain plants, as fungi; as, a plus strain, mycelium, hypha.

5. Elec. Positively electrified; positive.

6. Ophth. Denoting convexity, which produces magnification of an image; as, a plus lens.

plus, adv. Elec. Positively.

plus, n. 1. The plus sign; — opposed to minus.

2. An added quantity; something additional or extra.

3. A positive quantity, also, surplus.

plus (plŭs), v. t.; PLUSSED (plŭst); PLUSS'ING. To increase; to add something to. Colloq.

plus fours. A style of loose knickerbockers, very long and baggy at the knees, worn esp. in sports, as golf; — so called because originally four inches longer than ordinary knickerbockers. — plus'-foured' (plŭs'fōrd'; 181), adj.

plush (plŭsh), n. [F. pluche, fr. peluche, fr. OF. peluchier to pluck, peck, pick, pick out (whence espelucher, F. épluicher), fr. (assumed) VL. piluccare, dim. fr. L. pilare to deprive of hair. See 3d PEEL; cf. PLUCK.] 1. A textile fabric with a pile or shag on one side, longer and softer than that of velvet. It is made of silk, cotton, wool, etc., or a combination of two materials.

2. pl. Plush breeches, such as worn by some footmen.

3. Some natural substance, as grass, like or likened to plush in softness or appearance.

plush, adj. Pertaining to, like, or made of plush.

plush (plŭsh), v. i. [From PLUSH, n.] To flatten, as under pressure or wetting; — said of textiles.

plush copper. Chalcotrichite, a fibrous red copper ore.

plus head. Mach. A curved head, top, or bottom that is convex on the outside.

plushed (plŭsht), adj. Having a long nap like plush; made of plush; also, wearing plush.

plush·ette' (plŭsh·ĕt'), n. An inferior kind of plush.

plush stitch. A stitch in worsted work, made with loops cut to form a surface like plush, or left whole for a border, or fringe; — called also raised stitch.

plush velveteen. Cotton plush made to imitate silk plush.

plush'y (plŭsh'ĭ), adj.; PLUSH'I-ER (-ĭ-ĕr); PLUSH'I-EST. Like, or of the nature of, plush; soft and shaggy; covered with plush. — plush'i-ly, adv. — plush'i-ness, n.

Plu'si-a (plōō'zhĭ-ȧ; -zĭ-ȧ; 242), n. [NL., fr. Gr. plousios rich; — in reference to the metallic markings on its wings.] Zool. a A large widely distributed genus of moths (family Noctuidae). They have a stout body, slender antennae, and the forewings usually with metallic markings. It is the type of a subfamily, Plu'si-i'nae (plōō'sĭ-ĭ'nē). b [not cap.] Any member of this genus, esp. P. brassicae, the cabbage plusia, whose larva feeds on cabbage and other crucifers.

plus lens. A converging lens. See LENS, 1.

‖plus pe·ti'ti·o (plŭs pē·tĭsh'ĭ-ō). [Law L.] Roman Law. A demanding by the plaintiff in his pleading of more than he proves, either in amount, or as to time or condition of performance. In Scots law it is often called pluris petitio.

‖plus'quam-, or plus'quam (plŭs'kwăm), adj. [L.] More than.

plus'sage (plŭs'ĭj), n. Amount over and above another.

plus sign. Math. The sign + (orig. a contraction of Latin et and) denoting addition or a positive quantity.

plus thread. Mech. A screw thread on a bolt whose diameter is the same as that at the bottom of the thread.

Plu·tarch'i-an (plōō·tär'kĭ-ăn; 242), adj. [L. Plutarchius.] Of or pertaining to Plutarch, the Greek biographer; hence, of a distinguished character like the men of whose lives he treated.

Plu·tar'chic (-tär'kĭk), adj. Also Plu·tar'chi·cal (-kĭ-kăl). Plutarchian. — Plu·tar'chi·cal·ly, adv.

Plu'tarch's Lives (plōō'tärks). The familiar title of a series of parallel biographies of Greek and Roman worthies by Plutarch (see Biog.). The English version (1579) by Sir Thomas North was used by Shakespeare.

Plu·tel'la (plōō·tĕl'ȧ), n. [NL., prob. dim. fr. Gr. ploutos wealth.] Zool. a A genus of moths (superfamily Tineoidea). b [not cap.] Any member of this genus, esp. P. maculipennis, the cabbage plutella, whose larva destroys turnips and cabbages.

plu'te·us (plōō'tē-ŭs; 242), n.; pl. -TEI (-ī), -TEUSES (-ŭs-ĕz; -ĭz; 119). [L., a shed.] 1. Rom. Antiq. a Arch. A low wall or parapet, esp. one used as a partition between columns. b Mil. A kind of penthouse (sometimes movable) of hurdles covered with raw hides, to protect besiegers; also, a breastwork; parapet. c A bookshelf, bookcase, or desk.

2. Zool. The free-swimming, bilaterally symmetrical larva of sea urchins and ophiurans. It has several slender, anteriorly projecting processes enclosing calcareous rods. The adult radial form develops on one side of the pluteus.

Pluteus of Sea Urchin (Strongylocentrotus). a Mouth; b Stomach; d, e Water Tubes; c Rudiment of Sea Urchin. Much enlarged.

— plu'te·al (plōō'tē-ăl), adj., plu'te·an (-ăn), adj. — plu'te·i·form' (-ĭ-fôrm'; plōō-tē'-), adj.

Plu'to (plōō'tō), n. [L., fr. Gr. Ploutōn.] 1. Class. Myth. The god of the lower world, usually called Hades by the Greeks and Dis by the Romans.

2. Astron. The most remote known planet of the solar system, discovered in 1930 by C. W. Tombaugh as a result of prediction and research originated in 1905 by Dr. Percival Lowell. It is invisible to the naked eye, and as seen in the telescope is of yellowish color. Its mean distance from the sun is about 3,680,000,000 miles, its period of revolution, 248 years, its orbital eccentricity, 0.25, its orbital inclination to the ecliptic, 17° 9′, and its estimated diameter probably not greater than 4,000 miles. Symbol, ♇.

plu'to- (plōō'tō-), plut-. A combining form, Greek plouto-, plout-, from ploutos, wealth, as in *pluto*nomy, *plut*archy, plu·tol'a·try (plōō·tŏl'ȧ·trĭ), plu'to·ma'ni·a (plōō'tō·mā'-nĭ-ȧ). See -LATRY, -MANIA.

plu·toc'ra·cy (plōō·tŏk'rȧ·sĭ), n.; pl. -CIES (-sĭz). [Gr. ploutokratia, fr. ploutos wealth; akin to Gr. polys much. See FULL; DEMOCRACY.] Government by the wealthy; the rule or dominion of wealth or of the rich; also, a controlling or influential class of rich men; a body of plutocrats.

Democracy has to fight its way out from under plutocracy. H. G. Wells.

plu'to·crat (plōō'tō-krăt; 242), n. One who has power or influence due to his wealth; one of the plutocracy.

plu·to·crat'ic (-krăt'ĭk), adj. Also plu·to·crat'i·cal (-ĭ-kăl). Of, pertaining to, or characterized by, plutocrats or plutocracy. — plu·to·crat'i·cal·ly, adv.

plu·tol'a·try (plōō·tŏl'ȧ·trĭ), n. [pluto- + -latry.] The worship of wealth.

plu·tol'o·gy (plōō·tŏl'ō·jĭ), n. [pluto- + -logy.] The scientific study of wealth; theoretical economics. — plu'to·log'i·cal (plōō'tō·lŏj'ĭ·kăl), adj. — plu·tol'o·gist (plōō·tŏl'ō·jĭst), n.

Pluto monkey. A long-tailed West African guenon monkey (Cercopithecus pluto) of a grizzled blackish color with a white frontal band.

Plu·to'ni·an (plōō·tō'nĭ·ăn; 159), adj. [L. Plutonius, fr. Gr. Ploutōnios.] 1. Of, pertaining to, or characteristic of, Pluto or the lower world; Plutonic; infernal.

2. [not cap.] Geol. = PLUTONIC, 1. Rare.

plu·to'ni·an (plōō·tō'nĭ·ăn; 242), n. Geol. A plutonist.

plu·ton'ic (-tŏn'ĭk), adj. [Cf. F. plutonique.] 1. Geol. a Pert. to or designating the theory of the plutonists; igneous. b Originating or situated deep within the earth.

2. [cap.] Plutonian.

plutonic plug. Geol. A plug composed of holocrystalline, granular, igneous rock, as granite or gabbro.

plutonic rock. Geol. An igneous rock of holocrystalline, granular texture, such as granite, regarded as having solidified at considerable depth below the surface.

plu'to·nist (plōō'tō·nĭst), n. [Cf. F. plutoniste.] Geol. One who held the now obsolete theory that the rocks of the earth solidified from igneous fusion; — opposed to neptunist. — plu'to·nism (-nĭz'm), n.

plu'to·nite (plōō'tō·nīt), n. Petrog. A deep-seated rock.

Plu·to'ni·um (plōō·tō'nĭ·ŭm), n. Also Plu·to'ni·on (-ŏn). [L. Plutonium, prop. neut. of Plutonius Plutonian; cf. Plutonia, pl., a pestilential district in Asia.] A place marked by mephitic vapors; — as being anciently regarded as an entrance to the infernal regions.

plu·to'ni·um (plōō·tō'nĭ·ŭm), n. [NL., fr. Pluto the planet. See PLUTO.] Chem. A radioactive element formed by the decay of neptunium, also found in minute quantities in pitchblende. Symbol, Pu; at. no., 94. Plutonium is fissionable, yielding atomic energy by bombardment with neutrons; in the atomic bomb it undergoes an explosive chain reaction. By means of radioactive decay plutonium forms uranium 235.

plu'to·no- (plōō'tō·nō-). A combining form for plutonic.

plu'to·no·met'a·mor'phism (-mĕt'ȧ·môr'fĭz'm), n. Geol. Metamorphism under the conditions of temperature and pressure that prevail during the crystallization of plutonic rocks.

plu·ton'o·my (plōō·tŏn'ō·mĭ), n. [Gr. ploutos wealth + nomos law.] Political economy; economics (which see); plutology. — plu'to·nom'ic (plōō'tō·nŏm'ĭk), adj. — plu·ton'o·mist (plōō·tŏn'ō·mĭst; 242), n.

Plu'tus (plōō'tŭs), n. [L., fr. Gr. Ploutos.] 1. Gr. Myth. The son of Iasion and Demeter, and the god of wealth. He is fabled to have been blinded by Zeus that he might bestow his gifts without discrimination of merit.

2. A comedy, by Aristophanes, first acted 408 B.C., in which the blind god is given sight.

plu'vi·al (-vĭ·ăl), adj. [L. pluvialis, fr. pluvia rain; cf. F. pluvial. See PLOVER.] 1. Of or pertaining to rain; characterized by abundant rain.

2. Geol. Due to the action of rain.

plu'vi·al (plōō'vĭ·ăl; 242), n. [ML. pluviale, prop., raincloak; cf. F. pluvial.] An ecclesiastic's cope; also, a similar robe of state of a monarch. Obs. exc. Hist.

Plu'vi·a'lis (plōō'vĭ·ā'lĭs), n. [NL. See PLOVER; cf. PLUVIAL.] Zool. The genus of Charadriidae including the golden plovers. Syn. Charadrius. — plu'vi·al'i·form (-ăl'ĭ·fôrm), adj. — plu'vi·a·line (plōō'vĭ·ȧ·līn; -lĭn), adj.

plu'vi·an (plōō'vĭ·ăn), adj. [L. pluvius.] Rainy.

plu'vine (plōō'vīn; -vĭn), adj. Pluvial.

pluvio-. A combining form from Latin pluvia, meaning rain, as in *pluvio*meter.

plu'vi·o·graph' (plōō'vĭ·ō·grăf'; 83), n. [pluvio- + -graph.] A self-registering rain gauge.

plu'vi·o·graph'ic (-grăf'ĭk), adj. Also plu'vi·o·graph'i·cal (-ĭ-kăl). Of or pertaining to pluviography or the pluviograph.

plu'vi·og'ra·phy (-ŏg'rȧ·fĭ), n. [pluvio- + -graphy.] The branch of meteorology treating of the automatic registration of the precipitation of rain, snow, etc.; also, the graphic presentation of precipitation data.

plu'vi·om'e·ter (-ŏm'ē·tĕr), n. [pluvio- + -meter; cf. F. pluviomètre.] A rain gauge (which see). — plu'vi·o·met'ric (-ō·mĕt'rĭk), adj., plu'vi·o·met'ri·cal (-rĭ·kăl), adj. — plu'vi·o·met'ri·cal·ly, adv. — plu'vi·om'e·try (-ŏm'ē·trĭ), n.

plu'vi·o·scope (plōō'vĭ·ō·skōp'; 242), n. [pluvio- + -scope.] A rain gauge.

plu'vi·ous (plōō'vĭ·ŭs; 242). Also plu'vi·ose (-ōs). [L. pluviosus, fr. pluvia rain; cf. F. pluvieux. See PLUVIAL.] Of, pertaining to, characterized by, or of the nature of, rain; rainy. — plu'vi·os'i·ty (-ŏs'ĭ·tĭ), n.

ply (plī), v.; PLIED (plīd); PLY'ING (plī'ĭng). [ME. plien, fr. OF. plier (F. plier), fr. ploier (F. ployer), fr. L. plicare to fold; akin to Gr. plekein to plait, weave, L. plectere, G. flechten to braid, plait, AS. fleax flax, Skr. praśna basket. Cf. APPLY, COMPLEXION, DISPLAY, DUPLICITY, EMPLOY, EXPLOIT, FLASK, FLAX, IMPLICATE, PERPLEX, PLAIT, PLEACH, PLIABLE, PLIER, REPLY, SIMPLE.] Transitive: 1. To bend; fold; mold. Hence, to double, as silk in spinning, or webs in weaving.

2. To bend in will or sense; to adapt. Obs.

—, Intransitive: Obs. a To bend; yield; be pliable; also, to twist. b Hence, to yield; comply; be pliant.

ply (plī), n.; pl. PLIES (plīz). [OF. pli, ploi, fr. plier, ploier. See PLY to bend.] 1. A fold; a plait; one of the twists or strands, as in yarn; a thickness or layer of cloth, as in a collar; one of the interwoven webs in a fabric or carpet. In a pneumatic tire the plies, of rubberized cotton fabric, extend from bead to bead and form the fabric body of the tire (cf. BREAKER, n., 12).

2. A bend or curvature, as of an animal's limb or wing; as, the ply of the arm, i. e., the elbow. Now Rare.

3. Figuratively, bend; twist; bias; inclination.

4. Plight; condition; physical state; as, out of ply. Scot.

5. One of the veneer sheets forming plywood.

6. Paper Mfg. A solid web of paper used to build up a board.

-ply (-plī). The noun ply in combination, denoting a (specified) number of folds, bends, thicknesses, strands, etc., as in three'-ply', four'-ply', five'-ply', etc.

ply (plī), v.; PLIED (plīd); PLY'ING. [From APPLY.] Transitive: 1. To apply (oneself). Obs.

2. a To use or wield diligently or vigorously and steadily; to exert or exercise; as, to ply an ax; to ply one's wit.

Go ply thy needle; meddle not. Shak.

b To make a practice or business of rowing or sailing over or on; as, the ferryboat plies the river.

3. To practice or perform diligently; to apply oneself to.

Their bloody task, unwearied, still they ply. Waller.

4. To work at steadily or repeatedly; to assail vigorously or continually; to urge importunately; to keep furnishing or supplying; as, to ply one with questions, requests, or drink. "And plies him with redoubled strokes." Dryden.

5. Obs. a With it, indefinite, to exercise; to carry on; as, to ply it with oars. b To bring (something) to. c Naut. To make use of; to take advantage of, as a tide.

—, Intransitive: 1. To employ oneself or work diligently and steadily; to apply oneself; to be in steady action.

2. To go or travel more or less regularly back and forth (between); as, the steamer plies between two cities.

3. To direct one's course; to steer. Now Poetic.

4. To wait regularly for business; to have one's stand; — said of a porter, boatman, etc. Chiefly Brit.

5. Naut. To work to windward; to beat.

Syn. — See HANDLE.

ply (plē). Scot. var. of PLEA.

ply'er (plī'ĕr), n. One who or that which plies; specif.: a pl. A kind of balance of timbers, in the form of a St. Andrew's cross, used in raising and lowering a drawbridge. b pl. = PLIERS, 2.

‖ply'gain (plĭ'gĭn), n. [W., dawn.] A singing of carols or hymns at cockcrow on Christmas morning. Wales.

Plym'outh (plĭm'ŭth), n. A neutral gray of low brilliance; fashion gray.

Plym'outh Breth'ren (plĭm'ŭth). The members of a religious sect which arose at Plymouth, England, about 1830; — so called by others, the only title they acknowledge being Brethren or Christians. They take the Scriptures as their sole guide, protest against sectarianism, and reject all ecclesiastical organization, creeds, rituals, and ordained ministry. They are Calvinistic, baptize believers only, partake of the Lord's Supper every Sunday, have no church buildings, and emphasize premillennialism. Called also Brethren, Christian Brethren, etc., and, after their founder, John Nelson Darby (1800–82), Darbyites, a name also applied to a section of them, known as Exclusive Brethren. A branch less strict than the other branches is called the Open Brethren. See NEWTONIANISM. These branches are known as Plymouth Brethren I and II, respectively. Four other branches are known as Plymouth Brethren III, IV, V, and VI. — Plymouth Brother. — Plym'outh·ism (plĭm'ŭth·ĭz'm), n. — Plym'outh·ist, n. — Plym'outh·ite, n. — Plymouth Sister.

Plymouth cloak. A staff or cudgel. Obs. Slang.

Plymouth Company. [From Plymouth, Eng., where its headquarters were.] A company formed for colonizing (see LONDON COMPANY) in America, with territory assigned between 38° and 45° N. latitude, in which, however, it never made a permanent settlement. The Pilgrims in 1620 founded Plymouth Colony within these limits although their grant was from the London Company.

Plymouth porcelain or china. Porcelain made at Plymouth, England (1768–71), the first true porcelain made in England.

Plymouth Rock. a The ledge or rock in Plymouth harbor, Massachusetts, on which it is supposed the Pilgrims landed, Dec. 21, 1620. b An American breed of medium-sized single-combed domestic fowls. The barred variety, the oldest and best known, has long smooth yellow legs, and is grayish white with each feather evenly barred with bluish black.

Plyn·lym'mon (plĭn·lĭm'ŏn), adj. [From Mt. Plynlymmon, Wales.] Designating or pertaining to a peculiar racial type in the Welsh district of the same name.

Plyn·te'ri·a (plĭn·tē'rĭ·ȧ), n. pl. [Gr. Plynthēria, fr. plyntērios of washing.] An Athenian festival falling a few days after the Kallyntería (which see), probably the 22d or 25th of Thargelion. On that day the statue of Athena Polias was stripped of its robe and ornaments, which were cleansed and purified. The day was considered unlucky.

ply'wood' (plī'wŏŏd'), n. Wood made up of an odd number of veneer sheets glued together, the grains of the layers being (usually) at right angles to one another.

ply yarn. Yarn made from two or three strands often different in material or color.

-pnea, -pnoea. [NL.] Med. A combining form, Greek -pnoia, from pnoē, meaning a breathing, used to denote breath or breathing of a (specified) type, as in bromo*pnea,* oligo*pnea.*

pne'o- (nē'ō-; p'nē'ō-; 205). [See PNEUMATIC.] A combining form, from Greek pnein, to breathe, used to denote respiration, as in pne'o·phore, an instrument to aid artificial respiration. The meanings of the following can be understood from the definitions of their elements.

pneodynamics	pneomanometer	pneometry
pneograph	pneometer	pneoscope pneu'ma (nū'mȧ; p'nū'-; 205), n. [Gr. pneuma. See PNEUMATIC; cf. NEUME.] 1. A breath; breathing.

2. Soul; spirit; also, in some ancient philosophies, the universal spirit or primordial substance.

3. The vital soul or the spirit; — variously interpreted as the animal soul mediating between the higher spiritual nature and the body, as the breath or life-giving principle, and as the spirit superior to both soul and body.

4. Medieval Music. a A kind of ligature, denoting a long florid phrase, sung on one syllable, or even with no syllable at all; also, the prolonged phrase so sung. b A neume.

pneu'ma- (nū'mȧ-; p'nū'mȧ-), pneum-. A combining form from Greek pneuma, meaning wind, air, as in pneumarthrosis.

pneu'mar·thro'sis (nū'mär·thrō'sĭs; p'nū'-), n. [NL.] Presence of gas or air in the cavity of a joint.

pneumat-. = PNEUMATO- (which see), as in pneu'ma·thae'mi·a, pneu'ma·the'mi·a.

pneu·mat'ic (nū·măt'ĭk), adj. [L. pneumaticus, fr. Gr. pneumatikos, fr. pneuma, pneumatos, wind, air, breath, spirit, fr. pnein to blow, breathe. See SNEEZE; cf. PNEUMONIA.] 1. Of, pertaining to, or using, air or wind, or, rarely, other gas; pertaining to pneumatics.

2. Specif.: a Moved or worked, as a tool, by pressure of air either by a percussive action (as a pneumatic chisel) or by a rotary action (as a pneumatic drill). b Adapted for holding compressed air; inflated with air.

3. Fitted with pneumatic tires.

4. Of or pertaining to the pneuma, or spirit; spiritual; — disting. from psychic as limited to vital powers. Chiefly Theol.

5. Of, pertaining to, or conveyed by, pneumatic dispatch.

6. Biol. Containing air; having cavities filled with air.

7. Medieval Music. Of or pertaining to the pneuma. Rare.

☞ PHRASES (in sense 2) are:

pneumatic brake	pneumatic jack	pneumatic riveter pneumatic calker	pneumatic lift	pneumatic shutter pneumatic chisel	pneumatic mattress	pneumatic spade pneumatic drill	pneumatic motor	pneumatic tire pneumatic driller	pneumatic press	pneumatic-tired pneumatic grinder	pneumatic punch	pneumatic tool pneumatic hoist	pneumatic reamer pneu·mat'ic (nū·măt'ĭk), n. 1. = PNEUMATOLOGY, 2. Rare.

2. A pneumatic tire.

3. Gnosticism. A pneumatic, or spiritual, being, or one belonging to the highest of the three classes into which mankind was divided.

4. Organ Building. pl. See PNEUMATIC ACTION.

pneumatic action. Organ Building. An action employing compressed air and collapsible bellows (pneu·mat'ics [nū·măt'ĭks]) for connecting and manipulating the various movable parts.

pneu·mat'i·cal (nū·măt'ĭ·kăl), adj. Pneumatic. Now Rare.

pneu·mat'i·cal·ly, adv. of PNEUMATIC, -ICAL.

pneumatic caisson. Civ. Engin. A watertight box or chamber within which submarine construction is carried on under great air pressure to keep out the water. See CAISSON, n., 2 a, Illust.

pneumatic clock. Any of a series of clocks or dials with hands controlled by air pulsations transmitted from a master clock.

pneumatic conveyer or elevator. See CONVEYER, n., 2 a.

pneumatic dispatch. A system of tubes (pneumatic tubes) leading to various points, through which letters, packages, etc., are sent by air pressure.

pneumatic duct. In the Physostomi, the duct which connects the air bladder with the alimentary canal.

pneumatic gun. Ordn. A gun using compressed air or gas as the propulsive force, usually to throw dynamite or other high explosives.

---

plush'like', adj. See -LIKE.

plus'quam·per'fect, adj. [NL. plusquamperfectus. See PLUPERFECT.] Gram. = PAST PERFECT.

plut- = PLUTO-.

plu'tar·chy (plōō'tär·kĭ; 242), n. [Gr. ploutos wealth + -archy.] = PLUTOCRACY.

plu'te·l, n., pl. of PLUTEUS.

‖Plu'te·um Pic·to'ris (plōō'tē·ŭm pĭk·tō'rĭs; 181; 242). [L., painter's board (i. e., easel).] Astron. = EQUULEUS PICTORIS.

plut'ter. Var. of PLOUTER.

pluv'er. Plover. Ref. Sp.

plu'vi·am'e·ter (plōō'vĭ·ăm'ē·tĕr), -a·met'ri·cal (-ȧ·mĕt'rĭ·kăl), etc. Vars. of PLUVIOMETER, etc.

‖Plu'vi·ôse' (plū'vyōz'; Anji. plōō'vĭ·ōs), n. [F. See PLUVIOUS.] See REVOLUTIONARY CALENDAR.

Plu'vi·us (plōō'vĭ·ŭs), adj. [L., lit., rain-bringing.] See JUPITER PLUVIUS. Var. of PLYER.

ply'ing, adj. That plies. — ply'ing·ly, adv.

Pneu·ma'ri·a (nū·mā'rĭ·ȧ; p'nū-), n. [NL.] Bot. Syn. of MERTENSIA.

pneumatic hammer. a A power hammer that compresses air in a cylinder integral with the frame, this air serving to actuate a ram connected with a piston free to move in another cylinder. b A portable tool operated by Pneumatic Hammer b. Compressed air enters the hammer at 1, the amount of air being controlled by a Throttle Valve (2) actuated by a Trigger (3). The air is then conducted through an Air Passage (4) to a valve chamber containing a Valve Box (6) and a Valve (5) which is moved back and forth by the pressure of the air. As the valve moves forward, it admits air back of the Piston (7) which is driven against the Rivet Set (8) to form the rivet head. After striking a blow, the piston is returned for another stroke by means of air admitted to the front of the Barrel (9) through a Port (10).

compressed air in which a percussive action is directed upon a chisel, rivet set, or other tool.

pneumatic hub. An automobile hub using compressed air as a buffer.

pneu'ma·tic'i·ty (nū′mȧ·tĭs″ĭ·tĭ), n. State or quality of being pneumatic, esp. of having air cavities.

pneu·mat'i·co- (nū·măt′ĭ·kō-). A combining form for pneumatic (and), as in pneu·mat'i·co-hy·drau'lic.

pneumatic physician. Med. Hist. A physician of an ancient Greek school of medical thought holding that health and disease depend on the proportions of the pneuma, or the vital principle.

pneumatic pile. A tubular pile or large cylinder sunk by atmospheric pressure, by exhausting the air from a chamber at its lower end.

pneumatic pump. Mach. An air-exhausting or force pump.

pneu·mat'ics (nū·măt′ĭks), n. [See -ICS.] 1. That branch of physics treating of the mechanical properties of air and other gases, as of their weight, pressure, elasticity, etc. See MECHANICS.

2. Pneumatology (sense 2); also, psychology. Hist.

☞ Pneumatics is usually construed as a singular noun.

pneumatic syringe. A stout tube closed at one end and provided with a piston, for illustrating the phenomena of the compressibility of gases.

pneumatic telegraph. A kind of telegraph transmitting signals through a tube containing compressed air.

pneumatic trough. Chem. A trough which, filled with water or mercury, is used for collecting gases.

pneumatic tube. See PNEUMATIC DISPATCH.

pneu'ma·tism (nū′mȧ·tĭz″m; p'nū′-; 205), n. The doctrine of the pneumatic physicians.

pneu'ma·tist (-tĭst), n. A pneumatic physician. Obs. exc. Hist.

pneu'ma·tize (-tīz), v. t. [pneumat- + -ize.] To make pneumatic. Specif., Metal.: To pass air through (the molten metal in a Bessemer converter).

pneu'ma·tized (-tīzd), adj. Zool. Having air cavities.

pneu'ma·to- (nū′mȧ·tō-; p'nū′mȧ·tō-; 205). [See PNEUMATIC.] A combining form, Greek pneumato-, pneumat-, from pneuma, pneumatos, air, breath, spirit, denoting: a Wind, air, as in pneumatolytic, pneumathemia; hence, respiration, as in pneumatometer; also, an air cavity, as in pneumatophore. b Spirit or spirits, as in pneumatology. c Med. Presence of air or gas in a (specified) part.

☞ The meanings of the following can be understood from the definitions of their elements.

pneumatocardia	pneumatochemistry	pneumatophilosophy
pneumatocele	pneumatogenic	pneumatophobia
pneumatochemical	pneumatogenous	pneumatorrhachis

pneu'ma·to·cyst' (-sĭst′), n. [pneumato- + -cyst.] Zool. A cyst or sac of a siphonophore, containing air and serving as a float, as in Physalia.—pneu'ma·to·cys'tic (-sĭs′tĭk), adj.

pneu'ma·to·gram' (nū′mȧ·tō·grăm′; nū·măt′ō·grăm′; p'nū′-; p'nū-; 205), n. [pneumato- + -gram.] 1. Physiol. A tracing of the respiratory movements, obtained by a pneumatograph.

2. A message sent by pneumatic dispatch.

pneu'ma·to·graph' (-grăf′; 83), n. [pneumato- + -graph.] Physiol. An instrument for recording the movements of the thorax in respiration; a stethograph.

pneu'ma·tog'ra·pher (-tŏg′rȧ·fĕr), n. One who records spirit messages involuntarily, as with a planchette.

pneu'ma·to·graph'ic (-tō·grăf′ĭk), adj. Of or pertaining to pneumatography or a pneumatograph.

pneu'ma·tog'ra·phy (-tŏg′rȧ·fĭ), n. [pneumato- + -graphy.] 1. The so-called spirit writing produced directly without a medium or material device.

2. Descriptive pneumatology. See PNEUMATOLOGY, n., 2.

pneu'ma·to-hy'da·to-ge·net'ic, adj. Geol. Pertaining to or designating origin through the combined action of gases, or vapors, and water, particularly with reference to ore deposits.

pneu'ma·tol'o·gy (nū′mȧ·tŏl′ō·jĭ; p'nū′-; 205), n. [See PNEUMATO-; -LOGY.] 1. The doctrine of air and other elastic fluids; pneumatics.

2. The doctrine of spiritual beings or spiritual phenomena of any description; esp., the doctrine of spirits intermediate between God and man; also, magical or necromatic lore of spirits and demons.

3. Formerly, the science of the nature and functions of mind and soul. Cf. PSYCHOLOGY.

4. Theol. Doctrine of the Holy Spirit.

—pneu'ma·to·log'ic (-tō·lŏj′ĭk), adj.—pneu'ma·to·log'i·cal (-lŏj′ĭ·kăl), adj.—pneu'ma·tol'o·gist (-tŏl′ō·jĭst), n.

pneu'ma·tol'y·sis (-ĭ·sĭs; 205), n. [NL.] Petrog. Action by which pneumatolytic minerals are formed.

pneu'ma·to·lyt'ic, pneu'ma·to·lit'ic (-tō·lĭt′ĭk), adj. [pneumato- + -lytic.] Petrog. Formed or forming by hot vapors (or superheated liquids under pressure);—applied to the minerals and ores occurring in or near masses of igneous rock whose origin is conditioned by mineralizers, as steam, fluorine, etc., given off by the cooling molten magma. Also, designating the processes involved.

Pneu'ma·to·ma'chi·an (-mȧ′kĭ·ăn), n. [Gr. pneumatomachos, fr. pneuma spirit + macheshai to fight.] Eccl. Hist. Literally, one hostile to the Holy Ghost:—a nickname applied esp. to a Macedonian.—Pneu'ma·tom'a·chist (-tŏm′ȧ·kĭst), n.—Pneu'ma·to·ma'chi·an (-tō·mȧ′kĭ·ăn), adj.

Pneu'ma·tom'a·chy (-tŏm′ȧ·kĭ), n. [See PNEUMATOMACHIAN.] Denial of the deity of the Holy Spirit pneu'ma·tom'e·ter (nū′mȧ·tŏm′ē·tĕr; p'nū′-; 205), n. [pneumato- + -meter.] Physiol. a An instrument for measuring the amount of force exerted by the lungs in respiration. b A spirometer.

pneu'ma·tom'e·try (-trĭ), n. Spirometry.

pneu'ma·to·mor'phic (-tō·môr′fĭk), adj. [pneumato- + -morphic.] Having the semblance of a spirit.

pneu'ma·ton'o·my (-tŏn′ō·mĭ), n. [pneumato- + Gr. nomos law.] Deductive pneumatology.

pneu'ma·toph'a·ny (-tŏf′ȧ·nĭ), n. [pneumato- + -phany.] An appearance or manifestation of a spirit or spirits, esp. of the Holy Spirit.

pneu'ma·toph'o·ny (-tŏf′ō·nĭ), n. [pneumato- + -phony.] A sound supposed to be made by a spirit.—pneu'ma·to·phon'ic (-tō·fŏn′ĭk), adj.

pneu'ma·to·phore' (nū′mȧ·tō·fōr′; nū·măt′ō·fōr; p'nū′-; p'nū-; 181; 205), n. [pneumato- + Gr. pherein to bear.] 1. Bot. A special submerged or exposed root developed by various swamp or marsh plants. It often functions as a respiratory organ. See ENEE, 6 b.

2. Zool. A pneumatocyst.

—pneu'ma·toph'o·rous (nū′mȧ·tŏf′ō·rŭs; p'nū′-; 205), adj.

pneu'ma·to·scope' (-skōp′), n. Med. An instrument for determining presence of abnormal matter in the mastoid.

pneu'ma·to'sis (nū′mȧ·tō′sĭs; p'nū′-), n. [NL., fr. Gr. pneumatōsis inflation.] Med. Abnormal presence of air or gas in any part of the body; flatulence.—pneu'ma·to'sic (-sĭk), adj.

pneu'ma·to·ther'a·peu'tics (nū′mȧ·tō·thĕr′ȧ·pū′tĭks; p'nū′-; 205), n. Pneumatotherapy.

pneu'ma·to·ther'a·py (-thĕr′ȧ·pĭ), n. Treatment of disease by condensed or rarefied air.

pneu'ma·tu'ri·a (-tū′rĭ·ȧ), n. [NL.] Med. Passage of gas in the urine.

pneu·mec'to·my (nū·mĕk′tō·mĭ; p'nū-; 205), n. [pneumo- + -ectomy.] The surgical removal of a part of a lung.

pneu'mo- (nū′mō-; p'nū′mō-; 205). [See PNEUMONO-; or PNEUMATO-.] A combining form from Greek pneumōn, meaning lung, denoting: a pneumono-; as in pneu'mo·chi·rur'gi·a, *pneumo*gastric, *pneumo*logy. b = PNEUMA-, as in *pneumo*derma. c Pneumonia (and), as in *pneumo*coccus, *pneumo*typhoid.

pneu'mo·ba·cil'lus (-bȧ·sĭl′ŭs), n.; pl. -LI (-ī). [NL., fr. pneumo- + bacillus.] Bacteriol. A bacterium (Klebsiella, syn. Bacterium, pneumoniae) associated with pneumonia and other inflammations of the respiratory tract;—called also Friedländer's bacillus.

Pneu'mo·bran'chi·a (-brăng′kĭ·ȧ), Pneu'mo·bran'chi·a'ta (-ā′tȧ), n. pl. [NL., fr. pneumo- + -branchia.] Zool. A group of land gastropods having the gills replaced by a pulmonary sac;—an old name variously applied, usually to certain operculate members of the Rhipidoglossa.

pneu'mo·cele (nū′mō·sēl; p'nū′-; 205), n. Pneumatocele.

pneu'mo·cen·te'sis (-sĕn·tē′sĭs), n. [NL.] Surg. The puncturing of a lung to remove fluid.

pneu'mo·coc·ce'mi·a (nū′mō·kŏk·sē′mĭ·ȧ; p'nū′mō-), n. [NL., fr. pneumococcus + -emia.] Med. A form of septicemia in which pneumococci are present in the circulating blood.

pneu'mo·coc'cus (-kŏk′ŭs), n.; pl. -CI (-kŏk′sī). [NL. See PNEUMO-; COCCUS.] Bacteriol. The bacterium (Diplococcus pneumoniae, syn. Streptococcus lanceolatus) which causes lobar pneumonia.—pneu'mo·coc'cal (-kŏk′ăl), adj.—pneu'mo·coc'cic (-sĭk), adj.—pneu'mo·coc'cous (-ŭs), adj.

pneu'mo·co'ni·o'sis (nū′mō·kō′nĭ·ō′sĭs; p'nū′mō-), n.; pl. -OSES (-sēz). [NL., fr. pneumo- + Gr. konia dust + -osis.] Med. Disease of the lungs caused by the habitual inhaling of minute mineral or metallic particles, as of coal dust in anthracosis, quartz dust in silicosis, etc.

pneu'mo·der'ma (-dûr′mȧ), n. [NL.] Med. Swelling of the skin caused by air in the tissues.

pneu'mo·dy·nam'ic (nū′mō·dī·năm′ĭk; -dĭ′-), adj. Acting by the force of fluids in motion, esp. of air; pneumatic.

pneu'mo·dy·nam'ics (-ĭks), n. Pneumatics. See -ICS.

pneu'mo·en'ter·i'tis (nū′mō·ĕn′tĕr·ī′tĭs; p'nū′mō-), n. [NL.] Med. a Pneumonia combined with enteritis. b Hog cholera.

pneu'mo·gas'tric (-găs′trĭk), adj. [pneumo- + gastric.] Anat. Of or pertaining to the lungs and the stomach, designating or pertaining to the vagus.—n. The vagus. pneu'mo·gram (nū′mō·grăm; p'nū′-; 205), n. Physiol. A pneumatogram.

pneu'mo·graph (-grăf; 83), n. = PNEUMATOGRAPH.—pneu'mo·graph'ic (-grăf′ĭk), adj.

pneu·mog'ra·phy (nū·mŏg′rȧ·fĭ; p'nū-; 205), n. [pneumo- + -graphy.] 1. A description of the lungs.

2. The process of making pneumatograms.

pneu'mo·he'mo·tho'rax, -hae'mo·tho'rax (nū′mō·hē′mō·thō′răks; -hĕm′ō-; p'nū′-; 205), n. Med. Accumulation of blood and gas in the pleural cavity.

pneu'mo·hy'dro·per'i·car'di·um (-hī′drō·pĕr′ĭ·kär′dĭ·ŭm), n. [NL.] Med. Hydropneumopericardium.

pneu'mo·hy'dro·tho'rax (-hī′drō·thō′răks), n. [NL.] Med. Hydropneumothorax.

pneu'mo·lith (nū′mō·lĭth; p'nū′-; 205), n. Med. A calculus in the lung.

pneu'mo·li·thi'a·sis (-lĭ·thī′ȧ·sĭs), n. [NL.] Med. Formation of pneumoliths.

pneu·mol'o·gy (nū·mŏl′ō·jĭ; p'nū-; 205), n. [pneumo- + -logy.] Anat. & Physiol. The scientific study of the respiratory organs.—pneu'mo·log'i·cal (nū′mō·lŏj′ĭ·kăl; p'nū′mō-), adj.

pneu·mol'y·sis (-ĭ·sĭs), n. [NL., fr. pneumo- + -lysis.] Surg. The loosening of the lung; specif., the separation of an adherent lung from the costal pleura, by cutting or burning the adhesions.

pneu'mo·ma·la'ci·a (nū′mō·mȧ·lā′shĭ·ȧ; p'nū′-), n. [NL., fr. pneumo- + -malacia.] Med. Abnormal softness or softening of lung tissue.

Pneu·mom'e·ter (nū·mŏm′ē·tĕr; p'nū-; 205), n. 1. A trade-mark applied to a pressure-indicating device; also [sometimes not cap.], the device bearing this trade-mark.

2. Aeronautics. An air-speed indicator.

pneumon-. = PNEUMONO- (which see), as in:

pneumonalgia	pneumonectomy	pneumonodynia
pneumonectasia	pneumonedema	pneumonosis pneu·mo'ni·a (nū·mō′nĭ·ȧ; 159), n. [NL., fr. Gr. pneumonia, fr. pneumōn, pl. pneumones the lungs, fr. pleumōn. See PULMONARY.] Med. A disease of the lungs characterized by inflammation with exudation of fluid into the lung spaces and resultant solidification of lung tissue, usually due to invasion of bacteria or viruses, occasionally to chemical irritants; pneumonitis. Of the viral or bacterial forms, primary pneumonia occurs as an illness in an otherwise healthy person; secondary pneumonia occurs as part of a disease state or as a complication thereof; lobar pneumonia involves all or most of the affected lobe of the lung. Bronchial, catarrhal, or lobular pneumonia, or bronchopneumonia, involves multiple, relatively small, areas of the lung. Lipoid pneumonia results from aspiration of oil droplets.

pneu·mon'ic (nū·mŏn′ĭk), adj. [NL. pneumonicus, fr. Gr. pneumonikos.] a Of or pertaining to the lungs; pulmonic. b Of or pertaining to pneumonia.

pneu·mon'ic (nū·mŏn′ĭk), n. Med. A medicine for pulmonary affections. Rare.

pneu'mo·ni'tis (nū′mō·nī′tĭs; p'nū′-), n. [NL. See PNEUMONO-; -ITIS.] Med. Inflammation of the lungs; pneumonia.—pneu'mo·nit'ic (-nĭt′ĭk), adj.

pneu'mo·no- (nū′mō·nō-; p'nū′mō·nō-; 205), pneumon-. [See PNEUMONIA.] A combining form from Greek pneumōn, meaning lung, as in *pneumono*pathy, a lung disease. Cf. PNEUMO-. For words below see the word or element with which pneumono- is combined.

pneumonocace	pneumonolith	pneumonopexy
pneumonocarcinoma	pneumonolithiasis	pneumonophorous pneumonocele	pneumonolysis	pneumonophthisis
pneumonocentesis	pneumonomelanosis	pneumonopleuritis pneumonocirrhosis	pneumonometer	pneumonorrhagia pneumonoconiosis	pneumonomycosis	pneumonorrhaphy pneumonoenteritis	pneumonoparesis	pneumonotherapy
pneumonoerysipelas	pneumonopathy	pneumonotomy pneu'mo·nog'ra·phy (-nŏg′rȧ·fĭ), n. [pneumono- + -graphy.] Med. X-ray photography of the lungs.—pneu'mo·no·graph'ic (nū′mō·nō·grăf′ĭk; p'nū′-), adj.

pneu'mo·per'i·car'di·um (-pĕr′ĭ·kär′dĭ·ŭm), n. [NL.] Med. Accumulation of air or other gas in the pericardal sac.

pneu'mo·per'i·to·ne'um (-pĕr′ĭ·tō·nē′ŭm), n. [NL., fr. pneumo- + peritoneum.] Med. A state in which air or other gas is present in the peritoneal cavity.

pneu'mo·per'i·to·ni'tis (-pĕr′ĭ·tō·nī′tĭs), n. [NL.] Med. Peritonitis with the presence of air in the cavity of the peritoneum.

pneu'mo·pex'y (nū′mō·pĕk′sĭ; p'nū′-), n. [pneumo- + -pexy.] Surg. The attaching of the lung to the thoracic wall.

pneu'mo·pleu·ri'tis (nū′mō·plōō·rī′tĭs; p'nū′-; 205), n. [NL.] Med. 1. Pleuropneumonia.

2. Pleuritis with the presence of gas in the pleural cavity.

pneu'mo·py'o·tho'rax (-pī′ō·thō′răks), n. [NL.] Med. Pyopneumothorax.

pneu'mor·rha'gi·a (nū′mŏr·rā′jĭ·ȧ; p'nū′-; 205), n. [NL.] Med. Hemorrhage from the lungs.

pneu'mo·ther'a·py (-mō·thĕr′ȧ·pĭ), n. Med. a Treatment of pulmonary diseases. b Pneumatotherapy.—pneu'mo·ther'a·peu'tics (-pū′tĭks), n.

pneu'mo·tho'rax (-thō′răks), n. Med. A state in which air or other gas is present in the pleural cavity. It sometimes occurs spontaneously as a result of disease or injury of lung tissue or puncture of the chest wall, and is often induced as a therapeutic measure to collapse the lung in tuberculosis.

pneu·mot'o·my (nū·mŏt′ō·mĭ; p'nū-; 205), n. [pneumo- + -tomy.] Surg. The operation of cutting into the lung, as for the drainage of a cyst.

pneu'mo·tox'in (nū′mō·tŏk′sĭn; p'nū′-), n. [pneumo- + -toxin.] Immunol. The toxin produced by the pneumococcus; also, a glycerol extract supposed to contain this toxin.

pneu'mo·ty'phoid (-tī′foid), n. Med. Typhoid fever complicated with pneumonia.

pneu'mo·ty'phus (-tī′fŭs), n. [NL.] Med. a Pneumotyphoid. b Typhus fever with pneumonia.

-pneusta. [NL.] Zool. A combining form, Greek -pneustos, from pnein, to breathe, meaning breathed, used to denote a class or division having a (specified) mode of breathing, as in Amphi*pneusta,* Pharyngo*pneusta.* Corresponding adjectives are formed with -pneustal.

Pnyx (nĭks; p'nĭks; 205), n. [NL., fr. Gr. pnyx.] Gr. Antiq. The place at which regular meetings of the Athenian ecclesia or public assembly of voters were held. It was an artificially made semi-circular terrace southwest of the Acropolis, and included a platform (bema) and seats cut from the native rock.

‖po (pō), n. Polynesian Myth. The realm of darkness, the dwelling place of spirits and the souls of the dead.

po, n. Eng. Folklore. An impish spirit. Obs.

po (pō), n. [Tag.] Sir. Phil. I.

po (pō), interj. Var. of POH.

Po'a (pō′ȧ), n. [NL., fr. Gr. poa grass.] Bot. a A large genus of grasses, the meadow grasses, marked by the open panicle with 2–6-flowered spikelets, the upper scales exceeding the empty ones. They are widely distributed in temperate and arctic regions, and include the Kentucky bluegrass (P. pratensis), the wire grass P. compressa, etc. b [not cap.] A plant of this genus.

poa-. For various forms in poa-, see those in PO-.

Po·a'ce·ae (pō·ā′sē·ē), n. pl. [NL.] Bot. A huge family of monocotyledonous plants (order Poales), the grass family, containing about 400 genera and more than 4,500 species. It is distinguished from the allied Cyperaceae by the hollow culms, and by the fruit, a grain (caryopsis) instead of an achene. The grasses of temperate regions are herbaceous, but the large tropical bamboos and sugar cane have woody stems. See GRASS, n., 10; BAMBOO, 1; CEREAL.—po·a'ceous (-shŭs), adj.

poach (pōch), v. t.; POACHED (pōcht); POACH'ING. [OF. pochier (F. pocher) to place in a pocket, hence, to poach eggs (the yolk of the egg being as it were pouched in the white), from poche pocket, pouch. See POKE a bag.] To cook in boiling water, bouillon, or the like, until coated;—esp. of an egg (poached egg) dropped from its shell.

poach (pōch), v. [Earlier poche, fr. MF. pocher to thrust or dig out with the fingers, to encroach upon, fr. LG. poken to poke. See POKE to thrust.] Transitive: 1. To push, thrust, drive, ram, or force; to poke or stir. Now Dial.

2. To stamp down, trample, or cut (up), as with hoofs; to make holes in (soft ground) by trampling; to make soft or muddy, esp. by trampling.

3. To wash free from acid, thoroughly mix, and render uniform (cellulose nitrate pulp) by moving it around with a paddle in a large tank called a poacher.

4. To reduce to a uniform consistency, as clay, by mixing thoroughly with water; to soak or make sodden.

5. To stab; pierce; spear, as fish. Obs.

6. To trespass on, esp. for game or fish; to steal (game); to take, as game or fish, by illegal methods.

7. To take unfairly (some advantage); to steal, as a start or a length, as by starting too soon.
8. Paper Mfg. To bleach (half stuff) by thoroughly mixing it with the bleach liquor.
—, Intransitive: 1. To poke; thrust; dig; also, to thrust oneself; intrude; interfere. Obs. exc. Dial.
2. To sink into mud or mire while walking; to make one's way heavily or laboriously; to plod or plow through mud or heavy soil.
3. To become soft or muddy and full of holes when trampled on; as, the ground poaches badly.
4. To trespass for something, esp. game or fish; to steal or take game or fish by illegal methods; to kill or destroy game illegally; as, to poach for rabbits.
5. To take an unfair advantage, as by starting too soon in a race. Sporting Slang.

poach'er (pōch'ĕr), n. A vessel fitted with a pan containing perforated depressions in each of which an egg may be poached.

poach'er (pōch'ĕr), n. 1. One who poaches for game. By extension, in trade cant, a businessman who encroaches upon the trade area or clientele properly belonging to another, as in the case of a wholesaler who sells to a retailer and then sells to the retailer's customers.
2. a [Cf. POCHARD.] Local, U. S. The American widgeon. b Short for SEA POACHER.
3. a Paper Mfg. A tank in which half stuff is poached; also, a poaching engine. b See 2d POACH, 3.

poacher tub. A poacher. See 2d POACH, 3.

poach'y (pōch'ĭ), adj.; POACH'I·ER (-ĭ-ĕr); POACH'I·EST. [See 2d POACH.] Swampy; sodden; easily cut up by the feet of cattle; — said of land. — poach'i·ness (-I·nĕs; -nĭs; 119), n.

Po·a'ceæ (pō-ā'sē-z), n. pl. [NL. See POA.] Bot. An order of monocotyledonous plants comprising the two families Poaceae and Cyperaceae (the grasses and sedges). They have the small flowers in the axils of chaffy scales, aggregated in spikelets. Syn. Glumales.

Po'a·le Zi'on (pō'ȧ·lĕ tsē'ŏn; Eng. zī'ŏn). [Heb. Pōʿălē Tsiyyōn, lit., workmen of Zion.] The Jewish Socialist Labor party, which has branches in America, Russia, Austria, England, and Palestine. Its program emphasizes assistance to labor in Palestine and the development of that country as a Jewish Socialist commonwealth. — Po'a·le Zi'on·ist (zī'ŏn·Ĭst).

pob (pŏb), n. The refuse of flax, often used as fuel. Scot.

pob (pŏb), sing. of POBS, porridge.

pob'by (pŏb'ĭ), adj. Swollen; puffed up. Chiefly Dial.

Pob'lacht (pŭb'lŭxt), n. [Ir.] Republic. Irish.

po'bla·ción' (pō'blä·syōn'; 103), n.; pl. -CIONES (-syō'nās). [Sp.] The center of population of a municipality or pueblo, usually the barrio that gives it its name and that is the seat of government. Phil. I.

pobs (pŏbz), n. pl. Also pob'bies (pŏb'ĭz). Porridge; pap; bread and milk; — a child's word. Dial. Eng.

po'can (pō'kăn), n., or pocan bush. [See 2d POKE, n.] The pokeweed Phytolacca americana.

po'chade' (pō'shȧd'), n. [F.] Art. A rough or quickly executed sketch or study.

po'chard (pō'chĕrd; also pō'kĕrd, pŏch'ĕrd, pŏk'-), n.; pl. POCHARD, POCHARDS (-chĕrdz; -kĕrdz; -ĕrdz). See PLURAL, Note. [Prob. fr. F. pocher to thrust. See 2d POACH.] A common Old World duck (Nyroca ferina) related to, and resembling in color, the redhead of America. Also, usually with a qualifying word, any of several related ducks, esp. the American redhead.

poche (pŏch), v. t. Obs. & Dial. var. of POACH.

poche, v. t. = POCHÉ, v. t.

po·ché' (pō·shā'), n. [F.] Arch. Drawing. The walls and other solids of a plan collectively, generally shown in black. — v. t. To darken or fill in (the solids of a plan).

po·chette' (pō·shĕt'), n. [F., lit., little pocket.] a A handbag. b Philately. A thin small envelope of transparent paper for protecting a mounted stamp.

‖po'chette' (pō'shĕt'), n. [F.] Music. = 3d KIT, a small violin.

‖po'chet·ti'no (pō'kĕt·tē'nō), adj. [It.] Music. Very little. — n. A very little; — used in directions; as, ‖ri'·tar·dan'do un po'chet·ti'no (rē'tär·dän'dō ōōn), slowing up a trifle.

‖po·cho'te (pō·chō'tā), n. [Sp., fr. Nahuatl pochotl.] Any of several trees; as: a The silk-cotton tree Ceiba pentandra or its close relatives of the same genus (see CEIBA). b A medium-sized tree (Cochlospermum vitifolium) having seeds covered with long, cottony, white hairs. c The fiber of any of these trees, used as a stuffing for mattresses, etc.

po·cil'li·form (pō·sĭl'ĭ·fôrm), adj. [L. pocillum little cup + -form.] Cup-shaped. Rare.

pock (pŏk), n. [ME. pokke, fr. AS. pocc, poc; akin to MLG. pocke, G. (LG.) pocke, MD. pocke, D. pok, to AS. pocca, pohha, bag, pouch, MD. poke, ON. poki, and to L. buccae puffed cheeks. Cf. BIG, BUCKLE, DEBOUCH, POKE a bag, 3d POKER, POX, PUCK.] 1. Med. A pustule on the surface of the body in smallpox and other eruptive diseases; also, a spot like such a pustule.
2. = POX. Now Chiefly Dial.

pock, v. t. To mark with or as with pocks.

pock (pŏk). Var. of POKE, bag. Chiefly Scot.

pock'-arred' (pŏk'ärd'), adj. Pock-marked. Dial.

pock'et (pŏk'ĕt; -Ĭt; 119), n. [ME. poket, fr. AF. pokete, dim. of ONF. poke, poque, bag, pouch. See POKE a bag.] 1. A coarse bag or sack, as those used in packing various articles, as ginger, hops, etc.
2. A bag or pouch carried by a person; esp., a small bag inserted in a garment, for carrying small articles, as money; hence, purse; money; wealth; pecuniary resources.
3. Any place suggestive of a pocket; specif.: a A receptacle in the cover of a book; also, an envelope. b A bin for storing coal, grain, etc. c A socket for the foot of a post, stake, etc. d A mountain glen or hollow. e A bight on a lee shore. f A blind alley. g An air pocket. h A place where an isolated body of persons dwell. i A cavity where foreign substance has collected or can collect. j A cavity in a casting or a high point in a pipe line where foreign substance, as dirt or air, can collect and possibly become detrimental to the intended functioning of the device or system.
4. See WEIGHT, Table.
5. Anat. & Med. A saclike formation in the body; as, a pus pocket.
6. Arch. A hole or space covered by a movable piece of board, as in a floor, boxing, window frame, etc.
7. Billiards & Pool. Any of the bags or pouches at the corners or sides of the table.
8. Fishery. a The cod or bag of a seine. b The pot or trap of a wier or pound net.
9. Founding. a A temporary extension to a flask. b A large core enclosed on three sides by metal and well pierced.
10. Mining. A small cavity containing gold or other mineral or water; also, a small body of ore.
11. Naut. An interspace made by sewing a strip of canvas on a sail, in which a batten or a light spar can be placed.
12. Racing. The position of a contestant hemmed in by others. Slang.
13. Steam Boilers. Any of a series of curved baffle plates in the flue of a Galloway boiler. See BOILER, n., 6.
14. Zool. A superficial pouch, as the cheek pouch of the pocket gopher.
— in one's pocket. a Very close to one; as, to sit in his pocket all evening. b In one's control; responsive to one's will. "He took the precaution to have . . . the Committee in his pocket." Winston Churchill. — in pocket. a Provided with funds; in possession of money to the extent of; as, at the journey's end, to be 100 dollars in pocket. b In the position of profiting, or making (money); as, to be dollars in pocket by a transaction. — out of pocket. Not in pocket [see IN POCKET, above]; esp., in the position of having lost financially; in loss; as, hundreds of dollars out of pocket each year. — put in (one's) pocket. a To hide; suppress. b To appropriate to oneself; also to control (one); to dominate (one).

pock'et (pŏk'ĕt; -Ĭt; 119), v.; -ET·ED; -ET·ING. Transitive: 1. To put, enclose, confine, or conceal, in or as in a pocket; as, to pocket cash.
2. To receive (an affront, rebuff, etc.) without open resentment; to conceal or suppress, as pride or anger; to refrain from giving out, as a report.

I must pocket up these wrongs. Shak.

3. To take (money, etc.), esp. secretly or fraudulently.
4. To provide with a pocket or pockets; as, to pocket a building for electric wires.
5. Billiards. To drive (a ball) into a pocket of the table.
6. Politics. a To control, esp. in elections; as, to pocket a borough. b U. S. To retain (a bill) unsigned until after Congress or the Legislature has adjourned; — said of the President and some State governors. See POCKET VETO.
7. Racing. To put (a contestant) into a pocket. Slang.
8. Surg. & Med. To form into a pocket or pouch; to collect (pus) in a pocket or pouch.
—, Intransitive: 1. To form pockets or pocketlike recesses.
2. To become puckered or baggy. Colloq., U. S.

pock'et (pŏk'ĕt; -Ĭt; 119), adj. 1. Suitable, as in size, shape, etc., for carrying in the pocket; as, a pocket edition or dictionary; also, reduced in size, diminutive.

In youth he [Whistler] must have been "a pocket Apollo." G. Bradford.

2. Related to one's pocketbook; pecuniary; as, pocket considerations.
3. Pocketed; not published; private; secret.
4. Carried in or paid from one's own pocket or pocketbook, esp. for incidentals or small personal expenses; as, pocket money, change, or expenses.

pocket billiards. = 5th POOL, 2 b; — a name that has been proposed, and which, in the United States, is often used as a substitute for, the older name pool.

pocket bird. The scarlet tanager.

pocket bladder. = PLUM POCKET.

pock'et·book' (pŏk'ĕt·bŏŏk'; pŏk'Ĭt-; 119), n. 1. [Usually two words.] A book adapted for carrying in the pocket; also, a pocket notebook.
2. A small, usually flat, case with compartments for carrying papers, money, etc., in the pocket; sometimes, a purse or pouch; hence, money; income; financial resources; as, taken out of the public pocketbook; prices suited to the average pocketbook.
3. A fresh-water mussel (Lampsilis ventricosus), of the upper Mississippi drainage area, yielding mother-of-pearl.

pock'et·book', adj. = POCKET, adj., 2.

pocket boom. Logging. A storage boom for sorted logs.

pocket borough. A borough whose right of representation is controlled, or virtually owned, by a single person or family; close borough. Chiefly Brit.

pocket burner. A piece of money. Cf. burn a hole in one's pocket, under BURN, v. Kingsley.

pocket chisel. A paring chisel. See WOODWORKING CHISEL.

pocket chronometer. Horol. A pocket watch with a chronometer escapement.

pock'et·ed, adj. Provided with or having a pocket or pockets.

pock'et·er, n. One who pockets or takes possession of, esp. money.

pock'et·eyed', adj. Having pockets, or hollows, under the eyes. "Tired and pocket-eyed." C. G. Norris.

pocket flask. A pocket-sized flask. See FLASK, Illust.

pocket gopher. Any gopher of the family Geomyidae.

pock'et·ing, n. A stout fabric, commonly of cotton, used for pockets, esp. of overcoats; — usually in pl.

pocket judgment. A statute merchant; — so called because of its summary enforcement. See STATUTE OF MERCHANTS. Hist.

pock'et·knife' (pŏk'ĕt·nīf'; pŏk'Ĭt-), n.; pl. -KNIVES (-nīvz'). 1. A knife with a blade or blades folding into the handle to fit it for being carried in the pocket.

Pocketknife. A Scale; B Spring; C Tang of Blade; D Kick.

2. A kind of chisel for cutting pockets in window frames.

pocket lighter. A pocket-sized lighter for cigarettes or cigars.

pocket money. Money for small personal current expenses; esp., an allowance for this purpose, as to a boy.

pocket mouse; pl. POCKET MICE. Any of various nocturnal burrowing rodents of the genus Perognathus inhabiting arid parts of western North America; — so called from their external cheek pouches for carrying food. Called also kangaroo mouse; hence often confused with kangaroo rat.

pocket piece. 1. A piece of money, as an obsolete coin, kept in the pocket as a charm or for luck.
2. Carp. A movable part in a window-frame pulley stile to render accessible the enclosed weight and sash cord.

pocket pistol. 1. A pistol to be carried in the pocket.
2. A pocket flask. Humorous.

pocket plum. = PLUM POCKET. Brit.

pocket print. Patternmaking. A detachable core print left in the mold when the pattern is lifted.

pocket rat. a A pocket gopher. b A kangaroo rat.

pocket sheriff. Eng. Law. A sheriff appointed by the sole authority of the crown.

pock'et-size', adj. Also pock'et-sized'. Of a size convenient for the pocket.

pocket veto. The retention by the President of the United States of a bill unsigned so that it does not become a law, in virtue of the following constitutional provision (Const., Art. I, sec. 7, § 2): "If any bill shall not be returned by the President within ten days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law, in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the Congress by their adjournment prevent its return, in which case it shall not be a law." The Supreme Court by a unanimous decision in June, 1929, declared the pocket veto constitutional. Also, an analogous retention of a bill by a State governor.

pock'et·y (pŏk'ĕt·ĭ; -Ĭ·tĭ), adj. 1. Mining. Carrying ore in spots, and not evenly; — said of ore deposits.
2. Of the nature of or like a pocket; pent in; close.

The atmosphere of his house was strange and pockety when Jolyon came in. Galsworthy.

pock'-freck'en (pŏk'frĕk'ĕn), adj. Also pock'-fret'ten (-frĕt'n). Pock-marked. Obs. exc. Dial.

pock'house' (pŏk'hous'), n. A smallpox hospital. Colloq., U. S.

pock lymph. Smallpox vaccine virus.

pock'mark' (pŏk'märk'), n. A mark, pit, or depressed scar caused by smallpox. — pock'mark', v. t.

pock'-marked' (-märkt'), adj. Marked by or as if by smallpox.

pock nook or neuk. The bottom of a bag, or poke; hence, financial resources; means; as, not able to live on his own pock nook.

pock'-pit', v. t.; -PIT'TED; -PIT'TING. To pit or mark with pocks.

pock scab. = POWDERY SCAB.

pock'y (pŏk'ĭ), adj.; POCK'I·ER (-ĭ-ĕr); POCK'I·EST. Now Rare. 1. Full of, or marked with, pocks; specif., syphilitic.
2. Pertaining to, or of the nature of, a pock or the pox.
3. Loathsome; vile; contemptible. Obs.

pock'y (pŏk'ĭ), n.; pl. -IES (-ĭz). [From pock, var. of poke.] A small pock, or bag. Scot.

pok'y (pōk'ĭ), adj. Having pocks, or bags; baggy; — applied to the cloud called mammato-cumulus. Orkney Isls.

po'co (pō'kō), n. [It. & Sp. little, not much (in value), fr. L. paucus. See FEW.] An old-clothesman. Students' Slang, U. S.

‖po'co (pō'kō), adj. [It.] Little. — adv. Somewhat; slightly; — chiefly, Music, in directions; as ‖po'co più al·le'gro (pyōō äl·lā'grō), slightly faster; ‖po'co lar'go (lär'gō), somewhat slow. — n. A little.

‖po'co a po'co (ä pō'kō). [It.] Music. Little by little; gradually; — used in directions.

po'co·cu·ran'te (pō'kō·kōō·răn'tā; -kū·răn'tē), adj. [It. poco curante.] Literally, caring little; hence, careless; indifferent; nonchalant. — n. A careless, indifferent, or nonchalant person; a trifler. — po'co·cu·ran'te·ism (-kz'm), po'co·cu·ran'tism (-kū·răn'tĭz'm). — po'co·cu·ran'tic (-tĭk), po'co·cu·ran'tish, adj.

po'co·cu·ran'tist (-tĭst), n. & adj. Pococurante.

Po'co·no sand'stone (pō'kō·nō). [From Pocono Sandstone Knob near Huntingdon, Pa.] Geol. A sandstone of the Mississippian system in the northern Appalachians, esp. in Pennsylvania. It is oil-bearing and gas-bearing in West Virginia, and is called by the drillers Big Injun sand.

po·co'sin (pō·kō's'n; pō'kō-), n. Also po·co'son, po·quo'sin, etc. [Of Algonquian origin; cf. Lenape pâkwesen, Cree pâkwaw shallow water.] A swamp; a "dismal." Sou. U. S.

‖po'co tiem'po (pō'kō tyĕm'pō). [Sp.] Pretty soon; interjectionally, "one moment!"

poc'u·lar'y (pŏk'ū·lĕr'ĭ; -lĕr·ĭ), n.; pl. -IES (-ĭz). [L. poculum cup.] An indulgence attached to a pardon bowl. Bp. Latimer.

poc'u·la'tion (pŏk'ū·lā'shŭn), n. Drinking, esp. of wine, liquors, etc.

poc'u·lent (pŏk'ū·lĕnt), adj. [L. poculentus.] Fit for use in brewing or distilling of beverages. Bacon.

poc'u·li·form' (-lĭ·fôrm'), adj. [L. poculum a cup.] Cup-shaped.

pod (pŏd), n. A number of animals closely clustered together; a school, as of seals and whales; of birds, a flock.

pod, n. [Cf. 4th PAD, 13.] Mech. a The bit socket in a brace. b The straight groove or channel in the barrel of a pod auger or similar tool.

Pod, b.

pod, n. [Origin uncert.; cf. peascod, and podder peascod gatherer.] 1. Bot. Any dry dehiscent seed vessel or fruit, whether monocarpellary (as a legume, silique, or follicle) or composed of carpels, as a capsule. Specif., a legume, as of the pea or bean. See FRUIT, Table & Illust.
2. A bag; pouch; sac, esp. a musk bag; a protective envelope, as a cocoon.
3. A large protuberant belly. Orig. Dial.

pod, v. i.; POD'DED; POD'DING. 1. To produce pods.
2. To swell or fill out like a pod.

pod, v. t. To gather, as peas, in the pod; also, to hull or shell, as peas.

pod, v. i. To assemble in groups, or pods, as seals. — v. t. To drive (seals) into groups, or pods.

pod-. = PODO- (which see), as in po·dal'gi·a, pod'ar·thri'tis, pod'o·dyn'i·a. See -ALGIA; -IATRY; etc.

-pod (p-pŏd). Also -pode (-pōd). [See POOR.] A combining form, Greek -podos, -podon, from pous, podos, foot, meaning footed, used to denote in adjectives and nouns (one) having (such or so many) feet, as in platy*pod,* hexa*pod,* mono*pode;* specif.: a Bot. = -PODIUM, as in phyllo*pode,* stylo*pod.* b Zool. (1) An individual member of the classification denoted by a corresponding noun ending in -poda or adjective ending in -podous, as in cephalo*pod,* myria*pod,* brachio*pode.* (2) = PODITE a.

-poda. [NL.] Zool. A combining form, Greek -poda, from pous, podos, foot, denoting creatures having (so many or such) feet, used in names of phyla, orders, classes, etc., as in Arthro*poda,* Deca*poda,* Hexa*poda,* which correspond to adjectives ending in -podous.

poach'a·ble, adj. See -ABLE.
poach'ard (pōch'ĕrd). Var. of POCHARD. poach'ing, pres. part. & verbal n. of POACH. poacht. Poached. Ref. Sp. poak, poake. Vars. of POKE. po'a·like' fes'cue grass. See GRASS, Table.
poalo, poali. Corrupts. of PAOLO, PAOLI. poap (pōp; pō'ăp). Var. of PAUP. Dial. Eng.
pocard. + POCHARD.
po'ca·sin, po'ca·son (pō'kȧ·s'n). Vars. of POCOSIN.
‖po'cas pa·la'bras (pō'kăs pä·lä'brās). [Sp.] Few words. po'chaise, po'chay, pochay. Contr. of POST CHAISE. Colloq.
Poch'e·reth (pŏk'ĕ·rĕth; pō'kĕ-; pō·kĕ'-). Bib.
po·chok'. Var. of PACHAK. pock'ard (pŏk'ĕrd). Var. of POCHARD. pock'et·a·ble, adj. See -ABLE. — pock'et·a·ble·ness, n. pock'et·ful, n.; pl. -FULS (-fŏŏlz). See -FUL. pock'et·less, adj. See -LESS. pock'et·like', adj. See -LIKE. pock'i·fy, v. t. [pocky + -fy.] To infect with the pox. Obs.
pock'i·ly, adv. of POCKY. pock'i·ness, n. See -NESS. pock·man'teau, pock·man'tie, pock·man'ky, etc. Corruptions of PORTMANTEAU, by confusion with pock, Scot. var. of poke, bag.
pock'-pit'ten. Var. of pock-pitted, past part. of POCK-PIT. pock pudding. Var. of POKE PUDDING. pock'weed', n. = SKUNK CABBAGE a. pock'wood' (pŏk'wŏŏd'), n., or pockwood tree. [So-called because it was formerly used as a specific for the pox.] = LIGNUM VITAE a (1). po'cook', n. [ME. pocok, fr. pe peacock + cok cock.] Peacock. Obs.
pod. + PAD, toad.

po·dag'ra (pō-dăg'rȧ; pŏd'ȧ-grȧ; 277), n. [L., fr. Gr. podagra, fr. pous, podos, foot + agra a catching.] Med. Gout in the feet; hence, gout in general.

po·dag'ral (pō-dăg'răl), adj. Podagric.

po·dag'ric (pō-dăg'rĭk), adj. Also po·dag'ri·cal (-rĭ-kăl). [L. podagricus, Gr. podagrikos.] Pertaining to, or afflicted with, the gout; gouty.

po·dag'ric, n. A sufferer from gout.

pod'a·grous (pŏd'ȧ-grŭs), adj. [L. podagrosus.] Podagric.

po'dal (pō'dăl; -dȧ'l), adj. [Gr. pous, podos, foot + -al.] Zool. Pert. to a foot or feet; specif., designating membranes attached to the neuropodia and notopodia of certain polychaete worms.

po·dal'ic (pō-dăl'ĭk), adj. [Gr. pous, podos, foot.] Of or pertaining to the feet; as, podalic version in obstetrics, that is, turning the fetus by seizing the feet.

Po'da·li·ri'i·dae (pō'dȧ-lĭ-rī'ĭ-dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Podalirius, type genus (fr. Gr. Podaleirios, son of Asclepius) + -idae.] Zool. A family of large hairy bees with long tongues. They are solitary, but some species that burrow in cliffs form large communities. The typical and largest genus is Po'da·lir'i·us (-lĭr'ĭ·ŭs). Syn. Anthophoridae.

Po·dar'ge (pō-där'jē; -gē), n. [Gr. Podargē, lit., swift-footed.] See HARPY, 1.

po·dargue' (pō-därg'), n. [From PODARGUS.] A frogmouth (bird).

Po·dar'gus (pō-där'gŭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. podargos swift-footed, fr. pous, podos, foot + argos bright, swift.] Zool. The typical genus of Podargidae.

po·dar'thrum (pō-där'thrŭm), n. [NL. See PODO-; ARTHRO-.] Zool. In birds, the joint between the toes and the tarsometatarsus. — po·dar'thral (-thrăl), adj.

pod auger, bit, gimlet, etc. An auger, etc., having a pod. See 2d POD b; AUGER, 1.

Pod'ax·o'ni·a (pŏd'ăks·ō'nĭ·ȧ), n. pl. [NL., fr. Gr. pous, podos, foot + axōn axis.] Zool. A group comprising the Brachiopoda, Bryozoa, and Gephyrea. — pod'ax·o'ni·al (-ăl), adj.

pod borer. Any insect larva that bores into the pods of legumes, as the bean-pod borer (Etiella zinckenella), family Pyralidae, a caterpillar that feeds in the pods of beans.

pod corn. A type of Indian corn (Zea mays tunicata) having each kernel, as well as the whole ear, enclosed in husks; — called also cow corn, husk corn.

pod'ded (pŏd'ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. 1. Having or producing pods; leguminous; borne in a pod, as seeds.
2. Well-to-do; rich; in financial security. A Gallicism.

-pod'ded. A combining form of podded, denoting having (such) pods, as in:

long-podded	round-podded	slender-podded rough-podded	short-podded	smooth-podded pod'der (pŏd'ẽr), n. A person who gathers peas for market. Local, Eng.

pod'der, n. One who pods, or prods. Obs.

pod'der. Var. of PODWARE.

pod'dige (pŏd'ĭj), n. [From POTTAGE.] Pottage, or porridge. Dial. Eng.

pod'dish (pŏd'ĭsh), n. Also pod'dige (-ĭj). [See PORRIDGE, POTTAGE.] Porridge; pottage, esp. of oatmeal. Now Dial.

pod'dle (pŏd'l), v. i. To waddle, as ducks. Dial. Eng.

pod'dy (pŏd'ĭ), adj. Stout; esp., potbellied. See 3d POD, 3.

pod'dy, n. A calf or a lamb just taken from the mother. Australia.

pod'el·co'ma (pŏd'ĕl·kō'mȧ), n. [NL., fr. pod- + Gr. helkōma ulcer.] Med. = MYCETOMA.

po'de·on (pō'dē·ŏn; pŏd'ē-), n. [NL., fr. Gr. pous, podos, foot; cf. Gr. podeōn neck or mouth of a wineskin.] Zool. The petiole of the abdomen of a hymenopteron.

po·des·ta' (pō'dĕs·tä'; pō·dĕs'tȧ), n. [It. podestà, fr. L. potestas power, magistracy. Cf. POTENT.] In Italy, any of several public officers; specif.: a Hist. (1) A governor of one or more Lombard cities, appointed by the emperor Frederick I. (Barbarossa). (2) In the medieval Italian republics, one of the chief magistrates, with very extensive powers. b A subordinate judge or other magistrate in some towns. c Under the Fascist government, the mayor or chief executive in any commune, except Rome and Naples, appointed for five years by royal decree. In the larger communes he is assisted by a council having advisory functions only.

po·des'ter·ate (pō·dĕs'tĕr·ăt), n. [It. podesteria.] Office, rule, or jurisdiction of a podesta.

po·de'ti·i·form' (pō·dē'shĭ·ĭ·fôrm'), adj. Bot. Like a podetium in form or appearance.

po·de'ti·um (pō·dē'shĭ·ŭm), n.; pl. -TIA (-ȧ). [NL., fr. Gr. pous, podos, foot.] Bot. The stalk on which the ascocarp is borne, in certain lichens, as of the genus Cladonia; hence, loosely, any stalklike organ or body, as the seta of mosses.

po'dex (pō'dĕks), n.; pl. PODICES (pŏd'ĭ·sēz). [L., rump.] Zool. a Anal region; rump. b The pygidium of an insect.

pod fern. a The floating fern. b The Oregon cliff brake (which see).

podge (pŏj), n. Something podgy. Colloq.

podg'er (pŏj'ẽr), n. Mech. A small taper rod, or drift, used to bring rivet holes into alignment; also, a tommy.

pod gimlet. See under POD AUGER.

podg'y (pŏj'ĭ), adj.; PODG'I·ER (-ĭ-ẽr); PODG'I·EST. [Cf. PUDGY.] Fat and short; pudgy. — podg'i·ly, adv. — podg'i·ness, n.

Her podgy, jeweled hands are clenching and unclenching. R. Dehan.

-po'di·a (-pō'dĭ·ȧ). [NL.] Med. A combining form, Greek -podia, from pous, podos, foot, meaning footedness, used to denote a (specified) condition or formation of the feet, as in ankylo*podia*, platy*podia.*

po'di·a (pō'dĭ·ȧ), n., pl. of PODIUM.

po'di·al (-ăl), adj. Of or pertaining to a podium.

po·di'a·try (pō-dī'ȧ-trĭ), n. [Gr. pous, podos, foot + -iatry.] Med. The study and treatment of disorders of the foot. — po·di'a·trist (-trĭst), n.

pod'i·cal (pŏd'ĭ·kăl), adj. [L. podex, podicis, anus.] Zool. Of or pertaining to the podex; anal.

po'di·le'gous (pō'dĭ·lē'gŭs), adj. [Gr. pous, podos, foot + legein to gather.] Zool. Gathering pollen by means of a pollen brush on the legs, as certain bees. Cf. GASTRILEGOUS.

pod'ite (pŏd'ĭt), n. [pod- + -ite.] Zool. A limb of an arthropod, esp. an ambulatory limb of a crustacean. — po·dit'ic (pō·dĭt'ĭk), adj.

-podite. Zool. A combining form, -pod + -ite, used to denote a A (specified) segment of an appendage of an arthropod, as in basi*podite*, gnatho*podite*, mero*podite.* b = -POD b, as in pleo*podite.* Derivative adjectives are formed in -po·dit'ic (-pō·dĭt'ĭk).

po·dit'ti (pō·dĭt'ĭ), n. An Australian kingfisher (Syma torotoro flavirostris).

po'di·um (pō'dĭ·ŭm), n.; pl. PODIA (-ȧ). [L. See PEW.] 1. Arch. A low wall serving as a foundation, substructure, or terrace wall; a base, pedestal, or platform. In Archaeol., esp.: a The dwarf wall around the arena of an amphitheater, from the top of which the seats began. b The masonry under the stylobate of a temple, sometimes a mere foundation. c Roman Antiq. A balcony near the arena of a theater where the emperor and other spectators of high rank sat. d A dais, as for an orchestra conductor.
2. Bot. a Any basal structure or support, as a footstalk; — chiefly in combination (see -PODIUM). b A phytomer.
3. Zool. A foot; specif., a tube foot of an echinoderm.

-po'di·um (-pō'dĭ·ŭm). [NL. Cf. PODO-.] A combining form, Latin -podium, from Greek -podion, from pous, a small foot, meaning a footlike part, as in acro*podium;* as in meso*podium*, pleuro*podium*, pro*podium.*

pod'ler (pŏd'lẽr), n. Also pod'ley (-lĭ). [Corrupt of pollack.] A young coalfish. Scot.

pod'o- (pŏd'ō-), pod-. A combining form, Greek podo-, pod-, from pous, podos, meaning foot, used to denote: a A human foot, as in podology, podoscaph. b A hoof, as in pododerm. c Bot. & Zool. A stalk, peduncle, as in Podocarpus, Podophthalmia.

pod'o·branch (pŏd'ō-brăngk), n. Also pod'o·bran'chi·a (-brăng'kĭ·ȧ); pl. -CHIAE (-ē). [See PODO-; -BRANCHIA.] Zool. In crustaceans, a gill attached to the basal segment of a thoracic limb; — opposed to pleurobranch and arthrobranch. — pod'o·bran'chi·al (-ăl), adj. — pod'o·bran'chi·ate (-ăt), adj.

pod'o·carp (pŏd'ō-kärp), n. [podo- + -carp.] Bot. a Rare. A stipitate fruit. b Any plant of the genus Podocarpus.

Pod'o·car·pin'e·ae (-kär·pĭn'ē·ē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Podocarpus + -ineae.] Bot. A section of the Taxaceae including Podocarpus and related genera, by some considered as constituting the family Podocarpaceae.

Pod'o·car'pus (-kär'pŭs), n. [NL., fr. podo- + Gr. karpos fruit.] Bot. A genus of evergreen trees of the yew family (Taxaceae) having a pulpy fruit with one hard seed. The 60 species are widely distributed in the Southern Hemisphere, and are often important timber trees. The Australasian species are called black pine. See YACCA, MIROA, KAHIKATEA, and PLUM FIR. — pod'o·car'pous (-kär'pŭs), adj.

pod'o·ceph'a·lous (-sĕf'ȧ·lŭs), adj. Bot. Having a head of flowers on a long peduncle.

pod'o·derm (pŏd'ō-dûrm), n. [podo- + -derm.] The dermal, as distinguished from the epidermal or horny, part of the covering of the foot of a hoofed animal.

pod'o·gyn (pŏd'ō-jĭn), -gyne (-jĭn; -jīn), -gyn'i·um (-jĭn'ĭ·ŭm), n. [podo- + Gr. gynē woman.] Bot. A gynophore.

Po·do'li·an (pō·dō'lĭ·ăn; 159), adj. Of or pert. to Podolia. — n. One of the people of Podolia, southwestern Russia.

po'do·lite (pō'dō·līt), n. [From Podolia, Ukraine.] Mineral. A yellow calcium phosphate with calcium carbonate, $3Ca_3(PO_4)_2.CaCO_3$, related to apatite. Sp.gr., 3.1.

po·dol'o·gy (pō·dŏl'ō·jĭ), n. [podo- + -logy.] The science dealing with the morphology and physiology of the feet.

pod'o·man'cy (pŏd'ō-măn'sĭ), n. [podo- + -mancy.] Pedomancy.

pod'o·mere (pŏd'ō-mēr), n. Zool. A segment of a jointed appendage.

Pod'o·phry'a (pŏd'ō-frī'ȧ), n. [NL., fr. pod- + Gr. ophrys eyebrow.] Zool. A genus of stalked, naked suctorial protozoans having suctorial tentacles only either distributed over the body or in fascicles. It is the type of a family, Pod'o·phry'i·dae (-frĭ'ĭ·dē).

Pod'oph·thal'mi·a (pŏd'ŏf·thăl'mĭ·ȧ), n. pl. [NL., fr. podo- + Gr. ophthalmos eye.] Zool. The stalk-eyed Crustacea, in many older classifications a division, usually an order, of malacostracan crustaceans with the eyes supported on movable stalks. It includes the Phyllocarida, Euphausiacea, Mysidacea, Decapoda, and Stomatopoda of recent writers. — pod'oph·thal'mi·an (-ăn), adj. & n. — pod'oph·thal'mic (-mĭk), pod'oph·thal'mous (-mŭs), adj.

pod'oph·thal'mite (-mīt), n. Zool. The distal segment of the eyestalk of a crustacean. — pod'oph·thal·mit'ic (-thăl·mĭt'ĭk), adj.

pod'o·phyl'lin (pŏd'ō-fĭl'ĭn), n. Podophyllum resin. — pod'o·phyl'lic (-ĭk), adj.

pod'o·phyl'lo·tox'in (-fĭl'ō-tŏk'sĭn), n. [podophyllum + Gr. toxikon poison.] Chem. A colorless neutral crystalline compound, $C_{15}H_{14}O_6$, one of the active principles of the drug podophyllum.

pod'o·phyl'lous (-fĭl'ŭs), adj. [podo- + -phyllous.] Veter. Designating, or pertaining to, the laminar tissue of the pododerm.

Pod'o·phyl'lum (-ŭm), n. [NL., fr. podo- + Gr. phyllon leaf.] 1. Bot. A small genus of herbs of the barberry family (Berberidaceae), having poisonous rootstocks, large, palmate leaves, chiefly hexamerous flowers, and large fleshy, sometimes edible, berries. P. peltatum, the May apple, or mandrake, is common in eastern North America; the other species are Asiatic.
2. [not cap.] Pharm. The rhizome and rootlet of the May apple (Podophyllum peltatum), used as a cholagogue and cathartic.

podophyllum resin. A bitter purgative resin extracted from the rootstock of the May apple (Podophyllum peltatum) as a yellow to brown powder. It contains podophyllotoxin.

pod'o·scaph (pŏd'ō-skăf), n. [podo- + Gr. skaphos boat.] A canoe-shaped float attached to the foot, or a pair of these, for walking on water; also, a boat propelled by bicycle treadles. — pod'o·scaph'er (-skăf'ẽr), n.

po·dos'co·py (pō-dŏs'kō-pĭ), n. Pedomancy.

pod'o·sperm (pŏd'ō-spûrm), n. Bot. A funicle. Rare.

Pod'o·sphae'ra (-sfē'rȧ), n. [NL., fr. podo- + -sphaera.] Bot. A genus of powdery mildews (family Erysiphaceae) having perithecia with only a single ascus and rigid, usually dichotomously branched, sometimes simple, appendages. P. leucotricha causes the powdery mildew of the apple.

Pod'o·ste·ma'ce·ae (pŏd'ō-stē·mā'sē-ē), n. pl. [NL. See PODOSTEMON.] Bot. A family of aquatic herbs (order Rosales), natives of tropical regions, and often confined to submerged ledges or rocks of waterfalls. The only North American genus is Podostemon. — pod'o·ste·ma'ceous (-shŭs), adj.

pod'o·ste'mad (-stē'măd), n. A podostemaceous plant. R.

Pod'o·ste'mon (-stē'mŏn), n. [NL., fr. podo- + Gr. stēmōn warp. See STAMEN.] Bot. a A rather widely distributed genus of rock-inhabiting submerged, aquatic herbs, the riverweeds, type of the family Podostemaceae. b [not cap.] A plant of this genus.

Pod'o·sto'ma·ta (-stō'mȧ·tȧ; -stŏm'ȧ·tȧ), n. pl. [NL., fr. podo- + -stomata.] Zool. a Obs. The Pterobranchia, regarded as an order of polyzoans. b The Merostomata (including the trilobites). — pod'o·stom'a·tous (-stŏm'ȧ·tŭs; -stō'mȧ·tŭs), adj.

pod'o·the'ca (-thē'kȧ), n.; pl. -CAE (-sē). [NL., fr. podo- + -theca.] Zool. The scaly covering of the foot of a bird or reptile. — pod'o·the'cal (-kăl), adj.

-podous. A combining form, Greek -podos, from pous, podos, foot, meaning footed, used chiefly in adjectives corresponding to nouns ending in -poda, as in acantho*podous*, hexa*podous.*

Pod'o·za·mi'tes (-zȧ·mī'tēz), n. [NL. See PODO- c; ZAMIA.] Paleontol. A genus of fossil plants of the Mesozoic, represented by numerous species and varieties of cosmopolitan distribution and based upon the general resemblance of the leaflets to those of the cycads of the genus Zamia.

pod pepper. Any pepper of the genus Capsicum.

pod rot. Plant Pathol. A fungous disease of cacao producing lesions on the pods. It may be caused by Diplodia theobromae or Phytophthora faberi.

pod rust. = ANTHRACNOSE (of the bean).

pod shrimp. Any crustacean having a bivalve shell, as of the genus Estheria.

Pod'snap, Mr. John (pŏd'snăp). A pompous representative of British Philistinism in Dickens's Our Mutual Friend. He continually protests against anything likely to "bring a blush into the cheek of the young person" (his daughter), and always knows the exact designs of Providence (which invariably coincide with his own). Hence, Pod'snap'per·y (-snăp'ẽr·ĭ), n.

pod'sol (pŏd'sŏl), pod'zol (-zŏl), n. [Russ. podzol alkaline ashes, fr. zola ashes.] White or gray ashlike soil, typically occurring in northern Russia. — pod·sol'ic (pŏd·sŏl'ĭk), adj.

pod spot. = ANTHRACNOSE (of the bean).

Po'dunk (pō'dŭngk), n. An Indian of a small Algonquian tribe formerly dwelling on Podunk River in Connecticut.

Po'dunk, n. An imaginary small town, taken as typical of placid dullness and lack of contact with the progress of the world. U. S.

Po·du'ra (pō·dū'rȧ; 242), n. [NL., fr. pod- + Gr. oura tail.] Zool. a A genus of small leaping insects (suborder Collembola) having a cylindrical body. It is the type of a family, Po·du'ri·dae (-rĭ-dē), including the snow fleas and springtails (see these terms). b [not cap.] An insect of this genus. — po·du'ran (-răn), adj. & n. — po·du'rid (-rĭd), n. & adj.

Podura (P. villosa). Much enlarged.

pod'ware' (pŏd'wär'), n. Agricultural produce; fodder; later, plants bearing pods, as peas, beans, etc. Obs. exc. Dial.

po'e (pō'ē), or po'e·bird' (-bûrd'), n. [Named by Capt. Cook fr. the Tahitian word which he supposed to mean earrings, from two tufts of white feathers under its throat. Tahitian poe means pearl beads.] The parson bird.

po'e (pō'ē). Var. of POI.

Poe'ci·le (pē'sĭ·lē), n. [L., fr. Gr. poikilē (sc. stoa), lit., many-colored.] = the Porch, under PORCH.

Poe'ci·li'i·dae (pē'sĭ·lĭ'ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Poecilia, a genus of fishes, fr. Gr. poikilos variegated.] Zool. A large family of small soft-finned, chiefly viviparous fishes (order Cyprinodontes) including the top minnows.

poe'ci·lit'ic (-lĭt'ĭk), adj. Petrog. Poikilitic. Now Rare.

poe'ci·lo- (pē'sĭ·lō-), poecil-. [See PAINT.] A combining form, Greek poikilo-, poikil-, from poikilos, meaning variegated; various; pied; as in *Poecilo*poda, *poecilo*nym.

poe'ci·lo·cyt'ta·rous (-sĭt'ȧ·rŭs), adj. [poecilo- + Gr. kyttaros cell.] Zool. Of or pertaining to a type of nest of certain social wasps (family Vespidae) in which the layers of brood comb are supported by the outer covering and a central support, as the limb of a tree, sometimes regarded as a group, Poe'ci·lo·cyt'ta·res (-rēz). Cf. PHRAGMOCYTTAROUS.

poe'ci·log'o·ny (pē'sĭ·lŏg'ō-nĭ), n. [poecilo- + -gony.] Zool. An unusual method of development occurring in certain invertebrate animals where, in the same species, there are two kinds of young although the adults are exactly alike. — poe'ci·log'o·nous (-nŭs), adj.

poe'ci·lo·mere' (pē'sĭ·lō·mēr'), n. [poecilo- + -mere.] A definite area on an animal's body where color change starts, as previous to molting.

poe'ci·lo·nym' (pē'sĭ·lō·nĭm'), n. [poecilo- + -nym.] A synonym (sense 4). — poe'ci·lo·nym'ic (-nĭm'ĭk), adj.

poe'ci·lon'y·my (-lŏn'ĭ·mĭ), n. The use of several names for one thing.

Poe'ci·lop'o·da (-lŏp'ō-dȧ), n. pl. [NL., fr. poecilo- + -poda.] Zool. a An artificial group including many parasitic Entomostraca, together with the horseshoe crabs. b The Merostomata. — poe·cil'o·pod (pē-sĭl'ō-pŏd; pē'sĭ·lō-pŏd'), adj. & n. — poe'ci·lop'o·dous (pē'sĭ·lŏp'ō-dŭs), adj.

po'em (pō'ĕm; -ĭm; 119), n. [F. poème, fr. L. poēma, fr. Gr. poēma, poiēma, fr. poiein, poein, to make, to compose, to write, especially in verse. See POET.] 1. A metrical composition; a composition in verse, either blank verse or rhyme, characterized by imagination and poetic diction; a piece of poetry; — opposed to prose; as, the poems of Homer or of Milton.
2. Any composition, creation, achievement, or the like, marked by a quality or qualities ascribed to poetry, such as expressiveness, elevation, beauty, or artistry.

He who would not be frustrate of his hope to write well hereafter in laudable things ought himself to be a true poem. Milton.

po'e·mat'ic (pō'ē·măt'ĭk), adj. [Gr. poiēmatikos.] Poetical. Coleridge.

pod'a·gry (pŏd'ȧ-grĭ), n. [Obs. F. podagrie.] Podagra. Obs.

podanger, n. A two-horse team. Obs. New Eng. Dial.

po·dar' (pō·där'), pod·dar'. Vars. of POTDAR.

Po·dar'gi·dae (-jĭ·dē), Pod'ar·gi'nae (pŏd'är·jĭ'nē), n. pl. [NL. See PODARGUS.] See FROGMOUTH, 1. — po·dar'gine (pō·där'jĭn; -jīn), adj.

po·da'tus, n. [Cf. Gr. pous, podos, foot.] = PEE 5 a. See NEUME, Table.

poddissoy. ✝ PADUASOY.

pod'dock (pŏd'ŭk). Dial. var. of PADDOCK, toad. [A toad. Obs.] pode, n. [Cf. PAD, 1st PADDOCK.] -pods (-pŏd). Var. of -POD.

po'der. Var. of PODAR, potdar.

Pod'i·ceps (pŏd'ĭ·sĕps), Pod'i·ci·pedi'dae (-sĭ·pĕd'ĭ·dē). [NL., fr. L. podex, podicis, anus + pes foot.] Syns. of COLYMBUS, COLYMBIDAE. See also GREBE, 1.

pod'i·ces, n. pl. of PODEX.

pod'like', adj. See -LIKE.

Pod'o·car·pa'ce·ae (pŏd'ō-kär·pā'sē-ē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Podocarpus + -aceae.] Syn. of TAXACEAE (in part).

po·dom'e·ter (pō·dŏm'ē·tẽr), n. = PEDOMETER, 1.

po·dom'e·try (-trĭ), n. Measurement by the foot. Obs.

Pod'oph·thal'ma (pŏd'ŏf·thăl'mȧ), Pod'oph·thal'ma·ta (-mȧ·tȧ), n. pl. [NL.] Syns. of PODOPHTHALMIA. — pod'oph·thal'mate (-mĕt), adj. — pod'oph·thal'ma·tous (-mȧ·tŭs), adj.

Pod'o·phyl·la'ce·ae (pŏd'ō-fĭl·lā'sē-ē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Podophyllum + -aceae.] Syn. of BERBERIDACEAE.

Pod'o·so'ma·ta (pŏd'ō-sō'mȧ·tȧ), n. pl. [NL., fr. podo- + -somata.] Syn. of PYCNOGONIDA. — pod'o·som'a·tous (-sŏm'ȧ·tŭs; -sō'mȧ·tŭs), adj.

Pod'o·ste'mo·na'ce·ae (-stē'mō·nā'sē-ē), n. pl. [NL.] Syn. of PODOSTEMACEAE. — pod'o·ste'mo·na'ceous (-shŭs), adj.

Pod'o·ste'mum. Var. of PODOSTEMON.

pod'-shaped', adj. See -SHAPED.

pod'shaw. Var. of PADISHAH.

pod'zol (pŏd'zŏl), n. = PODSOL.

poecil-. = POECILO-.

poe'ci·lo·ther'mal, -ther'mic, -ther'mism. Vars. of POIKILOTHERMAL, etc.

Po·e'ma de Jo·sé' (pō·ā'mȧ dĕ hō·sā'). [Sp.] See José.

Po·e'ma del Cid' (dĕl thēth'). [Sp.] See Cid.

po'em·et, n. Dim. of POEM.

po'em·let, n. See -LET.

Poems of Ossian. See OSSIAN, 2.

poenitentiary. ✝ PENITENTIARY.

poe·nol'o·gy. Var. of PENOLOGY.

Po·ëph'a·ga (pō·ĕf'ə·gȧ), n. pl. [NL., fr. Gr. poēphagos grass-eating, fr. poa grass + phagein to eat.] Zool. A group including the kangaroos and their allies. — po·ëph'a·gous (-gŭs), adj.

Po·ëph'a·gus (-gŭs), n. [NL. See POËPHAGA.] Zool. The subgenus of Bos consisting of the yak; also [not cap.], Obs., the yak.

po·e'sis (pō·ē'sĭs), n. a = POIESIS. b Obs. Poetry; poesy.

po'e·sy (pō'ē·sĭ; -zĭ), n. Also po'e·sie. [ME. poesie, fr. OF. poësie, fr. L. poesis, fr. Gr. poēsis, poiēsis, fr. poiein to make. Cf. POEM, POSY.] 1. The poems produced by a poet or by poets; poetic works collectively; also, a poem; a poetic composition. Now Poetic. "The vocal raptures of fresh poesy." Wordsworth.

2. Poetry as one of the arts; poetic form, composition, or writing in theory or in general practice; as, Sidney's "Defence of Poesie." Archaic.

3. Hist. a = POSY, 1. b = POSY, 2.

4. Poetic genius, talent, or faculty; poetic inspiration; creative or imaginative power. Poetic.

I will fly to thee,
Not charioted by Bacchus and his pards,
But on the viewless wings of poesy. Keats.

po'e·sy (pō'ē·sĭ), v. i.; PO'E·SIED (-sĭd); -SY·ING. To make poetry.

po'et (pō'ĕt; -ĭt; 119), n. [ME. poete, fr. OF. poëte, fr. L. poëta, fr. Gr. poētēs, poiētēs, fr. poiein to make; akin to Skr. cinoti, cayati, he arranges, constructs, OSlav. činiti, inf. Cf. POEM, POSY.] 1. One who makes, invents or composes, orig., fables, fictions, and the like, but now generally, verses; specif., a composer of poetry; a writer of poems.

There have been many most excellent poets, that never versified. Sidney.

2. In aesthetic and critical theory especially, one who creates a work of art in poetic form; one endowed with great imaginative, emotional, or intuitive power and capable of expressing his conceptions, passion, or intuitions in language marked by poetic beauty; — often disting. from versifier, scientist, etc.

The Poet is chiefly distinguished from other men by a greater promptness to think and feel without immediate external excitement, and a greater power in expressing such thoughts and feelings. Wordsworth.

3. One who composes a work of art analogous to a poem in any other medium than that of verse; as, a tone poet; a prose poet.

po'et-. A combining form of poet, denoting both poet and, as in:

poet-artist	poet-novelist	poet-priest
poet-dramatist	poet-painter	poet-princess poet-farmer	poet-patriot	poet-saint poet-historian	poet-pilgrim	poet-satirist poet-humorist	poet-playwright	poet-seer poet-king	poet-plowman	poet-thinker poet-musician	poet-preacher	poet-warrior po'et·as'ter (pō'ĕt·ăs'tẽr; pō'ĕt·ăs'tẽr; -ĭt-; 277), n. [NL. See 2d -ASTER.] A versifier rather than a poet (sense 2); a dabbler in the poetic art.

po'et·as'ter·ing (pō'ĕt·ăs'tẽr·ĭng), n. Composing as a poetaster; dabbling in verse. Also used adjectively. "Away with all poetastering at dinner parties." Thackeray.

po'et·as'ter·ism (-ĭz'm), n. Also po'et·as'ter·y (-ĭ), po'et·as'try (pō'ĕt·ăs'trĭ; pō'ĕt·ăs'trĭ). Poetastering or an instance of it.

po'et·as'tric (-ăs'trĭk), po'et·as'tri·cal (-trĭ·kăl), adj. Pertaining to, or of the nature of, a poetaster.

po'et·esque' (-ĕsk'), adj. [poet + -esque.] Poetical. Rare.

po'et·ess (pō'ĕt·ĕs; ĭt·ĭs; 119), n. A woman poet.

po·et'ic (pō·ĕt'ĭk), adj. [F. poétique, fr. L. poëticus, fr. Gr. poiētikos.] 1. Of, pertaining to, or according to the practice of, a poet or poets; befitting a poet; as, poetic talent, inspiration, period, or usage; the poetic tribe; also, being or in the capacity of, a poet; as, a poetic plowman; Herrick's poetic loves; rarely, feigned; fictitious.

2. Of, pertaining to, peculiar or proper to, or in the nature or manner of, poetry, often poetry as ideally conceived; as, in a poetic vein; poetic diction; that which is truly poetic, a poetic romance.

Prose, which is not only fervid, richly figured, poetic, as we say. Pater.

3. Dealing with or celebrated in poetry; as, poetic scenes, emotions; also, written or composed in verse; as, poetic stanzas, works.

4. Of a word or expression, peculiar to or characteristic of poetry or poetic prose which seeks exaltation above or remoteness from ordinary language (clime; Ind; yon).

po·et'ic, n. 1. A poet. Obs.

2. Usually po·et'ics (-ĭks). A treatise on poetry as an art; a theory of poetry; sometimes, specif., versification as a subject of study; as, Aristotle's Poetics or Poetic. See -ICS.

3. pl. Poetic composition, utterances, etc. Rare.

po·et'i·cal (pō·ĕt'ĭ·kăl), adj. 1. = POETIC, adj., 1 & 2.

2. Beyond or above the truth of history or nature; feigned; fictitious; idealized; also, of writers as well as writings, etc., fanciful; highly imaginative.

Thoughts may be over*poetical* for poetry. Browning.

3. Written in verse; as, the poetical works of Keats.

4. Adapted to poetry; as, themes that are not poetical.

po·et'i·cal'i·ty (pō·ĕt'ĭ·kăl'ĭ·tĭ), n. Poeticalness. Rare.

po·et'i·cal·ly, adv. of POETIC, POETICAL.

Po·et'ic Ed'da (ĕd'ȧ). See EDDA a.

po·et'i·cize (pō·ĕt'ĭ·sīz), v. i. To make poetic; put into poetry. — v. t. To compose or recite poetry.

poetic, or poetical, justice. The effective operation of justice with due punishing of vice and due reward of virtue; — so named by Thomas Rymer (1678) who held that the poet should observe the constant order or law of nature and of Providence.

poetic license. See LICENSE, n., 4.

po·et'i·co- (pō·ĕt'ĭ·kō-). A combining form for poetic, denoting poetical and, as in po·et'i·co-an'ti·quar'i·an, po·et'i·co-ar'chi·tec'tur·al, po·et'i·co-gro·tesque', po·et'i·co-mys'ti·cal, po·et'i·co-myth'o·log'i·cal, po·et'i·co-phil'o·soph'ic.

po·et'i·cule (pō·ĕt'ĭ·kūl), n. A poetaster.

po'et·i'to (pō'ĕt·ē'tō), n. A poetaster. Rare.

po'et·i·za'tion (pō'ĕt·ĭ·zā'shŭn; -ī·zā'shŭn; pō'ĕt-), n. Act or instance of poetizing.

po'et·ize (pō'ĕt·īz; pō'ĕt-), v.; -IZED (-īzd); -IZ'ING (-īz'ĭng). [F. poétiser.] Intransitive: To make or compose poetry; to write or speak in poetry or poetically; also, Obs., to feign; fable.

I versify the truth, not poetize. Daniel.

—, Transitive: 1. To tell or describe in poetry. Obs.

2. To make poetical; to give a poetic character to; as, to poetize the lives of the poor. "A dinner table poetized by flowers and a Salviati service." L. Merrick.

po'et·iz'er (pō'ĕt·īz'ẽr; pō'ĕt-), n. One who poetizes.

poet laureate; pl. POETS LAUREATE. 1. Orig., a poet worthy of bearing the Muses' crown of laurel; — in early use a title or designation applied to an eminent poet or conferred on one by a university, as on John Skelton by Oxford.

2. In England, a title given to a poet appointed by the sovereign to be a member of the royal household, his duty being to compose odes, etc., for court and national occasions. Ben Jonson was the first poet laureate, in that he performed this duty, but the first to bear the official title was Sir William D'Avenant (appointed 1638).

3. One popularly regarded by a locality or country as its most eminent poet.

po'et·ling, n. An immature or petty poet. Gosse.

po'et·ly, adj. Poetical. Rare.

po'e·to·ma'chi·a (pō'ē·tō·mā'kĭ·ȧ; -măk'ĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. Gr. poiētēs poet + machē battle.] A strife or contest of poets.

po'et·ry (pō'ĕt·rĭ; pō'ĭt-), n. [ME. poetrie, fr. OF. poëterie, poëtrie, fr. ML. poetria; cf. L. poetria a poetess, Gr. poiētria. See POET.] 1. A treatise on the poetic art; a poetics. Obs.

2. Obs. exc. Hist. a The creative power or act; creation.

All creation or passage of nonbeing into being is poetry or making. Jowett. (Plato.)

b Inventive or imaginative writing; literary imitation or creation; the representation, often, the idealized representation, of nature or history, esp. in verse; — disting. from history and philosophy. "The Platonic objection to the intervals between poetry and truth." Saintsbury.

3. The art or work of poets; the embodiment in appropriate language of beautiful or high thought, imagination, or emotion, the language being rhythmical, usually metrical, and characterized by harmonic and emotional qualities which appeal to and arouse the feelings and imagination; metrical composition; also, the production or productions of a poet or poets; poetical writings; poems collectively; verse; rhyme; as, dramatic poetry; lyric or Pindaric poetry. "The planetlike music of poetry." Sir P. Sidney.

For poetry is the blossom and the fragrance of all human knowledge, human thoughts, human passions, emotions, language. Coleridge.

4. pl. Pieces of poetry; poems. Rare.

5. Something poetical; poetical quality, spirit, etc.; as, the poetry in nature.

6. Aesthetics. That form of literature which is characteristically free in its imaginative and emotional range but restricted by its acceptance of a form of expression imposing the conditions of musical beauty, and which, though not bound down to the representation and rational interpretation of that which has happened or may happen in real life, must achieve a kind of truth that is appropriate to the poet's conception and results from integrity of treatment affecting both the details and the fundamental principles.

po'et's cas'sia (pō'ĕts; -ĭts). A fragrant European shrub Osyris alba (family Santalaceae) with stiff fleshy leaves, small flowers and drupaceous fruit.

Poetsch process (pûch). [After F. H. Poetsch, the inventor (1883).] Mining. A method of excavating in which soft water-bearing formations are first artificially frozen and then mined while still solid.

Po'ets' Cor'ner (pō'ĕts; pō'ĭts). An angle in the south transept of Westminster Abbey, London; — so called because it contains the tombs of Chaucer, Spenser, Dryden, Ben Jonson, Tennyson, Browning, Hardy, and other English poets, and memorials to many buried elsewhere.

poet's daffodil. Poet's narcissus.

poet's narcissus. A narcissus (Narcissus poeticus) with fragrant, chiefly white, flowers. See NARCISSUS, 3 a.

Poets' Poet. Spenser; — often so called.

pof'fle (pŏf'l), n. A small holding of land. Scot.

pog'a·mog'gan (pŏg'ȧ·mŏg'ăn), n. [Of Algonquian origin; cf. Ojibway pagmāgan club, Cree pakamāgan hammer, lit., what is used for striking. Cf. BAGATAWAY.] A club, used as a weapon or for ceremonial purposes; — among the Algonquian tribes of the Great Lakes, usually a flat curved club with a knobbed head; among the Plains Indians, a piece of stone fastened to the end of a slender handle.

Sioux Pogamoggan from South Dakota.

Pog'gen·dorff cell (pŏg'ĕn·dôrf). [After J. C. Poggendorff, Ger. physicist.] Elec. A form of bichromate cell.

Poggendorff illusion. Psychol. An apparent deflection of a straight line when it is interrupted by two lines parallel to each other.

pog'gy (pŏg'ĭ), n.; pl. POGGIES (-ĭz), sometimes POGGY See PLURAL, Note. A small whale, prob. a young bowhead pog'gy (pŏg'ĭ). Var. of PORGY.

Po'go (pō'gō), n. A trade-mark applied to a kind of single stilt, with a strong spring at the bottom and a raised step on each side of the pole. — po'go, v. i.

-po'gon (-pō'gŏn). [NL.] Bot. & Zool. A combining form from Greek pōgōn, meaning a beard, used chiefly in generic names as in Calo*pogon.*

Po'go·na'tum (pō'gō·nā'tŭm), n. [NL., fr. Gr. pōgōn beard.] Bot. A genus of erect acrocarpous mosses (family Polytrichaceae) in which the leaves have ventral lamellae. P. pennsylvanicum (syn. brevicaule) has a long, persisting protonema.

Po·go'ni·a (pō·gō'nĭ·ȧ; 159), n. [NL., fr. Gr. pōgōn beard.] Bot. a A small genus of terrestrial orchids of the North Temperate Zone. There are two American species, P. ophioglossoides, the snakemouth, and P. divaricata. They have slender rootstocks, one or two alternate leaves, and terminal solitary flowers with a crested lip. Some botanists extend the genus to include Isotria and Triphora. b [not cap.] A plant or flower of this genus.

po'go·ni'a·sis (pō'gō·nī'ȧ·sĭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. pōgōn beard.] Med. a Excessive growth of the beard in a man. b Growth of a beard in a woman.

po·go'ni·ate (pō·gō'nĭ·āt), adj. [Cf. Gr. pōgōniatēs bearded.] Bearded. Rare.

po·go'ni·on (pō·gō'nĭ·ŏn), n.; pl. POGONIA (-ȧ). [NL., fr. Gr. pōgōnion little beard.] Anthropom. The most projecting median point of the chin, on the anterior surface. See CRANIOMETRY, Illust.

pog'o·nip (pŏg'ō·nĭp), n. [Painte.] A dense winter fog containing frozen particles, formed in the deep valleys of the Sierra Nevadas. Western U. S.

po'gon i'ris (pō'gŏn). [Gr. pōgōn beard.] The bearded iris. See IRIS, n., 6 a.

po'go·nite (pō'gō·nīt), n. [Gr. pōgōn beard + 1st -ite, 4.] Petrog. Perlite.

po'go·nol'o·gy (pō'gō·nŏl'ō·jĭ), n. [Gr. pōgōn beard + -logy.] A treatise on beards. — po'go·no·log'i·cal (-nō·lŏj'ĭ·kăl), adj. — po'go·nol'o·gist (-nŏl'ō·jĭst), n.

po'go·not'o·my (-nŏt'ō·mĭ), n. [Gr. pōgōn, pōgonos, beard + -tomy.] Cutting of the beard; shaving. Humorous.

po'go·not'ro·phy (-rō·fĭ), n. [Gr. pōgōn beard + trophē nourishment.] Beard growing.

Po'gram, the Honorable Elijah (pō'grăm). In Dickens's Martin Chuzzlewit, a petty but pompous member of the United States Congress, regarded by his admirers as "one of the master minds of the country."

po·grom' (pō·grŏm'; pō'grŭm; pŏg'rŭm), n. [Russ., devastation.] An organized massacre of helpless people, usually with the connivance of officials; specif., such a massacre of the Jews, as orig. in Russia. — po·grom'ist (-ĭst), n. — po·grom'ize (-īz), v. t.

po·grom', v. t. To massacre in a pogrom.

po'gy (pō'gĭ; pŏg'ĭ), n.; pl. -GIES (-gĭz). [Prob. contr. fr. pauhaugen, of Algonquian origin, but perh. var. of PORGY.] Zool. a The menhaden. b A species of lake trout (Salmo kenshawi), esp. one found in Lake Tahoe. Pogy is often confounded with porgy, and therefore applied to various other fishes, as the spadefish.

poh (pō), interj. An exclamation expressing contempt; bah!

po'ha (pō'hä), n. [Hawaiian.] The Cape gooseberry Physalis peruviana; also, its berry, used in the Hawaiian Islands for jelly, etc.

po·hick'o·ry (pō·hĭk'ō·rĭ), n. [See HICKORY.] Hickory.

po·hu'tu·ka'wa (pō·hōō'tōō·kä'wä), n. [Maori.] a A New Zealand tree (Metrosideros tomentosa), with crimson flowers and leaves silvery below. Its bark yields a brown dye. b N. Z. A variety of the sweet potato.

Pohutukawa a. b Fruit. (½) po'i (pō'ē; poi), n. [Hawaiian.] A common article of food among the native Hawaiians. It is prepared from the taro root pounded to a paste and allowed to ferment. See TARO.

‖po'i (pō'ē; poi), adv. [It.] Music. Then; — used in directions.

Poic·tesme' (pwȧ·tĕz'm'; -tâm'), n. [Poictou (now written Poitou) + Angou*lesme* (now Angoulême, city), old provinces of France.] An imaginary country with the atmosphere of medieval southern France, the setting of certain novels of James Branch Cabell.

‖poi·e'sis (poi·ē'sĭs), n. [Gr. poiēsis.] Creation or making; the creative act or power.

-poi·e'sis (-poi·ē'sĭs). [NL.] A combining form, Greek -poiēsis, from poiēsis, meaning a making, used to denote production, formation, as in chylo*poiesis*, hemato*poiesis.* Cf. -GENESIS.

poi·et'ic (poi·ĕt'ĭk), adj. Creative; capable of originating; as, poietic men.

-poi·et'ic (-poi·ĕt'ĭk). A combining form, Greek -poietikos, from poiētikos, meaning making, used to denote productive, formative, -factive, as in cosmo*poietic*; — used chiefly in Med., as in galacto*poietic*, hemato*poietic.*

poi·gna'do (poi·nä'dō), n. A poniard. Archaic.

poign'ance (poin'yăns; -ăns), n. Poignancy.

poign'an·cy (poin'yăn·sĭ; -ăn·sĭ), n.; pl. -CIES (-sĭz). Quality or state of being poignant; a poignant instance; as, the poignancy of one's distress or wit or of a situation.

poign'ant (-yănt; -ănt), adj. [ME. poyna(u)nt, fr. OF. poignant, pres. part. of poindre to sting, fr. L. pungere. See PUNGENT.] 1. That pierces; pricking. Obs. "Poignant spear." Spenser.

2. As affecting a sense, one's feelings, etc., penetratingly sharp or keen; piercingly effective; acute, cutting; pungent; as, poignant sarcasm or delight; a poignant glance or perfume.

The Portrait of a Lady [by H. James], a rather poignant study of American cheek, freshness and vulgarity. John Macy.

3. By extension, moving; esp., painfully moving; affecting; touching; evoking pity, sorrow, etc.; as, a poignant scene, phrases, or instance.

She remained in his memory simply as the most plaintive and poignant of a line of ghosts. Edith Wharton.

Syn. — See PUNGENT. Ant. — Dull, dim, obscure, vague. — poign'ant·ly, adv.

poi·gnet' (poi·nyĕt'), n. [F., wrist.] 1. Bracelet or wrist ornament. Obs.

2. A hilt. Scott.

poi'ki·lit'ic (poi'kĭ·lĭt'ĭk), adj. [Gr. poikilos many-colored, variegated. See PAINT.] 1. Geol. Mottled; — formerly applied specif. to the series called the New Red Sandstone.

2. Petrog. Pertaining to or designating a fabric in igneous rocks in which a crystal of one mineral encloses smaller unoriented grains of another, producing luster mottling.

poi'ki·lo·blast' (poi'kĭ·lō·blăst'), n. [poikilo- + -blast.] Physiol. A nucleated poikilocyte.

poi'ki·lo·blas'tic (-blăs'tĭk), adj. Petrog. Designating a texture in a metamorphic rock in which small idioblasts of one constituent are enclosed in a larger crystal.

poi'ki·lo·cyte' (poi'kĭ·lō·sīt'), n. [poikilo- + Gr. kytos a hollow vessel.] Physiol. A red blood corpuscle of irregular form, occurring in severe anemia.

poi'ki·lo·cy·to'sis (-sī·tō'sĭs), n. [NL.] Med. A morbid condition in which poikilocytes appear in the blood.

poi'ki·lo·therm' (poi'kĭ·lō·thûrm'), n. [poikilo- + -therm.] Physiol. & Zool. A poikilothermic organism.

poi'ki·lo·ther'mic (-thûr'mĭk), adj. Also -ther'mal (-măl), -ther'mous (-mŭs). Physiol. & Zool. Having a variable body temperature usually slightly higher than the temperature of the environment; cold-blooded (which see). — poi'ki·lo·ther'mism (-mĭz'm), n.

poil (poil), n. [F.] A raw silk thread used as a core for tinsel.

---

po'e·si·less, adj. See -LESS.

‖po·e'ta na'sci·tur, non fit (pō·ē'tȧ nä'sĭ·tŭr). [L.] The poet is born, not made.

po'et·as'tress (pō'ĕt·ăs'trĕs; pō'·ĕt·ăs'-; -trĭs; 119), n. Fem. of POETASTER.

Poet at the Breakfast Table. The. See AUTOCRAT OF THE BREAKFAST TABLE.

po'et·craft', n. See -CRAFT.

po'et·dom (pō'ĕt·dŭm), n. See -DOM. Rare.

po'et·hood, n. See -HOOD.

po·et'i·cal·ness, n. See -NESS.

po·et'i·cism (pō·ĕt'ĭ·sĭz'm), n. See -ISM.

po·et'ic·ness, n. See -NESS. R.

po·et'ics, n. pl. a = POETIC, n., 2; — construed as sing. b See POETIC, n., 3.

poetique. † POETIC. [-SHIP.]

po'et·lau're·ate·ship', n. See po'et·less, adj. See -LESS.

po'et·like', adj. See -LIKE.

po'et·ress, n. Poetess. Obs.

po'et·ry·less, adj. See -LESS.

po'et·ry·proof' (66), adj. See -PROOF.

po'et·ship, n. See -SHIP.

po'et·wise', adv. See -WISE.

poff. Var. of PUFF. Now Dial.

pogge (pŏg), n. See SEA POACHER.

po'gie. Var. of POGY.

Po·la'na (pō·yȧ'nȧ), n. [NL., fr. Fernando Po, where found.] See LINSANO. [POECILE.]

Poi'ci·le (poi'sĭ·lē). Var. of poi'ci·lit'ic. Var. of POIKILITIC.

poign'ard (poin'yẽrd). Var. of PONIARD.

poik. Scot. var. of POKE, a bag.

Poi'ki·le, poi'ki·lo-. Vars. of POECILE, POECILO-.

poi'ki·lo·cy·the'mi·a, -cy·thae'mi·a (-sĭ·thē'mĭ·ȧ), n. [NL. See POIKILOCYTE; -EMIA.] = POIKILOCYTOSIS.

---

poi'lu' (pwä'lü'; pwä'lōō), n. [F., lit., hairy, hence, physical man, (Balzac) intrepid, fr. poil hair, fr. L. pilus; — as slang in the World War perh. suggested by the uncut hair and beards of men at the front. See PILE hair.] Strictly, a first-line French soldier of the World War; loosely, any French private soldier; the French soldier.

poi·men'ic (poi·mĕn'ĭk), adj. [Gr. poimenikos pertaining to a shepherd, fr. poimēn shepherd.] Theol. Of or pertaining to pastoral care; as, poimenic literature.

poi·men'ics (-ĭks), n. Also poi·men'ic (-ĭk). Pastoral theology. See -ICS.

poi·na'do (poi·nä'dō), poi'nard (poi'nĕrd). Vars. of POIGNADO, POINIARD.

Poi'nae (poi'nē), n. pl. [Gr. Poinai.] Gr. Myth. Goddesses or spirits of vengeance. They were personifications created by poets rather than genuine objects of worship.

Poin'ci·an'a (poin'sĭ·ăn'ä; pwŏn'-; pŏn'-), n. [NL., after M. de Poinci, a governor of the French West Indies.] 1. Bot. A small genus of ornamental tropical trees or shrubs of the senna family (Caesalpiniaceae), having bright-orange or red flowers. P. pulcherrima is the Barbados pride. 2. [not cap.] The royal poinciana or peacock flower.

poind (poind; Scot. also pünd; pĭnd), v. t. [AS. pyndan to pen up. See PIND.] Scot. a To distrain. b To impound, as cattle. — poind'a·ble (poin'dä·b'l; Scot. also pün'-, pĭn'-), adj. Scot.

poind, n. Distraint. Scot.

poind'er (poin'dĕr; Scot. also pün'dĕr, pĭn'-), n. One who poinds property; a poundkeeper. Scot.

poind'ing, n. Scots Law. The process by which a creditor seizes his debtor's property so as to become vested with the title and the right of sale or appropriation in satisfaction of his debt.

Poins (poinz), n. A companion of Falstaff and Prince Hal in the two parts of Shakespeare's King Henry IV.

Poin·set'ti·a (poin·sĕt'ĭ·ä), n. [NL., after Joel R. Poinsett (1779–1851), of South Carolina.] Bot. a A genus of chiefly tropical American herbs or woody plants of the spurge family (Euphorbiaceae), having alternate leaves, and cymose inconspicuous green flowers, subtended by bright-colored involucral leaves. Several are cultivated for ornament, esp. the Mexican Poinsettia pulcherrima, with deep-green foliage and a scarlet involucre, and P. heterophylla, a smaller similar annual species of the southern United States. b [not cap.] A plant or flower of this genus.

point (point), n. [ME. point, pointe, fr. OF. point a prick, dot, mark made by a pointed object, place, moment (fr. L. punctum, fr. pungere), and fr. OF. pointe a sharp point, a pointed object, fr. LL. puncta, fr. L. pungere, punctum, to prick. See PUNGENT; cf. APPOINT, PUNCTILIO, PUNCTUAL, PUNCTURE.] 1. The tapering end of anything pointed, as of a needle, pin, sword, pencil; the tip of anything tapering or ending in an angle; tip; as, the point of the tongue, a finger, tow, rivet, boat, pickax, fleece of wool. Specif.: a The tapering end of a tract of land, as a small tapering promontory or cape; also, a peak. b pl. Of a horse, the extremities.

2. Hence, anything having a tapering end; as: a A piercing weapon or instrument, as a dagger, bodkin, etching needle. b = SPRIG, n., 5 b. c Hist. A polished diamond of the rectangular-pyramidal shape in vogue in the Renaissance and adapted to writing on glass. d In dentistry, a piece of gutta-percha, gold, etc., for filling root canals. e = 3d PEN, 4 a.

3. A separate or individual part; a particular; item; detail; circumstance; as, the point to emphasize; specif.: a A particular or detail taken as a unit of appraisal or estimation; as, his sense of honor is a point in his favor. b Colloq. An item of private information; a tip; hint; pointer. c A physical characteristic of an animal, esp. one used as a standard in judging its breeding.

4. Hence, of immaterial things, the most prominent or important feature, as of an argument, discourse, etc.; the telling part; as, the point of a story; the point of a joke; also, the quality in something said or written, or in a person, adapted by its importance or significance to arrest attention; a distinctive or salient feature; a strong or main characteristic; as, his remarks have point; the good or bad points of a man; hence, the essential matter; the precise thing; — with the. "Here lies the point." Shak.

5. A unit, as: a A unit of counting in the scoring of a game, contest, or test. b In betting, a recognized unit in stating the odds. c See MEASURE, Table. d In Australia, a unit in measuring rainfall, the hundredth of an inch.

6. A place having definite position but no extent in space; a place considered as to its position only; a spot; a geographical place or situation; a locality; as, a good point from which to start.

7. A degree or stage of condition; state, as of body or health; condition; plight. Archaic. Cf. EMBONPOINT.

A lord full fat and in good point. Chaucer.

8. A position or thing aimed at or striven for; end; object; esp., a proposition to be established; as, to carry or make one's point. Also, direction; aim; course.

9. A position or condition attained; a degree; step; stage; as, a point of elevation; boiling point; freezing point. Specif.: a Rare. A crisis or juncture in affairs; exact moment for doing something; as, when it came to the point, he backed down. b A time or portion of time considered only as to its position in time; the exact time of occurring; moment or instant of an action taking place; as, the point, i. e., break, of day; the point of death. c Culmination; acme. d End; conclusion; period. e A mental position or stand; decision; resolution

10. A dot used in writing or printing. Specif.: One of the raised dots used in certain systems of printing and writing for the blind. See BRAILLE.

11. Act of pointing, as of the foot downward in certain dance positions.

12. Obs. a A minute part; a particle; whit; jot; bit; trifle; hence, a punctilio; scruple. b A moment; an instant. c In medieval reckoning, a quarter of an hour. d The twelfth part of anything, as of either straight side of a quadrant. e A square of a chessboard; as, the four points, the four center squares. f An accusation; also, an examination or trial.

13. Angling. A short length of silkworm gut, used to attach an artificial fly to a leader.

14. Arch. Degree of pointedness.

15. Archaeol. A flint implement of the old Stone Age, in the form of a blunt dart, pointed at one end and oval or flat at the other.

16. Astron. a Obs. A twelfth or twenty-fourth of the diameter of the sun or moon, used as a unit in measuring eclipses. b A fixed conventional place for reference, or zero of reckoning; as, equinoctial, solstitial, or nodal points. c = DIGIT, n., 3.

17. Chem. In analysis, one hundredth of one per cent.

18. Costume. A tie or string ending with an aglet and used in the 16th and 17th centuries to join parts of a costume, as doublet and hose.

19. Educ. A unit of academic credit.

20. Elec. a Either of two platinum or tungsten pieces of a distributor, one being on the movable contact arm of the circuit breaker, the other stationary, through which the circuit is made or broken. b The luminous end of a carbon in an arc.

21. Embroidery. Any stitch used in canvas work; also, canvas work; — called also needle point.

22. Exchanges. A recognized unit in quoting prices of stocks, shares, and various commodities, varying with the commodity. In stocks, in the United States, one point ordinarily means $1 a share.

23. Falconry. The perpendicular rising of a hawk over the place where its prey has gone into cover; as, to make a point, to indicate the quarry by rising directly over the cover; — said of a hawk.

24. Fencing. A thrust or lunge; as, tierce point.

25. Games & Sports. a In various games, a position of a certain player, or, by extension, the player himself. b Archery. (1) A pile; also, the sharpened end of a stele. (2) A count of one for most hits or best score under given conditions. (3) = WING, n., 12 b. c Backgammon. One of the tapered spaces on a backgammon board. d pl. Baseball. The positions of the pitcher and catcher. e pl. Bowling. A variety of the game of bowls in which points are scored to each competitor for skill in drawing, guarding, trailing, and driving, a maximum of 3 points being scored for each of 32 shots. f Boxing. The tip of the chin. g Cricket. See 2d CRICKET, 1. h Croquet. The running of an arch or a stake in the proper order of play. i Lacrosse. The position of the player of either side who is stationed nearest to his own goal keeper; also, a player in this position. j Piquet. The suit having the greatest pip value shown, the player holding it scoring according to its length.

26. Glovemaking. One of the three lines of stitching or creasing on the back of a glove.

27. Her. a One of the several different parts of the escutcheon (which see). b Obs. A pile-shaped charge, usually in the base of a shield, used as an abatement. c Obs. Any of the pendants of a label.

28. Hunting. a The attitude assumed by a pointer or setter dog when he finds game. b Colloq. A spot to which a straight run is made; hence, a straight run from point to point; a cross-country run.

29. Lacemaking. a Strictly, needle-point lace (see NEEDLE-POINT, adj., 2); lace made with the needle; as, Venetian point; Brussels point. b Loosely, any handmade lace; as, Milan point. c Obs. A piece of point lace used as a head covering, etc. d Any of a series of needles for taking up the twist and crosses or intersections in the net. See POINT BAR a.

30. Mach. The shaped end of a leaf of a leaf spring.

31. Math. a An undefined geometric element concerning which it is postulated that at least two exist and that two suffice to determine a line. b A number either real or complex conceived as represented by a point in the plane of the complex variable. c Any element in an aggregate of n dimensions conceived as determined by an ordered set of n values or co-ordinates. Cf. MULTIPLE POINT.

32. Med. A vaccine point.

33. Mil. a A small group of men thrown out before an advance guard (which see) or behind a rear guard on the march. b Obs. Mil. & Nav. A wing.

34. Mining. A pointed drivepipe through which steam or water is introduced into frozen gravel to thaw it for mining or dredging.

35. Music. a A note in medieval music; a punctus. b A dot or mark in medieval music designating increase in note values; — more fully, point of addition, augmentation, or perfection. c A dot or mark designating a certain rhythm or style of rendering. See 2d DOT, 4. d (1) A short strain, phrase, or tune; a signal consisting of such. "A point of war." Scott. (2) A phrase or passage of imitation in a piece of contrapuntal music; also, the entry of a fugue subject, or of a similar important part. e The head of a stringed-instrument bow as distinguished from its heel.

36. Naut. a One of 32 points of the compass (see POINTS OF THE COMPASS); also, the difference, of 11¼ degrees, between two points of the compass; as, to fall off a point. b A reef point.

37. Paper Mfg. A unit of thickness equal to 1/1000 inch.

38. Philol. In the writing of languages using Semitic alphabets, any of several supplementary signs or marks; specif., in the Hebrew, Syriac, and Arabic alphabets, any one of the signs used to indicate the vowels; in the Hebrew, a sign used to indicate variation or doubling of a consonant (see DAGHESH) or to mark stress accent; in the Arabic, Syriac, Persian, and Turkish, a sign, called a diacritical point, used to differentiate letters similar in form.

39. Print. a A short steel pin fixed on the tympan of a handpress, to perforate the sheet and so aid in registering succeeding impressions. b A piece of steel placed in the furniture of a form to mark the sheet at a certain place, as a guide for folding. c A short sharp piece of serrated steel, fastened to the furniture or a metal base in a form, for slitting the sheet, so that it can be registered on corresponding slits of a folding machine. d See POINT SYSTEM, 3; TYPE.

40. Punctuation. A mark used to show the divisions of a composition, or the pauses to be observed in reading, or to point off groups of figures, etc.; a stop, as a comma, colon, or, esp., a period.

And there a point, for ended is my tale. Chaucer.

41. Railroads. a A point rail. b Brit. A switch. c The tip of the angle between two rails in a frog. See FROG, n., 14, Illust.

42. Stonecutting. A tool with a pyramidal point, used to smooth down rough surfaces.

43. Type Founding. See POINT SYSTEM, 3.

44. Venery. A tine or snag of an antler.

— at all points. See under ALL, adj. — at point. a Obs. Fitly; properly. b Obs. Also at a point. Ready; prepared. c Archaic. With to, ready or about to; on the point or verge of. Also at the point to or of.

You are at point to lose your liberties. Shak.

d Obs. Also at a point. Agreed; decided; resolved. e Also at all points. In every part or respect. — at the point of the sword. Under force or compulsion. — beside the point. Aside from the point aimed at; irrelevant or irrelevantly. — from point to point. From one detail to another; in detail; circumstantially. Now Rare. — in point. a Obs. In condition or order. b Her. Meeting at their points; — said of two piles. c Pertinent; to the point; aptly illustrating; as, a case in point. — in point of. In the matter of; as regards. — in point of, to, or for. = at point c, above. Obs. — in point of fact. In fact. "In point of fact, he was nearly fifty." M. Deland. — on, or upon, the point of (Obs. to). On the verge of; just about to; formerly, close to; nearly. — to point. a Obs. Into condition or order. b Archaic. To the minutest detail; exactly. — to the point. a Pertinent; relevant; as, evidence that is not to the point. b Concentrated on the salient point or points; concise and apposite; as, a speech that was to the point. — upon point. Obs. a In danger; on penalty. b In fact or reality. — upon the point of. See on the point of, above.

-point (-point). A combining form of the noun point, sometimes written separately, as in:

bar point	eyepoint	snap point
blowpoint	gauge point	spear point
blue point	needle point	standpoint change point	organ point	strong point counterpoint	pen point	turning point crosspoint	plowpoint	vantage point
decimal point	reef point	viewpoint
diamond point	sight point	vowel point point (point), v.; POINT'ED; POINT'ING. [ME. pointen, fr. OF. pointer. See POINT, n.] Transitive: 1. a Obs. To pierce or prick with something sharp-pointed; to puncture. b To work on with a sharpened tool; specif., to cut or work on, as a surface in stonecutting, with a "point."

2. To furnish with a point or points; to cause to have an acute end; as, to point a dart; also, to give point, force, or piquancy to, as to a remark; to make piquant or poignant, as, formerly, food. "To point a moral." Johnson.

3. To indicate the position or direction of, as with the finger; to direct attention or notice to; to give prominence to; to indicate; — esp. with out; as, the error was pointed out.

It was easy for Zebek-Dorchi to point the jealousy of the Russian court to others. De Quincey.

4. To direct (at, to, or upon); to aim; to turn, as the eyes upon something; as, to point a gun; to point the finger of scorn at a person; to point a tree in felling it.

5. a Obs. To mark with pricks or dots; to note; describe. b Obs. To fasten or adorn with points, or tagged laces. c To mark or divide into periods or groups, or to separate, by points or dots, as figures, or esp. the decimal fraction from the integral part; — with off.

6. Backgammon, etc. To place (a man) on a point.

7. Furriery. To insert white hairs into (certain furs, as beaver, fox, or lynx).

8. Glovemaking. To stitch or crease points on (a glove).

9. Hort. To prick, dig, or turn (in or over) with the point of the spade; as, to point in manure.

10. Hunting. To indicate the presence and place of (game) by a fixed look and position; — said of setters or pointers.

11. Masonry. a To finish (a wall) by filling the joints with cement, mortar, or other material after the wall is built. b More usually, to scratch out the old mortar from the joints of (a wall) and fill in with new material.

12. Mining. a To indicate the direction in which a drill hole is to be driven. b To direct operations for starting a drill hole or to start a hole so that a desired direction is attained.

13. Philol. To mark (as in the Hebrew, Syriac, and Arabic alphabets) with vowel points; to insert the vowel points in.

14. Punctuation. To supply with or as with punctuation marks; to put the proper indications of division or character in (something said, read, chanted, or the like); to punctuate; as, to point a composition. Specif., to mark, as a psalm or canticle, with points as an aid in chanting; hence, to arrange the words of (a psalm, canticle, etc.) to the notes of the chant.

15. Sculp. To locate in a block of marble or like material certain essential or selected points of (a piece of statuary). See POINTING, verbal n., 9.

16. Stonecutting. To dress (a stone) with a point.

—, Intransitive: 1. To direct the point of something, as of a finger, to designate an object, or attract attention to it; to direct attention thus, as in scorn or contempt; also, to direct the mind; hint (at); allude (to); — with at or to.

Point at the tattered coat and ragged shoe. Dryden.

2. To indicate the presence and place of game by a fixed look and position, as certain hunting dogs do.

3. To be situated with the point (to or toward); to be directed; to face or look; also, to aim; tend; as, the church points to the east; his action pointed towards that result.

4. To project or run in a point. Now Rare.

5. Med. To come to a head, or to be on the point of opening; — said of an abscess.

6. Naut. Of a sailing vessel, to sail more or less close to the wind; as, she points higher with jib set.

point a cable or rope. Naut. To taper and neatly finish off the end by interweaving the nettles.

point a sail. Naut. To insert reef points through the eyelet holes.

point a toe. To rest a forefoot, as on the toe, or hold a forefoot forward to remove the weight of the body from it; — said of a horse, as one affected with navicular disease.

point the yards (of a vessel), Naut. To brace the yards up sharp so as to offer less resistance to the wind.

point up. a Colloq. To give added saliency or emphasis to, as a speech or the like. b = POINT, v. t., 11.

‖point (pwăn), n. [F.] 1. Point.

2. a In embroidery and lace making, a stitch. b = POINT (lace); as, point de Milan, etc.

point (point), adj. Phonet. = DENTAL, adj., 2.

point, adj. Point-device; complete. B. Jonson.

point, adv. Point-blank; directly. Richardson.

point, v. t. [Shortened fr. appoint.] Obs. a To fix; settle on; decree; name; appoint. b To furnish; equip.

point'a·ble (poin'tä·b'l), adj. See -ABLE.

point'age (poin'tĭj), n. [See -AGE a.] Points collectively.

poin'tal (poin'tăl; -t'l). Var. of POINTEL.

‖point' à l'ai'guille' (pwăn'-tà lā'gwē'y'). [F.] Needle-point lace, esp. Brussels and Alençon.

point alphabet. An alphabet for the blind with a system of raised points corresponding to letters. See 1st POINT, 10.

‖point' ap'pli'qué' (pwăn'-tà'plē'kā'). [F.] Lace with handmade patterns, either bobbin or needle-point, applied to a continuous net ground, which may be handmade but is usually machine-made.

‖point' à ré'seau' (pwăn'-tà rā'zō'). [F.] Point lace with a net ground.

point at infinity. Geom. An ideal point; in affine geometry, an intersection of parallel lines; in inversive geometry, the point corresponding to $z = 0$ in the involutory correspondence $z'z = 1$. See INFINITY, 4 b.

point bar. a The iron bar in a lace machine to which the points are secured. b One of the needles governing the warp threads in a Jacquard apparatus.

point'-blank', adv. [Prob. fr. OF. de pointe en blanc directly, straight, or without obstacles in the way. The word blanc prob. at first referred to the white of the target. See POINT, n.; BLANK, adj.] In a point-blank manner.

To sin point-blank against God's word. Fuller.

point'-blank' (66), adj. 1. Aimed directly toward the mark; specif., in gunnery, not having, or not allowing for, appreciable curve in the trajectory; as, a point-blank shot.

2. Direct; unqualified; blunt; as, a point-blank refusal.

point'-blank' (66), n. [See POINT-BLANK, adv.] Gun. a A point in the trajectory near which it begins to fall rapidly. As a limit of the distance through which the trajectory is nearly a straight line, it was formerly used as a crude indication of the power, now measured by muzzle velocity. For firearms in general it is considered to be the second point in which the lowest or natural line of sight, when horizontal, cuts the trajectory. In the British service, for artillery, it is the point where the projectile first strikes the horizontal plane on which the gun carriage stands, the axis of the piece being horizontal. b The point-blank range or distance; figuratively, range; reach. c Now Rare. A point-blank shot.

point'-blank', v. t. To aim or fire point-blank. Rare.

point-blank distance or range. Gun. The distance through which the trajectory may be assumed to be practically a straight line. See POINT-BLANK, n., a.

point chisel. See STONECUTTER'S CHISEL.

point constable. = POINT POLICEMAN. Eng.

point co-ordinate. Any of a system of magnitudes that determine the position of a point or points.

‖point' d'A'len'çon' (pwăN' dȧ'lăn'sôN'). [F.] = ALENÇON LACE.

‖point' d'An'gle-terre' (dăN'glĕ-târ'). [F.] A kind of lace in which bobbin-made motives are united by bobbin-made hexagonal meshes of various sizes, or, frequently, by bobbin-made brides. Sometimes fine needle-point filings are used. Called also Angleterre lace.

‖point' d'ap'pui' (pwăN' dȧ'pwē'). [F.] Point of support; basis; fulcrum; specif., Mil., a basis of operations.

‖point' d'Ar'gen'tan' (dȧr'zhăN'tăN'). [F.] = ARGENTAN LACE.

‖point' d'Au'ril'lac' (dŏ'rē'yȧk'). [F.] = AURILLAC LACE.

‖point' de dé'part' (dĕ dȧ'pȧr'). [F.] Literally, point of departure; place or position from which to proceed or digress.

‖point' de France' (dĕ frăNs'). [F.] Literally, French point; French lace of the time of Louis XIV, esp. Alençon and Argentan lace.

‖point' de gaze' (dĕ gȧz'). [F.] Literally, gauze point; hence, a fine modern needle-point lace, made chiefly in Brussels, having a delicate net ground composed of looped meshes and ornamented with naturalistic floral patterns.

‖point' de Gênes' (pwăN' dĕ zhȧn'). [F.] = GENOA LACE.

‖point' de Mi'lan' (mē'lăN'). [F.] = MILAN POINT.

‖point' de rac'croc' (rȧ'krō'). [F.] = RACCROC STITCH.

‖point' de re-père' (rē-pȧr'). [F.] A mark that serves in retracing one's steps or repeating a process.

‖point' d'Es'pagne' (dĕs'pȧn'yȧ'). [F.] = SPANISH LACE.

point' d'es'prit' (pwăN' dĕs'prē'). [F.] A fine cotton net with a woven square dot, used esp. for dresses.

point'-de-vice' (point'dē-vīs'), adj. Also point'-de-vise', point'-de-vyse', etc. [ME. at point devis, fr. at at + point point, condition + devis exact, careful, OF. devis fixed, set, fr. L. divisus, past part. See POINT; DEVICE.] 1. Perfectly correct; very nice, exact, precise, or particular. Archaic.

2. Dressed, equipped, or constructed to perfection; faultless in appearance. "Handsome, high-mannered, and sparkingly point-device." Tarkington.

point'-de-vice', adv. Perfectly; completely. Archaic.

point'-de-vice', n. Point of perfection; extreme of nicety or correctness; — used in the phrase at point-device. Obs.

point draftsman or draughtsman (point). An engraver.

point' du'chesse' (pwăN' dü'shĕs'). = DUCHESSE LACE.

point duty (point). The duty of a police constable stationed at a particular point, as a street corner or crossing, to regulate traffic.

point'ed (poin'tĕd; -tĭd; 119), adj. 1. Having, furnished with, or marked by, a point or points; as, pointed weapons. Specif.: a Archaic. Fastened with or wearing points, or point-tags. b Piercing; stinging; poignant. "The air was raw and pointed." Stevenson.

2. Directed to a point or end. Specif.: a To the point; pertinent; terse. b Aimed at a particular person or persons; hence, very noticeable; conspicuous; marked.

To retire . . . would seem too offensively pointed, might occasion comment. Adam Huxley.

c Rare. Definite; punctilious. d Significant; purposeful. "Our adult education has been 'pointed' — that is, missionary." Time.

Syn. — Pertinent. Cf. CONCISE.

Ant. — Pointless, irrelevant, jejune.

— point'ed-ly, adv. — point'ed-ness, n.

point'ed, adj. Appointed.

pointed arch. Arch. An arch with a pointed crown. An ordinary two-centered pointed arch is lancet (acute), equilateral, or blunt, according as chords of its curves are greater than, equal to, or less than, its span. See ARCH, Illust. (5), (6), (7), (12). Pointed arches became characteristic of Gothic architecture.

pointed file. See 4th FILE, 1.

pointed fox. Furriery. Red fox dyed and pointed to imitate silver fox (which see). See 2d POINT, v. t., 7.

point'ed-ly, adv. Emphatically; quite. "I'm pointedly shamed." Dial., U. S. Maristan Chapman.

pointed style. Arch. The style characterized by the pointed arch; — commonly called Gothic style.

pointed wart. See FIG WART.

poin'tel (poin'tĕl; -t'l), poin'tal (-tăl; -t'l), n. [ME. pointel stylus, fr. OF. pointel tip of a lance.] Obs. 1. A small pointed instrument; specif.: a A kind of pencil, stylus, or graving tool used esp. with the tablets of the Middle Ages. b A plectrum. c A stiletto.

2. Bot. & Zool. A small stylelike organ or part, as the pistil of a flower, or the halter of a fly. Obs.

3. Glass Mfg. = PUNTY.

poin'er (poin'ĕr), n. 1. A maker of points, or tagged laces. Obs.

2. a One whose work is pointing, as furs, gloves, marble, etc. b One whose work is pointing a (specified) thing, as in:

brick pointer	needle pointer	stucco pointer drill pointer	spindle pointer	thermometer pointer

3. One who or that which points out; specif.: a One that points or indicates, as a rod used to direct attention to something, the hand of a timepiece, an index on a balance, etc. b Short for STATION POINTER. c One who points, or aims, a gun; specif., in the United States Navy, one who brings the gun to the prescribed elevation, as distinguished from the trainer, who regulates its direction, or train, in azimuth. d A large gun dog of a breed originating in Spain at an uncertain date. It hunts by scent, and is lean and smooth-haired. There are various combinations of colors, the background being usually white, and the spots and patches orange, liver, black, lemon, etc. It has a long, wide skull, prominent eyebrows and stop, broad nose and wide nostrils, and soft, long ears lying close to the cheeks. The back is strong, and the tail moderately long and tapered. It weighs from 45 to 55 pounds. Cf. GERMAN SHORT-HAIRED POINTER. e Colloq., U. S. An item of private information; a hint; tip; point.

Pointer. (1/36)

4. A pointed object; as: a A stonecutter's or sculptor's point. b A bricklayer's tool for clearing out old mortar in pointing a wall. c U. S. A clipper sled.

5. pl. [cap.] Astron. a The two stars (Mirak and Dubhe) in the Great Bear, the line joining which points nearly in the direction of the North Star. See URSA MAJOR, Illust. b Less frequently, the two stars, Alpha (α) and Gamma (γ) Crucis, a line through which points to the south celestial pole.

6. Hunting. A stag whose horns have a certain (specified) number of points; — used in combinations; as, a ten-pointer. See 1st POINT, 44.

7. Railroads. A switch lever.

8. Shipbuilding. A snakepiece.

9. Whaling. A device, consisting of a black object on the end of a pole, placed at the masthead to indicate the position of the whale.

point'-e-vent', n. An ultimate element in reality, conceived as a continuum of events. See EVENT, n., 6.

point fuse. See FUSE, n., 1.

point gaze. = POINT DE GAZE.

point handle. Railroads. A switch lever.

point hole. Print. A hole punched through the outer packing on a cylinder press to aid in applying the make-ready sheets.

-poin'tic (-poin'tĭk), adj. Math. A combining form from the noun point (see -IC), used to denote having or pertaining to (so many) points, as in two-pointic, n-pointic.

‖poin'til'lé' (pwăN'tē'yȧ'), adj. [F.] Marked with small points, spots, or dots; made by drawing, cutting, or punching points.

poin'til-lism (pwăN'tĭ-lĭz'm), n. [F. pointillisme.] Painting. A form of divisionism in which the colors are applied in dots on a white ground and according to a more severely systematic plan than in other forms of divisionism. See NEOIMPRESSIONISM. — poin'til-list (-lĭst), n.

point'ing (poin'tĭng), adj. That points. — point'ing-ly, adv.

point'ing (poin'tĭng), verbal n. of POINT. Specif.: 1. Act of one who or that which points, or the result of such action; specif.: a Act or art of pointing, or punctuating; punctuation. b Giving or noting of points, or distinctive features. c Act of indicating or designating, as a position or direction, by something pointed, as a finger or a rod; also, an intimation or hint, esp. a verbal one. d The rubbing off of the point of the wheat grain in the first process of high milling.

2. pl. Engin. = POINTING SILLS.

3. Manège. A stride, esp. characteristic of the Thoroughbred horse, in which extension is emphasized rather than flexion.

4. Masonry. Act of filling and finishing the joints with mortar, cement, etc.; also, the material so used.

5. Med. Of an abscess, a coming to a head; also, the head.

6. Naut. a Of a rope, tapering and finishing off at the end; also, the tapered end. b Of a vessel, indicating her course, usually when on the wind.

7. Philol. In the writing of languages which use Semitic alphabets, the insertion of the vowel, diacritical, or other points.

8. Railroads. Arrangement of the points, or switches. Eng.

9. Sculp. Act or process of measuring, at the various distances from the surface of a block of marble, the surface of a future piece of statuary; also, a process used in cutting the statue from the artist's model.

Apparatus for pointing (def. 9). a Standard; Crossbar b has two adjustable Stocks, c, d with points set to fit in small socket plates fixed in the model, as at e, the Upper Bar f being likewise set at g. Three socket plates are fixed at corresponding points of the stone to be cut. The Middle Bar h carries a Pointer i, which, when c, d, and f are in position, is adjusted to any other point of the model, as k. The apparatus is then applied to the stone, c, d with points set to fit in small socket plates fixed in the model, as at e, the Upper Bar f being likewise set at g. Three socket plates are fixed at corresponding points of the stone to be cut. The Middle Bar h carries a Pointer i, which, when c, d, and f are in position, is adjusted to any other point of the model, as k. The apparatus is then applied to the stone, c, d, and f being held up to their socket plates, and the stone being then cut away at the point corresponding to k until c, d, and f all bed home in their sockets. Other points are similarly located.

pointing bone. Among Australian aborigines, a bone, often a human armbone, believed to have a malefic influence on those at whom it is pointed; — called also death bone.

pointing chisel. = 1st POINT, 42.

pointing doors. Sluice doors meeting at an angle.

pointing mark. = POINTING STOCK. Kyd.

pointing sills. The sills of pointing doors.

point'ing-stock' (poin'tĭng-stŏk'), n. An object of ridicule or scorn; a laughingstock. Obs. Shak.

pointing tool. Turning. A tool with a flat, V-shaped end.

point lace (point). Needle-point lace. See NEEDLE-POINT, adj., 2. — point'-laced' (point'lāst'; 66), adj.

point'less (point'lĕs; -lĭs; 119), adj. Without a point; specif.: a Having no sharp end; blunt. b Wanting point, keenness, effectiveness, or meaning, as a remark. c Not distinctive in features.

Syn. — Dull, stupid, insipid, witless, inane, vapid, silly.

— point'less-ly, adv. — point'less-ness, n.

point'let (-lĕt; -lĭt; 119), n. A minute point.

point'let-ed (point'lĕt-ĕd; -lĭt-ĭd; 119), adj. Apiculate.

point'mak'er (-māk'ĕr), n. A maker of points, or point-tags. Hist. — point'mak'ing (-ĭng), adj. & n.

point'ment (point'mĕnt), n. Appointment. Obs. exc. Dial.

point of addition, augmentation, or perfection. See 1st POINT, 35 b.

point of condensation (of a point set). Math. = LIMITING POINT, 1 a. See AGGREGATE, n., 5.

point of contraflexure. Arch. & Engin. = INFLECTION POINT.

point of contrary flexure. Math. See INFLECTION, n., 5.

point of departure. A starting point, esp. in a discussion; often, a preliminary assumption or point of view; as, his point of departure is not clear.

point of distance. See PERSPECTIVE, n., 2.

point of honor. A matter seriously affecting one's honor or an obligation connected with such; as, to regard one's good name or its vindication as a point of honor; specif., Hist., = CODE OF HONOR.

point of impact. Mil. The point at which the projectile first strikes the ground or other material object.

point of inflection. a Math. See INFLECTION, n., 5. b Arch. & Engin. = INFLECTION POINT.

point of interrogation. An interrogation point.

point of order. In parliamentary practice, a question of order or propriety under the rules.

point of ramification. Math. A branch point.

point of regard. = FIXATION POINT.

point of rest. Mil. The point at which a successive formation begins, marked by the right or left file of the unit first aligned in the new formation.

point of sight. See PERSPECTIVE, n., 2.

point of undulation. Math. A point of a curve where the tangent passes through four consecutive points.

point of view. a Relative position or angle from which a thing is seen, a question considered, etc.; as, humorous only from a stranger's point of view. b A characteristic mental outlook or bias; as, differences in racial points of view. c A partisan opinion or belief; a distinctive intellectual position; as, hatred of other points of view; a carefully reasoned point of view.

point'-on', adv. With the point forward.

point paper. Paper pricked to form a stencil.

‖point' plat' (pwăN' plȧ'). [F.] = FLAT POINT LACE b.

‖point' plat' ap'pli'qué' (ȧ'plĭ'kā'). [F.] Lace with bobbin-made patterns applied to a continuous net ground.

point policeman (point). A police constable on point duty. Eng.

point rail. A tapering rail. Cf. FROG, n., 14, Illust.

point'-ring' sight. Firearms. A ring with equidistant projections toward the center from the rim, used for a front sight.

point rot. = BLOSSOM-END ROT (of the tomato).

point salient. = SALIENT POINT d.

point set. Math. An aggregate of ordered sets of numbers, $x = (x_1, x_2, \ldots x_n)$, such that any two points x and y of the aggregate have a distance $x\,y$ obeying the axioms (a) $xx = 0$; (b) $xy = yx$ $(x \neq y)$; (c) $xy + yz \geq xz$; — called also metric space.

point'-set', adj. Type Founding. Having a width that is a multiple or a fraction of a typographic point; — said of type. Cf. UNIT-SET.

points'man (points'măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). Eng. a Mining, etc. A switchman. b A policeman on point duty. c A flanker (sense c).

points of the compass. The thirty-two points of division in the compass card; the corresponding points by which the circle of the horizon is supposed to be divided, of which the four marking the directions of east, west, north, and south are called cardinal points, and the rest are named from their respective directions, as N. by E., N. N. E., N. E. by N., N. E., etc. See COMPASS CARD, Illust.

point source. Photom. A source of light which for purposes of photometric computation can with sufficient accuracy be considered as concentrated at a point.

point space. Math. Space in which the point is regarded as the element.

point switch. Railroads. A switch made up of a rail from each track, both rails being tapered and connected to throw alongside the through rail of either track. See SWITCH, n., 7.

point system. 1. A system of wage payment in which work is subdivided into units equivalent to the number of minutes that a task should take, and the payment of the worker on the basis of the number of points of work accomplished in a given length of time; — called also Bedaux system.

2. Educ. In some schools and colleges, the system of advancing students in individual subjects by points of credit for each piece of work.

3. Type Founding. A system according to which the various sizes of type bodies, leads, etc., bear a fixed and simple relation to one another. The point system now in general use in America was adopted in 1886 by the United States Type Founders' Association, though many founders were already using it. It is a modification of a French system, and is based upon the pica body then most used. This body is divided into twelfths, called "points," and every type body consists of a given number of these points; as, the body of this book is printed in 6-point. The value of the point is .013837 inch, or nearly 1/72 inch. For specimens of sizes, see TYPE.

point tense. Gram. See TENSE.

point'-to-point', adj. Made, run, etc., from one point or place straight to another. Hence, direct; categorical. — n. A straight run, as a cross-country race; a steeplechase.

point transformation. Math. A correspondence between points in a plane or space such that to any given point P corresponds one or more points P'.

point'-vice' (point'vīs'), adj. & adv. Point-device. Obs. exc. Dial.

point'ways' (point'wāz'), adv. In the manner of a point or points.

point'wise' (-wīz'), adv. Print. In the direction of the vertical dimension of type; from top to bottom of the face of the letter.

point'wise', adj. Occurring at isolated points; specif., Print., set pointwise.

point'y (poin'tĭ), adj. a Very pointed. b Having many points; — said esp. of a fleece with unequal staples.

Poi-ret' twill (pwȧ-rā'). [After Paul Poiret, French manufacturer.] An all wool, twill-woven, smooth-surfaced fabric, used for suits, coats, etc.

poise (poiz), v.; POISED (poizd); POIS'ING (poiz'ĭng). [ME. poisen, fr. OF. peser to weigh, balance, ‖ peise, ‖ poise he weighs (F. ‖ pèse), fr. VL. pensare, fr. L. pensare, intens. fr. pendere to weigh. See POISE, n.; cf. PENSIVE.] Transitive: 1. To weigh, as on scales or in the mind; to weigh (one thing with another) for comparison or evaluation; to weigh out. Now Rare.

Poise the cause in justice' equal scales. Shak.

2. To render stable. Specif.: a To steady by weighting; to ballast. "Sobriety of thought which poises the heart." Steele. b To distribute the weight of properly; to balance exactly; — usually with equally or evenly.

3. a To carry, maintain, or support in equilibrium or equipoise; to suspend, as in space;—often reflexive; as, to poise a plate on the end of a knife; how does the earth poise itself in space? b To hold, carry, or swing aloft steadily.

Finding real faulchions difficult to poise. Browning.

4. Obs. a To weight; to weigh down; oppress; to incline as through weight. b To counterpoise; counterbalance; neutralize the effect of.

——, Intransitive: 1. To be of a (specified) weight. Obs. 2. To hang or be held in equilibrium; to be balanced or suspended; hover.

poise (poiz), n. [ME. pois, fr. OF. pois, fr. earlier peis (F. poids), fr. VL. pesum, fr. L. pensum weight, a portion weighed out, fr. pendere to weigh, weigh out. The sound of z is due to influence of the verb. See PENSION; cf. AVOIRDUPOIS, COUNTERPOISE, PESETA, POISE, v.] 1. Obs. a Weight; heaviness; a standard of weight; importance. b Heavy impact; a heavy blow; assault; attack. 2. a A weight; now, a movable weight mounted on a bar of a scale beam. b A clock weight. 3. Something weighty in action, effect, etc.; bias; inclination. Now Rare. "Certain reasons or poises." E. Hall. 4. a State of being balanced by equal weight or power; equipoise; balance; equilibrium; stability.

Men of an unbounded imagination often want the poise of judgment. Dryden.

b The bearing or carriage of the body or head; carriage. 5. Suspension of motion due to an exact balance; rest; pause; hence, suspense; indecision. 6. The C. G. S. unit of absolute viscosity, being the absolute viscosity of a fluid that would require a shearing force of one dyne to move a square-centimeter area of either of two parallel layers of the fluid, one centimeter apart, with a velocity of one centimeter per second relative to the other layer, the space between the layers being filled with the fluid.

Syn. — See BALANCE.

poised (poizd), past part. & part. adj. of POISE. Hence, adj., a Hovering. "On poised wings held mute and moveless." Shelley. b Having or manifesting poise or carriage; as, a well-poised head.

pois'er (poiz'ẽr), n. One who or that which poises: Zool., = halter.

Poi'seuille's' law (pwȧ'zœ̂'y'z). The law which states that velocity of flow of a liquid through a capillary tube varies directly as the pressure and the fourth power of the diameter of the tube and inversely as the length of the tube and the coefficient of viscosity. The principle was discovered by J. M. Poiseuille in 1843.

poi'son (poi'z'n), n. [OF., fr. L. potio a drink, draft, potion, a poisonous draft, fr. potare to drink. See POTABLE; cf. POTION.] 1. A potion; esp., a potion containing a noxious or deadly ingredient; also, such an ingredient. Obs., exc. as in sense 2. 2. Any agent which, introduced (esp. in small amount) into an organism, may chemically produce an injurious or deadly effect; as, morphine is a deadly poison; the poison, or venom, of a snake. 3. That which taints or destroys moral purity, character, or the public welfare; something, as a doctrine, morally or intellectually baneful in its influence.

Now, while the poison all high life pervades. Cowper.

4. Physical Chem. A foreign substance which inhibits the activity of a catalyst.

Syn. — Venom, virus. Ant. — Antidote; remedy.

☞ COMBINATIONS are:

poison-barbed	poison-fed	poison-swallowing, adj.
poison-bearing, adj.	poison-laden poison-breathing, adj.	poisonmaker	poison-tainted poison-dipped	poison-shooting, adj.	poison-tipped poison-eating, adj.		poison-toothed poison-fanged	poison-sprinkled

poi'son, v.; -SONED (-z'nd); -SON-ING. [Cf. F. empoisonner, OF. poisonner to give to drink, L. potionare. See POISON, n.] Transitive: 1. To put poison on or into; to infect or impregnate with poison; as, to poison an arrow, food, or drink. 2. To administer poison to; to injure or kill by poison; also, to cause a morbid state of or in by infection, ptomaines, etc.; as, to poison a person, the blood, a wound, or the hand. 3. To exert a baneful influence on; to corrupt; vitiate; pervert; to kill; as, slander poisoned his mind; vice poisons happiness. 4. To make unfit for use by introducing something injurious, unpalatable or, the like; as, to poison soup with salt; specif., Obs., to spike (a cannon). 5. Physical Chem. To inhibit the activity of (a catalyst).

——, Intransitive: To injure or kill by poison; to convey poison.

poi'son, adj. That poisons or envenoms; venomous; as, poison fangs.

poi'son-a-ble (poi'z'n-ȧ-b'l), adj. a Obs. Capable of poisoning. b Rare. Capable of being poisoned.

poison arum. The arrow arum Peltandra virginica.

poison ash. a U. S. The poison sumac. b W. Indies. The torchwood Amyris balsamifera. c = FRINGE TREE.

poison bay. A star anise (Illicium floridanum) of the southern Atlantic States. Its leaves are supposed to be poisonous.

poison bean. The seed of a shrub (Daubentonia drummondii), family Fabaceae, of the southern United States, poisonous to stock; also, the plant itself.

poi'son-ber'ry (poi'z'n-bĕr'ĭ), n.; pl. -RIES (-ĭz). a Any shrub of the genus Cestrum. b The West Indian shrub Bourreria succulenta (family Boraginaceae). c The poisonberry tree. d = BITTERSWEET, 3 a.

poisonberry tree. An Australian shrub (Pittosporum phillyraeoides), the bitter berries of which are reputed poisonous. The herbage is used for fodder.

poison black cherry. The fruit of the belladonna Atropa belladonna.

poison bulb. Either of the poisonous tropical plants Crinum asiaticum and Haemanthus toxicarius, the latter yielding an arrow poison.

poi'son-bush' (poi'z'n-bo̅o̅sh'), n. In Australia: a Any shrub of the genus Gastrolobium, esp. G. grandiflorum, the herbage of which is poisonous to stock; also, any species of several related genera, as Gompholobium. b The plant Myoporum deserti, often distinguished as Ellangowan poisonbush or dogwood poisonbush. c The poison pea, esp. the Darling pea. d The tree Trema cannabina, which, though not poisonous, is injurious to stock because of its large amount of fiber.

poison creeper. The poison ivy Toxicodendron radicans.

poison cup. a A cup of poison. b Hist. A kind of cup which was supposed to break when filled with poison. c = DEATH CUP b.

poison daisy. = MAYWEED a.

poison dogwood or elder. Poison sumac.

poi'soned (poi'z'nd), adj. Having the power of or as of poisoning; venomous. Obs.

poi'son-er (poi'z'n-ẽr), n. One who or that which poisons.

poison fish. a Any of a number of fishes belonging to various families having venomous spines capable of inflicting painful wounds. See POISON TOADFISH, WEEVER, SCORPION FISH, MAD TOM, etc. b Any of various fishes containing poisonous alkaloids in their flesh. See TIÑOSA. Cf. CIGUATERA.

poison flag. Any of several blue-flowered American irises, as Iris versicolor, I. prismatica, etc.

poison flour. Arsenic trioxide (white arsenic) obtained by sublimation in a floury state.

poison flower. = BITTERSWEET, 3 a. poison gas. A poisonous gas. See GAS, n., 3.

poison grass. = DEATH CAMASS.

poison hemlock. a The plant Conium maculatum. See POISONOUS PLANTS, Plate. b Any of various species of Cicuta. Cf. WATER HEMLOCK.

poi'son-ing (poi'z'n-ĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of POISON. Specif.: n. The morbid condition produced by a poison.

poison ivy. a Any of several American sumacs of somewhat vinelike habit, with trifoliolate leaves, greenish flowers, white berries, and an irritant oil which renders the herbage poisonous to touch. The common poison ivy of the eastern and central United States is a climbing vine Toxicodendron radicans, syn. Rhus toxicodendron (see POISONOUS PLANTS, Plate); that of the southeastern states is Toxicodendron pubescens (syn. Rhus quercifolia), often called poison oak; that of the Pacific coast is Rhus diversiloba, usually called poison oak. b = MOUNTAIN LAUREL a.

Poison Ivy. 1 Leaves; 2 Berries.

poison laurel. = MOUNTAIN LAUREL a.

poison lime. A lime preparation for unhairing hides.

poison mask. A gas mask. See MASK, n., 8 b. poison nut. a Nux vomica. b The seed of the ordeal tree Tanghinia venenifera.

poison oak. a Poison sumac. b Any poison ivy of bushy habit, esp. Rhus diversiloba of the Pacific coast and Toxicodendron pubescens (syn. Rhus quercifolia) of the southeastern United States.

poi'son-ous (poi'z'n-ŭs), adj. Having the properties or effects of poison; destructive; venomous; corrupting; noxious; malignant. "Standing out single-handed against the most poisonous hostility." D. Canfield. — poi'son-ous-ly, adv. — poi'son-ous-ness, n.

Syn. — POISONOUS, VENOMOUS, VIRULENT are here compared in their figurative senses. That is POISONOUS which is morally deleterious or corrupting, or which is rankling or corrosive; VENOMOUS implies active malevolence, VIRULENT, bitter malignity; as, "You might condemn us as poisonous of your honor" (Shak.); "What a difference between Pope's little poisonous barbs and Dryden's strong invective!" (Tennyson); "an ugly, little, venomous serpent of a noise" (Hawthorne); "I must have been more venomous than the old serpent to have hissed or stung in your company" (Byron); "proceedings . . . dictated by virulent hatred" (G. Eliot); "If certain critics were as clear-sighted as they are malignant, how great would be the benefit . . . from their virulent writings!" (Shelley). Cf. MALICIOUS, ACRIMONY.

poison parsley. Poison hemlock.

poison parsnip. a The wild parsnip. b The water hemlock Cicuta maculata.

poison pea. Any Australian plant of the genus Swainsona, esp. S. greyana. Cf. DARLING PEA.

poison plant. Any of several Australian plants poisonous to stock, or so reputed, as Lotus australis, Swainsona greyana, and species of Gastrolobium.

poison rhubarb. The butterbur.

poison root. The root and twigs of the red buckeye (Aesculus pavia); — so called because used to stupefy fish.

poison rye grass. = DARNEL a.

poison sego. Death camass.

poison snakeroot or snakeweed. Poison hemlock.

poison sumac. An American sumac (Toxicodendron vernix) containing an oil which renders the herbage very poisonous to touch. It is a smooth shrub growing in swamps, with pinnate leaves, and greenish flowers succeeded by greenish-white berries, which distinguish it from the closely allied, harmless, red-fruited species of Rhus. It yields a lacquer somewhat like Japanese lacquer. See POISONOUS PLANTS, Plate.

Poison Sumac (Toxicodendron vernix). 1 Leaf; 2 Berries.

poison toadfish. Any of several tropical American toadfishes (genus Thalassophryne) with venomous dorsal and opercular spines.

poison tobacco. Henbane.

poison tree. a Australia. Blind-your-eyes. b The poison sumac. c A poisonous tree (Metopium linnaei), family Anacardiaceae, of Florida and the West Indies, with compound leaves, greenish paniculate flowers, and orange-yellow fruits; — called also gift balsam.

poison vetch. The poison pea.

poison vine. a The poison ivy Toxicodendron radicans. b The silk vine.

poi'son-weed' (poi'z'n-wēd'), n. Any of various plants of the western United States with foliage poisonous to stock, esp. species of Delphinium, Lupinus, etc.

poi'son-wood' (poi'z'n-wo̅o̅d'), n. a The poison tree Metopium linnaei. b The crabwood Gymnanthes lucida. c The poison sumac. d The manchineel.

‖pois'sarde' (pwȧ'sȧrd'), n. [F.] a A woman of the lowest class, esp. a market woman. b By association with poisson (fish), a fishwife.

‖pois'son' (pwȧ'sôn'), n. [F.] Fish.

pois'son' (pwȧ'sôn'), n. [F.] See MEASURE, Table.

‖pois'son' bleu' (blœ̂'), [F., blue fish.] a The Alaska grayling. See GRAYLING, 1. b The blue catfish.

‖pois'son' d'a'vrĕl' (dȧ'vrĕl'). [F.] Literally, fish of April; esp., a mackerel, because abounding in April; figuratively, an April-fool joke; also, its victim.

Pois'son's' ra'ti-o (pwȧ'sôn'z'). [After S. D. Poisson (1781–1840), French physicist.] Mech. The ratio of transverse to longitudinal strain, estimated per unit length, produced by a longitudinal stress. Its value lies between ¼ and ⅓ for most hard solids. Cf. HOOKE'S LAW; MODULUS OF ELASTICITY.

poi'trel (poi'trĕl), n. Also poi'trall, etc. [OF. poitral, peitrel (F. poitrail), fr. L. pectorale breastplate, fr. pectoralis, adj. See PECTORAL, adj.] 1. Anc. Armor. A horse's breastplate. 2. A breastplate. Obs. 3. Costume. A stomacher suggestive of a breastplate. Obs.

‖poi'tri'naire' (pwȧ'trē'nȧr'), n. [F.] Med. One affected with disease of the chest or lungs.

poi'vrade' (pwȧ'vrȧd'), n. [F.] A peppery sauce; — called also poivrade sauce.

poke (pōk), n. [Var. of UPPOWOC.] Tobacco. Obs.

poke, n. [Abbr. fr. pocan, fr. Virginian puccoon, pakon, any of various plants used for staining and dyeing, fr. pak blood. Cf. POCAN, PUCCOON.] a Pokeweed. b = AMERICAN HELLEBORE.

poke (pōk), n. [ME., fr. OF. poke, poque, poche (F. poche), of Teut. origin; cf. MD. poke, AS. pocca. See POCK; cf. POACH EGGS, POCKET, POUCH, PUCKER.] 1. A bag; a sack; specif., a measuring bag varying in size according to the commodity. Now Dial., Local, or Archaic. 2. Hence: a Scot. A beggar's wallet. b Archaic & Dial. A pocket. c Obs. A long, wide sleeve. d A morbid swelling on the neck, as a goiter, or, in sheep, one which is a symptom of the rot; hence, the rot. e Thieves' Slang. A purse. 3. The stomach or air bladder of a fish.

poke (pōk), n. 1. Act of poking; as: a A thrust; jog; nudge. b A look; peep; — with round, at, out, etc. 2. One who pokes (see POKE, v. i., 3); hence, a lazy person; also, a bore. Chiefly U. S. 3. A device to keep an animal from leaping, or breaking through, fences. It consists of a yoke with a pole inserted, pointed forward. U. S. poke, n. [From POKE to thrust, project.] 1. A projecting brim or front of a woman's bonnet. 2. Short for POKE BONNET, POKE COLLAR.

poke (pōk), v.; POKED (pōkt); POK'ING (pōk'ĭng). [ME. poken; akin to MD. & MLG. poken, MLG. pōk dagger, knife, D. pook a poker, G. pochen to knock, beat, and prob. to MIr. būalaim I strike, beat. Cf. POACH to push, poke, POKER game.] Transitive: 1. To thrust or prod, as with one's arm, a stick, a poker, the horns, etc.; to push or thrust, as away, down, through, etc.; to make, prod, stir, or arouse by or as by such action; as, to poke a person in the ribs, a stick in a bush, a hole in a carpet, or a dying fire. 2. To crimp or pleat (a ruff) with a poking stick. Obs. 3. To thrust forward obtrusively or, as the head, nose, or finger, in annoying familiarity; to stick out. Hence, to poke one's nose into other's affairs, to act the pry or busybody.

She laughs louder than a man, pokes her head vehemently, dresses shockingly. Fanny Burney.

It was never an obtrusive tea, it wasn't poked at a fellow. H. G. Wells.

4. To cause to live pokily; — with up; as, to poke oneself up in a dull town. Colloq.

——, Intransitive: 1. To make thrusts with a stick, sword, or the like.

They [hunters] walked up and down and poked among the rocks. Masefield.

2. To go prying or searching; to feel one's way; to look or dip (into); to grope; as, to poke into every corner; to poke into Scott; to poke about an antique shop or in the dark. 3. To live pokily; to potter; to dawdle.

Do you think I can live, poking by myself. Jane Austen.

4. To project or stand out.

Their bell towers poke above the trees. Yale Review.

5. Cricket. To defend one's wicket by short strokes without hitting out, and hardly taking the bat off the ground.

Syn. — Prod, nudge, jab.

poke fun or poke fun at. To ridicule or banter, esp. slyly or indirectly; to make a butt of. Colloq.

The cherubs keep track of these antics, and poke fun at us. James Branch Cabell.

poke off. To go away; to wander; to travel aimlessly. Colloq.

poke, v. t. To put a poke on; as, to poke an ox. Colloq., U. S.

poke, n. Short for SHITEPOKE.

poke. Dial. Eng. var. of POOK, heap.

poke, v. t. To bag. Obs. Scot.

poke'ber'ry (pōk'bĕr'ĭ; -bĕr-ĭ), n.; pl. -BERRIES (-ĭz). [See 2d POKE.] The berry of the poke, or pokeweed; also, the plant.

poke bonnet. A bonnet with a projecting brim or front. See BONNET, n., 3, Illust. — poke'-bon'net-ed, adj.

poke brim. = 5th POKE, 1. — poke'-brimmed' (pōk'-brĭmd'), adj.

poke'-cheeked', adj. Having baggy cheeks.

poke collar. A standing collar with ends projecting outward.

poked (pōkt), adj. Provided with, or having, a poke.

poke'-eas'y, n. A lazy or slow person or animal. Chiefly Southern U. S.

poke'ful (pōk'fo̅o̅l), n. A bagful. Now Dial.

poke'lo'ken (pōk'lō'kĕn), n. [Of Algonquian origin, prob. fr. Malecite peceláygan a stopping place; cf. Massachuset pohqui open out. Cf. LOGIN.] An inlet, bay, or marshy place.

poke milkweed. A milkweed (Asclepias exaltata) of the eastern United States with leaves like those of the poke.

poke net. Fishing. A drag net in the form of a bag.

poke pudding. 1. Now Humorous. a A kind of pudding cooked in a bag; hence, a fat, overfed person. b An Englishman; — orig., a Scottish designation of contempt. 2. The long-tailed titmouse. Local, Brit.

---

poi'sond. Poisoned. Ref. Sp. poi'son-er-ess, n. See -ESS. Rare. poi'son-ful, adj. Poisonous. Obs. — poi'son-ful-ly, adv. Obs. poi'son-less, adj. See -LESS. — poi'son-less-ness, n. poi'son-ly, adv. Poisonously. Obs. poi'son-ment, n. Act or means of poisoning. Obs.
poisonous hogweed. = HOG'S-MEAT b. poi'son-proof' (66), adj. See -PROOF. [Obs. poi'son-some, adj. Poisonous. poi'son-y, adj. Poisonous. Obs. pois'ter, v. t. [Cf. PESTER.] To confine, as with fetters. Obs. poi'sure, n. [See POISE.] Weight; poise. Obs. Quarles. poit (poit). Var. of POTE.
Poi'tiers' (pwȧ'tyā'), n. a See BATTLE, Table. b See Tours, under BATTLE, Table.
poi'trel. Erron. for POINTEL, 1. poize. Archaic var. of POISE. pok'a-ble (pōk'ȧ-b'l), adj. See -ABLE. [MAM.
Po-kan' (pō-kăn'), n. = POKO-Po'ka-no'ket (pō'kȧ-nō'kĕt), n. = WAMPANOAG. [POKELOKEN. poke'lo'gan (pōk'lō'găn). Var. of poke-man'tie (pōk-măn'tĭ). Scot. & N. of Eng. var. of POCKMANTEAU. [Slang.
poke'-out', n. = HANDOUT, 2.

pok'er (pŏk'ĕr), n. [From POKE to thrust.] 1. That which pokes or is used in poking; specif.: a A metal bar or rod used in stirring a coal fire. b Obs. A poking stick. c The implement used in pyrography.
2. a One who pokes; esp., a prying person. b A person who acts or bears himself stiffly.
3. The rod of office of a verger, beadle, etc. Humorous, Eng. Hence, a beadle. Oxf. & Camb. Slang, Eng.
4. Cotton Mfg. A vertical rack in a slubbing and roving machine for giving a vertical up-and-down motion to the bobbin rails.

pok'er, v. t. 1. a To stir or strike with a poker. b With up, to stiffen up.
2. To decorate with pyrography.

po'ker (pō'kĕr), n. [Prob. of Scand. origin, cf. Dan. pokker the deuce, devil, prop., the pox, pl., fr. MLG. pocken. See POCK.] Any imagined frightful object, esp. one haunting the darkness; a bugbear; hobgoblin. Now Rare.

po'ker (pō'kĕr), n. [Cf. POCHARD.] Any of several ducks, esp. the pochard. Local, Eng.

po'ker (pō'kĕr), n. [Perh. fr. G. poch, poche, pochspiel (cf. D. pochspel), a game resembling poker, fr. pochen to boast, act defiantly, bluff, (at cards) to play, not pass, bet, orig., to bang, knock (for meaning cf. E. names of similar games, brag, bluff). See POKE to thrust.] Any of various card games in which players bet on the value of their hands to win a pool. When one player has bet, those following must equal his bet (see or call him), increase his bet (raise him), or drop out of the game for that hand (pass). In draw poker, the principal game, each player, after contributing his ante, may discard any of his cards and receive (draw) from the dealer an equal number. In straight poker, or bluff, each player in turn puts up the ante for the rest of the players. In stud poker all cards but the first round are dealt face up and the betting usually begins after the second round. The rank of the usual poker hands, in ascending sequence, is as follows: pair, two pairs, three of a kind, straight, flush, full house, four of a kind, straight flush, royal flush. See ANTE, n., a; BLIND, n., 8; DEUCES WILD; FREEZE-OUT, 1; JACK POT; TABLE STAKES; WHISKY POKER.

poker dice. A game played with five dice in which the count is usually made, in order, by pairs, two pairs, three of a kind, full houses, four of a kind, and five of a kind (the highest throw), similar to poker, each player in turn being allowed to throw three times, and to select from each throw the dice he desires to retain. Also, the dice used in this game, esp. when marked with the ace, king, queen, jack, ten, and nine instead of the usual digits.

poker drawing. Pyrography.

poker face. An immobile, inscrutable face or facial expression characteristic of a poker sharp. Colloq., U. S.
His was the ideal poker face — bland, emotionless, immobile.
Edna Ferber.

po'ker-ish (pō'kĕr-ĭsh), adj. Pokerlike or poker-haunted; bugbearish; uncanny.

pok'er-ish (pŏk'ĕr-ĭsh), adj. Stiff like a poker. — pok'er-ish-ly, adv. — pok'er-ish-ness, n. All Colloq.

poke'root' (pōk'rōōt'; 200), n. [See 2d POKE.] a The pokeweed. b The American hellebore.

poker painting. Pyrography.

poker picture. A pyrogravure.

poker plant. A South African herb (Kniphofia uvaria) with a spike of orange-red or scarlet flowers.

poker rum or rummy. A variation of rum in which ten cards are dealt to each player and the object is to reduce the pip value of the unmatched cards in one's hand to 15 or less. The player then has the right to call out, and all hands are shown, triplets and sequences being thrown out, the caller announcing his count for deadwood. Those having more than the caller pay the difference. If anyone has less, he becomes the winner, the actual caller losing double.

poker work. Work done with a poker; specif., = PYROGRAPHY.

poke salad. Greens from the pokeweed. Rural, U. S. poke sleeve. = 3d POKE, 2 c. Obs.

poke supper. A supper at which bags of homemade food are auctioned. Southern U. S.

poke'weed' (pōk'wēd'), n. [See 2d POKE.] A coarse American perennial herb (Phytolacca americana) with racemose white flowers and dark purple juicy berries; poke. Both the berries and root are emetic and purgative. The root is poisonous but the young shoots are sometimes eaten like asparagus. See POISONOUS PLANTS, Plate.

pokeweed family. The Phytolaccaceae.

pok'ing (pōk'ĭng), adj. Petty; mean; poky. Now Rare.

poking stick or iron. A small rod, orig. of wood or bone, formerly used to stiffen the plaits of ruffs.

Po'ko-mam' (pō'kō-mäm'), n.; pl. -MAMES (-mä'mās). An Indian of a Mayan tribe, numbering about 50,000, dwelling in the interior of southern Guatemala near the frontier of El Salvador. See 2d MAYA; MAYAN, adj.

Po-ko'mo (pō-kō'mō), n. sing. & pl. Also Wa'po-ko'mo (wä'pō-kō'mō). One of a Bantu-speaking tribe in the valley of the Tana, British East Africa.

po'ko-moo (pō'kō-mōō), n. [Origin unknown.] The black widow (spider). California.

Po'kon-chi' (pō'kŏn-chē'), n. An Indian of a Mayan tribe, numbering about 20,000, dwelling in central Guatemala. See 2d MAYA; MAYAN, adj.

po'kunt (pō'kŭnt), n. [Shoshoni.] The Shoshonean equivalent of manito. Cf. MANITO.

pok'y, poke'y (pōk'ĭ), adj.; POK'I-ER (-ĭ-ĕr); POK'I-EST. [From POKE, v.] a Small and cramped; as, a poky little room. b Shabby; mean; also, dull; tedious; slow; narrow; dowdy; as, a poky resort; a poky life.

pok'y (pōk'ĭ), n.; pl. -IES (-Iz). A poke bonnet; — also poky bonnet.

Pol (pŏl), n. [L.] Short for POLLUX; — used in mild oaths. Obs.

Pol-. Prefix in Cornish names. See TRE-.

Po'lab' (pō'läb'), n. [Slav. po along + Lab Elbe.] A Polabian.

Po-la'bi-an (pō-lā'bĭ-ăn; 159), n. [See POLAB.] a One of a Slavic people formerly dwelling in the basin of the Elbe and on the Baltic coast of Germany. b The West Slavic language of the Polabians, extinct since the 18th century. See INDO-EUROPEAN LANGUAGES, Table. — Po-la'bi-an, adj.

Po-la'bish (pō-lā'bĭsh), n. [G. Polabisch.] = POLABIAN b.

Po'lack (pō'läk), n. 1. A Pole. Shak. (Hamlet I. i. 63).
2. Ethnol. One of a group of Poles of mixed descent in Bialystok province.
3. (pō'lŏk) U. S. A person of Polish birth or descent; — a substandard use.

Po'lack (pō'lŏk), adj. Polish. Now Colloq.

po·lack', po·lak' (pō-läk'), n. The balsa Ochroma lagopus, or, if valid, a closely allied but little-understood species (O. bicolor). Nicaragua. See BALSA, 1; OCHROMA.

po·la'cre (pō-lä'kĕr), n. [F.; cf. It. polacca, polaccra, polacra, F. polaque, Sp. polacra.] Naut. A vessel with two or three masts, usually in one piece, and square or, rarely, lateen sails, used in the Mediterranean.

Po'land Chi'na (pō'lănd). An American breed of large compact swine of the lard type. They are black with white markings and have straight faces.

Po'land'er (pō'lăn'dĕr; -lăn-dĕr), n. A native or inhabitant of Poland; a Pole.

Poland wheat. = POLISH WHEAT.

Pol'a·ni'si·a (pŏl'ä-nĭzh'ĭ-ä; -nĭs'ĭ-ä), n. [NL., fr. poly- + aniso- + -ia.] Bot. A large genus of widely distributed herbs of the caper family (Capparidaceae). P. graveolens, the clammyweed, and P. trachysperma are common North American species.

po'lar (pō'lĕr), adj. [ML. polaris, fr. L. polus. See POLE of the earth.] 1. Of or pertaining to a pole or the poles of a sphere, magnet, etc.; as, the polar diameter of the earth; polar magnetism.
2. Of, pertaining to, or coming from a geographical pole or poles; as, polar regions, ice, explorations.
3. Of, pert. to, or like, a polestar; guiding; as, a polar principle. "Or the polar ray to right you." Keats.
4. Figuratively: a Like a pole, or axis, around which all else revolves; pivotal. b Diametrically opposite in nature, action, etc., as the poles of a magnet.
5. Physical Chem. Designating, pert. to, or characterized by, a union of atoms in which the chemical bond is electrostatic attraction between oppositely charged particles (ions). Thus, in sodium chloride (NaCl), the sodium atom has lost an electron to the chlorine and thereby become positively charged (Na^+), while the chlorine has thereby become negatively charged (Cl^-).
6. Physics. Having properties analogous to a magnet in that there is associated with (the object or phenomenon) a directed line, and in that the properties (of the object or phenomenon) at the two ends of the line are equal and opposite.

po'lar (pō'lĕr), n. Math. a The plane curve $x'\frac{\partial F}{\partial x} + y'\frac{\partial F}{\partial y} + z'\frac{\partial F}{\partial z} = 0$, derived from the plane curve $F(x, y, z) = 0$ (as to which it is the polar) by the operator $x'\frac{\partial}{\partial x} + y'\frac{\partial}{\partial y} + z'\frac{\partial}{\partial z}$, where x, y, z are homogeneous point co-ordinates and the point (x', y', z') is the pole, of which it is the polar. If the operator be applied to F repeatedly, there result in precisely the same way the 2d, 3d, ... nth, polars. More generally, if $P = (a, b, \ldots.)$ $(x, y, z)_p = 0$ and $T = (A, B, \ldots.)$ $(u, v, w)_t = 0$ be respectively (homogeneous) point and tangential equations of two curves C and K, then $(a, b, \ldots.)\left(\frac{\partial}{\partial u}, \frac{\partial}{\partial v}, \frac{\partial}{\partial w}\right)^p T = 0$ when $t<p$, is the polar of K as to C. b The algebraic surface $x'\frac{\partial F}{\partial x} + y'\frac{\partial F}{\partial y} + z'\frac{\partial F}{\partial z} + w'\frac{\partial F}{\partial z} = 0$, derived from the algebraic surface $F(x, y, z, w) = 0$ (as to which it is the polar) by the operator $x'\frac{\partial}{\partial x} + y'\frac{\partial}{\partial y} + z'\frac{\partial}{\partial z} + w'\frac{\partial}{\partial w}$, where (x, y, z, w) are homogeneous point co-ordinates and the point (x', y', z', w') is the pole. c pl. Polar co-ordinates.

-po'lar (-pō'lĕr). A combining form of polar, meaning having or pertaining to (such or so many) poles, as in geopolar, homopolar.

polar almucantar. Astron. = COLATITUDE CIRCLE.

polar axis. 1. Astron. That axis of an astronomical instrument, as of an equatorial, which points to the pole of the heavens.
2. Math. See polar co-ordinates under 3d CO-ORDINATE, 2.

polar bands. Meteorol. = NOAH'S ARK d.

polar bear. 1. A large bear (Ursus, syn. Thalarctos, maritimus) inhabiting the arctic regions of both the Old and the New World. It attains a length of about nine feet and often weighs more than 1,000 pounds. It frequents the shores and ice floes, and swims well, living largely on seals. It differs from other bears in its creamy white color, long neck, narrow skull, and small molar teeth.

Polar Bear.

2. A color, yellowish red-yellow in hue, of low saturation and very high brilliance; — called also Jersey cream. Cf. COLOR.

po'lar-bear' cac'tus. A prickly pear (Opuntia floccosa) of alpine plateaus of the Peruvian Andes.

polar body. 1. Bacteriol. Any of the metachromatic granules concentrated at the ends of bacteria, as in Corynebacterium diphtheriae.
2. Also polar cell or globule. Biol. One of the minute cells which separate by mitotic division from the egg during its maturation. See MATURATION, 4 a.

polar cap. Astron. A white spot at either pole of the planet Mars, which varies in size with the Martian seasons. It increases in the Martian winter and decreases in the summer, suggesting that it is composed of something like snow.

polar circle. Astron. & Geog. One of the two parallels of latitude, each at a distance from a pole of the earth equal to the obliquity of the ecliptic, or about 23° 27′, the northern called the Arctic Circle, and the southern the Antarctic Circle.

polar co-ordinates. See 3d CO-ORDINATE, 2.

polar curve. Math. a A curve whose equation is in polar co-ordinates. b Of a given space curve, the locus of the centers of the osculating spheres of the curve. c Of a line with respect to an algebraic surface, the curve of intersection of the first polars of the various points of the line with respect to the given surface.

polar discontinuity. Math. See DISCONTINUITY, n., 3.

polar distance. Math., Astron., & Navig. The angular distance of any point on a sphere from one of its poles; codeclination.

polar equation. Math. An equation connecting polar co-ordinates.

polar fox. The arctic fox.

polar front. Meteorol. The boundary between the cold air of a polar region and the warmer air of lower latitudes. The wind-shift line of an extratropical cyclone.

polar globule. See POLAR BODY, 2.

polar graph. Math. See GRAPH, n., 2.

polar hare. A large hare (Lepus arcticus) of arctic America, related to the common European hares. It is almost completely pure white in winter.

polari-. A combining form from Latin polaris, meaning polar, as in polariscope.

po·lar'ic (pō-lăr'ĭk), adj. Polar.

Po·la'rid (pō-lā'rĭd; -lăr'ĭd), n. [Polaris + 1st -id a.] Any of the meteors whose common radiant is near the polestar po·lar'i·graph'ic (pō-lăr'ĭ-grăf'ĭk), adj. [polari- + -graphic.] Pert. to the process or results of photography as applied to study of the polarization of light, as of the sun's corona.

po'lar·im'e·ter (pō'lĕr-ĭm'ē-tĕr), n. [polari- + -meter.] Optics. a An instrument for determining the amount of polarization of light, or the proportion of polarized light, in a partially polarized ray. b A polariscope for measuring the amount of rotation of the plane of polarization, esp. by liquids. See POLARIZATION, 2. In a common form, Sectional Diagram of Polarimeter, showing arrangement of Prisms and Lenses.

a tube of known length (T in Illust.), filled with the liquid, is inserted between the polarizer (P) and analyzer (A). One of the prisms is then turned until the field appears the same as before the insertion of the tube, when the amount of the rotation is read from a scale.

po'lar·im'e·try (-trĭ), n. Optics. Art or process of using the polarimeter. — po·lar'i·met'ric (pō-lăr'ĭ-mĕt'rĭk), adj.

Po·la'ris (pō-lā'rĭs; -lăr'ĭs), n. [NL. The star Alpha (a) Ursae Minoris. See POLAR.] Astron. See NORTH STAR, 1; STAR, Table.

po·lar'i·scope (pō-lăr'ĭ-skōp), n. [polari- + -scope.] Optics. An instrument for studying the properties of, or examining substances in, polarized light. It consists essentially of a combination of two Nicol prisms or other polarizing devices, called the polarizer and the analyzer. When the two have their planes of vibration at right angles to each other they are said to be crossed, and the light emerging from the polarizer is extinguished by the analyzer unless an optically active substance intervenes. See POLARIZATION, 2. There are many forms of the polariscope, the simplest being the tourmaline tongs. See POLARIMETER. — po·lar'i·scop'ic (pō-lăr'ĭ-skŏp'ĭk), adj. — po·lar'i·scop'i·cal·ly (-ĭ-kăl·ĭ), adv.

Nörremberg's Polariscope.
p Movable Glass Plate (Polarizer), the inclination of which is shown on the Graduated Circle c; m Mirror; p' Graduated Plate containing Disk (d) with opening over which the Black Glass Mirror m' is inclined at the polarizing angle; d' Adjustable Disk; sc Black Screen with a hole in the center. When p is at 35° 25′ a Ray r meeting it is polarized and reflected down to m, which sends it up through sc to m'. If now the Disk d carrying m' be turned horizontally through 9° (to the position shown) the reflected ray disappears. When p and m' are parallel, the ray is at maximum intensity.

po·lar'i·is'co·py (pō'lĕr-ĭs'kō-pĭ), n. Optics. Art or process of using the polariscope. — po'lar·is'co·pist (pō'lĕr-ĭs'kō-pĭst; pō-lăr'ĭ-skŏp'ĭst), n.

po'lar·is'tic (pō'lĕr-ĭs'tĭk), adj. Pertaining to or exhibiting poles or polar characteristics.

po·lar'i·stro·bom'e·ter (pō-lăr'ĭ-strō-bŏm'ē-tĕr), n. [polari- + Gr. strobos a whirling + -meter.] A form of polarimeter used in saccharimetry, etc., in which rotation of the polarization plane is indicated by interference fringes.

po·lar'i·ty (pō-lăr'ĭ-tĭ), n. 1. Quality or state of being polar; specif.: a The quality or condition inherent in a body which exhibits opposite, or contrasted, properties or powers, in opposite, or contrasted, parts or directions; the having of poles; polarization. Cf. MAGNET, n., 2. b Diametrical opposition as a principle, property, or condition; also, an instance of such.
2. Particular state (positive or negative) with reference to the two poles or to polarization.
3. Biol. a The observed differentiation of an organism or tissue into parts having opposed, or contrasted, properties or form, as head and tail, shoot and root, etc. b A hypothetical attribute of an organism assumed to explain the regeneration in a mutilated individual of a part similar to the one removed.
4. Math. A plane (or space) involutory correlation between points and lines (or planes).

polarity cap. Elec. A cap having knife-blade terminals so arranged that it can be inserted in its base or body in one way only.

po'lar·iz'a·ble (pō'lĕr-īz'ä-b'l), adj. That may be polarized. — po'lar·iz'a·bil'i·ty (-ä-bĭl'ĭ-tĭ), n.

po'lar·i·za'tion (pō'lĕr-ĭ-zā'shŭn; -ī-zā'shŭn), n. [F. polarisation.] 1. Act of polarizing; state of being polarized, or of having poles.
2. Optics. The act or process of affecting light or other radiation in such a way that the vibrations assume a definite form; also, the state of light so affected. In ordinary light the vibrations are supposed to be in all directions perpendicular to the ray; in polarized light, the paths of the vibrations (all in a plane perpendicular to the ray) may be straight lines, circles, or ellipses. The light is then said to be plane-polarized, circularly polarized, or elliptically polarized, and the phenomenon is called plane polarization, circular polarization, or elliptical (or elliptic) polarization respectively. Light may be plane-polarized by reflection or refraction at nonmetallic surfaces, or by transmission through crystals showing double refraction. When plane-polarized light passes through certain media called optically active it is changed. Usually, as with quartz or a sugar solution, this change consists in optical rotation, in which the plane of polarization (that is, the plane which contains the direction of vibration and the direction of the ray) is rotated through a definite angle depending on the nature of the medium, the length of the layer traversed, and the wave length of the light. The medium is said to be dextrorotatory if the rotation is to the right (as seen by an observer looking toward the source of the light); levorotatory, if to the left. See SPECIFIC ROTATORY POWER, MAGNETIC ROTATION. Certain media, however, as glass under strain or mica, change the plane-polarized light to circularly or elliptically polarized. The angle of polar- pok'ey (pōk'ĭ). Dial. Eng. var. of PAWKY.

---

poke'y (pōk'ĭ). Var. of POKY.

pok'i·ly (-ĭ-lĭ), adv. of POKY.

pok'i·ness (pōk'ĭ-nĕs; 119), n. See -NESS.

pokke. † POCK; POKE, a pouch.

pokkes. † POX.

Po·kom' (pō-kōm'), n. = POKO-MAM.

po'ku (pō'kōō). Var. of PUKU.

pol. † POLE; POLL, head; POOL.

pol. See 1st POLL.

po·lac'ca (pō-läk'ä), n. [It. pol(l)acca, fr. polacco Polish.] Music. = POLONAISE, n., 3.

po·lac'ca, n. [It. See POLACRE.] = POLACRE.

po'la·han'. Var. of PULAHAN.

Po'lak (pō'läk). Var. of POLACK.

Polan, n. [OF. Poulain.] A Pole. Obs.

po·lar'i·ty-di·rec'tion·al re'lay. Elec. See RELAY, n., 3.

tsation, or polarizing angle, is that angle at which light reflected from a transparent substance is almost completely plane-polarized. At this angle the refracted light is also polarized, but in a plane at right angles to that of the reflected light. Cf. BREWSTER'S LAW.
3. Elec. a An effect produced on the electrodes of a cell by the deposition on them of the gases liberated by the current. It is chiefly due to the hydrogen, and increases the resistance and sets up an opposing electromotive force. b The effect produced in a piece of dielectric when it is placed in an electric field, consisting in a slight displacement of the positive charge in each atom with reference to the negative charge, in the direction of the electric force.
4. Magnetism. The effect produced in a piece of iron, or paramagnetic material, when the iron is placed in a magnetic field of force, consisting in the orienting of each molecule, itself a magnet, so as to have its magnetic axis approach the line of force.
5. Math. The process of forming polars.

po'lar·ize (pō'lĕr·īz), v. t.; -IZED (-īzd); -IZ'ING (-īz'ĭng). [F. polariser.] 1. To give polarity to; to bring into a state of polarization. See POLARIZATION, 2, 3.
2. Hence, to fix or set the trend or significance of.
3. Optics. To cause to vibrate in a definite pattern; to affect by polarization. See POLARIZATION, 2.

po'lar·ized-re·lay' ar'ma·ture (pō'lĕr·īzd-). Elec. An armature in which the moving part is a permanent magnet.

po'lar·iz'er (-īz'ĕr), n. That which polarizes; esp., the part of a polariscope receiving and polarizing the light. It is usually a reflecting plate, or a plate of some crystal, as tourmaline, or a doubly refracting crystal. See NICOL PRISM.

polar lights. The aurora borealis, or aurora australis.

polar line. Math. The intersection of consecutive planes normal to a skew curve (Monge); the axis of curvature (Mannheim).

polar nucleus. Bot. In flowering plants, one of the two nuclei which fuse to form the definitive nucleus of the embryo sac. They are formed at the two poles of the megaspore.

polar nut. = AUSTRALIAN NUT.

polar ox. The musk ox.

polar plant. The rosinweed Silphium laciniatum.

polar plate. Biol. A pole plate.

polar point. Astron. The reading of the circle of a meridian instrument when the telescope is pointed at the celestial pole.

polar projection. Cartog. A projection of the sphere in which the point of sight is at the center, and the plane of projection passes through one of the polar circles.

polar ray. a Astron. A polar streamer. b Biol. An astral ray as contrasted with a spindle fiber.

polar reciprocal surface. Geom. Either of two nondevelopable surfaces so related that either, with respect to a quadric, is the envelope of the polar planes of the points of the other.

polar star. The polestar.

polar streamer. Astron. One of the rays in the solar corona, as seen during a total eclipse of the sun, apparently proceeding from near the poles of the sun.

polar surface. Geom. a = POLAR RECIPROCAL SURFACE. b The envelope of the normal planes of a given space curve.

polar telescope. Astron. A telescope that utilizes the polar axis for its tube and uses a mirror in front of the objective to direct the light into the tube.

polar tetrahedron. Math. See TETRAHEDRON, n.

polar transformer. Elec. See TRANSFORMER.

polar valence. Physical Chem. = ELECTROVALENCE.

polar whale. The bowhead. See RIGHT WHALE.

po'lar·y (pō'lĕr·ĭ), adj. 1. Polar. Obs.
2. Tending to, or directed toward, a pole. Obs.

‖po'la'touche' (pō'là'tōōsh'), n. [F., fr. Russ. poletuchiĭ flying.] A small flying squirrel (Sciuropterus russicus) native of northern Europe and Asia.

po·lax'is (pō·lăk'sĭs), n. Polar axis.

pol·da'vy (pōl·dā'vĭ; pōl-), n. Also pol·da'vis (-vĭs). [Prob. fr. Pouldavid in Brittany.] A sort of coarse canvas or sacking, once used for sails in the British Navy.

pol'der (pōl'dĕr), n. [D.] A tract of low land reclaimed from the sea, or other body of water, by dikes, dams, etc.

pol'der·boy' (-boi'), pol'der·man' (-măn'), n. A workman engaged in making or guarding a polder, or dike.

pol·doo'dy (pōl·dōō'dĭ). Var. of POWLDOODY.

pole (pōl), n. [ME., fr. AS. pāl, fr. L. palus; akin to L. pangere to make fast. See PACT; cf. 4th PALE.] 1. A long, comparatively slender, usually cylindrical piece of wood or timber, as, typically, the stem of a small tree stripped of its branches; also, by extension, a similar typically cylindrical piece or object of metal or the like.
2. Specif.: a An upright standard to the top of which something is affixed or by which something is supported; as, a dovecote set on a pole; telegraph poles; a tent pole; sometimes, specif., a vessel's mast. b A polished upright mast in a firehouse by which persons may slide quickly from one story of a building to another. c A bar or rod from which to hang something; as, a curtain pole. d A long slender stick or staff manipulated by hand or used as a handle for an implement; as, to vault with a pole; a boatman's pole; as, specif., a ski pole; the pole of a harpoon. e A wooden shaft extending from the front axle of a vehicle between the wheel horses, by which the vehicle is held back; a tongue. f A short wooden column painted in stripes, erected or hung as a sign by barbers.
3. A measuring stick; also, a measure of length or surface; a rod; a perch. See MEASURE, Table.
4. The tail of certain birds and animals. Sporting Slang.
5. Bot. The flowering stalk of any species of Agave, esp. of the sisal.
6. Forestry. A tree whose breast-high diameter runs from four to twelve inches.
7. Racing. The inside position on a track.
8. Silk Mfg. Pile; as, pole warp.
☞ COMBINATIONS are:

pole-armed	pole-leaping, adj.	polesetter
pole-balancing, adj.	pole-masted	pole-setting, adj.
pole-dried	pole-pulling, adj.	pole-shaped

-pole (-pōl). A combining form of the first noun pole, as in flag*pole*, May*pole*, ridge*pole*.

pole (pōl), v. t.; POLED (pōld); POL'ING (pōl'ĭng). Transitive: 1. To act upon with a pole; as: a To furnish with poles for support. b To convey on poles. c To impel or push by a pole or poles, as a boat. d To strike or the like with a pole; esp., to strike with the end of a carriage pole.
2. Baseball. To hit (the ball) with a free swing of the bat when held at the end of the handle. Slang.
3. Metal. To subject to the operation of poling.
——, Intransitive: 1. To fight with a pole as weapon.
2. To propel a boat with a pole.
3. To sponge or impose. Colloq., Australia.
4. Bot. To flower; esp., to put forth its pole; — said of species of Agave.

pole (pōl), n. [ME., fr. OF. pole, fr. L. polus, fr. Gr. polos a pivot, axis, pole. See WHEEL; cf. PULLEY.] 1. Either extremity of an axis of a sphere; esp., an extremity of the earth's axis (geographical pole); as, the North Pole.
2. The firmament; the sky. Archaic.
3. Biol. a In organisms or cells, esp. egg cells, either of two morphologically or physiologically differentiated areas at opposite ends of an axis (see ANIMAL POLE, VEGETATIVE POLE). b An eminence, region, or point on a cell where an axis is regarded as ending, as at the origin of a nerve cell process or the base of a flagellum. c Either end of the spindle in mitosis.
4. Elec. a One of the two terminals of an electric cell, battery or dynamo. One of the terminals is at a higher potential; hence if the two are connected by an external conductor, an electric current will flow from the pole having the higher potential, called the positive pole, to the other, called the negative pole. b (1) One of the two points near the ends of a magnetized rod or bar, through which the lines of resultant force pass when the bar is placed in a uniform field of magnetic force. The resultant forces at the two poles are equal but in opposite directions. The magnetic poles of the earth are two points on its surface near the geographical poles; at either magnetic pole, a dip needle would assume a vertical position. (2) One of the two ends of a bar magnet. (3) The equivalent of the fictitious magnetic fluid used in mathematical discussions of a magnet; a unit pole is a unit amount of this fluid. c The parts of a circuit breaker or switch that control one line of a circuit.
5. Math. a The vertex (in a plane) of the pencil of lines in that plane that belong to a given linear complex. See LINEAR COMPLEX; POLAR, n. b One of the ends of the axis of a circle of the sphere. c In Maxwell's theory of spherical harmonics a point where any axis $h_1, \ldots h_p$ of the spherical harmonic $r^{p+1}\dfrac{\partial^p}{\partial h_1 \partial h_2 \ldots \partial h_p}\dfrac{1}{r}$ cuts the sphere of unit radius whose center is at the origin.
6. Theory of Functions. A point, a, where a function, $f(z)$, of a complex variable becomes infinite, but in such a way that $(z-a)^p f(z)$ is holomorphic at a, p being a positive integer. The least value of p is called the order of the pole.

pole (pōl), n. The pole flounder.

pole (pōl). Var. of POLL, POOL. Nova Dial.

Pole, n. [G. Pole Pole, Polen Poland.] 1. Poland. Obs.
2. A native or inhabitant of Poland; a Polander. The Poles are below medium stature, brachycephalic and blond, and probably represent an early race mixture. They are known for their vitality and industry. In religion they are largely Roman Catholic.
3. A Polish rabbit.

pole'arm' (pōl'ärm'), n. A weapon having a long handle, as a poleax or halberd.

pole'ax', pole'axe' (pōl'ăks'), n. [ME. pollax, polax; cf. LG. pollexe. See POLL head; AX.]
1. A battle-ax, originally long-handled, often with a hook or spike opposite the blade.
2. Nav. A short ax with a strong hook at the top of the handle, formerly used by boarders.
3. An ax with a hammer face opposite the edge, used in slaughtering cattle.

Poleax, 2

pole'ax', pole'axe', v. t. To attack, strike, or fell with or as with a poleax.

pole'ax'er (-ăk'sĕr), n. One who uses a poleax, as in fighting.

pole bean. Any long-stemmed variety of bean usually trained on poles, as the scarlet runner.

pole'burn' (pōl'bûrn'), n. Plant Pathol. A disease often attacking tobacco in the curing process, causing the leaves to blacken and assume a bitter flavor. It develops in damp weather, esp. if the leaves are too crowded.

pole'burn', v. i. To become affected with poleburn.

pole'cat' (pōl'kăt'), n.; pl. -CATS (-kăts'), sometimes -CAT. See PLURAL, Note. [ME. polcat, lit., poultry cat (it preys on poultry), fr. OF. pole, poule fowl, hen. See PULLET.]
a A European carnivorous mammal (Mustela putorius, syn. Putorius foetidus), of which the ferret is considered a domesticated variety. It is about two feet long, dark brownish above and blackish below, with white markings on the head. Similar species or varieties, to which the name also applies, occur in eastern Europe and Asia, as M. eversmanni, M. larvatus, and Vormela sarmaticus. b U. S. A skunk of the genus Mephitis. c S. Africa. The zoril. d The musang.

1/12
Polecat (Mustela putorius).

polecat tree or wood. The buckthorn Rhamnus caroliniana.

polecat weed. Skunk cabbage.

pole chain. a A Gunter's chain. See CHAIN, n., 13 a. b A chain joining the pole of a vehicle to the horse's collar.

pole changer. A device used to change the direction of flow of current in an electric circuit.

pole compass. Naut. A compass raised above the deck of an iron or steel vessel to lessen the effect on it of the hull's magnetism.

pole crab. A tip on a carriage pole, with two loops or rings for receiving the breast straps or chains.

pole effect. Physics. The minute change in wave length and marked change in character of many spectral lines in light emanating from the central region of a metallic arc as compared with light originating near the electrodes.

pole flounder or fluke. A large deep-water flounder (Glyptocephalus cynoglossus), of the North Atlantic.

pole, or poll, hammer. [Cf. POLEAX.] A long-handled medieval war hammer.

pole'head' (pōl'hĕd'), n. A tadpole. Obs. exc. Dial.

pole horse. A horse harnessed beside the pole; specif., a wheeler in distinction from a leader.

pole jump. = POLE VAULT. — pole'-jump', v.i. — pole jumper. — pole jumping.

pole lathe. A primitive form of lathe in which the cord passing around the work to rotate it is fastened at its ends to the treadle and to an elastic pole above.

pole'less mag'net. A magnet having a magnetic axis returning on itself.

pole'man (pōl'măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). A man who uses a pole, as in surveying, lumbering, fighting, etc.

pol'e·march (pōl'ĕ·märk), n. [Gr. polemarchos, fr. polemos war + archos leader.] Gr. Hist. A chieftain or military commander; at Athens, the third archon, who presided at the court which heard the causes of the metics.

pole mast. A mast in one length, as distinguished from one made up of lower mast, topmast, etc.

pole'-mast'ed, adj. Having pole masts.

po·lem'ic (pō·lĕm'ĭk), adj. [Gr. polemikos warlike, fr. polemos war; cf. F. polémique.] Of the nature of, pertaining to, or involving an aggressive attack on, or the refutation of, others' opinions, doctrines, or the like; controversial; as, polemic theology, writers, or bitterness; in a polemic spirit.

po·lem'ic, n. 1. A polemic argument or controversy.
2. One who controverts an opinion, doctrine, or system; an aggressive controversialist; disputant.
The sarcasms and invectives of the young polemic. Macaulay.

po·lem'i·cal (-ĭ·kăl), adj. 1. Pertaining to war. Rare.
2. Polemic; of the nature of a polemic; addicted to controversy; disputatious; as, a polemical essay; polemical journals or journalists.

po·lem'i·cal, n. A polemical controversy.

po·lem'i·cal·ly, adv. of POLEMIC, -ICAL.

pol'e·mi'cian (pŏl'ĕ·mĭsh'ăn), n. One given to polemics.

po·lem'i·cist (pō·lĕm'ĭ·sĭst), pol'e·mist (pŏl'ĕ·mĭst), n. One skilled in or given to polemics; also, a partisan advocate.

po·lem'ics (pō·lĕm'ĭks), n. [Cf. F. polémique.] Art or practice of disputation or controversy; specif., polemic theology, which has for its object refutation of errors. Cf. APOLOGETICS, IRENICS. See -ICS.

pol'e·mize (pŏl'ĕ·mīz), v. i. [Gr. polemizein to make war.] To dispute aggressively; to indulge in polemic. Rare.

Pol'e·mo'ni·a'ce·ae (pŏl'ĕ·mō'nĭ·ā'sē·ē), n. pl. [NL. See POLEMONIUM.] Bot. A family of widely distributed plants typifying the order Polemoniales, and containing 12 genera and 250 species. They are chiefly herbs with handsome flowers, the 5 stamens being inserted on the corolla tube, alternating with its lobes. Polemonium, Phlox, Gilia, and Cobaea are favorite genera in cultivation. — pol'e·mo'ni·a'ceous (-shŭs), adj.

Pol'e·mo'ni·a'les (pŏl'ĕ·mō'nĭ·ā'lēz), n. pl. [NL.] Bot. A large order of dicotyledonous herbs, shrubs or trees, having flowers with the stamens adnate to the corolla lobes, and a single superior compound ovary. Among the numerous families are the Convolvulaceae, Polemoniaceae, Lamiaceae, Solanaceae, and Scrophulariaceae.

Pol'e·mo'ni·um (-mō'nĭ·ŭm), n. [NL., fr. Gr. polemōnion, a kind of plant.] Bot. a A genus of herbs typifying the family Polemoniaceae. They have pinnate leaves and large cymose-paniculate flowers, with herbaceous calyx, declined stamens, and mucilaginous seeds. Several species, as P. reptans, P. caeruleum, etc., are grown under the name of Greek valerian. b [not cap.] A plant of this genus.

po·lem'o·scope (pō·lĕm'ō·skōp), n. [NL. polemoscopium, fr. Gr. polemos + skopos watcher, spy.] An opera or field glass with an oblique mirror arranged for seeing objects not directly before the eye.

Po·len'ske num'ber or val'ue (pō·lĕn'skĕ). [After E. Polenske, Ger. chemist.] Chem. A value obtained in testing butter and other fats, expressed as the number of cubic centimeters of decinormal alkali required to neutralize the volatile, water-insoluble acids from five grams of the fat or oil. Thus, for butter it is 1.5–3, for coconut oil 17–18.

po·len'ta (pō·lĕn'tä), n. [It., fr. L. See POLLEN.] A thick porridge of Indian meal, semolina, barley, or of chestnut meal. Italy.

Pole of Inaccessibility. The central point of the north polar region most difficult of penetration.

pole piece. 1. Harness. A stout strap connecting the horse's collar with the pole.
2. Arch. The ridgepole of a roof.
3. Elec. A piece of soft iron at a pole of an electromagnet to localize the lines of force; esp., any of the hollowed-out ends of the field magnets of a dynamo or motor.

pole'-pile', v. t. To stack on end against a center pole, as lumber for drying.

pole pitch. Elec. The distance measured on the circumference of the armature from the center of one pole to the center of the next pole; 180 electrical degrees. See 4th PITCH, 14.

pole plate. 1. Arch. A horizontal timber on the tie beams of a roof and receiving the ends of the rafters. It differs from the plate in not resting on the wall. See ROOF, Illust.
2. Biol. A condensed platelike body developed at each pole of the spindle in certain forms of mitosis, esp. in the Protozoa.

pol'er (pōl'ĕr), n. One who or that which poles; specif.: a A pole horse; a wheeler. b One who poles a boat, esp. a punt. c Copper Metal. A workman who performs the poling (sense c) in a refining furnace.

pole rot. = POLEBURN.

poles apart or asunder (pōlz). As far apart or as opposed as are the poles; hence, completely averse.

pole screen. A banner screen.

pole shoe. Elec. An iron or steel plate sometimes attached to a field-magnet pole to support the field coil.

Po·le'sian (pō·lē'shăn; -zhăn), n. [Russ. polesee forest land.] One of the people of Polesie, a county of eastern Poland, formerly in western Russia, in the marsh lands of Pinsk. The Polesians are Ruthenians and show exceptional brachycephaly.

poles of cold. Meteorol. Places where the winter cold is the most intense, usually in the interior of a continent. The lowest known average monthly temperature, in degrees Fahrenheit, is that of Verkhoyansk, Siberia (lat. 67° 32′ N., long. 133° 50′ E.), —56° for January. The next lowest is that of Fort Conger, Grinnell Land (81° 44′ N., 64° 45′ W.), —40° for February. The year's average at Fort Conger, —4°, is much lower than that of Verkhoyansk.

poles of the equator. Geom. See EQUATOR, n., 3.

poles of the heavens. Astron. Two opposite points of the celestial sphere where it is pierced by the earth's axis produced, and about which the heavens appear to revolve.

pole'-stack', v. t. To pole-pile.

pole'star' (pōl'stär'), n. 1. The North Star (def. 1.)
2. Figuratively: a A directing or controlling principle; a guide. b A center of attraction; a lodestar.

Pole Star. See ORDER, n., 1.

pole stock. Lumber used in making poles for vehicles and agricultural implements.

pole strap, or pole'strap', n. = POLE PIECE, 1.

pole strip. A template for spacing holes.

pole sweat. = POLEBURN.

pole tie. A tie made from a tree of such diameter that not more than one tie can be made from a cross section.

pole torpedo. = SPAR TORPEDO b.

pole'-trap', n. a A trap set on a pole. b A trap arranged with a bent pole to swing the animal off the ground when the trap is sprung.

po·lar·is'ing sac'cha·rim'e·ter. See SACCHARIMETER. po'lar·ly, adv. of POLAR. po'lar·ward, adv. See -WARD. polax. † POLEAX. [DRON. pol'dern, pol'dron. † POULpole'-clipt', adj. Entwined on poles. Obs. pole'less (pōl'lĕs; 119), adj. See -LESS. poles'man (pōlz'măn), n. = POLEMAN.

pole trawl. adj. A trawl net having the mouth spread open with a pole or beam.

pole vault. A vault or vaulting with the aid of a pole; specif., Athletics, a field event in which such vaulting, usually with a pole of bamboo, is performed for height or, sometimes, for distance. — pole'-vault', v. i. — pole vaulter. — pole vaulting.

Pole Vault.

pole'ward (pōl'wĕrd), pole'wards (-wĕrdz), adv. Toward a pole of the earth.

pole'wood' stage (pōl'-wŏŏd'). A stage in the development of a forest when the trees are of suitable size for poles.

pol'ey (pōl'ĭ), adj. [See POLL, v. & n.] Polled; hornless. Eng.

pol'i-ad (pŏl'ĭ-ăd), n. [Gr. polis city + 2d -ad.] A city nymph. Shelley.

pol'i-ad'ic (-ăd'ĭk), adj. Tutelary of a city or state; — said of a deity. Rare.

Po'li-an (pō'lĭ-ăn), adj. [Also not cap.] Pertaining to, or named after, the Italian naturalist G. S. Poli.

po'li-a-nite' (pō'lĭ-ȧ-nīt'), n. [Gr. poliainesthai to become gray.] Mineral. Manganese dioxide, MnO_2, in gray, metallic-looking tetragonal crystals. H., 6.–6.5. Sp. gr., 4.99.

Po'li-an'thes (pō'lĭ-ăn'thēz; pŏl'ĭ-), n. [NL., fr. Gr. polios gray + anthos flower.] Bot. A small genus of Mexican, tuberous herbs of the amaryllis family (Amaryllidaceae). They have tall wandlike stems, and spikes of fragrant white flowers borne in pairs, the tube of the perianth strongly curved. P. tuberosa is the tuberose.

po-lice' (pō-lēs'; dial. or humorous pō'lĭs, -lĭs; cf. POLIS), n. [F., fr. L. politia condition of a state, government, administration, fr. Gr. politeia, fr. politēs citizen, fr. polis city; akin to Skr. pur, pura, puri, Lith. pilis. Cf. ACROPOLIS, METROPOLIS, 1st POLICY.] 1. Policy; sagacity or diplomacy in affairs; craft; also, civilization; social or group organization. Now Rare.

2. The internal organization or regulation of a state; the control and regulation of a community or state through the exercise of the constitutional powers of government; esp., such control and regulation with respect to matters affecting the general comfort, health, morals, safety, or prosperity of the public; by extension, the control and regulation of the affairs affecting the general order, health, etc. (as the cleanliness of a camp), of any community; also, the organization or system of laws for effecting such control.

3. a The department of government charged with the enforcement of the laws and the maintenance of public order, safety, health, etc., having executive, judicial, and, in the broadest sense, legislative functions; now, esp., the department of government charged with the prevention, detection, and prosecution of public nuisances, crimes, etc. Its powers and functions vary widely in different states, municipalities, and communities. Cf. POLICE POWER. b The organized body or force of civil officials and officers in this department, esp., as a collective pl., the police officers or constabulary of a town, city, or other community.

4. Mil. a In the United States Army, the soldiers detailed for police duty. b The act or process of cleaning and putting in order a camp or garrison.

☞ COMBINATIONS are:

police-guarded, police-protected, police-ridden.

po-lice', adj. Of, pertaining to, or performed by, the police; used by or for police.

☞ PHRASES are:

police alarm	police boat	police detective police badge	police chief	police wagon police baton	police club	police whistle po-lice' (pō-lēs'), v. t.; -LICED' (-lēst'); -LIC'ING (-lēs'ĭng). [Cf. F. policer to govern.] 1. To govern; to maintain law and order in (a country).

2. To guard or keep in order by policemen, police boats, etc.; to provide with police; as, to police a coast constantly or a district adequately.

3. To bring under the control of the civil power; to regulate by law.

4. To make clean and put in order, as a military camp.

police burgh. See BURGH.

police commissioner. A civil officer, sometimes one of a board but more often an appointive executive, commissioned to regulate and control the appointment, duties, and discipline of the police.

police constable. A policeman.

police court. A court of record having jurisdiction over various minor offenses and power to bind over for trial in a superior court or for the grand jury persons accused of more serious offenses. Its jurisdiction corresponds to that of the common-law justice of the peace.

po-liced' (pō-lēst'), adj. 1. Regulated by laws enforced by organized administration. "A policed kingdom." Howell.

2. Furnished with a police force.

police dog. A dog, specif. one of wolflike appearance of any of several breeds developed in Europe, trained to assist police in their work, esp. in tracking criminals. Cf. GERMAN SHEPHERD DOG.

police inspector. A superior officer of police, usually ranking next below a commissioner, or superintendent.

police judge. A police justice.

police jury. In Louisiana, a body of officers who collectively exercise jurisdiction in certain cases of police, as levying taxes, regulating roads, etc.

police justice or magistrate. A judge of a police court.

police lantern. See LANTERN, Illust.

po-lice'man (pō-lēs'măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn).

1. A member of a body of police; a constable.

2. An instrument, as a flat piece of rubber on the end of a glass rod, for removing solids from a beaker or other vessel.

— po-lice'man-like' (-līk'), adj. — po-lice'man-ship, n.

police matron. A woman in a municipal police department who has charge of the women and children detained, as in police stations and jails.

police offenses. Law. Minor offenses against order, over which a police court may have final jurisdiction.

police officer. An officer in a police force; also, loosely, a policeman.

police power. Law. a The inherent power of a government to maintain the general security, general morals, and conditions of social and political life (11[1] Peters [U. S.] 102). b Under American constitutions which limit exercise of this power, that part of such power which is not restrained by the bills of rights (7 Cush. [Mass.] 85). Modern political science defines the power as a branch of internal administration in the exercise of which the executive should move within the lines of general principles prescribed by the constitution or the legislature, and in the exercise of which the most local governmental organizations should participate as far as possible (Burgess). Under this limitation the police power, as affecting persons, is the power of the state to protect the public against the abuse of individual liberty, that is, to restrain the individual in the exercise of his rights when such exercise becomes a danger to the community. The tendency of judicial and popular usage is toward this narrower definition.

police station. The headquarters of the police, or of a section of them; the place where the police assemble for orders, and to which they take arrested persons.

po-lice'wom'an (pō-lēs'wŏŏm'ăn), n.; pl. -WOMEN (-wĭm'-ĕn; -ĭn; 119). A woman who is a member of the police; a woman doing police duty.

Po'li'chi'nelle' (pō'lē'shē'nĕl'), n. [F., fr. Neapolitan dial. Polecenella. See PUNCHINELLO.] In French comedy, a hooked-nosed, deformed puppet, corresponding to the English Punch, the favorite character in puppet shows. The secret of Polichinelle is something everybody knows, but of which the very credulous make a mystery. Cf. PUNCHINELLO.

po-li'cial (pō-lĭsh'ăl), adj. Of or pert. to the police. Poe.

po-lic'ize (pŏ-lēs'ĭz), v. i. To govern by means of police.

pol'i-cize (pŏl'ĭ-sīz), v. i. To be politic, diplomatic, or crafty. — pol'i-ciz'er (-sīz'ĕr), n.

pol'i-clin'ic (pŏl'ĭ-klĭn'ĭk), n. [G. poliklinik.] Med. a Orig., a clinic held at private houses in a city [Gr. polis] or town, for treatment of patients by advanced students under supervision of a professor who seldom visited the patients but received daily reports from the students. b By extension, a dispensary or department of a hospital at which outpatients are treated. Cf. POLYCLINIC.

pol'i-cy (pŏl'ĭ-sĭ), n.; pl. POLICIES (-sīz). [ME. policie, fr. OF. policie, fr. L. politia, fr. Gr. politeia. In sense 6 influenced by L. politus polished. See POLICE; cf. POLITY, POLITICAL.] 1. Civil or ecclesiastical polity; government; the science of government; also, a government or state. Now Rare.

2. Prudence or wisdom in the management of public and private affairs; wisdom; sagacity; shrewdness; wit; as, the policy of such a course is doubtful.

The very policy of a hostess, finding his purse so far above his clothes, did detect him. Fuller.

3. A wise scheme or device; a contrivance, esp. a cunning contrivance; a stratagem; trick. Now Rare.

4. Management, administration, or procedure based primarily on temporal or material interest, rather than on higher principles; hence, more or less disparagingly, worldly wisdom; as, he allowed policy to outweigh honor.

5. A settled or definite course or method adopted and followed by a government, institution, body, or individual.

Honesty is the best policy. Old Saying.

6. a Obs. Scot. Act or process of improving an estate, town, building, etc., or improvements so made. b Often in pl. In Scotland, the improved grounds around a country house.

pol'i-cy, v. t. To govern; to regulate as by police or according to a definite policy.

pol'i-cy (pŏl'ĭ-sĭ), n. [F. police, fr. It. pólizza, fr. ML. apodixa a receipt, fr. Gr. apodeixis a showing forth, a proof, fr. apodeiknynai to show forth, exhibit, fr. apo off, from + deiknynai to show. See TOKEN.] 1. A certificate of insurance; any writing whereby a contract of insurance is made; the document containing the contract made by an insurance company with a person whose property or life is insured; often, an annuity contract or certificate of an insurance company. Principal types of policies are blanket or compound, when various items or classes of property (as building and contents) are covered under one sum of indemnity; specific, when only one item or class is covered; open, when covering goods of a stated class, which are subject to change in volume (as shipments over a period or merchandise in a store), the premium being computed periodically; standard, when prescribed by statute or when otherwise adopted generally by all insurers; limited, when certain classes or types of loss are specifically excluded; unlimited, when the policy covers substantially all hazards or types of loss contemplated under the particular kind of insurance or when there is no maximum limitation upon the company's liability; valued, when the insurer and insured agree upon a stated value, in advance of a loss, of the insured subject matter, to be accepted as the measure of liability in case of a total loss; and unvalued, when there is no such agreement, losses being settled on the basis of indemnity. In marine insurance, specif., policies are classified as full-form when the insurance covers partial as well as total losses; total loss only, when the insurer becomes liable only in the event of total loss and does not contribute to partial losses; time, when the insurance covers the property for a stated period, as a year; voyage, when only a stated voyage is covered; floating, when the policy does not specify the particular vessel to be used, or (called also floater) when the insured is not required to report in advance all the items of cargo or the means of transportation covered by the insurance; and wager, when the insured does not possess an insurable interest capable of legal proof.

2. A conditional promissory note, depending on the result of a wager. Now Rare. Eng.

3. A method of gambling by betting that certain numbers will be drawn in a lottery; as, to play policy.

4. A ticket or voucher, as a ballot, a pay warrant, etc. Obs.

pol'i-cy-hold'er (pŏl'ĭ-sĭ-hōl'dĕr), n. A person to whom an insurance policy has been granted.

policy loan. Life Insurance. A loan granted by the insurer to the policyholder, the security being the cash value of the policy.

policy of pinpricks. See PINPRICK.

policy of scuttle. See 3d SCUTTLE, 2.

policy proof of interest. Marine Insurance. A policy provision whereby the underwriter agrees to dispense with all proof of insurable interest, the policy being stamped accordingly as full interest admitted P.P.I., etc. It is generally used when the insured's interest is not capable of legal proof.

policy shop. A place where policy gambling is carried on.

policy year. Insurance. a The twelve months extending usually from noon of a given date to noon of the same date one year thereafter. b In certain types of insurance accounting, as liability, a period of 24 months within which all the one-year policies written during the first twelve months thereof will have matured and the losses have become known.

po'li-en-ceph'a-li'tis (pō'lĭ-ĕn-sĕf'ȧ-lī'tĭs; pŏl'ĭ-), n. [NL., fr. poli- + encephalitis.] Med. Inflammation of the gray matter of the brain.

po'li-en-ceph'a-lo-my'e-li'tis (-ĕn-sĕf'ȧ-lō-mī'ē-lī'tĭs), n. [NL.] Med. Inflammation of the gray matter of the brain and the spinal cord.

Pol'i-eus (pŏl'ĭ-ŭs), adj. [Gr.] Gr. Relig. Protector of the city (Athens); — an epithet of Zeus.

pol'i-gar (pŏl'ĭ-gär), n. [Marathi pālegār, fr. Skr. pālayan guarding.] A kind of feudal chief in the Madras Presidency; also, a follower, usually predatory, of such a chief, or a descendant from such a follower. India. — pol'i-gar-ship' (-shĭp'), n.

pol'ing (pōl'ĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of POLE. Specif. n.: a All the poles used for a certain purpose. b Forepoling. c Metal. A process used in refining certain metals, esp. copper, consisting in the introduction of poles of green wood into the molten metal. Gases are generated, which have a reducing action on oxides.

pol'ing-board' meth'od. Civ. Engin. A method of excavating wells by sections, of from 4 to 5 feet each in depth, each section being sheathed with vertical boards (poling boards) as it is finished.

Pol'i-ni'ces (pŏl'ĭ-nī'sēz), n. [NL., orig. Polynices, fr. L. Polynices, Gr. Polyneikēs, son of Oedipus.] A genus of predacious marine snails (family Naticidae), having rather large globose shells. They feed generally on other mollusks, esp. clams, drilling their way through the shell by means of their radula and extracting the soft parts within.

po'li-o- (pō'lĭ-ō-; pŏl'ĭ-ō-), po'li- (pō'lĭ-; pŏl'ĭ-). [See FALLOW pale.] A combining form, Greek polio-, poli-, from polios, meaning gray, as in *polio*sis, used chiefly to denote relation to the gray matter of the brain or spinal cord, as in *polio*myelitis, *poli*encephalitis.

po'li-o-my'e-li'tis (-mī'ē-lī'tĭs), n. [NL., fr. polio- + myelitis.] Med. Inflammation of the gray matter of the spinal cord. It occurs esp. in children, and the anterior horns are usually affected. See INFANTILE PARALYSIS.

po'li-o-my'e-lop'a-thy (-ō-mī'ē-lŏp'ȧ-thĭ), n. [polio- + myelo- + -pathy.] Med. Disease of the gray matter of the spinal cord.

po'li-o-neu'ro-mere (-nū'rō-mēr), n. [polio- + neuromere.] Anat. A segment of gray matter of the spinal cord.

pol'i-or-cet'ic (pŏl'ĭ-ôr-sĕt'ĭk; -sē'tĭk), adj. [Gr poliorkētikos.] Mil. Pertaining to sieges. Rare.

pol'i-or-cet'ics (-ĭks), n. Mil. Art of conducting sieges. Rare.

po'li-o'sis (pō'lĭ-ō'sĭs; pŏl'ĭ-), n. [NL., fr. poli- + -osis.] Canities.

po'lis (pō'lĭs). Var. of POLICE. Scot.

po'lis (pō'lĭs), n. [Gr.] Gr. Antiq. a A city in the physical sense, esp. its acropolis, as at Athens. b A city as a political unit; a commonwealth or state.

-polis. A combining form, Greek -polis, from polis, meaning city, as in cosmo*polis;* — often used jocosely, as in porko*polis*, theatro*polis*.

pol'ish (pŏl'ĭsh), n. 1. Act or process of polishing.

2. A smooth, glossy surface, often produced by friction; a gloss or luster; as, a table with a high polish.

3. Figuratively: a Refinement; culture.

This Roman polish and this smooth behavior. Addison.

b Finish; perfecting touches.

4. A preparation used to produce a gloss; as, shoe polish.

5. Rice polish (which see).

pol'ish (pŏl'ĭsh), v.; POL'ISHED (-ĭsht); POL'ISH-ING. [ME. polischen, fr. OF. polir, fr. L. polire; akin to L. linere to smear. See 1st LIME; cf. INTERPOLATE, POLITE; 2d -ISH. For po-, see POSITION.] Transitive: 1. To make smooth and glossy by a mechanical process, usually by friction; to burnish; to give luster to; as, to polish glass, metals, etc.

2. To smooth, soften, or refine in manners, style, etc.; to free from crudities or imperfections; to make elegant, cultured, or polite; to finish; as, to polish one's verses or deportment.

Societies, Polished in arts, and in punctilio versed. Wordsworth.

3. To transform or eliminate by polishing; — with away, into, out, etc.; as, to polish away one's crudities.

—, Intransitive: 1. To become smooth, or take on a gloss as from or through friction; as, steel polishes well.

2. To undergo refining; — chiefly in pres. part.

Syn. — POLISH, BURNISH, FURBISH. To POLISH is to make smooth or glossy by friction; fig., the word implies refinement, esp. by the removal of social roughness or crudeness; to BURNISH is to polish (esp. metal), commonly with something hard and smooth; to FURBISH (lit. and fig.) is to rub or brush (something) until it looks bright or new; the word is often used slightingly or in contempt; as, "window-panes which she had polished until they shone like jewels" (Mary Wilkins); "the most polished gentlemen of the most polished nation" (Landor); "burnished steel" (Tickell); "sunset's burnished gold" (Shelley); "furbished the rusty sword again" (Dryden); "I took it [the play] to make alterations . . . and furbished it up in a day or two" (Lamb); to furbish up one's Latin and Greek. Cf. LUSTER.

Ant. — Roughen, dull, dim.

polish off. Orig., to knock out (an opponent); hence, to dispose of summarily. Slang.

Pol'ish (pōl'ĭsh), adj. [From POLE a Polander.] Of or pertaining to Poland, its inhabitants, or their language.

Pol'ish (pōl'ĭsh), n. 1. The language of the Poles, belonging to the western group of Slavic languages. It employs the Roman alphabet, and has an extensive literature, beginning in medieval times. Beside the literary and national language, Great Polish, there are several dialects. See INDO-EUROPEAN LANGUAGES, Table; cf. KASUBIAN, MAZURIAN, SILESIAN POLISH, POSNANIAN.

2. a A domestic fowl of a European breed resembling the Leghorns. b A breed of very small snow-white rabbits.

3. A lace shoe five inches or more from the heel seat to the top and having the upper higher at the back than at the front; — said to have originated in Poland.

Pol'ish-. Polish, noun and adjective, used in combinations, as: Pol'ish-A-mer'i-can, Pol'ish-Jew', Pol'ish-made', Pol'ish-speak'ing.

Polish berry. A scale insect (Margarodes polonicus) of north and central Europe, whose body yields a red dye.

---

po'leyn (pō'lĭn), n [ME., fr. OF. poulain. See PULEYN.] A colt. Obs. [PULLEN.]

poleyn, poleyne. † POULAINE, ‖ po'leyne. See PULEYN.

po'li-. = POLIO-.

pol'i-. Poly-. Ref. Sp.

Pol'i-as (pŏl'ĭ-ăs), adj. [Gr.] See ATHENA.

po-lice'dom, n. See -DOM.

po-lice'less, adj. See -LESS.

po-lice'man-ish, adj. See -ISH.

po-lice'man-ism, n. See -ISM.

pol'i-crome. Polychrome. Ref. Sp.

pol'i-fase. Polyphase. Ref. Sp.

pol'i-fe'mous. Polyphemous. Ref. Sp.

pol'i-fone. Polyphone. Ref. Sp.

po-lig'a-my. Polygamy. Ref. Sp.

po-lig'i-ny. Polygyny. Ref. Sp.

pol'i-glot. Polyglot. Ref. Sp.

pol'i-gon. Polygon. Ref. Sp.

pol'i-graf, po-lig'ra-fy. Polygraph; polygraphy. Ref. Sp.

pol'i-he'dron. Polyhedron. R.S.

pol'i-morf. Polymorph. Ref. Sp.

pol'i-no'mi-al. Polynomial. R. S.

po'li-o-en-ceph'a-li'tis (pō'lĭ-ō-ĕn-sĕf'ȧ-lī'tĭs; pŏl'ĭ-ō-), n. [NL.] = POLIENCEPHALITIS.

po'li-o-en-ceph'a-lo-my'e-li'tis (-lō-mī'ē-lī'tĭs), n. [NL.] = POLIENCEPHALOMYELITIS.

pol'ip, pol'i-pet'al-ous. Polyp, polypetalous. Ref. Sp.

pol'ish-a-ble, adj. See -ABLE.

Polish bezique. A variation of bezique in which the winner of each trick may lay aside any high cards in it to form combinations in addition to those scored in his own hand.

Polish Bull. Astron. The constellation Taurus Poniatowskii.

Polish carpet or rug. a A Persian rug, late 16th to 18th century, with a silk pile and, usually, interwoven gold and silver threads; — known first in Polish collections. b A kind of tapestry-woven rug in which some metal thread is used.

Polish disease. = PLICA, 1.

Polish draughts or checkers. A variety of draughts, or checkers, played usually on a special board of 100 squares, in which the men can take opposing men by jumping backward as well as forward and kings can go any distance in one move.

pol'ished (pŏl'ĭsht), past part. & part. adj. of POLISH. Hence, adj.: Marked by cultivation and urbanity; elegant and refined; as, a polished gentleman. — pol'ished-ly, adv. — pol'ished-ness, n.

pol'ish-er (pŏl'ĭsh-ĕr), n. One who or that which polishes or refines; also, something used in polishing, as a shoe brush; specif.: a One whose work is to polish a (specified) thing, or in a (specified) way, as in:

bobbin polisher	die polisher	hand polisher button polisher	floor polisher	shoe polisher
diamond polisher	furniture polisher	twine polisher

b Bookbinding. A hand tool used hot to polish leathers, crush down leather grains, eliminate blisters on cloth covers, etc.

pol'ish-ing, pres. part. & verbal n. of POLISH.

polishing iron. An iron burnisher; esp., a small smoothing iron used in laundries.

polishing red. Colcothar or rouge.

polishing slate. a Petrog. A gray or yellow slate, found in Bohemia and Auvergne, and used for polishing glass, marble, etc. b A kind of hone or whetstone; hone slate.

pol'ish-ment (pŏl'ĭsh-mĕnt), n. A polishing; state of being polished. Rare.

Pol'ish mil'let (pōl'ĭsh). The crab grass Digitaria sanguinalis.

Polish National Catholic Church of America. A denomination which originated in 1904 as a combination of Polish churches in revolt against the Roman Catholic Church. Episcopal in government, it rejects the dogma of the infallibility of the Pope, and regards the hearing of the Word of God as preached by the Church as a sacrament.

Polish plait. Med. = PLICA, 1.

Polish rabbit. = 4th POLISH, 2 b.

Polish ragout. = BORSCH.

Polish Revolution. See REVOLUTION, Table.

Polish rug. = POLISH CARPET.

Polish sauce. Allemande flavored with horse-radish, lemon juice, pepper, and parsley.

Polish Succession, War of. A war fought (1733–35), chiefly in Italy, by France, Spain, and Sardinia against Russia and Austria, to establish Stanislas Leszczynski on the throne of Poland. See Vienna (1735), under TREATY, Table.

Polish swan. A supposed domestic variety of the mute swan having pale legs and white cygnets.

Polish wheat. The wheat Triticum polonicum or any of its varieties, not grown extensively in the United States. It has large loose spikes with conspicuous papery glumes and very hard large, long, yellowish-white kernels resembling those of durum wheat.

po'lis'soir' (pō'lē'swär'), n. [F.] a A polishing or grinding implement or instrument. b Glass Mfg. A tool consisting of a flat wooden block with a long iron or steel handle, for flattening out split cylinders of blown glass.

polissoir wheel. A lap.

‖po·lis'ta (pō-lĕs'tä), n. [Sp.] During the Spanish occupation of the Philippine Islands, a native who was subject to the service of forty days' work annually for the community.

Po·lis'tes (pō-lĭs'tēz), n. [NL., fr. Gr. polistēs founder of a city.] Zool. An extensive genus of social wasps having a spindle-shaped abdomen and wings which fold like a fan. They are mostly black with yellow markings, or brown. Their nests consist of a single comb of paperlike material suspended by a peduncle and having no envelope.

pol'i-tarch (pŏl'ĭ-tärk), n. [Gr. politarchēs.] A governor of citizens; — the title of civic magistrates in some Oriental cities, under the Romans. — pol'i-tar'chic (-tär'kĭk), adj.

Po·lit'bu·ro, n. Also Po·lit'bu·reau (pō-lĭt'bū-rō). Russ. [politicheskoe political + byuro bureau.] The inner executive committee or controlling body of the Russian Communist party, and the bureau of foreign Communist propaganda.

po·lite' (pō-lĭt'), adj.; PO·LIT'ER (-lĭt'ĕr); PO·LIT'EST (-lĭt'ĕst; -ĭst; 119). [L. politus, past part. of polire. See POLISH, v.] 1. Smooth; polished. Obs. "A polite surface." Sir I. Newton.

2. In order; neat; well-kept; tidy.

3. Polished, refined, or cultivated. Specif.: a Of, pertaining to, or characteristic of, highly civilized or cultivated persons, classes, or races; belonging to an advanced culture; — now chiefly in phrases, as: polite society, the polite languages or arts, polite letters. b Of a person, cultivated; urbane; polished; courteous, versed in usages of polite society.

He marries, bows at court, and grows polite. Pope.

4. Marked by courtesy, good breeding, or tact; in accordance with etiquette; as, a polite answer, attention, introduction, or letter.

Syn. — POLITE, GENTLE, GENTEEL. POLITE, as here compared (see CIVIL), applies to that which is characterized by culture or refinement; GENTLE, in the sense here distinguished (cf. GENTLE), suggests good or honorable birth; as, polite society, polite literature; gentle blood, extraction, gentle breeding. GENTEEL now commonly implies a more or less vulgar affectation of fineness or gentility; as, "country or Bavarian beer not being genteel enough for the hotel" (Thackeray); "Swaying her rattling skirts with a genteel air" (Mary Wilkins); cf. shabby-genteel.

Ant. — Crude, coarse, boorish, rough.

po·lite', v. t. To polish. Obs.

po·lite'ful (-fŏŏl; -fĭ), adj. Very polite. Colloq.

po·lite'ly (-lĭ), adv. of POLITE (in all senses); also, Obs., ornately.

po·lite'ness, n. The quality or condition of being polite (in any sense); polite culture, society, manners, etc.; the code of polite society; as, known for his politeness; a race's decline in politeness; politeness demands an answer.

pol'i-tesse' (pŏl'ĭ-tĕs', F. pō'lē'tĕs'), n. [F., fr. It. politezza, pulitezza.] Formal politeness; decorousness.

And gather politesse from courts abroad. Gay.

pol'i·tic (pŏl'ĭ-tĭk), adj. [OF, politique, fr. L. politicus political, fr. Gr. politikos belonging to the citizens or to the state, fr. politēs citizen. See POLICE; cf. POLITICAL.] 1. Of or pertaining to polity, or civil government; political; — now Rare, except in the body politic (which see).

He with his people made all but one politic body. Sir P. Sidney.

2. Pert. to a constitutional, as distinguished from a despotic, state or government; constitutional. R. Oxf. E. D.

3. Sagacious in devising or promoting a policy; skillful or ingenious in statecraft or management; also, of measures, plans, etc., indicating a policy or design; shrewdly contrived, esp. with regard to self-interest; expedient.

The more astute and politic Hamilton was better qualified . . . to seize opportunities. J. W. Burgess.

Is a politic act the worse for being a generous one? Burke.

4. Exercising, manifesting, or proceeding from, policy, or craft; — artful in address or procedure; shrewdly tactful; worldly-wise; as, a politic answer or move; a very politic adversary.

5. Polished; cultivated. Scot. Rare.

Syn. — Discreet, provident, diplomatic, wary. See WISE.

Ant. — Unwise, inexpedient, impolitic.

pol'i·tic, n. 1. A politician. Obs. or Archaic. Stevenson.

2. A politique. See POLITIQUE b.

3. Policy; politics. Obs.

4. See POLITICS, 1.

po·lit'i·cal (pō-lĭt'ĭ-kăl), adj. [L. politicus. See POLITIC.] 1. Of or pertaining to polity, or politics, or the conduct of government, referring in the widest application to the judicial, executive, and legislative branches; of or pertaining to, or incidental to, the exercise of the functions vested in those charged with the conduct of government; relating to the management of affairs of state; as, political theories.

2. Having, or conforming to, a polity, or settled system of administration; as, a political body or government.

3. Of or pertaining to the exercise of the rights and privileges or the influence by which the individuals of a state seek to determine or control its public policy; having to do with the organization or action of individuals, parties, or interests that seek to control the appointment or action of those who manage the affairs of a state; as, his political affiliations were with the Republicans.

4. Of or pertaining to those who make a business or profession of politics, or politicians in their partisan activities; as, he is actuated by merely political motives.

5. = POLITIC, 3 & 4. Obs.

po·lit'i·cal, n. 1. A political officer, agent, or the like; specif., in India, a political agent (which see).

2. Also: a Rare. A politician. b A political prisoner or offender. c Obs. pl. Politics.

political action. Econ. Action designed to attain its purpose by recognized political means, as party organization, suffrage, legislation, etc.; — contrasted with direct action.

political agent. India. A British political officer dealing with and advising the ruler of a native state.

political arithmetic. Statistics. The study of the social and financial statistics of a state or states.

political day. A civil day; = DAY, 3.

political economist. One who is versed in, or a student of, political economy; esp., a teacher of, or writer on, economics.

political economy. Orig., the art of regulating the politics or policy of a government for the promotion of the wealth of the community and the government; now, the science more appropriately called economics (which see).

political geography. See GEOGRAPHY, 2.

po·lit'i·cal·ism (pō-lĭt'ĭ-kăl-ĭz'm), n. Zeal in politics.

po·lit'i·cal·ize (-ĭz), v. t. To make political; to imbue with politics.

political liberty. See LIBERTY, n., 5.

po·lit'i·cal·ly, adv. 1. In a politic manner; politicly.

2. In a political manner or relation; as regards politics.

political offense. A violation of a law or of the public peace for public rather than private reasons, in contradistinction to a crime of moral nature, as murder, arson, or theft, which disturbs the general peace. Political offenders are usually not extraditable. See EXTRADITION, n., 1.

political officer. India. A representative, as a resident, agent, or political agent, serving as the only channel of communication between native States and the government of British India.

political prisoner. A person in custody or imprisoned for a political offense.

political rights. Those rights implying participation, either direct or indirect, in the establishment or administration of the government.

political science. That branch of the social sciences dealing with the organization and government of states. It is synonymous with politics (see POLITICS, 1) in the broader sense of that term and is more comprehensive than civics. Political science is primarily concerned with the conscious definite purpose of society to establish authority (government) and to determine its functions (law); it does not go back to the origins of social institutions (sociology) nor to the causes of human actions (psychology) nor does it directly deal with the social phenomena connected with materials (economics) nor with individual human beings as causative factors (history), but it is very closely related to all of these branches of knowledge. — political scientist.

political verse. A Byzantine or modern Greek type of accentual verse, esp. of fifteen-syllabled iambic lines.

po·lit'i·cas'ter (pō-lĭt'ĭ-kăs'tĕr; pŏ-lĭt'ĭ-kăs'tĕr), n. [It. & Sp. politicastro. See 2d -ASTER.] An unstatesmanlike practitioner of politics; a petty politician.

pol'i·ti'cian (pŏl'ĭ-tĭsh'ăn), n. 1. A politic person; a schemer; an intriguer. Obs.

2. One versed or experienced in the science of government; one devoted to politics; a statesman.

3. One addicted to, or actively engaged in, politics as managed by parties (see POLITICS, 2); often, more or less disparagingly, one primarily interested in political offices or the profits from them as a source of private gain; as, a mere politician.

4. One who views the state as without inherent power over religion. Obs.

Syn. — POLITICIAN, STATESMAN. In modern usage POLITICIAN commonly implies activity in party politics, esp. with a suggestion of artifice or intrigue; STATESMAN now usually suggests broad-minded and far-seeing sagacity in affairs of state; as, "What makes Burke stand out so splendidly among politicians is that he treats politics with his thought and imagination" (M. Arnold); "He has . . . a loose, shifty expression of face, and one which gives you the impression of a thorough politician in the bad sense of the word" (E. L. Godkin); "The ideas which began the new Germany were due to this quiet, strong, faithful, persistent, self-respecting statesman" (Andrew D. White); "The difference between a politician and a statesman is that the politician thinks of himself and his party; the statesman thinks of the people and the country" (A. L. Kinsolving).

pol'i·ti'cian (pŏl'ĭ-tĭsh'ăn), adj. Rare. a Politic. b Characterized by politics.

pol'i·ti'cious (pŏl'ĭ-tĭsh'ŭs), adj. Crafty; politic. Rare.

po·lit'i·cist (pō-lĭt'ĭ-sĭst), n. A student of political science. R.

po·lit'i·cize (-sīz), v. i. To discuss, or take part in, politics. — v. t. To give a political tone to; to bring within the sphere of politics. — po·lit'i·ciz'er (-sīz'ĕr), n.

po·lit'i·co (pō-lĭt'ĭ-kō), n. [It. politico or Sp. político.] A politician, esp. in Spanish-speaking countries; — often in a derogatory sense.

po·lit'i·co-, po·lit'i·co- (pō-lĭt'ĭ-kō-). A combining form from Greek politikos, meaning civic, political, used to denote: a Politics; — in nouns, as in po·lit'i·co·ma'ni·a, po·lit'i·co·pho'bi·a. See -MANIA, -PHOBIA. b Politically, political and; — in adjectives, as in po·lit'i·co-commer'cial, pertaining to both politics and commerce, or to either as affected by or combined with the other. For words below see the word with which politico- is combined.

politico-arithmetical	politico-judicial	politico-religious politico-ecclesiastical	politico-military	politico-sacerdotal politico-economical	politico-moral	politico-scientific politico-ethical	politico-orthodox	politico-social politico-geographical	politico-peripatetic	politico-theological pol'i·tics (pŏl'ĭ-tĭks), n. Plural in form, but construed either as pl. or as sing.; see -ICS. [Cf. F. politique, Gr. politikē (sc. epistēmē). See POLITIC.] 1. a The science and art of government; the science dealing with the organization, regulation, and administration of a state, in both its internal and external affairs; political science. b Specif., Hist., that branch of ethics dealing with the ethical relations and duties of states or social organizations, — in this sense also politic. See -ICS.

2. The theory or practice of managing or directing the affairs of public policy or of political parties; hence, political affairs, principles, convictions, opinions, sympathies, or the like; in a bad sense, artful or dishonest management to secure the success of political candidates or parties.

3. Political affairs viewed as a profession, interest, or the like; as, to enter politics; to discuss politics; the reformation of politics.

4. In extended senses: a Politic management, conduct, or scheming. b Factional interests; partisan rivalry; as, a matter of college politics.

pol'i·tied (pŏl'ĭ-tĭd), adj. Having or furnished with a polity; as a politied church.

Po'lĭ'tique' (pō'lē'tēk'), n. [F., lit., politic.] a Hist. One of a party which arose in France after the Massacre of St. Bartholomew, composed of Catholics and Protestants who held that the state should tolerate both religions. b Obs. [not cap.] A temporizer or indifferentist in religion; — usually politic.

pol'i·tist (pŏl'ĭ-tĭst), n. One versed in polity. Rare.

pol'i·tize (pŏl'ĭ-tīz), v. i. To play the politician; also, to deal politically. Rare. — v. t. To treat in a politic way. Obs.

pol'i·ty (pŏl'ĭ-tĭ), n.; pl. -TIES (-tĭz). [OF. politie, fr. L. politia. See 1st POLICY.] 1. Form or constitution of the government of a state, or, by extension, of any institution or organization similarly administered; the general or fundamental system or organization of a government as determined by the theory on which it is based as to the object it aims to accomplish, its relation to the people, their political and civil rights, etc.; by extension, the constitution or organization in an analogous institution, esp. in a religious denomination; as, the influence of English law upon the American polity; a church without a polity.

2. A politically organized community; a state.

3. Policy. Specif.: a Obs. Politic management; prudent government. b A definite course of action; procedure.

4. A group, complex, or the like viewed as an organized or organic unit obedient to its own laws. "Undiscovered country beyond the polity of science." James Ward.

po·litz'er·ize (pō-lĭt'sĕr-īz), v. t. & i.; -IZED (-īzd); -IZ'ING (-īz'ĭng). [After Adam Politzer (1835–1920), of Vienna.] Med. To inflate the middle ear of (a patient) by blowing air up the nose during the act of swallowing; — po·litz'er·i·za'tion (-ĭ-zā'shŭn; -ī-zā'shŭn), n.

Po·lix'e·nes (pō-lĭk'sē-nēz), n. The unjustly suspected king of Bohemia, father of Florizel, in Shakespeare's Winter's Tale.

‖Po'li·zei' (pō'lĭ-tsī'), n. [G.] The police.

polk (pōlk). Var. of PULK.

polk (pō(l)k), v. i. [F. polker.] To polka. Colloq.

pol'ka (pō(l)'kä; Brit. pŏl'kä), n. [F., prob. ult. fr. Pol. Polka a Polish woman.] 1. A vivacious hopping dance of Bohemian origin performed by two persons in duple time, and very popular in the 19th century.

A Polka Rhythm.

2. Music. A lively Bohemian dance tune in $\frac{2}{4}$ measure, with the third eighth note (second beat) accented.

pol'ka (pō(l)'kä; Brit. pŏl'kä), v. i.; -KAED (-kăd); -KA·ING. To dance the polka.

pol'ka, n., or polka jacket. A kind of knit or cloth jacket worn by women.

polka dot. In textile fabrics, a pattern of many round dots regularly distributed.

pol'ka-dot'ted, adj. Spotted with or as if with polka dots.

polka mazurka. a A modified polka using a mazurka step. It is in six movements occupying two bars of $\frac{3}{4}$ time. b Music. A dance tune in slow triple measure, accented on the last beat.

poll (pōl), n. Also pol. [Gr. hoi polloi the many, the rabble.] Camb. Univ., Eng. a Collectively, with the, the students who "go up" for, or obtain, a pass or ordinary degree (poll degree), that is, a degree without honors. b A poll degree.

poll (pōl), n. [ME. pol, polle, fr. MD. polle; akin to EFris. pol round, bulging, and to L. bulla bubble. See BULB; cf. POLEAX, POLLIWOG, TADPOLE.] 1. The head; the skull; esp., the back or back and top of the head, as covered by hair; also, the nape of the neck. "All flaxen was his poll." Shak.

2. The broad or flat end of a hammer or similar tool.

3. a The casting or recording of the votes of a body of persons. b The result of the counting of such votes; the number of such votes cast. c The place where the votes are cast or recorded; as, to go to the polls; — usually in pl. in pol'ished-stone' age. See NEOLITHIC.

---

pol'isht. Polished. Ref. Sp.

pol'i·sil'la·ble. Polysyllable. R.S.

pol'i·sin'de·ton. Polysyndeton. Ref. Sp.

po·lis'man. Var. of POLICEMAN. Scot.

pol'i·tec'nic. Polytechnic. R.S.

po·li'tian (pō-lĭsh'ăn), n. [MF. policien.] A politician. Obs.

po·lit'i·cal-mind'ed (66), adj. See -MINDED.

pol'i·ti'cian-proof' (66), adj. See -PROOF.

pol'i·tic·ly, adv. of POLITIC.

pol'i·ture (pŏl'ĭ-tûr), n. [L. politura, fr. polire to polish.] Polish; gloss; refinement. Obs.

Pol'i·u'chos (pŏl'ĭ-ū'kŏs), adj. See ATHENA.

Po'lĭ'xène' (pō'lē'ksĕn'), n. See MADELON. [Dial.] polke. Var. of PULK, pool. Now the United States. d A register or list of persons on whom a poll tax is to be levied. e The list or register of the electors who may vote, or of those who have voted, in an election.

---

4. A poll tax.
5. The crown of a hat, cap, or the like.
6. Obs. a A unit or an individual in a number; a head. b A number or aggregate of heads counted; also, the counting of heads.

poll (pōl), v.; POLLED (pōld); POLL'ING. [From POLL head.] Transitive: 1. To cut off or cut short the hair, wool, or the like of; to shear; clip; as, to poll a man or a man's head; to poll sheep; also, to cut off or cut short (the hair, etc.). 2. a To cut off the head or top of, as a tree or plant; to pollard; also, rarely, to cut off (the top or head). b To cut off or cut short the horns of (cattle).
3. To practice extortion on; to despoil; fleece. Archaic.
4. To enter, as polls or persons, in a list or register; to enroll, as in order to count; to enumerate; specif.: a To receive and register the votes of; — usually in past part.; as, the county was polled on the question. b To call on each member of (a jury) to answer individually as to his concurrence in a verdict rendered.
5. To register or deposit, as a vote; also, to elicit or call forth, as votes or voters; as, he polled a hundred votes.
6. To pay as one's personal tax. Obs.
7. Law. To cut even without indentation. See DEED POLL.
—, Intransitive: 1. To commit extortion; to plunder.
2. To cast one's vote at a poll.

poll (pōl), adj. Chiefly Law. Polled, as contrasted with indented; as, a deed poll.

poll (pōl), n. A polled animal; as, a Scotch poll.

Poll, poll (pŏl), n. See POLLY b.

poll, polle (pōl), n. [Origin uncert.] A measure of land in Ireland, of fifty or sixty acres. Obs. exc. Hist.

Poll (pŏl), n. Dim. of MARY.

poll'a·ble (pōl'ȧ·b'l), adj. That can be polled, as a vote.

pol'lack (pŏl'ăk), pol'lock (-ăk), n.; pl. -LACK, -LOCK, sometimes -LACKS (-ăks), -LOCKS (-ăks). See PLURAL, Note. [Origin uncert.; cf. Gael. pollag a little pool, a sort of fish.] Any of several marine fishes (family Gadidae) belonging to the genera Pollachius and Theragra. The true pollack (Pollachius pollachius) inhabits the Atlantic coast of Europe; a closely allied species (P. virens, syn. carbonarius), called also coalfish, occurs on both the European and American coasts and resembles the cod, but is darker and more lustrous, with a longer lower jaw; the Alaska pollack (T. chalcogramma) is widely diffused in the North Pacific. All are valued for food.

Pollack (Pollachius virens).

pol·lack' (pŏ·lăk'), n. The polack.

poll adz. A tool having a head consisting of an adz on one side and a hammer poll on the other.

poll'age (pōl'ĭj), n. A poll tax; also, extortion. Rare.

pol'la·ki·u'ri·a (pŏl'ȧ·kĭ·ū'rĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. Gr. pollakis often + -uria.] Med. Abnormally frequent urination.

pol'lam (pŏl'ăm), n. [Tamil pālaiyam, fr. Skr. pālayan guarding.] A district held in a sort of feudal tenure by a poligar. India.

pol'lam (pŏl'ăm), n. sing. & pl. [Tamil palam, fr. Skr. pala.] See WEIGHT, Table.

pol'lan (pŏl'ăn), n. [Cf. Ir. pollōg a kind of fish, Gael. pollag.] A lake whitefish (Coregonus pollan), native of Ireland.

pol'lar·chy (pŏl'är·kĭ), n. [Gr. polys, pl. polloi, many + -archy.] Polyarchy. Rare.

pol'lard (pŏl'ērd), n. [See POLL, v., POLL head.] 1. a A stag that has cast its antlers. b A hornless animal (cow or sheep).
2. In England (13th century), a clipped coin. Cf. CROCARD. Obs. exc. Hist.
3. A tree which has been cut back to the trunk to promote the growth of a dense head of foliage.
4. A coarse kind of bran obtained from wheat, and sometimes used for feeding stock.
5. Pollard wheat. Obs.

pol'lard, v. t.; POL'LARD·ED; POL'LARD·ING. 1. To remove the crown of (a tree); to cut back or convert into a pollard.
2. To kill (rabbits) by feeding with poisoned grain or pollard. New Zealand.
3. To carve or cut so as to suggest a pollard (esp. sense 3).

pol'lard (pŏl'ērd), adj. 1. Of wheat, beardless; awnless. Obs.
2. Of a tree, pollarded.
Under the pollard lime trees. Galsworthy.

poll'book' (pōl'bŏŏk'), n. A register of electors entitled to vote, or of those who have voted at a given poll.

poll booth. A polling booth.

poll deed. A deed poll. Now Rare.

polled (pōld), past tense & past part. of POLL. Specif.: adj. a Shaved; shorn. b Hornless; as, polled cattle; Polled Durham. c Pollarded.

polled, adj. Having (such) a poll; — chiefly in combination, as in red-polled.

Polled Angus. = ABERDEEN ANGUS.

Polled Durham or Shorthorn. An animal of a breed of hornless cattle similar to and originating chiefly from hornless shorthorns.

pol'len (pŏl'ĕn), n. [L. pollen, pollinis, fine flour, fine dust; akin to L. polenta peeled barley, pulvis dust, Gr. palē fine meal, dust, poltos pap, porridge, MIr. littiu, Skr. palala ground sesame seeds. Cf. POWDER, PULSE seeds.] 1. Fine flour or meal. Obs.
2. Bot. The mass of microspores in seed plants. Pollen usually appears as a fine yellow dust, each grain being a spore consisting of a single cell of various shapes, with the outer wall (exine) often finely sculptured. They are formed as tetrads by the division of the pollen mother cells. In some families, as the Orchidaceae and Asclepiadaceae, the pollen is aggregated into viscid or waxy masses (pollinia). In angiosperms the pollen lodges on the stigmatic part of the pistil, where the microspores germinate, sending out a tube through which the male generative cell passes to the ovule, where it fuses with the egg cell of the embryo sac; the fertilized ovule then develops into the structure known as a seed. See MICROSPORE, 1; FERTILIZATION, 2, SEED; TETRAD.

☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:
pollen-bearing pollen-devouring pollen-eating pollen-covered pollen-dusted pollen-sprinkled pol'len (pŏl'ĕn), v. t. To pollinate; to cover with pollen.

pol'len. Var. of POLLAN.

pollen basket. The pollen plate, or corbicula, of a bee.

pollen brush. A brushlike organ on the leg or body of a bee, used for carrying pollen to the hive or nest.

pollen catarrh or fever. Med. Hay fever.

pollen chamber. A small chamber in the nucellus for the reception of the pollen grain.

pol'lened (pŏl'ĕnd), adj. Covered with pollen; containing pollen.

polleni-. Var. of POLLINI-, as in: pol'len·if'er·ous, pol'·len·ig'er·ous, pol'len·iv'o·rous.

pol·le'nite (pŏ·lē'nīt), n. [From Vallone di Pollena, Monte Somma, Italy.] Petrog. A trachytic rock composed of sanidine, much less oligoclase, and sodalite, nephelite, biotite, olivine, titanite, and garnet.

pollen mass. Bot. A pollinium.

pollen plate. In bees, a pollen brush when consisting of a flat or concave area on the hind tibia bordered with stiff hairs.

pollen sac. See MICROSPORANGIUM.

pol'lent (pŏl'ĕnt), adj. [L. pollens, pres. part. of pollere to be strong.] Powerful. Browning.

pollen tube. Bot. The tube developed from the wall of the pollen grain in fertilization. See POLLEN, 2.

pol'er (pōl'ẽr), n. [From 3d POLL.] One who polls; specif.: a One who polls or lops trees. b Obs. A barber. c Obs. A taxgatherer; hence, an extortioner or plunderer. d One who registers voters, or one who votes.

pol·le'ten (pŏl·lā'tĕn), n. pl. [Sw.] A series of tokens of copper, brass, and zinc, used in and around Stockholm.

poll evil (pōl). Veter. A suppurative inflammation in the region of the poll of the horse, the result of bruising and infection with pus-producing organisms.

pol'lex (pŏl'ĕks), n.; pl. POLLICES (-ĭ·sēz). [L., the thumb.] Anat. & Zool. a The first (preaxial) digit of the forelimb, the thumb. In birds it supports the bastard wing. b The movable finger, or dactylopodite, in the chela of a crustacean.

poll hammer. Pole hammer.

pol'li·cal (pŏl'ĭ·kăl), adj. Of or pertaining to the pollex.

pol'li·car (-kẽr), adj. [L. pollicaris.] Pollical. Rare.

‖pol'li·ce ver'so (pŏl'ĭ·sē vûr'sō). [L.] With thumb turned (downward), or reversed, — the sign by which the spectators at the Roman gladiatorial combats condemned a vanquished gladiator to death.

pol·lic'i·ta'tion (pŏ·lĭs'ĭ·tā'shŭn), n. [L. pollicitatio, fr. pollicitari to promise, v. intens. fr. polliceri to promise.]
1. A promising or a promise. Now Rare.
2. a Rom. Law. An offer unaccepted or informal promise not accepted by the promisee. It was made enforceable as to promise of dos by late legislation. b Civil Law. A promise or proposal not accepted; an unaccepted offer.

pol'li·nar (pŏl'ĭ·nẽr), adj. [LL. pollinaris pertaining to fine flour.] Covered with pollenlike dust.

pol'li·nar'i·um (pŏl'ĭ·nâr'ĭ·ŭm), n.; pl. -IA (-ȧ). [NL.] Rare. Bot. a A pollinium. b An androecium. c A cystidium.

pol'li·nate (pŏl'ĭ·nāt), v. t. Bot. To perform pollination on.

pol'li·na'tion (-nā'shŭn), n. Bot. a The transfer of pollen from the androecium to the gynoecium. See CROSS-POLLINATION a. b Loosely, fertilization.

pol'li·na'tor (pŏl'ĭ·nā'tẽr), n. a One who performs pollination. b = POLLINIZER, 1.

pol·linc'tor (pŏ·lĭngk'tẽr), n. [L.] Rom. Antiq. One who prepared corpses for the funeral.

pol·linc'ture (-tūr), n. [L. pollingere, pollinctum, to wash (a corpse) and prepare it for the funeral pile.] Preparation of a corpse for interment or cremation. Obs.

poll'ing (pōl'ĭng), n. a Act of one who or that which polls; specif., the casting of ballots by an electorate at the polls. b Something polled, or cut or lopped off; — usually in pl.; as, the pollings of a beard.

poll'ing, adj. a That polls. b Of, or pertaining to, the registering or casting of votes, as at an election; as, a polling booth, where votes are cast; polling clerk.

polling penny. Money for a poll tax; pl., a poll tax. Obs.

pollini-, pollin-. A combining form from Latin pollen, pollinis, meaning pollen, as in pol'li·niv'o·rous. See -VOROUS.

pol·lin'ic (pŏ·lĭn'ĭk), -lin'i·cal (-ĭ·kăl), adj. Bot. Pertaining to pollen.

pol'li·nif'er·ous (pŏl'ĭ·nĭf'ẽr·ŭs), adj. [pollini- + -ferous.] 1. Bot. Bearing or producing pollen.
2. Zool. Adapted for the purpose of carrying pollen.

pol'li·nig'er·ous (-nĭj'ẽr·ŭs), adj. [pollini- + -gerous.] Polliniferous.

pol·lin'i·um (pŏ·lĭn'ĭ·ŭm), n.; pl. -IA (-ȧ). [NL. See POLLEN.] Bot. A coherent mass of pollen grains. Pollinia are especially characteristic of the orchid and milkweed families, and often have a stalk bearing an adhesive disk, which clings to visiting insects and facilitates withdrawal of the whole pollinium from its receptacle. Pollinia-bearing plants are in general heterogamous. See ASCLEPIAS, Illust.

pol'li·nize (pŏl'ĭ·nīz), v. t. To pollinate. — pol'li·ni·za'tion (pŏl'ĭ·nĭ·zā'shŭn; -nĭ·zā'-), n.

pol'li·niz'er (pŏl'ĭ·nīz'ẽr), n. 1. Bot. A plant used to furnish pollen in crossbreeding; a male parent.
2. One who or that which performs the operation of crosspollination.

pol'li·no'di·um (-nō'dĭ·ŭm), n.; pl. -DIA (-ȧ). [NL., fr. L. pollen (see POLLEN) + Gr. eidos form.] Bot. In certain fungi (class Phycomycetes), a hyphal branch which functions as an antheridium. — pol'li·no'di·al (-ăl), adj.

pol'li·noid (pŏl'ĭ·noid), n. [pollin- + -oid.] Bot. In red algae, a spermatium.

pol'li·nose (-nōs), adj. [L. pollen, -inis, dust.] Zool. Covered with yellow pollenlike dust.

pol'li·no'sis (pŏl'ĭ·nō'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. pollin- + -osis.] Med. Disease caused by pollen; hay fever.

pol'li·wog (pŏl'ĭ·wŏg), n. [ME. polwigle. See POLL head; WIGGLE.] A tadpole.

poll money (pōl). A poll tax. Obs.

poll parrot (pōl). A tame parrot. Colloq.

poll'·par'rot, v. i. & t. To chatter or repeat as a parrot. — poll'·par'rot·y, adj.

poll pick (pōl). Mining. A single-pointed pick having a short poll, or striking head. See PICK, n., Illust.

poll sickness. = POLL EVIL.

poll silver. = 2d POLL, 4. Obs.

poll tax. A tax of so much per head or person, levied usually on every male person over a given age.

pol·lu'cite (pŏ·lū'sīt; pŏl'ū·sīt), n. [See POLLUX; CASTORITE.] Mineral. A colorless transparent mineral, crystallizing in cubes, or massive. It is a hydrous cesium aluminum silicate.

pol·lut'ant (pŏ·lūt'ănt), n. That which pollutes. Rare.

pol·lute' (pŏ·lūt'), v. t.; -LUT'ED (-lūt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -LUT'ING (-lūt'ĭng). [L. pollutus, past part. of polluere to defile, to pollute; akin to L. lustrum bog, den, lutum mud, Gr lyma filth, OIr. loth. Cf. 1st LUTE.] To make or render impure or unclean, ceremonially, physically, or morally; to impair or destroy the purity or sanctity of; to defile; desecrate; profane; corrupt; befoul; as, to pollute an altar or sacrificial offering; to pollute oneself, or one's honor; to pollute a water supply, specif. by the introduction of sewage.
Wickedness . . . hath polluted the whole earth. 2 Esd. IV. 6.
Syn. — Soil, debauch, ravish. See CONTAMINATE.
Ant. — Cleanse, purify, purge.

pol·lute', adj. [L. pollutus.] Polluted. Archaic.

pol·lut'er (-lūt'ẽr), n. One who or that which pollutes.

pol·lu'tion (pŏ·lū'shŭn), n. [LL. pollutio.] 1. Act of polluting, or state of being polluted; desecration; defilement; uncleanness; impurity.
2. That which pollutes or is polluted. Rare.
3. Med. Emission of semen at other times than in coition.

Pol'lux (pŏl'ŭks), n. [L., the twin brother of Castor.]
1. Gr. Myth. See DIOSCURI.
2. Astron. The star Beta (β) Geminorum, of the first magnitude. Cf. 3d CASTOR, 2. See STAR, Table.
3. Mineral. [not cap.] = POLLUCITE.

Pol'ly (pŏl'ĭ), n. Also Poll. a Familiar form for MOLLY, MARY; — fem. proper name. b A nickname for a tame parrot; also [not cap.], a tame parrot.

Pol'ly·an'na (pŏl'ĭ·ăn'ȧ), n. a A girl of irrepressible optimism who finds good in everything, the heroine of stories by Mrs. John Lyman (Eleanor Hodgman) Porter (1868–1920). b [often not cap.] Hence, one with a disposition or nature like Pollyanna's. — Pol'ly·an'na, Pol'·ly·an'nish (-ĭsh), adj.

pol'ly–fox', v. i. To side-step an issue, esp. by equivocation or evasion. Slang, U. S.

polly mountain. The basil thyme Clinopodium acinos.

po'lo (pō'lō), n. [Balti, prop., the ball used in the game; cf. Tibetan pulu.] Sports. a A game of Oriental origin, played with a wooden ball and mallets having long, flexible handles, by players, usually four on a side, mounted on horseback. A polo field is usually about 300 yards in length and 160 to 200 in width, with goals (each 8 yards wide) placed 250 yards apart. A game usually lasts about an hour, and is divided into chukkers, or periods of 7½ or 8 minutes each, with a brief intermission between periods. When played indoors, the players are usually limited to three on a side. b Any of several similar games, as one in which the players wear ice skates (rink polo) or roller skates (roller polo). c = WATER POLO.

Polo a. Common forms of Polo Mallets.

po'lo, n. [Sp., an air or popular song in Andalusia.] A Spanish gypsy dance characterized by energetic movements of the body while the feet merely shuffle or glide, with unison singing and rhythmic clapping of hands.

‖po'lo (pō'lō), n. [Sp.] Corvée exacted of the natives by the Spanish. Phil. I.

polo cart. A light two-wheeled carriage resembling the dogcart.

po'lo·con'ic (pō'lō·kŏn'ĭk), n. [See 1st POLE; CONIC.] Math. The locus of the poles of a line with respect to the various conics of a pencil of conics.

po'lo·ist (pō'lō·ĭst), n. A polo player.

pol'o·naise' (pŏl'ō·nāz'; pŏl'ō·nāz'), n. 1. [French, prop. fem. of polonais Polish.] a A woman's garment, consisting of a waist and drapery in one piece worn over a separate skirt. b A short overcoat, usually furred, worn by men early in the 19th century. Cent. Dict. c Dial. Scot. A one-piece, tight-fitting garment worn by boys; a polony.
2. [F. tapis polonais.] [cap.] = POLISH CARPET.
3. a Dancing. A stately Polish dance developed from the promenade. b Music. The music for this dance in ¾ measure and characteristic rhythm (see Illust.). It was given increased importance as an instrumental form by Chopin.

Polonaise, 1 a, 18th cent.

Polonaise Rhythm.

pol'o·naise', v. i. To dance in or as in a polonaise.

Po'lo·nese' (pō'lō·nēz'; -nēs'), adj. [F. polonais.] Polish. Obs. — n. A Pole; Polish; also [not cap.], a polonaise (dress). Obs.

Po·lo'ni·a (pō·lō'nĭ·ȧ), n. [ML.] Poland. Rare.

Po·lo'ni·al (-ăl), Po·lo'ni·an (-ăn), adj. Polish.

Po·lo'ni·an (-ăn), n. a Now Rare. A Pole. b [not cap.] Obs. A polonaise (dress).

Pol'o·nism (pŏl'ō·nĭz'm), n. A Polish trait, idiom, or the like.

po·lo'ni·um (pŏ·lō'nĭ·ŭm), n. [NL., fr. ML. Polonia Poland; — so named from the nationality of Mme. Curie.] Chem. A radioelement discovered by M. and Mme. Curie in pitchblende. Symbol, Po; at. no., 84; at. wt., 210. It is identical with radium F. See RADIUM.

Po·lo'ni·us (-ŭs), n. Lord Chamberlain to the King of Denmark and father of Ophelia and Laertes, in Shakespeare's Hamlet. He is a garrulous old courtier, who fancies himself shrewd. He is slain, while eavesdropping, by Hamlet.

Pol'o·nize (pŏl'ō·nīz), v. t. & i. To make or become Polish. — Pol'o·ni·za'tion (-nĭ·zā'shŭn; -nĭ-), n.

---

pollacre. † POLACRE. pollankan. † PALANQUIN. pollcat. † POLECAT. polle. † POLE, POLL, PULL.
pol'le·ga'da (pŏl'ē·gä'dȧ), n. [Pg.] See MEASURE, Table. pol'len. † POLLEN. pol'le·nar'i·um (pŏl'ē·nâr'ĭ·ŭm). Var. of POLLINARIUM. pol'len·ate, pol'len·a'tion. Vars. of POLLINATE, POLLINATION. pol'len·i·za'tion, pol'len·ize, pol'len·iz'er. Vars. of POLLINIZATION, etc. pol'len·less, adj. See -LESS. pol'len·like', adj. See -LIKE.
pol'le·no'sis (pŏl'ē·nō'sĭs). Var. of POLLINOSIS. pol'len·proof' (66), adj. See [-PROOF.] pol'let, n. Also pol'lette. [Cf. EPAULET.] A small pauldron. Obs. pol'li·cate. Var. of PULICAT. pollin-. = POLLINI-.
pol·lin'i·a, n., pl. of POLLINIUM. pol'li·wig. Var. of POLLIWOG. pol'lock (pŏl'ăk). Var. of POLLACK. [See HOI POLLOI. pol·loi' (pŏ·loi'), n. pl. [Gr.]
pol·lut'ed (pŏ·lūt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119), part. adj. of POLLUTE. — pol·lut'·ed·ly, adv. — pol·lut'ed·ness, n.
pol·lut'ing, pres. part. & verbal n. of POLLUTE. — pol·lut'ing·ly, adv.
po·lu'tion·ate, adj. Polluted. Obs. — ·ate·ly, adv. Obs.
Polly Peachum. See PEACHUM. pol'ly·wog. Var. of POLLIWOG. po'lo·cyte (pō'lō·sīt), n. [See 1st POLE; -CYTE.] Zool. = POLAR BODY, 2.
Po·lo'ni·a Res'ti·tu'ta. [NL. Poland Restored.] See ORDER, n., 1. pol'o·nick, n. [Obs. It. polonice.] See MEASURE, Table.
Po·lo'nish, adj. Polish. Obs.

po·lo'ny (pō·lō'nĭ), n. [Prob. fr. Bologna.] A kind of sausage.

po·lo'ny, n. = POLONAISE, 1 c. Scot.

Po·lo'ny, adj. [ML. Polonia Poland.] Polish. Obs.

polo pony. Any horse trained for use as a mount in playing polo. Polo ponies must have endurance, speed, courage, and docility.

pol'os (pŏl'ŏs), n. [Gr., also, pivot, axis, crown of the head.] Gr. Archaeol. A kind of high crown or headdress of cylindrical shape represented as worn by goddesses, especially Demeter, Persephone, Hecate, Aphrodite.

pol'ska (pōl'skä), n. [Sw., Polish dance.] A Swedish dance; also, its music, in triple measure and usually in a minor key.

polt (pōlt), n. & v. Knock; thump; club. Obs. exc. Dial.

pol'ter·geist' (pōl'tĕr·gīst'), n. [G., fr. polter noise + geist ghost.] Folklore and Spiritism. A noisy ghost; a spirit assumed as the explanation of rappings and other unexplained noises.

polt'foot' (pōlt'fo̍o̍t'), n. A clubfoot. Archaic. — adj. Also polt'foot'ed. Having a clubfoot.

pol·ti'na (pōl·tē'nä), n. [Russ.] A silver coin equivalent to 50 kopecks, or half a ruble. See COIN, Table.

pol·tin'nik (pōl·tēn'ĭk), n.; pl. -IKY (-Ĭ·kĭ). [Russ.] Russian silver half ruble.

pol·toph'a·gy (pōl·tŏf'ä·jĭ), n. [Gr. poltos porridge + phagein to eat.] Thorough chewing of food until it becomes like porridge. — pol'to·phag'ic (pōl'tō·făj'ĭk), adj. — pol·toph'a·gist (pōl·tŏf'ä·jĭst) n.

pol·troon' (pōl·trōōn'), n. [F. poltron, fr. It. poltrone sluggard, coward, also, idle, lazy, fr. poltro bed, appar. of Lombard origin; cf. OHG. polstar, bolstar, cushion. See BOLSTER.] An arrant coward; a dastard; craven; a mean-spirited wretch. — pol·troon'ish, adj. — pol·troon'ish·ly, adv. — pol·troon'ism (-īz'm), n.

pol·troon', adj. Craven; cowardly; dastardly.

Syn. and Ant. — See COWARDLY.

pol·troon'er·y (-ĕr·ĭ), n. [F. poltronnerie; cf. It. poltronería.] Cowardice; want of spirit; mean pusillanimity.

pol'ver·ine (pōl'vĕr·ēn), n. [It. polverino, fr. polvere dust, fr. L. pulvis, -veris. See POWDER.] A kind of potash or pearlash from the Levant, used in making fine glass.

po'ly (pō'lĭ), n.; pl. POLIES (-lĭz). [L. polium, name of a plant, perh. Teucrium polium, fr. Gr. polion, appar. fr. polios gray, white. See FALLOW pale.] An herb (Teucrium polium) of southern Europe, with white-woolly aromatic foliage; also, any of several other species of Teucrium.

pol'y- (pōl'ĭ-). [See FULL.] A combining form, Greek poly-, from polys, meaning many, much, abounding in, often, very, used to denote: 1. a Having or consisting of many; multi-; as in polygon, polysyllable. b A plurality; several; as in polygamy. c A number above the normal, as in polydactylous. d Multiplying, as in polyacoustics, polyscope.

2. Chem. a An indefinite number more than one, as in polyatomic. b A polymer of a (specified) compound, as in pol'y·cit'ral, $(C_{10}H_{16}O)_x$.

3. Med. a Affecting many parts, as in polyarthritis. b Of diverse origin or type, as in polyclinic. c Excessive; hyper-; super-; as in polycholia, polychromia. d Supernumerary, as in polymeria, polyodontia. e Producing diversity, as in polyesthesia.

☞ The meanings of the following can be understood from the definitions of their elements.

polyacanthus	polyclona	polynucleolar polyadelphous	polycoccous	polyophthalmic polyadenitis	polycormic	polypage polyadenoma	polycotylous	polypaged polyadenous	polycotyly	polyparasitic polyaffectioned	polycyanide	polyparasitism polyangular	polycycly	polyphobic polyanthous	polycystic	polyphyllous polyanthy	polydenominational	polyphylly polyarteritis	polydental	polypinnate polyarthric	polydermous	polyplegia polyarthritic	polydermy	polyplegic polyarthritis	polydigital	polyporous polyarthrous	polydimensional	polyrhizal polyarticular	polyfenestral	polyrhizous polyatomic	polyflorous	polysemous polyatomicity	polyfold	polysepalous polyaxial	polyganglionic	polyseptate polybranchiate	polygastric	polysided polybromid	polyglandular	polysidedness polybromide	polygrooved	polysilicate polybuttoned	polyiodide	polysilicic polycarpellary	polylinguist	polysomatic polycellular	polylobular	polysomatous polycentral	polymetallism	polysomous polycentric	polymolecular	polyspermal polycephalic	polyneural	polyspermatous polycephalous	polyneuric	polyspermous polycephaly	polynodal	polystemonous polyciliate	polynucleal	polythecial polycladose	polynuclear	polytokous polycladous	polynucleate	polytoky polyclady	polynucleated pol'y·ac'id (pōl'ĭ·ăs'ĭd; 66), adj. Chem. a Able to react with more than one molecule of a monoacid to form a salt or ester; — said of bases and alcohols. See ACIDITY, 3. b Having more than one hydrogen atom replaceable by basic atoms or radicals; — said of acids and acid salts.

pol'y·ac'id, n. Chem. An acid having more than one acid hydrogen atom, as phosphoric acid; a polyacid acid.

pol'y·a·cous'tic (pōl'ĭ·ä·kōōs'tĭk; -kous'tĭk), adj. [poly- + acoustic.] Multiplying or magnifying sound. — n. A polyacoustic instrument.

pol'y·a·cous'tics (-tĭks), n. Art of magnifying sounds. See -ICS.

pol'y·act (pōl'ĭ·ăkt), pol'y·ac'ti·nal (-ăk'tĭ·năl; -ăk·tī'năl; -n·ĭ), adj. [poly- + Gr. aktis, aktinos, ray.] Having many rays or radii. — pol'y·ac'tine (-ăk'tĭn), adj.

Pol'y·ac·tin'i·a (-ăk·tĭn'ĭ·ä), n. pl. [NL. See POLY-; ACTINIA.] Zool. An old name for those Anthozoa having, like the actinias, many simple tentacles.

pol'y·ad (pōl'ĭ·ăd), adj. Chem. Multivalent. — n. A polyad atom, radical, or element.

Pol'y·a·del'phi·a (-ä·dĕl'fĭ·ä), n. pl. [NL., fr. Gr. polyadelphos with many brothers, fr. polys many + adelphos brother.] Bot. A disused Linnaean class of plants having stamens united by the filaments into three or more fascicles. — pol'y·a·delph' (pōl'ĭ·ä·dĕlf'), n. — pol'y·a·del'phi·an (-dĕl'fĭ·ăn), adj.

pol'y·a·de'ni·a (pōl'ĭ·ä·dē'nĭ·ä), n. [NL., fr. poly- + Gr. adēn gland.] Med. Multiple enlargement of glands, esp. lymph glands, as in pseudoleukemia or in Hodgkin's disease.

pol'y·ad'ic (pōl'ĭ·ăd'ĭk), adj. Having the character of, or constituted as, a polyad.

pol'y·al'co·hol (-ăl'kō·hōl; 185), n. [See POLY-.] Chem. Any alcohol containing several hydroxyl groups.

pol'y·am'y·lose (-ăm'ĭ·lōs), n. Chem. Any amylose in whose formula, $(C_6H_{10}O_5)_x$, x is more than one.

Pol'y·an'dri·a (-ăn'drĭ·ä), n. pl. [NL. See POLYANDRY.] 1. Bot. A Linnaean class of monoclinous plants including those with many hypogynous stamens.

2. [not cap.] Pl. of POLYANDRIUM.

— pol'y·an'dri·an (-ăn), adj.

pol'y·an'dri·a (-ăn'drĭ·ä), n. = POLYANDRY. — pol'y·an'dri·an (-ăn), adj. — pol'y·an'dri·an·ism (-īz'm), n.

pol'y·an'dric (pōl'ĭ·ăn'drĭk), adj. [Gr. polyandros.] Pertaining to, or characterized by, polyandry.

pol'y·an'drism (-ăn'drĭz'm), n. Polyandry. Rare.

pol'y·an'drist (-ăn'drĭst), n. A polyandrous woman.

pol'y·an'dri·um (-ăn'drĭ·ŭm), n. Also pol'y·an'dri·on (-ŏn). [LL. polyandrium, fr. Gr. polyandrion.] Gr. Antiq. A cemetery.

pol'y·an'drous (-drŭs), adj. 1. Bot. Having 20 or more free hypogynous stamens.

2. Practicing polyandry; pertaining to polyandry.

pol'y·an'dry (pōl'ĭ·ăn'drĭ; pō|'ĭ·ăn'drĭ), n. [Gr. polyandria, fr. polyandros having many men, fr. polys many + anēr, andros man, male.] 1. The possession by a woman of more than one husband or mate at the same time; — contrasted with monandry and polygyny. Two characteristic types of primitive polyandry are Nair and Tibetan (see these words) polyandry.

2. Bot. State or condition of being polyandrous.

Pol'y·an'gi·um (pōl'ĭ·ăn'jĭ·ŭm), n. [NL., fr. poly- + -angium.] Bacteriol. A genus of Myxobacteriaceae, in which large cysts are formed, one or more of which are embedded in a gelatinous matrix raised above the substratum. The rodlike cells are not transformed into spores. P. vitellinum and two other species are found on decaying matter.

pol'y·an'tha (pōl'ĭ·ăn'thä), n., or polyantha rose. [NL., fr. poly- + Gr. anthos flower.] Any of several hybrid garden roses. The polyantha roses are dwarfs mostly derived from crosses between Rosa chinensis, R. multiflora, and other species. The erroneous name R. polyantha was once applied to them; — hence the vernacular.

pol'y·an'thus (-ăn'thŭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. polyanthos rich in flowers, fr. polys many + anthos flower.] a The oxlip Primula elatior, having a many-flowered umbel. b Any narcissus of the species Narcissus tazetta, or of the varieties descended from it. They have rather small umbeled white or yellow flowers with a spreading perianth and small crown.

pol'y·arch (pōl'ĭ·ärk), adj. [poly- + 2d -arch.] Bot. Having many xylem strands or groups, as certain roots. — pol'y·arch'y (-är'kĭ), n.

pol'y·ar'chal (-är'kăl), pol'y·ar'chi·cal (-kĭ·kăl), adj. Of or pertaining to a polyarchy. Rare.

pol'y·arch'ist (pōl'ĭ·är'kĭst), n. An advocate of polyarchy.

pol'y·arch'y (pōl'ĭ·är'kĭ), n. [Gr. polyarchia. See POLY-; -ARCHY.] 1. Government by many persons.

2. Erroneously, a group of many kingdoms. Rare.

pol'y·au·tog'ra·phy (pōl'ĭ·ô·tŏg'rä·fĭ), n. Act or practice of multiplying copies of handwriting, manuscripts, drawings, etc., by lithographic printings; — the early name for lithography, used by Senefelder. See LITHOGRAPHY. — pol'y·au'to·graph'ic (-ô'tō·grăf'ĭk), adj.

pol'y·ax'on (-ăk'sŏn), poly·ax'one (-sōn), n. [poly- + axon.] 1. Anat. A nerve cell having several axons.

2. Zool. A sponge spicule having numerous axes.

— pol'y·ax·on'ic (-ăks·ŏn'ĭk), adj.

pol'y·ax'on, adj. Zool. Having many axes.

pol'y·bas'ic (pōl'ĭ·bās'ĭk), adj. Chem. a Having more than one hydrogen atom replaceable by basic atoms or radicals; — said of acids. See BASICITY b. b Containing more than one atom of a univalent metal, or their equivalent; — said of a salt. c Having more than one basic hydroxyl group; able to react with more than one molecule of a monoacid; — said of bases and basic salts. — pol'y·basic'i·ty (-bă·sĭs'ĭ·tĭ), n.

pol'y·bas'ite (pōl'ĭ·bās'īt; pō·lĭb'ä·sīt), n. [G. polybasit.] Mineral. An iron-black, metallic-looking ore of silver, consisting essentially of silver, sulphur, and antimony, Ag_9SbS_6, with some copper and arsenic. H., 2–3. Sp. gr., 6.0–6.2.

pol'y·blast (pōl'ĭ·blăst), n. [poly- + -blast.] Anat. & Med. Any of a group of large mononuclear phagocytes with irregular, deeply staining nucleus, present in regions of inflammation.

Pol'y·bo·ri'nae (pōl'ĭ·bō·rī'nē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Gr. polyboros voracious.] Zool. A subfamily of the Falconidae, consisting of the caracaras, or carrion hawks. The typical genus is Po·lyb'o·rus (pō·lĭb'ō·rŭs). — po·lyb'o·rine (-rĭn; -rīn; 156), adj.

Pol'y·bran'chi·a (pōl'ĭ·brăng'kĭ·ä), Pol'y·bran'chi·a'ta (-ä'tä), n. pl. [NL. See POLY-; -BRANCHIA.] Zool. A division of Nudibranchia having numerous cerata on the back. — pol'y·branch (pōl'ĭ·brăngk), pol'y·bran'chi·an (-brăng'kĭ·ăn), adj. & n. All Obs.

pol'y·bu'nous (-bū'nŭs), adj. [NL., fr. poly- + Gr. bounos hill, mound.] Anat. Multituberculate. — pol'y·bu'ny (pōl'ĭ·bū'nĭ), n.

pol'y·car'box·yl'ic (-kär'bŏks·ĭl'ĭk), adj. Chem. Having more than one carboxyl group.

Pol'y·carp (pōl'ĭ·kärp), n. [Gr. Polykarpos; cf. Gr. polys much, and karpos fruit.] Literally, much fruit; — masc. proper name.

pol'y·car'pic (-kär'pĭk), pol'y·car'pous (-pŭs), adj. [poly- + Gr. karpos fruit.] Bot. a Sychnocarpous. b Having a gynoecium forming two or more distinct ovaries. — pol'y·car'py (pōl'ĭ·kär'pĭ), n.

Pol'y·car'pon (pōl'ĭ·kär'pŏn), n. [NL., fr. Gr. polykarpon a kind of plant, prop. neut. adj., fruitful. See POLY-; -CARPOUS.] Bot. A small genus of herbs of the pink family (Caryophyllaceae) of temperate and warm regions, having small white cymose flowers with 5-keeled sepals, and 3–5 stamens. P. tetraphyllum is the allseed.

Pol'y·chae'ta (pōl'ĭ·kē'tä), n. pl. [NL., fr. poly- + Gr. chaitē hair.] Zool. An order of the class Chaetopoda comprising most of the common marine worms, and generally distinguished from the Oligochaeta by short, unsegmented, stumplike limbs (parapodia) which bear setae, and by having the sexes distinct. There is often a distinct head with eyes and tentacles. The young pass through a trochosphere stage. — pol'y·chaete (pōl'ĭ·kēt), adj. & n. — pol'y·chae'tous (-kē'tŭs), adj.

pol'y·cha'si·um (pōl'ĭ·kā'zhĭ·ŭm; -zĭ·ŭm), n.; pl. -SIA (-ä). [NL., fr. poly- + Gr. chasis division.] Bot. A cymose inflorescence in which each relative main axis produces more than two branches. Cf. MONOCHASIUM, DICHASIUM. — pol'y·cha'si·al (-ăl), adj.

pol'y·chlo'ride (-klō'rīd; -rĭd; 157), n. Also -rid. Chem. A compound of more than one chlorine atom with an element or radical.

pol'y·choer'a·ny (-kĭr'ä·nĭ), n. [Gr. polykoiranīē, fr. polykoiranos wide-ruling.] Government by many chiefs or rulers. Obs.

pol'y·chord (pōl'ĭ·kôrd), n. Music. A viol-shaped instrument of ten strings, with a movable finger board.

pol'y·chord (pōl'ĭ·kôrd), adj. [Gr. polychordos, fr. polys many + chordē string, cord.] Having many strings.

pol'y·chot'o·mous (pōl'ĭ·kŏt'ō·mŭs), adj. [poly- + -chotomous as in dichotomous.] Dividing or marked by division into many parts, branches, or classes; esp. in biology, dividing regularly and repeatedly into such divisions; having a plural arrangement. Cf. DICHOTOMOUS. — pol'y·chot'o·my (-mĭ), n.

pol'y·chrest (pōl'ĭ·krĕst), n. [Gr. polychrēstos useful for many purposes. See POLYCHRESTY.] Pharm. A drug or medicine of value as a remedy in several diseases. — pol'y·chres'tic (-krĕs'tĭk), -chres'ti·cal (-tĭ·kăl), adj.

polychrest salt. Old Med. Chem. Potassium sulphate; also, sometimes, Rochelle salt.

pol'y·chres'ty (pōl'ĭ·krĕs'tĭ), n. [Gr. polychrēstia great usefulness, fr. polychrēstos, fr. polys much, many + chrēstos useful.] A thing that has many uses; specif., a drug serving many purposes; polychrest.

pol'y·chro'ic (-krō'ĭk), adj. Pleochroic.

pol'y·chro·ma'si·a (-krō·mä'zhĭ·ä; -zĭ·ä), n. [NL.] The quality of being polychromatic; specif., Micros. & Med., polychromatophilia.

pol'y·chro'mate (-krō'māt), n. [See 2d POLYCHROMIC.] Chem. a A salt of a polychromic acid. b Obs. A salt of aloetic acid.

pol'y·chro'mate (-krō'māt), n. A substance which exhibits, or from which may be prepared, a variety of colors.

pol'y·chro·mat'ic (-krō·măt'ĭk), adj. Showing a variety, or a change, of colors; multicolored. — pol'y·chro'ma·tism (-krō'mä·tĭz'm), n.

polychromatic acid. Old Chem. Aloetic acid.

pol'y·chro'ma·tist (-krō'mä·tĭst), n. One who uses or advocates the use of many colors, as in painting.

pol'y·chro'ma·tize (-tīz), v. t. To decorate in many colors.

pol'y·chro'ma·to·phile' (-krō'mä·tō·fīl'; -fĭl'), -phil' (-fĭl'), n. [See POLYCHROMATOPHILIA.] Med. A young or degenerated red blood corpuscle staining with both acid and basic dyes.

pol'y·chro'ma·to·phil'i·a (-krō'mä·tō·fĭl'ĭ·ä), n. [NL. See POLYCHROMATIC; -PHILOUS.] 1. Microscopy. Quality of being stainable with several kinds of stains.

2. Med. A condition of the blood in which many erythrocytes taking both acid and basic stains are present. — pol'y·chro'ma·to·phil' (-krō'mä·tō·fĭl'), adj. — pol'y·chro'ma·to·phil'ic (-fĭl'ĭk), adj.

pol'y·chrome (pōl'ĭ·krōm), adj. [F., fr. Gr. polychrōmos. See POLY-; CHROMATIC.] 1. Many-colored; polychromatic; pertaining to processes for making multicolor pictures; as, the Polychrome Bible, an edition of the Old Testament printed on a background of various colors to indicate the various literary sources of the text.

2. Gr. Antiq. a Designating, or pert. to, painting, esp. vase painting, in a variety of colors. The most famous polychrome vases of antiquity were those of Attica, chiefly lecythi, which began to be made in Athens in the latter part of the 6th century B.C. The ground was often white, and the colors used originally black, white, red, and yellow. Cf. BLACK-FIGURED, RED-FIGURED. b As applied to prehistoric Aegean pottery, polychrome is used of ware to which two or more colors have been applied, as distinguished from monochrome ware, to which one color is applied in contrast to the natural color of the clay, usually a dark color on a light background.

pol'y·chrome (pōl'ĭ·krōm), n. [See POLYCHROME, adj.]

1. Anything of many colors; also, variegated coloring.

2. Chem. Esculin; — so called from its fluorescent solutions.

3. Pharm. = ESCULIN.

pol'y·chrome, v. t. To decorate or variegate in polychrome style.

pol'y·chro'mi·a (-krō'mĭ·ä), n. [NL., fr. poly- + Gr. chrōma color.] Med. Excessive pigmentation.

pol'y·chro'mic (-krō'mĭk), adj. [See POLYCHROME.] Polychromatic.

pol'y·chro'mic, adj. [poly- + chromic.] Chem. Pertaining to or designating any of several acids (known only in their salts) containing more than one atom of chromium.

pol'y·chro'mism (-krō'mĭz'm), n. Polychromatism.

pol'y·chrom·ize (pōl'ĭ·krōm·īz), v. t. To make polychromous.

pol'y·chro'mous (-krō'mŭs), adj. Of or pertaining to polychromy; many-colored; polychromatic.

pol'y·chro'my (pōl'ĭ·krō'mĭ), n. Art or practice of combining different colors, esp. brilliant ones, in an artistic way, as in ancient sculpture, architectural decorations, etc.

pol'y·chro'ni·ous (-krō'nĭ·ŭs), adj. [poly- + Gr. chronios for a long time.] Enduring long; chronic. Rare.

Pol'y·clad'i·da (pōl'ĭ·klăd'ĭ·dä), n. pl. [NL., fr. Gr. polyklados, fr. polys many + klados branch.] Zool. An order of planarians in which the alimentary tract has many primary branches radiating from a central stomach. The ovaries and testes are numerous. No vitellarium is developed. The Polycladida are all marine and usually of broad flattened form, some species becoming several inches long. They progress by creeping or swimming. Many are handsomely colored. — pol'y·clad (pōl'ĭ·klăd), adj. & n.

pol'y·cla'dine (-klā'dĭn; -klăd'ĭn; -īn), adj. [See POLYCLADIDA; -INE.] Having several or many tines on the antlers, as certain deer.

Pol'y·cle'tan (-klē'tăn), adj. Of or pertaining to Polycletus, a sculptor of the Peloponnesian school, about 430 B.C. who established a type of ideal athletic proportions.

pol'y·clin'ic (-klĭn'ĭk), n. Med. A clinic treating diseases of many sorts, or a hospital for, or an institution giving clinical instruction about, all kinds of diseases.

Pol'y·co'di·um (-kō'dĭ·ŭm), n. [NL., fr. poly- + Gr. kōdōn bell.] Bot. A small genus of shrubs of the heath family (Ericaceae) found in eastern North America, with leafy-bracted racemes of greenish bell-shaped flowers and greenish inedible berries; P. stamineum is the deerberry.

Po'lov·tsy (pō'lŏv·tsĭ), n. sing. & pl. = KUMAN.

Pol·ta'va (pōl·tä'vä), n. See BATTLE, Table.

polte, past tense of PILT. Obs.

po'lu·gar'nets (pō'lōō·gär'nĭts), n. sing. & pl. [Russ. polugarnets a half garnet.] See MEASURE, Table.

po'lu·os·mi'na (-ŏs·mē'nä), n. sing. & pl. [Russ. polu half.] See MEASURE, Table.

pol'yil. + POLYIL.

pol'y-. See POLY-. Ref. Sp.

pol'y·æ'mi·a. Var. of POLYEMIA.

pol'y·æs·the'si·a, p o l' y · æ s · the' ĭc. Vars. of POLYESTHESIA, POLYESTHETIC.

pol'y·an'der (pōl'ĭ·ăn'dĕr), n. = POLYANDRIUM.

pol'y·an'dri·ous (-drĭ·ŭs). Var. of POLYANDROUS.

pol'y·an·the'a, n. [NL. See POLYANTHA.] An anthology. Obs.

— pol'y·an·the'an, adj. & n. Obs.

pol'y·an'thos. Var. of POLYANTHUS.

Pol'y·bus (pŏl'ĭ·bŭs), n. [L., fr. Gr. Polybos.] See ŒDIPUS.

pol'y·car'pel·lar'y o'va·ry. See OVARY, n., 2. polychotomous key. See 2d KEY, 14 a.

pol'y·chro·ism (pōl'ĭ·krō·īz'm), n. [poly- + Gr. chroa color.] = PLEOCHROISM.

pol'y·con'ic (pŏl'ĭ·kŏn'ĭk), adj. Relating to, or based on, many cones; as, polyconic mapping. — n. A polyconic projection.

polyconic projection. Map Making. A projection of the earth's surface, or a part of it, in which each narrow zone is projected on a cone touching the sphere along this zone, the cone surfaces being then unrolled. Cf. CONIC PROJECTION.

pol'y·cot'yl (pŏl'ĭ·kŏt'ĭl), n. A polycotyledon.

pol'y·cot'y·le'don (pŏl'ĭ·kŏt'ĭ·lē'dŭn), n. [NL.] Bot. A plant having more than two cotyledons, as the pine and other conifers. — pol'y·cot'y·le'don·ous (-lē'dŭn·ŭs; -lĕd'ŭn-), adj.

pol'y·cot'y·le'don·ar'y (-lē'dŭn·ĕr'ĭ; -ĕr·ĭ; -lĕd'ŭn-), adj. Embryol. Having the placental villi in many definite groups, or cotyledons, as in the ox family.

pol'y·cot'y·le'don·y (-lē'dŭn·ĭ), n. Bot. Abnormal increase in the number of cotyledons.

po·lyc'ra·cy (pō·lĭk'rȧ·sĭ), n. [poly- + -cracy.] Polyarchy.

pol'y·crase (pŏl'ĭ·krāz), n. [poly- + Gr. krasis a mixing.] Mineral. A columbate and titanate of the metals of the yttrium group, occurring in slender brown to black orthorhombic prisms. H., 5–6. Sp. gr., 5.

pol'y·crat'ic (pŏl'ĭ·krăt'ĭk), adj. [poly- + Gr. kratos power.] Having many powers; — said of a wheel; as of a telescope, carrying many eyepieces.

pol'y·crot'ic (pŏl'ĭ·krŏt'ĭk), adj. [poly- + Gr. krotos a beat.] Physiol. Of, pertaining to, or manifesting, polycrotism.

po·lyc'ro·tism (pō·lĭk'rȯ·tĭz'm), n. Physiol. Condition of the pulse in which the pulse curve, or sphygmogram, shows several secondary crests or elevations; — contrasted with monocrotism and dicrotism.

Pol'yc·ten'i·dae (pŏl'ĭk·tĕn'ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL. See POLY-; CTENO-; -IDAE.] Zool. A family of viviparous Hemiptera which live as ectoparasites in the fur of bats. — pol'yc·ten'id (pŏl'ĭk·tĕn'ĭd; pō·lĭk'tē·nĭd), n. & adj.

pol'y·cy'clic (pŏl'ĭ·sī'klĭk; -sĭk'lĭk), adj. Having, or pert. to, many cycles, rounds, or whorls; as: a Chem. Having more than one ring. See 1st RING, 18. b Elec. Designating a system of electric distribution in which currents of different voltages and frequencies are superposed on the same network. c Zool. (1) Having many whorls, or volutions. (2) Having many cycles of tentacles, as some corals.

pol'y·cy·e'sis (-sĭ·ē'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. poly- + cyesis.] Med. Pregnancy with more than one fetus in the uterus.

pol'y·cy·the'mi·a (-sĭ·thē'mĭ·ȧ), n. Also -cy·thae'mi·a. [NL. See POLY-; -CYTE; -EMIA.] Med. An abnormal state characterized by excess of cells, specif. red blood corpuscles. — pol'y·cy·the'mic, -thae'mic (-thē'mĭk; -thē'mĭk), adj.

Pol'y·cyt·ta'ri·a (-sĭ·tăr'ĭ·ȧ; 79), n. pl. [NL., fr. poly- + Gr. kyttarion, dim. of kyttaros a cell.] Zool. A division of Radiolaria including those with a number of central capsules. — pol'y·cyt·tar'i·an (-tăr'ĭ·ăn), adj. & n.

pol'y·dac'tyl, pol'y·dac'tyle (-dăk'tĭl), adj. Having several or many digits, esp. more than usual. — n. A polydactyl animal. — pol'y·dac'tyl·ism (-tĭ·lĭz'm), n.

pol'y·dac'ty·lous (-dăk'tĭ·lŭs), adj. Polydactyl.

pol'y·dac'ty·ly (-lĭ), n. Polydactylism.

pol'y·dae'mon·ism (pŏl'ĭ·dē'mŭn·ĭz'm), n. Belief in, or worship of, a multitude of demons or demoniacal powers. Cf. DEMONISM. — pol'y·dae·mo'ni·ac (-dē·mō'nĭ·ăk), adj. — -dae'mon·ist (-dē'mŭn·ĭst), n. & adj. — -dae'mon·is'tic (-ĭs'tĭk), adj.

pol'y·dem'ic (pŏl'ĭ·dĕm'ĭk), adj. [poly- + endemic.] Native to several countries.

Pol'y·deu'ces (pŏl'ĭ·dū'sēz), Pol'y·deu'kes (-kēz), n. [Gr. Polydeukēs.] See DIOSCURI.

pol'y·dip'si·a (-dĭp'sĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. poly- + Gr. dipsa thirst.] Med. Excessive thirst, a symptom of some diseases.

pol'y·dis·perse' (-dĭs·pûrs'), v. t. Physical Chem. To convert into a dispersoid of varying particle size.

po·lyd'o·mous (pō·lĭd'ō·mŭs), adj. [poly- + Gr. domos house + -ous.] Zool. Inhabiting several nests, as certain ants in which a single colony spreads over a number of nests; — disting. from monodomous.

Pol'y·dore (pŏl'ĭ·dōr; 181), n. 1. See ARVIRAGUS, 1.
2. See MONIMIA (fem. proper name).

Pol'y·do'rus (pŏl'ĭ·dō'rŭs; 181), n. [L., fr. Gr. Polydōros.] Gr. Antiq. The youngest son of Priam. According to Homer, he was slain by Achilles; in other accounts he was killed by Polymnestor. See HECUBA.

pol'y·dym'ite (pŏl'ĭ·dĭm'ĭt), n. [poly- + Gr. didymos twin.] Mineral. A nickel sulphide, Ni_3S_4, occurring in gray octahedral crystals, which often show repeated twinning. H., 4.5. Sp. gr., 4.5–4.8.

pol'y·dy·nam'ic (-dĭ·năm'ĭk; -dĭ·), adj. Having, or pertaining to, many or varied forces.

pol'y·ei'dic (-ī'dĭk), adj. [poly- + Gr. eidos form.] Zool. Undergoing a series of conspicuous changes in form during development; — said of insects that exhibit a marked metamorphosis. — pol'y·ei'dism (-ī'dĭz'm), n.

pol'y·em'bry·o·nate (-ĕm'brĭ·ō·nāt), pol'y·em'bry·on'ic (-ĕm'brĭ·ŏn'ĭk), adj. Bot. Consisting of, or having, several embryos.

pol'y·em'bry·o·ny (pŏl'ĭ·ĕm'brĭ·ō·nĭ), n. a Bot. The production of two or more embryos within an ovule, as normally in many seed plants. b Embryol. The production of two or more embryos from a single egg. Specif., in certain insects, the production of many, sometimes several hundred, individuals from a single egg by fragmentation of the original embryo.

pol'y·e'mi·a, pol'y·ae'mi·a (-ē'mĭ·ȧ), n. [NL.] Med. Condition marked by an excessive amount of blood in the system; plethora. — pol'y·e'mic, -ae'mic (-mĭk), adj.

pol'y·en'zy·mat'ic (-ĕn'zĭ·măt'ĭk; -ĕn'zĭ-), adj. Biol. Producing, or containing, several different ferments.

pol'y·er'gic (pŏl'ĭ·ûr'jĭk), adj. [Gr. polyergos, fr. polys much + ergon work.] 1. Having many activities or functions.
2. Bot. Having more than one energid; — applied to multicellular plants. Cf. MONERGIC.

Pol'y·er'gus (pŏl'ĭ·ûr'gŭs), n. [NL., fr. poly- + Gr. ergon work.] Zool. a The genus containing the Amazon ants. b [not cap.] An ant of this genus.

pol'y·es·the'si·a, pol'y·aes·the'si·a (pŏl'ĭ·ĕs·thē'zhĭ·ȧ; -zhȧ; -zĭ·ȧ), n. [NL.] Med. Disorder of sensation in which one tactile impression, as the prick of a pin, is felt at different places at the same time. — pol'y·es·thet'ic, -aes·thet'ic (-thĕt'ĭk), adj.

pol'y·eth'nic (-ĕth'nĭk), adj. Formed of, or inhabited by, many races.

Po·lyg'a·la (pō·lĭg'ȧ·lȧ), n. [L., milkwort, fr. Gr. polygalon, fr. polys much + gala milk.] Bot. A very large genus of herbs and shrubs of temperate and warm regions, the milkworts, typifying the family Polygalaceae. Their many-colored flowers, often showy, have the three petals sometimes crested, united below into a tube, and also have an irregular calyx with two petaloid sepals. The species are especially numerous in the southern United States and South Africa. P. senega is the senega root.

Po·lyg'a·la'ce·ae (pō·lĭg'ȧ·lā'sē·ē), n. pl. [NL. See POLYGALA.] Bot. A family of herbs, shrubs, or small trees (order Geraniales), the milkwort family, comprising 10 genera and nearly 1,000 species, widely distributed throughout both hemispheres. They have irregular flowers with three to five petals, eight monadelphous stamens, and five sepals, the two lateral petaloid; the seeds are usually carunculate. Polygala is the most important genus. — pol'y·ga·la'ceous (-shŭs), adj.

pol'y·gal'ic ac'id (pŏl'ĭ·găl'ĭk). Also po·lyg'a·lin (pō·lĭg'ȧ·lĭn), n. [See POLYGALA.] Chem. A saponin obtained from Senega root as a white powder. It is held by some to be identical with senegin.

Pol'y·ga'mi·a (pŏl'ĭ·gā'mĭ·ȧ), n. pl. [NL. See POLYGAMOUS.] Bot. A disused Linnaean class of plants with both hermaphrodite and unisexual flowers on the same plant. — pol'y·ga'mi·an (-ăn), adj. — pol'y·gam (pŏl'ĭ·găm), n.

pol'y·gam'ic (pŏl'ĭ·găm'ĭk), -gam'i·cal (-ĭ·kăl), adj. Polygamous. — pol'y·gam'i·cal·ly, adv.

po·lyg'a·mist (pō·lĭg'ȧ·mĭst), n. [See POLYGAMY.] One who practices polygamy. — po·lyg'a·mist, -mis'tic (-mĭs'tĭk), adj.

po·lyg'a·mize (pō·lĭg'ȧ·mīz), v. i. To practice polygamy; to make polygamous.

po·lyg'a·mo·di·oe'cious (pō·lĭg'ȧ·mō·dī·ē'shŭs), adj. Having some plants polygamous and some dioecious in the same species, as in certain plants of the genera Cardiospermum and Dodonaea.

po·lyg'a·mous (pō·lĭg'ȧ·mŭs), adj. [Gr. polygamos living in polygamy, fr. polys many + gamos marriage. See BIGAMY.] 1. Of, pertaining to, characterized by, or involving, polygamy; having a plurality of wives or husbands; as, polygamous marriages; — opposed to monogamous.
2. Bot. Bearing both hermaphrodite and unisexual flowers on the same plant.
3. Zool. Having more than one mate at the same time. — po·lyg'a·mous·ly, adv.

po·lyg'a·my (pō·lĭg'ȧ·mĭ), n. [F. polygamie, fr. Gr. polygamia. See POLYGAMOUS.] 1. State or fact of being polygamous; esp., the custom or practice, as in a group, of having a plurality of wives or husbands at the same time; polygyny or polyandry, but usually, the former; — opposed to monogamy. See BIGAMY, 1; cf. POLYANDRY, 1.
2. Possession of a plurality of benefices.

pol'y·gene (pŏl'ĭ·jēn), adj. [poly- + -gene.] Geol. Designating or pertaining to a volcano built up by a succession of eruptions; — contrasted with a monogene cone.

pol'y·gen'e·sis (pŏl'ĭ·jĕn'ē·sĭs), n. [NL.] a Plurality of origin; polyphyletic origin, esp. of man; — opposed to monogenesis. b Anthropol. The theory that two or more branches of the human race evolved independently. — pol'y·ge·nes'ic (-jē·nĕs'ĭk), adj. — pol'y·gen'e·sist (-jĕn'ē·sĭst), n.

pol'y·ge·net'ic (-jē·nĕt'ĭk), adj. 1. Having many distinct sources; originating at various places or times.
2. Biol. Of or pertaining to polygenesis; polyphyletic.
3. Dyeing. Yielding more than one color or shade, according to the mordant; — said of dyestuffs.

pol'y·ge·net'i·cal·ly (-ĭ·kăl·ĭ), adv. of POLYGENETIC.

polygenetic mountain range. Geol. One consisting of two or more monogenetic ranges, each with its own development.

pol'y·gen'ic (pŏl'ĭ·jĕn'ĭk), adj. a = POLYGENOUS, 1. b Anthropol. Of, pertaining to, or designating the theory of polygenesis. c Biol. Polygenetic. d Chem. Forming two or more compounds with a univalent element, as hydrogen.

po·lyg'e·nism (pō·lĭj'ē·nĭz'm), n. The theory or doctrine that existing human races have evolved from two or more distinct ancestral types; polygeny; — opposed to monogenism and disting. from polygenesis. — pol'yg'e·nist (-nĭst), n. & adj. — pol'y·ge·nis'tic (pŏl'ĭ·jē·nĭs'tĭk), adj. — po·lyg'e·ny (pō·lĭj'ē·nĭ), n.

po·lyg'e·nous (pō·lĭj'ē·nŭs), adj. [poly- + -genous; cf. Gr. polygenēs of many families.] 1. Consisting of, or containing, many kinds; as of elements or rocks; as, a polygenous mountain.
2. Chem. Polygenic.

pol'y·glo·bu'li·a (pŏl'ĭ·glō·bū'lĭ·ȧ), n. [NL. See POLY-; GLOBULE.] Med. Polycythemia.

pol'y·glob'u·lism (-glŏb'ū·lĭz'm), n. Polycythemia.

pol'y·glos'sa·ry (-glŏs'ȧ·rĭ), n. A polyglot glossary.

pol'y·glot (pŏl'ĭ·glŏt), adj. [Gr. polyglōttos many-tongued, fr. polys many + glōtta, glōssa, tongue, language.] 1. Speaking, or writing, many languages; as, a polyglot savant.
2. Containing, or made up of, several languages; as, a polyglot lexicon or Bible.

pol'y·glot, n. 1. One who speaks or writes several languages. "A polyglot, or good linguist." Howell.
2. A book containing versions of the same text in several languages, arranged for comparison, usually in parallel columns; esp., the Scriptures in several languages. The four great Bible polyglots are: The Complutensian Polyglot, printed in 1513–17 at Complutum (now Alcalá de Henares), containing the Old Testament in Hebrew, the Targum of Onkelos on the Pentateuch, the Septuagint, the Vulgate, and the Greek New Testament. The Antwerp Polyglot, or Biblia Regia, which appeared 1569–72, and contains the Hebrew and Greek of the Old Testament, the Targum of Onkelos, and Aramaic paraphrases, the Vulgate, and the Greek and a Syriac version of the New Testament. The Paris Polyglot, issued 1628 and 1645 at Paris by Antoine Vitré, of slight critical value. And, most important of all, the London, or Walton's, Polyglot, issued 1654–57, edited by Brian Walton, containing all or part of the Bible in Hebrew, Samaritan, Aramaic, Syriac, Arabic, Ethiopic, Persian, Greek (with a literal Latin translation of each), and Latin.
3. A confusion or mixture of languages; a polyglot jargon. — pol'y·glot'ter (-glŏt'ĕr), n. — pol'y·glot'ter·y (-glŏt'ĕr·ĭ), n. — pol'y·glot'tism (pŏl'ĭ·glŏt'ĭz'm), n.

pol'y·glot'ry (pŏl'ĭ·glŏt'rĭ), n. [See -RY.] Polyglot speaking or writing; polyglottism.

pol'y·glot'tal (pŏl'ĭ·glŏt'ăl; -l), adj. Polyglottous. — pol'y·glot'tal·ly, adv.

pol'y·glot'ted (pŏl'ĭ·glŏt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. Polyglot.

pol'y·glot'tic (-ĭk), adj. Polyglottous.—pol'y·glot'ti·cal·ly (-ĭ·kăl·ĭ), adv.

pol'y·glot'tist (pŏl'ĭ·glŏt'ĭst), n. One versed in many languages; a polyglot.

pol'y·glot·ton'ic (-glŏ·tŏn'ĭk), adj. [See POLYGLOT.] Anthropol. Designating the language of a race supposed to have originated after the divergence of a supposed primary race into two or more distinct races.

pol'y·glot'tous (-glŏt'ŭs), adj. [See POLYGLOT.] Speaking many languages; polyglot.

pol'y·glyc'er·ol (-glĭs'ĕr·ōl; -ŏl), n. [poly- + glycerol.] Chem. Any of a series of compounds obtained by condensation of glycerol (as by heating it), with loss of water.

pol'y·gon (pŏl'ĭ·gŏn or, esp. Brit., -gŭn), n. [LL. polygonum, fr. Gr. polygōnos polygonal, fr. polys + gōnia angle. See DIAGONAL.] a Geom. A figure, generally plane and closed, having many angles, and hence many sides, esp. one of more than four angles. The area A of a regular polygon of n sides, each of length a, may be found from the formula $A = \frac{n}{4} \cot \frac{180°}{n} \cdot a^2$. b Math. A polygonal number.
c Mil. The imaginary figure which forms the trace of a fortification. It is exterior when it surrounds the enceinte; interior when it surrounds the town within the fortifications.

Pol'y·go·na'ce·ae (pŏl'ĭ·gō·nā'sē·ē), n. pl. [NL. See POLYGONUM.] Bot. A family of herbs, shrubs, or trees, composing the order Polygonales, having 40 genera and nearly 800 species, chiefly of the North Temperate Zone; the buckwheat family. They have mostly entire leaves with stipules forming a sheath (ocrea) round the stem. The flowers are spicate and apetalous. The main genera are Polygonum, Persicaria, Eriogonum, Coccolobis, Rumex, and Fagopyrum.—pol'y·go·na'ceous (-shŭs), adj.

po·lyg'o·nal (pō·lĭg'ō·năl; -n'l), adj. a Having many angles (esp. more than four), and hence many sides; — applied esp. to plane figures, and to solid bodies any plane section of which is a polygon. b Designating a kind of masonry constructed of stones dressed with smooth faces that do not meet at right angles —po·lyg'o·nal·ly, adv.

polygonal numbers. Math. Figurate numbers.

Pol'y·gon'a·tum (pŏl'ĭ·gŏn'ȧ·tŭm), n. [NL., fr. L. polygonaton Solomon's-seal, fr. Gr. polygonaton knotgrass, fr. polys many + gony, gonatos, knee.] Bot. A genus of 20 species of herbs (family Convallariaceae) of the North Temperate Zone; — usually called Solomon's-seal. They have erect or arching stems, entire leaves, axillary tubular flowers often in pairs, and globular black or blue berries. P. pubescens, a hairy species, and P. commutatum, a smooth species, are common wild flowers over much of North America. Syn. Salomonia.

Pol'y·go·nel'la (-gō·nĕl'ȧ), n. [NL., dim. See POLYGONUM.] Bot. A small genus of heathlike herbs of the buckwheat family (Polygonaceae) found in eastern North America. They have jointed stems, small narrow leaves, and small, white or greenish, apetalous flowers in panicled racemes. P. articulata, the jointweed, is common in sandy soil in the eastern United States.

pol'y·go·neu'tic (pŏl'ĭ·gō·nū'tĭk), adj. [poly- + Gr. goneuein to beget.] Zool. Having several broods in a season; polyvoltine. — pol'y·go·neu'tism (-tĭz'm), n.

Pol'y·go'ni·a (pŏl'ĭ·gō'nĭ·ȧ), n. [NL. See POLYGON.] Zool. A genus of anglewing butterflies, including many American species, as the comma butterfly. Their wings are mostly tawny brown or orange above, with dark spots and border, and mottled on the underside with grays and browns imitative of bark or dead leaves.

pol'y·gon'ic (-gŏn'ĭk), adj. Polygonal. — pol'y·gon'i·cal·ly (-ĭ·kăl·ĭ), adv.

polygon of forces Mech. A closed polygon representing by its sides taken in order the magnitude and direction of a system of forces acting at a point in equilibrium.

pol'y·gon·oid (pŏl'ĭ·gŏn·oid), n. [polygon + -oid.] A polyhedron.

po·lyg'o·nous (pō·lĭg'ō·nŭs), adj. Polygonal.

Po·lyg'o·num (pō·lĭg'ō·nŭm), n. [NL., fr. L. polygonos, -on, a kind of plant, fr. Gr. polygonon, fr. polys many + gony knee; — in allusion to the numerous joints.] Bot. A large, widely distributed genus of herbs, the knotweeds, typifying the family Polygonaceae, and having leaves articulated to the ocreae. The genus includes many pernicious weeds, esp. the cosmopolitan P. aviculare.

po·lyg'o·ny (-nĭ), n. [L. polygonium.] Any plant of the genus Polygonum, esp. P. aviculare.

Pol'y·gor'di·us (pŏl'ĭ·gôr'dĭ·ŭs), n. [NL. See POLY-; GORDIUS.] Zool. The best-known genus of marine worms of the order Archianellida.

pol'y·gram (pŏl'ĭ·grăm), n. [Gr. polygrammos marked with many stripes.] A figure determined by many lines. — pol'y·gram·mat'ic (-grȧ·măt'ĭk), adj.

pol'y·gram (-grăm), n. [poly- + gram.] Med. A tracing made by a polygraph.

pol'y·graph (pŏl'ĭ·grăf; 83), n. [Gr. polygraphos writing much, fr. polys much, many + graphein to write; cf. F. polygraphe.] 1. An instrument for multiplying copies of a writing; a manifold writer; a copying machine; also, a kind of pantograph for making two or more copies at once.
2. One who copies or imitates another. Rare.
3. In bibliography, a collection of different works. Rare.
4. A voluminous or versatile writer; — a Gallicism.
5. Med. An instrument for recording tracings of several different pulsations simultaneously, as of the heart and one or more of the arteries.

po·lyg'ra·pher (pō·lĭg'rȧ·fĕr), n. One who operates or produces polygraphs.

pol'y·graph'ic (pŏl'ĭ·grăf'ĭk), adj. 1. Of, pertaining to, or produced by, polygraphy or a polygraph; used in polygraphy. Specif.: a Of a writer, voluminous or versatile; of a book, dealing with a wide range of subjects. b Like a reproduction made by a polygraph; identical.
2. Designating a method of copying or duplicating oil paintings by a chemical and mechanical process.
3. Written by several authors or scribes.

pol'i·graph'i·cal (-ĭ·kăl), adj. Polygraphic. Rare.

po·lyg'ra·phy (pō·lĭg'rȧ·fĭ), n. [Gr. polygraphia; cf. F. polygraphie.] 1. A system of secret writing or cipher; art of writing, or of deciphering, various ciphers. Hist.
2. Literary productiveness or versatility.
3. Art or method of making polygraphic copies, as of paintings.

pol'y·gy·nai'ky (pŏl'ĭ·jĭ·nī'kĭ), n. [poly- + Gr. gynē, gynaikos, woman.] Polygyny. Rare.

Pol'y·gyn'i·a (-jĭn'ĭ·ȧ), n. pl. [NL. See POLYGYNY.] Bot. A disused Linnaean order of plants including those having flowers with more than twelve styles. — pol'y·gyn'i·an (-ăn), adj.

Pol'y·dac'ty·lus (pŏl'ĭ·dăk'tĭ·lŭs), n. [NL.] See POLYNEMIDAE.

pol'y·de·mo'ni·ac, -de'mon·ism, -de'mon·ist, etc. Vars. of POLYDAEMONIAC, etc.

pol'y·e'cious, pol'y·e'cious·ly, pol'y·e'cious·ness, pol'y·e'cism, pol'y·e'cy (pŏl'ĭ·ē'sĭ). Vars. of POLYOECIOUS, POLYOECIOUSLY, etc.

pol'y·e'dral (pŏl'ĭ·ē'drăl), pol'y·e'dron (-ē'drŭn), etc. Vars. of POLYHEDRAL, POLYHEDRON, etc.

pol'y·foil' (pŏl'ĭ·foil'), n. [poly- + foil, n.] Arch. = MULTIFOIL, n.

pol'y·gar. Var. of POLIGAR.

pol'y·garch'y. Erron. var. of POLYARCHY.

po·lyg'e·ny (pō·lĭj'ē·nĭ), n. = POLYGENISM.

pol'y·glot·wise', adv. See -WISE.

Pol'y·go·na'les (pŏl'ĭ·gō·nā'lēz), n. pl. [NL.] See POLYGONACEAE.

pol'y·groove', adj. & v. t. See POLY-.

pol'y·gy·nae'cial. Var. of POLYGYNOECIAL.

pol'y·gyn'ic (-jĭn'ĭk), adj. Also pol'y·gyn'i·ous (-ĭ·ŭs). = POLYGYNOUS.

---

po·lyg'y·nist (pō·lĭj'ĭ·nĭst), n. A practicer or advocate of polygyny.

pol'y·gy·noe'cial (pŏl'ĭ·jĭ·nē'shăl), adj. Bot. Of several or many united gynoecia, as a collective fruit.

po·lyg'y·nous (pō·lĭj'ĭ·nŭs), adj. 1. Of, pertaining to, practicing, or characterized by, polygyny.
2. Bot. Having many styles.
3. Zool. Of or pertaining to a species maintaining a number of fecundated females in its colony; — said of certain social bees and ants.

po·lyg'y·ny (-nĭ), n. [poly- + Gr. gynē woman, wife.] 1. The state or fact of having several wives (or concubines) at the same time; the practice of polygamy.
2. The mating of one male with several females, in certain animals, as fur seals.

pol'y·gy'ral (pŏl'ĭ·jī'răl), adj. Zool. Polycyclic.

pol'y·gy'ri·a (-jī'rĭ·ȧ; -jĭr'ĭ·ȧ), n. [NL. See POLY-; GYRUS.] Anat. The condition of having an unusual number of cerebral convolutions.

pol'y·hae'mi·a, -he'mi·a (-hē'mĭ·ȧ), n. [NL.] = POLYEMIA. — pol'y·hae'mic, -he'mic (-mĭk), adj.

pol'y·hal'ide (-hăl'īd, -ĭd; -hā'līd, -lĭd; 157), n. Also -id. [poly- + halide.] Chem. A compound of more than one halogen atom with an element or radical.

pol'y·ha'lite (pŏl'ĭ·hā'līt), n. [poly- + Gr. hals salt.] Mineral. A mineral usually in fibrous masses of a brick-red color due to iron, but consisting essentially of sulphates of calcium, magnesium, and potassium, $2CaSO_4.MgSO_4.K_2SO_4.2H_2O$.

pol'y·har'mo·ny (-här'mō·nĭ), n. Music. A type of harmonic structure which introduces characteristically two or more simultaneous harmonies or strata of harmony. — pol'y·har·mon'ic (-här·mŏn'ĭk), adj.

pol'y·he'dral (pŏl'ĭ·hē'drăl), adj. [See POLYHEDRON.] Geom. Having many faces, as a solid; relating to a polyhedron.

polyhedral angle. Math. A solid angle such that the half lines joining the vertex to the boundary of the subtending surface form a pyramid. The plane faces of the pyramid are called the faces of the polyhedral angle. Cf. ALGEBRAIC ANGLE; RECTANGULAR POLYHEDRAL ANGLE; FACE ANGLE; ISOSCELES TRIHEDRAL ANGLE.

pol'y·he'dric (-hē'drĭk; -hĕd'rĭ·kăl), adj. Polyhedral; having many sides or aspects.

pol'y·he'dri·cal (-hē'drĭ·-; -hĕd'rĭ·kăl), adj. Polyhedric.

pol'y·he'droid (-hē'droid), n. Math. The analogue in space of four dimensions of a polyhedron in space of three dimensions. There are six regular polyhedroids, the pentahedroid, hypercube, hexadecahedroid, disdodecahedroid, dishexecontahedroid and hexacosihedroid.

pol'y·he'dron (-hē'drŭn), n.; pl. -DRONS (-drŭnz), -DRA (-drȧ). [NL., fr. Gr. polyedros with many seats or sides, fr. polys many + hedra seat, side. See POLY-; SIT.] 1. Geom. A figure or solid formed by many plane faces, esp. by more than six.
2. Optics. A polyscope, or multiplying glass.
3. Bot. One of the peculiar angular bodies, with hornlike appendages, into which the megazoospores of the water net (genus Hydrodictyon) develop and within which new coenobia are formed.

polyhedron formula. Math. Euler's formula, $V + F - E = 2$, connecting the number of vertices, V, faces, F, and edges, E, of a polyhedron.

pol'y·he'drous (-hē'drŭs), adj. Polyhedral.

pol'y·he'mi·a, -hae'mi·a (-hē'mĭ·ȧ), n. [NL.] Polyemia.

pol'y·hi·dro'sis (-hĭ·drō'sĭs), pol'y·i·dro'sis (-ĭ·drō'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. poly- + hidrosis.] Med. Excessive secretion of perspiration.

pol'y·his'tor (-hĭs'tŏr), or -his·tor'i·an (-hĭs·tō'rĭ·ăn; 181), n. [Gr. polyistōr very learned.] One of encyclopedic learning. — pol'y·his·tor'ic (-hĭs·tŏr'ĭk), adj. — pol'y·his'to·ry (-hĭs'tō·rĭ), n.

pol'y·hy'brid (-hī'brĭd), n. [See POLY-.] Biol. A hybrid whose parents differ in a number of characters; an individual or type heterozygous for more than one pair of genes.

pol'y·hy'dric (-hī'drĭk), adj. [poly- + *hydroxy*l.] Chem. a Containing more than one atom of acid hydrogen. b Containing more than one hydroxyl group; polyhydroxy.

pol'y·hy·drox'y (-hĭ·drŏk'sĭ), adj. Chem. Containing more than one hydroxyl group; polyhydric.

Pol'y·hym'ni·a (pŏl'ĭ·hĭm'nĭ·ȧ), n. [L., fr. Gr. Polymnia, fr. polys many + hymnos hymn.] Gr. Myth. The Muse of the sacred lyric. See MUSE, n., 1.

pol'y·i·de'ism (-ĭ·dē'ĭz'm), n. Psychol. Absorption in a group of related ideas or memories; — opposed to monoideism. — pol'y·i·de'ic (-ĭk), adj.

pol'y·lem'ma (-lĕm'ȧ), n. [poly- + Gr. lēmma proposition.] Logic. An argument, analogous to a dilemma, in which many alternatives (usually more than three) are presented in the major premise.

pol'y·lep'i·dous (pŏl'ĭ·lĕp'ĭ·dŭs), adj. [poly- + Gr. lepis scale.] Many-scaled. Rare.

pol'y·lith (pŏl'ĭ·lĭth), n. [poly- + -lith.] Archaeol. A megalithic structure of several or many stones, as a dolmen or a stone circle, usually in the form of a single cell, and dating mainly from neolithic times. Cf. MONOLITH, 1.

pol'y·lith'ic (-lĭth'ĭk), adj. Composed of several or many stones or kinds of stone.

po·lyl'o·gy (pō·lĭl'ō·jĭ), n. [Gr. polylogia, fr. polys much + logos discourse.] Garrulity. Rare.

po·lyl'o·quent (-kwĕnt), adj. [poly- + L. loquens, pres. part. of loqui to speak.] Garrulous. Rare.

pol'y·mag'net (pŏl'ĭ·măg'nĕt; -nĭt; 119), n. Elec. A combination of two or more electromagnets to produce a variable magnetic field.

pol'y·mas'ti·a (-măs'tĭ·ȧ), pol'y·mas'ty (pŏl'ĭ·măs'tĭ), n. [NL. polymastia, fr. poly- + Gr. mastos breast.] Anat. The condition marked by an abnormally large number of nipples or breasts. — pol'y·mas'tic (-măs'tĭk), adj.

Pol'y·mas'ti·ga (pŏl'ĭ·măs'tĭ·gȧ), Pol'y·mas·tig'i·da (-măs·tĭj'ĭ·dȧ), n. pl. [NL., fr. poly- + Gr. mastix, mastigos, whip.] Zool. An order of flagellate protozoans having several flagella. — pol'y·mas'ti·gate (-măs'tĭ·gāt), adj. — pol'y·mas'ti·gous (-gŭs), adj.

pol'y·mas'tism (-măs'tĭz'm), n. Polymastia.

Pol'y·mas'to·don (-măs'tō·dŏn), n. [NL. See POLY-; MASTODON.] Paleontol. A genus of multituberculate American Mesozoic mammals. — pol'y·mas'to·dont (-dŏnt), adj. & n.

pol'y·math (pŏl'ĭ·măth), n. Also po·lym'a·thist (pō·lĭm'ȧ·thĭst). [Gr. polymathēs knowing much.] A polyhistor. — adj. Very and diversely learned.

po·lym'a·thy (pō·lĭm'ȧ·thĭ), n. Encyclopedic learning. — pol'y·math'ic (pŏl'ĭ·măth'ĭk), adj.

pol'y·ma'zi·a (pŏl'ĭ·mā'zĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. poly- + Gr. mazos breast.] Polymastia.

pol'y·me'li·a (pŏl'ĭ·mē'lĭ·ȧ), po·lym'e·ly (pō·lĭm'ē·lĭ; pŏl'ĭ·mē'lĭ), n. [NL. polymelia, fr. poly- + Gr. melos limb.] Teratol. State of having supernumerary limbs. — pol'y·me'li·an (pŏl'ĭ·mē'lĭ·ăn), adj.

pol'y·mer (pŏl'ĭ·mĕr), n. [See POLYMERIC.] Chem. Any of two or more polymeric compounds; specif., one of higher molecular weight, esp. one produced from another by polymerization.

pol'y·mere (pŏl'ĭ·mēr), n. Petrog. Any igneous rock composed of more than one kind of mineral.

pol'y·me'ri·a (pŏl'ĭ·mē'rĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. poly- + Gr. meros a part.] Anat. The condition of having supernumerary parts or accessory organs.

pol'y·mer'ic (-mĕr'ĭk), adj. [poly- + Gr. meros part.] Chem. Consisting of the same elements in the same proportions by weight, but differing in molecular weight; as, cyanic acid (CNOH) and cyanuric acid ($C_3N_3O_3H_3$) are polymeric with each other; — said specif. of the compound of higher molecular weight; as, cyanuric acid is a polymeric modification of cyanic acid. Cf. ISOMERIC, 1.

po·lym'er·ism (pō·lĭm'ĕr·ĭz'm; pŏl'ĭ·mĕr·ĭz'm), n. State or quality of being polymeric; also, polymerization.

pol'y·mer·i·za'tion (pŏl'ĭ·mĕr·ĭ·zā'shŭn; pō·lĭm'ĕr·ĭ·zā'shŭn; -ĭ·zā'shŭn), n. Chem. a Act or process of polymerizing or state of being polymerized. b Association. See ASSOCIATION, 6.

pol'y·mer·ize (pŏl'ĭ·mĕr·īz; pō·lĭm'ĕr·īz), v. t. & i. Chem. To change (by union of two or more molecules of the same kind) into another compound having the same elements in the same proportions, but a higher molecular weight and different physical properties.

po·lym'er·ous (pō·lĭm'ĕr·ŭs), adj. 1. Bot. Having many parts or members in a whorl.
2. Chem. Polymeric. Rare.

pol'y·met'a·mer'ic (pŏl'ĭ·mĕt'ȧ·mĕr'ĭk), adj. Zool. Having, or pertaining to, more than one metamere.

po·lym'e·ter (pō·lĭm'ē·tĕr), n. [poly- + meter.] 1. A combination on one mount, or stand, of various meteorological instruments.
2. Any of various measuring instruments.

pol'y·meth'yl·ene (pŏl'ĭ·mĕth'ĭ·lēn), n. Chem. Any of a series of saturated cyclic hydrocarbons or cyclanes (C_nH_{2n}) the molecules of which are regarded as composed of three or more methylene groups united in ring form, as cyclopropane, cyclobutane, etc.

pol'y·me·to'chi·a (pŏl'ĭ·mē·tō'kĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. poly- + Gr. metochē a participle.] Use of many participles or participial constructions. — pol'y·me·to'chic (-tō'kĭk), adj.

pol'y·mi'cri·an (-mī'krĭ·ăn), adj. [poly- + Gr. mikros little.] Compressed into small space; compact.

pol'y·mi·cro'bi·al (-mī·krō'bĭ·ăl), adj. Polymicrobic.

pol'y·mi·cro'bic (-mī·krō'bĭk; -krŏb'ĭk), adj. [See POLY-; MICROBE; -IC.] Of, pertaining to, or caused by, several types of microorganisms.

pol'y·mi'cro·scope (-mī'krŏ·skōp), n. A microscope for the rapid and convenient exchange of objects in the field.

pol'y·mig'nite (pŏl'ĭ·mĭg'nīt), n. [poly- + Gr. mignynai to mix + 1st -ite, 4.] Mineral. A niobate and titanate of the metals of the cerium group with iron and calcium, occurring in slender, black, prismatic crystals. Sp. gr., 4.8

Pol'y·mix'i·a (-mĭk'sĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. Gr. polymixia promiscuity.] Zool. A genus of marine spiny-finned fishes resembling the soldierfishes but with smooth scales and a pair of barbels on the chin. In some classifications it is the type of a family, Pol'y·mix·i'i·dae (-mĭks·ĭ'ĭ·dē). — pol'y·mix'i·id (-mĭk'sĭ·ĭd), n. & adj.

Po·lym'ni·a (pō·lĭm'nĭ·ȧ), n. [L., fr. Gr. Polymnia.]
1. = POLYHYMNIA.
2. Bot. A small genus of American, chiefly tropical, herbs (family Carduaceae) having large, lobed leaves and corymbose heads of discoid and radiate yellow or white flowers. The two North American species, P. canadensis and P. uvedalia, are called leafcup.

pol'ym·nite (pŏl'ĭm·nīt), n. [Gr. polymnios full of moss.] Petrog. A stone marked with dendrites and black lines so disposed as to suggest rivers, marshes, etc.

pol'y·morph (pŏl'ĭ·môrf), n. A polymorphonuclear leucocyte. See LEUCOCYTE.

pol'y·morph (pŏl'ĭ·môrf), n. [Gr. polymorphos multiform, fr. polys many + morphē form.] 1. Biol. A polymorphous organism, or one of the several forms of such an organism.
2. Cryst. A substance crystallizable in several distinct forms; also, any one of these forms. Cf. ALLOMORPH.

Pol'y·mor'pha (-môr'fȧ), n. pl. [NL., fr. poly- + -morpha.] Zool. A group of beetles, formerly a suborder, including the Clavicornia and Serricornia.

pol'y·mor'phic (-fĭk), adj. a Polymorphous. b Biol. Having, or occurring in, several distinct forms; — opposed to monomorphic.

pol'y·mor'phism (pŏl'ĭ·môr'fĭz'm), n. Quality or state of being polymorphous; as: a Biol. (1) Capability of assuming different forms; capability of wide variation. (2) Existence of a species in several forms independent of the variations of sex, as in certain butterflies whose broods, appearing at different seasons, differ in size or color, or both, or in ants and termites, in which different castes (workers, soldiers, etc.) exist. b Cryst. = PLEOMORPHISM, 1. — pol'y·mor·phis'tic (-môr·fĭs'tĭk), adj.

pol'y·mor'pho·nu·cle·ar (-môr'fō·nū'klē·ĕr), adj. [See POLYMORPHOUS; NUCLEAR.] 1. Anat. Having the nucleus deeply lobed or almost completely divided. See LEUCOCYTE.
2. Biol. Designating the commonest type (normally about 72 per cent of the total number) of leucocytes (polymorphonuclear leucocytes) in human blood. They have an irregular, deeply lobed, or often almost completely divided, nucleus.

pol'y·mor'pho·sis (pŏl'ĭ·môr'fō·sĭs; -môr·fō'sĭs), n. [NL. See POLY-; MORPHOSIS.] Zool. Structural without functional differentiation.

pol'y·mor'phous (-môr'fŭs), adj. [poly- + -morphous.] Having, or assuming, various forms, characters, or styles; as: a Anthropol. As applied to a god, having many divine powers and a corresponding variety of functions. "A polymorphous being in which all celestial powers manifested themselves in turn." Trans. from Cumont. b Biol. Polymorphic b. c Cryst. = PLEOMORPHIC. d Music. Characterized by varied treatment of themes; — said of a contrapuntal composition.

pol'y·mor'phous-per·verse', adj. Psychoanalysis. Pertaining to, designating, or exhibiting, erotic tendencies associated with various areas and functions of the body; designating infantile sexuality not yet synthesized into the mature sexual impulse as the basis of perversions.

pol'y·mor'phy (pŏl'ĭ·môr'fĭ), n. Polymorphism.

po'ly–moun'tain, n. [L. montanus, neut. montanum, of a mountain. See POLY.] a = POLY, n. b The related Teucrium montanum, formerly called Polium montanum. c The alpine bartsia.

Pol'y·my·a'ri·a (pŏl'ĭ·mĭ·ā'rĭ·ȧ; 79), Pol'y·my·a'ri·i (-ĭ), n. pl. [NL., fr. poly- + Gr. mys, myos, muscle.] Zool. A primary division of nematode worms comprising those forms in which many muscle cells are seen in a transverse section. — pol'y·my·ar'i·an (-ăr'ĭ·ăn), adj. & n.

pol'y·my'o·di (-mī'ō·dĭ), n. pl. [NL., fr. poly- + myo- + Gr. ōidē song.] Zool. An abandoned group of birds nearly equivalent to Acromyodi. — pol'y·my·o'di·an (-mĭ·ō'dĭ·ăn), pol'y·my'o·dous (-mī'ō·dŭs), adj.

pol'y·my'oid (-mī'oid), adj. Zool. Having many syringeal muscles; polymyodian.

pol'y·my'o·si'tis (-mī'ō·sī'tĭs), n. [NL., fr. poly- + myositis.] Inflammation of several muscles at once.

pol'y·myth'y (pŏl'ĭ·mĭth'ĭ), n. [See POLY-; MYTH.] The inclusion of many or several stories or plots in one narrative or dramatic work. — pol'y·myth'ic (-mĭth'ĭk), adj.

pol'y·naph'thene (-năf'thēn), n. Chem. Any of a group of nonaromatic poylcyclic hydrocarbons found in certain petroleums and containing a smaller proportion of hydrogen than the naphthenes.

Pol'y·nem'i·dae (-nĕm'ĭ·dē; -nē'mĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. poly- + Gr. nēma thread.] Zool. A family of spiny-finned fishes allied to the mullets (Mugilidae) but having the pectoral fin divided into two parts, the upper much like an ordinary fin and the lower composed of several separate, slender, threadlike rays, whence the species are called threadfins. They abound on the sandy shores of warm seas. Many are valued for food and some yield isinglass. The type genus, Pol'y·ne'mus (-nē'mŭs), is a small one, most of the species belonging to Polydactylus. — pol'y·ne'mid (-mĭd), n. & adj. — -ne'moid (-moid), adj. & n.

Pol'y·ne'sian (pŏl'ĭ·nē'shăn; -zhăn), n. 1. A member of a race of mankind widespread throughout Oceania; specif.: a A member of the brown race of Polynesia from New Zealand to Hawaii, and Samoa to Easter Island. b A member of any of the brown populations of Micronesia, Polynesia, and parts of Melanesia; or, specif., one of the native race of these groups, found pure chiefly in Polynesia. (Cf. MALAYO-POLYNESIAN.) The Polynesians are variously held to be a branch of the Malay race, an offshoot of an early Asiatic Caucasian or Caucasoid race (cf. AINU, INDONESIAN), or a mixed race having a Melanesian as well as a Malay and Caucasoid strain. That Papuan and Melanesian elements enter into some of the Polynesian groups is probable. The pure type is tall and statuesque, of brown or olive complexion, with wavy brown or black hair. The features are nearly Caucasian, though heavy. The Polynesians are cheerful, courageous, cleanly, gentle, and dignified, of keen artistic sense and highly poetical imagination, but are often indolent, and formerly were nearly all cannibals. Tattooing is widespread, developed almost as an art among the Maoris and Marquesans. They were the most expert of primitive navigators. The taboo (which see) is the most famous of their social institutions. Of pure Polynesians the foremost are the Hawaiians, Maoris, Marquesans, Samoans, Tahitians, and Tongans. Cf. MELANESIAN, MICRONESIAN.
2. The Polynesian language or languages. See MAHORI; AUSTRONESIAN LANGUAGES, Table.

Pol'y·ne'sian (-nē'shăn; -zhăn), adj. [From NL. Polynesia, fr. F. Polynésie, fr. Gr. polys many + nēsos island.]
1. Of or pertaining to Polynesia or the Polynesians.
2. Belonging to or designating the subfamily of Austronesian languages spoken throughout the greater part of Polynesia. See AUSTRONESIAN LANGUAGES, Table.

Polynesian chestnut. The edible kidney-shaped seed of a Polynesian tree (Inocarpus edulis); also, the tree itself.

Polynesian region. Biogeog. A terrestrial division including the smaller tropical Pacific islands. It is included by some in the Australian region, when it is called the Polynesian subregion. It is without indigenous land mammals except bats.

Polynesian rosewood. The wood of the banago Thespesia populnea; also, the tree itself.

pol'y·ne'sic (pŏl'ĭ·nē'sĭk; -nēs'ĭk), adj. [Cf. POLYNESIAN.] Med. Occurring in different spots or in sporadic patches like islands.

pol'y·neu·ri'tis (-nū·rĭ'tĭs), n. [NL.] Med. Neuritis of several nerves at the same time; multiple neuritis. Alcoholism, various metallic and other poisons, certain infectious diseases, and vitamin deficiency (as in beriberi) may cause the disorder. — pol'y·neu·rit'ic (-rĭt'ĭk), adj.

Pol'y·ni'ces, Pol'y·nei'ces (pŏl'ĭ·nī'sēz), n. [L. Polynices, fr. Gr. Polyneikēs.] Gr. Antiq. A son of Oedipus. He was slain in the war against his brother Eteocles and his uncle Creon for possession of Thebes. See ETEOCLES, ANTIGONE, SEVEN AGAINST THEBES.

Po·lyn'o·e (pō·lĭn'ō·ē), n. [NL., fr. Gr. Polynoē daughter of Nereus and Doris.] Zool. A genus of marine annelid worms, family Pol'y·noi'dae (pŏl'ĭ·noi'dē), having the back covered with two rows of scales or elytra. — pol'y·noid (pŏl'ĭ·noid), adj. & n.

pol'y·no'mi·al (pŏl'ĭ·nō'mĭ·ăl; 159), n. [poly- + -nomial as in binomial.] 1. Alg. An expression of two or more terms, as $a^2 - 2ab + b^2$.
2. Biol. A technical name of a plant or animal consisting of a descriptive phrase of more than three words, as those in use before the binomial nomenclature.

pol'y·no'mi·al, adj. 1. Chiefly Math. Containing many terms; multinomial; as, the polynomial theorem.
2. Biol. Consisting of many names or terms.

pol'y·no'mi·al·ism (-lĭz'm), n. A system of nomenclature using polynomials. — pol'y·no'mi·al·ist (-lĭst), n.

pol'y·nom'ic (-nŏm'ĭk), adj. Polynomial.

pol'y·nu'cle·o'sis (-nū'klē·ō'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. E. polynuclear + -osis.] Med. A condition characterized by the presence of an excess of polymorphonuclear leucocytes, esp. in the circulating blood.

Po·ly'o·don (pō·lī'ō·dŏn), n. [NL., fr. poly- + -odon.] Zool. The genus constituted by the paddlefish. It is the type of a family Pol'y·o·don'ti·dae (pŏl'ĭ·ō·dŏn'tĭ·dē), commonly classed in the order Chondrostei, and containing also the genus Psephurus of China. — pol'y·o·dont' (pŏl'ĭ·ō·dŏnt'), pol'y·o·don'toid (-dŏn'toid), adj. & n.

pol'y·o·don'tal (pŏl'ĭ·ō·dŏn'tăl; -t'l), adj. [poly- + -odont + -al.] Elec. Designating, or pertaining to, a winding having several separate armature teeth per pole per phase. Cf. MONODONTAL.

pol'y·o·don't·i·a (pŏl'Ĭ·ō·dŏn'shĭ·ȧ), n. [NL.] Dent. The occurrence of an abnormal number of teeth.

pol'y·oe'cious (-ē'shŭs), adj. [poly- + Gr. oikia house.] Bot. Having the archegonia and antheridia sometimes on the same plant, sometimes on different plants, as certain mosses and liverworts; — often written polyoicous, the form preferred by bryologists. Cf. HETEROECIOUS, PAROECIOUS. — pol'y·oe'cious·ly, adv. — pol'y·oe'cious·ness, n. — pol'y·oe'cism (-sĭz'm), n.

pol'y·oi'cous (-oi'kŭs), adj. Bot. Polyoecious.

pol'y·om'ma·tous (pŏl'Ĭ·ŏm'ȧ·tŭs), adj. [poly- + Gr. omma, -atos, the eye.] Having many eyes.

pol'y·on'o·mous (-ŏn'ō·mŭs), adj. Polyonymous.

pol'y·on'o·my (-mĭ), n. Polyonymy.

pol'y·o·nych'i·a (pŏl'Ĭ·ō·nĭk'Ĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. poly- + -onychia.] Med. The condition of having an excessive number of nails on the fingers or toes.

pol'y·o·nym' (pŏl'Ĭ·ō·nĭm'), n. 1. A synonym. Rare. 2. A polynomial name or term. — pol'y·on'y·mal (-ŏn'Ĭ·mȧl), pol'y·o·nym'ic (-ō·nĭm'Ĭk), adj. — pol'y·on'y·mist (-ŏn'Ĭ·mĭst), n.

pol'y·on'y·mous (pŏl'Ĭ·ŏn'Ĭ·mŭs), adj. [Gr. polyōnymos, fr. polys many + onoma, onyma, name.] Marked by polyonymy; also, Rare, synonymous.

pol'y·on'y·my (-ŏn'Ĭ·mĭ), n. [Gr. polyōnymia a multitude of names.] a Use of or the practice of using diverse names for one thing. b Polynomialism.

pol'y·o'pi·a (pŏl'Ĭ·ō'pĭ·ȧ), n. [NL. See POLY-; -OPIA.] Med. Perception of more than one image of a single object; multiple vision. — pol'y·op'ic (-ŏp'Ĭk), adj.

pol'y·o·ra'ma (-ō·rä'mȧ; -rȧm'ȧ), n. [poly- + Gr. horama a sight, view.] A view of many objects; also, a sort of panorama with dissolving views.

pol'y·or'chid·ism (-ôr'kĭ·dĭz'm), n. [poly- + -orchidism.] The condition characterized by more than two testicles.

pol'y·or·gan'ic (-ôr·găn'Ĭk), adj. Having many organs.

pol'y·ose (pŏl'Ĭ·ōs), n. [poly- + -ose.] Chem. A polysaccharide.

pol'y·ox'ide (-ŏk'sīd), n. Also -id. Chem. A compound of more than one oxygen atom with an element or radical.

pol'yp (pŏl'Ĭp), n. [F. polype, fr. L. polypus, fr. Gr. polypous, polypodos, lit., many-footed, fr. polys many + pous, podos, foot. See POLY-; FOOT. Cf. POLYPODY, POLYPUS, POULP.] 1. Zool. a Obs. An octopus. b An invertebrate belonging to, and of the type most characteristic of, the Coelenterata, having typically a hollow cylindrical body with walls of ectoderm and endoderm cells, closed and attached at one end, and opening at the other by a central mouth surrounded by tentacles, which are usually armed with nematocysts and serve in taking its prey. The genus Hydra (which see) consists of typical polyps. The sea anemones afford other examples of simple polyps; the hydroids and corals, examples of compound polyps. c In old or careless usage, any of various other invertebrates having more or less superficial resemblance to the true polyps in form, position of mouth, tentacles, etc., as polyzoans, crinoids, rotifers, compound ascidians, etc.
2. Med. A projecting mass of swollen and hypertrophied mucous membrane, as in the nasal cavity or one of its accessory sinuses, caused by chronic inflammation.

pol'y·pap'il·lo'ma (pŏl'Ĭ·păp'Ĭ·lō'mȧ), n.; pl. -LOMATA (-mȧ·tȧ), -LOMAS (-mȧz). [NL., fr. poly- + papilloma.] Med. Any condition characterized by the presence of many papillomata; specif., yaws.

pol'y·pa'ri·a (pŏl'Ĭ·pā'rĭ·ȧ; 79), pol'y·par'i·um (-pâr'Ĭ·ŭm), n. [NL.] Zool. A polypary.

po·lyp'a·rous (pō·lĭp'ȧ·rŭs), adj. [poly- + -parous.] Polytocous.

pol'y·par'y (pŏl'Ĭ·pĕr'Ĭ; -pĕr·Ĭ), n.; pl. -IES (-ĭz). Zool. The common investing structure or tissue in which the polyps of corals and other compound forms are embedded; a polypidom. — pol'y·par'i·an (-pâr'Ĭ·ăn), adj.

pol·yp'e·an (pŏl·ĭp'ē·ăn), adj. Zool. Pertaining to, or like, a polyp or polyps. — n. A polyp.

pol'y·ped (pŏl'Ĭ·pĕd), adj. [poly- + -ped.] Having many feet. — n. A polyped creature.

Pol'y·pe·da'tes (-pē·dā'tēz), n. [NL., fr. poly- + Gr. pēdein to jump.] Zool. See TREE FROG.

pol'y·pep'tide (pŏl'Ĭ·pĕp'tĭd; -tīd; 157), n. Also -tid. [G. polypeptid. See POLY-; PEPTONE.] Biochem. Any of the simple, nonprotein combinations of several amino-acid molecules.

pol'y·pet'al (pŏl'Ĭ·pĕt'ȧl), adj. Bot. Polypetalous. — n. A polypetalous plant.

pol'y·pet'al·ous (-pĕt'ȧl·ŭs), adj. Bot. Consisting of or having the petals separate or not united; choripetalous; — said of a flower or corolla. — pol'y·pet'al·y (-Ĭ), n.

Po·lyph'a·ga (pō·lĭf'ȧ·gȧ), n. pl. [NL., fr. poly-+-phaga.] Zool. A suborder of Coleoptera, including all the beetles, except the Adephaga.

pol'y·phage (pŏl'Ĭ·fāj), n. [Cf. F. polyphage. See POLY-; -PHAGOUS.] One who eats much or many kinds of food. Obs. exc. Humorous.

pol'y·pha'gi·a (-fā'jĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. Gr. polyphagia excess in eating.] a Med. Excessive appetite or eating; bulimia. b Zool. Ability to subsist on various kinds of food. — pol'y·pha'gi·an (-fā'jĭ·ăn), adj. & n. — po·lyph'a·gist (pō·lĭf'ȧ·jĭst), n.

pol'y·phag'ic (pŏl'Ĭ·făj'Ĭk), adj. Polyphagous.

po·lyph'a·gous (pō·lĭf'ȧ·gŭs), adj. [L. polyphagus, fr. Gr. polyphagos, fr. polys many + phagein to eat.] a Eating, or subsisting on, many kinds of food; also, rarely, voracious. b Specif., Zool., having a number of food plants, as certain vegetarian insects. Cf. MONOPHAGOUS b; OLIGOPHAGOUS.

po·lyph'a·gy (pō·lĭf'ȧ·jĭ), n. Polyphagia.

pol'y·pha·lan'gism (pŏl'Ĭ·fȧ·lăn'jĭz'm), n. [See POLY-; PHALANX, 5; -ISM.] Med. The condition of having an excessive number of phalanges in the fingers or toes.

pol'y·phar'ma·cist (-fär'mȧ·sĭst), n. One skilled in the practice of polypharmacy.

pol'y·phar'ma·con (-kŏn), n. [NL., fr. Gr. polypharmakos having many drugs. See POLY-; PHARMACON.] A remedy compounded of many ingredients.

pol'y·phar'ma·cy (pŏl'Ĭ·fär'mȧ·sĭ), n. [poly- + Gr. pharmakeia the using of medicine, fr. pharmakon medicine; cf. F. polypharmacie]. 1. Med. The administration of many medicines, esp. at the same time.
2. The compounding of remedies containing many ingredients; also, the excessive use of such remedies. This was the vogue in the Middle Ages, and vestiges of it are still evident in the materia medica of today.
— pol'y·phar'ma·cal (-kȧl), adj.

pol'y·phar'mic (-fär'mĭk), adj. [See POLYPHARMACON.] Containing many drugs. — n. A polypharmacon.

pol'y·phas'al (pŏl'Ĭ·fāz'ȧl; -l), adj. Elec. Of or pert. to a polyphase system; polyphase.

pol'y·phase (pŏl'Ĭ·fāz), adj. [poly- + -phase.] Having or producing two or more phases; multiphase; as, a polyphase machine; a polyphase current. See PHASE, n., 6.

pol'y·phas'er (pŏl'Ĭ·fāz'ĕr), n. Elec. A polyphase machine; a multiphaser.

Pol'y·pheme (pŏl'Ĭ·fēm), n. [F. Polyphème.] The Cyclops Polyphemus; hence [not cap.], a giant. — pol'y·phe'mi·an (-fē'mĭ·ăn; 159), pol'y·phem'ic (-fĕm'Ĭk), pol'y·phe'mous (-fē'mŭs), adj.

Pol'y·phe'mus (pŏl'Ĭ·fē'mŭs), n. [L., fr. Gr. Polyphēmos.] Gr. Myth. A Cyclops, who, as related in the Odyssey, imprisoned Odysseus and his companions in a cavern and devoured six of the company. Odysseus made him drunk, and blinded him by piercing his eye with a sharp, heated pole. The prisoners then escaped from the cave by clinging to the bellies of the Cyclops's sheep as he drove them out to pasture. See GALATEA a.

Pol'y·phe'mus moth. A very large American silkworm moth (Telea polyphemus) of a yellowish or brownish color, with a large eyelike spot in each hind wing. Its larva, which is very large, bright green, with silvery tubercles, and with oblique white stripes on the sides, feeds on the oak, chestnut, willow, cherry, apple, and other trees.

Polyphemus Moth, male.

Larva of Polyphemus Moth, eating leaf.

pol'y·phe'nol (-fē'nōl; -nŏl), n. Chem. A polyhydroxy phenol.

pol'y·phloes·boe'an (-flĭs·bē'ăn), pol'y·phlois·boi'an (-flois·boi'ăn), adj. Also pol'u·phlois·boi'an (pŏl'ū·flois·boi'ăn), etc. [Gr. polyphloisbos.] Loud-roaring; — applied to the sea by Homer. — pol'u·phlois·bo'ic (-bō'Ĭk), pol'u·phlois'boi·ot'ic (-flois'boi·ŏt'Ĭk), pol'u·phlois·boi'o·ta·tot'ic (-flois·boi'ō·tȧ·tŏt'Ĭk), adj. — po'ly·phlois'bo·ism (-flois'bō·ĭz'm), pol'y·phlois·boi'o·ism (-flois·boi'ō·ĭz'm), n. Rant.

pol'y·pho'bi·a (-fō'bĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. poly- + -phobia.] Med. Pantophobia.

pol'y·phone (pŏl'Ĭ·fōn), n. [poly- + -phone.] 1. Music. A kind of lute. Obs.
2. A character or written sign representing more than one sound, as ea in read, pronounced rēd or rĕd.

pol'y·phoned (-fōnd), adj. Organ Building. Producing two or more tones; — said of an organ pipe.

pol'y·phon'ic (-fŏn'Ĭk; -fō'nĭk), adj. [Gr. polyphōnos, fr. polys many + phōnē sound; cf. F. polyphone.] 1. Having, or consisting of, many sounds or voices.
2. Music. a Of or pertaining to polyphony; consisting of two or more melodies combined; contrapuntal; — opposed to homophonic. b Capable of giving more than one tone at a time, as the organ or harp.
3. Phonet. Having more than one phonetic value; as, Assyrian polyphonic characters.

pol'y·phon'i·cal (-fŏn'Ĭ·kȧl), adj. Polyphonic. Rare.

polyphonic prose. A poetic form of expression used chiefly by Amy Lowell, which is printed as prose, but makes use of rhythm, rhyme, assonance, alliteration, etc., with many changes from one form to another.

pol'y·pho·nism (pŏl'Ĭ·fō·nĭz'm), n. Polyphony.

pol'y·pho'nist (pŏl'Ĭ·fō'nĭst), n. 1. A ventriloquist.
2. Music. One skilled in polyphony; a contrapuntist.

pol'y·pho'ni·um (pŏl'Ĭ·fō'nĭ·ŭm; 159), n. [NL.] Music. A polyphonic composition.

po·lyph'o·ny (pō·lĭf'ō·nĭ; pŏl'Ĭ·fō'nĭ), n. [Gr. polyphōnia.]
1. Multiplicity of sounds, as in reverberations of an echo.
2. Music. Composition in simultaneous and harmonizing but melodically independent and individual parts or voices; contrapuntal composition; — opposed to homophony.
3. Phonet. Representation of more than one sound or sound combination by means of the same written character.

pol'y·phore (pŏl'Ĭ·fōr; 181), n. [poly- + -phore.] Bot. A torus bearing numerous ovaries. Rare.

pol'y·phos·phor'ic (-fŏs·fôr'Ĭk), adj. Chem. Pertaining to or designating any of a series of acids containing more than one atom of phosphorus, as pyrophosphoric acid, $H_4P_2O_7$.

pol'y·pho'tal (pŏl'Ĭ·fō'tȧl; -t'l), adj. [poly- + Gr. phōs, phōtos, light.] Elec. Pertaining to or designating arc lamps so constructed that more than one can be used on a single circuit. Cf. MONOPHOTE. — pol'y·phote (pŏl'Ĭ·fōt), n. & adj.

pol'y·phy·le'sis (-fĭ·lē'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. polyphylos of many tribes.] Polyphyletic descent; polygenesis. — pol'y·phy'ly (pŏl'Ĭ·fĭ'lĭ), n.

pol'y·phy·let'ic (-fĭ·lĕt'Ĭk), adj. [poly- + Gr. phylē clan, phyletēs one of the same clan.] Pertaining to, or derived from, more than one original or ancestral type, race, or family; polygenetic; as, a polyphyletic language or race; — opposed to monophyletic. — pol'y·phy·let'i·cal·ly, adv.

pol'y·phyl'line (-fĭl'ĭn; -īn), adj. Polyphyllous.

pol'y·phy·log'e·ny (-fĭ·lŏj'ē·nĭ), n. Biol. Phylogeny in which a group has been derived from more than one starting point or ancestral type.

pol'y·phy'o·dont (-fī'ō·dŏnt), adj. [Gr. polyphyēs manifold + -odont.] Zool. Having several or many sets of teeth in succession, as sharks and certain teleost fishes; — distinguished from monophyodont and diphyodont. — n. A polyphyodont animal.

Pol'y·pi (pŏl'Ĭ·pī), n. pl. [NL. See POLYP.] 1. Zool. In older classifications, a class of invertebrates more or less exactly corresponding to Anthozoa.
2. [not cap.] Pl. of POLYPUS.

pol·yp'i·an (pō·lĭp'Ĭ·ăn), adj. Of or pertaining to a polyp. R.

pol'y·pide (pŏl'Ĭ·pīd; -pĭd), n. Zool. One of the individual zooids of a polyzoan colony.

po·lyp'i·dom (pō·lĭp'Ĭ·dŭm), n. [polypus + Gr. domos house.] A polypary.

pol'y·pif'er·ous (pŏl'Ĭ·pĭf'ĕr·ŭs), pol'y·pig'er·ous (-pĭj'ĕr·ŭs), adj. [polypus + -ferous, -gerous.] Zool. Bearing polyps, or polypites.

pol'y·pite (pŏl'Ĭ·pīt), n. 1. Zool. a One of the zooids, or polyps, of a coral, hydroid, or siphonophore; — often restricted to the feeding zooids or hydranths as distinguished from dactylozooids or other modified or degenerate zooids. b Sometimes, the manubrium of a hydroid medusa.
2. Paleontol. A fossil coral. Obs.

Pol'y·pla·coph'o·ra (-plȧ·kŏf'ō·rȧ), n. pl. [NL. See POLY-; PLACOPHORA.] Zool. An order comprising most mollusks of the class Amphineura; the chitons. The foot occupies the whole ventral surface of the body and the shell is composed of eight calcified plates. — pol'y·pla·coph'o·ran (-răn), adj. & n. — pol'y·plac'o·phore (-plăk'ō·fōr; 181), n. — pol'y·pla·coph'o·rous (-plȧ·kŏf'ō·rŭs), adj.

pol'y·plas'tic (pŏl'Ĭ·plăs'tĭk), adj. Biol. Assuming, or able to assume, many forms.

Pol'y·plec'tron (pŏl'Ĭ·plĕk'trŏn), n. [NL., fr. poly- + Gr. plēktron spur, plectrum.] 1. Zool. The genus consisting of the peacock pheasants.
2. (pron. -trŏn) [not cap.] Music. An old kind of harpsichord or spinet.

pol'y·ploid (pŏl'Ĭ·ploid), adj. [poly- + -ploid.] Manifold in appearance or arrangement; specif., Biol., having or designating a chromosome number which is a multiple of the basic haploid number. — pol'y·ploi'dic (-ploi'dĭk), adj. — pol'y·ploi'dy (pŏl'Ĭ·ploi'dĭ), n.

pol'y·ploid (pŏl'Ĭ·ploid), n. Biol. A polyploid cell; hence, an individual, generation, etc., characterized by a polyploid chromosome number. Cf. HEXAPLOID.

pol'yp·noe'a (pŏl'ĭp·nē'ȧ), n. [NL., fr. poly- + -pnoea.] Med. Rapid respiration; quickness of breathing. — pol'yp·noe'ic (-Ĭk), adj.

pol'y·pod (pŏl'Ĭ·pŏd), adj. [F. polypode.] Having many feet or legs. — n. A polypod animal; also, formerly, a member of the Polypoda.

pol'y·pod (pŏl'Ĭ·pŏd), n. [OF. polipode.] = 1st POLYPODY.

Po·lyp'o·da (pō·lĭp'ō·dȧ), n. pl. [NL.] Zool. Any of various groups of animals with numerous feet or footlike parts, as myriapods, polychaete worms, cephalopods, etc. Obs.

pol'y·po'di·a (pŏl'Ĭ·pō'dĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. poly- + -podia.] Terat. The condition of having more than two feet.

Pol'y·po'di·a'ce·ae (-pō'dĭ·ā'shē·ē), n. pl. [NL. See POLYPODIUM.] Bot. A family of ferns of 130 genera and 3,000 species, or about four fifths of all known ferns. Many are epiphytic. They have erect or creeping rootstocks with scattered or clustered fronds, the fertile bearing annulate stalked sporangia disposed in sori. The chief genera are Polypodium, Asplenium, Adiantum, Acrostichum, Pteris, and Dryopteris. — pol'y·po'di·a'ceous (-shŭs), adj.

Pol'y·po'di·um (-pō'dĭ·ŭm), n. [L., fr. Gr. polypodion, dim. of polypous. See POLYP; cf. POLYPODA.] Bot. A genus of ferns, the polypodies, typifying the family Polypodiaceae, and distinguished by the roundish naked sori. Of the 600 species, about 10 are found in the United States. Syn. Drynaria.

pol'y·po'dy (pŏl'Ĭ·pō'dĭ), n.; pl. -DIES (-dĭz). Any plant of the genus Polypodium. P. vulgare, the common polypody, is found throughout North America and most of Europe and Asia. It has creeping rootstocks, and pinnatifid fronds with entire segments; — called also male polypody.

pol'y·po'dy, n. The condition of having many legs, esp. with reference to insect embryos and larvae.

polypody family. The Polypodiaceae.

pol'yp·oid (pŏl'Ĭp·oid), pol'yp·oi'dal (-oi'dȧl; -d'l), adj. [polyp + -oid.] Resembling a polyp or a polypus.

Pol'y·po·mor'pha (pŏl'Ĭ·pō·môr'fȧ), n. pl. [NL. See POLYP; -MORPHOUS.] Zool. A division of Coelenterata containing the Hydrozoa, Scyphozoa, and Anthozoa as distinct from the Ctenophora. — pol'y·po·mor'phic (-fĭk), adj.

Pol'y·po·ra'ce·ae (-pō·rā'shē·ē), n. pl. [NL.] Bot. A family of pore-bearing fungi of the order Agaricales; the polypores, or bracket fungi. They have a soft texture when young, but commonly become firm, corky, or woody with age. They often form bracketlike growths on trees, whence the name shelf fungus. Po·lyp'o·rus (pō·lĭp'ō·rŭs) is the type and principal genus. Cf. POMES, 2. — pol'y·po·ra'ceous (pŏl'Ĭ·pō·rā'shŭs), adj.

pol'y·pore (pŏl'Ĭ·pōr; 181), n. Bot. A pore fungus.

pol'y·po'rite (-pō'rĭt; 181), n. [See -ITE.] Paleontol. Any fossil fungus of the genus Polyporus; also, any similar or related form.

pol'y·po'roid (-roid), adj. [See -OID.] Bot. Resembling or pertaining to a pore fungus, esp. of the genus Polyporus.

pol'y·pose (pŏl'Ĭ·pōs), adj. Polypous.

pol'y·po'sis (-pō'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. polypus + -osis.] Med. A condition characterized by the presence of polypi; as, polyposis of the mucous membrane of the stomach.

pol'y·po·tome' (pŏl'Ĭ·pō·tōm'; pŏl·ĭp'ō·tōm), n. [polypus + -tome.] Surg. An instrument used in removing polypi.

pol'y·pous (pŏl'Ĭ·pŭs), adj. [Cf. F. polypeux. See POLYP.] Pertaining to, of the nature of, or like, a polyp.

pol'y·prag·mat'ic (-prăg·măt'Ĭk), pol'y·prag·mat'i·cal (-Ĭ·kȧl), adj. Overbusy; esp., officious. — pol'y·prag·mat'ic, n. — pol'y·prag·mat'i·cal·ly, adv. All Now Rare.

pol'y·prag'ma·tism (-prăg'mȧ·tĭz'm), n. Also, Rare, pol'y·prag'ma·cy (-mȧ·sĭ), pol'y·prag'ma·ty (-mȧ·tĭ). Fussiness; officiousness.

pol'y·prag'ma·tist (pŏl'Ĭ·prăg'mȧ·tĭst), pol'y·prag'mist (-prăg'mĭst), n. A fussy person; an annoying busybody.

pol'y·prag'mon (-prăg'mŏn), n. [Gr. polypragmōn.] A busybody. Obs. — pol'y·prag·mon'ic (-prăg·mŏn'Ĭk), adj. Rare. — pol'y·prag'mon·ist, n. Obs.

pol'y·prene (pŏl'Ĭ·prēn), n. [polymer + isoprene.] Chem. A hydrocarbon, $(C_5H_8)_x$ or $(C_5H_8)_{2x}$, the chief constituent of rubber. It may be a polymer of isoprene.

pol'y·prism (pŏl'Ĭ·prĭz'm), n. Optics. a A device for showing differences of refractive and dispersive power, consisting of a series of prisms, identical in size and form, but of different materials (as crown glass, flint glass, etc.), mounted one above another on a common axis. b A plano-convex glass with many plane facets on the convex face. Each facet forms an image.

Polyprism a.

pol'y·pris·mat'ic (-prĭz·măt'Ĭk), adj. Cryst. Exhibiting the faces of more than one prism.

pol'y·pro·thet'ic (-prō·thĕt'Ĭk), adj. [poly- + prothetic.] Rhet. Having many prepositions.

Pol'y·pro'to·don't·i·a (pŏl'Ĭ·prō'tō·dŏn'shĭ·ȧ), n. pl. [NL., fr. poly- + prot- + -odontia.] Zool. A suborder of marsupials including the dasyures, thylacines, opossums, bandicoots, and other largely or entirely carnivorous or insectivorous forms, having specialized canines, four or five upper incisors and two or three lower incisors on each side; — opp. to Diprotodontia. — pol'y·pro'to·dont (-prō'tō·dŏnt), adj. & n.

pol'y·oe'cy (pŏl'Ĭ·ē'sĭ), n. = POLYOECISM.

pol'y·op'si·a (-ŏp'sĭ·ȧ), pol'y·op'sy (pŏl'Ĭ·ŏp'sĭ), -o'py (-ō'pĭ), n. [NL. polyopsia.] = POLYOPIA.

pol'y·or'chism (pŏl'Ĭ·ôr'kĭz'm), n. = POLYORCHIDISM.

pol'y·ox'y·meth'y·lene (-ŏk'sĭ·mĕth'Ĭ·lēn), n. [NL. polyoxymethylene.] See FORMALDEHYDE.

pol'y·pa·re'sis (-pȧ·rē'sĭs; -păr'ē·sĭs), n. [NL.] = GENERAL PARALYSIS.

pol'ype (pŏl'Ĭp), Var. of POLYP.

Pol'y·pet'a·lae (pŏl'Ĭ·pĕt'ȧ·lē), n. pl. [NL. See POLYPETALOUS.] Syn. of CHORIPETALAE.

pol'y·pho'ni·a (pŏl'Ĭ·fō'nĭ·ȧ), n. [NL.] = POLYPHONY. — po·lyph'o·nous (pō·lĭf'ō·nŭs), adj.

Pol'y·pif'er·a (pŏl'Ĭ·pĭf'ĕr·ȧ), n. pl. [NL.] Zool. = POLYPI, 1. — po·lyp'i·fer (pō·lĭp'Ĭ·fĕr), n. Obs.

pol'yp·no'a, pol'yp·ne'ic. Vars. of POLYPNOEA, POLYPNOEIC.

pol'y·pod' brake (pŏl'Ĭ·pŏd'), = SENSITIVE FERN.

po·lyp'o·dous (pō·lĭp'ō·dŭs), adj. [poly- + -podous. See POLYP.] = POLYPOD, adj.

pol'y·pseu·don'y·mous (pŏl'ĭ·sū·dŏn'ĭ·mŭs; -psū-), adj. [poly- + pseudonym + -ous.] Using many pseudonyms.

pol'y·psy'chic (pŏl'ĭ·sī'kĭk; -psĭ'kĭk), adj. [See POLY-; PSYCHIC.] Having several souls or modes of intelligence. — pol'y·psy'chi·cal (-kĭ·kăl), adj.

pol'y·psy'chism (-sī'kĭz'm; -psĭ'kĭz'm), n. Belief in many souls in one being, esp., human being.

Po·lyp'ter·us (pō·lĭp'tĕr·ŭs), n. [NL., fr. poly- + -pterus.] Zool. A genus of crossopterygian fishes of the larger rivers of tropical Africa. They have an elongate body covered with rhombic enameled scales, and the dorsal fin is represented by a series of finlets. The pectoral fin has the form of a rounded lobe supported on a short arm. The air bladder functions as an accessory breathing organ. The bichir (which see) is the best-known species. With the allied genus Erpetoichthys it constitutes a family, Pol'yp·ter'i·dae (pŏl'ĭp·tĕr'ĭ·dē), — po·lyp'ter·id (pō·lĭp'tĕr·ĭd), n, & adj. — po·lyp'ter·oid (-oid), adj. & n.

pol'yp·tote (pŏl'ĭp·tōt), adj. [See POLYPTOTON.] Gram. Having many cases. Rare.

pol'yp·to'ton (pŏl'ĭp·tō'tŏn), n.; pl. -TA (-tà). [LL., fr. Gr. polyptōtos having, or being in, many cases. See POLY-; DIPTOTE.] Rhet. Repetition of a word in different cases and inflections ("My own heart's heart, and ownest own, farewell." Tennyson).

pol'yp·tych (pŏl'ĭp·tĭk), n. [Gr. polyptychos consisting of many folds, fr. polys many + ptyx, ptychos, fold.] An arrangement of doors, panels, etc., hinged or folding together, and having more parts than a triptych.

pol'y·pus (pŏl'ĭ·pŭs), n.; pl. -PI (-pī), -PUSES (-pŭs·ĕz). [L. See POLYP.] 1. Zool. a An octopus. b = POLYP, 1 b. 2. Med. = POLYP, n., 2.

pol·y·rhyth'mic (pŏl'ĭ·rĭth'mĭk), pol'y·rhyth'mi·cal (-mĭ·kăl), adj. [poly- + rhythmic.] 1. Having many rhythms; — said esp. of a type of free verse, similar to cadenced verse, but emphasizing variety rather than balance of rhythms.

2. Music. Having two or more rhythms proceeding simultaneously in different parts.

pol'y·sac'cha·ride (pŏl'ĭ·săk'ȧ·rīd; -rĭd; 157), n. Also -rid. Chem. Any carbohydrate decomposable by hydrolysis into two or more molecules of simple sugars or monosaccharides; specif., one of those of more complex composition, $(C_6H_{10}O_5)_x$, formerly called amyloses, as starch and cellulose.

pol'y·sac'cha·rose (-săk'ȧ·rōs), n. [See 2d -OSE a.] Chem. A polysaccharide.

Pol'y·sac'cum (pŏl'ĭ·săk'ŭm), n. [NL., fr. poly- + L. saccus a sack.] Bot. A genus of earth-balls of the family Sclerodermaceae. P. crassipes furnishes a pigment used in some countries for the dyeing of silks.

pol'y·sar'cl·a (pŏl'ĭ·sär'shĭ·ȧ; -sĭ·ȧ), n. [LL., fr. Gr. polysarkia, fr. polys much + sarx, sarkos, flesh.] Med. Obesity. — pol'y·sar'cous (-kŭs), adj.

pol'y·sche'ma·tist (-skē'mȧ·tĭst), adj. Also pol'y·sche·mat'ic (-skē·măt'ĭk). [Gr. polyschēmatistos.] Anc. Pros. Having many possible forms; — said of meters in which substitutions without respect for equivalence were allowable.

pol'y·scope (pŏl'ĭ·skōp), n. [poly- + -scope; cf. Gr. polyskopos farseeing.] 1. Optics. A multiplying glass.

2. Med. = DIAPHANOSCOPE, 2.

— pol'y·scop'ic (-skŏp'ĭk), adj.

pol'y·se'mant (-sē'mănt), n. [Gr. polysēmantos having many significations.] A word that has various meanings. — pol'y·se·man'tic (-sē·măn'tĭk), adj.

pol'y·se'mi·a (pŏl'ĭ·sē'mĭ·ȧ), pol'y·se·mei'a (-sē·mī'ȧ), n. [NL., fr. poly- + sēmeion signification, sign, fr. sēma. See SEMANTICS.] Multiplicity of meanings; the capability of words to assume various new meanings without losing the old.

pol'y·se'my (pŏl'ĭ·sē'mĭ), n. [F. polysemie.] Multiplicity of meaning.

pol'y·sen'su·ous (-sĕn'shōō·ŭs), adj. [poly- + L. sensus sense + -ous.] Polysemous. — pol'y·sen'su·ous·ness, n.

pol'y·se'ro·si'tis (pŏl'ĭ·sēr'ō·sī'tĭs), n. [NL., fr. poly- + serosa + -itis.] Med. Inflammation of several serous membranes, as the pleura, pericardium, and peritoneum, at the same time.

Pol'y·si·pho'ni·a (-sĭ·fō'nĭ·ȧ), n. [NL. See POLY-; SIPHON.] Bot. A large genus of red algae (family Rhodomelaceae) having usually a filamentous, much-branched thallus, variable in shape and size, but in cross section often showing a single axial cell surrounded by a sheath of tubular cells (siphons).

pol'y·si·phon'ic (-sĭ·fŏn'ĭk), pol'y·si'pho·nous (-sĭ'fō·nŭs), adj. Bot. a Having several siphons, as many red algae of the genus Polysiphonia. b Composed of several tubes, as the fascicled hydrocaulus of certain hydroids.

pol'y·so'mi·a (pŏl'ĭ·sō'mĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. poly- + -somia.] Terat. The condition of monster formation characterized by more than one body.

pol'y·so·mit'ic (-sō·mĭt'ĭk), adj. [poly- + somite + -ic.] Zool. Formed by the coalescence or grouping together of a number of primitively distinct somites.

pol'y·spast (pŏl'ĭ·spăst), pol'y·spas'ton (-spăs'tŏn), n. [L. polyspaston, fr. Gr. polyspaston a compound pulley, fr. polyspastos drawn by several cords.] 1. Gr. Antiq. A compound pulley for hoisting.

2. A device for setting dislocated joints. Obs.

pol'y·sper'mi·a (-spûr'mĭ·ȧ), n. [NL. See POLY-; SPERM.] a Med. Excessive secretion of semen. b Biol. = POLYSPERMY a. — pol'y·sper'mic (-spûr'mĭk), adj.

pol'y·sper'my (pŏl'ĭ·spûr'mĭ), n. [poly- + -spermy.] a Biol. Entrance of several spermatozoa to one egg. b Med. = POLYSPERMIA a.

pol'y·spon·dyl'ic (-spŏn·dĭl'ĭk), adj. [poly- + spondyl- + -ic.] Zool. Of or pertaining to a type of vertebral column, as in the chimaeroid fishes, in which the calcified portion has the form of numerous slender rings surrounding the notochord. — pol'y·spon'dy·ly (-spŏn'dĭ·lĭ), n. — pol'y·spon'dy·lous (-dĭ·lŭs), adj.

Pol'y·spo'ra (pŏl'ĭ·spō'rȧ; 181), n. [NL., fr. poly- + -spora.] Bot. A monotypic genus of imperfect fungi (family Melanconiaceae) forming minute acervuli directly over the stomata, with hyaline, continuous conidia of varying shape. See BROWNING.

pol'y·spo·ran'gi·um (-spō·răn'jĭ·ŭm), n. [NL.] Bot. A sporangium containing many spores. Rare.

pol'y·spore (pŏl'ĭ·spōr; 181), n. [poly- + -spore.] Bot. A compound spore. Rare.

pol'y·spored (-spōrd), pol'y·spor'ic (-spŏr'ĭk), po·lys'porous (pō·lĭs'pō·rŭs; pŏl'ĭ·spō'rŭs), adj. Having many spores.

pol'y·stach'y·ous (pŏl'ĭ·stăk'ĭ·ŭs), adj. [poly- + Gr. stachys ear of grain.] Bot. Having many spikes.

pol'y·stan'ri·on (pŏl'ĭ·stăn'rĭ·ŏn), n.; pl. POLYSTAURIA (-ȧ). [MGr., fr. poly- + Gr. stauron a cross.] A phelonion ornamented all over with little crosses, first used only by the Greek Patriarch, later, in the 14th century, also by metropolitans, and now by all bishops.

pol'y·stele' (pŏl'ĭ·stēl'; -stē'lē), n. Bot. An axial cylinder with more than one stele or plerome strand. — pol'y·ste'lic (-stē'lĭk), adj.

po·lys'ti·choid (pō·lĭs'tĭ·koid), adj. [See -OID.] Resembling a fern of the genus Polystichum.

po·lys'ti·chous (pō·lĭs'tĭ·kŭs), adj. [Gr. polystichos. See POLY-; STICH.] Arranged in several or many rows.

Po·lys'ti·chum (pō·lĭs'tĭ·kŭm), n. [NL., fr. poly- + Gr. stichos row (of sori).] Bot. A large genus of mostly northern ferns (family Polypodiaceae) with lanceolate pinnate or bipinnate, often evergreen, fronds, the veins free, the indusia centrally peltate. P. acrostichoides is the Christmas fern and P. lonchitis is one of the holly ferns.

Pol'y·stic'tus (pŏl'ĭ·stĭk'tŭs), n. [NL., fr. poly- + Gr. stiktos punctured.] Bot. A large genus of pore fungi (family Polyporaceae) forming leathery annual sporophores. P. versicolor is a common wound fungus.

Pol'y·sto'ma·ta (pŏl'ĭ·stō'mȧ·tȧ; -stōm'ȧ·tȧ), n. pl. [NL., fr. Gr. polystomos many-mouthed. See POLY-; -STOMA.] Zool. a Syn. of PORIFERA. b Syn. of SUCTORIA. c A group coextensive with Polystomatidae. — pol'y·stome (pŏl'ĭ·stōm), n.

Pol'y·sto·mat'i·dae (-stō·măt'ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL.] Zool. A family of parasitic trematode worms having at the posterior end a group of strong suckers and usually a pair of chitinous hooks. The type genus is Polystoma, infesting the bladder of frogs and nasal or buccal cavity of turtles, etc.

pol'y·stom'a·tous (-stŏm'ȧ·tŭs; -stō'mȧ·tŭs), adj. [poly- + -stomatous.] a Having many mouths or openings. b Of or pertaining to the Polystomata.

pol'y·stome (pŏl'ĭ·stōm), adj. [Gr. polystomos many-mouthed, fr. polys + stoma mouth.] Zool. Polystomatous.

Pol'y·sto·mel'la (-stō·mĕl'ȧ), n. [NL., dim. fr. poly- + Gr. stoma mouth.] Zool. A genus of Foraminifera with a nautiluslike shell and having a striking alternation of generations. See MICROSPHERE, MEGALOSPHERE.

pol'y·sto'mi·um (-stō'mĭ·ŭm), n. [NL., fr. poly- + Gr. stoma mouth.] Zool. Any of the pores which collectively represent the mouth in certain jellyfishes.

pol'y·style (pŏl'ĭ·stīl), adj. [Gr. polystylos with many columns. See POLY-; -STYLE.] Arch. Having many columns; — said of a building, esp. of an interior part or court; as, a polystyle hall. — n. A polystyle hall or edifice.

pol'y·sty'lous (-stī'lŭs), adj. Bot. Having many styles.

pol'y·sul'phide (-sŭl'fĭd; -fīd; 157), n. Also -phid, -fide, -fid. Chem. A compound of more than one atom of sulphur with an element or radical.

pol'y·sul'phu·ra'tion (-sŭl'fū·rā'shŭn), pol'y·sul'phu·ri·za'tion (-rĭ·zā'shŭn; -rĭ·zā'-), n. Formation of polysulphides.

pol'y·syl·lab'ic (-sĭ·lăb'ĭk), adj. Also pol'y·syl·lab'i·cal (-ĭ·kăl). [ML. polysyllabus, fr. Gr. polysyllabos, fr. polys + syllabē syllable.] Having, or characterized by, polysyllables; esp., of a word, having more than three syllables. — pol'y·syl·lab'i·cal·ly, adv.

pol'y·syl·lab'i·cism (-sĭ·lăb'ĭ·sĭz'm), n. Polysyllabism. Rare. — pol'y·syl'la·bic'i·ty (-sĭl'ȧ·bĭs'ĭ·tĭ), n.

pol'y·syl'la·bism (-sĭl'ȧ·bĭz'm), n. Also pol'y·syl·lab'icism. Polysyllabic character or condition; the use of or the practice of forming polysyllables; as, polysyllabism in scientific language or of technical words.

pol'y·syl'la·ble (pŏl'ĭ·sĭl'ȧ·b'l), n. A polysyllabic word.

pol'y·syl'la·ble (66), adj. Polysyllabic.

pol'y·syl'lo·gism (-sĭl'ō·jĭz'm), n. A systematic series of syllogisms. — pol'y·syl'lo·gis'tic (-jĭs'tĭk), adj.

pol'y·sym·met'ri·cal (pŏl'ĭ·sĭ·mĕt'rĭ·kăl), adj. Biol. Divisible into like parts by more than one axial plane; actinomorphic; — applied esp. to flowers. — pol'y·sym·met'ri·cal·ly, adv. — pol'y·sym'me·try (-sĭm'ē·trĭ), n.

pol'y·syn·det'ic (-sĭn·dĕt'ĭk), adj. Characterized by polysyndeton. — pol'y·syn·det'i·cal·ly (-ĭ·kăl·ĭ), adv.

pol'y·syn'de·ton (-sĭn'dē·tŏn), n. [NL., fr. poly- + Gr. syndetos bound together.] Rhet. Repetition of conjunctions in close succession, as of one connecting coordinates (we have ships and men and money and stores); — opposed to asyndeton.

pol'y·syn'the·sis (-sĭn'thē·sĭs), n. Synthesis of several elements, as in verbal combinations.

pol'y·syn'the·sism (-thē·sĭz'm), n. [See POLY-; SYNTHESIS.] The uniting of many parts into one; a high degree of synthesis; specif., the grammatical practice of those languages, as American Indian languages, which combine word elements into a single word which is equivalent to a sentence in other languages. See AGGLUTINATIVE LANGUAGES.

pol'y·syn·thet'ic (-sĭn·thĕt'ĭk), adj. Also -i·cal. Characterized by polysynthesism. — pol'y·syn·thet'i·cal·ly, adv.

pol'y·syn·thet'i·cism (-ĭ·sĭz'm), pol'y·syn'the·tism (-sĭn'·thē·tĭz'm), n. Polysynthesism.

pol'y·syn'the·tize (pŏl'ĭ·sĭn'thē·tīz), v. i. To produce, employ, or be characterized by, polysynthesis.

pol'y·tech'nic (-tĕk'nĭk), adj. [F. polytechnique, fr. Gr. polytechnos, fr. polys many + technē an art.] Of, pertaining to, or devoted to instruction in, many technical arts or applied sciences; — esp. designating schools or institutions.

pol'y·tech'nic, n. A polytechnic school.

pol'y·tech'ni·cal (-nĭ·kăl), adj. Polytechnic; engaged in the technical arts.

pol'y·tech'nics (-nĭks), n. Technology. See -ICS. Rare.

pol'y·tech'nist, n. [See POLYTECHNIC; -IST.] One versed in many technical arts.

Pol'y·tha·la'mi·a (-thȧ·lā'mĭ·ȧ), n. pl. [NL. See POLYTHALAMOUS.] Zool. a A division of Foraminifera including those having a many-chambered shell, — sometimes including all the Foraminifera. b Syn. of TETRABRANCHIATA. — pol'y·tha·la'mi·an (-ăn), adj. — pol'y·tha·lam'ic (-lăm'ĭk), adj.

pol'y·thal'a·mous (-thăl'ȧ·mŭs), adj. [poly- + Gr. thalamos a chamber.] Many-chambered.

pol'y·the·ism (pŏl'ĭ·thē·ĭz'm), n. [F. polythéisme, fr. Gr. polytheos of or belonging to many gods, fr. polys many + theos god.] The doctrine of, or belief in, a plurality of gods. — pol'y·the·ist, n. & adj. — pol'y·the·is'tic (-thē·ĭs'tĭk), pol'y·the·is'ti·cal (-tĭ·kăl), adj. — -is'ti·cal·ly, adv.

pol'y·the·ize (pŏl'ĭ·thē·īz), v. i. To adhere to, or to inculcate, polytheism.

pol'y·the'li·a (pŏl'ĭ·thē'lĭ·ȧ), n. [NL. polythelia, fr. poly- + Gr. thēlē a nipple.] Anat. The occurrence of supernumerary nipples.

pol'y·stir'lar (pŏl'ĭ·stĭr'lĕr), adj. = POLYSTYLE.

pol'y·sul'phu·ret, n. Chem. A polysulphide. Obs. [TWIN, n.] polysynthetic twinning. See POLYSYNTHETIC.

pol'y·ter'pene, n. See TERPENE.

pol'y·the'lism (pŏl'ĭ·thē'lĭz'm), n. = POLYTHELIA.

pol'y·the'ly (pŏl'ĭ·thē'lĭ), n. = POLYTHELIA.

po·lyth'e·ous, adj. [Gr. polytheos.] Polytheistic. Obs.

pol'y·ti·tan'ic, adj. See POLY-.

pol'y·to'pi·an, n. [poly- + Gr. topos place.] A traveler to many places. Obs.

polytokes. Obs. + POLITICS.

polyve. + PULLEY.

pol'y·zo'al (pŏl'ĭ·zō'ăl), adj. Polyzoan.

pol'y·thi·on'ic (pŏl'ĭ·thī·ŏn'ĭk), adj. Chem. Pertaining to or designating any of a series of acids containing more than one atom of sulphur in the molecule and having the general formula $H_2S_nO_6$, as dithionic acid, etc.

po·lyt'o·cous (pō·lĭt'ō·kŭs), adj. [Gr. polytokos, fr. polys much, many + tokos offspring.] 1. Bot. Polycarpic. Obs. A. Gray.

2. Zool. Producing many eggs or young at one time.

po·lyt'o·mous (-mŭs), adj. [poly- + Gr. tomē a cutting.] Bot. a Divided into more than two secondary parts or branches; — opp. to dichotomous. b Pinnatifid.

po·lyt'o·my (-mĭ), n. Polytomous character or condition; specif., Logic, division into more members or classes than three (trichotomy).

pol'y·ton'al (pŏl'ĭ·tōn'ăl; -'l), adj. Pertaining to, or characterized by, polytonality. — pol'y·ton'al·ism (-fz'm), n.

pol'y·to·nal'i·ty (-tō·năl'ĭ·tĭ), n. Music. The simultaneous use of two or more keys or tonalities; also, the effect so produced. — pol'y·to'ny (pŏl'ĭ·tō'nĭ), n.

pol'y·tone (pŏl'ĭ·tōn), n. [poly- + tone.] Utterance characterized by varied tone or pitch, as in ordinary speech; — opp. to monotone.

pol'y·ton'ic (pŏl'ĭ·tŏn'ĭk), adj. [poly- + tone.] Philol. Having several pitch tones. See ISOLATING LANGUAGE.

pol'y·tope (pŏl'ĭ·tōp), n. [poly- + Gr. topos place.] Geom. The analogue in n-dimensional geometry of the polygon in plane, and the polyhedron in solid, geometry.

pol'y·top'ic (-tŏp'ĭk), adj. Occurring in many places.

pol'y·top'i·cal (-tŏp'ĭ·kăl), adj. Of many topics.

Pol'y·tri·cha'ce·ae (pŏl'ĭ·trĭ·kā'sē·ē), n. pl. [NL. See POLYTRICHUM.] Bot. A family of acrocarpous mosses (Bryales) usually large, with simple or branching erect shoots growing from an underground stem, and leaves with the costa bearing longitudinal lamellae of variable structure. The antheridia are borne in conspicuous terminal rosettes. The family includes many common mosses, the chief genera being Polytrichum and Pogonatum. — pol'y·tri·cha'ceous (-shŭs), adj.

pol'y·trich'i·a (-trĭk'ĭ·ȧ), n. [NL.] Med. Hypertrichosis.

po·lyt'ri·chous (pō·lĭt'rĭ·kŭs), adj. [Gr. polytrichos having much hair.] Zool. Thickly covered with hairs or cilia.

Po·lyt'ri·chum (pō·lĭt'rĭ·kŭm), n. [NL., fr. Gr. polytrichos very hairy.] Bot. A genus of large terrestrial mosses, the haircap mosses, typifying the Polytrichaceae.

po·lyt'ro·chal (pō·lĭt'rō·kăl), po·lyt'ro·chous (-kŭs), adj. [poly- + Gr. trochos wheel.] Zool. Having many circles of cilia.

pol'y·trope (pŏl'ĭ·trōp), n. [poly- + -trope.] Astrophysics. A gaseous sphere in which the distribution is according to the law $P = \kappa\rho\gamma$, P being the pressure at a given point, ρ the density, and κ and γ arbitrary constants.

pol'y·troph'ic (pŏl'ĭ·trŏf'ĭk), adj. [Gr. polytrophos nutritious.] 1. Very nutritious. Obs.

2. Bacteriol. Deriving nourishment from more than one organic substance, as pathogenic bacteria.

3. Zool. Producing nutritive cells, one of which is attached to each developing egg in the ovaries; — said of certain insects or their ovaries. Cf. PANOISTOLIC, ACROTROPHIC.

pol'y·trop'ic (-trŏp'ĭk), adj. [Gr. polytropos. See POLY-; -TROPIC.] 1. Versatile. Rare.

2. Math. a Of a curve, turning more than once round a pole. b Of a function, multiform.

3. Med. Affecting, or tending to affect, various tissues.

4. Zool. Visiting many kinds of flowers for nectar, as certain bees and other insects. Cf. MONOTROPIC, OLIGOTROPIC.

pol'y·tung'state (pŏl'ĭ·tŭng'stăt), n. A salt of a polytungstic acid.

pol'y·tung'stic ac'id (-tŭng'stĭk). Chem. Any of a series of complex acids of tungsten containing more than one atom of that element in the molecule.

pol'y·type (pŏl'ĭ·tīp), n. [F. See POLY-; -TYPE.] Print. A cast, or facsimile copy, as of matter in type. — pol'y·type, adj.

pol'y·type, v. t.; -TYPED (-tĭpt); -TYP'ING (-tĭp'ĭng). Print. To produce a polytype of. Now Rare.

pol'y·typ'ic (-tĭp'ĭk), adj. [See POLYTYPE.] Having several or many types or representatives; — opposed to monotypic.

pol'y·typ'i·cal (-tĭp'ĭ·kăl), adj. Polytypic.

pol'y·typ'y (pŏl'ĭ·tĭp'ĭ), n. Polytypic composition, as of a race.

pol'y·u·re'sis (pŏl'ĭ·ū·rē'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. poly- + Gr. ourēsis urination.] Med. = POLYURIA.

pol'y·u'ri·a (-ū'rĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. poly- + -uria.] Med. Excessive secretion of urine, either temporary, as in nervous excitement, fevers, hysteria, etc., or permanent, as in diabetes or some forms of kidney disease. — pol'y·u'ric (-rĭk), adj.

pol'y·va'lent (pŏl'ĭ·vā'lĕnt; pō·lĭv'ȧ·lĕnt; 66), adj. [poly- + L. valens, pres. part. See VALENT.] Having multiple valence; as: a Bacteriol. Containing antibodies specific for, or antigens of, more than one species or strain of microorganism. b Chem. Multivalent. c Med. Combining with or counteracting various toxins or bacteria; as, a polyvalent serum or vaccine. — pol'y·va'lence (-lĕns), n.

pol'y·vir'u·lent (-vĭr'ū·lĕnt; -vĭr'ōō·lĕnt), adj. [See POLY-.] Virulent for more than one species or strain, as a bacteriophage which attacks more than one species of bacteria.

pol'y·vol'tine (-vŏl'tĭn; -tīn), adj. [poly- + It. volta twin, time. Cf. MULTIVOLTINE.] Zool. Producing several broods in a season; — said esp. of certain silkworms. — pol'y·vol'tine, n.

Po·lyx'e·na (pō·lĭk'sē·nȧ), n. [L., fr. Gr. Polyxenē.] A daughter of Priam and Hecuba, betrothed to Achilles. At their wedding Paris treacherously slew Achilles, and after the fall of Troy Polyxena was sacrificed to appease his shade. Another story relates that she fell in love with Achilles, fled to the Greeks, and after Achilles' death killed herself on his tomb. See HECUBA.

Pol'y·zo'a (pŏl'ĭ·zō'ȧ), n. pl. [NL., fr. poly- + -zoa.]

1. Syn. of BRYOZOA.

2. Syn. of MEROZOA.

pol'y·zo'an (pŏl'ĭ·zō'ăn), adj. Zool. Of or pertaining to the Polyzoa (sense 1); bryozoan. — n. a One of the Polyzoa. b A polypide.

pol'y·zo·ar'i·um (-zō·ăr'ĭ·ŭm), n.; pl. -IA (-ȧ). [NL.] Zool. A bryozoan colony or the supporting skeleton of such a colony. — pol'y·zo·ar'i·al (-ăl), adj.

pol'y·zo'a·ry (-zō'ȧ·rĭ), n. Zool. A polyzoarium.

pol'y·zo'ic (-zō'ĭk), adj. Zool. a Composed of many zooids. b Designating a spore that produces many sporozoites.

pol'y·zo'ism (-ĭz'm), n. Zool. Quality of being compound (composed of many zooids).

pol'y·zon'al (pŏl'ĭ·zōn'ăl; -ĭ), adj. Consisting of many zones.

pol'y·zo'id (-zō'oid), n. Zool. A zooid of a polyzoan; a polypide. — adj. Like, or pert. to, the Polyzoa, or Bryozoa.

pol'y·zo'on (-ŏn), n.; pl. -ZOA (-ȧ). [NL.] Zool. A polypide.

pol'zen·ite (pŏl'zĕn·īt), n. [From Polzen, river in northern Bohemia.] Petrog. Alnoitelike dike rock with a holocrystalline doleritic texture, composed essentially of olivine, melilite, hauynite, or lazurite, perovskite, chromite, and accessory dark mica, nephelite, and occasionally garnet.

pom'ace (pŭm'ĭs; -ās), n. [OF. pomat, fr. L. pomum apple; cf. ML. pomacium cider. See POME.] 1. a The substance of apples, or of similar fruit, crushed by grinding, as in making cider. b The substance of anything mashed or crushed to a pulpy mass, as of fish or the castor bean. 2. = PUMMICE b. Obs.

pomace fly. A fruit fly, esp., Drosophila melanogaster.

Po'ma·cen'tri·dae (pō'mȧ·sĕn'trĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Gr. pōma a cover + kentron a prickle.] Zool. A family of marine spiny-finned fishes (order Chromides) having only two spines in the anal fin. It includes the damselfishes. The type genus is Po'ma·cen'trus (-trŭs). — po'ma·cent'trid (-trĭd), adj. & n. — po'ma·cen'troid (-troid), adj. & n.

po·ma'ceous (pō·mā'shŭs), adj. [NL. pomaceus, fr. L. pomum apple.] 1. Bot. a Belonging to the Pomaceae (Malaceae). b Of the nature or appearance of a pome. 2. Of or pert. to apples; as, a pomaceous harvest. Poetic.

po·ma'ceous (pō·mā'shŭs), adj. Resembling pomace.

po·ma'da (pō·mä'dȧ), n. [It., fr. pomo pommel, prop., apple. See POMMEL.] Vaulting into the saddle or over the horse with one hand on the pommel. Obs.

po·ma'da re·ver'sa. Vaulting off a horse. Obs.

po·made' (pō·mād'; pō·mäd'; Brit. usually pō·mäd'; 277), n. [F. pommade, fr. It. pomata, fr. L. pomum apple. See POME; cf. POMATUM.] a Orig., a cosmetic ointment made of apples, lard, and rose water; a perfumed ointment; esp., a fragrant unguent for the hair; pomatum. b Any soft, greasy, perfumed substance, as the perfumed fat obtained in the enfleurage process.

po·made'. v. t. To anoint with pomade.

Po'ma·der'ris (pō'mȧ·dĕr'ĭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. pōma lid, cover + derrhis skin.] Bot. A genus of hoary pubescent Australasian shrubs of the buckthorn family (Rhamnaceae), having alternate leaves, and cymose white or yellowish flowers with the ovary partly adnate to the calyx. P. apetala, called hazel, has fine-grained wood, used by coopers and turners. It is also planted for ornament.

Po·mak' (pō·mäk'), n. sing. & pl. One of the Moslemized Bulgarians, whose ancestors adopted the religion of their Turkish conquerors.

po'man·der (pō'măn·dĕr; pō·măn'dĕr), n. [Formerly also pomgamber, pomeamber (Oxf. E. D.) See POME; AMBER.] 1. A perfume or mixture of perfumes, formerly often made in a ball, enclosed in a perforated box or bag, and carried on the person, as to guard against infection. 2. A box to contain such perfume, often apple-shaped. 3. Figuratively, in medieval use, a book or collection of prayers, spells, incantations, and the like, such as one attributed to Hermes Trismegistus.

po'mane (pō'mān), adj. Pomelike. Rare.

po'ma·rine (pō'mȧ·rīn; -rĭn), adj. [F. pomarin, fr. Gr. pōma lid + rhis, rhinos, nose.] Having the nostrils somewhat roofed over by the horny plate forming the ridge of the bill; as, the pomarine jaeger.

po·mar'i·um (pō·mär'ĭ·ŭm), n. [L.] An orchard.

‖po'ma ro'sa (pō'mä rō'sä). [Sp.] W. Indies. a The Malay apple Eugenia malaccensis. b The rose apple Eugenia jambos.

po·mate' (pō·māt'), n. Pomatum. Scot. & N. of Eng. — v. t. To grease with pomatum. Scot.

po·ma'to (pō·mā'tō; -mä'tō), n.; pl. -TOES (-tōz). [potato + tomato.] A fragrant, succulent, tomatolike fruit, a true chimera, produced by grafting tomato cions on potato plants. It is eaten raw as a salad, or cooked.

Po'ma·tom'i·dae (pō'mȧ·tŏm'ĭ·dē), n. [NL., fr. Gr. pōma cover + tomos a cut.] Zool. A family of spiny-finned fishes consisting of the genus Po·mat'o·mus (pō·māt'ō·mŭs), constituted by the bluefish (see BLUEFISH, 1). Syn. Cheilodipteridae. — po·mat'o·mid (-mĭd), n. & adj.

po·mat'o·rhine (pō·māt'ō·rīn; -rĭn), adj. Pomarine.

-pom'a·tous (-pŏm'ȧ·tŭs; -pō'mȧ-). Zool. & Bot. A combining form from Greek pōma, pōmatos, a lid, denoting hinged, as in arthro*pomatous*, lyo*pomatous*.

po·ma'tum (pō·mā'tŭm; -mä'tŭm), n. [NL., fr. L. pomum apple. See POMADE.] A perfumed unguent, esp. for the hair; pomade. — v. t. To dress, as hair, with pomatum.

pom'be (pŏm'bā), n. [Swahili, fr. Shambala mpombe.] A kind of beer made from grain, usually from millet. Africa.

pŏm'bo (pŭm'bō), n. [Tibetan pŏmpo (written as dpon-po).] A chief or headman in Tibet.

pome (pōm), n. [OF., apple (F. pomme), fr. (assumed) VL. poma, fr. L. pomum a fruit, later, an apple; prob. akin to E. fat; basic idea: juicy. See FAT; cf. POMACE, POMADE, POMMEL.] 1. Bot. A fruit having several cartilaginous, papery, or bony carpels in a fleshy enlarged hypanthium; the characteristic fruit of the apple family (Malaceae). See FRUIT, Table & Illust.

2. A ball or globe, as the mound of dominion; specif., R.C.Ch., a ball of silver or other metal filled with hot water and used at the altar by the priest to warm his hands.

Pomegranate. Flowering Branch and Fruit, whole and in section.

pome, v. i. [F. pommer. See POME, n.] To grow to a head, or form a head in growing. Obs.

pome'gran'ate (pŏm'grăn'-ĭt; pŭm'-; pōm·grăn'ĭt; pŭm-; 277), n. [ME. pomgarnet, fr. OF. pome grenate. See POME; GRENADE.] 1. a A thick-skinned several-celled reddish berry, somewhat angular, resembling an orange in size, borne on a tropical African and Asiatic tree (Punica granatum). It has many seeds in a crimson pulp of agreeable acid flavor, which is eaten uncooked, and also made into a beverage. The astringent rind has been used in medicine and tanning; this and the flowers yield a red dye. b The tree bearing this fruit, widely cultivated in warm regions. 2. Native pomegranate. Australia 3. = CANADA PLUM, U. S. 4. In the arts, an ornament resembling a pomegranate. 5. A color, yellowish-red in hue, of high saturation and low brilliance, according to some authorities. According to others, it is reddish red-yellow in hue, of high saturation and high brilliance. Cf. COLOR.

pome'gran'ate (pŏm'grăn'ĭt; pŭm'-; pŏm·grăn'ĭt; pŭm-; 277), adj. Of or like pomegranate.

pomegranate family. The Punicaceae.

pomegranate melon. Dudaim melon.

pomegranate purple. A color, bluish-red in hue, of very high saturation and low brilliance. Cf. COLOR.

pom'e·lo (pŏm'ē·lō), n.; pl. -LOS (-lōz). [Cf. POMPELMOUS.] a The shaddock. b The grapefruit.

Pom'er·a'ni·an (pŏm'ĕr·ā'nĭ·ăn; 159), adj. Of or pertaining to Pomerania, a province of Prussia on the Baltic Sea.

Pom'er·a'ni·an, n. 1. A native or inhabitant of Pomerania. 2. A very small long-haired dog of a breed believed to derive from the Samoyed. It is a compact, short-coupled dog, with a foxlike head, erect ears, tail turned over the back, and a double coat of which the outer is straight, long, glistening, covers the entire body, and is very abundant around the neck, fore part of shoulders and chest. It ranges through practically every color from black down to white and is sometimes particolored. It weighs usually about 7 pounds.

Pomeranian, 2.

po'me·rid'i·an (pō'mē·rĭd'ĭ·ăn), adj. [L. pomeridianus.] Postmeridian. Obs.

2. Bot. Blossoming after noon.

po·me'ri·um (pō·mē'rĭ·ŭm), n.; pl. -RIA (-rĭ·ȧ). Also pomoe'ri·um. [L., fr. post behind + murus wall.] Rom. Antiq. A space outside the walls of a city, but within its jurisdiction, which was kept clear of buildings probably for defensive purposes. According to some authorities it included a similar clear space just inside the walls. The original pomerium of Rome surrounded Roma Quadrata, but it was extended with the growth of the city.

‖po·mesh'chik (pō·myĕsh'chĭk), n. [Russ.] Landed proprietor; one of the landed gentry.

pome'wa'ter (pōm'wō'tĕr; -wŏt'ĕr), n. A kind of large, sweet apple. Obs. exc. Dial.

po'mey (pō'mĭ), n.; pl. POMEYS (-mĭz). [Cf. POMMÉ.] Her. A roundel vert, — supposed to resemble an apple.

pom'fret (pŏm'frĕt; -frĭt; 119), n. [Perh. corrupt. fr. Pg. pampo a kind of fish.] a A deep-bodied, sooty-black, pelagic spiny-finned fish (Brama rais), of the North Atlantic and North Pacific oceans, valued for food. The name is extended to closely allied species. b Any of several food fishes of family Stromateidae; esp., the East Indian Stromateoides argenteus, resembling the common harvest fish.

Pom'fret, or pomfret, cake (pŭm'frĕt; -frĭt; pŏm'-). A small black flat confection, chiefly licorice, — so called from Pontefract (local pron. pŭm'frĕt, -frĭt; pŏm'-), Yorkshire, where it originated. Eng.

Pom'fret shil'ling (pŭm'frĕt; -frĭt; pŏm'-). [From obs. var. of Pontefract (see Gaz.).] A siege piece struck under Charles I at Pontefract Castle, Yorkshire.

pomi-. A combining form, Latin pomi-, fr. pomum, meaning apple, as in po'mi·form, po·miv'o·rous. See -FORM; -VOROUS.

po'mi·cul'ture (pō'mĭ·kŭl'tŭr), n. [L. pomum fruit + cultura culture.] Fruit culture. — po'mi·cul'tur·ist (-kŭl'tŭr·ĭst), n.

po·mif'er·ous (pō·mĭf'ĕr·ŭs), adj. [L. pomifer, fr. pomum fruit + ferre to bear.] Bearing pomes, or applelike fruits.

po'mi·form (pō'mĭ·fôrm), adj. [pomi- + -form.] Applesshaped.

po·miv'o·rous (pō·mĭv'ō·rŭs), adj. [pomi- + -vorous.] Apple-devouring. Rare.

Pom·mard' (pō·mär'), n. [From Pommard, near Beaune, France.] A red Burgundy, usually of a high quality.

‖pomme' blanche' (pôm' bläNsh'). [F., white apple.] See BREADROOT, 1 a.

‖pomme' de terre' (pôm' dĕ târ'); pl. POMMES DE TERRE. [F., lit., earth apple.] The potato.

pom'mée', pom'mé' (pō'mā'), adj. [F. pommé grown round or like an apple, past part. of pommer to pome.] Her. Having the ends terminating in rounded protuberances or single balls; — said of a cross. See CROSS, Illust.

pom'mel (pŭm'ĕl; -l; pŏm'-; 3), n. [ME. pomel, fr. OF. pomel (F. pommeau), fr. L. pomum apple. See POME.] 1. A ball or globular body, as at the end or top of a finial, pillar, tent pole, dome, etc. Obs.

2. A rounded knob, often ornamental; as: a The knob on the hilt of a sword, saber, or the like. b The knoblike protuberance at the front and top of a saddlebow. c Obs. (1) The crown of the head. (2) A woman's breast. (3) The cascabel of a cannon, etc. (4) A knob on a chair.

3. A kind of square-ended stone mason's chisel. Eng.

4. The long-handled bat used in knur and spell. Eng.

5. Gymnastics. Either of a pair of removable handles used on the back of a horse. See HORSE, 12.

pom'mel (pŭm'ĕl; -l), v. t.; -MELED (-ĕld; -ld) or -MELLED; -MELING or -MEL·LING. To beat soundly, as with the pommel of a sword, or with something knoblike; hence, to beat with the fists.

pom'mel, n. [F. paumelle, fr. paume palm of the hand.] Leather Mfg. A tool for softening and raising the grain, or one for producing a velvety appearance on fancy leathers. The first is usually a convex wooden float file with a strap handle; the other is usually of cork.

pommel bag. A bag or case suspended at the pommel of a saddle. See 1st POMMEL, 2 b.

pom'meled, pom'melled (pŭm'ĕld; -ld; pŏm'-), adj. Her. Having a pommel of specified tincture.

pom'mel·er, pom'mel·ler (pŭm'ĕ·lĕr), n. One who or that which pommels.

pom'my (pŏm'ĭ), n.; pl. POMMIES (-ĭz). [Short for POMEGRANATE.] An immigrant, esp. a newcomer from England; — from the high color of the cheeks. Slang, Australia.

pom'my (pŭm'ĭ). Var. of POMACE. Dial. Eng.

Po'mo (pō'mō), adj. a Designating or pert. to an Indian of the nearly extinct California tribes constituting the Kulanapan stock. b = KULANAPAN. — Po'mo, n.

po·mol'o·gist (pō·mŏl'ō·jĭst), n. An expert in pomology; a grower of fruits.

po·mol'o·gy (-jĭ), n. [L. pomum fruit + -logy; cf. F. pomologie.] Science and practice of fruit growing; horticulture dealing with the cultivation of fruits. — po'mo·log'i·cal (pō'mȧ·lŏj'ĭ·kăl), adj. — po'mo·log'i·cal·ly, adv.

Po·mo'na (pō·mō'nȧ), n. [L., fr. pomum fruit.] 1. Rom. Relig. The old Italian goddess of the fruit of trees. 2. Fem. proper name. 3. A treatise on fruit trees; — used as a title.

po·mo'nal (pō·mō'năl), adj. Pomonic.

po·mon'ic (-mŏn'ĭk), adj. Of or pertaining to fruit. Rare.

pomp (pŏmp), n. [ME. pompe, fr. OF. pompe, fr. L. pompa, fr. Gr. pompē a sending, a solemn procession, pomp, fr. pempein to send.] 1. A ceremonial or festal procession, pageant, or spectacle; a parade or cortege, esp. one marked by splendor.

> There let Hymen oft appear > In saffron robe, with taper clear,
> And pomp, and feast, and revelry. Milton.

2. A show of magnificence; brilliant display; splendor.

> There 's sic parade, sic pomp an' art
> The joy can scarcely reach the heart. Burns.

3. Ostentatious display or an instance of such; a worldly vanity; — often pl. in this sense; as, to renounce the devil and all his pomps. Hence, ostentation; vainglory. "To serve occasions of poetic pomp." Cowper.

Syn. — Display, pageantry, state, magnificence, ostentation, grandeur, pride. See PARADE.

Ant. — Simplicity, plainness, unostentatiousness.

☞ COMBINATIONS are: pomp'-fed', pomp'-lov'ing, adj.

pomp, v. i. [MF. pomper.] To be pompous; to act pompously; to strut. Hardy.

pomp, v. t. [Cf. PAMPER.] To pamper. Obs. exc. Dial.

pomp. Obs. var. of PUMP.

pomp, n. Short for POMPADOUR, mode of dressing the hair.

pom'pa (pŏm'pȧ), n. [L.] = 1st POMP.

pom'pa·dour (pŏm'pȧ·dōr; -dŏŏr; some distinguish the senses relating directly to the Marquise de Pompadour which they pronounce -dŏŏr even though otherwise they pron. -dōr), n. a Pompadour green. b A style of dress cut low and square in the neck. c A style of dressing the hair high over the forehead, either by drawing long hair over a roll, or by brushing short hair back so that it stands erect; also, the hair dressed in this style. d A South American chatterer (Xipholena pompadora) of brilliant reddish-purple color with white wings.

Pom'pa·dour, adj. Of or pert. to the Marquise de Pompadour; specif. [not cap.], designating fabrics, as silks or ribbons, having small fibral designs in delicate colors.

pom'pa·dour, adv. In pompadour style.

pom'pa·dour, v. t. To dress pompadour.

pompadour green. A color, greenish-blue in hue, of medium saturation and medium brilliance. Cf. COLOR.

pomp'al (pŏmp'ăl; -l), adj. [LL. pompalis.] Of, pertaining to, or like, a pomp or pageant.

pom'pa·no (pŏm'pȧ·nō), n.; pl. -PANOS (-nōz). [Sp. pámpano.] Zool. a A marine carangoid fish (Trachinotus carolinus) of the southern Atlantic and Gulf coasts of North America, one of the best of food fishes. It reaches a length of 18 inches, has a deep, thin body and rounded head, is toothless when adult, and is covered with small scales with blue, silvery, or golden luster. Often, any of various other less valued fishes of this or a related genus, as (of North American coast) the round pompano (Trachinotus falcatus), the great pompano (see PERMIT, fish), the banner pompano, etc. b The poppyfish (Palometa simillima) of the California coast.

Pompano (Trachinotus carolinus).

pompano shell. A small bivalve shell of the genus Donax.

Pom·pe'ian (pŏm·pā'yăn; -ăn; pŏm·pē'yăn), adj. [L. Pompeianus.] Of or pertaining to Pompeii, an ancient town of Campania buried by ashes from an eruption of Mt. Vesuvius, A.D. 79, and partly uncovered by modern excavations; hence, denoting, or relating to, the art and culture shown by Pompeian relics. — n. a A citizen or inhabitant of Pompeii.

Pompeian blue. A color, greenish-blue in hue, of low saturation and of medium brilliance. Cf. COLOR.

Pompeian red. A color seen on many houses in Pompeii. It is yellowish-red in hue, of medium saturation and medium brilliance. Cf. COLOR.

Pompeian yellow. A color, yellowish red-yellow in hue, of medium saturation and high brilliance. Cf. COLOR.

Pom·pe'ii (pŏm·pā'yē; -ē; pŏm·pē'ĭ), n. 1. See POMPEII, in Gaz. 2. The color burnt rose.

pom'pel·mous (pŏm'pĕl·mŏŏs), -moose (-mŏŏs), n. [D. pompelmoes; cf. F. pamplemousse, and pompoléon; origin uncert.] A shaddock. East Indies.

Pom'pey (pŏm'pĭ), n. [L. Pompeius.] Masc. proper name.

pom'pey (pŏm'pĭ), v. t. [Cf. PAMPER, and dial. pomp to pamper.] Corrupt. of PAMPER. Dickens.

Pompey's Pillar. A red granite column of the Corinthian order at Alexandria. It had nothing to do with Pompey, but was erected in the reign of Diocletian (A.D. 302), whose statue it supported.

pom·phol'y·gous (pŏm·fŏl'ĭ·gŭs), adj. Affected with pompholyx.

pom'pho·lyx (pŏm'fō·lĭks), n. [L., fr. Gr. pompholyx a bubble, slag on the surface of smelted ore, fr. pomphos a blister.] 1. Old Chem. Also pom'pho·lix. Impure zinc oxide produced by burning zinc or roasting its ores. 2. Med. A vesicle; hence: a A skin disease marked by an eruption of vesicles, esp. on the palms and soles. b Pemphigus.

pom'phus (pŏm'fŭs), n. [Gr. pomphos blister.] Med. Vesicle; wheal.

---

pol'y·zon'al lens (pŏl'ĭ·zōn'ăl; -ĭ). = ECHELON LENS.

pom (pŏm). Short for POMERANIAN [Colloq.

Po·ma'ce·ae (pō·mā'sē·ē), n. pl. [NL., fr. L. pomum apple.] Syn. of MALACEAE.

pomage. ✝ POMMAGE.

pomaise. ✝ PUMICE.

pomarine jaeger. See JAEGER, 2.

po'ma·ry, n. [L. pomarium.] A fruit garden; orchard. Obs.

pome-cit'ron, n. [pome + citron.] The citron. Obs.

pomel. ✝ POMMEL.

pome'ly, adj. [OF. pomelé (F. pommelé). See POMMEL.] Dappled. Obs.

pome'pear', n. [After F. pomme poire.] A small round pear. Obs.

pome'roy' (pŏm'roi'; pŭm'-), n. Also pome·roy'al. [F. roi king, or E. or F. royal. See POME.] A kind of apple. Obs.

pom'ice. Dial. var. of POMACE.

pom'i·er, n. [OF. (F. pommier).] A pomiferous tree. Obs. Caxton.

pom·ma'do. ✝ POMADA.

pom'mage (pŏm'ĭj), n. [Cf. F. pommage cider apples, or E. pomace.] a Obs. Cider. b = POMACE, 1.

pom'man·der. ✝ POMANDER.

pomme (pŏm), n. = POMEY.

pom'meld. Pommeled. Ref. Sp.

pom·mel'ion (pŏ·mĕl'yŭn), n. [See POMMEL.] Ordnance. A cascabel or its knob. Obs.

pom'me·lo. Var. of POMELO.

pom'mer (pŏm'ĕr), n. [G.] Music. = BOMBARDON a. [Dial.] pom'mey (pŭm'ĭ). = POMACE.

pom'mice. ✝ POMACE, PUMICE.

pom'mie. Var. of POMMY.

po·moe'ri·um (pō·mē'rĭ·ŭm). Var. of POMERIUM.

pom'o·lo. Var. of POMELO.

pom·pat'ic (pŏm·păt'ĭk), adj. Also pom·pat'i·cal (-ĭ·kăl). [LL. pompaticus.] Pompous. Obs.

Pom·pei'ian. Var. of POMPEIAN.

pom'pe·lo (pŏm'pĕ·lō). Var. of POMELO.

pom'pe·on. ✝ POMPION.

pom'per·kin, n. [Cf. POME; PERKIN.] A beverage of pomace and water. Obs.

pom'per·y, n. [OF. pomperie.] Pomp. Obs.

pom'pet. ✝ PUMPET.

pom'pier lad'der, or pom'pier (pŏm'pyĕr; F. pôn'pyā'), n. [F. pompier fireman, fr. pompe a pump.] A fireman's scaling ladder consisting of a pole with cross rungs, and a hook at one end.

Pompier Ladder.

Pom·pil'i·a (pŏm·pĭl'ĭ·ȧ), n. The heroine of Browning's Ring and the Book, who is abused by her husband and finally murdered.

Pom·pil'i·dae (pŏm·pĭl'ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Pompilus, type genus, fr. Gr. pompilos a fish that follows ships.] Zool. An extensive family of slender fossorial wasps, usually black, with the abdomen oval and short-petioled, and the legs strong and spinose. Pom'pi·lus (pŏm'pĭ·lŭs) is the type genus. Most species, as the tarantula killer, burrow in the ground and provision their nests with spiders. Syn. Psammocharidae. — pom'pi·lid (pŏm'pĭ·lĭd), adj. & n. — pom'pi·loid (-loid), adj.

pom'pi·on (pŏm'pĭ·ŏn), n. [See PUMPKIN.] 1. a Archaic & Dial. A pumpkin. b Obs. One who suggests a pumpkin; a corpulent fellow.
2. The shaddock. Obs.

pomp'ist, n. [pomp + -ist.] A pompous person.

pom'-pom' (pŏm'pŏm'), n. [Imitative.] A Vickers-Maxim one-pounder automatic machine cannon using metallic ammunition fed from a looped belt attached to the gun; — popularly so called from its peculiar drumming sound in action. Sometimes, any of other similar automatic cannons.

pom'-pom'-pull'a·way', n. A form of tag in which the players make a dash for a goal at the signal "pom-pom-pullaway."

pom'pon (pŏm'pŏn; F. pôn'pôn'), n. [F., fr. MF. pomper to be pompous.] 1. An ornamental ball, as of silk or feathers, for women's costume.
2. a A race of hardy garden chrysanthemums having buttonlike heads of flowers. See CHRYSANTHEMUM. b A dwarf variety (Rosa centifolia pomponia) of the cabbage rose, with small, bright-red flowers. c A race of dahlias with small flowers. See DAHLIA, 1 a.
3. Mil. A tuft or ball of wool, or the like, sometimes worn on the front of the hat, shako, etc.

pom'pon (pŏm'pŏn), pom·poon' (pŏm·pōōn'), n. A food fish (Anisotremus surinamensis), allied to the porkfish, found from Louisiana and Florida southward.

pom·pos'i·ty (pŏm·pŏs'ĭ·tĭ), n.; pl. -TIES (-tĭz). [ML. pompositas.] Pompous demeanor, speech, or action; pompousness.

‖pom·po'so (pŏm·pō'sō), adj. [It.] Music. Pompous; — a direction regarding style.

pomp'ous (pŏmp'ŭs), adj. [F. pompeux, fr. LL. pomposus. See POMP.] 1. In the nature of a pomp, procession, or spectacle; characterized by pomp.

Where Windsor domes and pompous turrets rise. Pope.

2. Characterized by ostentation or show of importance, dignity, worth, etc.; outwardly imposing; of persons, self-important; consequential in manners, speech, etc.

The pompous vanity of the old schoolmistress. Thackeray.

Syn. and Ant. — See OSTENTATIOUS.
— pomp'ous·ly, adv. — pomp'ous·ness, n.

pomp'ster, pom'ster (pŏm'stĕr), v. i. [Perh. fr. Corn. ponster quackery; or cf. POMP.] To treat disease as a quack does. Dial. Eng.

'pon, pon (pŏn), prep. Short for UPON.

Pon'ca (pŏng'kȧ), n. An Indian of a Siouan tribe formerly of Nebraska, now on reservations in Nebraska and Oklahoma.

pon·ceau' (pŏn·sō'; pŏn'sō; F. pôn'sō'), n. [F.] 1. The corn poppy; also, its bright-red color.
2. Any of several azo dyes giving red color. See DYE, Table.
3. The color poppy red.

pon·ceau', n. [F.] Civ. Engin. A small bridge or culvert.

ponce'let (pŏns'lĕt; -lĭt), n. [After Jean V. Poncelet, French engineer.] Physics. A unit of power, being the power obtained from an expenditure of one hundred kilogrammeters of energy per second. One poncelet equals g watts, when g is the value of the acceleration of gravity in centimeters.

Poncelet polygon. [See PONCELET.] Math. A polygon inscribed in one conic and circumscribed about another. A pair of conics possessing one such polygon possesses infinitely many such.

Poncelet wheel. A kind of undershot water wheel suitable for falls of less than 6 feet.

pon'cho (pŏn'chō), n.; pl. -CHOS (-chōz). [Sp., fr. Araucan poncho, pontho.] A Spanish-American cloak like a blanket with a slit in the middle for the head; also, a similar garment, as of rubber or oiled cloth, worn elsewhere chiefly as a raincoat.

Poncelet Wheel.

pon'choed (-chōd), adj. Wearing a poncho.

Pon·ci'rus (pŏn·sī'rŭs), n. [NL., fr. poncire a kind of citron.] Bot. A genus of thorny Chinese trees of the rue family (Rutaceae) having as the only known species P. trifoliata, the trifoliate orange (which see). See CITRANGE.

pond (pŏnd), n. [ME. ponde, orig. an enclosed body of water, and same word as pound. See POUND an enclosure.]
1. A body of water naturally or artificially confined, and usually smaller than a lake; in England, usually, except locally, a body of water artificially confined. Cf. 5th LAKE, 1.
b A pool.
2. The ocean; esp., the Atlantic Ocean. Jocose.

pond, v. Transitive: 1. To make or collect into a pond; to dam; — with up or back.
2. To cover (concrete) with a pond of water for the purpose of curing.
——, Intransitive: To form a pond or pool.

pond (pŏnd), n. [D., pound.] The gold unit of the former South African Republic, equivalent to the English sovereign, struck 1892 to 1902.

pond, n. sing. & pl. [D.] See WEIGHT, Table.

pond. Var. reading of PONDER. Spenser.

pond'age (pŏn'dĭj), n. Storage in or capacity of a pond or reservoir.

pond apple. A small evergreen tree (Annona glabra) of southern Florida and tropical America, having an edible, ovoid, brownish-yellow fruit.

pond'bush' (pŏnd'bŏŏsh'), n. The pond spice.

pond crow. The coot Fulica americana.

pond cypress. A tall coniferous tree (Taxodium ascendens) of the southeastern United States, differing, if at all, from the closely related bald cypress (T. distichum) only in having subulate leaves and erect branchlets.

pond dogwood. The buttonbush.

pond duck. The mallard.

pon'der (pŏn'dĕr), v.; -DERED (-dĕrd); -DER·ING. [OF. ponderer, fr. L. ponderare, fr. pondus, ponderis, a weight. See POUND a weight.] Transitive: 1. Obs. a To weigh. b To evaluate; to appraise. c To endure the burden of.
2. To weigh in the mind; esp., now, to view with deliberation; to examine carefully; to consider attentively.

Again and yet again Ponder my words. Shelley.

——, Intransitive: To meditate; deliberate; muse; consider; — often with on or over; as, to ponder over a subject or on momentous issues.

Syn. — See CONSIDER.

pon'der, n. A pondering; reflection; reverie. Rare.

pon'der, n. [Perh. fr. ponderous.] Weight. Obs.

pon'der·a·bil'i·ty (pŏn'dĕr·ȧ·bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. [Cf. F. pondérabilité.] Quality or state of being ponderable.

pon'der·a·ble (pŏn'dĕr·ȧ·b'l), adj. [LL. ponderabilis; cf. F. pondérable.] Capable of being weighed, evaluated, or considered for purposes of appraising; appreciable; as, ponderable substances; the ponderable qualities of art. — pon'der·a·ble·ness, n.

pon'der·a·ble, n. Something having weight; something weighty. Cf. IMPONDERABLE.

pon'der·al (pŏn'dĕr·ăl), adj. Pertaining to weight; estimated in terms of weight.

pon'der·ance (-ăns), pon'der·an·cy (-ăn·sĭ), n. [L. ponderans, pres. part. of ponderare to weigh.] Weight; gravity; consequence. Now Rare.

pon'der·ant (-ănt), n. Something whose weight is observed or borne.

pon'der·ar'y (-ĕr'ĭ or, esp. Brit., -ĕr·ĭ), adj. Ponderal. Rare.

pon'der·ate (pŏn'dĕr·āt), v. [L. ponderatus, past part. of ponderare.] Transitive: 1. To bear down by weight; to bias. Obs.
2. To weigh in the mind; to ponder.
——, Intransitive: To have weight; to bear down or toward; to ponder. Now Rare.

pon'der·ate (-ĭt), adj. Deliberate.

pon'der·a'tion (-ā'shŭn), n. [L. ponderatio; cf. F. pondération.] Act or process of pondering, weighing, gravitating, or pondering; also, a weighty consideration. Now Rare.

pon'der·a'tive (-ā'tĭv; -ȧ-tĭv), adj. Capable of or given to weighing. Obs.

pon'der·er (-ĕr), n. One who ponders.

pon'der·ing, adj. Meditative. "Lapsed into a pondering silence." Hardy. — pon'der·ing·ly, adv.

pon'der·ling (pŏn'dĕr·lĭng), n. [See PONDER; -LING.] A child being weighed. C. Reade.

pon'der·o·mo'tive (pŏn'dĕr·ō·mō'tĭv), adj. [L. pondus, ponderis, weight + E. motive.] Literally, weight-moving; specif.: Physics. Pertaining to or noting the force mutually exerted by conductors traversed by the electric current, or that exerted on such conductors by any magnetic field. Ponderomotive force tends to move the conductor bodily.

pon'der·o'sa pine (pŏn'dĕr·ō'sȧ). [L. ponderosus heavy.] The bull pine Pinus ponderosa.

pon'der·os'i·ty (-ŏs'ĭ·tĭ), n.; pl. -TIES (-tĭz). [ML. ponderositas.] Quality or state of being ponderous.

pon'der·ous (pŏn'dĕr·ŭs; -drŭs), adj. [F. pondéreux, fr. L. ponderosus, fr. pondus, -eris, a weight. See PONDER.]
1. Of very great weight; extremely or oppressively heavy; as, a ponderous shield or burden.
2. Weighty; important; momentous. Obs.

Your more ponderous and settled project. Shak.

3. Of relatively great density; of high specific gravity. Obs.
4. Heavy; dull; wanting lightness or spirit; labored; as, a ponderous style; ponderous jesting.
5. Rare. a Ponderable. Sir T. Browne. b Ponderative; deliberative; thoughtful. c Ponderating; gravitating.

Syn. — See BULKY. Ant. — Slight, delicate.
— pon'der·ous·ly, adv. — pon'der·ous·ness, n.

ponderous spar. Mineral. Heavy spar. See BARITE.

pond'fish' (pŏnd'fĭsh'), n.; pl. -FISH, -FISHES (-fĭsh'ĕz; -ĭz; 119). See PLURAL, Note. Any of many small American fresh-water sunfishes of the family Centrarchidae.

pond'grass' (-grȧs'; 83), n. A submerged aquatic herb (Potamogeton pectinatus) common in Europe and North America, with fine threadlike leaves, spikes of greenish flowers, and small hard bony fruits.

pond hen. The coot Fulica americana.

Pon'di·cher'ry ea'gle (pŏn'dĭ·chĕr'ĭ; -shĕr'ĭ). [From Pondicherry, French India.] The Brahmany kite.

Pondicherry vulture. A small black vulture (Sarcogyps calvus) of India, Burma, etc.

pond lily. The water lily.

pond'man (pŏnd'măn), n. One who takes logs to or from a timber pond.

Pon'do (pŏn'dō), n.; pl. AMAPONDO (ȧ'mȧ·pŏn'dō). A Bantu-speaking tribe in eastern Cape Province.

pon'dok (pŏn'dŏk), n. [S. Afr. D., fr. Malay pondo' (written pondok) shelter, fr. Ar. funduq inn, fr. Gr. See FONDUK.] A native hut. Also, dim., pon·dok'kie (pŏn·dŏk'ĭ). A hovel of the poorest sort. S. Africa.

Pon'do·mi'si (pŏn'dō·mē'sē), n. sing. & pl. One of a Kaffir tribe in eastern South Africa.

pon·do'sa pine (pŏn·dō'sȧ). Corrupt. of PONDEROSA PINE; also, its wood.

pond pine. A pine (Pinus serotina) of the sandy swamps of the southern United States, with three leaves in each sheath and short oblong cones; also, its soft, brittle, coarse-grained wood.

pond scum. Any free-floating filamentous alga of the family Zygnemataceae, esp. a spirogyra; also, the mass of tangled filaments formed by any of these or similar species on stagnant or quiet waters.

pond'-scum' par'a·site. Any fungus of the order Chytridiales; — so called because most of the species are parasitic on algae.

pond skater. A water strider.

pond smelt. See SMELT.

pond spice. An American spicy shrub (Litsea geniculata), with small oval leaves and axillary umbels of little yellow flowers. It grows in ponds and swamps from Virginia to Florida.

pond thatch. The cabbage palmetto. Bahamas.

pon'dus (pŏn'dŭs), n. [L.] 1. Weight; figuratively, inclination; influence. Obs.
2. pl. PONDERA (pŏn'dĕr·ȧ). = 1st LIBRA a.

pond'weed' (pŏnd'wēd'), n. Any aquatic plant of the genus Potamogeton, many species being found in ponds.

pondweed family. The Zannichelliaceae.

pond'wort' (pŏnd'wŭrt'), n. The water soldier Stratiotes aloides.

pond'y (pŏn'dĭ), adj. Having many ponds; hence, marshy.

pone (pōn), n. [Of Algonquian origin; cf. Virginian ăpăn something baked, bread, Passamaquoddy ăbăn.] = CORN PONE.

po'ne (pō'nē), n. [L. pone, imper. of ponere to place.]
1. a An original writ, now superseded by the writ of certiorari, for removing a case from an inferior court into the Court of Exchequer. b An obsolete writ to enforce appearance in court by attaching goods or requiring securities.
2. Card Playing. The player who cuts the cards, being usually the player on the dealer's right.

pone (pōn), n. A lump or swelling. Southern U. S.

pone (pōn). A thin turf. Shet. & Ork.

ponent (pō'nĕnt), adj. [OF., fr. Pr. ponen or It. ponente, prop., setting (applied to the setting sun), fr. L. ponens, pres. part. of ponere to put.] [also cap.] Western; occidental. Archaic. Cf. LEVANT.

po'nent, adj. [L. ponens, -entis, pres. part.] Positing; affirming. Rare. — po'nen·cy (pō'nĕn·sĭ), n. Rare.

po'nent, n. The west. Obs.

Po·ne'ra (pō·nē'rȧ), n. [NL., fr. Gr. ponēros bad, worthless.] Zool. A genus of stinging ants having an elongate abdomen supported on a petiole of one segment but with a constriction between the first and second abdominal segments. It is the type of a family, Po·ner'i·dae (pō·nĕr'ĭ·dē), or more usually, a subfamily, Po'ne·ri'nae (pō'nē·rī'nē), of which the kelep is an example. — po·ne'rid (pō·nē'rĭd; -nĕr'ĭd), n. & adj. — po'ner·oid (pō'nĕr·oid), adj. — po'ner·ine (pō'nĕr·ĭn; -īn), adj. & n.

Po·ne'ra·moe'ba (-rȧ·mē'bȧ), n. [NL., fr. Gr. ponēros bad, worthless + amoeba.] Zool. In some classifications, a subgenus of Endamoeba, sometimes made a separate genus, including the species coli (see ENDAMOEBA).

pon'er·ol'o·gy (pŏn'ĕr·ŏl'ō·jĭ), n. [Gr. ponēros wicked + -logy.] The branch of theology treating of the doctrine of evil. Cf. HAMARTIOLOGY.

pong (pŏng), n. [Imitative.] A hollow ringing sound. — v. i. To make or cause a pong; — often reiterated.

pong, v. i. Of an actor, to gag or improvise. Theat. Slang, Eng.

poñ·ga'pong (pŏng·gä'pŏng), n. [Tag.] The puñgapung. Phil. I.

pon·gee' (pŏn·jē'; pŭn-), n. [Chin. (Pek.) pen¹-chi¹ home loom, or home-woven.] 1. a A thin soft fabric made of the brownish undyed silk of the silkworm Antheraea pernyi of China. See TUSSAH, SHANTUNG. b By extension, any similar dyed silk fabric.
2. A color, yellowish red-yellow in hue, of low saturation and high brilliance. Cf. COLOR.

Pon'gi·dae (pŏn'jĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Pongo + -idae.] Zool. A family consisting of the anthropoid apes, the gorillas, chimpanzees, orangutans, and gibbons. Syn. Simiidae.

Pon'go (pŏng'gō), n. [NL., fr. Kongo mpongi, mpungu, perh. confused with Kongo mpongo fatness, obesity.] Zool. a A genus of anthropoids; — variously applied, now usually to the orangutans. Cf. SIMIA. b [not cap.] An orangutan.

pon'go. Bot. Var. of PONGA.

Pon'gol (pŏng'gŏl), n. [Tamil poṅgal, lit., rejoicing, bubbling, boiling.] The great Hindu New Year's festival of southern India, beginning on Jan. 11.

pon'iard (pŏn'yĕrd), n. [F. poignard, fr. poing fist, fr. L. pugnus. See PUNGENT.] A kind of dagger, usually slender with a triangular or square blade.

pon'iard, v. t.; -IARD·ED; -IARD·ING. [Cf. F. poignarder.] To pierce or kill with a poniard.

Po'nia·tow'ski's Bull (pŏn'yȧ·tôf'skĭz; -tōs'kĭz). [After Stanislas Poniatowski, a king of Poland.] Astron. The constellation Taurus Poniatowskii.

pon'i·ca (pŏn'ĭ·kȧ), n. [Perh. fr. japonica, a specific name for many garden plants.] A gardener. Trade Slang, England.

po'ni·er (pō'nĭ·ĕr), n. A pony driver.

‖pons (pŏnz), n.; pl. PONTES (pŏn'tēz). [L., a bridge. See FIND.] Anat. & Zool. a A bridge; — applied to several parts which connect others. b Specif., a broad mass of transverse nerve fibers (pontine fibers) conspicuous on the ventral surface of the brain of man and mammals, at the anterior end of the medulla oblongata. On either side it extends up in a robust cord and forms the brachium pontis or middle cerebellar peduncle. Interspersed between fibers are irregular masses of gray matter, the pontine nuclei, which serve as important relay stations in the path from the cerebral cortex to the opposite side of the cerebellum. The term pons is extended to include the structures dorsal to these transverse fibers. Called also ‖pons Va·ro'li·i (vȧ·rō'lĭ·ĭ).

Poniard.

pons as'i·no'rum (ăs'ĭ·nō'rŭm; 181). [L., asses' bridge.] a Math. = ASSES' BRIDGE. Hence, a critical test of ability imposed upon the inexperienced or ignorant. b Logic. Obs. A geometrical figure attributed to Petrus Tartaretus (about 1480), used to show the various relations of the middle terms of syllogisms.

‖pons Ta·ri'ni (tȧ·rī'nī). [NL., after Pierre Tarin, French medical writer.] Anat. The posterior perforated space of the brain.

‖pons Va·ro'li·i (vȧ·rō'lĭ·ĭ). [NL., after Costanzo Varoli (1542–75), It. anatomist.] See PONS.

Pons'–Win'neck·e·id (pŏns'vĭn'ĕ·kē·ĭd), n. [See 1st -ID a.] Astron. A shower of meteors associated with Pons-Winnecke's comet.

Pons'–Win'neck·e's com'et (-kĕz). Astron. A comet discovered by Pons in 1819 and rediscovered by Winnecke in 1858. At the apparition of 1927 it made an unusually close approach to the earth, being distant only 3½ million miles. See COMET, Table.

pont (pŏnt), n. [D., ferryboat. Cf. PUNT a boat.] 1. A ferry; also, a ferryboat worked by a steel cable. S. Africa.
2. Pontoon; float; caisson. Obs.

pont, n. [F.] A bridge. Obs.

Pon'tac, Pon'tacq (pŏn'tăk; F. pôn'tȧk'), n. [From Pontacq, near Pau, France.] A still wine, red or white, of the south of France; also, a red wine of the Cape of Good Hope.

---

pomp'less, adj. See -LESS.

pom·po'le·on (pŏm·pō'lē·ŏn), n. = POMPELMOUS.

pom·poon'. Var. of 2d POMPON.

pom·pose' (pŏm·pōs'; cf. -OSE), adj. [LL. pomposus.] Pompous. Obs.

Pomp'tine. Var. of PONTINE.

‖po'mum A·da'mi (pō'mŭm ȧ·dā'mī). [NL.] = ADAM'S APPLE.

pon. + PAN, PAWN, POND, PONE.

pon (pŏn), n. [Tamil.] = PAGODA, 3 a. [Slang.] ponce (pŏns), n. = FANCY MAN 6.

ponceau red. = POPPY RED.

pon'der·a·bl. Ponderable. Ref. Sp.

pon'der·d. Pondered. Ref. Sp.

pon'der·ment, n. See -MENT.

pon'der·ose' (see -OSE), adj. [L. ponderosus.] Ponderous. Obs.

pond'ful, n. See -FUL.

pond'let. Dim. of POND.

pond'side', n. See -SIDE.

po'ney. Var. of PONY.

pon'ga (pŏng'gȧ), n. [Maori.] See FERN, Table.

pon'gyi. Var. of POONGHIE.

po'nid. Ponied. Ref. Sp.

pon'ja (pŏn'jȧ), n. = PALM FERN a.

Pon'ka. Var. of PONCA.

Pons'-Brooks's' com'et (pŏns'-brŏŏk's'lĭz). [After J. L. Pons (1761–1831), French, and W. R. Brooks, Am. astronomer.] See COMET, Table.

Pons'-Cog'gia-Win'neck·e-Forbes's' comet (pŏns'kŏd'jȧ-vĭn'ĕ·kĕ·fôrb'zĭz). See COMET, Table.

pon'ser, etc. Erron. for POUCER.

---

pon'tage (pŏn'tĭj), n. [OF., fr., pont bridge fr. L. pons, pontis, a bridge.] A duty or tax paid in lieu of personal service for the building and repairing of bridges; also, a toll for the use of a bridge, devoted to its maintenance.

pon'tal (pŏn'tăl; -t'l), adj [L. pons, pontis, bridge + -al.] Of or pertaining to a bridge; specif., Anat., pontine.

Pont' du Gard' (pôn' dü gàr'). [F.] A Roman aqueduct crossing the river Gard near Nîmes, in the south of France, one of the principal remains of Roman engineering work.

Pon'te·de'ri·a (pŏn'tē·dē'rĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., after Giulio Pontedera (1688–1757), Italian botanist.] Bot. A small American genus of aquatic plants, type of the family Pontederiaceae. P. cordata is the common pickerelweed.

Pon'te·de'ri·a'ce·ae (-ā'sē·ē), n. pl. [NL.] Bot. A family of monocotyledonous aquatic or bog plants (order Xyridales), the pickerelweed family, having perfect, more or less irregular flowers subtended by leaflike spathes. The principal genera are Pontederia and Heteranthera. — pon'te·de'ri·a'ceous (-dē'rĭ·ā'shŭs), adj.

Pon'te Vec'chio (pŏn'tā vĕk'kyō). [It., lit., old bridge.] A quaint old bridge, lined with goldsmiths' shops, in Florence, Italy, across the Arno, built about 1345, replacing an older structure.

Pon'ti·ac's War or Conspiracy (pŏn'tĭ·ăks). A war (1763–65) of the Indians under Pontiac against the English garrisons in the region of the Great Lakes. Although successful at Mackinac and other places, the Indians failed in their siege of Detroit.

pon'ti·a'nak, pon'ti·a'nac (pŏn'tē·ä'năk), n. [From Pontianak, Borneo.] Jelutong.

Pon'tic (pŏn'tĭk), adj. [L. Ponticus, fr. Gr. Pontikos, fr. pontos the sea, esp., the Black Sea. See FIND.] 1. Of or pert. to Pontus, or the Black Sea or its region.

2. [often not cap.] Sour; astringent. Obs.

pon'tic (pŏn'tĭk), n. [L. pons, pontis, a bridge.] Dent. One of the artificial teeth on a dental bridge; a dummy.

pon'tic (pŏn'tĭk), adj. Anat. = 2d PONTINE.

pon'ti·cel'lo (pŏn'tĭ·chĕl'ō), n. [It., little bridge.] 1. Music. The bridge of a bow instrument.

2. The break, or change in register, in the voice, as in a boy's voice at puberty.

pontic rhubarb. The rhubarb Rheum rhaponticum.

pon·tic'u·lus (pŏn·tĭk'ū·lŭs), n. [L., little bridge.] Anat. a A slight ridge. b Specif., a bridge of transverse nerve fibers between the pyramids of the medulla and the pons; called also propons. — pon·tic'u·lar (-lĕr), adj.

pon'ti·fex (pŏn'tĭ·fĕks), n.; pl. PONTIFICES (pŏn·tĭf'ĭ·sēz). [L. See PONTIFF.] 1. Rom. Antiq. A high priest; a pontiff; a member of the highest priestly college. See PONTIFICAL COLLEGE.

2. Eccl. A bishop; specif., the Pope.

3. A high priest. Rare.

4. Bridgemaker; — from its reputed etymology. See PONTIFF, Ety.

pon'tiff (pŏn'tĭf), n. [F. pontife, fr. L. pontifex, -ficis, prob. orig. pathfinder, waymaker, fr. L. pons, pontis, bridge + facere to do. See FIND; DO.] 1. Rom. Relig. A member of the council of nine, later fifteen or sixteen, priests forming the most important body of the Pontifical College (which see), presided over by the Pontifex Maximus (under the empire, the emperor), who was also the legal representative of the vestals, whence the whole group was called pontifices Vestae.

2. Eccl. A bishop; now, specif. and usually, the Pope (called more fully sovereign pontiff or supreme pontiff).

3. A chief or high priest, as of the Jews.

4. By extension, a person in high place, esp. one who speaks oracularly.

5. Pontiff purple.

pontiff purple. A color, bluish blue-red in hue, of high saturation and low brilliance. Cf. COLOR.

pon·tif'ic (pŏn·tĭf'ĭk), adj. Pontifical. Rare.

pon·tif'i·cal (pŏn·tĭf'ĭ·kăl), adj. [L. pontificalis; cf. F. pontifical. See PONTIFF.] 1. a Of or pertaining to a pontiff, bishop, or prelate; episcopal; as, pontifical authority; specif., of or pertaining to the Pope; papal. b Having the pomp, dignity, dogmatism, etc., of a pontiff. c Celebrated by a bishop; as, pontifical mass. d Rare. Of or pertaining to a high priest.

2. Rom. Antiq. Of or pertaining to the pontifices.

3. Pontifflike as in dignity, pomp, or oracularity.

4. Of or pertaining to a bridge or to bridgebuilding; — based on the reputed etymology. "Art pontifical." Milton.

pon·tif'i·cal, n. 1. A papal edict or document. Wycliffe.

2. Now always pl. Orig., episcopal attire; now specif., the insignia of the episcopal order worn by a prelate when celebrating pontifically, including buskins, sandals, gloves, dalmatic, tunicle, ring, pectoral cross and miter.

3. A book containing the offices, or forms for sacraments, rites, etc., performed by a pontiff, or bishop.

4. A bishop's or pope's court. Obs.

5. Obs. a A pontiff or prelate, or his duties, office, or dignity. b [cap.] An adherent of prelacy.

Pontifical College [also not cap.] Rom. Relig. The highest priestly organization of ancient Rome, comprising the pontifices, orig. an advisory council of the king, later of the Pontifex Maximus (see PONTIFF); the Rex sacrorum, the king's representative in the priestly functions, and first in sacerdotal rank, but inferior to the Pontifex Maximus in power; the flamines (see FLAMEN); and the vestal virgins (see VESTAL). Cf. AUGUR, 1; EPULO; FETIALES; QUINDECEMVIR; SALII.

pon·tif'i·ca'li·a (pŏn·tĭf'ĭ·kā'lĭ·ȧ), n. pl. [ML.] Pontificals.

pon·tif'i·cal'i·bus (-kăl'ĭ·bŭs), n. pl. Short for [ML.] in pontificalibus, in pontificals; hence, the attire or vestments of one's office.

Pontifical Indiction. = ROMAN INDICTION. pon·tif'i·cal'i·ty (-ĭ·kăl'ĭ·tĭ), n.; pl. -TIES (-tĭz). 1. State, office, dignity, or rule of a pontiff, esp. the Pope; papacy.

2. Pontificals; pontificalia; — usually in pl.

3. Pontifflike demeanor; pompousness.

4. A pontifical or elaborate religious ceremony. Carlyle.

pon·tif'i·cal·ly, adv. of PONTIFICAL.

pontifical Mass. A High Mass celebrated by a bishop.

pontifical ring. R.C.Ch. A ring worn by prelates and others symbolic of their spiritual marriage with the church. The Pope wears a cameo, cardinals a sapphire, bishops a jeweled ring set in brilliants, abbots a ring with a single stone, doctors a plain ring.

Pontifical States. The former Papal States.

pon·tif'i·cate (pŏn·tĭf'ĭ·kăt), n. [L. pontificatus; cf. F. pontificat. See PONTIFF.] State, office, dignity, or term of office of a pontiff, as the Roman pontifex or a bishop.

pon·tif'i·cate (-kāt), v. i. a To officiate as a pontiff; esp., to celebrate pontifical mass. b To play the pontiff. — v. t. To celebrate (Mass) as a bishop. — pon·tif'i·ca'tion (-kā'shŭn), n.

pon'ti·fi'cial (pŏn'tĭ·fĭsh'ăl), n. Rare. 1. An adherent of prelacy or the papacy.

2. = PONTIFICAL, n., 3.

pon'ti·fi'cial, adj. [L. pontificius.] Pontifical. Obs. — pon'ti·fi'cial·ly, adv. Obs.

pon'ti·fi'cious (-fĭsh'ŭs), adj. Papal. Rare.

pon'ti·fy (pŏn'tĭ·fī), v. i.; -FIED; -FY'ING. [F. pontifier, fr. ML. pontificare, fr. L. pontifex.] To play the pontiff.

pon'tile (pŏn'tĭl; -tīl), adj. [LL. pontilis pertaining to a bridge.] Anat. Pontine.

pon·tin' (pŏn·tēn'), n. [Sp. pontín.] A coasting vessel, often used as a pilot boat. Phil. I.

Pon'tine (pŏn'tēn; -tīn; 277), adj. Also Pomp'tine (pŏmp'tĭn). [L. Pontinus or Pomptinus, an appellation given to a district in Latium, near Pometia.] Of or pert. to an extensive marshy district between Rome and Naples, now largely reclaimed.

pon'tine (pŏn'tĭn), adj. Anat. Pertaining to the pons.

pon'tist (pŏn'tĭst), n. [L. pons, pontis, bridge + -ist.] One who builds bridges; also, one who, as an artist, draws or paints bridges.

Pon'tius (pŏn'shŭs; -tĭ·ŭs), n. [L.] The gens name of the Roman procurator, Pon'tius Pi'late (pī'lăt), under whom Jesus was crucified. Cf. PILATE.

pont·lev'is (pŏnt·lĕv'ĭs; F. pôn'lĕ·vē'), n. [F., prop., a drawbridge.] 1. A drawbridge. Archaic.

2. Manège. Repeated and dangerous rearing of a horse.

Pon'to·cas'pi·an (pŏn'tō·kăs'pĭ·ăn), adj. [L. Pontus the Black Sea + E. Caspian.] Of, pertaining to, or designating, the region about the Black and Caspian Seas.

pon'to·cer'e·bel'lar (-sĕr'ē·bĕl'ĕr), adj. Anat. Of or pertaining to the pons and the cerebellum.

pon'ton (pŏn'tŭn; formerly, and still by some, pŏn·tōn'; the spelling ponton, and pron. pŏn'tŭn are now usual in the U. S. Army), n. [F.] Mil. A pontoon (which see).

pon'to·nier' (pŏn'tō·nēr'), n. [F. pontonnier.] Mil. An individual engaged in constructing a pontoon bridge, or assigned to a military unit organized for that purpose.

pon·toon' (pŏn·tōōn'; 66), n. Also pon'ton (see PONTON). [F. ponton, fr. L. ponto, -onis, fr. pons, pontis, a bridge, way, path. See FIND; cf. PUNT a boat.] 1. A flat-bottomed lighter or other boat; esp. and specif., Mil., a wooden flat-bottomed boat or other portable float, such as a metallic cylinder, or a boatlike frame covered with waterproof material, used in building bridges (pontoon, or ponton, bridges) quickly, for the passage of troops or vehicles.

a, a Pontoons, 1; b Balks, or Joists; c Chesses, or Floor Planks; d, d Side Rails.

2. A pontoon bridge Obs.

3. The caisson of a dock. Rare.

4. A float of an aircraft. See FLOAT, n., 8.

5. Naut. A low, flat vessel, like a barge, bearing cranes, capstans, and other machinery, used in careening ships, raising weights, drawing piles, etc.; also, short for pontoon dock, a floating dry dock.

pon·toon', v. t. To bridge or cross by a pontoon bridge.

pon·toon', n. A form of vingt-et-un. Brit.

pontoon bridge. A bridge whose deck is supported on pontoons; — called also floating bridge and bateau bridge.

pon·toon'ing, n. Art or process of building pontoon bridges.

‖pon'tus (pŏn'tŭs), n. [L., fr. Gr. pontos.] See PONTIC.] A sea; [cap.] the Black Sea.

Pon'tus, n. [L., fr. Gr. Pontos.] Gr. Myth. Deification of the sea; according to Hesiod, a son of Gaea; according to another myth, a husband of Gaea and father by her of Briareus, or Aegaeon.

pont'vo·lant' (pŏnt'vō·lănt'; F. pôn'vô'lăn'), n. [F. pont bridge + volant flying.] Mil. A kind of light bridge in two sections, one of which can be extended beyond the other, used in sieges. Rare.

po'ny (pō'nĭ), n.; pl. PONIES (-nĭz). Also po'ney. [From earlier pownyy, prob. fr. OF. poulenet, dim. of poulain colt, fr. LL. pullanus, fr. L. pullus a young animal. See FOAL.] 1. A small horse; esp., a horse of any of certain very small but stocky breeds noted for their gentleness and endurance, as those of Iceland and the Shetland Islands. In commerce, usually specifically restricted to those not over 14 (sometimes 14¼) hands in height, except for horses used in polo, in which 14½ hands is now allowed. The bronchos, mustangs, and cayuses of the western United States are sometimes called ponies regardless of size. See SHETLAND PONY, WELSH PONY; cf. GALLOWAY, 1.

2. pl. Race horses; as, to bet on the ponies. Slang.

3. Sum of £25. Slang, Eng.

4. A translation or a key used to avoid study in getting lessons; a crib. College Slang, U. S.

5. The skin of a pony (sense 1), used as fur.

6. Something very small of its kind. Specif.: a Theatrical Slang. A diminutive ballet dancer. b A small automobile. c Colloq. A small liqueur glass or the liquor it will hold; as, a pony of brandy; also, a beer glass smaller than the ordinary size.

7. Short for pony car, pony insulator, etc. See PONY, adj.

po'ny (pō'nĭ), v. t. & i. Slang, U. S. 1. To pay (money), esp. in settlement of an account; — used with up.

2. To translate with the aid of a pony.

po'ny, adj. Of a size smaller than usual; as, a pony (glass of) beer, car, glass, insulator, planer, switch stand, etc.

pony engine. A small switching locomotive. U. S.

pony express. The first rapid-transit postal and express system across western United States (1860–61), extending from St. Joseph, Mo., to Sacramento, Calif. Relays of ponies carried mails 1960 miles in 10 days.

pony grass. A perennial grass (Calamagrostis neglecta) of the North Temperate Zone, forming valuable forage in the Rocky Mountains.

pony truck. Railroads. A two-wheeled swivel truck used under the front end of certain classes of locomotives, as mogul, prairie, etc.

pony truss. Bridgebuilding. A truss so low that overhead bracing cannot be used.

pon'zite (pŏn'zīt), n. [From Ponza isl., near Naples.] Petrog. An alkali-trachyte containing phenocrysts of augite and brown hornblende.

poo'a, poo'ah (pōō'ä), n. Pua hemp.

pooch (pōōch). a Dial. var. of POUCH. b Slang. A dog.

poo'dle (pōō'd'l), n. [G. pudel, fr. LG. pudeln to splash in water; cf. G. pudel puddle. See PUDDLE.] 1. A dog of a breed supposed to be one of the basic breeds, known to have existed prior to 30 A.D. Its intelligence is very high. It is often kept as a pet and also makes a splendid gun dog and retriever. It is an active, well-knit, and proud-looking dog. Its coat is of either wiry, curled hair, or long, corded, silky hair. The poodle may be almost any of the solid dog colors. The three classes, toy, miniature, and large, differ only in weight. The toy is less than 12 pounds, and the large is more than 20 pounds, specimens as heavy as 80 pounds being known.

2. A fabric of woolly texture; a garment of it. Obs.

3. Bowling. A ball that goes off the alley into the gutter before or without striking a pin.

poo'dle, v. t. To clip the hair of in poodle fashion; to pet as a poodle.

poodle dog. A poodle; loosely, any small pet dog that follows its master around. — poo'dle-dog', v. t. To follow (a person) like a poodle dog.

poo'gye (pōō'gē), n. [Hind. pūgī. Cf. PUNGI.] A kind of nose flute, used by the Hindus.

pooh (pōō; pōōh; 150), interj. An exclamation expressing contempt, disdain, or impatient intolerance; pshaw! pish! nonsense! — n. An exclamation of pooh.

pooh (pōō), v. i. & t. To say pooh to; to pooh-pooh; to express one's contempt.

Pooh'-Bah' (pōō'bä'), n. A character in Gilbert and Sullivan's comic opera The Mikado, who holds a ludicrous number of incongruous public offices; hence, humorously, one holding many offices, public or private; also, one in high position; one who gives the impression of being a person of importance.

pooh'-pooh' (pōō'pōō'; pōō'pōō'), interj. Also pooh'-pooh'. A reduplication of POOH.

pooh'-pooh', or pooh'pooh' (pōō'pōō'), n. An utterance of pooh-pooh; also, one who pooh-poohs.

pooh'-pooh' (pōō'pōō'), v. t. & i. Also pooh'pooh'. To make light (of); to treat or speak with derision or contempt, as if by saying pooh-pooh! — pooh'-pooh'er (-ĕr), n.

His grandfather, . . . pooh-poohed the notion. Galsworthy.

pooh'-pooh', or pooh'pooh', the'o·ry. The theory that language originated in interjections which gradually acquired meaning. Cf. BOWWOW THEORY, DINGDONG THEORY.

pook (pōōk), v. t. To pluck or pull, esp. with the thumb and finger. Chiefly Scot.

pook (pōōk), n. A heap, as of hay or corn; a small temporary stack. Dial. Eng. — v. t. To pile in such a heap. Dial. Eng.

pook. Var. of PUCK, n.

poo'ka (pōō'kȧ), n. [Ir. pūca, of Teut. origin.] Irish Folklore. A mischievous or malignant goblin or specter, often appearing in the form of a horse and haunting bogs and marshes. Cf. PUCK.

poo·kaun', poo·khaun' (pōō·kôn'), n. [Ir. pūcān.] A small fishing boat, usually with one mast and equipped with oars as well as sails, often lateen-rigged. Local, Ir.

pool (pōōl), n. [Origin uncert.] Any of various local measures of work in the building trades in England, as 168 square feet in roofing with slate (S. Colepress, 1669, Oxf. E. D.).

pool, v. t. [From POOL deep place.] Mining, Quarrying, etc. To cut (a hole, called a pool hole) to insert a wedge for splitting; also, to undercut or undermine, as in excavating coal.

pool, n. [AS. pōl; akin to LG. pool, pohl, D. poel, G. pfuhl.] 1. A small and rather deep body of (usually) fresh water, as one fed by a spring, or one in a stream; also, a reservoir for water; as, the pools of Solomon.

2. A small body of standing or stagnant water or other liquid; a puddle; as, a pool of blood; farmyard pools.

3. A continuous area of porous sedimentary rock which yields petroleum on drilling.

4. = SWIMMING POOL.

— the Pool. The Thames at London for several miles below London bridge.

pool (pōōl), v. i. To form a pool; — said esp. of sewage caught in a filter clogged by vegetable growths.

pool (pōōl), n. [F. poule, prop., a hen. See PULLET.] 1. The stake played for in certain games; an aggregated stake to which each player has contributed; also, a pool dish.

2. a Eng. A game at billiards, in which each of the players stakes a certain sum, the winner taking the whole; also, in public billiard rooms, a game in which the loser pays the entrance fee for all in the game. "He plays pool at the billiard houses." Thackeray.

Plan of Pool Table, with balls arranged as at the beginning of a game. 1 Head, and 2 Foot, of Table; 3 Head Spot; 4 String Line; 5 Cue Ball; 6 Object Balls placed to form a triangle with the Number 15 ball at its apex and resting on the Foot Spot.

b U. S. Any of various games of billiards played on a pool table with, usually, fifteen object balls, numbered or plain, and a cue ball. Cf. PYRAMID, 6. c Formerly, a game at cards in which there is a pool; also, a party of players for such a game.

pon'te, pon'tee. Var. of PUNTY.
Pon'te di Ri·al'to (pŏn'tā dē rē·äl'tō). [It.] See RIALTO.
‖pon'tes, n., pl. of PONS. pon·tic'i·ty (pŏn·tĭs'ĭ·tĭ), n. [OF. ponticité, fr. ML. ponticitas, fr. L. Ponticus Pontic.] Pungency; astringency. Obs. pon'tif. Pontiff. Ref. Sp.

Pon'ti·fex Max'i·mus. [L.] See PONTIFF. [Obs.] pon·tif'i·ca·cy, n. Pontificate. pon'ti·fice (pŏn'tĭ·fĭs), n. [L. pons, pontis, a bridge + facere to make. See PONTIFF.] Bridge work; a bridge. Obs.
pon·tif'i·ces, n., pl. of PONTIFEX. pon·tif'i·ces Ves'tae. See PONTIFF.

pon'ti·fi'cian (pŏn'tĭ·fĭsh'ăn), adj. & n. Pontifical. Obs. pon'til, n. = PUNTY. pontine fibers. Anat. See PONS. pontine nucleus. See PONS. ponto. † PUNTO.
pon'to (pŏn'tō), n. = PUNTY.
pon·toon'er, pon'toon·eer'. Vars. of PONTONIER.

pon'ty. Var. of PUNTY.
poo (pōō). Scot. & dial. Eng. var. of PULL. pood (pōōd), n.; pl. POOD or POODS. [Russ. pud, ult. fr. L. See POUND the weight.] See WEIGHT, Table.
poo'der (pōō'dĕr). Scot. & N. of Eng. var. of POWDER. poo'di. Poodle. Ref. Sp.

poodle. † PUDDLE.
poo'dle·dom, n. See -DOM. poo'dle·ish, adj. See -ISH. poodler. Var. of PODLER. poo'dle-ship, n. See -SHIP.
poo'er (pōō'ĕr). Scot. & N. of Eng. var. of POWER. pool (pōōl), interj. [Cf. POOH, also F. pouf.] = POOH, interj.

poogh. † POOH. [Sp.] pooh'poohd'. Poonpoohed. Ref. pooh'pooh'ist (pōō'pōō'ĭst), n. = POOH-POOHER. poo'ja, poo'jah. Vars. of PUJA. pooks. † POKE, a bag.
poo'koo (pōō'kōō), n. [Perh. fr. Mashona mpuku animal, game.] = PUKU.

3. In rifle shooting, a contest in which each competitor pays a certain sum for each shot he makes, the net proceeds being divided among the winners.
4. In a joint gambling venture, the total amount contributed to be staked on a contestant or competitor in a game, race, or the like, the resulting gains or losses to be divided proportionately among the contributors; also, sometimes, the combination of persons in such a venture.
5. Any aggregation of the interests or property of different persons made to further a joint undertaking or end by subjecting them to the common control and a common liability; also, the persons who so combine their interests or property. Specif.: a Com. A common fund or combination of interests for the common adventure in buying or selling, esp. for speculating in, or manipulating the market price of, securities, grain, or other commodities. b A combination between competing business houses or corporations for the control of traffic by removing competition. The pool is usually either: (1) an arrangement to divide the field, as where gas companies or railroads agree not to establish competing lines of service; (2) an arrangement to divide the traffic, as where railroads agree to divert business so that each shall have a fixed share, or where a differential rate is established in favor of a road to enable it to obtain additional traffic (called, specif., a tonnage pool or a passenger pool according as it relates to freight or passenger traffic); or (3) an agreement (called in England a joint-purse arrangement) to divide all or part of the earnings from traffic, sometimes called a gross-money pool when the gross earnings are divided, and a net-money-receipts pool when only profits are divided. At common law pools have generally been held to be illegal as in restraint of trade, but this doctrine is interpreted with less rigor in England than in the United States, where severe laws have been passed to do away with them. See TRUST.
6. Fencing. A contest in which each member of a team successively engages each member of another team.
7. Med. An accumulation of blood in any part of the body, as in the capillaries and veins of the peritoneal cavity, resulting from stagnating circulation.

pool (pōōl), v. t.; POOLED (pōōld); POOL'ING. To put together in a pool (see 5th POOL, 5); to contribute to a common fund, on the basis of a mutual division of profits or losses; to make a common interest of; as, the companies pooled their traffic. — v. i. To organize a pool; to combine with others in a pool.

pool bottle. A leather bottle from which small numbered balls are distributed to the players in some games of pool, as to determine the order of playing.

pool'er (pōōl'ĕr), n. A stick for stirring a tan vat.

pool'er, n. A person or combination joining in a pool.

pool hole. See 2d POOL.

poo'li (pōō'lĭ), n. [By error fr. Mendi puli a species of Bauhinia.] A tropical African timber tree (Cordia platythyrsa); also, its moderately soft wood resembling northern coniferous woods.

pool'room' (pōōl'rōōm'; 200), n. U. S. 1. A room in which gambling on distant horse races, prize fights, etc., is carried on.
2. A public room in which pool is played.

pool'root' (pōōl'rōōt'; 200), n. A common perennial herb (Eupatorium aromaticum) of the eastern United States, with opposite leaves and loose clusters of white, tubular flower heads.

pool selling. The selling or distribution of shares or chances in a wagering pool. — pool seller.

pool snipe. A redshank. Eng.

pool table. A kind of billiard table on which pool is played. The standard American table has six pockets.

pool'wort' (pōōl'wŭrt'), n. a The poolroot Eupatorium aromaticum. b = WHITE SNAKEROOT.

pool'y (pōōl'ĭ), adj. Like a pool; having many pools; swampy.

poon (pōōn), n., or poon tree. [Singhalese puna.] Any of several East Indian trees of the genus Calophyllum, esp. C. inophyllum, the mastwood; also, their hard, light wood, used for masts, spars, etc. See CALOPHYLLUM, MASTWOOD.

poon (pōōn). Scot. & dial. Eng. var. of POUND, to beat.

poo'nac (pōō'năk), n. [Singhalese punakku.] A kind of oil cake prepared from the coconut and used as a feed for cattle.

Poo'nah paint'ing (pōō'nä). [From Poonah, or Poona, city in India.] A style of painting, popular in England in the 19th century, in which a thick opaque color is applied without background and with scarcely any shading, to thin paper, producing flowers, birds, etc., in imitation of Oriental work. Hence: Poonah brush, paper, painter, etc.

poon'ga oil tree (pōōng'yȧ). [Tamil puṅga-maram the tree that produces poonga oil, fr. maram tree.] The kurung, or Indian beech.

poon'ghie (pōng'gyē; -gē), poon'ghee (-gē), n. Also poon'gee, etc. [Burmese phungyī, fr. phun glory + gyī great.] A Buddhist priest or monk of the higher orders in Burma.

poop (pōōp), n. [F. poupe, fr. It. poppa, fr. L. puppis.]
1. The afterpart of a vessel. Now Rare.
2. Naut. A deck above the spar, or open, deck abaft the mizzen, sometimes forming the roof of a cabin (the poop cabin). In the 16th and 17th centuries it was often raised to great height. See DECK, n., 2.
3. The seat at the rear of a coach; the dickey; also, Vulgar, buttocks.
4. [cap.] Astron. = PUPPIS.
—at, or in, poop. Astern. Obs.

Elizabethan Man-of-War (from an old manuscript). P Poop.

poop, v. t. Naut. a To break over the poop or stern of, as a wave. b To ship (a sea or wave) over the stern; — esp. in the phrase to be pooped, to be boarded by a following sea over the stern.

poop, n. A fool; esp., a futile, useless person; a nincompoop. Eng. Slang.

poop, v. i. To cozen; cheat. Obs.

poop (pōōp), v. i. [ME. poupen, popen, of imitative origin; cf. D. poepen. Cf. POP.] To make a tooting sound; to gulp; to break wind. — poop, n.

poop cabin. Naut. See POOP, 2.

poop deck. Naut. = POOP, 2.

pooped (pōōpt), adj. Having a poop.

po'ō-phyte (pō'ō-fīt), n. [Gr. poa grass + -phyte.] Phytogeog. A plant of grasslands and meadows. — po'ō-phyt'ic (-fĭt'ĭk), adj.

poop royal. Naut. The highest and aftermost deck over the poop in large old-time ships.

-poor (-pōōr; 199). A combining form of the adjective poor, denoting poor from lack of or from an encumbrance of, as in land-poor.

poor (pōōr; 199), adj.; POOR'ER (-ĕr); POOR'EST. [ME. pore, poure, pouere, fr. OF. povre (F. pauvre), fr. L. pauper, fr. the root of paucus, parvus, little + parere to produce. See FEW; PARE. Cf. PAUPER, POVERTY.] 1. Wanting in material riches or goods; lacking in the comforts of life; needy. Ordinarily, poor is used relatively, and may be used at one extreme, as contrasted with wealthy or opulent, of a person having very considerable means; or at the other, of those destitute of, or barely having, the necessaries of life.
2. Destitute of such qualities as are desirable or might naturally be expected; as: a Scanty; inadequate; as, a poor crop; a poor income; rarely, scant; bare; as, a poor ten crowns. b Not good, as in quality or workmanship; inferior; as, poor cloth; poor feed; poor work. "A poor vessel." Clarendon. c Feeble; dejected; as, poor health; poor spirits. Also, mean-spirited; as, a poor creature without pride. d Lean; emaciated; meager; as, a poor horse. e Barren; sterile; — said of land; as, poor soil. f Unfavorable; unfortunate; uncomfortable; as, a poor business; the sick man had a poor night. g Wanting in elegance or marks of wealth or refinement; as, poor attire; poor surroundings. h Inefficient; not excellent or satisfactory; as, a poor orator; a poor carpenter; a poor saddle horse.
3. Worthy of pity or sympathy; — used in genuine compassion, endearment, or tenderness, often with more or less contempt, or in regret, of one dead; as, he is blind, poor man; poor, vain fool; poor dear. Colloq.
4. Small in number or worth; slight; insignificant.
One poor pennyworth of sugar candy. Shak.
Syn. — Impecunious, indigent, poverty-stricken, impoverished; insufficient; imperfect, unsatisfactory; infertile; unfortunate, unlucky, hapless.
Ant. — Wealthy; adequate; competent; fruitful; fortunate. See RICH.
☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

poor-blooded	poor-clad	poor-minded poor-charactered	poor-feeding	poor-sighted poor, n. The destitute or impoverished; — with the; as, the poor are always with us; blessed are the poor; also, Obs., a poor person.

poor, v. Transitive: 1. To make poor. Obs.
2. To treat pityingly; to call "poor." Colloq.
—, Intransitive: To become poor. Obs. exc. Dial.

poor (pōōr), n., or poor cod. A small European codfish (Gadus minutus).

poor (pōō'ĕr). Var. of POWER, POUR. Now Dial.

poor as a church mouse (pōōr; 199). Poor but respectable; indigent rather than destitute.

poor box. Also poor's box. A box for alms for the poor, esp. one placed near the door of a church.

Poor Clare R.C.Ch. See CLARE.

poor debtor. Law. A debtor who has no property, or not more than a certain small amount of property, subject to execution, or who has delivered up his property for the benefit of his creditors in the manner prescribed by law. In general such a debtor may obtain exemption from arrest or imprisonment for bona fide contract debts by taking insolvent proceedings under the law (called poor'—debt'or law) for the relief of such persons. U. S.

poor debtor's oath. The oath to the facts bringing a person within the purview of a poor-debtor law, required to obtain the benefit of that law.

poor'—do' (pōōr'dōō'), n. Scrapple. Southern U. S.

poor farm. A farm maintained at public expense for the support and employment of paupers. U. S.

poor'—folks'y (pōōr'fōk'sĭ; 199), adj. Pert. to or like poor folk.

poor gas. Producer gas, poor for lighting and heating, but economical for gas-engine driving.

poor'house' (pōōr'hous'; 199), n. A dwelling house for paupers maintained at public expense; almshouse; workhouse.

poor in spirit. Spiritually humble; devoid of pride (sense 1 a). "Blessed are the poor in spirit." Matt. v. 3.

poor'ish, adj. Rather poor.

poor'—Jan's'—leaf' (pōōr'yänz'lēf'), n. The houseleek.

poor joe (pōōr jō; 199). The great blue heron. Local, U. S.

Poor John. Small cod or hake, dried and salted; hence, mean fare. Obs. exc. Hist.

Poor Knights of Windsor. A number of knights, men of rank and merit but too poor to live nobly, who were connected by Edward III with the Order of the Garter. The institution is still continued as the Military Knights of Windsor.

poor law. A law providing for or regulating the public relief or support of the poor. The system of poor laws in England is generally considered to have begun with the Poor Relief Act of 1601, but it is now in the hands of the Local Government Board, established by St. 34 & 35 Vict. c. 70 (1871). In the United States there is a great diversity of local legislation.

poor'li-ness (pōōr'lĭ-nĕs; -nĭs; 119), n. State of being poorly. Rare.

poor'ling, adj. [See -LING.] One of the poor. Cf. WEAKLING.

poor'ly, adv. In a poor manner or condition; as: a In want; indigently; as, to live poorly. b Inadequately; defectively; badly; as, poorly paved streets. c Now Rare. Ungenerously; shabbily; abjectly; without spirit or courage.

poor'ly, adj. Somewhat ill; indisposed; not in health. — poor'ly-ish, adj. Both Chiefly Colloq.

poorly off. Not well off; not rich.

poor'—man's'—cab'bage, n. The winter cress Barbarea verna.

poor'—man's'—dai'sy, n. The yellow daisy (Rudbeckia hirta).

poor'—man's'—ge-ra'ni-um, n. The beefsteak saxifrage.

poor'—mans''—herb', n. The hedge hyssop Gratiola officinalis.

poor'—man's'—mus'tard, n. The hedge garlic.

poor'—man's'—pep'per, n. a Peppergrass (Lepidium). b The stonecrop Sedum acre.

poor'—man's'—rem'e-dy, n.; pl. -DIES (-dĭz). The common valerian (Valeriana officinalis).

poor'—man's'—rhu'barb, n. The meadow rue.

poor man's sauce. A sauce whose basis is onion either raw and chopped or sautéed. To the former, French dressing is added, to the latter, usually, chopped parsley, consommé, and wine.

poor'—man's'—soap', n. a The hardback Spiraea tomentosa. b Also poor man's soap. The brake Pteridium aquilinum; — so called because it will make a lather with water.

poor'—man's'—weath'er-glass', n. The pimpernel Anagallis arvensis, which opens its blossoms only in fair weather.

poor'mas'ter (pōōr'màs'tĕr; 83; 199), n. A supervisor of the relief of the poor. Local, U. S.

Poor Men of Lyons. Eccl. Hist. Followers of Peter Waldo, or Valdo (12th century), a merchant of Lyons, who, it is said, struck by the sudden death of a friend, renounced the world, distributed his goods to the poor, and devoted himself to the exposition of the Scriptures.

poor'ness, n. Quality or state of being poor.

poor oat. = WILD OAT 1 a.

poor pine. Any of several pines of the southern United States growing in poor soil, as the spruce pine Pinus glabra, the shortleaf pine P. echinata, etc.

poor preacher, poor priest. One of an order of itinerant preaching clergymen founded by John Wycliffe (d. 1384).

poor rate. An assessment, as a parish tax, levied for the relief of the poor.

poor relief. Relief or assistance, esp. assistance administered by local officials with funds from the local treasury, for the aid of the needy in a community.

poor rhubarb. The meadow rue.

Poor Richard. = SAUNDERS, RICHARD.

Poor Robin. a The imaginary author of a series of almanacs first published in 1663 and discontinued in 1828. Robert Herrick, the poet, is said to have assisted in the first numbers. The name was sometimes applied to any almanac. b (1) The cleavers. (2) The red campion.

Poor'—Rob'in's—plan'tain, n. a The robin's-plantain. b The rattlesnake weed Hieracium venosum.

poor root. The poolroot Eupatorium aromaticum.

poors'house' (pōōrz'hous'), n. Poorhouse. Chiefly Scot.

poor soap. = HARDBACK a.

poor soldier. The friarbird.

poor'—spir'it-ed (66), adj. Of a mean spirit; cowardly; base. — poor'—spir'it-ed-ly, adv. — poor'—spir'it-ed-ness, n.

‖poort (pōrt; S. Afr. D. pōōrt), n. [D.] A pass between or across mountains. S. Africa.

poor'tith (pōr'tĭth), n. [OF. povretet (F. pauvreté).] Poverty. Chiefly Scot.

poor white. a In the southern United States, a white person of neither property nor social position; —so used in contempt by negroes; collectively they are called also poor white trash. b In South Africa, a descendant of the Boer farmers comprising a low social class, marked by poverty, inferior mentality or capacity to labor, etc.

poor'will' (pōōr'wĭl'; 199), n. [In imitation of its note.] A bird of the western United States and Mexico (Phalaenoptilus nuttallii) similar to the whippoorwill, but smaller, and having a note of two syllables only.

poor wren. The red grouse. Local, Eng.

poot (pōōt), interj. An exclamation expressing disgust. U. S.

poot (pōōt). Var. of POULT; PUT, v. Now Dial.

pop (pŏp), n. [Of imitative origin. Cf. POOP, v. i.] 1. A stroke or blow; a knock. Now Dial. Eng.
2. A small, sharp, quick explosive sound or report; as, to go off with a pop.
3. The time taken by the sound of a pop (sense 2); instant.
4. A shot from a rifle, pistol, etc.; also, Slang, a pistol.
5. A mark or spot such as made by a quick stroke.
6. A beverage which expels the cork with a pop from the bottle; as, ginger pop.
7. Act of pawning, or state of being pawned. Slang, Brit.
8. pl. A poorly filled peanut pod; — so called from the sound when crushed. Southern U. S.
9. a Local, Eng. The redwing thrush. b Louisiana. The painted bunting. The male is often disting. as red pop and the female as green pop from the predominating colors.
10. a Any of several West Indian plants of the genus Physalis; also, their inflated calyx. b A poorly filled pod of the pea or peanut.
11. Mach. A small boss with an inserted setscrew. Eng.

pop (pŏp), v.; POPPED (pŏpt); POP'PING. Intransitive: 1. To make, or to burst with, a pop, or sharp report; as, the muskets popped away; this corn pops well.
2. To go, come, enter, or issue forth, quickly, suddenly, or unexpectedly; to dart; leap; — with in, out, up, etc.; as, to pop under the clothes or into a house.
Popping up and down every moment. Swift.
3. To protrude from the sockets; as, eyes that popped with fear.
4. To shoot with a firearm; as, popping at birds.
5. To pop the question.
She had really been quite candid that night when he popped. L. Merrick.
6. To form blisters; to blow; — said of lime, mortar, etc.
7. Baseball. To hit the ball into the air so as to afford an easy chance for a catch.
8. Engin. = BACKFIRE, v. i., 2.
—, Transitive: 1. To strike or knock sharply. Now Dial.
2. To thrust, push, or put, suddenly; to bring abruptly to notice; as, to pop one's head out of a window, or a paper into one's hand.
Popping half a sovereign down in front of him. Arnold Bennett.
3. To cause to pop, esp. to explode or burst open; as, to pop corn.
4. To fire off (a firearm, a blast, or the like); hence, to shoot; as, to pop off rabbits. Colloq.
Anybody but me would have popped you when you wouldn't hoist that left claw of yours. O. Henry.
5. To pawn. Slang, Brit.

pop off. Colloq. a To die. b To fall asleep. "The moment they popped off, down they fell." Barrie. c To kill off; to dispose of summarily. "Twenty-one modern poets popped off 'twixt a laugh and a pun." Amy Lowell.

pooid. Pooled. Ref. Sp.
pool'ing, pres. part. & verbal n. of POOL. pool'side', n. See -SIDE. poo'na. Var. of POON, the tree.
poon tree. See POON.
poope. † POPE, POOP. [PULPIT.] poo'pit (pōō'pĭt). Scot. var. of poop'nod'dy, n. [See NODDY, 3.] An old card game. Obs. poopt. Pooped. Ref. Sp.
poor. † POPE.
poore. † POOR; PORE, n.; POPE, v.; POUR; POWER. [TONWEED a.] poor'-land'-weed', n. = BUT-poor'-law' par'ish. See PARISH, n., 2 a. poor'-law' un'ion. = UNION, 7 a. poor's box. = POOR BOX. poor'weed', = BUTTONWEED a. poose. † POSE, a cold.
poo'shan (pōō'zhän). Scot. var. of POISON. pootch (pōōch). Scot. var. of POUCH. poo'ther (pōō'thĕr). Dial. var. of POTHER; Obs. exc. Scot. var. of POWDER.
poot'y (pōōt'ĭ), adj. Corrupt. of pretty. Illi.

pop out. To extinguish, as a light.

pop the question. To propose marriage. Colloq.

pop up. To appear suddenly or unexpectedly.

pop (pŏp), adv. Like or with a pop; suddenly; — used also as an interjection. "Pop goes his pate." Beau. & Fl.

pop, v. t. [Origin uncert.; cf. OF. popiner to adorn.] To paint or adorn with cosmetic. Obs.

Pop, n. [Said to be fr. a lollipop shop, orig. place of meeting.] An exclusive debating society at Eton College.

Pop, n. & adj. Populist. Slang, U. S. pop, n. [From PAPA, accented on 1st syllable.] Father. Familiar.

pop, n. A popular concert (which see); specif. [sometimes cap.], pl., a series of popular-priced concerts given by artists; as, the Boston Symphony's Pops. Colloq.

pop (pŏp), n. [Cf. PUPPET.] Short for POPPET & POPLET.

Pop (pŏp), n. Dim. of ROBERT.

pop'a·dam (pŏp'ȧ·dăm), n. [Tamil parppadam, fr. Skr. parpata.] A thin wafer of lentil flour, flavored with asafetida and fried crisp in oil; — called also popper cake. Anglo-Indian.

pop'al (pōp'ăl; -l), adj. Papal. Rare.

pop ash. The water ash Fraxinus caroliniana.

pop'corn' (pŏp'kôrn'), n. 1. A type of Indian corn (Zea mays everta) having small ears, and small, pointed or rounded kernels with very hard corneous endosperm, which on exposure to dry heat are popped or everted by the explosion of the contained moisture, forming a white starchy mass many times the size of the original kernel; also, the corn when popped.

2. A color, reddish-yellow in hue, of medium saturation and very high brilliance. Cf. COLOR.

popcorn flower. Any plant, or flower, of the genus Plagiobothrys (family Boraginaceae); — in allusion to the crowded, white flowers on a one-sided, curved spike.

pop'dock' (pŏp'dŏk'), n. The foxglove (Digitalis).

pope (pōp), n. [ME. pope, pape, fr. AS. pāpa, fr. LL. pāpa, fr. Gr. papas, pappas, father. See PAPA; cf. PAPAL.] 1. Eccl. a In the Roman Catholic Church, the bishop of Rome, the head of the church. He is also Metropolitan of the Roman province, Primate of Italy, and Patriarch of the West. See Forms of Address, in Appendix; PRECEDENCE.

> It was apparently in the fourth century that it (Pope) began to become a distinctive title of the Roman Pontiff. . . . Gregory VII (1073–1085) finally prescribed that it should be confined to the successors of Peter. Cath. Encyc.
>
> The Pope is the successor of Peter in the See of Rome, the vicar of Jesus Christ on earth, and the visible head of the Church. Catechism of Pius X.

b In the early church, a bishop.

2. The spiritual head of a non-Christian religion.

3. One likened to the Pope in position, authority, or claims.

4. a Rare. A Pope Day celebration. b Nova Dial. An effigy of the Pope carried in such.

5. Short for POPE JOAN, the game; also, the seven (or nine) of diamonds in this game.

6. Any of various animals; as: a The ruff Acerina cernua. b Obs. A weevil that infests grain. c Local, Eng. (1) The common puffin. (2) The bullfinch. (3) The red-backed shrike. See SHRIKE. d Louisiana. The painted bunting.

7. A beverage like bishop except that champagne or Burgundy is used.

8. Hosiery Mfg. A size between standard and outsize; — more fully pope's size. Brit.

pope (pōp), v. i. To act as pope; — with it. Obs.

pope, n. [Russ. pop, fr. LGr. papas; cf. F. & G. pope, fr. Russ. See 1st POPE.] Orthodox Ch. a The bishop or patriarch of Alexandria. b A parish priest.

Pope Day or Night. The anniversary of the Gunpowder Plot, Nov. 5. Obs. or Hist.

pope'dom (-dŭm), n. [AS. pāpdōm.] 1. Place, office, dignity, or tenure of office, of the or a pope; papal dignity.

2. Similar ecclesiastical rank, authority, polity, etc. Ironical.

3. Papal dominion or domain; — analogous to kingdom.

pope'hood (pōp'hŏŏd), n. [pope+-hood; cf. AS. pāpanhād.] The office, dignity, or tenure, of the or a pope.

pope'ism (pōp'ĭz'm), n. Popery.

Pope Joan (jōn). 1. A fictitious female pope placed by several chroniclers in the series of popes between Leo IV and Benedict III, about 855, under the name of John. One story is that with her lover, a young monk, she left her home in man's disguise and went to Athens and thence to Rome, where she became proficient in sacred learning, and was elected as Leo's successor, in the belief that she was a man.

2. A card game resembling newmarket, but more elaborate; also, the seven (or the nine) of diamonds in this game. The dealer alone dresses the layout, and players may lead any card, not necessarily the lowest of the suit. The layout is usually heart king, spade queen, club jack, diamond ten, in square, with the pope, seven of diamonds, in the center.

pope'o·ler (pōp'ē·lēr), n. [Cf. OF. popelle a kind of bird.] Obs. exc. Dial. a The spoonbill. b A sea gull.

pope'o·line' (pōp'ē·lēn'), n. [F.] A rep with a silk warp and wool filling.

pope'ly (pōp'lĭ), adj. Papal; characteristic of a pope.

Pope of Geneva. Calvin (1509–64); — often so called.

pope'er·y (pōp'ēr·ĭ), n. 1. [often cap.] Roman Catholicism, esp. its government and forms of worship; — a designation of disparagement.

2. Assumption of infallibility.

> A kind of philosophic popery. Berkeley.

pope's'–eye', n. The lymphatic gland in the thigh of an ox or sheep; the noix. See NOIX.

pope's head (pōps). A long-handled brush for dusting ceilings, washing windows, etc.; — called also Turks-head.

pope's knight. A Roman Catholic priest; — from his title of courtesy, Sir. Obs. Scot.

pope's nose. The uropygium of a chicken, turkey, or other bird; — called also parson's nose. Colloq.

pope's size. See POPE, n., 8.

pope'ye' (pōp'ĭ'), n. 1. A staring, bulging eye.

2. A deep-water fish (Macrourus cinereus) of Bering Sea, family Macrouridae, with large prominent eyes.

3. See GAS DISEASE.

pope'yed' (pōp'ĭd'), adj. Having eyes that pop because of disease or excitement; as, popeyed with rage.

> Bulbous-browed and popeyed maidens. S. Lewis.

pop fly or foul. Baseball. A ball hit into the air without much force, offering an easy chance for a catch.

pop'glove' (pŏp'glŭv'), n. The foxglove (Digitalis).

pop goes the weasel. An English country-dance longways for six, in which each dancer in turn is popped under the arms of a couple with joined hands.

pop'gun' (pŏp'gŭn'), n. A child's toy gun consisting of a tube and rammer for shooting pellets, with a popping noise, by compression of air; hence, any toy gun or any firearm regarded as ridiculously inadequate.

pop'gun', v. t. & v. i. To shoot with a popgun. — pop'gun'ner, n. — pop'gun'ner·y, n.

Pop'i·an (pōp'ĭ·ăn), adj. Also Pop'e·an (pōp'ē·ăn; pō-pē'ăn). Of or pert. to Alexander Pope (1688–1744) or his poetry. — n. An imitator of Pope.

Po·pil'li·a (pō·pĭl'ĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. L. Popillius, name of a Roman gens.] Zool. A genus of beetles of the family Scarabaeidae. P. japonica is the Japanese beetle.

pop'i·nac (pŏp'ĭ·năk), n. [Alteration of opopanax tree.] The huisache.

pop'in·jay (pŏp'ĭn·jā), n. [ME. papejay, popingay, parrot (with influence of E. jay, F. geai), fr. OF. papegai, papingay, fr. Sp. papagayo, fr. Ar. babagha.] 1. A parrot. Obs.

2. A person likened to a popinjay in allusion to its bright colors or its chattering, as a talkative fop or coxcomb, or a light-headed person vain of his fine clothes. ¶ Shak.

3. A figure representing a parrot; as: a Her. A small parrot or parakeet, depicted with red legs and beak. b A target in the form of a parrot on a pole.

4. The color of green parrots; the color parrot green.

5. The green woodpecker. Local, Eng.

popinjay green. Parrot green.

popinjay shooting. Archery. Shooting at an artificial bird on a pole; — called also popinjay game.

Pop'ish (pōp'ĭsh), adj. Popian.

pop'ish (pŏp'ĭsh), adj. 1. Of or pertaining to the Pope. Obs.

2. Roman Catholic; — used opprobriously.

— pop'ish·ly, adv. — pop'ish·ness, n.

Popish Plot. Eng. Hist. An alleged plot in 1678 to murder Charles II and establish the Roman Catholic religion by force. Belief in it was largely fostered by the impostor Titus Oates, on whose evidence many were executed.

pop'joy' (pŏp'joi'), v. i. To sport; amuse oneself. Colloq.

pop'lar (pŏp'lĕr), n. [ME. popler, fr. OF. poplier (F. peuplier), fr. L. populus poplar; prob. akin to Gr. ptelea elm.] 1. a Any tree of the genus Populus. The poplars have handsome foliage little subject to insect attacks, and grow very rapidly. See POPULUS, LOMBARDY POPLAR. b The wood of these trees, usually called cottonwood; the wood of the aspen, used for paper pulp.

2. The tulip tree; also, its wood. See TULIP TREE, 1. U. S.

3. Any of several other trees or shrubs, as in Australia the shrub Homalanthus populifolius (family Euphorbiaceae).

☞ COMBINATIONS are:

poplar-covered	poplar-flanked	poplar-lined poplar-crowned	poplar-leaved	poplar-planted pop'lar (pŏp'lĕr), adj. Of or pertaining to the tulip tree or to the cottonwood; made of tulip-tree wood or, more correctly, of cottonwood.

poplar birch. Any of several species of white birch with poplarlike leaves, as the gray birch Betula populifolia of the United States, and B. alba of Europe.

poplar borer. A longicorn beetle (Saperda calcarata) whose larva destroys the poplar and cottonwood.

poplar box. An Australian gum tree (Eucalyptus polyanthemos) with ashy-gray bark, nearly round, long-stalked leaves, and small umbellate flowers; — called also den-tree.

pop'lared (pŏp'lĕrd), adj. Planted with, or abounding in, poplars.

poplar goat moth. A large gray-and-black carpenter moth (Acossus centerensis) whose larva bores in poplar trees.

poplar hawk. A large European moth (family Sphingidae) the larva of which feeds on the foliage of poplar.

pop'lar–leaf' fig. A large West Indian fig (Ficus laevigata) having a small red fruit.

poplar worm. The larva of any of various Lepidoptera injurious to poplar trees, as of a dagger moth (Apatela populi) which feeds on the cottonwood.

Poplar Goat Moth. a Female (⅔); b Larva (½).

pop'lin (pŏp'lĭn), n. [F. popeline, papeline, fr. It. papalino papal, fem. papalina; — because made at Avignon, a papal town.] A corded fabric of many varieties, usually of silk or worsted, used esp. for women's dresses.

pop'lin, n. [F.] A light unsweetened cake served with melted butter. Obs.

pop'lin·ette' (-ĕt'), n. Fabric of wool or linen imitating poplin.

pop·lit'e·al (pŏp·lĭt'ē·ăl; pŏp'lĭ·tē'ăl), adj. [L. poples, -itis, the ham.] Anat. Of or pertaining to the ham, or back part of the leg behind the knee joint.

popliteal artery. Anat. The continuation of the femoral artery after passing through the adductor magnus muscle. It crosses the popliteal space and soon divides into the anterior and posterior tibial arteries.

popliteal muscle. Anat. The popliteus.

popliteal nerve. Anat. Either of the two branches into which the sciatic nerve divides, usually in the lower part of the thigh, the larger branch passing through the popliteal space and continuing downward as the tibial nerve, and the smaller branch (common peroneal nerve) passing obliquely outward and downward to the neck of the fibula, around which it winds and divides into the deep and superficial peroneal nerves.

popliteal notch. Anat. The depression on the back of the head of the tibia between the tuberosities.

popliteal space. Anat. A lozenge-shaped space at the back of the knee joint.

popliteal vein. Anat. The vein formed by the union of the tibial veins. It ascends through the popliteal space to the aperture in the adductor magnus, where it becomes the femoral vein.

pop·lit'e·us (pŏp·lĭt'ē·ŭs; pŏp'lĭ·tē'ŭs), n. [NL.] Anat. A flat muscle extending from the outer condyle of the femur to the tibia, and forming part of the floor of the popliteal space.

Pop'o·crat (pŏp'ō·krăt), n. [Populist + Democrat.] U. S. Politics. A Democrat who supported political ideas espoused by the Populists, or People's party; — a term used by the opponents of such ideas in the campaigns of 1896 and 1900. — Pop·oc'ra·cy (pŏp·ŏk'rȧ·sĭ), n.

Po'po·la'ri (pō'pō·lä'rē), n. pl. [It.] The members of the Italian Popular party (Partito Popolare Italiano), or Catholic party, under the Fascist regime.

Po'po·lo'co (pō'pō·lō'kō), Po'po·lo'ca (-kä), n. [Sp., fr. Nahuatl Popoloca, lit., one who speaks a barbarous or foreign language, fr. poloni to stutter.] As used first by the Nahuas and later by the Spaniards, an Indian of any of several Mexican and Central American tribes, of which the most important are: a Zoquean tribe of southern Puebla; an isolated division of the Lencas in southern Guatemala; the Cakchikels; the Chochos; and the Cuitlatecos, or Tecos. Cf. CHONTAL.

pop'o·mas'tic (pŏp'ō·măs'tĭk), adj. Pope-flaying. J. Taylor.

pop'o'ver (pŏp'ō'vĕr), n. A quick bread made from a thin batter rich in egg and subjected in the first stage of baking to such heat that steam expands it into a hollow shell.

Po'po·vets (pō'pō·vĕts), n.; pl. POPOVTSI (pō·pôf'tsĭ). [Russ.] One of a sect of the Raskolniki.

pop'pa (pŏp'ȧ), n. Papa; — from colloquial pronunciation. U. S.

pop'pa·ble (pŏp'ȧ·b'l), adj. Capable of being popped; — esp. of corn. — pop'pa·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n.

pop·pe'an (pŏp·ē'ăn), adj. Like poppy juice in effect. Coleridge.

pop'per (pŏp'ĕr), n. 1. A dagger. Obs.

2. One who or that which pops, as a firearm, a gunner, etc.

3. A utensil for popping corn.

4. = 1st POP, 10 a. W. Indies.

pop'pet (pŏp'ĕt; -ĭt; 119), n. [Earlier form of PUPPET.]

1. A small person; — chiefly a term of endearment. Archaic & Dial.

2. A tubular case for pins, pencils, etc. Now Dial. Eng.

3. Obs. a A small image or figure in the human form, as a doll; a puppet; sometimes, an idol. b = PUPPET, 3. c = PUPPET, 4.

4. Mach. a An upright support or guide fastened at the bottom only, as a lathe poppethead. b A poppet valve.

5. Naut. a Any of certain upright timbers on the bilge ways fore and aft, used to support a vessel in launching. b Any of the small pieces of wood on a boat's gunwale supporting, or forming, the rowlocks.

pop'pet, v. t. To move as a poppet. Rare.

pop'pet·head' (-hĕd'), n. 1. Mach. A lathe tailstock or, sometimes, headstock.

2. Mining. The headframe of a shaft. Brit.

poppet leg. Mining. Any of the supporting legs of a poppethead. Brit.

poppet valve. Mach. A lift valve.

pop'pied (pŏp'ĭd), adj. [See POPPY.] 1. Growing or overgrown with poppies. "Poppied corn." Keats.

2. Drugging or sleep-inducing like poppy juice; also, drugged; drowsy; drooping.

> The poppied sails doze on the yard. Lowell.

pop'pin (pŏp'ĭn), n. [OF. popine, poupine, doll.] A puppet. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng.

pop'ping, adj. a Obs. Chattering. b That pops up; sporadic. c Full of action; as, a popping play.

pop'ple (pŏp'l), v. i. [ME. poplen, prob. of imitative origin. Cf. 1st POP.] 1. To heave or toss about, as water boiling, flowing over stones, or in a choppy sea.

2. To bob about on or as if on agitated waters.

pop'ple, n. 1. A bubble. Obs.

2. A heaving of water caused by boiling, wind, etc.; esp., a choppy sea.

pop'ple (pŏp'l), n. [Cf. POPPY.] Any of various plants, as the corn cockle, corn poppy, etc. Local, Eng.

pop'ple (pŏp'l), n. [ME. popultre, fr. AS. popul (in comp.), fr. L. populus.] 1. The poplar. Now Dial.

2. Aspen wood, used for paper pulp.

pop'ply (pŏp'lĭ), adj. Poppling; choppy.

pop'py (pŏp'ĭ), n.; pl. -PIES (-ĭz). [ME. popy, fr. AS. popig, popæg, ult. fr. L. papaver.] 1. a Any plant of the genus Papaver. The poppies are bristly-hairy herbs with showy flowers, mostly of various shades of red, yellow, or white. Annual garden poppies are descended chiefly from the opium poppy (P. somniferum), and from the corn poppy (P. rhoeas); perennials, from P. orientale, P. alpinum, and P. nudicaule. See OPIUM POPPY (POISONOUS PLANTS, Plate), ICELAND POPPY, PAPAVER. b Dial. Eng. Any of various other unrelated plants with inflated calyx or corolla, as the foxglove (Digitalis), etc.

1 Poppy (Papaver rhoeas), reduced. 1 Flower; 2 Capsule.

2. The extract from the plant used in medicines.

3. The color poppy red.

4. = POPPYHEAD, 2.

☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

poppy-bordered	poppy-crowned	poppy-pink poppy-colored	poppy-flowered	poppy-red poppy-crimson	poppy-haunted	poppy-sprinkled poppy anemone. A perennial, tuberous, European herb (Anemone coronaria), widely cultivated for its red, blue, or white, scapose flowers.

poppy ash. The water ash Fraxinus caroliniana.

poppy bee. A leaf-cutting bee (Osmia papaveris) which lines its cells with pieces of poppy petals.

pop'py·cock' (pŏp'ĭ·kŏk'), n. [Colloq. D. pappekak, lit., soft dung. See 2d PAP; CACK.] Empty talk; foolish nonsense; bosh. Colloq. — pop'py·cock'ish, adj.

Poppy Day. a U. S. Memorial Day. b Brit. Commonwealth. Remembrance Day, except: Canada & S. Afr., Remembrance Day or the preceding Saturday; N. Z., Friday preceding Anzac Day.

poppy family. Bot. The Papaveraceae.

pop'py·fish' (pŏp'ĭ·fĭsh'), n.; pl. -FISH, -FISHES (-fĭsh'ĕz; 119). See PLURAL, Note. a A fish (Palometa simillima) of the California coast, often sold for the pompano, which it resembles. b The harvest fish Peprilus paru.

Pop'e·an (pŏp'ē·ăn). Var. of POPIAN.

pope'head', n. Popehood. Obs.

pope'ho'ly, n. [Perh. an alteration of OF. papelart, F. papelard, hypocrite, hypocritical.] Hypocrisy. — adj. Hypocritical. — pope'ho'li·ness, n. All Obs.

popel, n. [OF. pople, pouple, popre. Oxf. E. D.] A fur, prob. of the squirrel. Obs.

pope'less, adj. See -LESS.

pope'like', adj. See -LIKE. — pope'like', adv.

pope'ling, n. A petty or deputy pope; also, a papist. Obs.

pop'e·lote, n. [Cf. POPLET.] Darling; poppet. Obs.

Pope Night. See POPE DAY.

pope'ship, n. See -SHIP.

pop'ess (pōp'ĕs; -ĭs; 119), n. Fem. of POPE; specif., = POPE JOAN, 1.

pop'et, n. Dim. of POPE; — with a play on poppet. Obs.

pop'et. † POPPET.

popet, popetishe, popetly, popetry. † PUPPET, etc.

pop'i·ty (pōp'ĭ·tĭ), v. t. To make popish. Obs.

popil. † POPPLE.

popilion. † POPULEON.

pop'it. Var. of POPPET.

Pop'kin, n. Dim. of ROBERT. Obs.

pop'lard. Poplared. Ref. Sp.

pople. Var. of POPPLE.

po'ple·man, n. [G. popelmann, pöpelmann.] A kind of hobgoblin. Obs. [of APOPLEXY. Obs.] poplesie, poplexie. Apheltic form pop'let, n. [Cf. OF. poupelet baby, darling.] A wench. Obs.

pop'li·tae'al, pop'li·tae'us. Vars. of POPLITEAL, POPLITEUS.

pop'lol'ly, n. = POPLET. Rare.

pop'par'. Dial. var. of PAPAW.

pop'pel, pop'ple, n. = POPLAR, 1. Dial.

pop'per cake. = POPADAM.

pop'per·ing, n. [From Poperinghe, in Belgium.] A kind of pear. Obs.

pop'pi·cock', Poppycock. R. S.

popping crease. See 2d CRICKET.

pop'pld. Poppled. Ref. Sp.

---

pop'py·head' (pŏp'ĭ·hĕd'), n. 1. Lit., the head of the poppy. 2. Arch., Furniture, etc. A raised ornament often in the form of a finial. It is generally used on the tops of the upright ends or elbows terminating seats, etc., in Gothic churches.

Poppyhead, 2.

poppy mallow. Any plant of the genus Callirrhoë, esp. the showy cultivated species.

poppy oil. = POPPY-SEED OIL.

poppy red. A color, yellowish-red in hue, of very high saturation and medium brilliance. Cf. COLOR.

poppy seed. The seed of the poppy, esp. of the opium poppy. It is used as a food, esp. in bakery products, and is the chief source of poppy-seed oil. Cf. 6th MAW.

pop'py-seed', or poppy, oil. A fixed drying oil obtained from the seeds of the opium poppy. If expressed in the cold, it is colorless or pale yellow (white poppy-seed oil) and is used as a salad oil and in cooking; if expressed with the aid of heat, it is dark-colored and inferior (red poppy-seed oil) and is used in paints and soap and for burning.

poppy show. [Dial. var. of PUPPET SHOW.] A puppet show or peep show. Chiefly Dial.

poppy thistle. Prickly poppy.

poppy tree. = TREE POPPY b.

poppy water. A soporific infusion made from poppies and used as a beverage.

pop'py·wort' (pŏp'ĭ·wûrt'), n. Any plant of the poppy family.

pop safety valve. See SAFETY VALVE.

pop'shop' (pŏp'shŏp'), n. A pawnshop. Slang, Brit.

pop'u·lace (pŏp'ū·lĭs; -lās), n. [F., fr. It. popolaccio, populazzo, fr. popolo people, fr. L. populus. See POPULAR.] a The common people; the masses, as distinguished from those having rank, wealth, or position.

To . . . calm the peers and please the populace. Daniel.

b The inhabitants or people collectively; as, the populace of a city.

pop'u·lar (-lĕr), adj. [L. popularis, fr. populus people; cf. F. populaire. See PEOPLE.] 1. Public. Now Rare. 2. a Of or pertaining to the common people, or the whole body of the people as distinguished from a select portion; as, the popular voice; popular estimation, government. "So the popular vote inclines." Milton. b Constituted or carried on by the people; as, a popular election.

3. Suitable to common people or the public in general; as: a Easy to understand; familiar; plain. "Homilies are plain and popular instructions." Hooker. b Adapted to the means of the generality of people; possessed or obtainable by the many; hence, cheap; sometimes, inferior; as, popular prices; popular amusements.

4. Having general currency; as, a popular aphorism; prevalent; as, a popular error.

5. Beloved or approved by the people; pleasing to people in general, or to many; as, a popular leader, law; popular music, song.

6. Originating from among the people; as, a popular ballad.

7. Obs. a Plebeian; vulgar. b Devoted to, or studious of the favor of, the populace. c Populous; crowded. d Epidemic; as, a popular disease.

Syn. — Proletarian; simple, lay, nontechnical; favorite, well-liked. Cf. COMMON.

Ant. — Elect.; patrician, aristocratic; recondite, abstruse; technical; exclusive; limited; disliked.

—pop'u·lar·ly, adv. — pop'u·lar·ness, n.

pop'u·lar (pŏp'ū·lĕr), n. a Obs. [F. populaire.] The populace; — often in pl. b Colloq. A popular concert; a pop.

popular action. Law. An action to recover a penalty given by a statute to anyone who sues for it. See QUI TAM.

popular concert. A popular-priced concert, often one of a series of such given by a symphony orchestra or the like; also, a concert of popular music.

[pop'u·la'res (pŏp'ū·lā'rēz; 79), n. pl. [L.] The people, or people's party, in ancient Rome, as opposed to the optimates.

popular etymology. = FOLK ETYMOLOGY.

popular initiative. Switzerland. The form of initiative by which, on the demand of 50,000 voters, a revision of the Constitution may be secured by a direct popular vote.

pop'u·lar·ism (pŏp'ū·lĕr·ĭz'm), n. a A vulgarism. b Democratic principles or movement.

Pop'u·lar·ist (-ĭst), n. a A Democrat. b One of the Popolari.

pop'u·lar'i·ty (pŏp'ū·lăr'ĭ·tĭ), n. [F. popularité, fr. L. popularitas fellow-citizenship, an effort to please the people.] 1. Democracy as a principle or a form of government. Obs.

2. Act or means of currying favor with the populace. Obs.

3. Quality or state of being popular; the manifest approval or esteem of many persons or the people in general; as, the popularity of a law, a statesman, or a book.

4. The speech of ordinary men; the vernacular. Obs.

5. Obs. a Populousness. b Populace.

—the popularity. The common people; populace. Obs.

pop'u·lar·ize (pŏp'ū·lĕr·īz), v. t.; -IZED (-īzd); -IZ'ING (-īz'ĭng). To make popular; specif.: a To extend to, or vest in, the public at large; to democratize; as, to popularize the suffrage. b To present (a subject) in a form intelligible or interesting to those not specialists or trained thinkers; as, to popularize science or law. — v. i. To cater to popular taste. — pop'u·lar·i·za'tion (-ĭ·zā'shŭn; -ĭ·zā'shŭn), n. — pop'u·lar·iz'er (pŏp'ū·lĕr·īz'ĕr), n.

popular Latin. Vulgar Latin.

Popular party. Ital. Politics. See POPOLARI.

pop'u·lar–priced' (-prĭst'; 66), adj. Sold at or costing a popular price.

popular psychology. See PSYCHOLOGY, 1.

popular sovereignty. a In general, sovereignty vested in the people as a body. b U. S. Hist. The doctrine, held before the Civil War, that Congress should leave the people of the Territories as well as the States free to regulate their domestic concerns in their own way, subject only to the Constitution of the United States, and specif. that in regard to slavery a Territory should be on the same basis as a State, that is, should have the right to decide whether or not slavery should exist in it. Called squatter sovereignty by its opponents. See KANSAS-NEBRASKA ACT. c U. S. Govt. In recent usage, the doctrine that neither Congress nor the States are sovereign, but that the people by Constitutional amendment may limit the action of either.

pop'u·late (pŏp'ū·lāt), adj. [ML. populatus, past part.] Populous; peopled. Obs.

pop'u·late (pŏp'ū·lāt), v. t.; -LAT'ED (-lāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -LAT'ING (-lāt'ĭng). [ML. populatus, past part. of populare, fr. L. populus people.] To inhabit or furnish with inhabitants; to people. — v. i. To propagate; to become populous. Rare.

pop'u·late, v. t. [L. populatus, past part. of populari.] To ravage. Obs. — pop'u·la'tion (-lā'shŭn), n. Obs.

pop'u·la'tion (-lā'shŭn) n. [LL. populatio; cf. F. population.] 1. An inhabited place. Obs.

2. The whole number of people or inhabitants in a country, section, or area; as a population of ten millions; also, now rarely, density of population; populousness.

3. Act or process of populating; as, to encourage population of colonies.

4. The body of inhabitants of a given locality; as, a floating population; an enthusiastic population.

5. Biol. The organisms, collectively, inhabiting an area or region; as, the bacterial population of a pond.

6. Statistics. A group of individual persons, objects, or items; specif., in biometry, the entire group of organisms, from which samples are taken for measurement.

—pop'u·la'tion·al (-lā'shŭn·ăl; -'l), adj.

pop'u·la'tion·ist (-ĭst), n. An advocate of population control, esp. of Malthusianism. — -la'tion·is'tic (-ĭs'tĭk), adj.

pop'u·la'tor (pŏp'ū·lā'tĕr), n. A person who populates, or a cause of increase in population.

pop'u·le'on (-lē'ŏn), n. [OF. (F. populéum), fr. L. populeus of poplars.] An ointment containing an extract of black-poplar buds. Obs.

pop'u·li·cide (pŏp'ū·lĭ·sīd), n. [L. populus people + -cide.] Slaughter of the people. Rare.

pop'u·lin (pŏp'ū·lĭn), n. [F. populine, fr. L. populus poplar.] Chem. A sweet, white, crystalline glucoside, $C_{20}H_{22}O_8$, in aspen bark and leaves. It is a benzoyl derivative of salicin.

Pop'u·lism (pŏp'ū·lĭz'm), n. U. S. Politics. The political doctrines advocated by the People's party.

Pop'u·list (-lĭst), n. [L. populus people + -ist.] a U. S. Politics. A member of the People's party (which see). b A member of a political party of similar character, as in Russia or Italy. — Pop'u·list, Pop'u·lis'tic (-lĭs'tĭk), adj.

pop'u·lous (pŏp'ū·lŭs), adj. [L. populosus, fr. populus people.] 1. Abounding in people; full of inhabitants; thickly inhabited.

2. Rare. a Large in number; numerous. "Your populous troops." Shak. b Popular; of the people.

3. Abounding; rich in instances; filled; crowded. "The insane elements Are populous with wild portents." Shelley.

— pop'u·lous·ly, adv. — pop'u·lous·ness, n.

Pop'u·lus (pŏp'ū·lŭs), n. [L., poplar. See POPLAR.] Bot. A genus of trees, the poplars (family Salicaceae), natives of the Northern Hemisphere. They are distinguished from Salix by the resinous buds, numerous stamens, incised bracts, and elongated stigmas. The majority of the species are well known in cultivation; the most important are: the aspens P. tremula and P. tremuloides; the white poplar, or abele (P. alba); the balm of Gilead (P. candicans); the tacamahac, or balsam poplar (P. tacamahaca); the Lombardy poplar (P. nigra italica); and the cottonwood P. balsamifera. See the above names, also POPLAR.

Po·pul' Vuh' (pō·pōōl' vōō'), n. [Quiche Popol Vuh Book of the Community fr. popol community (fr. pop to assemble in council, as n., mat on which the chiefs sat) + vuh, uuh, paper, book, fr. uoch to write.] The title of a book on the mythology and history of the Quiches. It is an important source of knowledge of Mayan culture. It was written by native scribes, in the Quiche language, in Latin characters, in the 17th century, reproducing, in large part at least, a lost pre-Columbian original written in hieroglyphics. Cf. BOOKS OF CHILAM BALAM.

pop'-up', adj. That pops up or upward, as the valve of a waste drain, when opened by moving a controlling device. — n. Something that pops up; specif., Baseball, = POP FLY.

pop valve. A pop safety valve.

pop'weed' (pŏp'wēd'), n. A common bladderwort (Utricularia vulgaris) of Europe.

-pora. [NL.] Zool. & Paleontol. A combining form from Greek poros, meaning a passage, pore, used chiefly in generic names, as in Cellepora, Heliopora, Millepora.

por'al (pôr'ăl; 181), adj. Of or pertaining to pores. Rare.

por'bea'gle (pôr'bē'g'l), n. [Perh. fr. F. porc hog (see PORK) + E. beagle.] A viviparous shark (Lamna nasus, syn. cornubica) of the North Atlantic and Pacific oceans, having a pointed nose and a crescent-shaped tail. It reaches a length of about eight feet, and is noted for its voracity.

Porbeagle. (1/10)

por'cate (pôr'kăt), por'cat·ed (-kāt·ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. [L. porca ridge between two furrows.] Zool. Having furrows broader than the intervening ridges.

por'ce·lain (pôr'sĕ·lĭn; pôrs'lĭn; 277), n. [F. porcelaine, fr. It. porcellana, orig., the porcelain shell, or Venus shell, fr. porcello a pig, fr. L. porcellus, dim. of porcus hog; — the shell has the shape of a pig's back, and a surface like porcelain. See PORK.] A fine ware differing from ordinary pottery in being translucent and in its superior whiteness, hardness, and sonority; — called also china, or chinaware. Also, chiefly in pl., an article of this ware. Porcelain has been made in China for many centuries, but successful attempts to imitate it in Europe date from about 1470. Natural, or hard-paste, porcelain is made from kaolin and pegmatite (Cornish stone, petuntse), the latter being the fusible substance which imparts the translucency. In the manufacture of hard porcelain the body and glaze are brought to maturity at one and the same firing. Artificial, or soft-paste, porcelain is a result of European efforts to imitate the hard porcelain of the East. In its composition various materials, as gypsum, bone ash, etc., replace wholly or in part the materials of the hard porcelain. Aluminous oxide of lead is used in the glaze. There are two firings, the second of which vitrifies the glaze. Soft-paste porcelain requires less heat in firing than does hard porcelain; it is also softer, and of duller fracture. All grades of porcelain, from very hard to very soft, are now made. A very hard porcelain, consisting of kaolin, quartz, feldspar, and various metallic oxides for coloring, is used by dentists in artificial teeth and crowns, and for inlays.

por'ce·lain, adj. Of, pertaining to, or made of, porcelain.

porcelain ampelopsis. A handsome woody vine (Ampelopsis brevipedunculata) of eastern Asia, with blue or lilac porcelainlike berries.

porcelain blue. A color, green-blue in hue, of low saturation and medium brilliance. Cf. COLOR.

porcelain cement. A substance, as equal parts of guttapercha and shellac mixed at a gentle heat, for causing porcelain (or crockery) to adhere to porcelain (or crockery). The mixture is applied hot to edges previously warmed.

porcelain clay. = KAOLIN.

porcelain crab. Any crab of the genus Porcellana or an allied genus (family Porcellanidae), many of which have a smooth, porcelaneous carapace.

porcelain glass. = CRYOLITE GLASS.

porcelain green. A color, bluish-green in hue, of low saturation and medium brilliance. Cf. COLOR.

por'ce·lain·ize (pôr'sĕ·lĭn·īz; pôrs'lĭn-), v. t. To bake like potter's clay; to convert into porcelain. — por'ce·lain·i·za'tion (-ĭ·zā'shŭn; -ĭ·zā'-), n.

porcelain jasper. Porcelainite resembling jasper.

por'ce·lain·like', adj. See -LIKE.

porcelain maker, making. See MAKER, MAKING. — por'ce·lain–mak'ing, adj.

por'ce·lain·ous (pôr'sĕ·lĭn·ŭs; pôrs'-), adj. Porcelaneous.

porcelain paper. A kind of French fancy glazed paper.

porcelain shell. A cowrie.

porcelain stone. = CHINA STONE a.

porcelain tokens. Pieces of porcelain used in Siam as money (c. 1850–1871), of varying shapes, colors, and values; — called pi in Siamese.

Porcelain Tower. A celebrated pagoda at Nanking, destroyed in 1856. It was faced with slabs of green-glazed porcelain.

por'ce·la'ne·ous, por'cel·la'ne·ous (pôr'sĕ·lā'nē·ŭs; 159), adj. Of, pertaining to, or like, porcelain; specif., Zool., designating the calcareous shells of certain Foraminifera which are opaque and without small perforations.

por'ce·lan'ic, por'cel·lan'ic (pôr'sĕ·lăn'ĭk; 181), adj. Resembling porcelain; — said of certain rocks.

por'ce·la·nite, por'cel·la·nite (pôr'sĕ·lā·nīt; pôr·sĕl'ā·nīt), n. [G. porzellanit, fr. porzellan porcelain.] Petrog. A baked or semivitrified clay or shale, light in color, and resembling earthenware, porcelain, or jasper.

por'ce·la·nous, por'cel·la·nous (pôr'sĕ·lā·nŭs; pôr·sĕl'ā·nŭs), adj. Porcelaneous.

por'cel·la'ni·an (pôr'sĕ·lā'nĭ·ăn; 159), por'cel·lan'id (-lăn'ĭd), adj. Zool. Of or pertaining to Porcellana or the Porcellanidae. — n. One of the Porcellanidae; a porcelain crab.

por'cel·la·nize (pôr'sĕ·lā·nīz; pôr·sĕl'ā-), v. t. To porcelainize.

porch (pôrch; 181), n. [ME. porche, fr. OF. porche, fr. L. porticus, prob. fr. portus entrance, door, harbor. See FORD; cf. PORTAL, PORTICO.] 1. Arch. A covered entrance to a building, rarely an interior vestibule, more commonly a structure, enclosed in part, projecting out from the main wall and having a separate roof. It may be large enough to serve as a covered walk. See also CARRIAGE PORCH, LOGGIA.

Wooden Church Porch, 15th Century.

2. A portico; covered walk; colonnade. Obs.

Repair to Pompey's porch, where you shall find us. Shak.

3. A transept or side chapel. N. of Eng.

4. A veranda; as, a screened porch. Chiefly U. S.

5. An entrance; vestibule; a place of waiting before entering; a passage.

Through the porch and inlet of each sense. Milton.

☞ PHRASES are:

porch chair	porch railing	porch seat
porch hammock	porch rocker	porch settee porch lamp	porch screen	porch swing

— the Porch. A portico or colonnade, adorned with fresco paintings of the battle of Marathon, in Athens, where Zeno, the philosopher, taught his disciples; hence, sometimes, the school or philosophy of the Stoics.

porch climber. A second-story thief. Slang, U. S.

porched (pôrcht; 181), adj. Having or resembling a porch.

porch'ing, adj. Protruding as a porch. Rare.

por'cine (pôr'sĭn; -sīn; 156), adj. [F., fr. L. porcinus, fr. porcus a swine. See PORK.] Of, pertaining to, characteristic of, or like, swine. "Porcine cheeks." G. Eliot.

por'cu·pine (pôr'kū·pīn), n.; pl. -PINES (-pĭnz), sometimes -PINE. See PLURAL, Note. [ME. porkepyn, fr. OF. & Pr. porc espin (cf. OF. porc espi, F. porcépic, It. porca spino), fr. L. porcus swine + a derivative of spina thorn, spine. See PORK; SPINE.] 1. Any of certain large, or rather large, rodents having stiff, sharp erectile spines mingled with their hair, which readily become detached, but cannot be shot out voluntarily. The porcupines constitute the families Hystricidae, which are terrestrial and confined to the Old World, and Erethizontidae, of arboreal habits, confined to the New World. Hystrix cristata of southern Europe and northern Africa has spines often more than a foot long. The Canada porcupine (Erethizon dorsatus) of northeastern America is about two feet long and has sharp barbed spines from one to two inches long mostly concealed by coarse white and black hair. It feeds chiefly on bark and leaves. A similar species (E. epixanthus) of northwestern America has yellowish hair. Small arboreal porcupines of the genus Coendou inhabit South and Central America and have a prehensile tail. See BRUSH-TAILED PORCUPINE.

1/20

Common European Porcupine (Hystrix cristata).

2. Any of several devices (or machines with such devices) having projecting teeth or knives, as a contrivance for heckling fibers, or a kind of masher used in brewing.

---

pop'py·like', adj. See -LIKE.

popt. Popped. Rif. Sp.

pop'-the-whip', n. = CRACK-THE-WHIP.

pop'u·la·cy, n. Populace; democracy; populousness; also, popular government. Obs.

pop'u·la'tion·less. See -LESS.

pop'u·los'i·ty (pŏp'ū·lŏs'ĭ·tĭ), n. Populousness. Obs.

[pop'u·lus vult de'ci·pi, er'go de'ci·pi·a'tur (pŏp'ū·lŭs, dē'sĭ·pī, dē'sĭ·pĭ·ā'tŭr). [L.] The populace wishes to be deceived, therefore let it be deceived.

po·quo'sin. Var. of POCOSIN.

por. Var. of PORR, n. & v.

porail, poraille, n. [OF. porraille. See POOR.] The poor. Obs.

Po·ra'tha (pō·rā'thd; pōr'd·thd). Bib.

Por'cel·la'na (pôr'sĕ'lā'nd), n., pl. [NL.] See PORCELAIN CRAB.

Por'cel·lan'i·dae (-lăn'ĭ·dē), n. [L., little female pig.] See PYGMY HOG.

porch'less, adj. See -LESS.

porch'like', adj. See -LIKE.

Por'ci·us (pôr'shĭ·ŭs; -sĭ·ŭs). Bib.

Por'cu·la (pôr'kū·ld), n. [L., por'cu·pine (pôr'kū·pīn), adj. Resembling or suggesting the projecting quills or spines of a porcupine.

por'cu·pine, v. t. To make like a porcupine or its spines; to prick or cause to prick like porcupine spines.

porcupine anteater. An echidna.

porcupine beater, cylinder, roller, etc. Textile Mfg. Various cylinders or rollers studded with inserted wire pins or teeth, covered with card clothing, or consisting of a number of beater blades secured to disks, etc., used for various purposes.

porcupine boiler. Steam Engin. A boiler with a central drum and radiating tubes.

porcupine crab. A spiny Japanese crab (Lithodes hystrix).

porcupine disease. Ichthyosis.

porcupine fish. Any of certain globefishes of the family Diodontidae, esp. those of the genus Diodon, in which the body is short and rounded, the spines long and thickly strewn, some of them being movable, and the teeth of each jaw fused into an undivided beak. D. hystrix and D. holacanthus are common in warm seas.

porcupine grass. a A tall, stout grass (Stipa spartea) of the western United States. The grains have long hygroscopic awns, and by their twisting and untwisting often penetrate the wool and even the flesh of sheep. The plant affords good forage and hay. b = SPINIFEX, 2.

Porcupine Grass a. a Whole Plant; b Spikelet.

porcupine man. A man having porcupine disease.

porcupine rat. A South American rodent of the genus Loncheres, having flattened spines in its fur.

porcupine wood. The outer wood of the coconut palm; — from the resemblance of its markings to porcupine quills.

por'cu·pin'ish (pôr'kū·pīn'ĭsh), adj. Like a porcupine or its spines.

pore (pōr; 181), v. [ME. pouren, puren, of uncert. origin.] Intransitive: 1. To gaze intently or fixedly; to look searchingly; to stare.

> His listless length at noontide would he stretch
> And pore upon the brook that babbles by. Gray.

2. To read with profound attention; to be absorbed in study; — chiefly with over; as, to pore over books all day.

3. To reflect deeply and continuously; to ponder; — with on, upon, etc.; as, to pore on the mysteries of nature.

4. To make an inspection at close range, as or like one near-sighted; as, eyes that pore and pry.

—, Transitive: To affect by poring; as, to pore oneself blind.

pore, n. Act or instance of poring.

pore (pōr; 181), n. [F., pore, OF. porre, fr. L. porus, fr. Gr. poros a passage, a pore. See FARE, v.] 1. A minute opening or foramen, or orifice, esp. in an animal or vegetable membrane, for transpiration, absorption, etc.; as, the pores of the sweat glands.

2. In stone, etc., a small interstice admitting absorption or passage of liquid; hence, these interstices collectively, as indicative of density; as, a mineral's fine pore.

3. A small passage in a body. Obs.

4. One of countless minute darkish dots mottling the sun. — at, in, or through, every pore. At, in, or through every point of one's being capable of absorbing, as knowledge, or of exuding, or expressing, as feeling.

> To smart and agonize at ev'ry pore. Pope.

-pore (-pōr). Zool. A combining form, from Greek poros, an opening, denoting an opening, especially of a duct of the body to the outside, as in atrio*pore,* blasto*pore,* nephridio*pore.* The New Latin plural -pora is used in Zool. & Paleontol., in classificational names.

pore (pōr). Var. of POOR, PORE. Now Dial.

pored (pōrd; 181), adj. Provided with pores.

pore fungus or mushroom. Any fungus (families Polyporaceae and Boletaceae) disting. by having the spore-bearing surface within tubes or pores; a polypore.

Po·rel'la (pō·rĕl'ȧ), n. [NL., dim. fr. L. porus passage, channel in the body.] Bot. A genus of the leafy liverworts (family Jungermanniaceae) having distinct and entire under leaves and with lingulate to oblong lobules. Syn. Madotheca.

po·ren'ce·pha'li·a (pō·rĕn'sĕ·fā'lĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. Gr. poros passage + enkephalos brain.] Med. A state marked by cystlike depressions in the brain surfaces, which open into the arachnoid spaces or the ventricles. It is usually due to arrested development. — po·ren'ce·phal'ic (pō·rĕn'sĕ·făl'ĭk), po'ren·ceph'a·lous (pō'rĕn·sĕf'ȧ·lŭs), adj.

po'ren·ceph'a·li'tis (pō'rĕn·sĕf'ȧ·lī'tĭs; 181), n. [NL. See 2d PORO-.] Med. Encephalitis with the development of cavities in the brain substance.

po'ren·ceph'a·lon (-sĕf'ȧ·lŏn), n. Also po'ren·ceph'a·ly (-sĕf'ȧ·lĭ), n. Porencephalia.

po'ren·ceph'a·lus (-sĕf'ȧ·lŭs), n. [NL.] Porencephalia.

por'er (pōr'ẽr; 181), n. One who pores.

porge (pôrj; 181), v. t. [Judaeo-Sp. porgar, Sp. purgar, fr. L. purgare. See PURGE.] To make (kosher meat) ceremonially clean by cutting from it the forbidden fat and veins. See Lev. iii. 3, 4; vii. 25–27; Gen. xxxii. 32. — porg'er (pôr'jẽr; 181), n.

por'gy (pôr'gĭ), n.; pl. -GIES (-gĭz), sometimes -GY. See PLURAL, Note. [Partly fr. PARGO, and partly var. of paugie.] 1. a A food fish (Pagrus pagrus), family Sparidae, called red porgy, of the Mediterranean and the Atlantic coasts of Europe and America, supposed to be the pagrus of the ancients. It has a compressed oblong body, strong teeth in both jaws, and is crimson with blue spots. b By extension, any of various related fishes of the genus Pagrus and family Sparidae, as the scup, pinfish Diplodus holbrooki, etc. Cf. GRASS PORGY.

2. Any of various unrelated fishes; as: a The margate fish. b The spadefish Chaetodipterus faber, or three-tailed porgy. c Any of several surf fishes (family Embiotocidae) of the Pacific coast of America. d The menhaden.

Po'ri·a (pō'rĭ·ȧ; 181), n. [NL., fr Gr. poros pore.] Bot. A genus of pore fungi (family Polyporaceae) having flat or crustlike sporophores. P. incrassata causes a dry rot of lumber and building timbers. See TUCKAHOE.

po'ri·cid'al (pō'rĭ·sīd'ăl), adj. [pore + L. caedere to cut.] Bot. Dehiscing through pores, as poppy capsules.

Po·rif'er·a (pō·rĭf'ẽr·ȧ), n. pl. [NL., fr. L. porus pore + ferre to bear.] Zool. A phylum (sometimes considered a class) constituted by the sponges. See SPONGE.

po·rif'er·al (pō·rĭf'ẽr·ăl), adj. Zool. Poriferous.

po·rif'er·an (-ăn), n. Zool. One of the Porifera. — adj. Poriferous.

po·rif'er·ous (pō·rĭf'ẽr·ŭs), adj. [See PORIFERA.] a Provided with pores. b Zool. Of or pertaining to the Porifera.

po'ri·form (pō'rĭ·fôrm; 181), adj. [L. porus pore + -form.] Resembling a pore.

por'i·ness (pōr'ĭ·nĕs; -nĭs; 119; 181), n. Porosity; also, Rare, pore.

po'rism (pō'rĭz'm; 181), n. [ML. porisma, fr. Gr. porisma a thing procured, a deduction from a demonstration, fr. porizein to bring, provide, fr. poros. See PORE, n.] Geom. a A proposition affirming the possibility of finding such conditions as will render a certain problem indeterminate, or capable of innumerable solutions. Three books of porisms of Euclid have been lost. b Gr. Geom. A corollary.

po'ris·mat'ic (pō'rĭz·măt'ĭk; 181), -mat'i·cal (-ĭ·kăl), adj. Poristic. — po'ris·mat'i·cal·ly, adv.

po·ris'tic (pō·rĭs'tĭk), po·ris'ti·cal (-tĭ·kăl), adj. [Gr. poristikos for providing.] Relating to, or of the nature of, a porism.

Po·ri'tes (pō·rī'tēz), n. [NL., fr. Gr. poros a pore.] Zool. An important genus of reef-building corals having small twelve-rayed calicles and a very porous coral. Some are branched; others grow in large massive or globular forms. It is the type of a family, Po·rit'i·dae (pō·rĭt'ĭ·dē). — po'rite (pō'rĭt; 181), n. — po·ri'toid (pō·rī'toid), adj.

pork (pôrk; 181), n. [ME., fr. OF. porc, L. porcus hog, pig. See FARROW pig; cf. PORCELAIN, PORCUPINE, PORPOISE.] 1. The flesh of swine, fresh or salted, used for food; specif., salt pork.

2. A swine; a hog. Now Rare.

3. A rude, ignorant person.

4. Money, position, or favors for a district, obtained from the government, usually the Federal government, as a result of political patronage, rather than as a due reward or as payment for merit or services rendered. Cf. PORK BARREL, U. S. Political Slang.

☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:

pork chop	pork packer
pork eater	pork packing
pork-eating, adj.	pork pie

Cuts of Pork. 1, 1 Hind Feet; 2, 2 Hams; 3, 3 Pork Loins; 4, 4 Clear Bellies; 5, 5 Spare Ribs; 6 Brisket; 7, 7 Picnics; 8 Shoulder, New York Style; 9, 9 Jowl Butts; 10, 10 Forefeet; 11 Leaf Fat; 12 Loin Butt.

pork (pôrk), interj. & v. i. [Imitative.] Croak; — said of ravens. Obs.

pork barrel. A fund of money appropriated from the Federal treasury, as for improving rivers and harbors, erecting public buildings, etc., regarded as appropriated more for local patronage than to make needed improvements. U. S. Political Slang. — pork'-bar'rel, adj.

pork butcher. One who butchers pigs; also, one who deals in pork and pork products.

pork'er (pôr'kẽr; 181), n. 1. A hog; swine; esp., a young pig fattened for food.

2. A sword or long knife. Obs. Slang.

pork'er·y (pôr'kẽr·ĭ; 181), n.; pl. -IES (-ĭz). A pork butcher's shop; also, swine.

pork'et (pôr'kĕt; -kĭt; 119; 181), n. [OF. porquet, porchet, dim. of porc. See PORK.] A pig; now, Dial., = PORKER, 1.

pork'fish' (pôrk'fĭsh'; 181), n.; pl -FISH, -FISHES (-fĭsh'ĕz; -ĭz; 119). See PLURAL, Note. Zool. A black, yellow-striped grunt (Anisotremus virginicus), family Haemulidae, of the West Indies and vicinity.

Porkfish.

pork'ish (pôr'kĭsh), adj. Swinish.

Pork·op'o·lis (pôrk·ŏp'ō·lĭs; 181), n. [pork + Gr. polis city.] Cincinnati, Ohio, or Chicago, Ill.; — the former often and the latter rarely so called from their great pork-packing industry.

pork tapeworm. = ARMED TAPEWORM. pork'y (pôr'kĭ; 181), adj.; PORK'I·ER (-kĭ·ẽr); PORK'I·EST. Of, pert. to, or characteristic of, pork; specif., fat; greasy.

por'ky (pôr'kĭ), n.; pl. -KIES (-kĭz). A porcupine. Colloq., U. S.

por'ne·ras'tic (pôr'nē·răs'tĭk), adj. [Gr. pornē harlot + eran to love. See PORNOGRAPHY.] Unchaste; licentious.

por·noc'ra·cy (pôr·nŏk'rȧ·sĭ), n. [Gr. pornē harlot + -cracy.] Government by profligate women; specif., the ascendancy of a profligate noblewoman named Theodora and her daughters in Rome early in the 10th century. — por'no·crat (pôr'nō·krăt), n.

por'no·graph (pôr'nō·grăf; 83), n. Rare. a A pornographic work. b [F. pornographe.] A pornographer.

por·nog'ra·pher (pôr·nŏg'rȧ·fẽr), n. A writer on prostitutes or prostitution; hence, a pornographic writer, painter, etc.

por'no·graph'ic (pôr'nō·grăf'ĭk), adj. Of, pertaining to, or of the nature of, pornography; dealing with obscene or licentious life or themes; as, a pornographic artist or novel. — por'no·graph'i·cal·ly (-ĭ·kăl·ĭ), adv.

Syn. and Ant. — Cf. LEWD.

por·nog'ra·phist (pôr·nŏg'rȧ·fĭst), n. A pornographer.

por·nog'ra·phy (pôr·nŏg'rȧ·fĭ), n. [Gr. pornē harlot + -graphy. See PAIR.] 1. Description or portrayal of prostitutes or prostitution.

2. Obscene or licentious writing, painting, or the like.

por'no·log'i·cal (pôr'nō·lŏj'ĭ·kăl), adj. [Gr. pornē harlot + -logical.] Interested in pornography; also, suggestive in speech, etc. Rare.

Po'ro (pō'rō), n. A native secret society in Sierra Leone, having only men as members. Bundu is an affiliated society.

po'ro- (pō'rō-; pŏr'ō-; 181). A combining form, Greek pōro-, from pōros, meaning soft stone, callus, as in porodine.

poro-. A combining form, from Greek poros, meaning a pore, as in porogamy.

po'ro·dine (pō'rō·dĭn), n. [Gr. pōrōdēs like tufa.] Petrog. An amorphous mineral or a rock which has solidified from a colloidal condition and separated from the accompanying amorphous glass, as opal schist.

po'ro·dite (-dīt), n. [See PORODINE.] Petrog. Any altered brecciated form of volcanic tuff.

po·rog'a·mous (pō·rŏg'ȧ·mŭs), adj. Porogamic.

po·rog'a·my (pō·rŏg'ȧ·mĭ), n. [2d poro- + -gamy.] Bot. The usual mode of fertilization in seed plants, by entrance of the pollen tube through the micropyle. Cf. CHALAZOGAMY. — po'ro·gam'ic (pō'rō·găm'ĭk; pŏr'ō-; 181). adj. — po'ro·gam (pō'rō·găm; pŏr'ō-; 181), n.

po'ro·ker'a·to'sis (pō'rō·kĕr'ȧ·tō'sĭs; pŏr'ō-), n. [NL., fr 2d poro- + keratosis.] Med. A chronic disease of the skin affecting the orifices of the sweat ducts, characterized by the presence of slightly elevated warty lesions which spread at the periphery and heal at the center with atrophy.

Po'ro·ko·to' (pō'rōō·kōō·tō'; Pg. pōō'-), n. An Indian of a Cariban tribe formerly dwelling at the headwaters of the Rio Branco in northern Brazil. The few survivors have now joined the Macusis.

po·ro'ma (pō·rō'mȧ), n.; pl. -MAS (-mȧz), -MATA (-mȧ·tȧ). [NL., fr. Gr. pōroma callus.] Med. a Callus. b An exostosis. c Any inflammatory hardening.

po·rom'e·ter (pō·rŏm'ē·tẽr), n. [2d poro- + -meter.] a An instrument to measure the relative sizes of fine pores in terms of the rate at which gas streams through them under a constant pressure or with a definite range of pressure. b Plant Physiol. An instrument for measuring the area of the stomatal openings of a leaf, as by drawing air through a portion of a leaf.

po'ro·phyl'lous (pō'rō·fĭl'ŭs; pŏr'ō-; 181), adj. [2d poro- + -phyllous.] Having leaves covered with transparent dots.

po'ro·plas'tic (-plăs'tĭk), adj. Surg. Both porous and plastic; — said of a kind of felt used for splints, jackets, etc.

po'ro·po'ro (pō'rō·pō'rō), n. [Maori.] The kangaroo apple. New Zealand.

po'ro·ro'ca (pō'rō·rō'kȧ; Pg. pōō'rōō·rō'kȧ), n. [Pg.] Phys. Geog. The tidal bore at the mouth of the Amazon.

po'ros (pō'rŏs; 181), n. [Gr. pōros.] A kind of coarse limestone found in the Peloponnesus and extensively used as a building material by the ancient Greeks.

po'ro·scope (pō'rō·skōp; pŏr'ō-), n. [2d poro- + -scope.] An instrument: a To test porosity. b To examine pores. — po'ro·scop'ic (-skŏp'ĭk), adj. — po·ros'co·py (pō·rŏs'kō·pĭ), n.

po'rose (pō'rōs; pō·rōs'; see -OSE), adj. a Porous. b Zool. Pertaining to the Porosa. — po·rose'ness, n.

po'ros·im'e·ter (pō'rōs·ĭm'ē·tẽr), n. [porosity + -meter.] Physical Chem. An instrument for measuring porosity.

po·ro'sis (pō·rō'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. pōrōsis.] Med. The formation of callus.

po·ro'sis, n. [From porous.] A condition, as of an organ-like bone, characterized by porosity, esp. increased porosity.

po·ros'i·ty (pō·rŏs'ĭ·tĭ), n.; pl. -TIES (-tĭz). [ML. porositas; cf. F. porosité.] 1. Quality or state of being porous; specif., the ratio of the volume of interstices of the material to the volume of its mass.

2. Something that is porous; also, a pore.

po·rot'ic (pō·rŏt'ĭk), adj. [Gr. pōros callus.] Promoting the formation of callus. — n. A medicine favoring the formation of callus.

po'ro·type (pō'rō·tīp; pŏr'ō-; 181), n. [See PORE, n.; -TYPE.] A copy of a print, writing, etc., made by placing it on a chemically prepared paper acted on by a gas permeating the paper of the print, writing, etc., except where inked.

po'rous (pō'rŭs; 181), adj. [Cf. F. poreux. See PORE, n.] Full of pores; hence, capable of absorbing moisture; permeable by liquids. In ring-porous wood the annual rings are distinct in cross section and the pores are visible without magnifier; in diffuse-porous wood the rings are distinct and the pores are not visible without magnifier. — po'rous·ly, adv. — po'rous·ness, n.

porous cell or cup. A cylindrical vessel of porous earthenware used in an electrical cell to keep two liquids from mixing intimately.

porous plaster. Med. A spread plaster having numerous small holes to prevent wrinkling.

por'pen·tine (pôr'pĕn·tĭn), n. Porcupine. Shak.

Por'phy·ra (pôr'fĭ·rȧ; often pôr·fī'rȧ), n. [NL., fr. Gr. porphyra purple.] Bot. A genus of red algae (family Bangiaceae) with thin gelatinous red or purple fronds. They furnish the edible red laver.

por'phy·ra'ceous (pôr'fĭ·rā'shŭs), adj. 1. Porphyritic. R.

2. Bot. Of or pertaining to algae of the genus Porphyra or related forms.

por'phy·ra·tin (pôr'fĭ·rȧ·tĭn), n. [porphyrin + hematin.] Biochem. Any of the complex compounds of porphyrins with metals, as hematin.

Por·phyr'e·an (pôr·fĭr'ē·ăn), Por·phyr'i·an (-ĭ·ăn), adj. Of or pert. to the Neoplatonist Porphyry (c. 233–c. 304) or his writings or doctrines. See TREE OF PORPHYRY.

por·phyr'i·an (pôr·fĭr'ĭ·ăn), adj. Of porphyry. Rare.

Por·phyr'i·an, n. An adherent of Porphyry or of his doctrines. — Por·phyr'i·an·ist (-ĭst), n.

por'phy·rin (pôr'fĭ·rĭn; by some pôr·fĭr'ĭn), n. [From hemato*porphyrin.*] Biochem. Any of a group of iron-free or magnesium-free tetra-pyrrole derivatives that form the basis of the respiratory pigments of plants and animals. They are obtained from chlorophyll or hemoglobin.

por'phy·rine (-rĭn), n. Porphyry. Obs.

por'phy·rine (-rēn; -rĭn; 157), n. Also -rin. [Gr. porphyra purple + -ine.] Chem. & Pharm. An alkaloid, $C_{21}H_{24}N_2O_3$, obtained as a white amorphous powder from the bark of an Australian tree (Alstonia constricta), and used as an antipyretic.

por'phy·ri·nu'ri·a (pôr'fĭ·rĭ·nū'rĭ·ȧ), n. [NL. See -URIA.] Med. The presence of porphyrin in the urine.

Por·phyr'i·o (pôr·fĭr'ĭ·ō), n. [NL., fr. L. porphyrio a kind of water fowl, fr. Gr. porphyriōn water hen.] Zool. a The genus consisting of the Old World purple gallinules, or sultanas. b [not cap.] A bird of this genus.

por·phyr'i·on (pôr·fĭr'ĭ·ŏn), n. [Gr. porphyriōn.] The vulture. Lev. xi. 18 (D. Bib.).

por'phy·rite (pôr'fĭ·rīt), n. [L. porphyrites a purple-colored precious stone, porphyry, fr. Gr. porphyritēs (lithos). See PORPHYRY.] Petrog. a The red porphyry of Egypt, as mentioned by Pliny (Book liv, 36). b A quartz-free porphyry whose feldspar is plagioclase.

pore. † POUR, POWER, PURE. pore'like', adj. See -LIKE.
poret, porett. † PORRET. por'ĭ·rit'e, por'ĭ·ry. Porphyritic, porphyry. Ref. Sp.
porturie. † PORPHYRY. por'gee. Var of PORGY. por'ing, pres. part. & verbal n. of PORE. — por'ing·ly, adv.
po'ri·o·ma'ni·a (pō'rĭ·ō·mā'nĭ·ȧ; 181), n. [NL., fr. Gr. poreia walking + -mania.] Psychopathol. = FUGUE, 2. — po'ri·o·ma'nic (-mă'nĭk; -măn'ĭk), adj. pork'in, n. A young pig. Obs. pork'less, adj. See -LESS. pork'ling, n. Dim. of PORK, 2 & 3. pork'man, n. = PORK BUTCHER. pork'pen. † PORCUPINE. pork'wood', n. = BLOLLY a.
Po'ro·ceph'a·lus (pō'rō·sĕf'ȧ·lŭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. poros blind + -cephalus.] See LINGUATULIDA. po'ro·ka'i·whi'ri·a (pō'rō·kā'ē·hwē'rē·ȧ), n. = KAIWHIRIA.
Por'phy·ra'ce·ae (pôr'fĭ·rā'sē·ē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Gr. porphyra purple. See PORPHYRA.] Syn. of porphyra. † PORPHYRY.

por'phy·rit'ic (pôr'fĭ·rĭt'ĭk), adj. 1. Of or pertaining to porphyry; as, a porphyritic column.
2. Petrog. Relating to, or resembling, porphyry, i.e., characterized by the presence of distinct crystals (phenocrysts), as of feldspar, quartz, or augite, in a relatively fine-grained base (groundmass), often aphanitic, cryptocrystalline, or glassy.

porphyritic granite. Petrog. Granite containing feldspar in crystals strikingly larger than the remaining constituents of the rock.

por'phy·ro·blast' (pôr'fĭ·rō·blăst'), n. [Gr. porphyra purple + -blast.] Petrog. A pseudoporphyritic crystal in a metamorphic rock. — por'phy·ro·blas'tic (-blăs'-tĭk), adj.

por'phy·ro·gene' (-jēn'), adj. [See PORPHYROGENITISM.] Being a porphyrogenite; born in the purple; royal-born.

por'phy·rog'e·nite (pôr'fĭ·rŏj'ē·nīt), por'phy·ro·gen'i·tus (-rō·jĕn'ĭ·tŭs), n. [ML. porphyro genitus born in the purple, fr. LGr. porphyrogennētos (cf. L. genitus born), fr. porphyra purple + gennētos begotten.] A son born after the accession of his father to the throne; one born in the purple. Obs. exc. in Latin form.

In the Greek, purple and porphyry are the same word. An apartment of the Byzantine was lined with porphyry: it was reserved for the use of the pregnant empresses: and the royal birth of their children was expressed by the appellation of porphyrogenite, or born in the purple. Gibbon.

por'phy·ro·ge·nit'ic (pôr'fĭ·rō·jē·nĭt'ĭk), adj. Of royal birth.

por'phy·ro·gen'i·tism (pôr'fĭ·rō·jĕn'ĭ·tĭz'm), n. [See PORPHYROGENITE.] The principle of succession in royal families, esp. among the Eastern Roman emperors, by which a younger son, if born after the accession of his father to the throne, was preferred to an elder son not so born.

por'phy·ro·gen'i·ture (-jĕn'ĭ·tûr), n. State or position of being a porphyrogenite.

por'phy·roid (pôr'fĭ·roid), n. [porphyry + -oid.] Petrog. A more or less schistose, metamorphic rock with porphyritic texture. It may be an altered rock, either igneous or sedimentary.

por'phy·ro·phore' (pôr'fĭ·rō·fōr'; 181), n. [Gr. porphyra purple + -phore.] Zool. A red or purplish pigment cell or chromatophore.

por'phy·rous (pôr'fĭ·rŭs), adj. [Gr. porphyros.] Purple. R. Bridges.

por'phy·ry (pôr'fĭ·rĭ), n.; pl. -RIES (-rĭz). [OF. porfire (F. porphyre), fr. It. porfiro, fr. ML. porphyreus, fr. Gr. porphyreos or porphyros, adj., purple, porphyra, n., purple. See PURPLE; cf. PORPHYRITE.] 1. Petrog. a Orig., a rock consisting of feldspar crystals embedded in a compact dark-red or purple groundmass. It is found in Egypt, and was much used by the Romans. Cf. PORPHYRITE. b Now, commonly, any igneous rock of similar (porphyritic) texture, regardless of its mineral composition. c An igneous rock containing two generations of the same mineral, the minerals of one generation usually being distinctly larger than those of the other. d Sometimes incorrectly used by miners and prospectors for any of various igneous rocks without this texture, when occurring in connection with ores.
2. A slab or block of porphyry; esp., one used for triturating drugs, etc. Obs.
3. Mining. Short for PORPHYRY COPPER; — usually in pl. Western U. S.

porphyry chamber. A porphyry-lined chamber. See Cit. under PORPHYROGENITE.

porphyry copper. Mining. A large low-grade disseminated copper deposit. Western U. S.

porphyry shell. A handsome marine univalve shell (Oliva porphyria) having a dark-red or brown polished surface, with light spots.

Por'pi·ta (pôr'pĭ·tȧ), n. [NL., fr. Gr. porpē a brooch.] Zool. A genus of bright-colored Siphonophora found floating in the warmer parts of the ocean. They have a large feeding zooid in the center, surrounded by smaller nutritive and reproductive zooids, and by slender dactylozooids near the margin. The disc has a central float, or pneumatocyst. — por'pi·toid (-toid), adj.

Porpita (P. linnaeana). (½) por'poise (pôr'pŭs), n.; pl. -POISES (-ĕz; -ĭz; 119), sometimes -POISE. See PLURAL, Note. [ME. porpoys, porpeys, fr. OF. porpeis, porpois, lit., hog fish, fr. L. porcus swine + piscis fish. See PORK; FISH. Cf. GRAMPUS.] a Any small gregarious cetacean of the genus Phocaena; esp., the common, or harbor, porpoise (P. phocaena) of the North Atlantic and Pacific. They are five to eight feet long and usually blackish above and whitish below. The jaws do not form a projecting beak. b Any of various other small-toothed cetaceans, esp. those with a short beak, as of the genus Cephalorhynchus of the Southern Hemisphere. c Popularly, the common dolphin; or, esp. on the American Atlantic Coast, the bottle-nosed dolphin (see DOLPHIN).

por'poise, v. i. To move or plunge like a porpoise.

porpoise oil. See OIL, Table II.

porpoise whale. A New Zealand ziphioid whale (Berardius arnuxii).

por'po·rate (pôr'pō·rāt), adj. [It. porporato, fr. L. purpuratus. See PURPLE, n.] Clad in purple. Browning.

porr (pôr; pŏr), v. t. & i. [Cf. D. porren.] To push; poke; kick; stir; cram. — n. A push; thrust; poke; kick; also, a poker. Both Now Dial.

por·ra'ceous (pō·rā'shŭs), adj. [L. porraceus, fr. porrum, porrus, a leek.] Resembling the leek in color; leak-green.

por·rect' (pō·rĕkt'), adj. [L. porrectus, past part. of porrigere to stretch out before oneself, to put forth.] Extended horizontally; stretched out.

por·rect' (pō·rĕkt'), v. t. a To extend horizontally. b Obs. exc. Eccl. Law. To present; tender. — por·rec'tion (-rĕk'shŭn), n.

por'ret (pôr'ĕt; -ĭt; 119), n. [OF. poret, porete, dim. fr. L. porrum, porrus, leek.] a Now Dial. Scallion; leek; small onion. b Obs. Garlic. c Rare. = LEEKGREEN b.

por'ridge (pôr'ĭj; 57), n. [From pottage; prob. influenced by ME. porree a kind of pottage, fr. OF. porrée, fr. L. porrum, porrus, leek. See POTTAGE; cf. PORRINGER.] 1. A soup of meat and vegetables thickened with barley, or the like. Obs.
2. A food made by boiling some leguminous or farinaceous substance in water or milk, making a broth or thin pudding; as, barley porridge, milk porridge, pease porridge.
3. Something as mixed or as glutinous as porridge; a hodgepodge.

por'ridge, v. t. To provide with porridge. — v. i. To form or become porridge.

por'ridg·y (pôr'ĭj·ĭ), adj. Of or like porridge.

por·ri'go (pō·rī'gō), n. [L., dandruff.] Med. Any of various diseases of the scalp leading to scaling or loss of hair. — por·rig'i·nous (pō·rĭj'ĭ·nŭs), adj.

por'rin·ger (pôr'ĭn·jĕr), n. [Earlier pottanger, with intrusive n, for pottager, fr. F. potager a soup basin. See PORRIDGE, POTTAGE.] 1. A dish for porridge or similar food; esp., a bowl or cup from which children eat or are fed; as, a silver porringer.
2. A hat or other headdress shaped like a porringer. Rare.

Por'ro prism (pôr'rō). [After I. Porro, Italian engineer.] An optical device which inverts and reverses right and left an image which is viewed through it. It consists usually of a pair of isosceles right-angled prisms so arranged that a beam of light entering the hypotenuse face of one is totally reflected twice before emerging at the same face and entering the second prism at its hypotenuse face, the double reflection being repeated within the second prism. The Porro prism makes possible a shortening of the physical length of the instrument in which it is used. See PRISM BINOCULAR.

por'ry (pôr'ĭ; colloq. pŭr'ĭ), n. Silk Weaving. In a loom, the warp between the reed and the beam. Local, Eng.

pors-. For various forms beginning pors-, see those in PURS-.

Por'se·na, Lars (lärz' pôr'sē·nȧ). A possibly legendary king of the Etruscan Clusium, who conquered Rome after the expulsion of Tarquin. He is the subject of several legends told by Livy, Tacitus, and Pliny, and of a poem by Macaulay.

port (pôrt; 181), n. [From Oporto, now Porto, Portugal, i.e., o porto the port, fr. L. portus. See PORT harbor.] 1. A fortified wine of rich taste and aroma, made in the valley of the Douro, Portugal, and shipped from Oporto. It is strong, containing 18–23 per cent of alcohol by volume. Most port is dark red, but there is a white variety. Port, when bottled early and matured in bottle, is known as vintage port. When kept in cask and blended with port of various vintages, it loses some color, acquires a brownish tinge, and is known as tawny port. Port matured in wood but not long enough to become tawny in color, is known as ruby port. Also, a wine like or suggesting the above but made elsewhere, as in California.
2. A color, bluish-red in hue, of low saturation and very low brilliance. Cf. COLOR.

port (pôrt; 181), n. [ME., fr. AS. port (fr. L.) and fr. OF. port, fr. L. portus. See FORD; cf. 1st, 4th, & 5th PORT, OPPORTUNITY.] 1. A place where ships may ride secure from storms; a harbor; haven.
2. Haven; refuge; also, goal; end in view; destination.

Me . . . Always from port withheld, always distressed. Cowper.

3. Com. A place to which vessels may resort for purposes of commerce, esp. to discharge or receive their cargoes. In this sense the word port varies in its significance with the context. It primarily and normally refers to a haven or harbor, but may be used to denote any place to or from which merchandise may be shipped, as a mere landing place (10 Johns. 120, 125; 3 Dak. 155). It may include the entire geographical harbor, with its approaches and inlets, of a place, as in the port of Boston (9 Metcalf, Mass. 371, 378), or the port of New York (53 Fed. 835), or a contemplated place in a geographical harbor (20 Fed. 510, 515).
4. Early Eng. Hist. A place, often a borough, under a special protection or peace for use as a market place.
5. Revenue Law. Short for PORT OF ENTRY.

Syn. — See HARBOR.

-port (-pôrt). A combining form of 2d port, as in air*port*, pass*port*; — often used as a suffix in place names, as in New*port*, Bridge*port*.

port (pôrt; 181), v. t. To make port at; also, to bring to port. Obs.

port (pôrt; 181), n. [ME. porte, port, fr. OF. porte, fr. L. porta; akin to L. portus harbor. See PORT harbor; cf. PORTAL, PORTE.] 1. A gate; portal. Now Chiefly Scot.
2. A market for hiring of laborers, usually near the port, or gate, of a town. Hist., Scot.
3. Bowls & Curling. An opening or passageway between two bowls or stones.
4. Harness. An upward curve or tongue groove in the mouthpiece of certain bits to put the pressure on the sensitive bars.
5. Mach. An opening for inlet or outlet of air, gas, steam, water, or other fluid, esp. in a valve seat or valve face; specif., the area of opening, in a cylinder face, of a passageway for the working fluid in an engine; also, any such passageway connecting the cylinder with the cylinder face, or the latter with the exhaust.

Port of Bit. 1, 1 Cheeks; 2, 2 Legs; 3, 3 Cannons; 4 Heels; 5 Port.

6. Naut. An opening in a ship's side for any purpose, as to admit light and air, load cargo, etc.; specif., an embrasure through which cannon may be discharged; a porthole; also, the shutter or cover for a porthole.

port (pôrt; 181), v. t.; PORT'ED; PORT'ING. [OF. porter, fr. L. portare to carry; akin to E. fare, v. See FARE; cf. PORT harbor, COMPORT, DEPORT, EXPORT, PURPORT, REPORT, SPORT.] 1. To carry; transport. Obs.
2. Mil. To carry in a position sloping across the body from right to left, as a rifle, saber, etc., the exact position varying according to the arm and service. See Illust.

Port, 2.

port, n. [OF., fr. porter to carry. See PORT to carry.] 1. The manner in which a person bears himself; carriage; bearing; demeanor; sometimes, specif., impressive or dignified bearing; also, figuratively, purport.

Of his port as meek as is a maid. Chaucer.

2. Manner or style of living; specif., impressive or costly style of living. Now Rare.

A suitable port in the world. South.

3. Obs. a A retinue; body of attendants. b Act, means, or cost, of carrying; carriage. c Weight; burden; also, distress.
4. Armor. A socket for the butt of a lance, attached to the stirrup or saddle. Obs.
5. Candle Making. A frame from which wicks are hung.
6. Mil. The position in which a weapon is carried when ported.

Syn. — See DEPORTMENT.

port (pôrt; 181), n. [From 2d or 4th PORT.] Naut. The left side of a ship (looking from the stern toward the bow); as, a vessel heels to port. See LARBOARD, Note.

port, adj. Larboard.

port, v. t. Naut. To turn or put to the left, or port, side of a ship; — used mainly of the helm and in the imperative. — v. i. Naut. To turn or move toward the port, or left; also, to port the helm.

port (pôrt; 181), n. A tune with or without instrumental accompaniment. Scot.

port, n. [From aport, APPORT.] Income; rental; tribute. Obs.

port-. An Anglicized form of PORTE-.

por'ta (pôr'tȧ), n.; pl. -TAE (-tē). [L., a gate.] Anat. A hilum; specif., the transverse fissure of the liver, or por'ta hep'a·tis (hĕp'ȧ·tĭs).

port'a·bil'i·ty (pôr'tȧ·bĭl'ĭ·tĭ; 181), n. Quality or state of being portable; fitness to be carried or moved.

port'a·ble (pôr'tȧ·b'l; 181), adj. [F., fr. LL. portabilis, fr. portare to carry. See PORT to carry.] 1. Capable of being borne or carried; easily or conveniently transported; not stationary, fixed, or too cumbersome to be moved; as, a portable typewriter, telephone, house, or engine; portable property; specif., adapted to being carried on expeditions, as a solidified liquid, or liquefied gas; as, food in portable form.
2. Rare. a Supportable; tolerable. "How light and portable my pain seems now!" Shak. b Navigable. c Easily carried in the memory. d Easily communicated.

Syn. — Movable. Ant. — Stationary, fixed, immovable. — port'a·ble·ness, n. — port'a·bly, adv.

port'a·ble, n. Anything portable; specif.: a A portable house or schoolhouse. b A portable typewriter, lamp, telephone instrument, or the like.

portable engine. See ENGINE, n., 5 f.

portable firearm. Mil. a Any firearm that can be borne and fired by one man, without the use of a carriage. b Loosely, any weapon, however transported, whose mobility is equal to that of the troops which it accompanies.

portable range. See 2d RANGE, 4.

por'tage (pôr'tĭj; 181), n. [F. See PORT to carry.] 1. Act of carrying or transporting.
2. Archaic. a Anything transported, as cargo; freight. b The cost of carriage; porterage. c Capacity for carrying; tonnage.
3. The carrying of boats, goods, etc., overland between navigable waters; also, the land or the route over which they are so carried; as, a rough portage. See CARRY, n., 4.
4. Naut. a Formerly, cargo carried for a sailor joining in a common adventure, in lieu of all or part of his wages, or the space allotted for such cargo. b Hence, the amount of a sailor's wages.

por'tage (pôr'tĭj), v. t. & i. To make a portage of (goods, etc.).

port'age (pôr'tĭj), n. [From 4th PORT.] Porthole. Obs.

Por'tage for·ma'tion (pôr'tĭj; 181). [From the township of Portage in New York.] Geol. A formation of shales and sandstones, of the American Upper Devonian.

por'ta·gue (pôr'tȧ·gū; 181), n. [See PORTUGUESE.] An obsolete Portuguese gold coin of the 16th century, variously estimated as worth from 3½ to 4½ pounds sterling.

por'tal (pôr'tăl; -t'l; 181), n. [OF. (F. portail), fr. ML. portale, prop., neut. adj., fr. L. porta a gate. See PORT gate.] 1. A door, gate, or entrance, esp. one that is grand and imposing.
2. Arch. a Erroneously, the lesser gate, where there are two of different dimensions. b Formerly, in a room, a corner separated by wainscoting, forming a short passage to another room. c The whole architectural composition surrounding and including the doorways and porches of a church. d In Spanish American architecture, any porch or large roofed architectural opening.
3. a Bridge Building. The space, at either end, between the first two principal trusses in a trussed bridge. b In modern steel-cage building, any vertical space between two uprights included between two horizontals, as of floor and ceiling, which must be kept open for free communication.

Syn. — See DOOR.

por'tal (pôr'tăl; -t'l; 181), adj. Anat. a Designating the transverse fissure on the under side of the liver where most of the vessels enter. b Hence, designating, or pertaining to, a large vein (portal vein) carrying the blood from the digestive organs and spleen to the liver, in the tissues of which it breaks up into capillaries, thus subjecting the nutritive matter carried by the blood to the action of the liver cells before it passes into the general circulation. (See LIVER, I.) In man it is formed by the union of the superior and inferior mesenteric, and the splenic, gastric, and cystic veins, and enters the liver at the transverse fissure. These veins constitute the portal system, and the circulation through them the portal circulation. In many lower vertebrates (reptiles, amphibians, and most fishes), in addition to the hepatic portal system as described above, there is a renal portal system, some or most of the blood from the posterior part of the body being conveyed by renal portal veins to the kidneys, where these veins break up into capillaries.

por'taled, por'talled (pôr'tăld; -t'ld; 181), adj. Furnished with a portal or portals.

por'ta·men'to (pôr'tȧ·mĕn'tō), n.; pl. -TI (-tē). [It., fr. portare to carry.] Music. a The passage from one tone to another in a continuous glide through all the intervening tones, — an effect used in music for the voice or for viol instruments. b Demilegato; — an incorrect use.

port'ance (pôr'tăns; 181), n. [OF., a carrying.] Port; carriage; demeanor. Archaic.

Port Ar'thur plum (pôrt är'thĕr). [From Port Arthur, Tasmania.] An Australasian timber tree (Buchanania mangoides), family Anacardiaceae; also, its plumlike fruit. It has close-grained, pinkish wood.

por'tass, por'tas (pôr'tăs), n. Also port'hors (pôrt'hôrs), port'house (-hous'), etc. [ME. portous, porthors, fr. OF. porte-hors a kind of portable prayer book, fr. porter to carry + hors out of doors, fr. L. foris; cf. ML. portiforium.] a A medieval breviary or prayer book. b Rare. A manual. c Scots Law. = PORTEOUS.

por'ta·tile (pôr'tȧ·tĭl; -tīl; 155), adj. Portable; — now only of an altar.

por'ta·tive (-tȧ·tĭv), adj. [OF. portatif.] 1. Portable. Archaic.
2. Capable of holding or carrying; as, the portative force of a magnet, atmospheric pressure, or capillarity.

por'ta·tive, n. A portable; esp., a portative organ.

portative organ. Music. A small portable organ formerly used in processions.

por·ta'tor, n. A bearer; messenger; carrier. Obs.

Port Authority. a Short for Port of London Authority, a corporate body established in 1908 to control the port and docks of London. b Short for Port of New York Authority, a commission created in 1921 by the legislatures of the States of New York and New Jersey and approved by Congress. It has to do principally with the co-ordinating of all rail and water traffic into and around New York, esp. the construction of bridges between Manhattan and Staten Islands and New Jersey.

port bar. Naut. a A boom of spars, chains, or the like, stretched across the entrance to a port or harbor. b A bar, as of sand, at the mouth of, or in, a port.

port captain. Naut. An official of a steamship line responsible for its ships during their stay in port.

port charge. Com. Any fixed charge, as wharfage, etc., against a ship or its cargo in port; — chiefly in pl.

port'cray'on (pôrt'krā'ŏn; 181), n. [F. porte-crayon, fr. porter to carry + crayon a crayon.] A metallic handle with a clasp for holding a crayon.

Portcrayon.

port-cul'lis (pôrt-kŭl'ĭs; 181), n. [OF. porte coleïce (fem. of coleïz) a sliding door, fr. L. colare, colatum, to filter, to strain; cf. F. couler to glide. See PORT a gate; cf. 1st & 2d CULLIS.] 1. Fort. A grating of iron, or of heavy timbers pointed with iron, hung in or over the gateway of a fortress or castle, and usually running in grooves, to be let down to prevent entrance.

2. Her. a A representation of a portcullis used as a charge; also, a lattice. b [cap.] One of the pursuivants.

3. A portcullis halfpenny issued in 1599. See PORTCULLIS MONEY.

Portcullis. A Chain by which the Portcullis is raised; B Chains by which the Counterpoises CC are connected with the Portcullis D.

port-cul'lis, v. t.; -CUL'LISED (-ĭst); -CUL'LIS-ING. To furnish or close with or as with a portcullis; to shut; bar.

portcullis money or coins. English silver coins of the reign of Elizabeth, struck for the East India Company, having a figure of a portcullis on the reverse.

port differential. Transportation. A differential (see DIFFERENTIAL, 2) allowed on certain shipments, esp. of grain, between inland points and ocean ports, usually determined upon the rate of a basing point.

port duty. = PORT CHARGE.

Porte (pôrt; 181), n. [F. porte gate. See PORT gate.] Formerly, the Ottoman court; the government of the Turkish empire, officially called the Sublime Porte, from the gate (port) of the sultan's palace at which justice was anciently administered.

porte-. [F., fr. porter to carry. See 5th PORT.] A combining form signifying a thing used as bearer, holder, or carrier, as in *porte*acid.

porte'ac'id (pôrt'ăs'ĭd), n. Med. An instrument used to hold acid for local application.

‖porte'-bon'heur' (pôrt'bô'nŭr'), n. [F.] An amulet or charm, esp. a jewel to be worn for good luck.

‖porte'-caus'tique' (-kôs'tēk'), n. [F.] Med. A contrivance for carrying lunar caustic.

porte'-co-chere' (pôrt'kō-shâr'; F. pôrt'kō'shâr'; 181), n. [F. porte-cochère. See PORT gate; COACH.] 1. Arch. A large gateway allowing vehicles to drive into a courtyard. The entrance door commonly opens on the passage of the porte-cochere.

2. A carriage porch (which see). U. S.

port'ed (pôr'tĕd; -tĭd; 119; 181), adj. a Provided with a port or ports; specif., shut in or closed by a port or gate. b Mil. Held in the position of port; — said of arms.

‖porte'feuille' (pôrt'fū'y'), n. [F.] A portfolio.

Port Eg'mont hen (ĕg'mŏnt). [From Port Egmont, Falkland Islands.] A large skua (Catharacta skua antarctica) of the Southern Hemisphere.

porte'lig'a-ture, port'lig'a-ture (pôrt'lĭg'ȧ-tûr), n. [See PORTE-.] Surg. An instrument used for applying a deep ligature.

‖porte'-lu'mière' (pôrt'lü'myâr'), n. [F., fr. porter to carry + lumière a light.] Physics. A plane mirror mounted like a heliostat, but without clockwork, which will cast a beam of light, usually sunlight, in any direction.

‖porte'-mon'naie' (pôrt'mō'nē'; Anglicized pôrt'mŭn'ĭ), n. [F., fr. porter to carry + monnaie money.] A small pocketbook or purse.

por-tend' (pôr-tĕnd'; pôr-; 181), v. t.; -TEND'ED; -TEND'ING. [L. portendere, portentum, to foretell, to predict, to impend, fr. an old preposition used in comp. (akin to L. per, pro) + tendere to stretch. See FOR; TEND.] 1. To give an anticipatory sign, warning, or threat of; to foreshow; foretoken; bode.

Many signs portended a dark and stormy day. Macaulay.

2. To foretell; prophesy; predict. Now Rare.

3. To signify; symbolize; mean. Obs. Shak.

4. [OF. portendre, fr. L. protendere.] To stretch out before; extend. Rare. "Idomeneus' portended steel." Pope.

Syn. — Betoken, forebode, augur, presage. See FORETELL.

por-tend'ance (-tĕn'dȧns), n. Ominous significance; a forewarning. Rare.

por-ten'sion (pôr-tĕn'shŭn), n. Portention. Sir T. Browne.

por'tent (pôr'tĕnt; or, esp. Brit., pôr'tĕnt, pôr'-; 181), n. [L. portentum. See PORTEND.] 1. A significant prodigy of nature; an omen; a sign; now, usually, an event, situation, or the like, which presages evil; a forewarning.

These are portents; but yet I hope, . . . They do not point on me. Shak.

2. Prophetic character or significance; ominous meaning; as, an event of dire or happy portent.

3. A wonderful person or thing; a prodigy; a marvel.

All one couch Of crassitude, a portent of its kind. Browning.

por-ten'tion (pôr-tĕn'shŭn), n. [ML. portentio.] A portent or threat. Rare.

por-ten'tive (-tĭv), adj. Portending; portentous. Obs.

por'ten-tos'i-ty (pôr'tĕn-tŏs'ĭ-tĭ; 181), n. The character or fact of being portentous.

por-ten'tous (pôr-tĕn'tŭs), adj. [L. portentosus.] 1. Of the nature of, or containing, a portent; ominous; as, a portentous comet or situation; portentous significance. "The storm's portentous pause." Shelley.

2. Loosely, monstrous; prodigious; wonderful; as, a beast of portentous size. "Portentous ability." Burke.

3. Grave; solemn; impressive; significant; — of persons, their actions, words, etc. "People . . . witty or portentous as the occasion demanded." Mary Austin.

Syn. and Ant. — See OMINOUS.

— por-ten'tous-ly, adv. — por-ten'tous-ness, n.

por'te-ous (pôr'tē-ŭs), n. [See PORTASS c.] Scots Law. A roll of offenders formerly prepared by the Justice Clerk; — now usually called porteous roll. Hist.

por'ter (pôr'tĕr; 181), n. [OF. portier, fr. LL. portarius, fr. porta gate, door. See PORT gate.] One in charge of a door or gate; a doorkeeper; as, the porter of a monastery or castle; specif., Eccl., = OSTIARY, 1.

por'ter, n. [OF. porteour (F. porteur), fr. LL. portator, fr. portare to carry. See PORT to carry.] 1. A carrier; one who carries or conveys burdens, luggage, etc., for hire; now, esp., one employed to carry baggage or luggage of guests or patrons at hotels, railroad stations, etc.

2. One that carries or conveys anything; as, a porter of ill news; a porter of disease. Now Rare.

3. An attendant who makes up Pullman-car berths and waits upon passengers. U. S.

4. [That is, a liquor for porters.] A weak stout, rich in saccharine matter and containing about four per cent of alcohol, — originally a mixture of ale and stout.

5. A device for lifting, as a lever. Obs.

6. Agric. Mach. A light carriage, usually with three wheels, for keeping the rope off the ground in the direct and roundabout systems of working implements or machines by hauling engines.

7. Forging. A bar of iron or steel at the end of which a forging is made.

8. Weaving. A beer. Scot.

por'ter, v. t. To transport or carry as or by a porter. — v. i. To act as a porter.

por'ter-age (pôr'tĕr-ĭj; 181), n. The occupation or duties of a porter, doorkeeper or carrier; specif.: a Carriage of burdens or parcels by or as by a porter; also, the charge for it. b Portage (sense 3).

por'ter-house' (pôr'tĕr-hous'; 181), n. 1. A house where porter and other malt liquors formerly were sold. It was often also a chophouse.

2. A porterhouse steak. Colloq.

porterhouse steak. A choice steak with a large proportion of tenderloin, cut from the thick end of a beef; — said to be so called because this steak was made popular by the proprietor of a former New York porterhouse. Chiefly U. S.

por'ter-ly (pôr'tĕr-lĭ), adj. Pertaining to or like a porter; vulgar. — por'ter-ly, adv. Both Obs.

por'ter's knot (pôr'tĕrz; 181). A shoulder pad, kept in position by a loop round the forehead, and used for carrying heavy loads. Eng.

port'fire' (pôrt'fīr'), n. [After F. porte-feu, fr. porter to carry + feu fire.] A fire carrier; specif.: a A paper case filled with a composition of niter, sulphur, and mealed powder, used formerly in firing guns. b A kind of slow-burning fuse, as a billet of wood impregnated with saltpeter.

port-fo'li-o (pôrt-fō'lĭ-ō; -fōl'yō; 181), n.; pl. -FOLIOS (-ōz; -yōz). [It. portafoglio, portafogli, fr. portare to carry + foglio, pl. fogli, leaf, sheet; cf. F. portefeuille. See PORT to carry; FOLIO.] 1. A portable case for keeping, usually without folding, loose papers, prints, drawings, or the like.

2. Such a case used for documents of state; hence, the office and functions of a minister of state or member of the cabinet; as, to receive the portfolio of war. See MINISTER WITHOUT PORTFOLIO.

3. A list of the commercial paper and securities owned, esp. by a bank or an investment trust.

4. Advertising. a A collection of advertisements from one concern placed loosely in a cover or folder. b A series of advertising proofs mounted on sheets and bound in some convenient form for display.

port'glaive', port'glave' (pôrt'glāv'), n. [F. porte-glaive, fr. porter to carry + glaive a sword.] Literally, a sword bearer; one of the Livonian religious order of knights, c. 1204–37 (later a division of the Teutonic order), called Ensiferi, or Sword-bearers, from the red sword-shaped cloth sewn on their left shoulders. Hist.

port'grave' (-grāv'), port'greve' (-grēv'), n. [AS. portgerēfa; but the ending is due to confusion with a D. word (cf. -GRAVE).] = PORTREEVE.

Por-thet'ri-a (pôr-thĕt'rĭ-ȧ), n. [NL., fr. Gr. porthētōr destroyer, ravager.] Zool. The genus of Lymantriidae including the gypsy moth (P. dispar). Syn. Ocneria.

Por'the-us (pôr'thē-ŭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. porthein to ravage.] Paleontol. A genus of large Cretaceous isospondylous fishes. P. molossus of Nebraska is notable for its great size and strong teeth.

port'hole' (pôrt'hōl'; 181), n. 1. Naut. An opening in a ship's side; a port. See 4th PORT, 6.

2. An opening in a wall or the like; esp., an embrasure or loophole through which to shoot.

3. = 4th PORT, 5. Rare.

port'hook' (-hŏŏk'), n. Naut. One of the iron hooks to which the hinges of a porthole cover are attached.

Por'ti-a (pôr'shĭ-ȧ; -shȧ; 181), n. a Fem. proper name. b A rich heiress in Shakespeare's Merchant of Venice, in love with Bassanio. By her father's will, her hand and fortune were to be given to the suitor who should select from three caskets — one of gold, one of silver, and one of lead — the casket which held her portrait. Bassanio won her by choosing the leaden casket. Afterwards, disguised as a doctor of law, she defended her husband's friend, Antonio, against Shylock's suit, and saved his life.

por'ti-a seed. [Tamil purašu, the tree.] Seed of the bendy tree.

portia tree. The bendy tree.

por'ti-co (pôr'tĭ-kō; 181), n.; pl. -COES or -COS (-kōz). [It., fr. L. porticus. See PORCH.] Arch. A colonnade or covered ambulatory, esp. in classical styles of architecture; usually, a colonnade at the entrance of a building.

— the Portico. = THE PORCH.

Portico.

por'ti-coed (pôr'tĭ-kōd; 181), adj. Having a portico.

por-tiere' (pôr-tyâr'; -tĭ-âr'; F. pôr'tyâr'), n. [F. portière, fr. porte gate. See PORT gate.] A curtain hanging across a doorway.

por-tiered' (-tyârd'; -tĭ-ârd'), adj. Having a portiere.

port'i-fy (pôr'tĭ-fī; 181), v. t. [port, the wine + -fy.] To fortify (oneself) with port or a similar wine. Thackeray.

por'ti-o (pôr'shĭ-ō; -tĭ-ō; 181), n. [L. See PORTION.] Anat. Latin for part, division, or branch; — used in forming names of various nerves, blood vessels, etc.; as, Obs.: por'ti-o du'ra (dū'rȧ), the facial nerve; por'ti-o mol'lis (mŏl'ĭs), the auditory nerve.

por'tion (pôr'shŭn; 181), n. [OF., fr. L. portio; akin to L. pars, partis, a part. See PART, n.] 1. An allotted part, a share; a parcel; a division in a distribution. Specif.: a A share of an estate or the like received by gift or inheritance; a patrimony. "Those plains I had for portion." Browning. b A wife's fortune; a dowry; — often marriage portion. c A share of food; often, a piece or amount regarded as sufficient for one person; a helping; as, this pie will make eight portions.

2. Hence, lot; destiny; fate. "Thy lot, O man, is good, thy portion fair." Wordsworth.

3. The act of apportioning; apportionment. Obs.

4. A part of a whole. Specif.: a A constituent part; as, the larger portion of the population. "Portions of one power, which is one." Shelley. b A part abstracted from a whole; a limited amount or quantity. "Give but that portion which yourself proposed." Shak.

5. [cap.] Jewish Relig. The weekly selection of the Pentateuch read in the synagogue. Cf. PARASHAH.

Syn. — Parcel, quantity, allotment. See PART.

por'tion (pôr'shŭn; 181), v. t.; -TIONED (-shŭnd); -TION-ING. [OF. portionner.] 1. To divide into portions; to distribute in shares.

And portion to his tribes the wide domain. Pope.

2. To allot or give to as a portion; specif., to dower.

Some Fate with pleasure or with strife portion'd us. Keats.

por'tion-a-ble (-ȧ-b'l), adj. a Divisible into portions. b Obs. Proportional.

por'tion-al (-ăl; -'l), adj. Obs. a Partial. b Of the nature of a portion. — por'tion-al-ly, adv.

por'tion-er (-ĕr), n. One who or that which portions or has a portion; as: a Scots Law. The owner of a portion of a decedent's estate; a small laird. b Eccl. = PORTIONIST, 2. c Rare. One who receives a portion. d Any of a number of artificers who contribute distinct portions to a complete article.

por'tion-ist (-ĭst), n. [ML. portionista.] 1. A student in a college who has a certain allowance of food; specif., at Merton College, Oxford, a postmaster. See 2d POSTMASTER.

2. Eccl. Any incumbent of a benefice having two or more rectors or vicars.

por'tion-less (-lĕs; -lĭs; 119), adj. Without a portion; specif., without a dowry or inheritance.

portion natural. Scots Law. A child's legitim.

por'ti-tor (pôr'tĭ-tôr; 181), n. [ML.] A porter or gatekeeper.

Port Jack'son fig (pôrt jăk'sŭn). [From Port Jackson, New South Wales.] An Australian fig (Ficus rubiginosa) resembling the banyan, sometimes planted for ornament and introduced into South Africa for brushwood.

Port Jackson shark. See HETERODONTUS.

Port'land ar'row-root' or sa'go (pôrt'lănd; 181). [From Portland, England.] Arum from the cuckoopint (see ARUM, 2); also, the plant yielding this starch.

Portland beds. [From Isle of Portland, Eng.] A portion of the Upper Oölite (Upper Jurassic) of Great Britain, including Portland stone.

portland cement. A hydraulic cement made by burning and grinding a mixture of calcareous and argillaceous materials such as limestone and clay, limestone and shale, limestone and marl, chalk and clay, limestone and iron blast furnace slag; — so called from the resemblance of concrete made with it to Portland stone (sense a), the name being probably first applied to a cement of this type by an Englishman, Joseph Aspdin, about 1824.

Port-lan'di-an (pôrt-lăn'dĭ-ăn; 181), adj. [From Portland, England.] Geol. Designating the Portland Oölite, a subdivision of the Upper Oölite (European Jurassic). See GEOLOGY, Chart.

Portland stone. a A yellowish-white oölitic building limestone from the Isle of Portland in England. b Purplish-brown sandstone from Portland, Conn.; brownstone. c Concrete made with portland cement, sand, and gravel. d The color light stone.

Portland vase. A cameo glass vase, showing mythological figures in white upon a blue background, found in a tomb near Rome. Its name is derived from its owners, the Portland family, who placed it as a loan in the British Museum, where it is now exhibited. Called also Barberini vase, from having been at first deposited in the Barberini Palace in Rome.

port'last (pôrt'lăst), n. Naut. The portoise. Now Rare.

port'ly (pôrt'lĭ; 181), adj.; PORT'LI-ER (-lĭ-ĕr); PORT'LI-EST. [From PORT demeanor.] Having port; dignified or majestic in appearance; stately; imposing, now esp. on account of bulk; stout; corpulent.

Syn. and Ant. — See STOUT.

— port'li-ly (-lĭ-lĭ), adv. — port'li-ness (pôrt'lĭ-nĕs; -nĭs; 119; 181), n. — port'ly, adv. Rare.

Port Mac-quar'ie pine (măk-kwŏr'ĭ). [From Port Macquarie, New South Wales.] One of the Australian sandarac trees (Callitris macleayana).

port'man (pôrt'măn; 181), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). a An inhabitant or burgess of a port. b = PORTSMAN.

port'man-mote' (-mōt'), n. Also port-man'ni-mote (pôrt-măn'ĭ-mōt). A moot, or assembly, of the portmen, or citizens of a borough. Hist.

port-man'teau (pôrt-măn'tō; 181), n.; pl. -TEAUS (-tōz), -TEAUX (E. -tōz). [F. porte-manteau, fr. porter to carry + manteau a cloak, mantle. See PORT to carry; MANTLE.] 1. A traveling bag or case, usually of leather, originally of a form adapted for use on horseback, but now either a large suitcase or telescope case. Chiefly Brit.

2. A clothes rack; — a Gallicism. Rare.

3. A portmanteau word; hence, a combination of two things with suppression of a part of each.

portmanteau word. A word formed by arbitrary combination of two words so as to suggest something of the sense of each; — so called by Lewis Carroll and applied esp. to seminonsensical coinages (slithy, from slimy and lithe). Cf. CONTAMINATION, 4; BLEND-WORD.

port-man'tle (pôrt-măn't'l), n. A portmanteau. Archaic & Dial.

port'man-tol'o-gism (pôrt'măn-tŏl'ō-jĭz'm), n. A portmanteau word.

port'ment (pôrt'mĕnt), n. [F. portement.] Manner of carrying oneself; bearing. Rare.

port'moot' (-mōōt'), -mote' (-mōt'), n. O. Eng. Law. Moot of a port town.

port'-mouthed', adj. Having a port, or curved mouthpiece.

---

port-can'nons, n. pl. [See CANION. The first part is of uncert. origin.] Canions. Obs.

port'-caus'tic, n. = PORTE-CAUSTIQUE. [CULLIS.]

portclose, portcluse. ✝ PORT-[

‖porte'-cra'yon' (pôrt'krē'yŏn'), n. [F.] = PORTCRAYON.

por'te-gue. ✝ PORTAGUE.

portenance. ✝ PURTENANCE.

por-tend'ment, n. = PORTENDANCE. Rare.

Por'ter-an'thus (pōr'tĕr-ăn'thŭs), n. [NL., after T. C. Porter + -anthus.] Bot. Syn. of GILLENIA.

por'ter-ess. Var. of PORTRESS.

Por'ter, or Por'ter's, gov'er-nor (pôr'tĕrz; 181). See GOVERNOR, n., 5.

por'ter-like', adj. See -LIKE.

por'ter-ship, n. See -SHIP.

portesse. ✝ PORTASS.

port'hors, n. = PORTASS.

Por'thos' (pôr'thŏs'), n. See THREE MUSKETEERS, THE.

port'house', n. = PORTASS. [Obs.] por'ti-cus, n. [L.] A portico.

por'ti-fo'ry (pôr'tĭ-fō'rĭ or, esp. Brit., -fĕr-; 181), n. [ML. portiforium.] = PORTASS a. Rare.

Portingale. ✝ PORTUGAL.

por'tion-ar'y (pôr'shŭn-ĕr'ĭ; -ĕr-ĭ), n. [ML. portionarius.] = PORTIONIST, 2. Obs. exc. Hist.

por'tion-ize, v. t. See -IZE.

por'tise. ✝ PORTASS.

por'ti-to'ry, adj. [ML. portitor a carrier.] Portable. Obs.

port'ledge (pôrt'lĕj), n. Naut. = PORTAGE, 4. Obs. U. S.

port'less, adj. See -LESS.

port'let, n. Dim. of PORT, a harbor.

port'like', adj. Portly. Obs.

port-man'tu-a. ✝ PORTMANTEAU.

port'mouth, n. = 4th PORT, 4. Obs.

---

por'to (pôr'tō), n. Port wine. Rare.

port of call. A port where vessels customarily stop for coal, repairs, transhipment of cargo, etc.

port of destination. Marine Insurance. A port contemplated as a stopping place for a vessel under the terms of a policy.

port of discharge. Insurance Law. Any port where a vessel voluntarily and without cause of necessity breaks bulk and discharges part or all of her cargo.

port of entry. A district or designated locality, whether a nautical port or not, where foreign goods may be cleared through the customhouse.

por'toise (pôr'tĭz), n. Naut. Probably, gunwale; — used only in aportoise or a portoise.

por'to-la'no (pôr'tō-lä'nō), n.; pl. -NOS (-nōz), -NI (-nē). [It., fr. porto harbor.] A book for navigators, containing descriptions of ports, sailing directions, etc., and illustrated with charts.

Por'tor (pôr'tŏr), n., or Portor marble. [From Portovenere, where it is quarried.] A siliceous limestone, black (altering on exposure to grayish), with veins of yellow, from the neighborhood of Spezia, Italy.

Port Or'ford ce'dar (ôr'fĕrd). [From Port Orford, Oregon.] A large evergreen timber tree (Chamaecyparis lawsoniana) of western North America, occasionally with trunk diameters of 12 feet, and often 200 feet high; also, its valuable lumber.

Por'to Ri'co (pôr'tō rē'kō). Puerto Rico (which see). — Por'to Ri'can (-kăn), n. & adj.

port pass. A passport. Obs.

port'payne (pōrt'pān), n. [See PORT-; PAIN bread.] A cloth for carrying bread. Obs.

por'trait (pôr'trāt; -trĭt; 181), n. [F., orig. past part. of portraire to portray. See PORTRAY.] 1. A picture of an object. Obs.

2. Specif., a pictorial representation of a person, esp. of the face, painted, drawn, engraved, photographed, or the like; a likeness, esp. one painted from life.

3. A carved or molded figure; a statue; a sculpture. Obs.

4. Portraiture; esp., painting of persons from or as from life. Rare.

5. A visible representation or likeness; an image; a copy; a similitude; a picture (sense 4). "Where that sad pourtraict Of death and dolour lay, halfe dead." Spenser.

6. Lifelike or realistic representation; unidealized delineation, description, etc.; as, a painting that fails as a portrait; a fair portrait of an age.

por'trait, adj. Of or pertaining to portraits or a portrait; of the nature of a portrait.

por'trait, v. t. To portray. Obs. Sir P. Sidney.

portrait bust or statue. A bust or statue representing the actual features or person of an individual.

por'trait-ist (pôr'trāt-ĭst), n. One who makes, esp. paints, portraits; also, an artist who achieves lifelike representations; as, a great portraitist in bronze.

portrait lens. Photog. A compound lens having a large aperture as compared with the focal length, and hence specially adapted for taking portraits.

por'trai-ture (pôr'trā-tûr; 181), n. [OF.] 1. Act, practice, or art of making portraits; representation by painting, drawing, etc.; portraying; portrayal.

2. a An image or likeness of something; portrait. b A statue or image.

3. Act or art of portraying verbally; verbal representation or description, or an instance of it; a portrait.

4. Appearance; form; likeness; shape. Now Rare.

5. Collectively, pictures, drawings, etc. Obs.

por'trai-ture, v. t. To portray. Now Rare.

por-tray' (pôr-trā'; 181), v.; -TRAYED' (-trād'); -TRAY'ING. [ME. pourtraien, pur-, por-, fr. OF. portraire, pourtraire, fr. L. protrahere, protractum, to draw or drag forth, fr. pro forward, forth + trahere to draw. See PRO-; TRACE. Cf. PROTRACT.] Transitive: 1. To represent by drawing, painting, engraving, etc.; to make a picture or image of; delineate; depict; as, to portray a king on horseback.

Take a tile, . . . and portray upon it the city. Ezek. iv. 1.

2. To describe or depict in words; to describe vividly; also, to represent dramatically; to act.

3. Obs. a To draw, paint, carve, etc. b To adorn with or as with pictures. c To image mentally; to imagine; picture. d To form; frame; fashion.

—, Intransitive: To portray something.

por'tray (pôr'trā; 181), n. Portrayal; portrait. Rare.

por-tray'al (pôr-trā'ăl), n. Act, process, or result of portraying, or representing; description; delineation; a portrait.

por-tray'er (-ĕr), n. Also por-tray'ist. One who portrays.

por-tray'ment (-mĕnt), n. Portrayal. Rare.

port'reeve' (pôrt'rēv'; 181), n. [AS. portgerēfa. See PORT town; REEVE.] Early Eng. Hist. 1. The bailiff or mayor, charged with keeping the peace and other duties in a port (see 2d PORT, 4), or market borough or town.

2. Erroneously, in later times, the chief officer of a seaport town. Oxf. E. D.

— port'reeve'ship, n.

por'tress (pôr'trĕs; -trĭs; 119), por'ter-ess (pôr'tĕr-ĕs; -ĭs), n., fem. of PORTER; specif., a nun who receives visitors to a convent.

port risk insurance. Marine insurance covering a vessel while in port.

Port Roy'al (pôrt roi'ăl; F. pôr'rwà'yàl'), or, in full, Port'-Ro'yal' des Champs' (pôr'rwà'yàl' dā shăn'). A noted Cistercian abbey near Versailles, famous as a center of Jansenism (which see). Hence, Port-roy'al-ist (pôrt-roi'yăl-ĭst), n.

port sa-lut' (pôrt sȧ-lōō'; pôr). [OF. (F. port de salut) port of safety.] Haven; goal. Obs.

port scavenging. Internal-Combustion Engines. See SCAVENGE, v. t., 3.

port'side' (pôrt'sīd'), n. Properly, the left side of a vessel (see 7th PORT); hence, Chiefly Slang, the left side of anything or of a person.

port'sid'er (-sīd'ĕr), n. A left-handed person. Slang, U. S.

ports'man (pôrts'mȧn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). An inhabitant or citizen of any one of the Cinque Ports.

port'so'ken (pôrt'sō'kĕn), n. [See SOKEN.] The jurisdiction of a port or town, or the district over which it had control. Obs.

port tack. See TACK, n., 3 a.

por'tu'gais' (pôr'tū'gā'), n. [F., Portuguese.] The black angelfish.

Por'tu-gal (pôr'tū-găl; 181), n. 1. A country of Europe.

2. Obs. a A Portuguese. b Portuguese (language).

Portugal crakeberry. A heathlike plant (Corema album) of southern Europe, the Azores, and the Canary Islands; also, its white, berrylike fruit.

Portugal laurel. A European evergreen shrub (Laurocerasus lusitanica) with handsome foliage and white flowers.

Por'tu-gee (pôr'tū-gē), n. a Colloq. Portuguese. b Contemptuous. A foreigner; a dago.

Por'tu-guese (pôr'tū-gēz; -gēs), adj. [Cf. F. portugais, Sp. portugués, Pg. portuguez.] Of or pertaining to Portugal, its inhabitants, or their language.

Por'tu-guese, n. 1. sing. & pl. One of the people of Portugal. The Portuguese are short, very dolichocephalic, and dark. They are usually considered as typical representatives of the Iberian branch of the Mediterranean race.

2. The language of Portugal and its possessions, of Brazil, and the Spanish provinces of Galicia. See Romance languages, under ROMANCE, adj., 3; INDO-EUROPEAN LANGUAGES, Table.

3. = MELUNGEON.

4. [not cap.] = PORTAGUE. Obs.

Portuguese cedar. The Goa cedar.

Portuguese cypress. An ornamental Mexican evergreen tree (Cupressus lusitanica) with handsome foliage and pendulous branches. It was long considered a native of southeastern Europe and the Azores.

Portuguese man-of-war. Any of several large siphonophores of the genus Physalia which have a large, bladderlike pneumatophore with a saillike crest on its upper side, by means of which they float at the surface of the sea. At one side of the lower surface is a cluster of zooids, the dactylozooids being very long and like tentacles, the gastrozooids and gonozooids much shorter. They are brilliantly colored, the pneumatophore being pink or purple and blue and the zooids blue. They have powerful nematocysts and are able to sting very severely. P. arethusa lives abundantly in the warm waters of the Gulf of Mexico, and is often carried northward by the Gulf Stream and driven ashore by the wind.

Portuguese Man-of-War (Physalia arethusa). (⅛)

Portuguese man-of-war fish. = MAN-OF-WAR FISH.

Portuguese red. = CARTHAMUS RED.

Portuguese Revolution. See REVOLUTION, Table.

Portuguese sauce. Espagnole sauce flavored with sherry.

Por'tu-la'ca (pôr'tū-lā'kȧ; -lăk'ȧ; cf. def. b; 181), n. [L., purslane.] Bot. a A genus of mainly tropical succulent herbs typifying the family Portulacaceae. They have yellow, pink, red, white, or purple, ephemeral flowers with 4–6 petals and a partly inferior one-celled ovary. P. oleracea is the common purslane. P. grandiflora, the rose moss, is a garden favorite. b (pron. pôr'tū-lăk'ȧ; 181) [not cap.] A plant or flower of this genus.

Por'tu-la-ca'ce-ae (pôr'tū-lȧ-kā'sē-ē), n. pl. [NL. See PORTULACA.] Bot. A family of usually succulent herbs (order Chenopodiales) having perfect, regular flowers with two sepals and 4–5 hypogynous petals. The fruit is a capsule, often circumscissile. Portulaca, Claytonia, and Calandrinia are important genera. — por'tu-la-ca'ceous (-shŭs), adj.

Por'tu-la-ca'ri-a (pôr'tū-lȧ-kā'rĭ-ȧ; 79; 181), n. [NL.] A genus of South African shrubs (family Portulacaceae). P. afra, the purslane tree, is the only known species.

Por-tu'ni-dae (pôr-tū'nĭ-dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. PORTUNUS.] Zool. A family of crabs having the carapace subquadrate and the last pair of legs usually with the terminal joint flattened and paddlelike. The lady crabs are examples. The type genus is Por-tu'nus (-tū'nŭs). — por-tu'ni-an (-nĭ-ăn; 109), adj. & n.

Por-tu'nus (pôr-tū'nŭs), n. [L., fr. portus harbor.] Rom. Relig. Probably, originally, a god of gates or doors (porta, gate, door), closely associated with Janus. Later, he came to be recognized as god of the port or harbor. His festival, the Por'tu-na'li-a (pôr'tū-nā'lĭ-ȧ; 159), was celebrated Aug. 17. See MATUTA.

port vein. The portal vein. Obs.

port'-vent', n. [F. porte-vent.] Music. A pipe for conveying the wind in an organ or bagpipe.

port wine. = 1st PORT, 1.

port'-wine' (66), adj. Of or pertaining to port; also, red like port. — port'-win'y (-wīn'ĭ), adj.

port-wine mark or stain. Med. A reddish-purple, superficial hemangioma of the skin; a birthmark; a flat vascular nevus.

port'y (pôr'tĭ; 181), adj. Like or suggestive of port wine.

por'ty (pôr'tĭ; 181), n. [F. portée.] Founding. A large print for a pipe core.

por'ule (pôr'ūl; 181), n. Dim. of PORE. — por'u-lose (-ū-lōs), por'u-lous (-lŭs), adj.

po'rus (pō'rŭs), n. [L. See 2d PORE.] Zool. A pore, esp. one of the pits on the body of an insect connected with the sense organs. See TRICHOPORE.

por'wi'gle (pôr'wĭg'ĭl), n. A tadpole.

por'y (pôr'ĭ), adj. Porous. Now Rare.

Por-za'na (pôr-zä'nȧ), n. [NL., fr. It. porzana the crake.] Zool. A widely distributed genus of small short-billed rails including the sora, or Carolina rail.

‖po-sa'da (pō-sä'thä; 112), n. [Sp.] A hotel; inn.

‖Po-sau'ne (pō-zou'nĕ), n.; pl. POSAUNEN (-nĕn). [G., fr. OF. buisine trumpet, fr. L. bucina.] Music. a A trombone. b A reed stop in an organ, imitating the trombone tone.

pos'ca (pŏs'kȧ), n. [L.] A drink of vinegar and water or diluted wine. Hist.

pose (pōz), v. t.; POSED (pōzd); POS'ING (pōz'ĭng). [From appose, for oppose. See 1st APPOSE, OPPOSE.] 1. To question. Obs. "Then I shall pose you quickly. Which had you rather . . . ?" Shak.

2. To puzzle by or as by questioning; to put in a quandary; to baffle; nonplus. "There came A thing which Adam had been pos'd to name." Pope.

pose, v. [OF. poser to place, put, rest, fr. L. pausare to pause, in LL. also, to place, put, fr. L. pausa a pause; confused in LL., F., and E. with L. ponere, posui, positum, to put, place (cf. POSITION). See PAUSE; cf. APPOSE, COMPOSE, DEPOSE, DISPOSE, EXPOSE, OPPOSE, PURPOSE, REPOSE, SUPPOSE.] Transitive: 1. To place; put in place. Obs.

2. To assume for argument; to suppose. Obs.

3. To lay down; to claim to identify; as, to pose a poem as Shelley's.

4. To propose; propound; as, to pose a question.

5. To place in a studied attitude, with attention to posture and arrangement of draperies; as, to pose a model for a picture or a group for a pantomime.

6. Dominoes. To play (a domino).

—, Intransitive: 1. To assume a pose, or studied attitude, for a picture or as an affectation; to strike an attitude; to attitudinize; as, to pose for an artist; to pose as a hero.

2. Dominoes. To play a domino.

pose (pōz), n. [F., fr. poser. See 2d POSE.] 1. A fixed or sustained posture, esp. one assumed for artistic effect or in affectation; an attitude, gesture or bearing designedly adopted; as, a sitter's natural pose; every movement is a pose.

2. A mental attitude, esp. one that is affected; a deliberately assumed mood; as, his cheerfulness is not a pose.

3. Posing; attitudinizing; as, an age of pose; a poem free from pose.

4. Dominoes. The first turn to play.

Syn. — See POSITION.

pose, n. [AS. gepos.] A cold in the head; catarrh. Obs.

pose, n. Posy; verse. Obs.

pose (pōz), n. [Cf. F. poser to place.] A hoard; a secret treasure. Chiefly Scot.

Po-sei'de-on (pō-sī'dē-ŏn; Gr. pŏ-sī'dĕ-ŏn'), n. [Gr. Poseideōn.] The sixth Attic month. See GREEK CALENDAR.

Po-sei'don (pō-sī'dŏn), n. [L., fr. Gr. Poseidōn.] Gr. Relig. The god of the sea and of the watery element generally, a son of Cronus and Rhea and the husband of Amphitrite. As god and tamer of horses he was worshiped as Po-sei'don Hip'pi-as (hĭp'ĭ-ȧs). The Isthmian games were in his honor, Corinth being a chief center of his cult. His attributes include the dolphin, the horse, and the trident, and he is often represented with a train of Nereids and Tritons. See OLYMPIAN, n., 1; cf. NEPTUNE, 1; ATHENA.

Poseidon (from a vase drawing).

Pos'ei-do'ni-an (pŏs'ĭ-dō'nĭ-ăn; 159), adj. [Gr. Poseidōnios.] Of or pertaining to Poseidon.

pose'ment (pōz'mĕnt), n. Perplexity. L. Hunt.

pos'er (pōz'ĕr), n. 1. One who poses, or questions; specif., an examiner. Hist.

2. A puzzling or baffling question or problem; a puzzle.

pos'er, n. One who poses or attitudinizes.

po-seur' (pō-zûr'), n. [F.] One who poses or attitudinizes, esp. mentally.

‖po'seuse' (pō'zûz'), n. [F.] A woman poseur.

pose'y (pōz'ĭ), adj. Affected; full of pose or poses.

po'sey (pō'zĭ). Var. of POSY.

posh (pŏsh), n. [Imitative.] A slushy mass, as of mud or broken ice. "Posh and ice in the river." Whitman.

posh, adj. [From poshed up, fr. polished up.] Smart or spruce in appearance; also, elegant; luxurious. — v. t. & i. To make, or to make oneself, posh. Both Slang, Brit.

po'sied (pō'zĭd), adj. 1. Inscribed with a posy, or motto.

2. Provided with posies, or flowers; flowery. Poetic.

pos'it (pŏz'ĭt), v. t.; -IT-ED; -IT-ING. [L. ponere, positum, to place. See POSITION.] 1. To dispose or set firmly or fixedly; to place or dispose in relation to other objects.

2. Philos. To postulate or assert as fact that which is immediate or indemonstrable; to assume as actual; — contrasted with infer.

po-si'tion (pō-zĭsh'ŭn), n. [F., fr. L. positio, fr. ponere, positum, to put, place, for posino, fr. an old prep. used in comp. (akin to L. post after, behind) + sinere to leave, let, permit, place. See POST-; SITE. Cf. COMPOSITE, DEPONE, EXPOUND, IMPOSTOR, OPPOSITE, POLISH, POSIT, 2d POST, POSTURE, PROPOUND, PROVOST, REPOSITORY.] 1. A positing, or placing; specif., the laying down or statement of a proposition or thesis; affirmation; hence, a proposition or thesis laid down or posited; a statement; assertion.

Let not the proof of any position depend on the positions that follow, but always on those which go before. I. Watts.

2. The manner in which anything is placed, arranged, or disposed, either with reference to the relative position of its parts, or with reference to other things. Hence: a Posture or attitude of a person or thing. b Manner or way of viewing something; mental attitude; the ground or point of view adopted with reference to any particular subject; as, to define one's position; to appear in a false position. c The spot where a person or thing is or is placed or takes a place; site; place; station; situation; hence, proper place; as, the position of a post. d Relative place, situation, or standing; specif., social or official rank or status; standing; as, a person of position; the position of man in creation; to acquire a position as a poet; hence, office; employment; situation; place; as, to lose one's position. e Spot, place, or condition that gives one the advantage over another; as, to maneuver for position.

3. Astron. = PLACE, 15.

4. Chess. In the course of play, the arrangement of chessmen at any given move, esp. as bearing upon combinations.

5. Gr. & Lat. Pros. The state of having a short vowel followed by two consonants or a double consonant (such as x or z) making its syllable long; as, in vŏlŭ̆nt the syllables are long by position. Consonants in this collocation are said to "make position."

6. Horol. The posture to which the movement of a timepiece is adjusted; as, a watch of five positions (flat with dial up, flat with dial down, on edge stem up, on edge stem to right, on edge stem to left).

7. Mil. Specif., a defensive position.

8. Music. a The disposition of the notes or tones of a chord with reference to: (1) the lowest voice part; (2) the uppermost voice part; (3) their nearness to each other in pitch, close and open position corresponding to close and open harmony (see TRIAD; SEVENTH CHORD; HARMONY, 7 c). b One of the points on the fingerboard of a stringed instrument where the strings are stopped by the fingers to por'to-lan (pôr'tō-lăn), n. = PORTOLANO. por'trait-like', adj. See -LIKE.

---

por-tray'a-ble, adj. See -ABLE.
portreiture. † PORTRAITURE. portrey, portreye. † PORTRAY. port'sale', n. [*port*gate + sale.] Public sale; auction. Obs.
Ports'mouth (pôrts'mŭth; 181), n. See TREATY, Table.
por'tu-ar'y (pôr'tū-ĕr'ĭ; -ēr-), n. [Cf. PORTASS.] Eccl. = PORTASS portuas. † PORTASS.
Por'tu-gal-ism, n. See -ISM. por'tu-gue † PORTAGUE.
Por'tu-guese. Var. of PORTUGESE. por'tu-lan (pôr'tū-lăn; 181), n. [F.] = PORTOLANO.
Por-tum'nus (pôr-tŭm'nŭs). Var. of PORTUNUS. por'ture, v. t. [See PORTRAY.] To portray; also, to form. Obs. port'way', n. = 4th PORT, 5.
pos. † POZ.
po-sa'da-ship, n. See -SHIP. pos'chay' (pŏs'shā'). Colloq. corrupt. of POST CHAISE. [Bib.] Pos'i-do'ni-us (pŏs'ĭ-dō'nĭ-ŭs). pos'ing (pōz'ĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of 1st POSE. — pos'ingly, adv.
pos'ing (pōz'ĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of 2d POSE. — pos'ingly, adv.

ȧ; — a common formation.

produce certain pitches. See SHIFT, n. c One of the seven definite degrees of extension of the trombone slide. When the slide is pushed entirely in it is in first position.

9. Phonol. The situation of a vowel with reference to whether it is in an open or closed syllable.

10. Produce Exchanges. A commitment for any monthly delivery period; as, a May position. Colloq., U. S.

Syn. — POSITION, POSTURE, ATTITUDE, POSE. POSITION, as here compared, denotes the way in which a thing is placed or disposed, esp. in relation to other things; POSTURE emphasizes the disposition of the parts of the body with reference to each other; ATTITUDE is posture esp. as unconsciously expressive or intentionally assumed; a POSE is an attitude, whether of the body or of some part of it, esp. as assumed for the sake of effect; as "the painful positions into which a sleeping lounger will get himself" (Leigh Hunt); "He sat or stood, oftenest, in loose sloping postures" (Carlyle); "The toy with the string between its legs is hardly a posture master more extravagant" (Leigh Hunt); cf. "a novel . . . putting the old tale of love into too many postures and attitudes" (Jowett); "his simple, natural, and graceful attitude in his armchair" (Memoir of Wordsworth); the pose of an artist's model, the pose of the head. Figuratively, position denotes the ground or principle on which one takes one's stand; posture often denotes state or condition in general, and sometimes connotes insincerity; attitude suggests one's settled manner of thought or feeling; pose implies affectation and insincerity; as, to define one's position; the present posture of affairs; "never suspicious of postures or insincerity" (W. Pater); one's attitude toward capital punishment; "To be enthusiastic had become her pose in society" (Constance Garnett).

po·si'tion (pō·zĭsh'ŭn), v. t.; -TIONED (-ŭnd); -TION·ING. To put in a or the proper position; to place; situate; also, to locate; localize. — v. i. To assume or maintain a position. Rare. — po·si'tion·er (-ēr), n.

po·si'tion·al (pō·zĭsh'ŭn·ăl; -'l), adj. Of, pertaining to, or fixed by, position.

position artillery. Mil. Heavy artillery, chiefly of field works. Now Rare.

position buoy. = FOG BUOY b.

position co-ordinate. Math. See 3d CO-ORDINATE, 2.

position finder. Gun. An instrument for finding by triangulation the exact position and range of a ship or target, the base being either vertical or horizontal. When the base is vertical it is called a depression position finder (which see). See RANGE FINDER.

position isomerism. Chem. See ISOMERIC, 1.

position target. See TARGET, 10.

pos'i·tī'val (pŏz'ĭ·tī'văl), adj. [positive + -al.] Real or objective; — opposed to ideal. Grote.

pos'i·tive (pŏz'ĭ·tĭv), adj. [ME. positif, fr. OF. positif, fr. L. positivus. See POSITION.] 1. Definitely or formally laid down or imposed; prescribed by express enactment; hence, explicitly or unqualifiedly expressed; admitting of no doubt, condition, qualification, or discretion; compelling assent or obedience; peremptory; indisputable; explicit; definite; decisive; also, Colloq., downright; absolute; as, a positive promise, instruction, proof, lie.

2. Concerned with facts and matters of practical experience; not speculative or theoretical.

3. Independent of changing circumstances or relations; unrelated; absolute; — opposed to relative and comparative; as, the idea of beauty is not positive.

4. a Confident; certain; sometimes, overconfident; dogmatic.

Some positive, persisting fops. Pope.

b Characterized by acceptance or approval; affirmative; as, one's positive reaction to a suggestion.

5. Having a real position, existence, energy, character, or the like; real; actual; concrete; — opposed to negative; as, a positive voice in legislation. "Positive good." Bacon.

6. Aeronautics. See STAGGER, n., 3.

7 a Bacteriol., etc. Affirming the presence of the organism or condition in question; as, a positive diphtheria culture, agglutination test, or diagnosis. b Biol. Directed or moving toward a source of stimulation; as, a positive taxis.

8. a Elec. Designating electricity of which the elementary unit is the proton (see ELECTRICITY); also, charged with or yielding positive electricity. b Chem. (1) Losing electrons; basic. (2) See CATALYSIS, 2.

9. Gram. a Noting, or pertaining to, the positive degree (which see). b Obs. Introducing a subordinate clause which expresses not supposition but fact.

10. Logic. Affirmative; — opposed to negative.

11. Mach. a Designating, or pertaining to, a motion or device which is definite, unyielding, constant, or certain in its action, as determined by unyielding parts or exactly controlled movements, as the motion of a system of levers or as a claw clutch. b Designating, or pertaining to, a device giving a to-and-fro motion; as, a positive dobby. See TAPPET.

12. Math., Physics, etc. a Of real quantities: Numerically greater than zero; plus; not negative (see NEGATIVE, adj., 7 a); not reversed in sense. b Reckoned or proceeding in a direction arbitrarily or conventionally taken as that of increase, onward motion, or the like; — opposed in character or effect to anything regarded as negative. c Falling on a given side of a certain line or plane.

13. Optics. a Designating, or exhibiting, rotation to the right; dextrorotatory. b Having, or characterized by, a greater index of refraction for the extraordinary ray than for the ordinary ray; — said of certain doubly refracting crystals, as those of quartz and ice.

14. Philos. a Affirmative and constructive; — distinguished from skeptical. b Empirical; subject to scientific verification; — disting. from speculative.

15. Photog. a Having the rendition of light and shade as in the original subject; as, a positive image. b Having properties required to produce a positive image; as, a positive film.

16. Vehicles. Designating a method of steering or turning in which the steering wheels move so that they describe concentric arcs in making a turn, to ensure freedom from side slip or harmful resistance. See ACKERMAN AXLE.

☞ For some positive phrases, see the second word.

Syn. and Ant. — See SURE.

·pos'i·tive. = POSITIVE, adj., 7 b, as in thigmo*positive.*

pos'i·tive (pŏz'ĭ·tĭv), n. That which is positive; as: a That of which an affirmation can be made; a reality. b Obs. A positive law. c Short for positive plate (of a voltaic or electrolytic cell), organ, etc. d Gram. The positive degree; also, a form denoting it. e Photog. A positive picture (see POSITIVE, adj., 15 a); also, a print from a negative, as on printing paper or film.

pos'i·tive (pŏz'ĭ·tĭv), v. t. a To assert. b To make a positive picture of.

positive afterimage. See AFTERIMAGE.

positive allowance. Mach. Allowance which provides clear space between mating parts when they are fitted together; — opposed to negative allowance. See ALLOWANCE, n., 10.

positive apostrophe. See 1st APOSTROPHE, 2.

positive block. Railroads. A block in which only one train is allowed to be at one time. See BLOCK SYSTEM.

positive buoyancy. See BUOYANCY, n., 4.

positive clutch. Mach. See 2d CLUTCH, 5. positive column. Physics. That portion of the gas in a vacuum tube carrying an electric discharge which extends from the anode to the Faraday dark space. It is the seat of the striations often seen.

positive degree. Gram. That degree or amount of an attribute or limitation denoted by an adjective or adverb in its simple form without comparison or relation to increase or diminution (wise; noble).

positive demonstration. See DEMONSTRATION, 5. positive double refraction. See DOUBLE REFRACTION.

positive easement. See EASEMENT, 4.

positive electricity. See ELECTRICITY, n., 2.

positive electron. A positron.

positive eyepiece. An eyepiece consisting of two plano-convex lenses mounted with their curved surfaces toward each other, of equal size and equal focal length, and separated by a distance usually of two thirds the focal length of either. The image of the object viewed is beyond both lenses.

positive law. a Law. The aggregate of legal precepts established or recognized by the authority of the state, as contrasted with natural law or a body of ideal precepts. b Theol. Sometimes, religious laws looked upon as revealed by God, as the early Jewish law.

positive lens. Optics. A lens which is thickest at its center and thinner toward its outer portions, thus causing light which passes through it to converge.

pos'i·tive·ly (pŏz'ĭ·tĭv·lĭ), adv. of POSITIVE. Specif., extremely; really; very obviously; certainly; — often intensifying a statement.

positive misprision. See MISPRISION, n., 1.

pos'i·tive·ness, n. Quality or state of being positive.

positive organ. Music. Formerly, a stationary as distinguished from a portative, or portable, organ; hence, a chamber organ, and later a separate manual in a church organ for accompanying the choir.

positive philosophy. = POSITIVISM, 2.

positive plate. Elec. The plate from which current flows to the external circuit when a battery or cell is discharging.

positive pole. Elec. That one of the two terminal poles of an electric cell, dynamo, etc., which has the higher potential; — opposed to negative pole.

positive potential. Physics. An electric potential greater than that of the earth considered as a conductor.

positive ray. Physical Chem. A ray of positively charged ions which go from the anode toward the cathode in a discharge tube; — formerly called canal ray.

positive religion. A religion which has a definite historic founder.

positive school. Criminol. = LOMBROSIAN SCHOOL.

positive sign. Math. = PLUS SIGN.

positive skewness. Statistics. See SKEWNESS, 2.

positive stress. a Compressive stress. b Tensile stress.

positive term. Logic. A term denoting positive quality or existence.

positive theology. a Theological doctrine which describes the divine nature according to positive categories; — distinguished from negative theology, which conceives God as so transcending human thought that he can be described only negatively. b A theology which, instead of beginning with the philosophy of religion, takes as its content the gospel as given by Biblical theology and presents it directly in systematic form.

positive valence. Physical Chem. a The valence of an electropositive radical. b The number of electrons an atom can give up.

positive whole. See WHOLE.

pos'i·tiv·ism (pŏz'ĭ·tĭv·ĭz'm), n. 1. Quality or state of being positive; dogmatism; confidence; certainty.

2. [F. positivisme.] [usually cap.] A system of philosophy originated by Auguste Comte. It excludes from philosophy everything but the natural phenomena or properties of knowable things, together with their invariable relations of coexistence and succession, as occurring in time and space. All other types of explanation are repudiated as "theological" or "metaphysical."

— pos'i·tiv·ist (-ĭst), adj. & n.

pos'i·tiv·is'tic (pŏz'ĭ·tĭv·ĭs'tĭk), adj. Of or pertaining to positivism or positivists; like, or tending to, positivism.

— pos'i·tiv·is'ti·cal·ly (-tĭ·kăl·ĭ), adv.

pos'i·tiv'i·ty (-tĭv'ĭ·tĭ), n. Positive character, result, existence, etc.

pos'i·tiv·ize (pŏz'ĭ·tĭv·īz), v. t. To make positive.

pos'i·tor (pŏz'ĭ·tĕr), n. [L., a placer.] Obs. a A depositary, or bailee. b One who posits, or affirms.

pos'i·tron (pŏz'ĭ·trŏn), n. [positive + electron.] Physics & Chem. A positively charged particle having the same mass and magnitude of charge as the electron, first detected in cosmic rays.

pos'i·tum (pŏz'ĭ·tŭm), n. [L., past part. neut. of ponere to place.] That which is posited or laid down. Fielding.

pos'i·ture (pŏz'ĭ·tūr), n. Obs. a Placing; situation; locality. b Posture; specif., Astrol., arrangement; configuration; disposition.

Pos·na'ni·an (pŏz·nä'nĭ·ăn; 159), adj. Of or pertaining to the Polish province of Poznań (Posen), or the city of Posen. — n. a A native or inhabitant of Poznań. b The dialect of Poznań, upon which standard Polish is based.

pos'net (pŏs'nĕt; -nĭt; 119), n. [OF. poçonet, dim. of poçon a pot.] A cooking pot with a handle and, usually, three feet; a saucepan. Archaic & Dial.

po·so'le (pō·sō'lā), n. [Costa Rican Sp. pozol, said to be of Am. Indian origin.] A dish composed of meat, hominy, garlic, and chili. Spanish America.

po·sol'o·gist (pō·sŏl'ō·jĭst), n. [See POSOLOGY.] A compounder of doses.

po·sol'o·gy (pō·sŏl'ō·jĭ), n. [F. posologie, fr. Gr. posos how much + -logy.] 1. Med. Science of doses; dosology. 2. Math. The doctrine of pure quantity.

— pos'o·log'ic (pŏs'ō·lŏj'ĭk), pos'o·log'i·cal (-ĭ·kăl), adj.

pos·pol'i·te (pŏs·pŏl'ĭ·tĕ), n. [Pol. pospolite ruszenie a general summons to arms, an arrière-ban, fr. pospolity general + ruszenie a stirring.] A kind of militia in Poland, consisting of the gentry, which was called out in case of invasion. Obs. exc. Hist.

poss (pŏs), v. t. & i. [Cf. PUSH.] To thrust; push; dash, drive; knock; beat; pound; stamp. Obs. exc. Dial.

pos'se (pŏs'ē), n. [ML.; in L., inf., to be able.] 1. Law. Short for POSSE COMITATUS.

2. A force with legal authority; a detachment, as of police; an armed band; hence, a crowd; a throng. "A whole posse of enthusiasts." Carlyle.

3. Possibility; potentiality; — chiefly in the phrase in posse. Cf. IN ESSE.

‖pos'se co'mi·ta'tus (kŏm'ĭ·tā'tŭs). [L. posse to be able, to have power, in ML., power + ML. comitatus a county, from comes, comitis, a count. See POWER; COUNTY.] 1. Law. The power of the county; hence, usually, the entire body of those inhabitants who may be summoned by the sheriff to assist in preserving the public peace, as in case of a riot, or in executing any legal precept that is forcibly opposed; also, the body of persons so summoned. By the common law the sheriff may so summon every male inhabitant of the county who is above 15 years of age and not infirm.

2. = POSSE, 2.

pos'se·man (-măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). A member of a posse, or armed band.

pos·sess' (pō·zĕs'), v. t.; -SESSED' (-zĕst'); -SESS'ING. [OF. possesser. See POSSESSION.] 1. To occupy; inhabit; to be located or situated at. Obs.

2. To put in possession; to make the owner or holder, as of property, power, knowledge, etc.; — followed by of or with before the thing possessed, now often used reflexively. In the passive, mere possession, or having, is signified; as, he is possessed of health, wealth, and power.

I will possess you of that ship and treasure. Shak.

3. a To have and hold as property; to have a just right to; to be master of; to own; as, to possess lands, money, a horse, a watch. See POSSESSION, 6. b To have as a property, adjunct, attribute, or the like; to have; as, to possess contentment, the respect of one's fellows, information; also, Rare, to have knowledge of or skill in; as, to possess Greek poetry.

4. Archaic. a To gain; seize; obtain; win.

This the regal seat: possess it, York. Shak.

In your patience possess ye your souls. [Rev. Ver.: In your patience ye shall win your souls.] Luke xxi. 19.

b To bring under the possession, control, or influence (of some passion, idea, conviction, or the like); — used with with; as, to possess one with indignation; hence, to influence; convince; persuade; as, to possess a jury.

To possess our minds with an habitual good intention. Addison.

c To inform; acquaint; instruct.

I have possessed your grace of what I purpose. Shak.

5. To make one's own carnally.

6. To enter into and influence powerfully or control; to dominate; actuate; — said esp. of evil spirits, passions, thoughts, ideas, etc.; as, what could have possessed him to act so? he was possessed with rage.

7. To maintain or keep in a condition (usually specified) of control or tranquillity; — said of oneself, one's mind, soul, feelings, etc.; as, possess yourself under all trials; to possess one's soul in patience.

8. To occupy or engross the thoughts of. Obs.

Syn. — See HAVE. Ant. — See LACK.

pos·sessed' (pō·zĕst'), adj. a Having as a possession, an attribute, or the like; as, possessed of lands or wit. b Influenced or controlled as by evil spirits, one's passions, a fixed idea, etc.; hence, mad; crazed. c Self-possessed; cool; calm. — pos·sess'ed·ly (-zĕs'ĕd·lĭ; -ĭd·lĭ; 119), adv. — pos·sess'ed·ness, n.

— like all possessed. With vim. U. S.

pos·ses'sion (pō·zĕsh'ŭn), n. [ME., fr. OF. possession, fr. L. possessio, fr. possidere, possessum, to possess, prob. fr. an old prep. (cf. POST-) + sedere to sit. See SIT.] 1. Act or state of possessing; also, the state of being possessed; as, the enemy's possession of the town; the town during its possession by the enemy.

2. The thing possessed; that which anyone occupies, owns, or controls; in pl., property in the aggregate; wealth; dominion; as, foreign possessions.

Ananias, with Sapphira his wife, sold a possession. Acts. v. 1.

3. a Fact or state of being possessed, or dominated, by an extraneous personality, a demon, passion, idea, impulse, or the like. Cf. OBSESSION. Among primitive peoples, and in popular superstition, disease and insanity are usually attributed to such demonic possession.

How long hath this possession held the man? Shak.

b Something, as an idea or impulse, that affects one compellingly.

4. A possessing oneself of another carnally.

5. Fact or state of being under one's own control, or act of controlling oneself, one's feelings, etc.; as, in this crisis his possession was admirable Cf. SELF-POSSESSION.

6. Law. Act, fact, or condition of a person's having such control of property that he may legally enjoy it to the exclusion of all others having no better right than himself. What constitutes such possession depends upon the subject matter and the legal system involved; but, in general, all legal systems recognize as having possession him (as a thief) who has actual physical control of a thing and holds it for himself, the Roman and Civil law distinguishing these elements as the corpus of possession (detention, or naturalis possessio) and the animus possidendi, calling the two together simply possession, or civilis possessio. English law does not expressly recognize this distinction but distinguishes custody, where one does not exercise the physical control for his own purposes, from possession. Cf. DETENTION, 4; animus possidendi, under ANIMUS.

7. Logic. An Aristotelian category (Gr. echein). See CATEGORY, 1.

8. Polo. The right to hit the ball on the off side of the pony. Interference with this right is a foul.

Syn. — Ownership, hold, control, mastery; property.

— possession is nine, formerly eleven, points of the law. Possession is an advantage equal to the great majority of the points involved in a dispute over property; — a popular saying.

pos·ses'sion, v. t. To provide with possessions. Rare. — v. i. To renew landmarks in order to retain possession.

pos·ses'sion·al (-ăl; -'l), adj. Of or in the nature of possession or possessions, esp. property.

pos·ses'sion·al·ism (-ĭz'm), n. The principle or practice of private ownership of property. — pos·ses'sion·al·ist, n. Both Rare.

pos·ses'sion·ar'y (-ĕr'ĭ; -ĕr·ĭ), adj. Of or pertaining to possession; arising from possession. — n. One in possession. Rare.

pos·ses'sion·ate (-ăt), adj. [ML. possessionatus.] Having possessions or endowments. Rare.

pos·ses'sioned (pō·zĕsh'ŭnd), adj. Having possessions.

---

po·si'tioned, adj. Having a position.

po·si'tion·less, adj. See -LESS.

pos'i·tiv. Positive. Ref. Sp.

possable. † POSSIBLE.

pos·sede', v. t. [F. posséder, fr. L. possidere.] To possess. Obs.

pos·sess'a·ble, -i·ble, adj. See -ABLE.

pos·sess'ing, pres. part. & verbal n. of POSSESS. — pos·sess'ing·ly, adv. — pos·sess'ing·ness, n.

pos·ses'sion·er (pŏ·zĕsh'ŭn·ĕr), n. 1. Possessor; property holder. Obs.
2. One appointed to renew boundary landmarks. Southern U. S.
3. Eng. Hist. A member of any religious order holding property in lands, buildings, etc.; — used opprobriously.

pos·ses'sion·ist, n. A believer in possession by spirits. De Foe.

pos'ses·si'val (pŏs'ĕ·sĭ'vŭl; pŏ·zĕs'ĭ·vŭl), adj. Of or pertaining to the possessive case.

pos·ses'sive (pŏ·zĕs'ĭv), adj. [F. or L.; F. possessif, fr. L. possessivus.] 1. Of or tending to possession; manifesting possession or the desire to possess or hold as one's own; possessory; as, the possessive instinct; a possessive nature or love.
2. Gram. Designating, or pertaining to, the case, esp. in English, denoting ownership (or some relation felt as analogous) and historically called the genitive (Dick's hat; Homer's admirers; the pear's flavor). Also, designating a pronoun or construction, as with of, expressive of the same relation, and sometimes the relation itself. See GENITIVE, adj., 1.
— pos·ses'sive·ly, adv. — pos·ses'sive·ness, n.

pos·ses'sive (pŏ·zĕs'ĭv), n. Gram. a The possessive case, a word in that case, or an equivalent case phrase, as with of. The possessive is the only case in English nouns retaining an inflection (see 2d APOSTROPHE, 1 b). The governed noun is often understood (at the printer's [shop]; "the first sight of St. Peter's [Church]"; you 'll be off to a crammer's before long). English idiom allows a double possessive expression with both of and the possessive inflection ("This introduction of Atterbury's") or a possessive pronoun having its absolute form (a friend of hers), a construction now often useful to prevent ambiguity (cf. a picture of the Queen's, a picture of the Queen; a story of Lincoln's, a story of Lincoln). Except in certain established phrases (a day's work, boat's length, for pity's sake, at swords' points, out of harm's way, where the case is more appropriately called the genitive), the possessive inflection is now generally restricted to words denoting either persons or such inanimate things as, often by personification, are naturally thought of as possessing (a man's right; the court's decree; the sun's rays; but not, in careful usage, a house's roof; the disaster's cause). In compound expressions the possessive sign is usually at the end (the King of England's mother; Moore and Bradley's Rhetoric; somebody else's sister; for David my servant's sake).
☞ Present usage favors the following treatment of the apostrophe in forming possessives: (1) Nouns not ending in a sibilant sound, whether singular or plural, add 's (dog's; man's; men's). (2) Singular nouns ending in an s- or z-sound, when of one syllable, add 's (James's; Mars's; Hicks's); when of two or more syllables taking accent on the last, add 's (Hortense's); when of two or more syllables taking no accent on the last, add 's if the last syllable is not preceded by an s- or z-sound (Thomas's; Andrews's); but when the last syllable is preceded by an s- or z-sound, they add simply the apostrophe (Moses'; princess'; for conscience' sake; Jesus'; Odysseus'; Xerxes'); proper nouns, mostly classical or foreign, ending in -es [pron. -ēz], add only the apostrophe if the accent is on the penult (Achil'les'; Archime'dea'); but add apostrophe and s otherwise (Demosthenes's; Hercules's; Socrates's). (3) Abbreviations forming part of titles, firm names, etc., may take the 's (Charles I's; The Edison Co.'s). (4) Plural nouns ending in s or es add an apostrophe after the s (boys'; fishes'; wives'), (5) Plural nouns not ending in s add an apostrophe and s (men's; children's; mice's).
b A possessive pronoun or pronominal adjective.

possessive adjective. Gram. A pronominal adjective expressing possession (my hat; his answer). English possessive adjectives are by origin the genitives of the personal pronouns (his, her, its, their).

possessive pronoun. Gram. A pronoun derived from a personal pronoun, and denoting possession and other analogous relations (his is better than mine). In English the possessive pronouns are ours, yours, hers, theirs; also his, mine, thine in noun constructions. Other pronominal possessives, formerly classed as possessive pronouns, are now preferredly described as pronominal adjectives.

pos·ses'sor (pŏ·zĕs'ĕr), n. [OF. possesseur, fr. L. possessor.] 1. One who possesses; one who occupies, holds, owns, or controls.
2. Law. One who holds (property) without title, in contrast to owner; — called also naked possessor.

pos'ses·so'ri·al (pŏs'ĕ·sō'rĭ·ăl; 181), adj. Possessory.

pos·ses'so·ry (pŏ·zĕs'ō·rĭ), adj. [L. possessorius; cf. F. possessoire.] 1. Of or pert. to possession or a possessor, of the nature of possession; specif., Law, arising out of; affecting or relating to, or confirming, possession; as, a possessory interest or judgment; a possessory action.
2. Having or holding possession; as, a possessory lord.
3. Possessive; characteristic of a possessor; as, a possessory spirit.
— pos·ses'so·ri·ness (pŏ·zĕs'ō·rĭ·nĕs; -nĭs; 119), n.

possessory action. Law. An action founded on a right of possession and to recover or obtain possession, as distinguished from a petitory action founded on title and seeking to establish or vindicate it. Specif.: a Common Law. (1) In old English law, a real action (now obsolete) to regain possession of a freehold. (2) Any action founded on mere possession. After the real action became obsolete these were used to try title indirectly. b Admiralty Law. A suit to recover possession of a ship under claim of title. c Civil Law. (1) Scots Law. Any action to vindicate and recover possession of goods, heritable or movable. (2) In Louisiana, an action to be secured in possession, or restored to the possession, of an immovable.

pos'set (pŏs'ĕt; -ĭt; 119), n. [ME. possot, poshote, of uncert. origin; cf. MF. possette (a doubtful word).] A beverage (formerly much in favor) of hot milk curdled by some strong infusion, as by ale, wine, etc., and often containing spices, etc. Shak.

pos'set (pŏs'ĕt; -ĭt; 119), v. t.; -SET·ED; -SET·ING. a To curdle; to turn, as milk; coagulate; as, to posset the blood. Shak. b To give possets to; to pamper. "Cosseted and posseted and prayed over." Holmes. — v. i. To make a posset; also, Dial., to vomit; — of an infant.

posset pot. A two-handled vessel used for making posset.

‖pos·si'bi·le (pŏ·sĭb'ĭ·lē), n.; pl. POSSIBILIA (pŏs'ĭ·bĭ'lĭ·ȧ). [L.] Philos. Anything which is possible or conceivable without contradiction, or which may, or might, be the case.

pos'si·bi·list (pŏs'ĭ·bĭ·lĭst; pŏ·sĭb'ĭ·lĭst), n. [F. possibiliste, Sp. posibilista, fr. L. possibilis possible.] Politics. A member of a party which attempts, as in the way of reform, only what is regarded as immediately possible or practicable; specif.: a One of a party of Republicans in Spain. b One of a party of Socialists in France. — pos'si·bi·lism (-lĭz'm), n. — pos'si·bi·list, adj.

pos'si·bil'i·tate (pŏs'ĭ·bĭl'ĭ·tāt), v. t. To make possible. R.

pos'si·bil'i·ty (pŏs'ĭ·bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n.; pl. -TIES (-tĭz). [OF. possibilité, fr. LL. possibilitas.] 1. The character, state, or fact of being possible, either theoretically or actually; as, to deny the possibility of miracles; the constant possibility of failure.
2. That (in general) which is possible or may occur; contingency; as, within the range of possibility; also, something which is possible; as, one possibility remains.
3. One's utmost power, capacity, or ability, esp. as determined by circumstances. Now Rare. "To the possibility of thy soldiership." Shak.
4. Pecuniary means; specif., pl., pecuniary prospects. Obs.
5. pl. Potential or prospective value; possible uses, achievements, or the like. "From that moment she began to have decided possibilities." Winston Churchill.
— in (a) possibility. In a position or situation where something further indicated is possible or in prospect. Obs.

pos'si·ble (pŏs'ĭ·b'l), adj. [OF., fr. L. possibilis, fr. posse to be able, fr. potis able, capable + esse to be. See POTENT.]
1. Within the powers of performance, attainment, conception, etc., of an agent or activity expressed or implied; within or up to the limits of one's ability or capacity as determined by nature, authority, circumstances, etc.; sometimes, loosely, permissible; conceivable; attainable; as, knowledge possible only to God; a cure is possible; as curt as it was possible to be; not possible to see the patient today; the highest possible number.
2. That may or may not occur; that may chance; dependent on contingency; neither probable nor impossible; as, put by for possible emergencies; it is possible that she will come.
3. Rare. a Able; — with infinitive. b Likely; — usually with scarcely, barely, etc.
4. Potential, as by nature or circumstances; able or fitted to become, be used, or the like; as, every native-born American is a possible President; a possible site for a capitol.
5. Capable of being surmounted, traversed, dealt with, or the like; specif., Colloq., not impossible, or unacceptable; passable; as, the new neighbors were possible.
Syn. — POSSIBLE, PRACTICABLE, FEASIBLE. That is POSSIBLE, as here compared, which is not contrary to the nature of things, but which may, given the proper conditions, exist or occur; that is PRACTICABLE which may be accomplished by available means; FEASIBLE, with a less definite suggestion of concrete ways and means, applies to plans or designs that may be readily carried out; but practicable and feasible are often interchanged; as, communication between Mars and the earth may be possible; it is not yet practicable; television has been shown to be not only possible, but practicable; "My cousin . . . express[ed] a purpose, if the matter could be contrived, of bringing you with her; I was willing to believe that you had . . . found it feasible" (Cowper); "[I] wrote . . . desiring he would . . . make his ambition moderate and feasible" (Scott). Cf. PRACTICABLE.
— pos'si·ble·ness, n.

pos'si·ble, n. 1. One who or that which is possible. Specif.: a The attainable; — with the. b Usually pl. A possibility; potentiality. c Utmost; best; — chiefly in the phrase to do one's possible.
2. pl. Necessaries, as money or supplies. Slang.
3. The highest possible score, as a rifle practice; — orig. the highest possible.

pos'si·ble, adv. Possibly. Obs.

possible intellect. See INTELLECT, 1.

possible proposition. Logic. A problematic proposition, the truth of which is conceivable.

pos'si·bly (pŏs'ĭ·blĭ), adv. In a possible manner; by possible means; by any possibility; by merest chance; perhaps; maybe; as, not possibly true; he may possibly recover.

poss tub. A tub in which clothes are possed, or beaten, with a poss stick in washing. Dial. Eng.

pos'sum (pŏs'ŭm), n. Short for OPOSSUM.
— to play, or act, possum. To feign illness, ignorance, or the like, with intent to deceive; — from the opossum's habit of feigning death when alarmed.

pos'sum, v. i. Colloq., U. S. a To play possum. b To hunt the opossum.

possum grape. The chicken grape.

possum haw. U. S. a The bearberry Ilex decidua. b The withe-rod Viburnum nudum.

possum oak. The water oak Quercus nigra.

pos'sum·wood' (pŏs'ŭm·wŏŏd'), n. a Persimmon. b The light soft wood of the sandbox tree (Hura crepitans). c = OPOSSUM WOOD.

post (pōst), n. [ME., fr. OF. post (fr. L.), and fr. AS. post, fr. L. postis; prob. akin to Gr. pastas, parastas, Skr. pr̥ṣṭha back, roof, top, AS. first ceiling, ridgepole, and to L. pro before, forth, stare to stand. See FOR, FORE; STAND.]
1. A piece of timber, metal, or other solid substance, fixed, or to be fixed, firmly in an upright position, esp. as a stay or support; a pillar; prop; as, a hitching fence, a sheath (sense 5), or telegraph post; hence, often short for door-post, gatepost, etc.
2. One like a post in inability to hear, understand, or the like; as, between you and me, and the post (or door-post, gatepost, etc.), in strict confidence.
3. Obs. a Figuratively, a support; prop; pillar. b The doorpost of a shop, where were chalked the scores of customers; hence, a score; reckoning; debt.
4. Bookbinding. A binding post in a loose-leaf binder.
5. Card Games. Post and pair.
6. Horse Racing. The post at the starting or finishing point of a race; — distinguished as starting post and winning post.
7. Locks. The pin of a pinlock
8. Mining. Any of the main upright timbers of a framed set; also, a single upright support, as a prop.
9. Naut. A sternpost.
10. Stock Exch. Any of the places on an exchange floor, marked by an upright framework structure like a post, at which trading in specified securities is carried on.
— from post to pillar. = from pillar to post, under PILLAR. — to kiss the post. See under KISS.

-post (-pōst). A combining form of the noun post, as in bed*post*, door*post*, gate*post*, stern*post.*

post (pōst), v. t.; POST'ED; POST'ING. 1. To square (a tree or timber) for sawing, or for making posts. Obs. exc. Dial.
2. To affix to a post (as, esp. formerly, before a sheriff's office or in some other public place), wall, or other usual place for public notices; to placard; as, to post a notice.
3. To publish, announce, or advertise by or as by the use of a placard; to placard; hence: a To advertise opprobriously; to denounce by public notice or proclamation; as, to post one for cowardice. b Colloq. U. S. To advertise desertion by (one's wife).
4. a To affix public notices to; to placard, as a wall. b To forbid to trespassers under penalty of legal prosecution, by means of notices exhibited along the boundaries; as, to post a brook; posted property.
5. To enter (a name) on a posted list, as at clubs of a member behind in his dues, at some English colleges of a student who fails to pass, of a ship overdue or missing, etc.
6. Naut. To moor (a ship) to a post. Rare.

post (pōst), n. [F. poste, fr. It. posto, fr. LL. postum, for positum, fr. ponere, positum, to place. See POST for letters.] 1. Mil. a The place at which a soldier is stationed; esp., the fixed locality or stretch of ground guarded and patrolled by a sentry or outpost. b The place at which a body of troops is stationed, or the troops there. In the United States service permanent posts are usually called forts, temporary posts camps. c U. S. Hence, a local subdivision of the Grand Army of the Republic or of the American Legion. d In the British Army, one of the two bugle calls, termed first and last post respectively, sounded at tattoo. Last post corresponds to taps in the United States Army.
2. A station, place, or position, esp. one to which a person is assigned; as, the post of duty; the post of danger.
3. A position, situation, or office to which one is appointed; a place; as, a good post in the public service.
4. A trading post or settlement.
5. Nav. Rank or commission as full captain, which was held only by a captain in command of a vessel of at least 20 guns. Obs. exc. Hist.
Syn. — See OFFICE.

post (pōst), v. t.; POST'ED; POST'ING. [From POST a station of service.] To station in a given place. Specif.: a Chess. To place (a chessman) for continued occupancy. b Mil. To assign to a station or post, as a sentinel. c Nav. To appoint (an officer) to command a vessel of such size as to give post. Obs. exc. Hist.

post, n. [F. poste, fr. It. posta, orig., a station, fixed place, fr. LL. posta, for posita, fr. ponere, positum, to place. See POSITION.] 1. Orig., one of the men stationed or appointed in a series of places along a through road to go each from his station to the next with, at first, the state packet of dispatches and letters and hence, later, with letters generally, or one appointed to furnish a change of horses to through messengers carrying such matter; hence, one who travels express with messages, letters, etc., as a courier or runner; a messenger, esp. one who goes from station to station; an express, esp. one employed by the government to carry letters, parcels, etc., regularly, as a letter carrier or postman. Archaic & Dial.
In certain places there be always fresh posts, to carry that further which is brought unto them by the other. Abp. Abbot.
2. Formerly: a A vehicle or vessel used to carry the mails; also, a post horse or packet boat. = 6th MAIL, 4. b One of a series of stations for keeping horses for relays; also, the distance between any two such consecutive stations; a stage. Now Rare.
3. Chiefly Brit. a A single dispatch of postal matter from or to a place; also, the matter sent or received, or the system established for the collection, conveyance, and distribution of postal matter; a mail or the mail. = 6th MAIL, 2, 3. b A post office, or building for postal business; also, a letter box.
4. [cap.] A title of newspapers.
5. Obs. a Haste; dispatch; — from, and chiefly in, in post, meaning, orig., like a dispatch or mail carrier. b Postage.
6. Games. More fully general post. A kind of blindman's buff, in which the call of general post is a summons to all to change places.
7. Manège. Act of posting. S. L. Boardman.
8. Paper Mfg. A size of paper; — so called from the original watermark, a postman's horn. See PAPER, Table.

post (pōst), v. [Cf. obs. F. poster. See POST for letters.] Intransitive: 1. To travel with post horses; hence, to ride or travel with haste; hasten. "Post speedily to my lord your husband." Shak.
2. To post letters, parcels, etc. "Mrs. Folyot . . . not only shopped early but posted early." Rose Macaulay.
3. Manège. To rise and sink in the saddle, in accordance with the motion of the horse, esp. in trotting.
—, Transitive: 1. Obs. a To dispatch in haste; to hasten. b To convey as a post does; to carry speedily. c To dispatch by a post or messenger.
2. To dispatch by the post or mail; to place in the post office or mail box for transmittal; to mail; as, to post a letter.
3. To inform; to give news or a tip to; also, to make (one) familiar with a subject; — often with up; as, he is well posted; posted up in current politics. Colloq.
4. Bookkeeping. a To transfer or carry (an entry or item) from an auxiliary book to a more formal book, as from the daybook to the journal, or esp. from the journal or daybook to the ledger; as, to post the cashbook; to transfer (an entry or item) to the proper account; also, to enter (an item) properly in a book. b To complete (the ledger or other book) by the transfer to it and proper entry of all items in antecedent books; to make the proper entries in (all the books) to complete the record; — often with up.
post off or over. Obs. a To hand over or transfer; shift; pass off. b To put off; delay; postpone.

post (pōst), adv. [See POST for letters.] With post horses, like a courier or bearer of dispatches; hence, at full speed; express; as, to travel or ride post.

post (pōst), n. [G. posten a certain quantity of anything, a lot, an item.] 1. Paper Mfg. A pile of wet handmade sheets separated by pieces of felt.
2. Metal. A charge of ore for a smelting furnace.

post, v. t. To tread or knead (clothes being washed). Scot.

post, v. t. [Perh. fr. POST soldier's station.] To lay or pay down, as money or a stake. Slang.

post (pōst), n. [Hind. & Per. pōst, lit., skin, bark.] The poppy head; opium. East Indies.

‖post, adv. & prep. [L.] Afterward; after; later.

post (pōst), n. Law. The time after (some event); — used only in the phrase in the post, designating a writ of entry alleging that the defendant (or tenant) had entry only after a disseizin of the demandant or his ancestor by a previous intruder. Hist.

post- (pōst-). [L., fr. post, adv. & prep., behind, after; akin to L. ab from, away, Gr. apo, Skr. paśca behind, afterwards, and E. OFF.] A prefix denoting posteriority (of time, place, or rank), occurring, chiefly in nouns and adjectives, in words from Latin, and freely combined with words of Latin or other origin. Post- is used: 1. With adverbial or attributive force, to denote: a After, subsequent, later, as in *post*canonical, *post*date, *post*graduate, *post*script. b Behind, back, or after in position, as in *post*fix.
2. With prepositional force, entering into nouns in attributive construction, or adjectives formed as if by parasynthesis on a preposition and noun, and denoting. Subsequent, or posterior to, in time or place or order (that denoted or implied by the second element), as in postelection, postlude. Cf. ANTE-, PRE-.

3. Subsequent to a (specified) personage, period, movement, or event, as in:

post-Adamic
post-Advent post-Alexandrine post-Apostolic post-Apostolical post-Aristotelian post-Armistice post-Augustan post-Augustinian post-Azilian post-Aztec post-Babylonian post-Biblical post-Cambrian
post-Carboniferous post-Carolingian post-Cartesian
post-Chaucerian post-Christian post-Christmas post-Columbian post-Confucian post-Conquest post-Constantinian post-Copernican post-Cretacean post-Cretaceous post-Crusade
post-Darwinian post-Davidic post-Devonian post-Diocletian post-Disruption post-Easter post-Elizabethan post-Eocene post-Galilean post-Gothic post-Hittite
post-Homeric
post-Huronian
post-Ibsen
post-Incarnation post-Johnsonian post-Jurassic post-Justinian post-Jutland post-Kansan post-Leibnitzian post-Lent post-Marxian post-Medieval post-Mendelian post-Mesozoic post-Miocene post-Mishnaic
post-Mishnic post-Mosaic
post-Mycenean post-Napoleonic post-Newtonian post-Oligocene post-Ordovician post-Paleozoic post-Pauline post-Permian post-Petrine post-Phidian post-Platonic post-Pleistocene post-Prophetic post-Pythagorean post-Reformation post-Renaissance post-Restoration post-Revolutionary post-Roman post-Romantic post-Scholastic post-Shakespearean post-Silurian
post-Socratic
post-Solomonic post-Syrian post-Talmudical post-Theodosian post-Transcendental post-Triassic post-Tridentine post-Vedic post-Victorian post-Volstead

4. Anat. & Zool. Situated behind a (specified) part, as in:

postacetabular
postallantoic postamniotic postanal postaortic postappendicular postarterial postarticular postarytenoid postatrial postauditory postauricular postaxillary postbrachial postbranchial postbronchial postbuccal postbulbar postbursal postcalcaneal postcalcarine postcardiac postcarotid postcartilaginous postcephalic postcerebellar postcerebral postcolon postcolumellar postcondylar postcordial postcostal postcoxal postcrural postcubital postdental postdiaphragmatic postdigital postdural postenteral postesophageal postethmoid postfemoral postfoveal postgastric postgenial postheptatic posthippocampal posthumeral posthyoid postintestinal postischial postjugular postlabial postlachrymal postlaryngeal postlenticular postloral postmamillary postmammary postmandibular postmastoid postmaxillary postmeatal postmedullary postmeningeal postmental postmesenteric postmuscular postnaural postnodular postolivary postomental postoptic postoral postosseous postpalpebral postparotid postpatellar postpericardial postpharyngeal postphrenic postpituitary postpontile postprostate postpulmonary postpupillary postpyloric postrectal postrenal postretinal postrhinal postrostral postsaccular postsacral postsigmoid postspinous postsplenial
postsplenic poststernal posttarsal postthalamic postthoracic postthyroidal posttibial posttracheal posttrapezoid postulnar postumbilical postureteric postuterine postvenous postvertebral postvesical
postxyphoid

5. Med. Occurring after and as a result of, as in the following, which can be understood from the definitions of their elements:

postabortal
postanesthetic postapoplectic postarthritic postasthmatic postcatarrhal postcesarean postconceptive postconfinement postconnubial postconvalescent postconvulsive postcritical postdepressive postdevelopmental postdiagnostic postdiastolic postdigestive postdiphtheric postdiphtheritic postdysenteric postencephalitic postepileptic posteruptive postfebrile postfetal postgangrenal postgonorrheic postgrippal posthemiplegic posthemorrhagic posthysterical postictericc postinfective postinfluenzal postiloitic postluetic postmalarial postmaniacal postmaximal postmenstrual postmycotic postmyxedematous postnecrotic postnephritic postneuralgic postneuritic postneurotic postoperative postorgastic postpaludal postparalytic postparotitic postparoxysmal postparturient postpathological postphlogistic postphthisic postplegic postpneumonic postpubertal postpubescent postpuerperal postpycnotic postpyretic postrachitic postrheumatic postrubeolar postscarlatinal postscorbutic postspasmodic postsphygmic poststertorous postsuppurative postsurgical postsyphilitic posttabetic posttetanic posttoxic posttraumatic posttubercular posttussive posttyphoid postvaccinal postvaricellar postvarioloid postvenereal

post'ab·do'men (pōst'ăb·dō'mĕn; pōst·ăb'dō·mĕn), n. [NL.] Zool. A posterior differentiated part of the abdomen, or a posterior part of the body beyond the abdomen proper. — post'ab·dom'i·nal (-dŏm'ĭ·năl; -n'l), adj.

post'a·ble (pōs'tă·b'l), adj. That may be posted. Rare.

post·ad'junct (pōst·ăj'ŭngkt), n. Gram. An adjunct standing after the term that it qualifies (the retort courteous; a heart of stone).

post'age (pōs'tĭj), n. 1. Conveyance or dispatch of letters, etc., by post, or mail. Obs.
2. A, or the, postal service; the mail. Obs.
3. The charge established by law for the conveyance of a letter or other mailable matter by public post.
4. Travel by post horses; posting; the charge for use of a post horse; also, Rare, a post or posting house. Obs.

post'age, n. Mooring of ships to posts, or the charge for it. Rare.

postage currency. = POSTAL CURRENCY. U. S.

post'age–due' stamp. Philately. A special stamp applied by the post office to mail on which insufficient postage has been paid, to notify postmasters that postage is due before delivery can be made.

postage envelope. A stamped envelope.

postage label. A postage stamp. Hist.

postage stamp. A government stamp required to be put on articles sent by mail in payment of the postage, and as evidence of its prepayment, as a design embossed on an envelope or wrapper, or printed on a card, or, esp., an adhesive stamp issued and sold for the purpose.

post'al (pōs'tăl; -t'l), adj. [F.] 1. Of or pertaining to the post office or mail service; as, postal arrangements.
2. Railroads. Designating, or pertaining to, the system of carrying goods or passengers for a uniform rate irrespective of distance; as, the postal principle; the postal tariff.
— post'al·ly, adv.

post'al, n. Short for postal card. Colloq., U. S.

postal battery. Teleg. A battery connected in circuit by the armature of a relay at an intermediate station in repeating a message to a distant station.

postal car. A railroad mail car. U. S.

postal card. A card with a printed postage stamp sold by the government for transmission through the mails at a lower rate of postage than a sealed letter; also, officially post card, any private or unofficial card admitted to the mail by the postal regulations on the affixing of an adhesive postage stamp of the same value as that of the government card. U. S.

postal clerk. U. S. a A railroad mail clerk. b Any clerk in a post office. U. S.

postal currency. The fractional currency bearing the facsimiles of stamps, issued for temporary use during the Civil War or in Europe during the World War.

postal money order, postal order. See MONEY ORDER.

postal note. A post-office money order bearing the name of the payee; a postal order. See MONEY ORDER. The term is no longer used in the United States, where all post-office money orders are of this kind, but is used in Canada and some other British colonies, which also issue money orders not containing the payee's name.

postal, or post'–of'fice, sav'ings bank. See SAVINGS BANK.

Postal Union. A union for postal purposes including most governments; — called more fully Universal Postal Union. It was founded in 1874 and has headquarters at Berne, Switzerland.

post'al·ve'o·lar (pōst'ăl·vē'ō·lĕr; pōst·ăl'vĕ·ō·lĕr), adj. [post- + alveolar.] Phonet. Formed between the point or the blade of the tongue and the back part of the teethridge.

pos'ta·ment (pōs'tȧ·mĕnt), n. [It. postamento.] A pedestal; base; stereobate; also, a frame, mount, or molding for a work in relief.

post'–and–lin'tel, adj. Arch. Designating a system of construction based on vertical supports and horizontal beams; trabeated.

post and pair. An old game at cards, in which each player had a hand of three cards, — a forerunner of whist.

post'–and–rail' tea. A decoction of coarse tea; — so called because the floating leaves resemble sticks or rails. Colloq., Australia.

post'–and–stall' sys'tem. Coal Mining. The bord-and-pillar system.

post'an·ten'nal (pōst'ăn·tĕn'ăl; -ĭ), adj. Zool. Behind the antennae; — designating, specif., the third brain segment of an insect, and a sense organ, the postantennal, or prostemmatic, organ, of Collembola.

post·as'pi·rate (pōst·ăs'pĭ·rĭt), n. Phonet. An aspirate, or h sound, ending a stop or mute, as in the "aspirates" of Sanskrit and ancient Greek. See ASPIRATE, n., 1 b.

post·as'pi·rat'ed (-rāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. Phonet. Aspirated at the end (t in take).

post auger. An auger for making post holes.

post·ax'i·al (pōst·ăk' ĭ·ăd), adv. [See 1st -AD.] Anat. In a postaxial direction.

post·ax'i·al (-ăl), adj. Anat. & Zool. Behind the axis of the body; esp., of or pertaining to the posterior side of the axis of a vertebrate limb (the ulnar side of the fore limb or fibular side of the hind limb). — post·ax'i·al·ly, adv.

‖post bel'lum (pōst bĕl'ŭm). [L.] After the war; esp., U. S., after the Civil War (1861–65). — post–bel'lum, adj.

post bill. Obs. a A waybill of letters mailed by a postmaster. b Short for BANK POST BILL.

post binder. A loose-leaf binder having metal posts designed to pass through holes punched in the sheets.

post boat. A mail boat; packet boat; also, a passenger boat plying between certain points; a stage boat.

post'book' (pōst'bŏŏk'), n. A book for posting accounts. Obs.

post'box' (-bŏks'), n. A mailbox; a letter box.

post'boy' (pōst'boi'), n. A boy who rides post; a carrier of dispatches or letters; a courier; also, a postilion.

post·bra'chi·um (pōst·brā'kĭ·ŭm; -brăk'ĭ·ŭm), n. [NL.] Anat. The brachium of the inferior colliculus. See CORPORA QUADRIGEMINA.

post brake. Mach. A friction brake, chiefly for mine hoists, in which one or more rigid arms (posts) are pressed against a drum by a system of levers.

post'ca·non'i·cal (pōst'kȧ·nŏn'ĭ·kăl), adj. Written subsequent to writings included in a canon, esp. the canon of Scripture.

post captain. Naval. Formerly, in the British Navy, an officer who was promoted, or posted, to the rank of captain. The title was used both in the British and United States Navy to distinguish between officers of the actual rank of captain and commanders in command of vessels, the latter being called captain by courtesy.

post car. A car for conveying mail or posting travelers.

post card, or post'card', n. 1. A postal card. Brit.
2. In the United States, a private mailing card or postal card (which see). U. S. Postal Guide.

post'–card', v. t. & i. To write by post card.

post·car'di·nal (pōst·kär'dĭ·năl; -n'l), adj. [See POST-; CARDINAL.] Anat. & Embryol. Behind or caudal to the heart; designating, esp., a vein on either side in mammalian and other embryos and in certain fishes, draining the mesonephros and the portion of the trunk caudal to the heart.

post·car'nate (-kär'nāt), adj. [post- + incarnate.] After death; not incarnate. Rare.

post'cart' (pōst'kärt'), n. A postman's cart.

post·ca'va (pōst·kā'vȧ), n. [NL., fr. post- + vena cava.] Anat. In vertebrates other than fishes, the inferior vena cava. — post·ca'val (-văl), adj.

post cedar. a The white cedar Chamaecyparis thyoides. b = INCENSE CEDAR.

post·ce'nal, post·coe'nal (pōst·sē'năl; -n'l), adj. [post- + L. cena dinner.] After-dinner.

post·cen'tral (-sĕn'trăl), adj. Anat. Behind a center or central structure; esp., behind the central sulcus of the cerebral cortex; as, the postcentral gyrus; the postcentral sulcus.

post·cen'trum (pōst·sĕn'trŭm), n. [NL.] Zool. In some vertebrates, a distinct posterior part of the centrum of a vertebra formed by co-ossification of the interventral and interdorsal arcualia; — opposed to precentrum.

post chaise. A carriage for traveling post, usually having a closed body on four wheels, and seating two to four persons. Hist.

post'–chaise' (pōst'chāz'), v. t. To carry away in a post chaise. — v. i. To travel by post chaise.

post chariot. A carriage for traveling post; specif., a kind of light four-wheeled carriage with a driver's seat in front.

post·ci'bal (pōst·sī'băl), adj. [post- + LL. cibalis pertaining to food.] Occurring after a meal.

post·clas'sic (-klăs'ĭk), post·clas'si·cal (-ĭ·kăl), adj. Subsequent to the classical; of a period after the classical; as, postclassic poetry. — post·clas'si·cism (-ĭ·sĭz'm), n.

post·clav'i·cle (-klăv'ĭ·k'l), n. Also post'cla·vic'u·la (pōst'klă·vĭk'ū·lȧ). Zool. In some fishes, a small bone, or either of two small bones, attached to the inner surface of the posterior end of the clavicle and extending downwards. — post'cla·vic'u·lar (-lĕr), adj.

post'cli·tel'li·an (pōst'klĭ·tĕl'ĭ·ăn; pōst'klĭ-), adj. Zool. Having the seminal apertures behind the clitellum, as certain earthworms. — post'cli·tel'li·an, n.

post·cli'val (pōst·klī'văl), adj. Anat. Designating a transverse fissure on the superior cerebellar surface behind the clivus monticuli and posterior crescentic lobes.

post coach. A stagecoach for mail; any stagecoach.

post'co·lo'ni·al (pōst'kō·lō'nĭ·ăl), adj. Later than colonial; specif.: Arch. Having the characteristics of the American colonial style, but executed in the period following the Revolution.

post'co·mi'tial (pōst'kō·mĭsh'ăl), adj. See POST-, 2; — applied to diets held in the former kingdom of Poland after the regular diets.

post·com'mis·sure (pōst·kŏm'ĭ·shōōr), n. Anat. A posterior commissure. See COMMISSURE, 2 c. — post'com·mis'su·ral (-kō·mĭsh'ū·răl; -kŏm'ĭ·sū'răl), adj.

Post'com·mun'ion (pōst'kō·mŭn'yŭn), n. The prayer or prayers in the Mass corresponding in form and number to the Collects said after the Communion.

post'con·nu'bi·al (-kō·nū'bĭ·ăl), adj. Occurring after marriage.

post'con·so·nan'tal (pōst'kŏn·sō·năn'tăl; -t'l), adj. Immediately following a consonant.

post·con'tact (-kŏn'tăkt), adj. Later than a time of contact; specif., Anthropol., designating the period following contact of a primitive people with European culture.

post·cor'nu (-kôr'nū), n. [NL., fr. post- + L. cornu horn.] Anat. A posterior horn of the lateral ventricle. See LATERAL VENTRICLE.

post·cos'mic (-kŏz'mĭk), adj. Subsequent to the present world.

post·crib'rate (-krĭb'rāt), v. t. [post- + cribrate.] To sift afterwards. Obs.

post croaker. The spot (Leiostomus xanthurus).

post'date' (pōst'dāt'), v. t.; -DAT'ED (-dāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -DAT'ING (-dāt'ĭng). To date after actual time of writing, issuing, etc.; to assign a later than actual date to; as, to postdate a check, a journal, or one's day of birth.

post'date', n. A date affixed to a document, as a bill of exchange, or assigned to an event, later than the actual date.

post day 1. A day on which the mail arrives or departs. Brit.
2. Com. The day on which dealers in foreign bills meet for business in the Royal Exchange. London Cant.

post·den'tal (pōst·dĕn'tăl; -t'l), adj. [See POST-; DENTAL.] Phonet. Formed with the tongue at the backs of the upper front teeth. — n. A consonant so formed.

post'di·crot'ic (pōst'dī·krŏt'ĭk), adj. Physiol. Succeeding the dicrotic wave or double pulse beat; — said of a secondary wave.

‖post di'em (pōst dī'ĕm). [L.] Law. After the (set or proper) day.

post'di·lu'vi·al (pōst'dĭ·lū'vĭ·ăl; -dī-), adj. a = POSTDILUVIAN. b Geol. Subsequent to the diluvial epoch or period.

post'di·lu'vi·an (-ăn), adj. Existing or happening after the Flood. — n. One who lived or lives after the Flood.

post'dis·sei'zin, post'dis·sei'sin (-dĭs·sē'zĭn), n. O. Eng. Law. A second disseizin by the same disseizor from lands recovered by the assize of novel disseizin; also, the writ that lay for it. — post'dis·sei'zor (-zĕr; -zôr), n.

‖poste (pōst), n. [F.] Position; station. See 3d POST, 1 & 2.

‖post'e·a (pōst'ē·ȧ), n. [L., after these or those (things), afterward.] Common Law Practice. The entry made by the trial judge after a verdict reciting that issue was joined and summarizing the proceedings.

post'ed (pōs'tĕd; -tĭd; 119), past part. & part. adj. of POST. Specif.: adj. Up to date in one's information; as, the best-posted correspondent; keep him posted.

-post'ed (-pōs'tĕd; -tĭd; 119). A combining form from post, n., denoting having (so many or such) posts, as in four'–post'ed, wood'en–post'ed.

‖poste' de se·cours' (pōst' dĕ sĕ·kōōr'). [F., lit., aid station.] An aid station.

po·steen', po·stin' (pō·stēn'), n. [Per. pōstīn of leather.] A kind of Afghan pelisse made of leather with the fleece. Anglo-Indian.

post·em'bry·o·nal (pōst·ĕm'brĭ·ō·năl; -n'l), post'em·bryon'ic (pōst'ĕm·brĭ·ŏn'ĭk), adj. Zool. Succeeding the embryonic stage.

post'en·ceph'a·lon (pōst'ĕn·sĕf'ȧ·lŏn), n. Metencephalon.

post'en'try (pōst'ĕn'trĭ), n.; pl. -TRIES (-trĭz), [post- + entry.] A subsequent or late entry, as of an item missed in an account.

post'er (pōs'tĕr), n. 1. One who posts bills; a billposter.
2. A bill or placard intended to be posted in a public place; specif., such a placard of a decorative or pictorial character post'er, v. t. To affix posters to.

post'er (pōs'tĕr), n. 1. One who posts, or travels rapidly; a courier; also, a post horse. "Posters of the sea and land." Shak
2. One who posts, or mails, a letter.

poste' res·tante' (pōst'rĕs·tänt'; F. pōst' rĕs'tänt'). [F.] Literally, remaining post; to be left or held at the post office until called for; — used in addressing letters; also, a post-office department having charge of such letters.

pos·te'ri·ad (pŏs·tēr'ĭ·ăd), adv. [See 1st -AD.] Anat. & Zool. Posteriorly.

pos·te'ri·al (pŏs·tēr'ĭ·ăl), adj. Pertaining to the posteriors.

---

post'act', n. Law. A postfact. Obs.

post'bag' (pōst'băg'), n. = MAIL-BAG. [2.]

post'bap·tis'mal, adj. See POST-, 1.

post'-Bas'ket-Mak'er, adj. See BASKET MAKER. [2.]

post·break'fast, adj. See POST-, 1 a.

post·cae'cal, post·ce'cal (pōst·sē'kăl), adj. = RETROCAECAL.

postcard bander. See BANDER.

post·coe'nal. Var. of POSTCENAL.

post'com·mu'ni·cant, adj. See POST-, 1 a.

post·con'tract, n. See POST-, 1 a. post'de·ter'mined, adj. See POST-, 1 a. [POST-, 2.]

post'de·vel'op·men'tal, adj. See POST-, 2.

post'di·as·tol'ic, adj. See POST-, 2. [POST-, 1 a.

post'dis·ap·proved', adj. See pos'tel, n. [OF. (F. poteau).] A post, as of a gate or door. Obs.

post'e·lec'tion, adj. See POST-, 2.

post'el·e·men'ta·ry, adj. See POST-, 2.

‖post e'qui·tem se'det a'tra Cu'ra (ēk'wĭ·tĕm). [L.] Behind the horseman sits black Care. Horace (Odes, III. i. 40).

Said of the possessor of riches.

post'er·ette', n. Dim. of 1st POSTER, 2.

pos·te'ri·o·oc·clu'sion (pŏs·tēr'ĭ·ō·ō·klōō'zhŭn), n. = DISTOCLUSION.

pos·te′ri·or (pŏs·tē̆r′ĭ·ẽr), adj. [L., compar. of posterus coming after, fr. post after; cf. F. postérieur. See POST-; cf. PREPOSTEROUS.] 1. Later in time; — opposed to prior.

Hesiod was posterior to Homer. Broome.

2. Later in the order of proceeding, or moving; coming after; rear.

And now had Fame's posterior trumpet blown. Pope.

3. Situated behind; hinder; — opposed to anterior.

4. Anat. At or toward the hinder end of the body; caudal; — in human anatomy, because of the upright position of the body, often used as equivalent to dorsal.

5. Bot. On the side next the axis of inflorescence; superior; — said of an axillary flower.

Syn. — POSTERIOR, REAR, HIND, HINDER, BACK. POSTERIOR is the formal or technical term for that which is either later in time (opposed to prior) or situated behind (opposed to anterior); as, "Our doing is always posterior, never contemporaneous or prior, to our willing" (J. H. Newman); "To an anatomical eye the posterior part of the skull is even more striking than the anterior" (Huxley). REAR belongs esp. to military usage, but has general application with reference to structures, vehicles, and the like; as, the rear ranks of a column, the rear guard, cf. to bring up the rear; the rear wall of a house. HIND (opposed to front, fore) is used most commonly with reference to related parts, and designates the member or pair which is in the rear; it has sometimes more general application; as, the hind wheels of a wagon, the hind legs of a horse; cf. hind side before; a hind pocket. HINDER is equivalent to hind or (in nontechnical use) posterior; as, "the hinder part of the ship" (Mark iv. 38); "the hinder part of the skull" (Huxley). BACK applies to that which is thought of as behind, remote from, or inferior or subsidiary to, the main or more important part; as, back stairs, a back door, seat, settlement; cf. the *back*woods, a back number. Cf. AFTER.

Ant. — Prior, antecedent, precedent; fore, front, anterior.

☞ For many phrases beginning with posterior, see the principal word of the phrase.

pos·te′ri·or, n. Sing. of POSTERIORS.

pos·te′ri·or, adv. Posteriorly.

Posterior Analytics [Gr. ta analytika hystera]. That part of the logical writings of Aristotle which deals with the knowledge of principles, with proof, definition, and division. See ARISTOTELIAN LOGIC.

posterior femoral cutaneous nerve. Anat. A nerve arising from the sacral plexus of either side, leaving the pelvis in company with the sciatic nerve through the greater sciatic foramen to be distributed to the skin of the perineum and of the back of the thigh and leg; — formerly called lesser sciatic nerve.

posterior horn. Anat. a A dorsal column of gray matter in the spinal cord. b See LATERAL VENTRICLE.

‖pos·te′ri·o′ri (pŏs·tē̆′rĭ·ō′rī). [L., abl. of posterior. See POSTERIOR.] Only in a posteriori (which see).

pos·te′ri·or′ic (pŏs·tē̆r′ĭ·ōr′ĭk), adj. From a posteriori reasoning. — pos·te′ri·or′i·cal·ly (-ĭ·kăl·ĭ), adv.

posterior inferior spine. See ILIUM.

posterior interosseous nerve. See RADIAL NERVE.

pos·te′ri·or·is′tic (pŏs·tē̆r′ĭ·ẽr·ĭs′tĭk), adj. Of or pertaining to Aristotle's work called the Posterior Analytics. Cf. PRIORISTIC.

pos·te′ri·or·is′ti·cal·ly (-tĭ·kăl·ĭ), adv. of POSTERIORISTIC; also, posteriorically.

pos·te′ri·or′i·ty (pŏs·tē̆r′ĭ·ŏr′ĭ·tĭ), n. [ML. posterioritas; cf. F. postériorité.] 1. Character or state of being later or subsequent; — opposed to priority.

2. Inferiority in rank, dignity, or the like. Now Rare.

3. Posteriors, or hinder parts. Rare.

pos·te′ri·or·most′ (pŏs·tē̆r′ĭ·ẽr·mōst′), adj. Farthest back in time, order, or position.

posterior nares. See NOSE, n., 9.

posterior orbital convolution. See ORBITAL LOBE.

pos·te′ri·ors (pŏs·tē̆r′ĭ·ẽrz), n. pl. Rarely in sing. a Posterity; descendants. b Hinder parts of an animal's body; specif., the buttocks. c Obs. The latter part; the reverse, or back.

posterior spinothalamic tract. See SPINAL CORD, Illust.

posterior superior spine. See ILIUM.

posterior temporal artery. See TEMPORAL ARTERY.

posterior triangle. See TRIANGLES OF THE NECK.

pos·te′ri·o′rums (pŏs·tē̆·rĭ·ō′rŭmz; 181), n. pl. Obs. 1. [L. posteriorum, gen. pl. See POSTERIOR.] A familiar name for Aristotle's Posteriora Analytica.

2. The posteriors.

post′er·ist (pŏs′tẽr·ĭst), n. One who designs or makes posters.

pos·ter′i·ty (pŏs·tẽr′ĭ·tĭ), n. [F. postérité, fr. L. posteritas. See POSTERIOR.] 1. The race proceeding from a progenitor; offspring to the furthest generation; descendants; — contrasted with ancestry; as, the posterity of David.

2. Obs. a A subsequent generation. b = POSTERIORITY, 1.

3. All succeeding generations, collectively; future time; as, for the benefit of posterity; to transmit to posterity.

post′er·ize (pŏs′tẽr·īz), v. t. To treat in the manner or style characteristic of pictorial posters.

pos′tern (pŏs′tẽrn), n. [OF. posterne, posterle (F. poterne), fr. LL. posterula, fr. posterus coming after. See POSTERIOR.] 1. A back door or gate; a private or side entrance or way; hence, a way of escape, or the like. Now Rare.

2. Fort. A subterraneous passage between the ditch and the interior of either the main works or outworks.

3. Latter or hinder part. Rare.

Syn. — See DOOR.

pos′tern, adj. Situated at the back, rear, or side; for private use. "The postern door." Dryden.

pos′ter·o- (pŏs′tẽr·ō-). A combining form from Latin posterus, meaning hinder, used to denote posterior and; at the posterior part; as in pos′ter·o·in·fe′ri·or, situated back and below, pos′ter·o·lat′er·al, situated back and at the side. For words below see the word with which postero- is combined.

posteroexternal	posteromedial	posterosuperior
posteroinferior	posteromesial	posteroterminal
posterointernal	posteroparietal	posteroventral pos′ter·o·dor′sad (-dôr′săd), adv. [See 1st -AD.] Posterodorsally.

pos′ter·o·dor′sal (-dôr′săl; -s'l), adj. [See POSTERO-; DORSAL.] Anat. Referring to the posterior, or caudal, part of the back. — pos′ter·o·dor′sal·ly, adv.

pos′ter·o·me′di·an (-mē′dĭ·ăn), adj. [See POSTERO-; MEDIAN.] Anat. Located on or near the dorsal mid-line.

pos′ter·o·tem′po·ral (-tĕm′pō·răl), n. Zool. The supraclavicle of a fish. — pos′ter·o·tem′po·ral, adj.

post′e·ter′ni·ty (pŏst′ē·tûr′nĭ·tĭ), n. Eternity hereafter.

Post Exchange. See CANTEEN, 1 a. U. S.

post′ex·il′i·an (pŏst′ĕg·zĭl′ĭ·ăn; -ĕks·ĭl′-), adj. Postexilic.

post′ex·il′ic (pŏst′ĕg·zĭl′ĭk; -ĕks·ĭl′ĭk), adj. After the, or an, exile; specif., Jewish Hist., belonging to a period subsequent to the Babylonian captivity or exile (after 597 B.C. or about 586).

post′ex·ist′ (-ĕg·zĭst′; -ĭg-), v. i. To exist, as the soul, after death. — post′ex·ist′ence (-zĭs′tĕns), n. — post′ex·ist′ent (-tĕn·sĭ), n. — post′ex·ist′ent (-tĕnt), adj.

post′face (pŏst′fās), n. [post- + preface.] A brief article or note, as of explanation by the author, placed at the end of a book, etc. Cf. PREFACE, n., 2.

post′fact′ (pŏst′făkt′), n. [L. postfactum, post factum. See POST-; FACT.] A fact that occurs after another. Obs.

‖post fac′tum (pŏst făk′tŭm). [L.] After the event. Cf. EX POST FACTO.

post′–fac′tum (pŏst′făk′tŭm), adj. Ex post facto; retrospective; no longer timely.

post′–fine′, n. Eng. Law. The money paid for license to levy a fine (see 6th FINE, 4 b); — called also king's silver.

post·fix′ (-fĭks′), v. t. To annex; specif., Gram., to add or annex to the end of another or principal word; to suffix.

post′fix (pŏst′fĭks), n. [post- + -fix as in prefix.] Gram. A letter, syllable, or word, added to the end of another word; a suffix. — post·fix′al (-fĭk′săl), post·fix′i·al (-sĭ·ăl), adj.

post′fix·a′tion (-fĭks·ā′shŭn), adj. Photog. Pertaining to development or treatment after fixation.

post·fixed′ (pŏst·fĭkst′; 66), past part. & part. adj. of POSTFIX. Specif.: adj. Anat. Designating a type of limb plexus formed by spinal nerves at a lower or more caudal level than is usual in the species. Cf. PREFIXED.

post flag. U. S. Army. The national flag ordinarily used at posts. It is of 19 feet fly by 10 feet hoist.

post·flec′tion, -flex′ion (pŏst·flĕk′shŭn), n. Philol. Inflection by postfixes. Cf. PREFLECTION.

post′–free′ (pŏst′frē′; 66), adj. Free from charge for postage, as official governmental letters.

post·fron′tal (-frŭn′tăl; -frŏn′tăl; -t'l), adj. Anat. & Zool. Situated behind the frontal bone or frontal region of the skull, or, in reptiles, the frontal shield; specif., designating a bone behind and above the orbit, of which it commonly forms part of the border. This is present in many vertebrates and corresponds to the postorbital process of the frontal bone of many birds and mammals, which is also called postfrontal process. The so-called postfrontal of teleost fishes is the sphenotic. — n. A postfrontal bone or shield.

post·fur′ca (pŏst·fûr′kȧ), n.; pl. -CAE (-sē). [NL., fr. post- + L. furca fork.] Zool. The posterior one of the forked internal thoracic processes of the sternum of an insect. — post·fur′cal (-kăl), adj.

post′gan·gli·on′ic (pŏst′găng·glĭ·ŏn′ĭk), adj. Anat. Behind, beyond, or distal to, a ganglion; specif., designating the axons of neurons whose cell bodies lie within an autonomic ganglion. Cf. PREGANGLIONIC.

post·gem′i·num (pŏst·jĕm′ĭ·nŭm), n. [NL., fr. post- + L. geminus twin.] The inferior colliculus. See CORPORA QUADRIGEMINA.

post·gen′i·ture (pŏst·jĕn′ĭ·tŭr), n. [post- + L. genitura birth.] State of being born after another. Cf. PRIMOGENITURE. Rare.

post·gla′cial (pŏst·glā′shăl), adj. Geol. Subsequent to a period of glaciation; specif., subsequent to the Pleistocene; recent. See RECENT.

post·gle′noid (-glē′noid), adj. Anat. Situated behind the glenoid fossa; designating the postglenoid process, a flattened bony expansion on the squamosal part of the temporal bone posterior to the glenoid fossa. — n. The postglenoid process.

post′gle·noi′dal (pŏst′glē·noi′dăl; -d'l), adj. Anat. Postglenoid.

post·grac′ile (pŏst·grăs′ĭl), adj. [post- + L. gracilis slender.] Anat. Designating a secondary fissure of the posterior lateral lobe of the lower surface of the cerebellum.

post·grad′u·ate (-grăd′ū·āt), adj. Of, pertaining to, or designating graduates, or studies pursued after graduation. — n. A student pursuing such studies.

post·hab′it (-hăb′ĭt), v. t. [L. posthabitus, past part. of posthabere.] To subordinate. Rare.

post′haste′ (pŏst′hāst′), n. Speed in traveling, as of a post or courier; now, great haste; — chiefly in phrase in post-haste.

post′haste′ (66), adv. With great speed; in great haste; by fastest possible means; as, to go or send posthaste.

post′haste′ (66), adj. Speedy; immediate. Shak.

post′haste′, v. i. & i. To hasten; to hurry. Obs.

pos·thi′tis (pŏs·thī′tĭs), n. [NL., fr. posth- + -itis.] Med. Inflammation of the prepuce.

postho-, posthe-, posth-, pos′thi-o- (pŏs′thĭ·ō-). [See PENIS.] Combining forms from Greek posthē and posthion, meaning penis, prepuce, used chiefly in medicine, as in pos·thet′o·mist, pos·thet′o·my, pos·thi′tis.

‖post hoc (pŏst hŏk). [L.] After this.

‖post hoc, er′go prop′ter hoc (ûr′gō prŏp′tẽr). [L.] Logic. After this, therefore on account of it, — the fallacy of arguing from mere temporal sequence to cause and effect relationship.

post′hold′er (pŏst′hōl′dẽr), n. [D. posthouder.] In Dutch colonies, a civil official in charge of a post.

post′hole′ (pŏst′hōl′), n. A hole for a post; specif., one sunk in the ground to hold a fence post.

post horn. A simple brass-wind instrument with cupped mouthpiece and a straight tube from two to four feet long, — formerly used by carriers of the public mail, or by the guard of a mail coach, on pleasure coaches, etc.

post horse. A horse intended or used for post riding.

post hospital. See MILITARY HOSPITAL.

post′house′ (pŏst′hous′), n. 1. A house or inn where post horses may be exchanged and postriders accommodated.

2. A post office. Now Dial.

post′hume (pŏs′tŭm; pŏst′hūm), adj. [F.] Posthumous. Obs. — n. A posthumous child or work. Obs.

post′hu·mous (pŏs′tŭ·mŭs), adj. [LL. posthumus, fr. L. postumus, prop., last, hence, late born (of children born after the father's death, or after he had made his will), superl. of posterus, posterior. See POSTERIOR.] 1. Born after the death of the father; as, a posthumous son.

2. Published after the death of its author; as, posthumous poems.

3. Following or occurring after one's death; as, posthumous fame or vindication.

— post′hu·mous·ly, adv. — post′hu·mous·ness, n.

post′hu·mus (pŏs′tŭ·mŭs; pŏst′hū·mŭs), adj. [LL.] = POSTHUMOUS. Obs. — n. a Obs. pl. POSTHUMI (-mī). A posthumous child. b pl. POSTHUMA (-mȧ). Posthumous writings.

Post·hu′mus Le′o·na′tus (pŏst·hū′mŭs lē′ō·nā′tŭs). In Shakespeare's Cymbeline, the husband of Imogen.

post′hyp·not′ic (pŏst′hĭp·nŏt′ĭk), adj. Following after, or ensuing from, hypnosis; as, posthypnotic suggestion (see HYPNOSIS). — post′hyp·not′i·cal·ly (-ĭ·kăl·ĭ), adj.

post′hy·poph′y·sis (-hĭ·pŏf′ĭ·sĭs; -hĭ′-), n. [NL., fr. post- + hypophysis.] Anat. The posterior lobe of the pituitary body, the part derived from the brain. See PITUITARY BODY. — post′hy·po·phys′e·al (pŏst′hī·pō·fĭz′ē·ăl; -hĭ′p·ō-), adj.

post′i·cal (pŏs′tĭ·kăl), adj. Also pos′tic (-tĭk). [L. posticus, fr. post after, behind.] Posterior. — pos′ti·cal·ly, adv.

‖pos′tiche′ (pŏs′tēsh′), adj. [F.] a Counterfeit; artificial. b Superadded to a completed work; — said of an ornament esp. when inappropriate. — n. a A substituted imitation, as, specif., false hair. b Counterfeiting; pretense.

pos·ti′cous (pŏs·tĭ′kŭs), adj. [L. posticus.] Bot. a Posterior. b Situated on the outer side of a filament; — said of an extrorse anther.

pos·ti′cum (pŏs·tĭ′kŭm), n. [L., the rear of a building.] Arch. a A back door; a postern. b = EPINAOS; hence, often = OPISTHODOME.

‖pos·ti′cus (pŏs·tĭ′kŭs), adj. [L.] Anat. Posterior.

pos′til (pŏs′tĭl), n. [F. postille, apostille, fr. ML. postilla, perh. fr. L. post illa (sc. verba) after those (words). Cf. APOSTIL.] Obs. exc. Hist. a Orig., an explanatory marginal note in the Bible; hence, any marginal note; a comment; pl., a commentary. b A short homily on a Scriptural passage, esp. on the Gospel or Epistle for the day; also, a collection of such.

pos′til (pŏs′tĭl), v. t. & i.; POS′TILED (-tĭld) or POS′TILLED; POS′TIL·ING or POS′TIL·LING. [MF. postiller, fr. ML. postillare.] To annotate or gloss; write comments. — pos′til·er, pos′til·ler, n. Both Obs.

pos·til′ion, pos·til′lion (pŏs·tĭl′yŭn; pŏs-), n. [F. postillon, fr. It. postiglione, fr. posta post. See POST postman.] 1. A guide or forerunner for a post; hence, a postrider; a postboy; a courier. Obs.

2. One who rides as a guide the near horse of a pair or of one of the pairs attached to a coach or post chaise, esp. a coach or post chaise without a coachman.

pos·til′ioned, pos·til′lioned (-tĭl′yŭnd), adj. Furnished with a postilion or postilions.

pos′til·late (pŏs′tĭ·lāt), v. t. [ML. postillatus, past part. of postillare.] To postil. Rare. — v. i. a Rare. To postil. b Obs. To preach by expounding Scripture verse by verse, in regular order. — pos′til·la′tion (-lā′shŭn), n. — pos′til·la′tor (pŏs′tĭ·lā′tẽr), n. Rare.

post′im·pres′sion·ism (pŏst′ĭm·prĕsh′ŭn·ĭz′m), n. Art. The theory or practice of certain artists in reaction against the scientific and naturalistic character of impressionism and neoimpressionism, characterized esp. by emphasis on the visual impression. Since postimpressionism stresses self-expression instead of naturalistic representation it is a form of expressionism, cubism being one of its logical phases. Cézanne, Matisse, and Derain (see Biog.) are among its conspicuous exponents. — post′im·pres′sion·ist (-ĭst), n. & adj. — post′im·pres′sion·is′tic (pŏst′ĭm·prĕsh′ŭn·ĭs′tĭk), adj.

post′ing (pōs′tĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of POST. Specif.: n. Bookkeeping. a The act of transferring a record from one account book to another. b A record transferred from one account book to another; as, the debit posting was made in the cash account.

post′ing (pōs′tĭng), adj. Said, done, etc. posthaste; speedy; fleeting; swift. — post′ing·ly, adv.

posting house. A posthouse.

post insulator. See INSULATOR, n., 3.

post·ja′cent (pŏst·jā′sĕnt), adj. [post- + L. jacens, -entis, lying.] Posterior.

post′–Kant′i·an, adj. Following after Kant; esp., pertaining to the school of idealists, Fichte, Schelling, and Hegel, who followed Kant, and developed some of his ideas.

post letter. Any posted letter (i. e., letter delivered to the post office), until it is delivered. British. Obs.

post·lim′i·nar′y (pŏst·lĭm′ĭ·nĕr′ĭ or, esp. Brit., -nẽr·ĭ), adj. 1. Erron. var. of POSTLIMINIARY.

2. Done or carried on subsequently or as a conclusion; subsequent; — opposed to preliminary.

post′li·min′i·ar′y (pŏst′lĭ·mĭn′ĭ·ĕr′ĭ, or, esp. Brit., -ẽr·ĭ), adj. Pertaining to, or involving, the right of postliminium.

post′li·min′i·ate (-āt), v. t. To allow to return from banishment; also, erron., to place behind or after. Obs.

post′li·min′i·ous (-ŭs), adj. [See POSTLIMINIUM.] 1. Of or pertaining to postliminium. Rare.

2. Erron., postliminary; subsequent.

post′li·min′i·um (pŏst′lĭ·mĭn′ĭ·ŭm), n. Also post·lim′i·ny (pŏst·lĭm′ĭ·nĭ). [L. postliminium, fr. post after + limen, liminis, a threshold.] 1. Rom. Law. The right or legal principle (called in full ‖jus post·li·mi′ni·i [jŭs pŏst′lĭ·mĭn′ĭ·ĭ]) in virtue of which a person taken captive in war, upon his return to his own country or his recapture, was restored to his original status and thereupon became vested with all rights and obligations accruing for or against him during his absence; also, the right by which property (except certain kinds) captured and retaken vested in its original owner.

2 Internat. Law. The right or rule of law (called in full ‖jus postliminii) which when persons or things taken by an enemy in war come again under the control of the state to which they belonged, as a general rule, revives the rights belonging or pertaining to them before capture. Except in a very few cases it does not nullify the effects of competent acts done by, or under the authority of, the captor.

post·lim′i·nous (pŏst·lĭm′ĭ·nŭs), adj. Rare. a Subsequent. b Obs. Erron., = POSTLIMINIARY.

post locust. The locust tree Robinia pseudo-acacia.

post′lude (pŏst′lūd), n. [post + prelude.] Music. A closing piece, esp. an organ voluntary at the end of a service.

post·lu′di·um (pŏst·lū′dĭ·ŭm), n. [NL.] Music. A postlude.

post′man (pōst′măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). One who carries letters, etc.; formerly, a post or courier; now, a letter carrier.

post′man, n. Eng. Law. A barrister in the former Court of Exchequer, who had precedence in motions, except in business of the crown; — so called from the post, the measure of length in excise cases, beside which he took his stand. Oxf. E. D. Cf. TUBMAN.

post·mar′i·tal (pŏst·măr′ĭ·tăl; pŏst′mȧ·rĭ′tăl; -t'l), adj. Subsequent to marriage.

post′mark′ (pōst′märk′), n. Any mark officially put on a letter or other article of mail; strictly, the cancellation mark of a post office, containing the name of city, or town, and state, with date.

---

pos·te′ri·or·ly, adv. of POSTERIOR. post′er·ish, adj. See -ISH. — post′er·ish·ness, n.
pos′ter·o·clu′sion (pŏs′tẽr·ō·klōō′zhŭn), n. [postero- + occlusion.] = DISTOCLUSION. pos′ter·y, n. [L. posteri, pl. of posterus.] Posterity. Obs.
post′hex·a·plar′ic, adj. See POST-, 2. pos′til·ler, pos·til′lion, etc. Var. of POSTILER, etc. po·stin′. Var. of POSTEEN.
pos·tique′ (pŏs·tēk′), adj. = POSTICHE, adj., b. [THE POST. Obs.] post′knight′, n. = KNIGHT OF POST′-La′fa·yette′, adj. See POST-, 1 a; LAFAYETTE FORMATION. pos′tle, n. [AS. postol.] An apostle. Obs.
post′le·git′i·ma′tion, n. See POST-, 1 a. post′less, adj. See -LESS.
post′like′, adj. See -LIKE.

post′mark′ (pōst′märk′), v. t.; -MARKED′ (-märkt′); -MARK′ING. To put a postmark on; as, to postmark a letter.

post′mar′riage (pōst′mär′ĭj), n. A marriage after cohabitation.

post′mas′ter (pōst′más′tĕr; 231), n. 1. Orig., an official in charge of posts, or couriers; later, a local official charged with carrying the mails from his station to the next and still later with receiving and distributing the mail. Hist. 2. Hence, one who has charge of a post office and the distribution and forwarding of mails. 3. One who has charge of a station for accommodation of travelers; one who supplies post horses.

post′mas′ter (-más′tĕr), n. [Origin uncert.] At Merton College, Oxford, one of a class of poor scholars instituted in 1380 by John Wyllyot and characterized by receiving a certain allowance or portion of food; a portionist; now, a holder of a scholarship; a scholar.

postmaster general; pl. POSTMASTERS GENERAL. The chief officer of the post-office department of a government. See Forms of Address, in Appendix; PRECEDENCE. — post′-mas′ter-gen′er·al·ship′, n.

post′mas′ters′ stamps. Philately. Provisional postage stamps issued by certain local postmasters in the U. S. and Bermuda (1845–48) before the establishment of federal or governmental postage.

post′ma·tu′ri·ty (pōst′mȧ·tū′rĭ·tĭ), n. Med. State of being past the period of maturity; as, postmaturity of a fetus in the uterus.

post·me′di·a (pōst·mē′dĭ·ȧ), n. [NL.] Zool. A postmedian vein.

post·me′di·al (-ăl), adj. & n. Zool. Postmedian.

post·me′di·an (pōst·mē′dĭ·ăn), adj. Zool. a Behind the middle of the body. b Formerly, designating a vein of the wings of insects that is now regarded as a branch of the cubitus.

post′me·di·as·ti′num (pōst′mē·dĭ·ăs·tī′nŭm), n. [NL.] The posterior mediastinum. See MEDIASTINUM. — post′-me·di·as·ti′nal (-năl; -n'l), adj.

post′me·rid′i·an (pōst′mē·rĭd′ĭ·ăn), adj. [L. postmeridianus, fr. post after + meridianus. See MERIDIAN.] Coming after the sun has passed the meridian; being in, or belonging to, the afternoon.

post meridian. Erron. for POST MERIDIEM.

post me·rid′i·em (mē·rĭd′ĭ·ĕm). [L.] After noon or midday; — abbr. P.M. or p.m.

post′me·rid′i·o·nal (pōst′mē·rĭd′ĭ·ō·năl; -mē-; -n'l), adj. Postmeridian. Rare.

post′–Mes′o·zo′ic rev′o·lu′tion. The crustal deformation at the close of the Mesozoic, during which the Rocky Mountains, and some other ranges of the cordilleran system, had their initial uplift; the Laramide revolution.

post′mil·le·nar′i·an (pōst′mĭl·ē·nâr′ĭ·ăn; 79), n. One who holds the doctrine of postmillennialism. — adj. Designating, or pertaining to, the views of the postmillenarians. — post′mil·le·nar′i·an·ism (-Iz′m), n.

post′mil·len′ni·al (pōst′mĭ·lĕn′ĭ·ăl), adj. Coming, or belonging to the period, after the millennium.

post′mil·len′ni·al·ism (-Iz′m), n. Theol. Theory that the second coming of Christ will be after the millennium, which is to come as the result of the Christianization of the world, presumably without miraculous intervention; — opp. to premillennialism. — post′mil·len′ni·al·ist (-ĭst), n.

post′mil·len′ni·an (-ăn), adj. Postmillennial.

post·min′er·al (pōst·mĭn′ĕr·ăl), adj. [See POST-.] Geol. Of later origin than associated mineral deposits; as, a postmineral fault or dike.

post′mis′tress (pōst′mĭs′trĕs; -trĭs; 119), n. A woman who has charge of a post office. In the United States, in official usage, only postmaster is recognized. — post′-mis′tress-ship, n.

post·mor′tal (pōst·môr′tăl; -t'l), adj. [See POST-; MORTAL.] Subsequent to death.

post mor′tem (pōst môr′tĕm). [L.] After death.

post′–mor′tem (-môr′tĕm; 66), adj. [L., after death.] 1. Occurring, made, done, or formed, after death. 2. Of, pertaining to, or used in a post-mortem examination.

post′–mor′tem, n. a A post-mortem examination. b Hence, Colloq., an ex post facto examination or analysis, as at the conclusion of a hand of bridge.

post′–mor′tem, v. t. & i. To make a post-mortem (of).

post–mortem clot. A blood clot formed in the heart or any of the blood vessels of the body after death.

post–mortem examination. Med. An examination of the body after death, usually with such dissection as will expose the vital organs for determining the cause of death, the character and extent of changes produced by disease, etc.; an autopsy.

post·mor′tu·ar′y (pōst·môr′tū·ĕr′ĭ; -ĕr·ĭ), adj. Post-mortem.

post·mun′dane (-mŭn′dān), adj. Subsequent to this present world.

post·mu′ta·tive (-mū′tȧ·tĭv), adj. Gram. Modifying by the use of postfixes, or suffixes.

post·na′ris (-nā′rĭs), n. [NL.] Anat. One of the posterior nares. See NOSE, n., 9. — post·nar′i·al (-nâr′ĭ·ăl), adj.

post·na′sal (-nā′zăl; -z'l), adj. Anat. & Zool. Posterior to the nose; — applied, specif., to a scale or shield back of the nasal on the head, in certain lizards and snakes. — n. A postnasal shield or scale.

post·na′tal (-nā′tăl; -t'l), adj. Subsequent to birth.

post′nate (pōst′nāt), adj. [ML. postnatus second or subsequently born, fr. L. post after + natus born. See PUNY.] Subsequent; later. — n. A subsequent or later production. Both Obs.

post·na′ti (pōst·nā′tī), n. pl.; sing. -NATUS (-tŭs). [ML.] 1. Those born after (a certain event). In private international law, persons born after some historic event (as the American Revolution) whose rights or status will be affected by the fact of such birth.
2. sing. A second son. Obs.

post′–Ni′cene, adj. Designating, or pertaining to times subsequent to the Council of Nice, esp. within the patristic period. See PATRISTIC PHILOSOPHY.

post note. Com. A bank note payable to order at a specified future time (as disting. from one payable to bearer on demand) and issued as a circulating medium. Hist., U. S.

post·nup′tial (pōst·nŭp′shăl), adj. Being, made, or happening, after marriage; as, a postnuptial settlement. — post·nup′tial·ly, adv.

post oak. An oak (Quercus stellata) of the eastern U. S., with rough gray bark and obtusely lobed leaves; also its hard tough wood much used for posts and rails.

post′–oak′ grape. The turkey grape.

post′–o′bit (pōst′ō′bĭt; -ŏb′ĭt; cf. OBIT), adj. 1. Effective, or to take effect, after death; as, a post-obit gift. 2. Following death; postmundane; post-mortem.

post–obit bond. A bond payable after the death of some person; — applied esp. to one made by a reversioner to secure payment of a loan with a bonus and interest, and to be paid out of his reversion on its vesting in him.

‖post ob′i·tum (ŏb′ĭ·tŭm). [L.] After death.

post octavo. See OCTAVO, n.

post·oc′u·lar (pōst·ŏk′ū·lẽr), adj. Anat. & Zool. Behind the eye; — applied, specif., to one or more scales, in certain snakes and lizards. — n. A postocular scale or shield.

post office. Abbr. P. O. 1. The governmental system or department for forwarding mail matter; — sometimes, in early use, the office of the master of the posts, or postmaster general. 2. An office under governmental superintendence where letters, papers, and other mailable matter are received and distributed; a place appointed for attending to business connected with the mail.

post′–of′fice, adj. Of or pertaining to, or issued or conducted by, the government through the post office; as, a post-office annuity, insurance, savings bank, etc.

post office. A kissing game in which a player calls out one of the opposite sex, usually by number, and so on, in rotation.

post–office address. Address for mail.

post–office box. A private box for mail at a post office.

post–office car. A mail car; a postal car.

Post Office Department. The division of governmental administration charged with the business of the mails. In the United States its head is the postmaster general, a member of the cabinet. See DEPARTMENT, n., 4.

post–office order. A money order issued by a post office.

post′–of′fi·cer, n. A postal official. Rare.

post–office savings bank. Postal savings bank. See SAVINGS BANK.

post·or′bit·al (pōst·ôr′bĭ·tăl; -t'l), adj. Anat. & Zool. Situated behind the orbit; as, the postorbital scale of some fishes and reptiles; specif.: a Designating a downwardly directed process of the frontal bone of many mammals and birds, which forms part of the outer or posterior border of the orbit. In some lower vertebrates this process is borne on or represented by the postfrontal bone. See POSTFRONTAL. b Designating a bone behind and below the postfrontal in many reptiles, forming part of the boundary of the orbit. — n. A postorbital bone or scale.

post·o′tic (pōst·ō′tĭk; -ŏt′ĭk), adj. Anat. Posterior to the otic vesicle.

post·pa′gan (-pā′găn), adj. After the decline of paganism, esp. of pagan Rome.

post′paid′ (pōst′pād′; 66), adj. With postage prepaid.

post·pal′a·tal (pōst·păl′ȧ·tăl; -t'l), adj. 1. Anat. & Zool. Postpalatine. 2. Phonet. Formed between the front or the middle of the tongue and the back part of the hard palate; formerly, velar. — post·pal′a·tal, n.

post·pal′a·tine (-păl′ȧ·tĭn; -tīn), adj. Anat. & Zool. Behind the palate or palatine bones; designating a pair of bones in the skull of certain reptiles (as crocodiles) now believed to be the pterygoids. — n. A postpalatine bone.

post′–Pa′le·o·lith′ic, adj. Designating or pertaining to the period following the Paleolithic or initiating the Neolithic.

post′–Pa′le·o·zo′ic rev′o·lu′tion. A widespread crustal deformation which marked the transition from Paleozoic to Mesozoic; Appalachian revolution.

post′pa·ri′e·tal (pōst′pȧ·rī′ĕ·tăl; -t'l), adj. Anat. & Zool. Behind parietal elements; specif.: a Designating the plates on a serpent's head immediately behind the parietal plates. b Designating the posterior one of the three divisions of the inferior parietal convolution of the brain. — n. A parietal plate or scale.

‖post par′tum (pär′tŭm). [L., after birth.] After parturition, or childbirth.

post·phrag′ma (pōst·frăg′mȧ), n. [NL.] Zool. The phragma of the postscutellum, or postnotum, of an insect.

post·place′ (-plās′), v. t. See POST-, 1 b.

post′–Pli′o·cene, adj. & n. Geol. Pleistocene. See QUATERNARY.

post·pon′a·ble (pōst·pōn′ȧ·b'l), adj. That can be postponed.

post·pone′ (pōst·pōn′; 231), v.; -PONED′ (-pōnd′); -PON′ING (-pōn′ĭng). [L. postponere, postpositum, fr. post after + ponere to place, put. See POST-; POSITION.] Transitive: 1. a To defer; to put off; delay; as, to postpone a meeting to Monday or payments for a year. b Obs. To put (a person) off; to keep (a person) waiting. 2. a Obs. To place after; to place at or nearer the end. b To place after something, in order of precedence, preference, value, or importance; to subordinate; as, all considerations should be postponed to right.
——, Intransitive: To delay; put off; specif., Med., to delay in coming on or recurring.
Syn. — Adjourn, procrastinate. See DEFER.

post·pone′ment, n. Act of postponing; state of being postponed.

post·pon′ence (pōst·pōn′ĕns), n. [L. postponens, pres. part.] Subordination. Rare.

post·pon′er (-ẽr), n. One who or that which postpones.

post·pose′ (-pōz′), v. t. [F. postposer. See POST-; 2d POSE.] To postpone; also, to subordinate; — Obs. exc. specif., to place (a particle, a genitive, etc.) after the word to which it is primarily related in the sentence.

post·pos′it·ed (-pŏz′ĭ·tĕd; -tĭd; 119), adj. [L. postpositus, past part. See POSTPONE.] Subordinated. Rare.

post′po·si′tion (pōst′pō·zĭsh′ŭn), n. [Cf. F. postposition. See POSTPONE.] 1. A placing after; state of being placed after as the word modified; as, the postposition of adjectives in French.
2. [post- + preposition.] A word or particle placed after, or at the end of, another word, as esp. a word or suffix having the function of a preposition (Lat. hactenus; citywards); — distinguished from preposition.

post′po·si′tion·al (pōst′pō·zĭsh′ŭn·ăl; -'l), adj. Of, pertaining to, or of the nature of, postposition.

post·pos′i·tive (-pŏz′ĭ·tĭv), adj. [See POSTPONE.] Placed after another word; characterized by postposition; of the nature of a postposition. — post·pos′i·tive·ly, adv.

post·pos′i·tive, n. A postpositive particle or word.

post·pran′di·al (-prăn′dĭ·ăl), adj. After-dinner; following a banquet; as, postprandial speeches. — post·pran′-di·al·ly, etc.

post′pre·dic′a·ment (pōst′prē·dĭk′ȧ·mĕnt), n. Logic. Any one of five categories, or predicaments, sometimes treated as supplementary to the ten Aristotelian categories or predicaments. The five so-called postpredicaments, treated in chapters 10–15 of his categories, namely, opposition, priority, simultaneity, movement, and possession, are a spurious addition to the ten categories, as shown by Brandis and Zeller. Opposition is treated under relation and quality; priority and simultaneity (or succession) are the two forms of when; movement is a result of activity and passivity; possession is a repetition of the eighth category, or predicament. Cf. CATEGORY, 1.

post·proph′e·sy (pōst·prŏf′ĕ·sĭ), v. t.; -SIED (-sĭd); -SY′ING (-sĭ′ĭng). To prophesy after the event.

post·pu′bis (-pū′bĭs), n. [NL., fr. post- + pubis.] Zool. The part of the pubic bone in birds and some reptiles which lies behind the acetabulum. In birds it represents the true pubis; in reptiles, a distinct process. — post·pu′bic (-bĭk), adj.

post′py·ram′i·dal (pōst′pĭ·răm′ĭ·dăl; -d'l), adj. 1. After the time of pyramid building. Rare. 2. Anat. Dorsal to the pyramids; as, the postpyramidal nucleus, the nucleus gracilis.

post race. Horse Racing. A race in which subscribers declare, at the usual time before a race for declaring to start, the horse or horses they are to run.

post·ra′mus (pōst·rā′mŭs), n. [NL., fr. post- + ramus.] Anat. The horizontal portion of the arborvitae of the cerebellum.

post′–Raph′a·el·ite, adj. Subsequent to the time of Raphael (d. 1520) and his school.

post′re·duc′tion (pōst′rē·dŭk′shŭn). Biol. The reduction of chromosomes in the second meiotic division.

‖post rem (rĕm), or, pl., res (rēz). [L.] Schol. After the thing, or things. See ANTE REM.

post·tre′mo·gen′i·ture (pōs·trē′mō·jĕn′ĭ·tûr), n. [L. postremus last + genitura birth, geniture.] Ultimogeniture.

post′re·mote′ (pōst′rē·mōt′), adj. Late in a remote series, esp. of causes or effects; relatively less remote. Cf. PREREMOTE.

post′rid′er (pōst′rīd′ẽr), n. One who rides post.

post road. A road over which the mail is or was formerly carried; orig., one having a series of posthouses or stations.

pos·trorse′ (pōs·trôrs′), adj. [post- + -trorse as in introrse.] Retrorse; — opposed to antrorse.

post route. A route over which mail is carried.

post′–run′ner, n. One who carries the post on foot; also, a speedy messenger. Archaic.

posts′–and–rails′, n. Post-and-rail tea. Colloq., Australia.

post·scap′u·la (pōst·skăp′ū·lȧ), n. [NL.] Anat. The infraspinous part of the scapula.—post·scap′u·lar (-lẽr), adj.

post·sce′ni·um (-sē′nĭ·ŭm), n. [L., fr. post + scena, scaena, a scene.] The part of a theater behind the scenes; the back part of the stage of a theater. Cf. PROSCENIUM.

post school. Mil., U. S. One of the schools forming a unit in the system of military education at which instruction in common school and vocational subjects is given for enlisted men of the Regular Army.

post′school′ (pōst′skōōl′), adj. Pertaining to a period immediately subsequent to attendance at school; as, post-school education.

post·scribe′ (pōst·skrīb′), v. t. & i. [L. postscribere. See POSTSCRIPT.] To write after; to make a postscript to; to append. Obs.

post′script (pōst′skrĭpt; pōs′skrĭpt; 277), n. [L. postscriptum, neut. past part. of postscribere to write after, fr. post after + scribere to write. See POST-; SCRIBE.] 1. A note or series of notes appended to a completed letter, book, or the like, usually giving an afterthought or additional information. Abbr. P.S., ps.; for a second postscript, P.P.S. 2. Something appended like a postscript. Rare.

post′script, v. t. To add a postscript to.

post·scrip′tum (pōst·skrĭp′tŭm), n. [L.] A postscript.

post′scu·tel′lum (pōst′skū·tĕl′ŭm), n. Also post·scu′-tum (pōst·skū′tŭm). [NL.] Zool. The hindermost dorsal piece of a thoracic somite of an insect; the plate behind the scutellum. — post′scu·tel′lar (-ẽr), adj.

post·sphe′noid (pōst·sfē′noid), n. Anat. The posterior portion of the sphenoid bone, developed in five separate parts, a central basisphenoid, the two alisphenoids, or greater wings, and the two medial pterygoid laminae. — post·sphe′noid, post′sphe·noi′dal (pōst′sfē·noi′dăl; -d'l), adj.

post′syn·ap′tic (pōst′sĭ·năp′tĭk), adj. Biol. Following synapsis during meiosis.

post′syn·sa′cral (-sĭn·sā′krăl), adj. Zool. Behind the synsacrum. — n. A caudal vertebra in birds.

post′sys·tol′ic (pōst′sĭs·tŏl′ĭk), adj. Physiol. Following the systole of the heart; as, a postsystolic murmur.

post·tem′po·ral (pōst·tĕm′pō·răl), adj. Zool. In most teleost fishes, designating, or pertaining to, a bone connecting the back part of the skull and the dorsal part of the pectoral arch. — n. A posttemporal bone.

post term, or ‖post ter′mi·num (tûr′mĭ·nŭm). Law. After the term; — used of a writ. Also, the return of a writ after its term, the writ so returned, or the fee for having it filed.

post′–Ter′ti·ar′y, adj Geol. Following, or later than, the Tertiary; specif., Quaternary. — post′–Ter′ti·ar′y, n.

post·ton′ic (-tŏn′ĭk), adj. [post- + Gr. tonos tension, accent. Cf. TONIC, adj.] Philol. Situated or occurring after the accent or in a syllable after the accented syllable.

post town. 1. A town in which a post office independent of any other local post office is established by law. 2. A town in which post horses are kept. Rare.

post trader. Mil. In the United States service, one of the sutlers whom the Secretary of War was formerly authorized, under certain restrictions, to appoint for each military post.

Post truss. Engin. See TRUSS, n., Illust.

post′tym·pan′ic (pōst′tĭm·păn′ĭk), adj. Anat. Situated behind the tympanic bone or external auditory meatus. — n. A small ossicle so situated in certain mammals.

pos′tu·lan·cy (pŏs′tū·lăn·sĭ), n. Also pos′tu·lance (-lăns). State or period of being a postulant, esp. in a religious order.

pos′tu·lant (-lănt), n. [F., fr. L. postulans, pres. part. of postulare. See POSTULATE.] 1. A petitioner; a candidate. Rare. 2. A candidate for admission to a religious order in the stage preliminary to the novitiate. — pos′tu·lant·ship′, n.

pos′tu·late (-lāt), n. [L. postulatum request, prop. past part. of postulare to demand, prob. a dim. of poscere to demand, for porcscere; akin to Skr. pṛcchā question, inquiry, OHG. forsca, G. forschen to search, investigate. See FLAY.] 1. A request; demand; claim. Obs.

2. A proposition which is taken for granted or put forth as axiomatic; more narrowly, an assumption that provides the first premise in a train of reasoning or for a philosophic system, school of thought, or the like; an underlying hypothesis; as, both science and religion have their postulates.
3. A condition; an essential prerequisite.
4. A proposition which is indemonstrable and constituting, in fact, part of the definition of the terms involved in it, as that a straight line can be drawn between any two points; specif., Geom., orig., in Euclid, a demand that something be granted without proof; an assumption; as, the famous parallel postulate (which see); afterwards, the demand or assumption of the possibility of doing something, as of making some construction. Cf. AXIOM, 1.
5. Scot. Eccl. Hist. In the pre-Reformation church, a person nominated to a superior benefice (as by the sovereign), but not yet confirmed in the office by the Pope.

pos'tu·late (pŏs'tŭ·lāt), v.; -LAT'ED (-lāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -LAT'ING (-lāt'ĭng). Trans.: 1. Eccl. Law. To request (a higher authority) to sanction the promotion of a person who is dispensably disqualified; hence, to nominate subject to the sanction of a higher authority, as the Pope or a sovereign.
2. To demand; require; claim; also, to stipulate.
3. To assume or claim as true, real, existent, or necessary; as, psychology that postulates a soul; to depend upon or start from the postulate of; as, his argument postulates the validity of reason.
4. To assume the possibility of. Chiefly Geom.
——, Intransitive: To demand; to stipulate; to make a postulation.

Syn. — POSTULATE, ASSUME. To ASSUME is to take for granted as the basis of argument (cf. INFERENCE); to POSTULATE is formally to lay down or enunciate an assumption, without proof; as, "That is a fundamental law of psychology which I will therefore proceed to assume" (W. James); "Assuming these principles as the data of our argument, we deduce from them two legitimate conditions" (Coleridge); "In geometry the primary construction is not demonstrated, but postulated" (id.); "It remains, then, that I postulate so much as is necessary for my purpose. And let me take as full credit for what I postulate as if I had demonstrated it" (De Quincey). Cf. INFER, ASSUMPTION, CONJECTURE.

pos'tu·late (pŏs'tŭ·lĭt), adj. Postulated. Obs.
pos'tu·la'tion (-lā'shŭn), n. [F., fr. L. postulatio.] 1. Act of postulating, or that which is postulated; a postulate.
2. Rom. Law. The formal petition of a plaintiff to the praetor or magistrate for leave to prosecute an action.
— pos'tu·la'tion·al (-ăl; -l), adj.

pos'tu·la'tor (pŏs'tŭ·lā'tĕr), n. [L., a claimant, plaintiff.] One who postulates; specif., R.C.Ch., the official who presents a plea for beatification or canonization.

pos'tu·la·to'ry (-lə·tō'rĭ or, esp. Brit., -tĕr·ĭ), adj. [L. postulatorius.] Now Rare. a Petitionary; — of prayer. b Hypothetical; suppositional.

pos'tu·la'tum (-lā'tŭm), n.; pl. -TA (-tə). [L.] A postulate.

pos'tur·al (pŏs'tŭr·ăl), adj. Pertaining to posture.

pos'ture (pŏs'tŭr), n. [F., fr. L. positura, fr. ponere, positum, to place. See POSITION.] 1. Relative arrangement of the different parts of anything, esp. of the parts of the body; the position or bearing of the body as a whole, whether characteristic or assumed for a special purpose; specif., Fine Arts, the position of a figure with regard to the several principal members by which action is expressed; attitude; pose.
2. Relative place or position; situation; arrangement. Now Rare.
3. State or condition at a given time; situation with reference to attitude of persons concerned or disposition of things involved; as, to put a country into a posture of defense.

Such is the merit of the trade laws in this posture of the debate. Burke.

4. State or frame of mind; attitude.

In moody posture. Wordsworth.

Syn. — See POSITION.

pos'ture (pŏs'tŭr), v.; -TURED (-tŭrd); -TUR·ING (-tŭr·ĭng). Transitive: 1. To put in place; to place or present in a given position.
2. To put into, or cause to assume, a posture; to pose.
——, Intransitive: To assume a particular posture or postures, as a model or an acrobat; to pose; attitudinize.

pos'tur·er (-tŭr·ĕr), n. One who postures.

pos'tur·ist (-ĭst), n. A professed posturer or poser.

pos'tur·ize (-īz), v. t. & i.; -IZED (-īzd); -IZ'ING (-īz'ĭng). To put into or to assume a posture; to pose.

post·ve'lar (pōst·vē'lĕr), adj. Phonet. Formed between the back of the tongue and the back part of the velum.

post·ver'bal (-vŭr'băl), adj. Philol. Formed after or from a verb. — n. A noun formed from a verb.

post·vide' (pōst·vīd'), v. t. To provide after the event. Fuller.

post'vo·cal'ic (pōst'vō·kăl'ĭk), adj. Immediately following a vowel.

post'war' (-wôr'), adj. After the war, esp. the World War.

post'ward (pōst'wĕrd), adv. Toward a post.

post'wise' (-wīz'), adj. Post; in haste.

post'wom'an (-wŏŏm'ăn), n.; pl. -WOMEN (-wĭm'ĕn; -ĭn; 119). A woman postman.

post'yard' (-yärd'), n. The yard of a posthouse or post office.

post'zyg·a·poph'y·sis (pōst'zĭg·ə·pŏf'ĭ·sĭs; -zĭ·gə-), n.; pl. -YSES (-sēz). [NL.] Anat. & Zool. A posterior or inferior zygapophysis. — post'zyg·ap'o·phys'i·al (-zĭg·ăp'ō·fĭz'ĭ·ăl), adj.

po'sy (pō'zĭ), n.; pl. POSIES (-zĭz). [Contr. fr. POESY.] 1. A brief sentiment, motto, or legend, orig. and still often poetical or rhyming, as one inscribed on a ring. Chiefly Hist.
2. [Prob. from the use of flowers as of enigmatical significance. Wedgwood.] A flower; a bouquet; nosegay.
3. = ANTHOLOGY, 1. Archaic.
4. A poetical composition; a poem. Rare.

pot (pŏt), n. [Cf. Sw. dial. pott, putt.] Scot. & N. of Eng. a A deep hole or pit, as a natural or artificial one in the ground, or one in the bed of a stream; a pothole. b Obs. Abyss; pit, as of hell.

pot (pŏt), n. [AS. pott (late), prob. fr. (assumed) VL. pottus (whence OF. pot; cf. MLG. pottus, LL. potus cup), of uncert. origin; cf. also MLG. & D. pot. Cf. HODGEPODGE, POTASH, POTEEN, POTTAGE, PUTTY.] 1. A metallic or earthen vessel of any of many rounded forms, used for any of many different purposes, and often provided with a lip or a snout; as, a quart pot, bean pot, coffee*pot,* watering pot, etc.
2. A pot (vessel) with its contents; hence, the quantity contained in a pot, often as a measure; a potful; by ellipsis, a pot of drink; hence, drink; liquor; drinking; potation; as, a pot of ale. "Give her a pot and a cake." De Foe.
3. Any of various objects suggestive of a pot (in sense 1); as: a A chimney pot. b A flowerpot. c A chamber pot. d A valve chamber in a compound-pressure steam pump. e A perforated cask for draining sugar.
4. a Earthenware; pottery; also, an earthenware ornament, as for a chimney. b Dial. A piece of pottery or earthenware, as a marble or piece for playing hopscotch.
5. Colloq. & Slang. a Of money, a large sum. b A pot shot. c pl. Short for potashes. d A pot hat. e A pot-belly. f Brit. A haughty, conceited individual.
6. An act of potting, or bagging or securing; also, something potted. Colloq.
7. Dial. Eng. a Either of two baskets or boxes carried like panniers on a pack saddle, as for manure, sand, etc.; also, a dung cart. b A sausage.
8. Obs. a A bead round the shank of a key, near the bow. b The socket of a bone at a joint.
9. Armor. A plain defensive headpiece; later, and perhaps jocosely, any helmet. Obs. exc. Hist.
10. Card Games. a A pool. b At poker, also, a jack pot.
11. Fireworks. A paper case at the head of a rocket, holding the garniture.
12. Fishery. a A wicker vessel for catching fish, eels, lobsters, etc. b In a pound net, the final enclosure into which the fish are directed by the lead and hearts. It has a netting bottom and can be raised to secure the fish.
13. Founding. A crucible.
14. Gambling. The total of the bets at stake at one time.
15. Linen Bleaching. A potful of linen webs sewn together, containing approximately 10,000 yards.
16. Paper Mfg. Pott, a size of paper. See PAPER, Table.
17. Racing. A horse heavily backed; a favorite. Eng.
18. Sporting. = CUP, n., 14. Slang.
— in (one's) pots. Intoxicated; drunk. — (the) pot calls (the) kettle black. The one who condemns another is equally guilty or at fault. — to boil the pot or make the pot boil. To provide the means of living. Colloq. — to go to pot. To go to pieces (as meat for the pot); to be destroyed; to be ruined; to disintegrate. Colloq. — to keep the pot boiling. To keep going on actively, as in certain games. Colloq.

-pot (-pŏt). A combining form of the noun pot, as in flesh-pot, teapot.

pot (pŏt), v.; POT'TED; POT'TING. Transitive: 1. To place in or as in a pot or pots; as: a To preserve in pots; — now used chiefly in past part. esp. of meats, etc., that have been deviled or are in aspic; as, potted chicken or ham. b To set out or cover in pots, as plants.
2. To shoot for the pot, that is, for cooking; hence: a To secure or hit by or as by a pot shot; to shoot when no special skill is needed. b Colloq. To secure; gain; win; bag.
3. To overreach; outwit; outdo. Slang, Eng.
4. To cap (verses). Obs.
5. Billiards & Pool. To pocket (an object ball).
6. Ceramics. To make or shape; as, well or ill potted.
7. Sulphuric Acid Mfg. To treat (sodium nitrate) in a pot with sulphuric acid to form nitric acid.
——, Intransitive: 1. To drink beer, etc., from a pot; to tipple. Obs.
2. To take a pot shot or shots; to shoot. Colloq.

pot, n. [Dan. & Nor.] See MEASURE, Table.

pot (pō), n. [F.] See MEASURE, Table.

pot (pŏt), n. & v. i. Grimace. Obs.

pot. Dial. var. of PUT, v. t.

po'ta·ble (pō'tə·b'l), adj. [F., fr. LL. potabilis, fr. potare to drink; akin to Gr. potos a drinking, posis a drink, OSlav. piti to drink, Skr. pāti, pibati, he drinks, OIr. ibim I drink, and prob. to L. bibere to drink. Cf. BEVERAGE, IMBIBE, POTSON.] Drinkable; suited for or prepared (as a medicine) for drinking; as, water that is not potable; potable gold. — po'ta·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — po'ta·ble·ness, n.

po'ta·ble (-b'l), n. A beverage; a drinkable; — usually in pl.

‖po'tage' (pō'täzh'), n. [F.] A thick soup.

po·tag'er·ie, po·tag'er·y (pō·tăj'ĕr·ĭ; F. pō'tä'zh'rē'), n. [F. potagerie.] Garden vegetables and herbs; also, kitchen garden.

pot ale. Residue of fermented wort left in the still after whisky or alcohol has been distilled off; burnt ale. It is used to feed swine.

po·tam'ic (pō·tăm'ĭk), adj. [Gr. potamos river.] Of or pertaining to rivers or the navigation of rivers.

pot'a·mo- (pŏt'ə·mō-), potam-. [See FEATHER.] A combining form, Greek potamo-, from potamos, meaning river, as in potamology.

Pot'a·mo·choe'rus (-kē'rŭs), n. [NL., fr. potamo- + Gr. choiros pig.] Zool. The genus constituted by the river hogs.

Pot'a·mog'a·le (pŏt'ə·mŏg'ə·lē), n. [NL., fr. potamo- + Gr. galē weasel.] Zool. A genus of West African aquatic insectivores containing one species (P. velox), about two feet long and of otterlike appearance. It is the type of a family, Pot'a·mo·gal'i·dae (-mō·găl'ĭ·dē).

Pot'a·mo·ge'ton (-mō·jē'tŏn), n. [L., pondweed, fr. Gr. potamogeitōn, fr. potamos river + geitōn neighbor.] Bot. a A large genus of aquatic herbs, the pondweeds (family Zannichelliaceae), found in quiet waters throughout temperate regions. They have spicate flowers with a four-parted perianth, and usually floating leaves which often vary greatly in shape from the submersed ones. P. pectinatus is the pondgrass. b [not cap.] A plant of this genus.

pot'a·mol'o·gy (pŏt'ə·mŏl'ō·jĭ), n. [potamo- + -logy.] The science of rivers. — pot'a·mo·log'i·cal (-mō·lŏj'ĭ·kăl), adj. — pot'a·mol'o·gist (-mŏl'ō·jĭst), n.

pot'a·mom'e·ter (-mŏm'ĕ·tĕr), n. [potamo- + -meter.] Elec. A current meter.

Pot'a·mon'i·das (-mŏn'ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL. See POTAMO-; -IDAE.] A family of crabs, including the river crabs. See RIVER CRAB.

pot'a·moph'i·lous (-mŏf'ĭ·lŭs), adj. [potamo- + -philous.] River-loving. Rare.

pot'a·mo·plank'ton (-mō·plăngk'tŏn), n. [potamo- + plankton.] Plankton of rivers.

pot arch. Glass Mfg. A kiln used in preheating clay pots before they are placed in the furnace.

pot'ash' (pŏt'ăsh'), n. [After D. potasch, whence F. potasse. See 2d POT; 2d ASH.] 1. Potassium carbonate, esp. that obtained by leaching wood ashes, evaporating the lye (usually in iron pots), and calcining the residue. This yields crude potash, colored and very impure. Purified potash, a white solid, is often called pearlash or pearlashes. See POTASSIUM CARBONATE.
2. Potassium hydroxide, usually called caustic potash.
3. Potassium oxide, K_2O; — equiv., in such phrases as sulphate of potash, potash salts, potash alum, etc., to potassium. Cf. 1st LIME, 2, Note.

Geissler Potash Bulbs.

pot'ash' (pŏt'ăsh'), v. t. To treat with potash; specif., to caseharden with potassium ferrocyanide.

potash alum. See ALUM, 1.

potash bulbs. Anal. Chem. An arrangement of glass bulbs for holding a solution of caustic potash, used for absorbing carbon dioxide.

potash by alcohol. Chem. Caustic potash purified by dissolving in absolute alcohol.

pot'ash·er·y (pŏt'ăsh·ĕr·ĭ; pŏt·ăsh'-), n. A place where potash is made.

potash feldspar. See FELDSPAR.

potash granite. Petrog. Any granite rich in potash and poor in soda.

potash hunger. Plant Pathol. An abnormal condition in plants, esp. tobacco, caused by lack of potash.

potash niter. Potassium nitrate.

potash soap. A soap made with potash. See SOAP, n., 1.

po·tass' (pō·tăs'; pŏt'ăs), n. [F. potasse. See POTASH.] Potash; potassium.

po·tas'sa (pō·tăs'ə), n. [NL. See POTASH.] Potash.

pot'ass·am'ide (pŏt'ăs·ăm'ĭd; -īd; 157), n. Also -id. [potassium + amide.] Chem. A white crystalline solid, KNH_2, obtained by heating potassium in ammonia.

po·tas'sic (pō·tăs'ĭk), adj. Chem. Pertaining to, or containing, potassium.

pot'ass·if'er·ous (pŏt'ăs·ĭf'ĕr·ŭs), adj. [potassium + -ferous.] Chem. Containing potash or other compounds of potassium.

po·tas'si·o- (pō·tăs'ĭ·ō-). Chem. A combining form of potassium, as in *potassio*mercuric iodide, $KHgI_3$.

po·tas'si·um (pō·tăs'ĭ·ŭm; 159), n. [NL. See POTASS, POTASH.] Chem. A soft, light, silver-white metal of the alkali group, occurring abundantly in nature, but always combined, as in the chloride (sylvite), nitrate (saltpeter), sulphates, and many silicates. Symbol, K (kalium); at. no., 19; at. wt., 39.100. Sp. gr., 0.86. Metallic potassium was discovered by Davy in 1807. It is prepared from certain of its compounds by electrolysis or by heating with a reducing agent, as carbon or iron. Its electric conductivity being affected by light, it is used in photoelectric cells. It oxidizes rapidly in air, and with water it reacts violently, evolving hydrogen, which takes fire; hence, the metal, to be preserved, is kept under kerosene or other hydrocarbon liquid. Chemically, potassium is chiefly univalent, forming the oxide K_2O, the hydroxide KOH (caustic potash), and a large series of important salts, which are used in making glass, gunpowder, fertilizers, many drugs and chemicals, etc. They impart a violet color to flames. The Stassfurt deposits in Germany constitute the chief commercial source of potassium compounds, but other important deposits occur in Alsace, Spain, Russia, and southwestern United States. The greater part of the potassium is obtained from the naturally occurring chlorides of potassium and other elements, associated with common salt, in evaporation residues of former geological periods.

potassium acid oxalate. See POTASSIUM OXALATE.

potassium acid sulphate. See POTASSIUM SULPHATE.

potassium acid tartrate. = CREAM OF TARTAR.

potassium alum. See ALUM, 1.

potassium amide. = POTASSAMIDE.

potassium bicarbonate. See POTASSIUM CARBONATE.

potassium bichromate. = POTASSIUM DICHROMATE.

potassium binoxalate. See POTASSIUM OXALATE.

potassium bisulphate. See POTASSIUM SULPHATE.

potassium bitartrate. = CREAM OF TARTAR.

potassium bromide. Chem. A colorless or white crystalline compound, KBr, having a biting, saline taste. It is used in medicine as a sedative, and in photography for making gelatin-silver bromide emulsions and, in developing, as a restrainer.

potassium carbonate. Chem. Either of two white crystalline salts, normal potassium carbonate, K_2CO_3, or potassium bicarbonate, $KHCO_3$; specif., the normal salt, made from wood ashes, beet-sugar residues, potassium chloride, etc., and like soda used in making glass, soap, etc. It forms a strongly alkaline solution. See POTASH, 1.

potassium chlorate. Chem. A colorless or white crystalline salt, $KClO_3$, with a cooling, saline taste, prepared by electrolysis of potassium chloride, and in other ways. Being a strong oxidizer, it is used chiefly in explosives, fireworks, and matches.

potassium chloride. Chem. A colorless or white crystalline compound, KCl, occurring as the mineral sylvite, in carnallite, also in natural waters, in plant and animal fluids, etc. It is used as a fertilizer and in making other potassium salts.

potassium chromate. Chem. A yellow, crystalline salt, K_2CrO_4, used similarly to potassium dichromate.

potassium cobaltinitrite. See COBALTINITRITE.

potassium cyanide. Chem. A white, crystalline, exceedingly poisonous salt, KCN, made by heating potassium carbonate and carbon with ammonia, and in other ways. It is used esp. in electroplating and in the cyanide process.

potassium dichromate. Chem. A bitter soluble salt, $K_2Cr_2O_7$, forming large orange-red crystals, yellow in aqueous solution, largely used in dyeing, in making chrome pigments, as an oxidizing agent, etc. In photography it is added as a sensitizer to solutions of gelatin or glue, rendering these substances insoluble on exposure to light.

potassium ferricyanide. Chem. A salt, $K_3Fe(CN)_6$, formed by oxidation of the ferrocyanide, crystallizing in large red prisms; red prussiate of potash.

potassium ferrocyanide. Chem. A tough, yellow, crystalline salt, $K_4Fe(CN)_6$, made chiefly from the cyanogen compounds obtained as by-products in the distillation of coal; yellow prussiate of potash. It is not poisonous.

potassium hydrate. = POTASSIUM HYDROXIDE.

potassium hydrogen oxalate. See POTASSIUM OXALATE.

potassium hydrogen sulphate. See POTASSIUM SULPHATE.

potassium hydroxide. Chem. A white deliquescent solid, KOH, dissolving, with much heat, in less than its weight of water, to form a strongly alkaline and caustic liquid; caustic potash. It is used chiefly in making soap and as a reagent in chemistry.

potassium hypoantimonate. See HYPOANTIMONIC ACID.

potassium hypochlorite. Chem. An unstable salt, KOCl, known chiefly in aqueous solution. See JAVELLE WATER.

pos'tums. ✝ APOSTEM.

posture maker. See MAKER.

Post-ver'ta (pōst·vŭr'tə), n. [L.] See CARMENTA.

po'ta·bl. Potable. Ref. Sp.

potable gold. = AURUM POTABILE.

potage. ✝ POTTAGE.

pot'a·ger (pŏt'ə·jĕr), n. [Obs. F.] A pottage maker. Obs.

pot'a·gere, n. [F. potager.] A kitchen garden. Obs.

pot'all. Var. of PATEL. India.

Pot'a·mo·bi'i·dae (pŏt'ə·mō·bī'ĭ·dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. potamo- + Gr. bios life.] Syn. of ASTACIDAE.

Pot'a·mo·ge'to·na'ceae (-jē'tō·nā'shĭs), adj. [NL.] Syn. of ZANNICHELLIACEAE. — pot'a·mo·ge'to·na'ceous (pŏt'ə·mō·jē'tō·nā'shŭs), adj.

po'tance. Var. of POTENCE, stud.

po·tar'go. ✝ BOTARGO, a relish.

pot'ash'es (pŏt'ăsh'ĕz; -ĭz; 119), n. pl. Chem. = POTASH, n., 1.

potassium iodide. Chem. A colorless or white crystalline compound, KI, very soluble in water. It is used variously in medicine, as for syphilis and rheumatism, and also in photography for preparing gelatin emulsions. potassium manganate. Chem. An unstable green salt, K_2MnO_4, readily converted into potassium permanganate. potassium nitrate. Chem. A colorless or white crystalline salt, KNO_3, with a cooling, saline taste; niter; saltpeter. It occurs as a product of nitrification in most arable soils, esp. in hot, dry countries, where it is extracted by leaching. It is usually made by reaction between potassium chloride and sodium nitrate or nitrogen pentoxide. Potassium nitrate is a strong oxidizer, whence it is employed in making gunpowder and other explosives, fireworks, and matches. It is also used in preserving meat and in medicine.
potassium oxalate. Chem. Any of three crystalline oxalates of potassium; specif., the normal salt, $K_2C_2O_4$, used in photography and to prevent the clotting of blood (as in blood tests, etc.). Potassium hydrogen (or acid) oxalate, or potassium binoxalate, KHC_2O_4, found in rhubarb, sorrel, and other plants, and potassium tetroxalate, $KHC_2O_4 \cdot H_2C_2O_4$, are used for removing ink stains, scouring metals, etc., under the names salt of sorrel and salt of lemon. potassium permanganate. Chem. A salt, $KMnO_4$, crystallizing in dark-purple prisms having a greenish luster, and dissolving in water with a beautiful purple-red color. It is used as an oxidizer and disinfectant.
potassium persulphate. Chem. A white crystalline salt, $K_2S_2O_8$, used in bleaching, oxidizing, etc. potassium sodium tartrate. = ROCHELLE SALT. potassium sulphate. Chem. Either of two white crystalline sulphates of potassium; specif., the normal sulphate, K_2SO_4, used in the manufacture of potash alum, as a fertilizer, as a mild purgative, etc. Potassium hydrogen (or acid) sulphate, or potassium bisulphate, $KHSO_4$, is used as a flux.
potassium tetroxalate. See POTASSIUM OXALATE. po'tate (pō'tāt), adj. [L. potatus, prop., drunk.] Alchemy. Liquefied. B. Jonson.
po·ta'tion (pō·tā'shŭn), n. [OF. potacion, fr. L. potatio, fr. potare. See POTABLE.] 1. A drinking; a draft. 2. A drink; beverage; alcoholic liquor. 3. A drinking party; a symposium (sense 1); a convivial gathering. Hist. 4. Indulgence in drink; a drinking bout. po'ta·tive (pō'tă·tĭv), adj. [Obs. F. potatif.] Given to drinking. Rare.
po·ta'to (pō·tā'tō; 190), n.; pl. -TOES (-tōz). [Sp. patata potato, orig., sweet potato, var. of batata sweet potato, fr. Taino batata.] 1. The sweet potato. In the 16th and 17th centuries believed to be an aphrodisiac, whence Shakespeare's use of the phrase "potato finger." 2. a The edible starchy subterranean tuber of an American plant (Solanum tuberosum), forming a staple article of diet in most temperate regions. Potatoes are developed as enlargements of underground rhizomes; they contain about 18 per cent of starch, about 78 per cent of water, and 2.2 per cent of protein. Important varieties cultivated in the United States include Irish Cobbler, Early Ohio, Green Mountain, Rural, and Burbank; in Great Britain, Epicure, Great Scot, Kerr's Pink, King Edward VII, and Arran Chief. b The plant which bears these tubers. It is an erect herb, with compound pinnate leaves, white, yellow, blue, or purplish flowers, and green, yellowish, or purple berries or "balls." Orig. native to the Andes of Peru, it was introduced into Europe about 1585. Many years later it was brought to the U. S., but did not become an important farm crop until after considerable experimentation by several European plant breeders. A closely related species, or possibly subspecies, grows wild in the mountains of the southern United States and Mexico. c A tuber of S. tuberosum cooked and served as food; as, mealy potatoes; also, a dish of these tubers mashed, riced, or the like. 3. Any of several closely related species of Solanum, esp. S. commersonii. See URUGUAY POTATO. 4. Colloq. a Humorous. A person of a certain (often specified) sort. b The fair or right thing; — chiefly in phrase not quite the clean potato.
po·ta'to (pō·tā'tō), v. t. To plant with potatoes.
potato aphid. A common aphid (Aphis solanifolii) which occurs on the potato and many other plants, as well as some orchard trees. It usually overwinters on rosebushes.
potato apple. The seed ball of the potato.
potato ball. a A small ball cut with a special scoop from a potato. b A potato croquette. c A potato apple. potato bean. a The yam bean. b The groundnut Apios tuberosa.
potato beetle or bug. The Colorado potato beetle.
potato blight or disease. Plant Pathol. Any blight or decay attacking the potato; specif., early blight or late blight (see these terms).
po·ta'to–bo'gle, n. A scarecrow. Scot.
potato cake. A mixture of potatoes and flour fried like a pancake.
potato canker. Plant Pathol. a Potato wart. b A form of powdery scab, in which there is destruction of the flesh of the tuber leaving hollowed out eroded areas larger than the usual spots. See POWDERY SCAB.
potato chips. Thin slices of raw potato fried crisp in deep fat.
potato family. The Solanaceae.
potato fern. a In New Zealand, the fern Marattia fraxinea. Its large starchy rootstock is roasted and eaten by the natives. b In Australia, the fern Dryopteris cordifolia, whose small ovoid tubers are similarly used.
potato finger. See POTATO, n., 1. potato flea beetle. A small oval shining black flea beetle (Epitrix cucumeris), which injures the leaves of a great variety of plants.
potato flour. A palatable, nutritious flour prepared from the potato, usually by cooking, drying, and grinding. It is of limited use, chiefly as a substitute for wheat flour.
potato fork. A hand fork with several curved tines, used for digging potatoes.
potato fungus. The fungus causing late blight.
potato grub. The larva of the potato moth.
potato hook. A hand tool with long hooked tines, used for the digging of potatoes and other tuber crops.
potato leaf curl. = EARLY BLIGHT a. potato leaf hopper. The apple leaf hopper which causes a leaf blight of potatoes, known as hopperburn.
potato masher. Any of several kitchen utensils for mashing cooking potatoes.
potato mildew or mold. Potato blight.
potato mosaic. Plant Pathol. Any of a group of virus diseases of the potato characterized by more or less mottling of the foliage, but also producing or attended by other symptoms. These various types or phases of disease have been distinguished according to the conspicuous effect, as aucuba mosaic, crinkle, interveinal mosaic, leaf roll, mild mosaic, rugose mosaic, etc.
potato moss. The pondgrass.
potato, or po·ta'to–tu'ber, moth. The splitworm moth.
potato murrain. Potato blight.
potato oat. An early variety of oat with a compact spike.
potato onion. A multiplier onion. See MULTIPLIER, 6. potato pea. The groundnut Apios tuberosa. potato peeler. See PEELER. po·ta'tor (pō·tā'tŏr), n. [L.] A tippler. Rare.
potato race. A race in which the racers pick up and carry one by one to a receptacle potatoes or like objects placed at intervals along a course.
potato ring. A ring or hoop used in Ireland, in the 18th century, as a stand for a bowl or the like; — from the erroneous notion that it was used to keep a heap of potatoes together on the table.
potato rot. Plant Pathol. Any rot of potato tubers caused by bacteria or fungi, as blight, dry rot, blackleg, leak.
po·ta·to'ry (pō'tă·tō'rĭ or, esp. Brit., -tēr·ĭ), adj. [L. potatorius, fr. potator a drinker, fr. potare to drink.] Of, pertaining to, or addicted to, drinking; also, potable.
potato scab. Plant Pathol. Any of certain fungus diseases of the potato, characterized by various crustlike spots (scabs) on the tubers; specif., actinomycosis (corky scab), caused by Actinomyces scabies, in which the lesions are of dark-colored corky tissue. The diseased areas may be superficial, depressed (pitted scab), or elevated either with vertical margins (stud scab) or with sloping margins (tumulus scab). Cf. POWDERY SCAB.
potato set. A (potato) tuber or part of a tuber with at least one eye, used for planting. po·ta'to–sick', adj. See SICK, adj., 13. potato stalk borer. The potato weevil. potato tree. Any of several arborescent, or nearly arborescent, species of the genus Solanum, esp. the Brazilian S. macranthum, the Chilean S. crispum, etc., none of which are true potatoes.
po·ta'to–tu'ber moth. The splitworm moth.
potato vine. Potato plant. potato wart. Plant Pathol. A fungus disease of potato tubers caused by a pond-scum parasite (Synchytrium, syn. Chrysophlyctis, endobioticum), producing dark (yellow when young) warty excrescences which originate in the eyes.
potato weevil. An American weevil (Trichobaris trinotata) whose larva lives in the stalks of potato plants.
potato whisky. Whisky distilled from potatoes. potato wilt. Plant Pathol. Any wilt of potatoes, esp. one caused by Fusarium oxysporum or Verticillium albo-atrum.
‖pot'–au'–feu' (pō'tō'fū'), n. [F., lit., pot on the fire.] Cookery. A dish of broth, meat, and vegetables boiled together in a pot, — esp. common among the French.
Pot'a·wat'o·mi (pŏt'ă·wŏt'ō·mĭ), n.; pl. -MI (-mĭ), -MIS (-mĭz). Also Pot'a·wat'a·mi (-ă·mĭ). An Indian of an Algonquian tribe formerly dwelling on the western shore of Lake Michigan. They favored the French in the early wars, and later were hostile to the United States. About 1,800 are citizens of Oklahoma, and there are small bands in Kansas, Michigan, and Ontario.
pot ball. A dumpling. pot'bank' (pŏt'băngk'), n. A pottery. Dial. Eng.
pot barley. Hulled barley.
pot'bel'lied (pŏt'bĕl'ĭd), adj. Having a potbelly.
pot'bel'ly (-ĭ), n. A protuberant belly; also, a potbellied person.
pot'boil' (pŏt'boil'), v. t. & i. To produce or work merely to gain a living; to make potboilers.
pot'boil'er (-boil'ĕr), n. 1. A potwaller. Rare. 2. A book, painting, etc., executed solely, and often hastily, for its monetary return.
3. One who produces potboilers. Colloq.
pot bottom. Mining. A boulder or concretion in a roof slate, rounded like the bottom of a pot.
pot'–bound', adj. a Of potted plants, having roots so densely matted as to allow little or no space for further growth. b Figuratively, unable to grow or expand fully because of interferences or restrictions.
pot'boy' (pŏt'boi'), n. A boy who carries pots of ale, beer, etc.; a menial in a public house.
pot'boy'dom (pŏt'boi'dŭm), n. See -DOM. potch (pŏch). Dial. var. of POACH. potch, v. t. Paper Mfg. To bleach (pulp) in a potcher. potch, v. t. [G. patschen.] To slap; hit; strike. Dial.
pot cheese. a Cottage cheese. b A cheese of buttery consistency and a flavor resembling Camembert, orig. made locally in Pennsylvania from homemade cottage cheese.
potch'er (pŏch'ĕr), n. 1. Var. of POACHER. Obs. 2. Paper Mfg., etc. a A machine in which pulp from the breakers is further washed, and bleached by chloride; — called also potcher engine, or potching engine or machine. b = POTCHERMAN. potch'er·man (-măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). A man who operates a potcher.
pot'–clay', n. A variety of fire clay suitable for the manufacture of the melting pots used in glassmaking.
pot'–col'or, v. t. Also pot'–col'our. To color molten glass in a glass pot, as by adding coloring material.
pot companion. A companion in drinking; fellow toper. pot'crook' (pŏt'krŏŏk'); n. A pothook. Now Dial.
pot culture. Hort. The growing of plants in flowerpots; — used esp. of plants usually grown in the open, as strawberries, hardy perennials, etc.
pot·dar' (pŏt·dăr'), n. [Hind. potdār.] A cashier; a weigher and assayer of coins.
pot derby. A pot hat.
pot dung. Farmyard dung; — removed in pots. Dial.
pote (pōt), v. t. [See 3d POTTER.] To push; thrust; kick; poke; stir; crimp. — n. A stick to poke with; a poker; a kick. Both Now Dial.
pot earth. = POTTER'S CLAY. pot'e·car'y (pŏt'ē·kĕr'ĭ; -kēr·ĭ). Var. of POTHECARY. Now Dial.
po·teen' (pō·tēn'), po·theen' (-thēn'), n. [Ir. poitīn a small pot, whisky made in private stills, dim. of poite, pota, pot, fr. E. pot. See 2d POT.] Whisky distilled privately or illicitly as, orig., in Ireland.
po'tence (pō'tĕns), n. [F., fr. OF. potence crutch (after OF. post a post), fr. L. potentia power. See POTENCY; cf. POTENCE potency.] 1. A cross, gibbet, or gallows. Obs. 2. Mil. A formation in which a portion of a line is thrown forward or backward at an angle to the main line. Now Rare. 3. Watchmaking. The stud in which the bearing for the lower pivot of the verge is made; any hang-down bracket used in watchwork. po'tence (pō'tĕns), n. [OF., fr. L. potentia. See POTENCY.] Potency; specif., degree of power or grade in development of potentialities. Cf. POTENCY, 5. po'ten·cy (pō'tĕn·sĭ; 128), n.; pl. -CIES (-sĭz). [L. potentia, fr. potens, -entis, potent. See POTENT; cf. POTENCE, PUISSANCE.] 1. Quality or state of being potent; as: a Authority; power. b General efficiency or capability; power or energy more or less free to act or not; as, the potency of the divine will. "A place of potency and sway o' the state." Shak. c Specific efficacy or capacity; ability to effect a certain result. d Power of procreation. e Intoxicating quality. 2. One having power or authority; — sometimes used humorously as a title. 3. Capability of developing in accordance with its nature; potentiality; as, the potency of a seed to become a plant. 4. a State of possessing transferred or derived power; strength due to external causes. b Capability of being acted on to certain ends; receptivity to certain kinds of causes; determinability. 5. Anthropol. A supernatural or daemonic power; a minor, often local, god. 6. Homeopathy. The increased power of a medicine as produced by attenuation. 7. Math. = CARDINAL NUMBER. 8. [G. potenz.] Philos. Grade of progress from the physical to the spiritual; thus, gravitation, light, and life are respectively the 1st, 2d, and 3d potencies, or ratios of the objective and subjective; — a term used by Schelling. po'tent (pō'tĕnt), adj. [L. potens, -entis, pres. part. of posse to be able, to have power, fr. potis able, capable (akin to Skr. pati master, lord, Gr. posis husband, Lith. pats, Goth. brūthfaths bridegroom) + esse to be. Cf. HOST landlord, AM, DESPOT, PODESTA, POSSIBLE, POWER, PUISSANT.] 1. Having or wielding great power; exercising effectively authority, control, or dominion; puissant; mighty; highly influential, effective, or cogent; — regarded as stronger than powerful; as, a potent prince, interest, or argument.

> Moses once more his potent rod extends. Milton.

2. Highly efficacious chemically or medicinally; having great virtue; as, a potent remedy or cleansing fluid. 3. Having the power of procreation.
Syn. — Mighty, strong, able, efficient, forcible, efficacious. See POWERFUL.
Ant. — Weak, impotent, ineffectual. See POWERLESS.
— po'tent·ly, adv. — po'tent·ness, n. po'tent, n. Obs. a Power or a power. b A potent person; a potentate. c Mil. A formal order; warrant. po'tent, n. [See POTENCE.] 1. A crutch; a staff with a crosspiece; also, a crozier. Obs. 2. A support; a stay. Archaic. 3. a Her. One of the furs, really a form of vair; a surface composed of patches supposed to represent crutch heads, always alternately argent and azure, unless otherwise specially mentioned. b Any of the T-shaped figures forming this fur.

Potent, 3 a.

po'tent, adj. Her. a Terminating at its extremities in crutchlike figures or potents; as, a cross potent. See CROSS, Illust. b Formed of potents. po'ten·ta·cy (pō'tĕn·tă·sĭ), n. [See POTENTATE, n.] Sovereignty. Obs. po'ten·tate (pō'tĕn·tāt), adj. Powerful; ruling. Obs. po'ten·tate (pō'tĕn·tāt; 128), n. [L. potentatus power, rule; ruler. See POTENT, adj.] One that possesses great power or sway; a ruler, prince, sovereign, or monarch; rarely, a powerful nation, city, company, or the like.
po'tent–coun'ter·po'tent, adj. Her. Designating a kind of fur similar to, or perhaps the same as, potent (which see).
po·ten'tial (pō·tĕn'shăl), adj. [Cf. F. potentiel. See POTENCY.] 1. Having potency; potent; mighty; influential; highly efficacious. Now Rare. "And hath in his effect a voice potential." Shak. 2. Existing in possibility, not in actuality; becoming as distinguished from being; possible, or in the making, as opposed to actual or realized; latent; as, a potential hero; a potential market for copper; potential disasters. 3. Gram. Expressive of possibility; as, a potential use.
Syn. — See LATENT.
— po·ten'tial·ly, adv. — po·ten'tial·ness, n.
po·ten'tial, n. 1. That which is possible; potentiality. 2. Gram. The potential mood; a verb form of that mood. 3. Math. & Physics. Any of certain functions from which the intensity (or, in some cases, the velocity) at any point in a field may be readily calculated; technically, a scalar function characteristic of potential vectors, being such that the vector is its gradient; as, electric potential. The potential at a point is the amount of work required to bring a unit quantity of electricity (in an electric field), or unit mass (in a gravitational field) from infinity to that point. The difference of potential, or potential difference, between two points is the amount of work required to bring a unit charge or mass from one point to another; it is the algebraic difference between their individual potentials. 4. Specif., Elec., a characteristic of a point in an electric field or circuit indicated by the work necessary to bring a unit positive charge to it from infinity; the degree of electrification as referred to some standard, as that of the earth. See ELECTROMOTIVE FORCE. Potential is analogous to level in mechanics and hydrostatics. potential cautery. A substance which cauterizes by chemical action, as lunar caustic; also, cautery by it. Cf. ACTUAL CAUTERY. potential coil or winding. Elec. A coil or winding connected in shunt across a circuit, as in a wattmeter. potential energy. See ENERGY, n., 5. potential function. Math. A scalar point function whose gradient is a given vector field, or, more usually, its negative. As the potential function has in many cases its Laplacian zero, solutions of Laplace's equation $\Delta_2 V = 0$ are frequently called potential functions.
po·ten'ti·al'i·ty (pō·tĕn'shĭ·ăl'ĭ·tĭ), n.; pl. -TIES (-tĭz). Quality or state of being potential; specif.: a Power; potency. b Possibility, not actuality; inherent capability or disposition not actually exhibited; also, an instance of this; a possibility or capacity, or a person or thing embodying this; as, having existence in potentiality; with no potentiality for success; the potentialities of matter; presidential potentialities. c Elec. = POTENTIAL, n., 3. Rare.
po·ten'tial·ize (pō·tĕn'shăl·īz), v. t. & i.; -IZED (-īzd); -IZ'ING (-īz'ĭng). To make or become potential; — said specif. of energy. — po·ten'tial·i·za'tion (-ĭ·zā'shŭn; -ĭ·zăʹ-), n.
potential mood. Gram. A verbal form or phrase used to express possibility, liberty, power, by the use of may, can, might, could, would, or should (I may go; he can write).
potential transformer. Elec. See TRANSFORMER. potential vector. A vector which may be expressed as the gradient of a scalar function.
po·ten'ti·ate (pō·tĕn'shĭ·āt), v. t.; -AT'ED (-āt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -AT'ING (-āt'ĭng). a To endow with power or potentiality. b To render possible. c Pharm. To render more active physiologically. — po·ten'ti·a'tion (-ā'shŭn), n.

Po'ten·til'la (pō'tĕn·tĭl'ȧ), n. [NL. dim. See 1st POTENT.] Bot. A large genus of herbs (family Rosaceae), the cinquefoils, or five-fingers, abundant in temperate regions. They have alternate pinnate or palmate leaves, and yellow, purple, or white flowers with a persistent bracted calyx and five petals. The fruit consists of many small achenes heaped on a dry receptacle. See CINQUEFOIL, 1.

po·ten'ti·om'e·ter (pō·tĕn'shĭ·ŏm'ē·tĕr), n. [potential + -meter.] a Elec. An instrument for measuring or comparing electromotive forces. It consists essentially of a resistance with a sliding contact, or its equivalent, used in connection with a galvanometer and a standard cell. b Radio, = VOLTAGE DIVIDER. — po·ten'ti·o·met'ric (-ō·mĕt'rĭk), adj.

po'tent·ize (pō'tĕn·tīz; 128), v. t.; -IZED (-tīzd); -IZ'ING (-tīz'ĭng). To render potent; specif., Homeopathy, to render (a drug) medicinally more effective by attenuation, as by comminution, dilution, etc.; to dynamize.

Po·te'ri·um (pō·tē'rĭ·ŭm), n. [L., a drinking cup, also a plant, prob. a species of Astragalus, fr. Gr. potērion.] Bot. A small genus of thorny shrubs or herbs (family Rosaceae) with pinnate leaves and greenish flowers. P. sanguisorba is the salad burnet. See SANGUISORBA.

po'ter (pō'tĕr), n. [Prob. fr. L. potare to drink.] A drinker; toper. Rare.

po·tes'tas (pō·tĕs'tăs), n. [L., lit., power.] 1. Math., Chem., etc. Power. Obs.
2. Rom. Law. The authority that a Roman citizen had over descendants in his household; — short for PATRIA POTESTAS.
— po·tes'tal (pō·tĕs'tăl; -t'l), adj.

po'tes·tate (pō'tĕs·tāt), n. [L. potestas, potestatis, power; cf. OF. potestat. See POTENT.] 1. Obs. a Potentate. b Power. c An angelic or demonic power; esp., one of the angelic powers (see CELESTIAL HIERARCHY); — rendering potestas in the Vulgate.
2. An Italian podesta; also, the chief magistrate of any of certain Turkish towns.

po'tes·ta'tive (-tā'tĭv), adj. [F. potestatif, fr. LL. potestativus.] Having power or authority; authoritative. Rare, exc. as designating a condition within the power or control of a given party.

‖po'test quis per a'li·um quod po'test fa'ce·re per se·ip'sum (pō'tĕst kwĭs pĕr ăl'ĭ·ŭm kwŏd, fās'ē·rē, sē·ĭp'sŭm). [L.] Law. Anyone is able to do by another what he is able to do by himself.

pot'eye' (pŏt'ī'), n. In textile mills, a ringlike device through which raw material, yarn, or cloth is passed either to give it form or to transfer it from one machine to another.

pot fisher. Rare. a A pot fisherman b One who catches fish for his own food. Cf. POTHUNTER, 2.

pot fisherman; pl. POT FISHERMEN. A fisherman buoyed up by a floating pot into which he puts his catch.

pot'ful (pŏt'fōōl; -f'l), n.; pl. -FULS (-fōōlz; -f'lz). As much as a pot will hold.

pot furnace. a Glass Mfg. A furnace containing several pots or crucibles in which different small batches of glass may be melted. b Metal. A furnace in which the charge is contained in a pot.

pot gallery. A balcony or gallery projecting over the bank of a river (esp. the Thames, England). Hist.

pot garden. A kitchen garden.

pot'gun' (pŏt'gŭn'), n. Obs. a A pot-shaped cannon; a mortar. b A popgun; a pistol. c A braggart. d A rumor.

pot'hang'er (pŏt'hăng'ĕr), n. A rack, bar, or other device, by which a pothook could be hung over the fire.

pot hat. A derby hat; bowler; sometimes, a top hat. Colloq.

pot'head' (pŏt'hĕd'), n. 1. A dullard.
2. The blackfish (Globicephala).
3. Elec. A form of terminal hermetically sealed to the sheath of an electric cable for making a moisture-proof connection between the wires within the cable and those outside.

poth'e·car'y (pŏth'ē·kĕr'ĭ; -kĕr·ĭ), n.; pl. -IES (-Iz). An apothecary. Now Dial.

poth'er (pŏth'ĕr; now rarely pŭth'ĕr), n. [See PUT.] 1. A choking cloud or condition of dust, smoke, or steam; as, to stir up a pother while sweeping.
2. Bustle; disturbance; perturbation; fuss; row; bother; as, always in a pother about something or other.

poth'er, v.; -ERED (-ĕrd); -ER·ING. Transitive: To harass and perplex; worry; fluster; trouble; as, to pother one's brains.
——, Intransitive: 1. To fuss; to muddle or bother oneself; to worry.
2. In form puth'er (pron. pōōth'ĕr). To pour, roll, or move in a cloud, as of smoke or dust. Dial. Eng.

pot'herb' (pŏt'ûrb'; -hûrb'; see HERB), n. Any herb which is boiled for food, esp. greens, as spinach; any cultivated herb used to season food, as mint.

poth'er·ment (pŏth'ĕr·mĕnt), n. A petty trouble; perplexity. Dial.

poth'er·y (pŏth'ĕr·ĭ), adj. [pother + 3d -y.] Chiefly Dial. Eng. a Choking; stifling; sultry. b Affected with gid; — said esp. of sheep. — n. = GID. Dial. Eng.

pot'hole' (pŏt'hōl'), n. Any large pit or hole; specif.: a A more or less circular hole formed in the rocky beds of rivers by the grinding action of stones or gravel whirled round by the water in a particular spot. b A hole in the ground from which clay for pottery has been taken. c A pot-shaped hole in the surface of a pavement.

pot'hook' (-hŏŏk'), n. 1. An S-shaped hook for hanging pots and kettles over an open fire; a crook.
2. A hooked iron rod, usually curved, used as a pot or stove-lid lifter.
3. A written character resembling a pothook, as a letter or a stroke used in teaching writing (see HANGER, n., 3 c); also, pl., writing marked by letters so formed; as, it is impossible to decipher her pothooks.
4. pl. An iron collar worn as punishment, esp. by runaway slaves. Hist.

pot'hook'er·y (-ĕr·ĭ), n. Scrawled writing.

Po'thos (pō'thŏs), n. [Gr.] Gr. Myth. A personification of desire, sometimes identified with Eros. Pothos is depicted in art as a winged youth.

Po'thos (pō'thŏs), n. [NL., fr. Singhalese pōtā, name of one species.] Bot. A genus of climbing vines of the arum family (Araceae), chiefly of eastern Asia and Australasia, having ovate leaves, sometimes replaced by phyllodia, and flowers in a short spadix subtended by a green spathe. Several Philippine species yield a basket fiber, from their aerial roots. Cf. ANTHURIUM.

pot'house' (pŏt'hous'), n. 1. A pottery. Obs.
2. An alehouse; an inferior or low tavern or public house.

pot'house' (pŏt'hous'), adj. Of or pert. to a pothouse; vulgar; low. — pot'house'y (-houz'ĭ), adj.

pot'hun'ter (-hŭn'tĕr), n. 1. A self-seeker; a parasite. Obs.
2. A hunter who shoots to fill the pot; hence, a hunter who shoots anything that will help to fill his bag without regard to the rules or spirit of sport.
3. Sports. A person who contests, merely to win prizes.
— pot'hunt' (-hŭnt'), v. t. & i. — pot'hunt'ing, n. & adj.

‖po'tiche' (pō'tēsh'), n.; pl. -TICHES (-tēsh'). [F., fr. pot a pot.] Ceramics. A vase with a separate cover, the body usually rounded or polygonal in plan with nearly vertical sides, a neck of smaller size, and a rounded shoulder.

One form of Potiche.

po'ti·cho·ma'ni·a (pō'tĭ·shō·mā'nĭ·ȧ; pō'-tĭ·kō-), n. [NL, fr. F. potichomanie, fr. potiche a porcelain vase + manie mania.] The craze for or process of imitating painted porcelain ware by coating the inside of glass vessels. — po'ti·cho·ma'nist (pō'tĭ·kō·mā'nĭst), n.

pot'i·fer (pŏt'ĭ·fĕr), n. [pot + -fer.] Pot bearer. Thackeray.

‖pot'tin' (pŏ'tăn'), n. [F.] 1. Old pot metal (senses a & b).
2. A compound of lead, copper, tin, zinc, and silver, used for coins in Egypt under the Romans and by certain Gallic tribes.

po'tion (pō'shŭn), n. [OF., fr. L. potio. See POISON.] 1. A draft; a dose; usually, a dose of a liquid medicine or of a poison.
The opiate potion of amnesty. Burke.
2. A kind of drink or a drink. Obs.

po'tion (pō'shŭn), v. t. To dose; drug.

‖po'ti·or est con·di'ti·o pos'si·den'tis (pŏt'ĭ·ôr ĕst kŏn·dĭsh'ĭ·ō pŏs'ĭ·dĕn'tĭs). [L.] Law. The condition of the possessor is the better. 6 Mass. 84, 381.

Pot'i·phar (pŏt'ĭ·fĕr), n. Bib. An Egyptian official to whom Joseph was sold as a slave. His wife attempted to seduce Joseph.

Po·tiph'er·ah (pō·tĭf'ĕr·ȧ), n. Bib. An Egyptian priest of On, whose daughter married Joseph.

pot kiln. A small lime kiln.

pot knight. A person made bold by liquor. Obs.

pot lace. A lace made in Antwerp having a pattern of vases or pots of flowers, symbols of the Annunciation.

pot'latch' (pŏt'lăch'), n. [Chinook Jargon, fr. Chinook patshall giving, a gift.] 1. Among the Indians of the northwestern coast of North America: a [cap.] The winter festival, celebrated by feasting, dancing, and public ceremonies. b The ceremonial distribution of gifts during the festival.
2. Hence, Colloq., Northwestern U. S. & Can. a A large feast, often with gift giving. b A gift.

pot'latch', v. i. To hold a potlatch.

pot layering. Hort. A form of air layering (which see).

pot lead (lĕd). [D. potlood. See 2d POT; 1st LEAD.] Graphite, or black lead, often used on the bottoms of racing vessels.

pot'—lead' (-lĕd'), v. t. To coat with pot lead.

pot'leg' (pŏt'lĕg'), n. A fragment, or, collectively, fragments, of cast iron, used as shot.

pot'lick'er, pot'lik'ker (pŏt'lĭk'ĕr), n. Var. of POT LIQUOR; esp., pot liquor left from boiling hog's jowl and greens. Southern U. S.

pot'lid' (pŏt'lĭd'), n. 1. a The lid or cover of a pot. b Hence, a cover or valve of similar form or function.
2. Usually in dial. form pat'lid (păt'lĭd). Curling. A stone that comes to rest on the tee.

pot liquor. The liquid, esp. that suitable for soup, left in the pot after cooking meat, vegetables, etc.

pot'luck' (-lŭk'), n. Whatever may be provided for a meal; hence an ordinary, informal meal; such meals collectively; as, drop in sometime and take potluck with us.
A woman whose potluck was always to be relied on. G. Eliot.

pot'man (-măn), n.; pl. POTMEN (-mĕn). 1. A toper. Obs.
2. One who prepares, tends, or cleans pots, etc.; specif., a serving man employed in a public house. Cf. POTBOY.
3. A dealer in earthenware. Dial. Eng.

pot marigold. A common European annual garden plant (Calendula officinalis) widely grown for ornament.

pot metal. a A cast iron used for making pots and other hollow ware. b An alloy of copper with much lead, used for making large vessels, beer taps, etc. c Glass melted in a pot. d A kind of stained glass the colors of which are incorporated with melted glass in the pot.

Po·to'mac (pō·tō'măk; 190), n. [From the Potomac River.] Geol. A terrestrial (nonmarine) formation, chiefly sandstone, on the Atlantic coast of North America, representing the Comanchean or Early Cretaceous period. See GEOLOGY, Chart.

po·to·ma'ni·a (pō'tō·mā'nĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. L. potus, or Gr. potos, a drinking + -mania.] Med. a Dipsomania. b Delirium tremens.

po'to·ma'to (pō'tō·mā'tō; -mă'tō), n.; pl. -TOES (-tōz). [A blend of potato and tomato.] A plant produced by grafting the potato on the tomato or the reverse.

po·tom'e·ter (pō·tŏm'ē·tĕr), n. [Gr. poton drink + -meter.] An instrument for measuring the rate of transpiration in plants.

po'tong (pō'tông), n. [Tag.] A crown; wreath; narrow cloth formerly worn around the head. Phil. I.

po·too' (pō·tōō'), n. [Name in Jamaica, of imitative origin.] A large nightjar (Nyctibius griseus jamaicensis) of South America and the West Indies.

Pot'o·ro·i'nae (pŏt'ō·rō·ī'nē), n. pl. [NL., fr. POTOROO.] Zool. The subfamily of small marsupials consisting of the rat kangaroos. The typical genus is Pot'o·ro'us (-rō'ŭs).

po'to·roo' (pō'tō·rōō'), n. [Native name in New South Wales.] A rat kangaroo.

pot oven. A crude oven consisting of a heated iron plate covered by a pot.

pot paper. Pott. See PAPER, Table.

pot'pie' (pŏt'pī'), n. A meat pie boiled in a pot; as: a Such a pie having the bottom and sides of the pot lined with crust. b A fricassee of meat or fowl with dumplings.

pot piece. = POTGUN a. Obs.

pot plant. a A potted plant; also, one suitable for growing in a pot. b The monkeypot tree.

pot'pour'ri' (pō'pōō'rē'; pōt'pōōr'ĭ; 277), n. [F., fr. pot pot + pourri, past part. of pourrir to rot, fr. L. putrere. Cf. OLLA-PODRIDA.] A medley or mixture. Specif.: a Obs. An olla-podrida (the dish). b A jar of flower petals, as of the rose, mixed with spices, etc., used to scent a room. c A medley; sometimes, an anthology.

pot·rack' (pŏt·răk'), n. The cry of a guinea fowl; — imitative. — v. t. To utter this cry.

‖po·tre'ro (pō·trā'rō), n. [Sp., fr. potro colt.] A farm pasture; also, a cattle farm. Southwest U. S. & Sp. Am.

pot roast. A piece of meat, usually beef, cooked, by braising, generally on top of the stove; — a method suited to tough cuts. See BRAISE.

pot'—roast', v. t. To roast in a pot. See POT ROAST.

pot'—rus'tler, n. A camp cook. Slang, West. U. S.

Pots'dam for·ma'tion (pŏts'dăm). [From Potsdam, New York.] Geol. The uppermost division of the American Cambrian; the Saratogan series of the U. S. Geological Survey. See GEOLOGY, Chart.

pot seine. A fishing net having a pot (sense 12 b).

pot'sherd' (pŏt'shûrd'), n. [pot + sherd or shard.] A piece or fragment of a broken earthen pot. Now Archaeol.

pot'shoot' (pŏt'shōōt'), v. t. & i. To take a pot shot or pot shots (at). — pot'shoot'er (-ĕr), n.

pot shot. Literally, a shot fired simply to fill the pot; hence, a shot fired at an animal or person when at rest or within easy range, or fired simply to kill, without reference to the rules of sport; figuratively, attack or attempt needing no special skill nor involving any difficulty.

pot'shot' (pŏt'shŏt'), v. t. To attack, assail, or shoot with pot shots.

pot'shot', adj. Intoxicated. — n. A drunkard; drunkenness. Both Obs.

pot'—sick', adj. 1. Tipsy. Obs.
2. Sickly from confinement to a pot; — of plants.

pot signal. Railroads. A small revolving fixed signal used as a substitute for a dwarf signal.

pot sleeper. Railroads. A combined cast-iron sleeper and chair resembling an inverted pot.

Pot Sleeper.

pot steel. A kind of crucible steel.

pot'stick' (pŏt'stĭk'), n. Ladle or stick for stirring pottage, etc. Obs. exc. Scot.

pot still. A primitive form of still, used esp. in the distillation of Irish grain whisky and Scotch malt whisky, in which the heat of the fire is applied directly to the pot containing the wash.

pot'stone' (pŏt'stōn'), n. 1. Petrol. A more or less impure steatite, sometimes used in manufacturing culinary vessels, esp. in prehistoric times.
2. Mining. = POT BOTTOM.

pott (pŏt), n. [See 2d POT.] A size of paper. See PAPER, Table.

pot'tage (pŏt'ĭj), n. [OF. potage, fr. pot pot. See 2d POT; cf. PORRIDGE, PORRINGER.] 1. A dish of vegetables, or vegetables and meat, boiled until tender, and seasoned; esp. a thick soup. Now Chiefly Literary. Cf. POTAGE. Chaucer.
2. Oatmeal porridge. Now Dial.

pot'tage, adj. Pertaining to or used for pottage.

pot'tag·y (-ĭj·ĭ), adj. Suggestive of pottage.

pot'tah (pŏt'ȧ), n. [Hind. paṭṭā. See PATTA.] A title deed, or certificate of tenure; a lease. India.

pot'ted (pŏt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. Preserved or planted in a pot.

pot'ter (pŏt'ĕr), n. [From 2d POT; cf. F. potier.] 1. One whose occupation is to make earthen vessels. Ps. ii. 9.
2. A maker of metal pots. Obs.
3. One who hawks crockery or earthenware. N. of Eng.
4. A person given to drinking; a toper. Obs.
5. One who pots meats or other eatables.
6. A pothunter.
7. The red-bellied terrapin. See TERRAPIN.

pot'ter (pŏt'ĕr), v.; POT'TERED (-ĕrd); POT'TER·ING. Also, and in U. S. usually, put'ter (pŭt'ĕr). [Freq. of pote to poke, fr. AS. potian. See PUT.] Intransitive: 1. To poke lightly and repeatedly; — often with out. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng.
2. To meddle; pry; tamper. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng.
3. To busy oneself with trifles; to labor with little purpose, energy, or effect; to trifle.
Potering about the Mile End cottages. Mrs. Humphry Ward.
4. To talk in a trifling way; to chat desultorily.
5. To walk or go desultorily or idly; to saunter; dawdle.
——, Transitive: 1. To poke; push; also, to move or stir by so doing. Now Dial.
2. To pother; to perplex; bother. Chiefly Dial.
3. To get (out) in a pottering way; to trifle or idle (away).
Syn. — See TRIFLE.

pot'ter (pŏt'ĕr), n. Also put'ter (pŭt'ĕr). Act or habit of pottering, esp. working or talking in a trifling way.

potter bee. Any of certain bees, as those of the genera Anthidium and Megachile, that construct nests of mud or pebbles cemented together and attached to a plant stem. Cf. POTTER WASP.

pot'ter·er (-ĕr), n. Also put'ter·er. One who potters.

pot'ter·ing·ly (pŏt'ĕr·ĭng·lĭ), adv. Also put'ter·ing·ly (pŭt'ĕr-). In a pottering fashion.

pot'tern (pŏt'ĕrn), adj. Of or pertaining to potters. Obs.

pottern ore. Mining. An ore apt to vitrify, like the glazing on pottery. Obs.

pot'ter's asth'ma (pŏt'ĕrz). Also potter's bronchitis, consumption, disease, or phthisis. Med. Dyspnea associated with pneumoconiosis, prevalent among potters.

potter's clay or earth. Clay used in making pottery; specif., a tolerably pure kind nearly free from iron.

potter's field. An old burial place for strangers at Jerusalem (Matt. xxvii. 7); hence, a public burial place, esp. in a city, for paupers, unknown persons, and criminals.

potter's flint. Pulverized quartz, used in the manufacture of pottery to increase the porosity of the clay mixture and to reduce shrinkage in burning. The variety made from the phenocrystalline quartz is called quartz flint, that from the cryptocrystalline is called true flint.

potter's lead (lĕd), potter's ore. = ALQUIFOU.

potter's wheel. Ceramics. A horizontal disk revolving on a vertical spindle, and carrying the clay in the operation of throwing.

A modern form of Potter's Wheel, the Kick Wheel.

My thoughts are whirled like a potter's wheel. Shak.

pot'girl'. Fem. of POTBOY.

po·theen', n. = POTEEN.

pot'i·car'y (pŏt'ĭ·kĕr'ĭ; -kĕr·ĭ). Var. of POTHECARY. Now Dial.

Po'ti·gua'ra (pō'tē·gwā'rȧ), n. See TUPINAMBA.

pot'ing (pōt'ĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of POTE.

pot'in·ger. Var. of POTTINGER.

pot'l. Pottle. Ref. Sp.

pot'lach', pot'lache'. Vars. of POTLATCH.

pot'like', adj. See -LIKE.

pot'ling, n. A toper. Obs.

pot'mak'er (pŏt'māk'ĕr), n. See MAKER. — pot'-mak'ing, adj.

Potomac round. [From the Potomac River.] Archery. See ROUND.

pot'-shaped', adj. See -SHAPED.

pot'share'. ✝ POTSHERD.

pot'shaugh, pot'shaw. ✝ PADISHAH. [POTEEN.]

pot·sheen' (pŏt·shēn'). Var. of pottain. ✝ POTIN. [stud.]

pot'tance. Var. of POTENCE, pot'ta·ro, n. A rack. Obs.

Pot'ta·wat'to·mie. Var. of POTAWATOMI. [POT.]

pot'ted, past tense & past part. of pot-teen' (pŏ·tēn'). Var. of POTEEN.

‖pot'ten kant (pŏt'ĕn kănt). [D.] = POT LACE.

pot'ter·ess (pŏ't'ĕr·ĕs; -ĭs; 119), n. Fem. of POTTER (sense 1).

potter wasp. Any of certain solitary wasps, esp. of the genus Eumenes, which construct vaselike cells of sand and mud for their young. E. fraterna is a common American form whose cells are provisioned with caterpillars.

Potter Wasp (Eumenes fraterna) with three of its cells. ½ pot'ter·y (pŏt'ĕr·ĭ), n.; pl. POTTERIES (-ĭz). [F. poterie, fr. potier potter, fr. pot. See 2d POT.] 1. A shop or factory where earthen vessels are made.

2. Art of the potter; manufacture of earthenware; ceramics.
3. a Ware made from certain earthy materials, usually clay, shaped while moist and soft, and hardened by heat. b In a narrower sense, the coarser kinds of vessels so made, distinguished from porcelain, and also from brick, tiling, etc. See CLAY, 1; PORCELAIN; STONEWARE; etc. The soft material from which objects are shaped by hand or tools is called body or paste. Glazes are either fused on when the object is baked, as with porcelain, or applied afterward, and fused by a second firing called the glost fire. In addition to the colors of body and glaze, colors may be applied to the object either before glazing (underglaze colors) or after glazing (overglaze color). Casting is a method of making certain wares, by pouring slip into a porous mold, allowing it to stand, and then pouring out the surplus slip. The mold absorbs water from the paste, and retains a thin shell of solid matter, which can then be removed.

pot'ter·y-bark' tree. A timber tree (Licania heteromorpha) of northern South America, with exceedingly hard wood. Its fruit yields a black dye, and its siliceous bark (pottery bark), when burned and pulverized, is sometimes mixed with pottery clay.

pottery tissue. a High-class, well-glazed tissue paper for wrapping pottery ware. b Tissue used for putting transfers on pottery ware.

pottery tree. A Brazilian tree (Moquilea tomentosa), family Amygdalaceae, the pulverized bark of which is mixed with pottery clay.

pot'ting (pŏt'ĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of POT. Specif.: verbal n. a Archaic. Drinking; tippling. b The making of pottery. c Act of placing in a pot; as, the potting of plants. d In sulphuric acid manufacture, the process of supplying nitrous fumes by action of sulphuric acid on a nitrate in iron pots. e Taking of pot shots; shooting. f Catching in pots.

pot'tin·ger (pŏt'ĭn·jĕr), n. [Corrupt. of POTAGER.] A maker of pottage; a cook; also, erron., a pottingar. Obs. exc. Hist.

pot'tin·ger, n. [See PORRINGER.] Porringer. Now Dial.

pot'tle (pŏt'l), n. [ME. potel, fr. OF. potel, dim. of pot. See 2d POT.] 1. An obsolete liquid or dry measure equal to a half gallon.
2. A pot or tankard of, or about of, this capacity; also, by ellipsis, a pottle of wine, etc.; hence, liquor.
3. A vessel or small basket for holding fruit.
☞ COMBINATIONS are:
pottle-bellied, pottle-bodied, pottle-crowned, pottle-deep.

pot'tled (pŏt'ld), adj. Obs. a Put in a pottle. b Told or sung by one who has drunk a pottle.

pottle pot. A pot or tankard holding two quarts; also, a drunkard.

pot'to (pŏt'ō), n.; pl. -TOS (-ōz). [Tshi aposow ape. Cf. APOSORO.] 1. A West African lemurine mammal (Perodicticus potto) resembling the slow loris in its nocturnal, arboreal, and slow-moving habits. Its color is reddish gray; the index finger and tail are vestigial.
2. The kinkajou.

Potto, 1. ⅕

pot tree. The monkeypot tree.

Pott's disease (pŏts). [After Percivall Pott, Eng. surgeon.] Med. Caries of the vertebrae, esp. tuberculous caries, often resulting in curvature of the spine and occasionally in paralysis of the lower extremities.

Pott's fracture. Surg. A fracture of the lower part of the fibula accompanied with injury to the ankle joint so that the foot is dislocated outward.

Potts'ville con·glom'er·ate (pŏts'vĭl). [From Pottsville, Pennsylvania.] Geol. A conglomeratic formation at the base of the Pennsylvanian (Upper Carboniferous) in the northern Appalachian region; Millstone Grit.

pot'ty (pŏt'ĭ), adj. Colloq. a Insignificant; trifling; picayune. b Somewhat foolish; slightly crazy. c Slang, Brit. Haughty; supercilious.

pot'-val'iant (pŏt'văl'yănt), pŏt'văl'yănt), adj. Courageous when drunk. — n. A pot-valiant person. — pot'-val'iance (-yăns), pot'-val'ian·cy (-yăn·sĭ), pot'-val'iant·ry (-yănt·rĭ), n. — pot'-val'iant·ly, adv.

pot'-val'or (pŏt'văl'ĕr; pŏt'văl'ĕr), n. Valor or courage not inherent but resulting from drink. — pot'-val'or·ous (-ŭs), adj.

pot valve. Steam Boilers. A safety valve resembling an inverted pot with a recess in the crown in which the valve lever is fulcrumed.

pot'wall'er (pŏt'wôl'ĕr), n. Literally, potboiler; specif., Eng. Hist., one of a certain class of voters (see POT-WALLOPER, 1); — the original official term. — pot'wall'ing, verbal n.

pot'-wal'lop·er (pŏt'wŏl'ŭp·ĕr; pŏt'wŏl'-), n. 1. In certain boroughs of England, before the Reform Act of 1832, a voter whose qualification for suffrage was the boiling (walloping) of his own pot, that is, the fact of being a householder, as proved by his having a separate fireplace where food was cooked for himself and family.
2. One who cleans pots; a scullion; sea cook. Slang.

pot'-wal'lop·ing, n. a Boiling of a pot, or a sound likened to such boiling. b Cleaning or scrubbing of pots.

pot'-wal'lop·ing, adj. a Boiling a pot; — applied specif. to a kind of voter (see POT-WALLOPER, 1) or a borough containing such voters. b Pot-scrubbing; menial.

pot'ware' (pŏt'wâr'), n. Pottery; crockery.

pot wheel. A noria.

pot'whis'ky (pŏt'hwĭs'kĭ), n. Poteen.

pot'work' (pŏt'wûrk'), n. A pottery.

pot'wort' (pŏt'wûrt'), n. Potherb.

pouce (pous; pōōs), n. [F. pousse.] Dust from flax; — so called by workers in flax mills.

pouce (pōōs), n. [F., lit., thumb.] See MEASURE, Table.

pou'cer, pou'ser (pōō'sĕr), n. [F. poucier, fr. pouce thumb, fr. L. pollex.] A thumbstall formerly used by bishops after anointing. Hist.

pou'cey (pou'sĭ; pōō'sĭ), adj. [From POUCE.] Dial. Eng. a Dusty; dirty; also, rubbishy. b Asthmatic from flax dust.

pouch (pouch), n. [ME. pouche, fr. OF. pouche, poche. See POKE a bag.] 1. A small or moderate-sized bag, sack, or receptacle, esp. for carrying things; as, a pouch for money; a shot pouch.
2. Specif.: a Archaic. A money purse. b Chiefly Scot. A pocket in a garment. c A leather bag for ammunition; also, a wooden cartridge box. d A mailbag.
3. A gift of money; a tip. Slang or Colloq., Eng.
4. That which is shaped like a pouch, or bag.
5. Bot. a A silicle. b Any saclike organ.
6. Med. A cyst or sac containing fluid.
7. Naut. A division made by small bulkheads in a vessel, to prevent grain, etc., from shifting.
8. Zool. a Sac or bag, esp. one for carrying the young, as on the abdomen of most marsupials, or for carrying food, as in the cheeks of many rodents.

pouch (pouch), v.; POUCHED (poucht); POUCH'ING. Transitive: 1. To put into or enclose in or as in a pouch; to pocket.
2. To take into the stomach or a pouch; to swallow. R.
3. To cause to protrude (the lips, mouth, or cheek); to purse (the lips).
4. To put up with; to endure. Scott.
5. To give money to; to tip. Slang, Eng.
6. To give a pouchlike form to; specif., Dressmaking, to arrange (a part of a dress) so that it will droop like a pouch.
——, Intransitive: 1. To swallow; gorge.
2. To form a pouch or baglike cavity.

pouch (pōch). Dial. Eng. var. of POACH.

pouch bone (pouch). Marsupial bone.

pouched (poucht), adj. Having a pouch or pouches; also, put into a pouch.

pouched dog. The thylacine.

pouched frog or toad. A marsupial frog.

pouched gopher. A pocket gopher.

pouched marmot. A spermophile.

pouched mouse. a A pocket mouse. b A marsupial of the genus Phascogale.

pouched rat. a A pocket gopher. b A kangaroo rat. c Any African rodent of the genus Cricetomys or of the genus Eosaccomys.

pouched stork. = ADJUTANT, n., 3.

pouch of Doug'las (dŭg'lăs). [After James Douglas (1675–1742), Scot. anatomist.] A deep peritoneal recess or pouch between the uterus and the upper vaginal wall anteriorly and the rectum posteriorly.

pouch of Rath'ke (rät'kē). See PITUITARY BODY.

pouch'y (pouch'ĭ), adj.; POUCH'I·ER (-ĭ·ĕr); -I·EST. Having, or of the nature of, a pouch.

pou'dre B (pōō'dr'). See SMOKELESS POWDER.

pou'dre blue (pōō'dr'). = POWDER BLUE, 2.

‖pou'dre de riz' (pōō'dr' dĕ rē'). [F.] Rice powder.

pou'dre mar'chant (pōō'drĕ mär'chănt). [OF. march(e)ant of a merchant, of good quality.] A medieval flavoring powder. Obs.

pou·drette' (pōō·drĕt'), n. [F., dim. of poudre dust, powder. See POWDER.] A manure made from night soil, dried and mixed with charcoal, gypsum, etc.

pouf (pōōf), n. [F. Cf. PUFF, n.] Literally, a puff; specif.: a In hairdressing, an arrangement of the hair by means of a puff or puffs (see PUFF, 2 c). b A piece of furniture like an ottoman, usually circular and having cushion seats on all sides. c The looped or puffed part of a dress.

‖pouf (pōōf), interj. [F.] Bang.

pouf. Var. of POOF.

pou·laine' (pōō·lān'), n. [OF. soulier à la poulaine, prop., shoe of Polish fashion.] The long pointed toe of the crakow; a pike; sometimes, erroneously, a crakow. Hist.

pou·lard' (pōō·lärd'), n. [F. poularde pullet, fr. poule hen. See PULLET.] A pullet which has been sterilized, now usually by severing the oviduct, sometimes with the removal of a small portion of it, formerly by removing the ovaries, to produce fattening; hence, a fat pullet. Cf. CAPON, 1.

pou·lard'ize (-lär'dĭz), v. t. To sterilize, as a pullet. See POULARD; cf. CAPONIZE.

pou·lard' wheat (pōō·lärd'). The wheat Triticum turgidum or any of its varieties, suitable only for stock feed and little grown in the United States. They have 4-sided, compact, awned spikes, tending to branch in certain varieties, rather short, thick, humped, yellowish to red kernels, and long thick pithy or solid stems. Sometimes called rivet or cone wheat.

‖poule (pōōl), n. [F., prop., chicken.] 1. The third figure of a quadrille.
2. Gaming. = POOL, sum staked.

‖pou'let' (pōō'lĕ'), n. [F.] 1. = 1st CHICK, 1 & 2.
2. A love letter or a note; — from being sometimes folded in the form of a wing.

pou·lette' sauce (pōō·lĕt'). [F. See PULLET; SAUCE.] Velouté with added egg yolk.

poulp, poulpe (pōōlp), n. [F. poulpe, fr. L. polypus. See POLYP.] An octopus.

Poul'sen arc (poul'sĕn). [After Valdemar Poulsen, Danish electrician.] Elec. A direct-current arc for producing high-frequency undamped oscillations, the arc being between electrodes in a tight chamber through which a gas, usually hydrogen or illuminating gas, is passed continuously. In parallel with the arc and outside of the chamber is an oscillating circuit in which is a condenser and the primary circuit of an air-core transformer. The frequency of oscillation may be 1,000,000 or more per second.

Poulsen generator. A Poulsen-arc apparatus.

poult (pōlt), n. [ME. pulte, contr. fr. polet, poullet, fr. OF. poulet. See PULLET.] 1. A young turkey, esp. in its early weeks; also, less commonly, a young chicken, pheasant, grouse, or the like.
2. (pron. pōlt; dial. usually pōōt) A child; youth. Chiefly Dial.

poult'-de-soie' (pōō'dĕ·swä'), n. [F. poult-de-soie, poude-soie. Cf. PADUASOY.] A kind of heavy, corded silk fabric; a fine grosgrain silk. Cf. PADUASOY.

poul'ter (pōl'tĕr), n. [ME. pulter, fr. OF. pouletier, fr. poulet. See POULT.] 1. A poulterer; — now only [cap.] in Poulters' Company, one of the London City Livery Companies (incorporated 1504).
2. In royal and noble houses, and in monasteries, the purchaser of provisions. Obs.

poul'ter·er (pōl'tĕr·ĕr), n. [From POULTER.] One who deals in poultry.

poul'ter's meas'ure (-tĕrz). A meter in which lines, or couplets, of twelve and fourteen syllables alternate. Obs.

poul'tice (pōl'tĭs), n. [Earlier pultes, fr. ML. pultes pap, pl. of L. puls, pultis. See PULSE seeds.] A soft composition, as of bread, bran, herbs, or the like, usually heated and spread on a cloth, to be applied to sores, inflamed parts of the body, etc., to supply warmth or moisture, or act as an anodyne, emollient, antiseptic, counterirritant, etc.; a cataplasm.

poul'tice, v. t.; -TICED (-tĭst); -TIC·ING (-tĭs·ĭng). To apply a poultice to; to dress with a poultice.

poul'try (pōl'trĭ), n. [ME. pultrie, fr. OF. pouleterie, fr. pouletier. See POULTER.] 1. Any domesticated birds which serve as a source of food, either eggs or meat. In the order of their importance to man, poultry includes chickens, turkeys, ducks, geese, guinea fowl, pigeons, and pheasants.

Poultry, 1. Domestic Fowl with Parts named. 1 Comb; 2 Face; 3 Wattles; 4 Ear Lobe; 5 Hackle; 6 Breast; 7 Back; 8 Saddle; 9 Saddle Hackles; 10 Sickle Feathers; 11 Tail Coverts; 12 Tail Feathers; 13 Wing Bow; 14 Wing Coverts; 15 Secondaries; 17 Primaries; 18 Thighs; 19 Hocks; 20 Shanks or Legs; 21 Spur; 22 Toes.

2. Obs. a The office of poulter (sense 2); also, the storeroom for the provisions bought by him. b A poultry yard or farm. c A poultry market.
3. [cap., with the.] A London street where there was once a poultry (sense 2 c). It is at the east end of Cheapside.
4. A fowl. Southern U. S.
☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:

poultry breeder	poultry farm	poultry keeping poultry breeding	poultry farmer	poultryman poultry buyer	poultry farming	poultry raiser poultry car	poultry feed	poultry raising poultry culture	poultry grower	poultry rearing poultry dealer	poultry house	poultry shop
poultry dresser	poultry husbandry	poultry show poultry dressing	poultry judging	poultry stall
poultry fancier	poultry keeper	poultry yard poultry fancying poultry tick. a The chicken tick. See ARGAS. b Also poultry mite. The chicken mite.

poultry wire. Wire netting of one-inch or two-inch mesh.

po'u·na'mu (pō'ōō·nä'mōō), n. [Maori.] New Zealand & Australia. Nephrite; jade; greenstone; also, a weapon or implement made of nephrite.

pounce (pouns; 232), n. [F. ponce pumice, pounce, fr. L. pumex, -icis, pumice. See PUMICE.] 1. A fine powder, as of sandarac or cuttlefish bone, formerly used to prevent ink from spreading on unsized paper or over an erasure, and also to prepare parchment to take writing.
2. Powder, as charcoal dust, for making patterns through perforated designs, used by embroiderers, etc.; also, the perforated design.

pounce (pouns; 232), v. t.; POUNCED (pounst); POUNC'ING (poun'sĭng). [F. poncer. See POUNCE a powder.] 1. To sprinkle, dust, rub, smooth down, or finish, with pounce, pumice, fine abrasive paper, etc.; as, to pounce paper or the outside of a felt hat; to transfer, trace, or imprint, with pounce; as, to pounce a design.
2. To sprinkle with powder or with spots. Obs.

pounce (pouns; 232), n. [Appar. fr. ME. ponson, ponchon. See PUNCHEON.] 1. The claw or talon of a bird of prey or, rarely, of some other animal; in Falconry, formerly, the innermost of the three anterior claws, or any of the anterior claws.
2. A punch; thrust; poke. Now Dial.
3. Obs. a A punch or stamp. b A hole punched, pinked, or slashed to ornament a garment; a pink.

pounce (pouns), v. Transitive: To seize, or swoop down on and seize, with the pounces, or talons. "To pounce a wren." Cowper.
——, Intransitive: 1. To make a pounce; to swoop down or spring; to leap and seize suddenly with the claws, hands, or the like; — with on, upon, or at; as, a hawk pounces on a chicken.
2. To spring, or enter abruptly or suddenly; as, to pounce into a room.
3. To make a sudden eager or spirited attack, as upon a blunder or omission.

pounce, n. Act of pouncing; a sudden swoop or spring; as, to make a pounce; on the pounce (ready to pounce).

pounce, adv. With a pounce.

pounce, v. t. [Cf. F. poinconner to stamp, to punch, E. POUNCE a punch.] 1. To emboss, as silver or gold, for ornamental purposes by hammering on the reverse side, as in repoussé work; to ornament in this way; to decorate or adorn.
2. To ornament by punching or cutting holes, etc.; to cut the edge of in scallops, etc.; to pink.
3. Obs. a To pound; stamp; bruise; comminute; poke; pummel. b To prick; perforate; stab; specif., to tattoo.

pounce box. A box with a perforated lid, for holding and sprinkling pounce.

pounced (pounst), adj. Having claws or talons.

pounce paper. A transparent paper for tracing, etc.

pounc'er (poun'sĕr), n. One who or that which pounces; specif., one who shapes felt hats by rubbing down the surface, originally with pounce, now with abrasives.

pounce'wise', adv. See -WISE.

poul'tist. Poulticed. Ref. Sp.

poul'try-dom (pōl'trĭ·dŭm), n. See -DOM.

poul'try·ist, n. See -IST.

poul'try·less, adj. See -LESS.

poul'try·like', adj. See -LIKE.

poul'try-proof' (66), adj. See -PROOF.

poum. † POME.

poun'cer, pon'ser. Erron. var. of POUCER.

pounce'wise', adv. See -WISE.

poul'tist. Poulticed. Ref. Sp.

poul'try-dom (pōl'trĭ·dŭm), n. See -DOM.

poul'try·ist, n. See -IST.

poul'try·less, adj. See -LESS.

poul'try·like', adj. See -LIKE.

poul'try-proof' (66), adj. See -PROOF.

poum. † POME.

poun'cer, pon'ser. Erron. var. of POUCER.

pouk (pŏŏk). Var. of PUCK. Now Dial. [pluck. Scot.] pouk (pŏŏk). Var. of POOK, to poul (pōl). Var. of POLL. Obs. exc. Dial.

poul. Var. of 2d PUL.

poul'dron (pōl'drŭn). Var. of PAULDRON. Archaic. — poul'droned (-drŭnd), adj.

poul'ter·ess, n., fem. of POULTERER.

poult'foot', † POLYFOOT.

pottery ware. = POTTERY, 3.

Pot'ti·a'ce·ae (pŏt'ĭ·ā'sē·ē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Pottia, type genus (after J. F. Pott, Ger. botanist) + -aceae.] Syn. of TORTULACEAE.

pot'tin·gar, n. [OF., apotecaire.] An apothecary. Obs. Scot.

pot'tin·gar'y, n. [Corrupt. of ME. apotecarie. See APOTHECARY.] An apothecary; also pharmacy or drugs. Obs. Scot.

pot'tur (pŏt'tĕr), n.; pl. POTTAR (-tĕr). [Icel., fr. late ON., pot, fr. MLG. pot pot, quart. See 2d POT.] See MEASURE, Table.

pot'u·lent (pŏt'ū·lĕnt), adj. & n. [L. potulentus, fr. potus a drinking.] = POTABLE. Obs. — pot'u·len'tal (-lĕn'tăl), adj. Obs.

pot'-ver·du'go, n. [For pot-verligo; cf. Sp. verdugo executioner.] Vertigo from intoxication. Obs.

pot'-wab'bler (pŏt'wŏb'lĕr), pot'-wob'bler, pot'-wab'bling, = POT-WALLOPER, POT-WALLOPING. Eng. [LOPER.]

pot'-wal'lon·er. † POT-WALpot'y·car'y. † POTHECARY.

Po'ty·ua'ra (pō'tĭ·wä'rä). Var. of POEGUARA. [var. of POLL.]

pou (pōō). Scot. & dial. Eng.

pou'ah (pou'ä), n. sing. & pl. [Hind. pauā.] See WEIGHT, Table.

pouce. † 2d PULSE.

pouch'ful, n. See -FUL.

pouch'less, adj. See -LESS.

pouch'like', adj. See -LIKE.

pouch'-shaped', adj. See -SHAPED.

poucht. Pouched. Ref. Sp.

pou'cy. Var. of POUCEY. [Table.] poud. Var. of POOD (see WEIGHT, ‖pou'-de-soie' (pōō'd'-swä').

Var. of POULT-DE-SOIE.

poudesoy. † PADUASOY.

pou·dret'. Poudrette. Ref. Sp.

pough, pouge, n. & v. [AS. pohha, n. See POCK.] Bag. Obs.

poun'cet box (poun'sĕt; -sĭt; 119). Also poun'cet, n. [Cf. F. poncette a bag with perforations for sprinkling. See POUNCE a powder.] a Archaic. A pomander. b Rare. A pounce box.

pounce tree. = SANDARAC TREE a. pounc'ing (poun'sĭng), adj. That pounces; also, piercing. See 2d, 4th, & 7th POUNCE. — pounc'ing·ly, adv.

pounc'ing, n. Act or work of one who pounces.

pouncing paper. Pounce paper.

pound (pound), n. [AS. pund (in comp.), of uncert. origin. Cf. PINDER, PINFOLD, POIND, POND.] 1. An enclosure, maintained by public authority, in which cattle or other animals may be confined when taken in trespassing, or when going at large in violation of law, or where distrained cattle or goods may be kept until redeemed; a pinfold.
2. An enclosure in which sheep or cattle are confined for shelter, etc.; also, one for trapping wild animals.
3. Figuratively, a place of confinement, as a prison for criminals or debtors; hence, a trap; a difficult or hopeless position to get out of, as in hunting.
4. A body of still water, esp. one confined by a dam or the like, as a mill pond or a canal reach; a pond. Now Dial.
5. An area or space within which fish are kept, stowed, or caught; specif., Fishing, the inner enclosure of a pound net, which retains the fish. Also, short for POUND NET.

pound (pound), v. t.; POUND'ED; POUND'ING. 1. To confine in or as in a pound; to impound; to pen up.
2. Specif., Fox Hunting, to confine (a huntsman) or to cause (him) to be confined in an enclosed place from which he cannot get out to follow the chase.
3. To dam or impound (water). Chiefly Dial. Eng.

pound, n.; pl. POUNDS (poundz; 111), collectively POUND. [AS. pund, fr. L. pondo pound, lit. and orig., in weight; akin to L. pondus a weight, pound. See PENDANT.] 1. A unit of weight and of mass, formerly varying in value in different countries from about 300 to about 1,070 grams, and commonly divided into 12 or 16 ounces. Abbr. lb., pl. lb. or lbs. Among English-speaking peoples the modern unit for most purposes is the avoirdupois pound of 7,000 grains (453.59243 grams). In Great Britain the pound is determined by a special platinum cylinder kept in London, and, in the United States, by the standards of the National Bureau of Standards in Washington. In weighing silver, gold, and a few costly materials, the troy pound of 5,760 grains (373.2418 grams) was formerly in general use, but such weights are now usually expressed in troy ounces. See TROY, adj. In the past, pounds of other weights have been in use in England for various purposes. Cf. TOWER POUND. The word pound is often used in translating the names of foreign units, as funt, libbra, libra, livre, pfund, etc. See WEIGHT, Table.
2. A pound weight. Shak.
3. a The gold monetary unit of Great Britain, equal to 20 shillings of 12 pence each, or $4.8665 United States money, or 113.001 grains (7.3224 grams) of fine gold; — called specifically, pound sterling. Symbol, £. The gold coin of the value of a pound is called the sovereign (which see). In 1816 the gold standard was adopted and the value of the pound in gold became fixed, but on Sept. 21, 1931 the gold standard was abandoned. b More fully pound Scots. A former Scotch money of account, equal at the Union of the Crowns (1603) to 20 shillings Scotch or 20 pence English. Originally it was the same as the English pound, but was gradually debased. See SHILLING, 2 a. c A gold monetary unit of Turkey (£T), of Egypt (£E), of Palestine (£P), and (libra) of Peru. d A money of account of Syria. See COIN, Table.

pound, v. t. Coining. To ascertain the remedy, or variation from standard, of (coins) by weighing together the number that should weigh one or more pounds and noting the variation. The remedy now applies to each coin. Eng.

pound (pound), v.; POUND'ED; POUND'ING. [ME. pounen, fr. AS. punian to bruise; akin to D. puin rubbish, ruins. Cf. 1st PUN.] Transitive: 1. To comminute or pulverize by beating, as with a pestle; to reduce to powder or pulp; to bruise; triturate; as, to pound nuts to a paste.
2. To strike heavily or repeatedly, as with the fist or with some heavy instrument; to beat; thump; pummel; hammer; as, to pound an opponent or a piano; also, to assail with repeated criticisms, etc.
3. To make firm by beating, as the ground with the feet.
4. a To produce by means of repeated heavy blows; — usually with out; as, to pound out a fox trot on the piano. b To force or drive as if by repeated heavy blows; as, to pound some sense into him.
5. Exchanges. To offer freely for sale (securities or produce) to depress the price. U. S.
—, Intransitive: 1. To strike or deliver heavy blows; to beat; hammer; to come down heavily, as a ship on the water.
2. To walk, dance, etc., heavily; to ride hard; as, horses pounding through mud; to proceed with a succession of bumps or with vibration as from forcing the motive power or meeting heavy seas.
3. To work hard, or (with away) hard and continuously.
4. Mach. To make a jarring noise, as an engine in running.

pound, n. Act or result of pounding; specif.: a A contusion; bruise. b A pounding or heavy blow; a thud.

pound, v. t. & i. To bet a pound or large amount (on), esp. at big odds; hence, to pound it, to swear to it. Slang, Eng.

-pound (-pound). Singular of POUND, used, with a preceding numeral, as an attributive adjective; as, a ten-pound weight.

pound'age (poun'dĭj), n. 1. A sum or rate per pound; esp., a payment, deduction, tax, or the like, of so much per pound sterling; specif.: a Eng. Hist. A subsidy of a certain number of pence to the pound, formerly granted to the crown on all goods exported or imported. See TONNAGE AND POUNDAGE. b Eng. Law. The percentage allowed to a sheriff or other officer on the amount realized by an execution. c Salt Making. In the case of brines, the number of pounds of salt in a gallon or in a cubic foot of the solution. d Slang, Eng. Extravagant odds.
2. Weight in pounds; total number of pounds carried; as, air-mail poundage.

pound'age (poun'dĭj), v. t. To distrain; constrain. Milton.

pound'age, n. [See POUND an enclosure.] 1. Confinement of animals in a pound; also, an enclosure for cattle.
2. A charge paid for the release of impounded animals.

pound'al (poun'dăl; -d'l), n. [From POUND a weight.] Physics. A unit of force which will impart to a mass of one pound an acceleration equal to one foot per second per second, corresponding to the dyne except that pound and foot replace gram and centimeter.

pound boat. A flat-bottomed, broad-beamed, two-masted, centerboard vessel used esp. by fishermen on the Great Lakes.

pound brush. Any of the largest sizes of painters' brushes.

pound'cake' (pound'kāk'), n. A kind of rich, sweet, fine-grained cake; — so called from the chief ingredients being used in equal quantities measured in pounds.

pound degree. Physics. A unit of heat, being that required to raise the temperature of one pound of water one degree.

pound'er (poun'dĕr), n. [See POUND a weight.] 1. That which weighs a pound, as a trout.
2. A thing weighing a certain (specified) number of pounds, as a projectile, or having to do with something of a specified weight in pounds; — used in combination; as, a cannon firing a twelve-pound shell is called a twelve-pounder.
3. A person whose income, rent payment, dower, or the like, is a specified number of pounds sterling; as, before the Reform Act of 1867, one who was an elector by virtue of paying ten pounds rent was called a ten-pounder. Brit.
4. A bank note, jewel, etc., having the value of a specified number of pounds sterling.

pound'er, n. [See POUND to strike.] 1. One who or that which pounds, as a stamp in an ore mill, a pestle, etc.
2. Something, as a mortar, for pounding in.

pound'er, n. A poundkeeper. Now Rare.

pound'-fool'ish (66), adj. Incapable of dealing with large sums or matters; — complementary to penny-wise. — pound'-fool'ish·ness, n. — pound'-fol'ly, n.

pound'-foot', n. = FOOT-POUND.

pound'keep'er (pound'kēp'ĕr), n. The keeper of a pound.

pound lock. A lock to impound or dam up a part of a stream.

pound'man (pound'măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). One who fishes with a pound net.

pound'meal' (-mēl'), adv. By the pound. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng.

pound net. A fish trap consisting of a net or nets supported to form an enclosure with a narrow entrance, called the pot, and a leader to direct the fish into it.

pound of flesh. Something demanded as due, but which if yielded will destroy the giver; — from Shakespeare's use in The Merchant of Venice.

pound party. = DONATION PARTY. U. S. pound pear. A large kind of cooking pear. Obs.

pound Scots. See 3d POUND, 3 b.

pound sovereign. See SOVEREIGN, 2 a.

pound sterling. See 3d POUND, 3 a.

pound'stone' (pound'stōn'), n. A stone, pebble, or large echinite, weighing a pound, used as a weight.

pound'worth' (-wûrth'), n., or pound's' worth'. As much as may be worth or be bought for a pound.

Pou'part's' lig'a·ment (pōō'pärz'). [After F. Poupart (1661–1709), French anatomist.] Anat. The thickened lower border of the aponeurosis of the external oblique muscle of the abdomen, extending from the anterior superior spine of the ilium to the pubic tubercle. It is continuous below with the fascia lata of the thigh, and forms the external pillar of the external abdominal ring, and a part of the anterior boundary of the femoral ring. Called also inguinal ligament.

pour (pōr; 181), v.; POURED (pōrd); POUR'ING. [ME. pouren, of uncert. origin.] Transitive: 1. To send forth in or as in a stream or a flood; to cause or allow to flow in a stream; as, to pour water into or out of a pail; to pour tea; the skies pour rain.
2. To discharge, emit, or let loose, freely, wholly, or abundantly; to give forth without restraint or break in continuity; as, to pour money into the hands of the rich; to pour knowledge into one's pupils.

London doth pour out her citizens. Shak.

3. To utter, speak, or sing without constraint; to express freely or fully the feelings of; to shed or radiate; as, to pour out his fury upon his enemies; to pour forth a song or one's happiness.
—, Intransitive: 1. To flow, pass, or issue, in or as in a stream; to gush; to come or go in great numbers or quantities, rapidly, or the like; to stream; to fall continuously and abundantly; as, the rain pours; the audience poured out.

If the rude throng pour on with furious pace. Gay.

2. To pour tea or coffee for guests at a reception.
— it never rains but it pours. Events of a like kind never occur except in great number.

pour oil on troubled water. To play the pacifier or peacemaker.

pour, n. 1. A pouring, or the quantity poured; a pouring stream or the like; a flood; a heavy fall; downpour.
2. The amount, as of concrete, poured or placed in the form or in molds without interruption.
3. Founding. The principal opening by which the molten metal enters a mold; also, the superfluous metal or tang (sometimes called also pourpiece) adhering to the casting and resulting from the head metal in this opening.

‖pour' ac'quit' (pōōr' ăk'ē'). [F.] Received payment.

‖pour' ain'sī' dire' (ăn'sē' dēr'). [F.] So to speak.

‖pour'boire' (pōōr'bwär'), n. [F. See PURPOSE; BEVERAGE.] Literally, (money) for drinking; drink money; hence, a gratuity; douceur; tip; a small fee.

pour'er (pōr'ĕr; 181), n. One who or that which pours.

pour'er-off', n. One who pours off.

pour'er-out', n. One who pours out.

pour'ie (pōr'ĭ), n. A vessel with a spout to pour beer, etc. Scot.

pour'ing (pōr'ĭng), adj. Falling or flowing in quantities; used in or for pouring. See POUR, v. — pour'ing·ly, adv.

‖pour' le mé'rite' (pōōr' lĕ mā'rēt'). [F.] For merit; specif., Pour le mérite, the Prussian Order of Merit. See ORDER, n., 1.

‖pour'par'ler' (pōōr'pär'lā'), n. [F.] An informal conference to discuss some affair, as preliminary to a treaty.

pour·par'ler (pōōr·pär'lā), pour·par'ley (-lĭ), v. i. To conduct a pourparler.

pour plate. Bacteriol. See PLATE, n., 14.

pour·point' (pōōr'point), n. [F.] Something quilted; as: a Hist. A quilted doublet worn from the 13th to the 17th century as part of a suit of armor or of a civilian costume. b Obs. A bedquilt.

pour'point, v. t. To make in the style of a pourpoint; to quilt. — pour'point·er (-poin·tĕr), n.

pour point (pōr). See POUR TEST.

‖pour' rire' (pōōr' rēr'). [F.] Literally, for laughing; not to be taken seriously.

pour test. Anal. Chem. & Mach. A test to determine the lowest temperature (pour point) at which an oil, as a lubricating oil from petroleum, flows under given conditions.

pousse'-ca'fé' (pōōs'kä'fā'), n.; pl. -FÉS (-fāz'). [F., fr. pousser to push + café coffee.] A drink of brandy or a liqueur served, after dinner, with black coffee; — applied chiefly in the United States to a compound of several liqueurs of different specific gravities poured so as to remain in separate layers.

pous·sette' (pōō·sĕt'), n. [F., pushpin.] A dance figure in which one or more couples dance round and round with hands joined.

pous·sette', v. i.; -SET'TED (-sĕt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -SET'TING. To perform a poussette.

poust'ie (pous'tĭ), n. [OF. poëstié, fr. L. potestas.] Power; dominion. Obs.

‖pou sto (pōō stō; pou stō). [Gr. pou stō where I may stand; — from the reputed saying of Archimedes, "Give me where I may stand and I will move the whole world with my steelyard."] A place to stand upon; a locus standi; hence, a foundation or basis for operations.

pout (pout), n.; pl. POUT, sometimes POUTS (pouts). See PLURAL, Note. [AS. pūte, in ælepūte eelpout; akin to D. puitaal, puit frog, Sw. puta to be inflated. See 2d POUT; cf. EELPOUT.] a The bib, or whiting pout. b Any of several fresh-water catfishes; a horned pout. c An eelpout.

pout (pout), v.; POUT'ED; POUT'ING. [ME. pouten; akin to EFris. pūt a bag, swelling, Sw. puta to be inflated, puta cushions, Skr. budbuda bubble. Cf. POUT fish, PUDDING.] Intransitive: 1. To thrust out the lips, as in sullenness or displeasure; hence, to look sullen; to show displeasure.

Thou poutest upon thy fortune and thy love. Shak.

2. To protrude; as, her chin pouted deliciously; to swell out, as lips. Cf. POUTER, 2.
—, Transitive: To protrude or swell out (the lips); also, to say with a pout.

pout (pout), n. 1. A protrusion of the lips, expressive of sulkiness, pique, or the like; pl., a fit of pouting.
2. A protruding. Browning.

pout (pōōt). Scot. var. of POULT. — v. i. To shoot pouts, or poults. Scot. — pout'er (-ĕr), n. Scot.

pout (pōōt). Var. of PAUT.

pout'er (pout'ĕr), n. 1. One who pouts.
2. A pigeon of a domestic breed in which the legs are long, the body slender, and the carriage erect. They have a remarkably distensible crop which they have a habit of dilating, a process termed pouting. Two main varieties are bred in nearly all colors, the common, or English, pouter, and the pygmy pouter.

pout'er (pōt'ĕr; pout'ĕr), v. t. & i. To poke; stir; also, to potter. Chiefly Scot.

pout'ful (pout'fōōl; -f'l), adj. Full of pouts.

pout'ing, adj. Protruded; expressing pique. Cf. POUT, v. — pout'ing·ly, adv.

pout'y (pout'ĭ), adj. Given to or suggestive of pouting.

‖Po've·rel'lo, il (ēl pō'vā·rĕl'lō). [It.] Lit., the little poor man; — a popular name for St. Francis of Assisi.

pov'er·ish (pŏv'ĕr·ĭsh), v. t. [OF. pouverir.] To impoverish. — pov'er·ish·ment (-mĕnt), n. Both Archaic & Dial.

pov'er·ty (pŏv'ĕr·tĭ), n. [ME. poverte, fr. OF. povertē, povreté (F. pauvreté), fr. L. paupertas, fr. pauper. See POOR.] 1. Quality or state of being poor or indigent; want or scarcity of means of subsistence; indigence; need; destitution. Specif., in monastic vows, renunciation as an individual of the right to own, to receive by inheritance or gift, or to dispose of, property.
2. Poor people collectively; — usually with the. Obs.
3. Any deficiency in what is desired or desirable or in what constitutes adequacy; dearth; scarcity; poorness; as, poverty of soil; poverty of the blood; poverty of ideas. Also, lack of some particular element or quality; as, poverty in vitamins.
4. Poor or feeble bodily condition; leanness, or the like.
5. The pearlweed.
Syn. — POVERTY, WANT, DESTITUTION, INDIGENCE, PENURY. POVERTY (which is a stronger word than the adjective poor) is the state of being in need; WANT is extreme poverty; DESTITUTION, absolute want. INDIGENCE suggests severely reduced or straitened circumstances; PENURY is extreme indigence or abject poverty. Cf. LACK, PARSIMONIOUS.
Ant. — Wealth, riches, affluence, opulence, luxury.

poverty birch. The American gray birch Betula populifolia.

poverty grass. Any of several slender grasses; as: a An erect American grass (Aristida dichotoma) with dichotomously branched culms, found in dry sandy soil. b An oat grass (Danthonia spicata). c The poverty plant. d The broom crowberry. e The rabbit-foot clover.

poverty plant. A small heathlike plant (Hudsonia ericoides); also, the related H. tomentosa, or beach heather. U. S.

pov'er·ty-strick'en, adj. Very poor or destitute.

pov'er·ty·weed' (pŏv'ĕr·tĭ·wēd'), n. a The cowwheat Melampyrum arvense. b In the western United States, an aromatic weed (Iva axillaris). c The pearly everlasting. d The spurry Spergula arvensis. e = BUTTONWEED a.

Po·vin'dah (pō·vĭn'dä), n. One of a caste or tribe of soldier merchants trading between northern India and central Asia.

pow (pou), n. [Imitative.] A sound of or as of a blow. Colloq., U. S.

pow (pō; pou). Dial. var. of POLL, head.

pow (pōō). Scot. & dial. Eng. var. of POOL, PULL.

pow'der (pou'dĕr), n. [ME. poudre, fr. OF. poudre, poldre, fr. L. pulvis, pulveris. See POLLEN; cf. POLVERINE, PULVERIZE.] 1. The fine particles to which any dry substance is reduced by pounding, grinding, or triturating, pounch. ✝ PUNCH.

---

pounc'y. Var. of PUNCHY. pounde. ✝ POND. [Obs.] pounder pear. = POUND PEAR. pound'ing, n. [From the custom of giving a pound of sugar or other commodity.] = DONATION PARTY. U. S. pound'less, adj. See -LESS. pound'like', adj. See -LIKE.
pound'mas'ter, n. = POUNDKEEPER. pound'-trap', n. = 1st POUND, 2. pounge. ✝ POUND, to beat; PUN, to pound; PAWN, peacock; PAWN, a chessman. poun'son, v. t. [OF. poinsonner, ponchonner (F. poinçonner). See PUNCHEON.] = POUNCE, 2. Obs. pounst. Pounced. Ref. Sp.
pount (pōōnt). Scot. var. of POINT. pou'pit (pōō'pĭt). Scot. var. of POUR. ✝ POWER, POOR. [PULPIT.] pour·con'trell, n. An octopus. Obs. pourd. Poured. Ref. Sp.
poure. ✝ POOR, POKE, POUR, POWER, PURE. poured plate (pōrd; 181). Bacteriol. See PLATE, n., 14. pourmenade. ✝ PROMENADE. pour'par'ty (pōōr'pär'tĭ). Var. of PURPARTY. pour'piece', n. Founding. See POUR, n., 3. pourpos. ✝ PURPOSE.
pour·pres'ture (pōōr·prĕs'tûr). ✝ PURPRESTURE. pour·prise', n. [OF. pourpris, pourprise, fr. pourprendre to occupy, enclose. See PURPRESTURE.] Enclosure; precinct; environ. Obs. pour·prise', v. t. To enclose; encompass; occupy. Obs. poursiane. ✝ PURSLANE. poursuite. ✝ PURSUIT. [VANT.] pour'sui·vant. Var. of PURSUIpour·tray', Var. of PORTRAY. pourveance. ✝ PURVEYANCE. pour'vete', n. sing. & pl. [A French form of Lett. purvieta.] See MEASURE, Table.
pourvey. ✝ PURVEY. pous (pōōs; pous), n.; pl. PODES (pō'dēz). [Gr., foot.] See MEASURE, Table. pous, pouse. ✝ PULSE.
pouse (pōs; pous; pōōs), pouss. Scot. & dial. Eng. vars. of PUSH. pouse, pou'ser, pou'sy. Vars. of POUCE, POUCER, POUCEY.
‖pous'sé' (pōō'sā'), n. [F. poussée a push.] Music. = UP-BOW. pous'sie (pōōs'ĭ). Scot. var. of PUSSY, hare. pou'ther (pōō'thĕr). Scot. var. of POWDER. povert. ✝ POVERTY.
pov'er·ty-proof' (66), adj. See -PROOF. pow'cat' (pō'kăt'; pou'-). Dial. Eng. var. of POLECAT.

---

or into which it falls by decay; dust. "Grind their bones to powder." Shak.
2. A preparation in the form of fine particles; as: a Obs. Salt, spice, or other condiment in this form. b A cosmetic for the skin or hair.
3. Any of various solid explosives, as gunpowder, used in gunnery, blasting, etc. See GUNPOWDER, SMOKELESS POWDER.
4. Force; power; as, to put powder into a stroke. Slang.
5. Bot. The pollen of flowers or spores of lycopodium. See LYCOPODIUM POWDER.
6. Med. A medicine or dose, usually for internal use and taken in some vehicle.
☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES (in sense 3) are:

powder-black, adj.	powder house	powder-marked powder-charged	powder keg	powder mill powder chest	powder-laden	powder room powder flask	powder magazine	powder-scorched powder-gray, adj.	powder maker	powder-tinged pow'der (pou'dĕr), v.; -DERED (-dĕrd); -DER-ING. [OF. poudrer.] Transitive: 1. Now Chiefly Dial. Eng. a To sprinkle (food) with a powdered condiment. b Hence, to salt; to corn, as meat; to preserve; store (up).

2. To sprinkle with or as with powder (rarely, dust); to besprinkle; as, to powder the hair; hence, Her. & Art, to strew or sprinkle with small figures or spots.
3. To sprinkle like powder; to scatter or strew irregularly over a surface, esp. for decoration.
4. To reduce to powder; comminute; pulverize; triturate.
5. To charge (cannon) with powder. Obs.
—, Intransitive: 1. To be reduced to powder; to become like powder; as, some salts powder easily.
2. To use cosmetic powder; as, she paints and powders.
pow'der (pou'dĕr), n. A sudden onset; a rush; also, impetuosity;—used chiefly with in or with. Now Chiefly Dial.
pow'der, v. i. To rush; hurry; to ride very fast or impetuously. Now Chiefly Dial. powder barrel. A barrel, usually of 100 lb. capacity, for storing or transporting powder. powder beef. Salted or corned beef. Obs. exc. Dial. powder blue. 1. Powdered smalt, as for use in laundering.
2. a A color, green-blue in hue, of low saturation and medium brilliance. Cf. COLOR. b The color smalt.
— pow'der-blue' (66), adj.
powder box. A box for holding powder; specif.: a Obs. A box for salt or spices. b Obs. A box for gunpowder. c A box for cosmetic or toilet powder. d Hist. A pounce box. e Mil. A fougasse shell. Rare.
powder boy. A boy formerly employed on war vessels to carry powder to the guns.
powder charge. In a shell, the main charge of powder for propelling the projectile. powder down. One of certain modified down feathers which grow continuously and disintegrate at the ends, producing a sort of powder or scaly exfoliation. They are present only in certain birds, esp. herons, parrots, tinamous, and frogmouths.
pow'dered (pou'dĕrd), adj. 1. Spiced; seasoned; also, pickled; preserved; corned. Now Scot. & Dial. Eng.
2. Subjected to sweating in a powdering tub. Obs.
3. Ornamented or marked with numerous spots or small figures; spangled; specif., Her., semé (with with).
4. Sprinkled or dressed with powder, as the hair.
5. Reduced to a powder; pulverized; as, powdered chalk or coal.
powdered milk. = DRIED MILK. powdered sugar. Sugar derived from granulated sugar by grinding, including pulverized sugar and confectioners' sugar.
pow'der-er (pou'dĕr-ĕr), n. One who or that which powders.
powder flag. Nav. A red flag hoisted at the fore of a ship loading or discharging explosives, fuel oil or gasoline in bulk, or at the bow of a boat carrying explosives, or displayed during target practice. powder horn. A powder flask; specif., one made of the horn of an ox or cow.
pow'der-ing (pou'dĕr-ĭng), n. 1. The act or an instance of using or applying powder; specif., applying powder to hair or a wig, or as a cosmetic. Also, the powder so applied.
2. a Seasoning food with powdered condiments. b Obs. exc. Dial. Salting or corning meat.
3. Ornamentation with tiny spots, figures, or spangles; also, such spots, figures, etc., collectively. Specif., Her., such figures, collectively, in a field semé.
powdering tub. a A tub in which meat is corned or salted. b Obs. A heated tub in which a person was sweated for the cure of syphilis.
pow'der-ize (-īz), v. t. To make into a powder. — pow'der-i-za'tion (-ĭ-zā'shŭn; -ī-zā'shŭn), n. — pow'der-iz'er (pou'dĕr-īz'ĕr), n. pow'der-man (pou'dĕr-măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). 1. Formerly, a powder boy.
2. One put in charge of the powder used in blasting.
powder monkey; pl. POWDER MONKEYS. a Formerly, a powder boy on board a war vessel. b One who carries or has charge of powder or other explosives in mining or in blasting operations. c A cake or mold of damp gunpowder used to make a smudge to stupefy wasps in a nest. powder of Al'ga-roth (ăl'gă-rŏth; ăl'gà'rŏth'). [F. algaroth, fr. the inventor, Algarotti.] Pharm. A white powder of variable composition, consisting of basic antimony chloride ($SbOCl$) and antimony trioxide (Sb_2O_3), formed by the action of much water on antimony trichloride. It is now used in the preparation of tartar emetic but was formerly used as an emetic, purgative, and diaphoretic.
powder of iron. = REDUCED IRON. powder of projection. Alchemy. A certain powder cast into a vessel containing matter which is to be thereby transmuted into gold. powder pimperlimpimp, or powder of prelinpinpin. [Cf. F. poudre de perlimpinpin.] A conjurer's magical powder. Obs.
powder post. [For powder of post.] Dry rot. — pow'der-post'ed, adj. pow'der-post' bee'tle. Any of several beetles (family Lyctidae) having larvae which feed in very dry wood or lumber, reducing the interior to powder.
powder puff. 1. A pad or other device, often of down, for applying cosmetic powder.
2. Hence: a Formerly, a fop. b A young gull.
3. Formerly, a small bellows for powdering hair.
powder ship. Nav. A vessel carrying powder other than that for its own use. Now Rare.
Powder Treason. The Gunpowder Plot. Obs. — powder traitor. Obs.

pow'der-y (pou'dĕr-ĭ), adj. 1. Of the nature of, resembling, or consisting of, powder. "The powdery snow." Wordsworth.
2. Easily crumbling to pieces; friable; as, a powdery spar.
3. Of the nature of gunpowder; explosive. Obs.
4. Sprinkled with powder; dusty; as, powdery bees.
powdery mildew. a Any fungus of the family Erysiphaceae (which see);—so called from the abundance of powdery white conidia produced on the leaves of the host. b Plant Pathol. Any of various diseases caused by these fungi. Cf. DOWNY MILDEW. See MILDEW.
powdery scab. Plant Pathol. A disease of the potato caused by a slime-mold-like organism (Spongospora subterranea), and producing powdery lesions on the tubers. pow'dike' (pō'dīk'; pou'-), n. [The first part was orig. poke, of uncert. origin. Cf. E. D.] Any or three ancient dikes in Norfolk to keep back the fen waters. pow'ell-ite (pou'ĕl-īt), n. [After J. W. Powell (1834–1902) Am. geologist.] Mineral. A calcium molybdate with calcium tungstate, $Ca(Mo,W)O_4$, occurring in small, yellow, tetragonal, pyramidal crystals. pow'er (pou'ĕr; 39), n. [ME. pouer, poer, fr. OF. poeir poöir (F. pouvoir), prop. inf., fr. VL. potere, for L. posse, potesse, to be able, to have power. See POSSIBLE, POTENT; cf. POSSE COMITATUS.] 1. Ability, whether physical, mental, or moral, to act; the faculty of doing or performing something; capacity for action or performance or for receiving external action or force; capability of producing or undergoing an effect, whether physical, mental, or moral; also, with pl., one of the mental or bodily faculties, as thinking, reasoning, judging, or willing, or a direction of the operation, or a manifestation for the time being, of mental or physical ability to act; as, a man of great power; the power of capillary attraction; money gives power; one's vital power; it required all his powers to do it.
2. The possession of sway or controlling influence over others; control; authority; command; government; influence; ascendancy, whether personal, social, or political; also, occasionally, permission or liberty to act.
Thou hast given him power over all flesh. John xvii. 2.
The boast of heraldry, the pomp of power. Gray.
3. a Archaic. A military or naval force; a host. b Effect or force as to sound or meaning; phonetic value (of a letter); — no longer in general use.
4. A person, agent, body, or thing having or exercising an ability to act; an individual invested with authority or having influence. Hence: a [usually cap.] An institution or government exercising control or possessing international influence; as, the Allied Powers; the Central Powers. See GREAT POWERS. b Often, a superhuman agent; a spirit; a divinity. "The powers of darkness." Milton.
5. Exerted ability to act or produce effect; exerted or active physical or mental strength; might; energy; vigor; force; ability to act or effect strongly, or such ability as exerted; as, a man of power; he felt the power of his arm; the tree was rent by the lightning's power. Also, virtue; potentiality; as, the power of a medicine; capacity; as, the power of a magnet.
His omnipresence fills
Land, sea, and air, and every kind that lives, Fomented by his virtual power and warmed. Milton.
6. [cap.] pl. Originally rendering Greek dynameis, an order of angels. See CELESTIAL HIERACHY.
Thrones, Dominations, Principedoms, Virtues, Powers. Milton.
7. A large quantity; a great number; multitude; host; abundance; as, a power of followers, of good things, of good. Now Colloq. & Dial.
8. Religious possession or ecstasy. Chiefly U. S.
9. Force or energy applied or applicable to work; as, operated by foot power; motive power; specif.: Mech. a Mechanical or electrical force or energy; as of gravitation, steam, wind, etc., as distinguished from human power; as, water power; the electrical transmission of power. b Capacity for operating; as, the power of an engine governor. c Rare. A mechanism by which energy is applied; as, a dog power; the mechanical powers.
10. Figuratively: a Force; energy. "Poetry is power." Browning. b Influence; esp., an influence regarded as supernatural. "Power goes forth from me." Tennyson.
11. Anthropol. A supernatural principle or activity, esp, such an agency manifested in the events in nature.
12. Law. In general, authority, capacity, or right; as, power to contract; esp., authority or right to do or forbear derived by one person (often called donee) from another; as, a power of attorney, which is an instrument authorizing one to act as the attorney or agent of the person granting it either generally, or, more often, for some specified limited purpose. Specif., an authority (a power of appointment) vested in one person (called donee or appointor) to dispose of, or create rights in, the property of another, as defined by statute or judical decision in some States of the United States, with reference to real estate) an authority to do some act in relation to (real) property, or to the creation or revocation of an estate therein or a charge thereon, which the owner granting or reserving such power might himself perform for any purpose (122 N. Y. 604, 612). Such a power with respect to real estate is said to owe its efficacy to the doctrine of uses. A power of appointment may be created by grant or reservation; and it is called a general power when the subject of it may be appointed to any person (called the appointee) or persons whatsoever, including the donee; a special power when it must be appointed to a particular person or persons. Any power is said to be a power coupled with an interest when it accompanies, or is coupled with, a jointly existing interest in the subject of the power (8 Wheat. 203); a collateral, or naked, power, when not connected with any interest of the donee in the subject. A power appendant is one which the donee can exercise only out of an estate held by him, as a grant by the holder of a life estate of a lease, in contrast to a power in gross, which the donee, who holds an estate, can exercise only in the creation of such estates as will not attach to that which he himself holds or be satisfied out of his own interest.
13. Math. a The product arising from the continued multiplication of a number, square matrix, etc., into itself; as, a square is the second, a cube is the third, power of a number. b Of one circle or sphere relative to another, the squared distance between their two centers less the sum of the squares of their radii.
14. Optics. a The degree to which a lens, mirror, or any optical instrument, magnifies; in the telescope, and usually in the microscope, the number of times it multiplies the apparent diameter of an object; sometimes, in microscopes, the number of times it multiplies the apparent surface. b The eyepiece of a telescope or microscope. c The reciprocal of focal length (in meters) of a lens, lens system, or mirror.
15. Physics, etc. The rate of transfer of energy, as the rate at which work is done by an engine, or the rate at which energy is absorbed in an electric system. The units most commonly used are the horsepower and the watt, which see. One horsepower equals approximately 746 watts. For true power and apparent power of an alternating current, see WATT.
☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:

power cable	power meter	power sawyer
power drill	powermonger	power-seeking, adj.
power-driven	power-operated	power shaft
power-elated	power press	power shears power-feeding, adj.	power-propelling, adj.	power sprayer power-giving, adj.		power stroke power-holding, adj.	power pump	power-transmitting, adj.
power jack	power punch
power line	power rail	power-usurping, adj.
power loom	power-riveting, adj.	power weaver

Syn. — Potency, puissance; ability; efficiency, efficacy. — POWER, STRENGTH, VIGOR, ENERGY, FORCE agree in the idea of ability to do or bear. POWER is the most general term, and denotes ability, whether latent or exerted, to act or effect; as, the power of example; to exercise the veto power. STRENGTH implies power, either active or passive, that is inherent; as, to push with all one's strength; the strength of a vise. VIGOR, usually confined in its application to living things, suggests physical or mental strength in healthy exercise; as, the vigor of youth, of a plant's growth; "Dryden expresses with clearness what he thinks with vigor" (Johnson). ENERGY is power expressed in terms of actual or potential work; as, radiant energy; energy of speech. FORCE adds the implication of resistance overcome; as, the force of an appeal; centripetal force. Cf. ABILITY, POWERFUL, VIGOROUS.
I fear these stubborn lines lack power to move. Shak.
My strength is as the strength of ten,
Because my heart is pure. Tennyson.
Oh, our manhood's prime vigor! No spirit feels waste,
Not a muscle is stopped in its playing nor sinew unbraced.
R. Browning.
Men were being lifted into nobleness by the new moral energy which seemed . . . to pulse through the whole people. J. R. Green.
'T is not within the force of fate
The fate-conjoined to separate. Emerson.
Ant. — Weakness, impotence, feebleness, infirmity.
— in power. a In authority or control. b Obs. Scot. Able. c Obs. In posse. — *of power. Able; competent. Obs. — *the powers that be. Those in authority, as officials or a ruling body. — *to, or to the best of, one's power. So far as one can.
pow'er (pou'ĕr), v. t. 1. To empower; give power to. Obs.
2. To equip (a vessel, vehicle, etc.) with propelling engines.
pow'er (pou'ĕr), adj. Of or pertaining to power, esp. mechanical power; operated by or producing power; driven by steam, gasoline, oil, compressed air, electricity, or other source of power; as, a power plant; a power launch.
pow'er-a-ble (-ȧ-b'l), adj. Powerful. — pow'er-a-ble-ness, n. — pow'er-a-bly, adv. All Obs.
power amplifier. Radio. An amplifier, usually in a transmitting apparatus, that produces relatively large power. power appendant. See POWER, n., 12. pow'er-boat' (pou'ĕr-bōt'), n. A boat propelled by an engine or motor, esp. one propelled by a gasoline engine; a motor boat.
power duster. Agric. Mach. A machine for the spreading of insecticidal dusts. pow'ered (pou'ĕrd), adj. Having, equipped with, capable of operating with, or able to produce, power. power engineering. See ENGINEERING, n., 1. — power engineer. power factor. Elec. The ratio of the true power (see WATT) to the volt-amperes in an alternating-current circuit or apparatus. In the case of sinusoidal current and voltage, the power factor is equal to the cosine of their difference in phase.
pow'er-ful (pou'ĕr-fŏŏl; -fl), adj. 1. Full of, or having, power; possessed of great power; capable of producing great effects of any kind; very strong; potent; mighty; very efficacious; influential; convincing; telling; as, a powerful man, engine, vessel; a powerful argument; a powerful light.
The powerful grace that lies In herbs, plants, stones, and their true qualities. Shak.
2. Strikingly great; considerable; as, a powerful lot. Chiefly Illit.
3. Able; capable. Obs.
Syn. — Efficient, effective, effectual, efficacious, strong, forcible, cogent. — POWERFUL, POTENT, PUISSANT agree in the idea of ability to effect large results (cf. EFFECTIVE). POWERFUL applies to whatever is capable of producing, in any fashion, great effect; as, a powerful locomotive, athlete, monarch, medicine, spell; "mixtures powerful o'er the blood" (Shak.). POTENT suggests some inherent, it may be latent or lurking, virtue or energy, which works out its effect with certainty; as, "Magic potent over sun and star" (Wordsworth); "How potent is this Oriental blood in Napoleon, in Goethe, in Heine, Victor Hugo" (Lowell); a potent spell, medicine, but not a potent locomotive, athlete. PUISSANT, a book word, referring chiefly to persons (usually princes and potentates) or to bodies politic, connotes more the outward attributes of power; as, a puissant monarch, commonwealth, "most . . . mighty, and most puissant Caesar" (Shak.). Cf. POWER.
The charm of beauty's powerful glance. Milton.
The scarlet maple keys betray What potent blood hath modest May. Emerson.
Methinks I see in my mind a noble and puissant nation rousing herself like a strong man after sleep, and shaking her invincible locks. Milton.
Ant. — See POWERLESS.
— pow'er-ful-ly, adv. — pow'er-ful-ness, n.
pow'er-ful, adv. = MIGHTY, adv. Chiefly Illit. power gas. Any cheap gas made for producing power, as for driving gas engines. See MOND GAS, etc. pow'er-house' (pou'ĕr-hous'), n. A building in which mechanical, electrical, or other power is generated; specif., Elec., a central station.
power in gross. See POWER, n., 12. pow'er-less, adj. 1. Destitute of power, force, or energy; weak; impotent; not able to produce any effect.
2. Lacking a requisite authority or sanction (for a particular act); not empowered.
Syn. — POWERLESS, IMPOTENT. POWERLESS denotes merely lack of power; IMPOTENT commonly adds the implication of positive weakness or (esp.) ineffectiveness; as, "powerless as an infant" (De Quincey); "Argument is powerless against either feeling" (T. Hardy); "An angry little spitfire sea continually sprits and thrashes with impotent irascibility" (Stevenson).
Ant. — See POWERFUL, EFFECTIVE.
— pow'er-less-ly, adv. — pow'er-less-ness, n.

pow'der-a-ble (pou'dĕr-ȧ-b'l), adj. See -ABLE.
pow'der-i-ness (pou'dĕr-ĭ-nĕs; 119), n. See -NESS. pow'der-like', adj. See -LIKE.
pow'dry (pou'drĭ). POWDERY. po'we, n. [Appar. fr. a Dravidian form corresponding to Hind. pauṅā. Cf. POUAH.] See WEIGHT. power. † POOR, POUR.
pow'er-di-rec'tion-al re'lay. Elec. See RELAY, n., 3.

power load. Elec. That part of the load of an electric power plant used for the operation of motors.
power loading. Aeronautics. Of an aircraft, the weight per horse power, computed on a basis of full load and of power in air of standard density, unless otherwise stated.
power of an aggregate or assemblage. Math. a The orderless aggregate of all the elements of an aggregate themselves regarded as without character or as mere units. b That property of an aggregate which it has in common with all equivalent aggregates and which constitutes them equivalent; the cardinal number of the aggregate. See AGGREGATE, 5.
power of appointment. See POWER, n., 12. power of attorney. See POWER, n., 12. power of the keys. Papal power and jurisdiction; — in allusion to Christ's words to Peter (Matt. xvi. 19).
pow'er–op'er·ate, v. t. To operate (a machine or thing) by mechanical power.
power plant. a Any industrial plant used in generating power. b The assemblage of parts, including engine or engines, carburetion system, ignition apparatus, lubrication system, etc., that generates the motive power of a self-propelled vehicle or machine, as an automobile or aircraft. c A central station.
pow'er–plant' en'gi·neer'ing. See ENGINEERING, 1. — pow'er–plant' en'gi·neer'. power relay. Elec. See RELAY, n., 3. power shovel. A shovel operated by power. It consists of a boom or crane, supporting a dipper handle, at the lower end of which is a dipper that scoops up the earth.

Tractor-mounted Power Shovel. a Dipper; b Dipper Handle; c Boom.

power station. Elec. A central station. power supply. Radio. One of the devices supplying electric power in an electron tube, called respectively A, B, or C power supply according to its function of (1) heating the cathode, (2) causing a flow of electron current in the plate circuit, or (3) applying a direct voltage in the grid circuit.
power transformer. Elec. See TRANSFORMER. power tube. An electron tube of large output, suitable for use as a generator of alternating current or as a power amplifier.
power vessel or yacht. Any vessel propelled by other power than the wind; specif., a vessel propelled by some engine other than steam.
Pow'ha·tan' (pou'hȧ·tăn'), n. An Indian of a confederacy of Algonquian tribes of eastern Virginia, which was organized by Powhatan, and, after warring with the English from 1622 to 1636, was destroyed in 1644. pow'itch (pou'ĭch), n. [Chinook Jargon powitsh, fr. Chinook pauitsh.] The Oregon crab apple (Malus fusca). powl·doo'dy (poul·dōō'dĭ), n.; pl. -DOODLES (-dĭz). [From Pouldoody, part of a creek near Corcomroe Abbey in Co. Clare, Ireland.] A fine variety of Irish oyster. pown'ie (poun'ĭ), n. [Dim. of PAWN peacock.] A peacock. Scot. & Dial. Eng.
pow'sow'dy (pō'sō'dĭ; pou·sou'dĭ), -sod'dy (-sŏd'ĭ), etc., n. [Origin uncert.] Scot. & N. of Eng. Any of various dishes; as: a Sheep's head broth. b A mixture of meal and milk. c An ale posset. d Any incongruous mixture. Formerly a term of endearment. pow'wow' (pou'wou'), n. [Of Algonquian origin; cf. Massachuset pauwaw, Narraganset powáw he dreams, hence, medicine man, magician.] 1. Among the North American Indians: a A priest, conjurer, or medicine man. "Sagamore, sachem, or powwow." Longfellow. b A ceremony, esp. one in which conjuration is practiced, attended with great noise and confusion, and often with feasting, dancing, etc., performed by Indians for the cure of diseases, for success in hunting or in war, and for other purposes; also, a conference of or with Indians.
2. Hence: Any assembly likened to an Indian powwow or conference; esp., a noisy frolic or gathering; more widely, a congress, conference, or meeting. Chiefly U. S.
3. Healing by incantation of magic. Local.
pow'wow' (pou'wou'; pou'wou'), v. Intransitive: 1. To hold a powwow; specif., among the North American Indians, to perform the ceremony called a powwow.
2. To practice healing by incantation or magic. Local.
—, Transitive: 1. To hold a powwow with.
2. To treat or doctor by the use of conjuration or other magic.
pow'wow'er (pou'wou'ĕr), n. One who directs or participates in a powwow. Also, a medicine man or woman; a healer by conjuration or magic.
pow'wow'ism (-ĭz'm), n. The profession of, and belief in, the procedure of the powwow, or any kind of serious ceremony among primitive people.
pox (pŏks), n. [For pocks, ME. pokkes. See POCK. It is plural in form, but is used as a singular in sense 1.] 1. Med. Any of various diseases characterized by pustules or eruptions; as, small*pox*; cow*pox*; chicken pox; great, French, or Spanish pox that is, syphilis. Without defining words: a Usually, syphilis. b Obs. Smallpox. c Erysipelas of sheep.
2. Construed as a pl.: = pocks, pl. of POCK, pustule. Obs.
3. Plant Pathol. a A disease of sweet and Irish potatoes, characterized by pitlike or pocklike lesions on the roots or tubers. It was at first attributed to the slime mold Cystospora batata and later to a species of the genus Actinomyces. b = STORAGE SPOT.
pox, interj. An exclamation expressing vexation; — formerly used in imprecation. Archaic.
pox (pŏks), v. t. To infect with pox, esp. syphilis.
poy (poi), n. [OF. apoie (F. appui a support), fr. apoier (F. appuyer) to prop, fr. VL. appodiare, prop., to place upon a support, fr. L. ad to + podium an elevation, base. See PEW; cf. APPOGGIATURA, APPUI.] 1. A projecting gallery or terrace with a railing, on a house. Obs.
2. A pole, as for propelling a boat. Now Dial.
Poyn'ings's Law (poin'ĭng·zĭz). [After Sir Edward Poynings (1494–96) English lord deputy of Ireland.] Irish Hist. Two acts (1494) by which it was enacted that no Parliament should be summoned in Ireland without the sanction of the English king and his council, and that all existing laws in England should be in force in Ireland. They were repealed in 1782. Called also the Statutes of Drogheda.

Poyou.

poy'ou (poi'ōō), n. [Guarani tatu-pó-yu, lit., armadillo with a yellow hand, fr. tatu armadillo (cf. TATOU) + pó hand + yu yellow.] An armadillo (Dasypus sexcinctus) with six movable bands of plates, found in Argentina; the peludo.
Poy'ser, Mrs. (poi'zĕr). In Geo. Eliot's Adam Bede, a keen-witted farmer's wife. poz'zuo·la'na (pŏt'swō·lä'nä), poz'zo·la'na (pŏt'sō-), n. [It.] 1. Petrog. A loosely compacted siliceous rock of volcanic origin, or tuff.
2. A mortar used in ancient Roman building, made of lime mixed with the dust of volcanic tuff found near Puteoli (mod. Pozzuoli).
3. Any finely ground hydraulic cement produced by mixing, without subsequent heating, lime and volcanic cinders, blast-furnace slag, or the like.
—poz'zuo·la'nic (-lăn'ĭk), poz'zo·lan'ic, adj.
praam (prăm), praham (prăm), pram (prăm), n. [D. praam, prob. of Slav. origin, from a word akin to E. FARE.] A flat-bottomed Norwegian boat of lapstreak construction, with rounded bilges, the greatest section being near the stern. In the larger sailing praams the stem is pointed, with a marked sheer, and two masts are carried. In the smaller, used with oars for tenders, the stem ends in a semicircular piece of the same shape as the midship section but much smaller. prab'ble (prăb'l), n. [Var. of BRABBLE.] A quarrel; squabble. — v. i. To utter loudly; to chatter. Both Dial.
pra'bhu (prŭb'ōō; 99), n. [Skr.] India. a Lord; chief. b One of the writer caste in western India.
pra·bud'dha Bha'ra·ta (prȧ·bōōd'ȧ bä'rȧ·tȧ; 99). [Skr. prabuddha Bhārata.] Literally, awakened India; — used in connection with the Nationalist movement. prac'tic (prăk'tĭk), n. [ME. practike, fr. OF. practique, var. of OF. pratique, fr. ML. practica, fr. Gr. praktikē. See PRACTICAL; cf. PRATIQUE.] 1. = PRACTICE in various senses (1, 2, 3, 4, 5, & 8). Archaic.
2. Scots Law. A reported decision of the Court of Session; — formerly so called in allusion to their authority in fixing and proving matters of practice and customary law.
3. Practical experience (with something). Obs.
prac'tic, adj. [See PRACTICAL.] Obs. a Practical. b Practiced; experienced; skilled; also, cunning; shrewd; artful. c Requiring skill or experience; difficult.
prac'tic, n. [From PRACTIC, adj.] A practical man or a man of action, as opposed to a theorist or student. Obs. prac'ti·ca·bil'i·ty (prăk'tĭ·kȧ·bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n.; pl. -TIES (-tĭz). Quality or state of being practicable, or an instance of it; practicableness; feasibility.
prac'ti·ca·ble (prăk'tĭ·kȧ·b'l), adj. [F. praticable, fr. pratiquer to practice. See PRACTICAL.] 1. That may be practiced or performed; capable of being put into practice, done, or accomplished; feasible; as, a practicable method; a practicable aim; a practicable good.
2. Capable of being used; usable; as, a practicable weapon; specif., Theat., that may be used as real, as a door.
3. Readily practiced on; gullible; pliant. Slang.
Syn. — PRACTICABLE, PRACTICAL are sometimes confused. That is PRACTICABLE (opposed to impracticable) which is capable of being accomplished; that is PRACTICAL (opposed to theoretical and the like) which can be actually turned to account. See POSSIBLE.
Ant. — Impracticable, impossible.
— prac'ti·ca·ble·ness, n. — prac'ti·ca·bly, adv.
prac'ti·cal (prăk'tĭ·kȧl), adj. [From practic, fr. obs. F. practique, var. of pratique, fr. LL. practicus, fr. Gr. praktikos fit for doing, practical, active, fr. prassein to do, effect, practice, passover; akin to Gr. pera, peran, over, across, beyond. See FAR; cf. PRACTICE, PRAGMATIC.]
1. Of, pert. to, or consisting or manifested in, practice or action; — opposed to theoretical, ideal, or speculative; as, a practical question. "For all practical purposes." Macaulay.
2. Available, usable, or valuable in practice or action; capable of being turned to use or account; useful; as, a practical acquaintance with a language; practical economy.
3. Engaged in some practice; working; as, a practical farmer. b Obs. Active; busy. c Obs. Practiced; having had experience.
4. Given or disposed to action as opposed to speculation, etc.; skillful or experienced from practice; evincing practice or skill; capable of applying knowledge to some useful end; as, a practical mind; a practical electrician.
5. That is such in practice, conduct, effect, or essential character; virtual; as, a practical republic.
6. a Obs. Practicing art or craft; artful; cunning. b Hence, unscrupulous; given to trickery, — esp. in politics.
7. Theater. Practicable.
Syn. — Utilitarian, pragmatic, working. See PRACTICABLE.
Ant. — Impractical, theoretical, ideal, speculative.
prac'ti·cal, n. An examination involving practice (sense 1b). practical arts. Those arts, esp. of handicraft, which serve ordinary needs; — disting. from fine arts and liberal arts.
practical astronomy. That branch of astronomy pertaining to the making of observations of the celestial bodies. Cf. NAUTICAL ASTRONOMY.
Practical Christianity. See NEW THOUGHT. practical faith. See FAITH, 9 b. prac'ti·cal·ism (prăk'tĭ·kȧl·ĭz'm), n. Devotion to practical matters. prac'ti·cal·ist (-ĭst), n. An advocate or adherent of what is practical. prac'ti·cal'i·ty (prăk'tĭ·kăl'ĭ·tĭ), n.; pl. -TIES (-tĭz). Quality, state or an instance of being practical; practicalness; a practical matter.
prac'ti·cal·ize (prăk'tĭ·kȧl·ĭz), v. t.; -IZED (-ĭzd); -IZING (-ĭz'ĭng). 1. To make a victim of practical jokes. Rare.
2. To render practical; as, practicalizing influences.
— prac'ti·cal·i·za'tion (-ĭ·zā'shŭn; -ĭ·zā'shŭn), n. — prac'ti·cal·iz'er (prăk'tĭ·kȧl·ĭz'ĕr), n.
practical joke. A joke put in practice, the fun consisting in what is done rather than what is said; esp., a trick played on a person, usually involving some roughness. — practical joker.
practical judgment. Philos. A judgment as to action or fitness; esp., with Kant, a judgment of the practical reason; an ethical judgment.
prac'ti·cal·ly (prăk'tĭ·kȧl·ĭ; 59), adv. In a practical way; as: a Not theoretically; really; as, practically worthless. b By means of practice; by experience or experiment; as, practically wise; practically acquainted with a subject. c In actual practice or use; as, a medicine practically safe. d Virtually; to all practical purposes (though not entirely or absolutely). e Within limits of usefulness; — in contrast to ornamentally or bountifully. practical mechanics. See MECHANICS, n., 2. practical nurse. A nurse not fully trained professionally but employable for ordinary service.
practical politics. Formerly, matter for concrete action as distinguished from theoretical discussion; now, often, political intrigue, scheming, or action involving dishonorable or dishonest dealings.
practical reason. Philos. The action or office of reason in matters of will; esp., with Kant, the determination of the grounds or universal laws of voluntary action by reason.
practical system. See Practical Units, under UNIT, n. practical theology. Those branches of theological study which deal with the institutional activities of religion, specif. of Christianity. It covers especially homiletics, pastoral theology, church polity, science of church administration, and liturgics. prac'ti·cant (prăk'tĭ·kȧnt), n. [ML. practicans, pres. part.; cf. obs. F. practiquant.] A practitioner. prac'tice, prac'tise (prăk'tĭs), v.; PRAC'TICED or PRAC'TISED (-tĭst); PRAC'TIC·ING or PRAC'TIS·ING (-tĭs·ĭng). [ME. practisen, fr. OF. practiser, pratiser, with change of suffix for older pratiquer, fr. ML. practicare. See PRACTIC; -IZE.] Transitive: 1. To do, perform, carry on, act, or exercise; now, except rarely, to do or perform often, customarily, or habitually; to make a practice of; as, to practice politeness; to put into practice or action; to execute; as, to practice gaming.
2. To exercise oneself in, for instruction or improvement, or to acquire discipline, proficiency, or dexterity; as, to practice gunnery or music.
3. To exercise, follow, or work at, as a profession, trade, art, etc.; as, to practice law or medicine.
4. To teach or accustom by practice; to train; drill.
In church they are taught to love God; after church they are practiced to love their neighbor. Landor.
5. Obs. a To make use of; to use; employ. b A Gallicism. To frequent; haunt. c To bring about or try to bring about; to effect; compass; try to get; plan; plot. d To influence or work upon, as to do something evil; to persuade, esp. by craft or fraud; to corrupt. e To make trial of; to try. f To construct.
—, Intransitive: 1. To act; operate; proceed.
2. To perform certain acts often or customarily in order to acquire proficiency or skill; as, to practice with the broadsword or the rifle; to practice on the piano.
3. To exercise or pursue an employment or profession actively, esp. medicine or law.
4. Now Rare. a To plan or scheme, esp. for a bad purpose; to use or try artifices or stratagems; to plot; intrigue.
He will practice against thee by poison. Shak.
b To deal or treat (with), esp. for the purpose of influencing or winning over; to negotiate (with).
5. To act or do something habitually; as, to practice rather than to preach.
6. To work or labor; also, to execute musically. Obs.
☞ The spelling practice is now common, following the analogy of other nouns and verbs which agree in pronunciation and spelling. Cf. notice (n. & v.), noticer; poultice (n. & v.); apprentice (n. & v.); etc.; contrasted with advice (ăd·vīs', n.) and advise (ăd·vīz', v.); device (dē·vīs', n.) and devise (dē·vīz', v.); etc.
practice on or upon. a To use artifices or tricks in dealing with; to try to influence by craft; to play a trick on; impose upon; work upon. b To tamper with; corrupt.
prac'tice (prăk'tĭs), n. [Earlier practise, fr. the v. The pron. is due to nouns in -ice, as notice. See PRACTICE, v.; cf. PRACTIC, PRATIQUE.] 1. a Obs. Action; performance; operation; also, an action; deed; proceeding. b Actual performance or application of knowledge; — distinguished from theory, profession, etc.; esp., such actual performance or application habitually engaged in; often, repeated or customary action; usage; habit; custom; as, the practice of rising early or working hard; also, the usual mode or method of doing something; as, the practice is to use a local anesthetic. In pl. usually derogatory; as, base, evil, or unwholesome practices; superstitious practices.
2. Skillful or artful management; dexterity in contrivance or the use of means; art; stratagem; — now only in a bad sense: artifice; trickery; scheming; a scheme, plot, trick, stratagem, or the like.
He sought to have that by practice which he could not by prayer. Sir P. Sidney.
3. Systematic exercise for instruction or discipline; as troops called out for practice; practice makes perfect.
4. a The exercise of any profession or occupation; as, the practice of law. b Professional business or work, esp. as an incorporeal property; as, a large or lucrative practice; he sold his practice.
5. Archaic. a Negotiation; conference; dealings; — esp. in a bad sense: intrigue; collusion. b A practical treatise; an exercise. c Practical acquaintance, experience, proficiency, skill, or dexterity, acquired by systematic action or exercise. "This disease is beyond my practice." Shak. d Act of using artifice or influence (upon or on); imposing or working (upon or on).
6. Arith. A compendious method of performing multiplication by means of aliquot parts, in cases where one or both quantities are expressed in several denominations; for example, in finding the value of a given number of articles at so many pounds, shillings, and pence each, or that of so many hundredweight, pounds, and ounces of something at so much a hundredweight.
7. Law. The form, manner, and order of conducting and carrying on suits and prosecutions through their various stages, according to law.
Syn. — See HABIT, EXERCISE.
— in practice. a In action; practically; as a fact. b Obs. In customary or present use; in vogue. c Habitually performed; practiced. d In such a condition through habitual or constant performance as to be able to perform with full or high skill; as, this pianist is always in practice. — out of practice. Not in practice. See in practice d, above.
Practice Court. See BAIL COURT. practice curve. Psychol. A graph of the improvement in any performance with continued practice.

pow'head (pō'hĕd). Var. of POLEHEAD. [Dial.] powl (pōl). Var. of POLL. Now pow'ney, pow'nie, pow'ny (pō'nĭ). Scot. vars. of PONY. powre. ✝ POUR, POWER, POUR. powse (dial. pōs, pous). Var. of PULSE. Obs. exc. Dial.
powt (dial. pōōt). Var. of POULT. Obs. exc. Dial. [& Dial. Eng.] powt (pout). Var. of PAUT. Scot. powt'er. Scot. var. of POUTER, to poke. [var. of POWDER.]
pow'ther (Scot. pōō'thĕr). Dial. pow'wow'. Powwowed. Ref. Sp. pox'-marked', adj. See -MARKED.
pox'y (pŏk'sĭ), adj. See -Y. poy'bird'. Var. of POEBIRD. poy'naunt. ✝ POIGNANT.
poz, adj. & adv. Positive; positively. Obs. Colloq.
Pra'crit. Var. of PRAKRIT. [Sp.] prac'ti·ca·bi. Practicable. Ref. prac'ti·cal·ness, n. See -NESS.

prac'ticed, prac'tised (prăk'tĭst), adj. 1. Experienced; expert; skilled; as, a practiced marksman or thief.
2. Tried or done habitually in order to acquire proficiency; learned by practice; as, a practiced art.
3. Used or frequented habitually; accustomed. Now Rare.

prac'tic·er, prac'tis·er (prăk'tĭs·ĕr), n. [ME. practisour.] One who practices (in any sense); specif.: a One who exercises a profession; a practitioner. b One who customarily performs certain acts. c A schemer; plotter.

prac'tice–teach', prac'tise–teach', v. t. & i. Educ. To teach as a practice teacher.

practice teacher. An advanced student in a normal school or the like who serves as a teacher under supervision, esp. of an experienced teacher.

prac·ti'cian (prăk·tĭsh'ăn), n. [F. praticien, earlier also practicien. See PRACTIC, n.] One acquainted or skilled by practice; a practical person; also, a practitioner.

‖prac'ti·co (prăk'tē·kō), n.; pl. -COS (Sp. -kōs). [Sp., lit., experienced, skilled. Cf. PRACTICAL.] A guide. Sp. Amer. & Phil. I.

prac'ti·cum (prăk'tĭ·kŭm), n. [NL.; cf. G. praktikum.] In some colleges and universities, an academic exercise consisting of practical work, as in a laboratory, or a course in methods of independent research.

prac'ti·sant (prăk'tĭ·sănt), n. [Obs. F., pres. part.] A practitioner or adherent, as of a doctrine. Shak.

prac·ti'tion·al (prăk·tĭsh'ŭn·ăl; -'l), adj. Orig., addicted to plotting, pertaining to practice; now Rare.

prac·ti'tion·er (prăk·tĭsh'ŭn·ĕr), n. [From PRACTICIAN.]
1. One who practices; esp., one who exercises an art, science, or profession, as law, medicine, or engineering. See GENERAL PRACTITIONER.
2. One who practices an art or profession to acquire or maintain proficiency; esp., a learner; novice. Obs.
3. One who does anything customarily or habitually.
4. One who acts for another; an agent; assistant. Obs.
5. A sly or artful person; a schemer; plotter. Obs.
6. Christian Science. An authorized healer.

prac·ti'tion·er'y (-ĕr'ĭ; -ĕr·ĭ), n. Action of a mere practitioner; empiricism. Rare.

prad (prăd), n. [D. paard.] A horse. Brit. Slang.

pra·dha'na (prŭ·dä'nä; prŭd·hä'nä; 113), n. [Skr. pradhāna.] Hindu Philos. Primary matter.

Pra'do (prä'dō; Sp. prä'thō), n. [Sp., lit., meadow. See PRATER.] 1. A fashionable boulevard or promenade in Madrid, Spain; — more fully Sa·lón' del Pra'do (sä·lōn' dĕl prä'thō) or Pa·se'o del Pra'do (pä·sā'ō); hence, sometimes, a similar promenade elsewhere.
2. The royal picture gallery (Real Museo de Pinturas), adjoining the Prado boulevard; — popularly so called.

prae- (prē-). A prefix from Latin prae, equivalent to PRE-. For many words often spelled prae-, including the following, see the forms in PRE-, of which they are variants.

praeabdomen	praecesophageal	praeneural praeacetabular	praefect	praeoperculum
praeanal	praefectorial	praepubis
praecava	praehallux	praepuce
praecocial	praelabrum	praescutum
praecoracoid	praelection	praesidium
praecordia	praelector	praesphenoid
praecordial	praelectorship	praesternal
praecordium	praelectress	praesternum
praecornu	praemaxilla	praestomium
praecox	praemolar	praesystolic praecuneus	praenarial	praezygapophysis praec'i·pe (prĕs'ĭ·pē; prē'sĭ·pē), n. [L., imperative of praecipere to give rules or precepts. See PRECEPT.] Law. a Any of various writs commanding a person to do something or to appear and show cause why he should not, as the obsolete praec'i·pe in cap'i·te, issuing in aid of a disseized tenant in capite. b A paper containing the particulars of a writ, lodged in the office from which the writ issues.

prae·cip'u·um (prē·sĭp'ū·ŭm), n. [L.] a Roman Law. A portion received from an inheritance before general distribution. b Scots Law. An additional share or bonus, as that received by the eldest of several heirs portioners.

prae'co·ces (prē'kō·sēz), n. pl. [NL. See PRECOCIOUS.] Zool. Precocial birds. See PRECOCIAL.

prae·cog'ni·tum (prē·kŏg'nĭ·tŭm), n.; pl. -TA (-tȧ). [L., neut. of past part. of praecognoscere to foreknow.] Something known, or that should be known, in order to understand something else.

prae'di·al, pre'di·al (prē'dĭ·ăl), adj. [ML. praedialis, fr. L. praedium farm, land; cf. F. prédial.] 1. Of the nature of land or immovable property; landed; — used chiefly with reference to the Roman and Civil law systems, and practically equivalent to the real of English law.
2. Of or pertaining to, or arising from, land or landed property; attached to land; as, praedial slaves.

prae'di·al, n. A praedial slave or serf.

prae'di·al·ist, pre'di·al·ist (-ĭst), n. One of a class or order of landholders. Rare.

prae'di·al'i·ty, pre'di·al'i·ty (prē'dĭ·ăl'ĭ·tĭ), n. Quality or state of being praedial.

‖prae'di·um (prē'dĭ·ŭm), n. [L.] Civil Law. Land; landed property; a tenement of land; — called prae'di·um rus'ti·cum (rŭs'tĭ·kŭm) when adapted and used for agricultural or pastoral purposes; prae'di·um ur·ba'num (ûr·bā'nŭm) when adapted and used for purposes of habitation.

prae·fec'tus (prē·fĕk'tŭs), n. [L.] A prefect.

prae·fer'vid (-fûr'vĭd), adj. Perfervid.

prae'flo·ra'tion (prē'flō·rā'shăn), n. Bot. Estivation.

prae'fo·li·a'tion (prē'fō·lĭ·ā'shăn), n. Bot. Vernation.

prae'mu·ni·en'tes clause (prē'mū·nĭ·ĕn'tēz). [ML. praemunientes, pres. part. pl. See PRAEMUNIRE.] Eng. Law. A clause beginning with the word praemunientes, in the summons of archbishops and bishops to Parliament requiring them to summon such of their inferior clergy to come with them as the king specified and thought sufficient to act for the whole body of the clergy. It has been in use since 1295, but is now a mere form. Hence, praemunientes writ.

prae'mu·ni're (prē'mū·nī're), n. [Short for praemunire facias, where praemunire is a ML. corruption of L. praemonere to forewarn, cite.] Eng. Law. A form of writ for prosecuting certain offenses made punishable by forfeiture of property and imprisonment, orig. by outlawry; also, the offense itself, or the penalty for it. The writ was introduced by statute to repress papal encroachments, but later acts extended it to other offenses. Prosecution by writ of praemunire has long been obsolete. Of the many statutes called by the term Statute of Praemunire, the chief is 16 Rich. II (1392), c. 5, forbidding the attempt to enforce papal bulls or provisions.

prae'mu·ni're (prē'mū·nī're), v. t. To prosecute for or convict of praemunire. Now Hist.

Prae·nes'tine (prē·nĕs'tĭn), adj. [L. Praenestinus.] Rom. Antiq. Pertaining to or characteristic of Praeneste; as, Praenestine cistae, bronze cylindrical boxes with engraved designs; Praenestine lots or oracles, given at the temple of Fortune at Praeneste.

prae·no'men (prē·nō'mĕn), n.; pl. -NOMINA (-nŏm'ĭ·nȧ). [L., fr. prae before + nomen name.] In ancient Roman names, the first of the usual three names of a person, by which he was distinguished from others of the same family. In the name Marcus Tullius Cicero, Marcus is the praenomen, corresponding to the modern first name. Cf. AGNOMEN, COGNOMEN, NOMEN.

prae·nom'i·nal (prē·nŏm'ĭ·năl; -n'l), adj. Of or pertaining to a praenomen.

prae·pos'i·tor (-pŏz'ĭ·tĕr), n. [ML., fr. praeponere to put before, to set over.] 1. Roman & Civil Law. A person who as principal puts another (called institor) in charge of a business or undertaking.
2. Var. of PREPOSITOR.

‖prae·po'si·tus (prē·pōz'ĭ·tŭs), n. [L., a chief, director. See PROVOST.] Eccl. a An abbot, or, among Benedictines, the second monastic official, known after the Cluniac reform as prior. b The head of a cathedral or collegiate chapter; a provost.

prae·pos'tor, pre·pos'tor (prē·pŏs'tĕr), n. A prepositor. — prae'pos·to'ri·al, pre'pos·to'ri·al (prē'pŏs·tō'rĭ·ăl; 181), adj.

Prae·se'pe, Prae·sae'pe (prē·sē'pē), n. [L. praesepe, praesaepe prop., a stall, a pen, a fold.] Astron. An extended stellar cluster in the constellation Cancer; — called also Beehive.

prae·ser'tim (prē·sûr'tĭm), n. [L., adv.] Something especially insisted on.

‖prae'ses (prē'sēz), n. [L.] 1. President, now esp. of an American college or university.
2. = PRESES.

Prae'si·an (prē'shĭ·ăn; -sĭ·ăn), adj. [L. Praesus, n., fr. Gr. Praisos.] Pertaining to or characteristic of Praesus in Crete, the site of important Cretan antiquities.

prae'tax·a'tion (prē'tăks·ā'shŭn), n. [ML. praetaxare, v. See PRE-; TAXATION.] The act or privilege of voting before others, esp. as exercised by a small powerful group in selecting a monarch. Hist.

prae·tex'ta (prē·tĕks'tȧ), n.; pl. -TEXTAE (-tē). [L. (sc. toga), fr. praetextus, past part. of praetexere to weave before, to fringe. See PRETEXT.] Rom. Antiq. A white robe with a purple border worn by a Roman boy before he assumed the toga virilis, or until about the end of his 14th year, and by girls until their marriage. Originally it was worn by magistrates and some of the priests. See COMOEDIA TOGATA.

prae'tor, pre'tor (prē'tŏr), n. [L. praetor, for praeitor, fr. praeire to go before, fr. prae before + ire to go.] Rom. Hist. A magistrate next to the consul in rank, being attended by six lictors (later two in his judicial capacity in Rome). The praetorship was established in 367–366 B.C., and patricians only were eligible until 337 B.C. In 242 B.C. the number of praetors was increased to two: ‖prae'tor ur·ba'nus (ûr·bā'nŭs), who had jurisdiction in all suits between citizens only, and who had precedence of the second, ‖prae'tor pe're·gri'nus (pĕ'rē·grĭ'nŭs), who had jurisdiction of all cases where either or both parties were foreigners. Later there were a ‖prae'tor ae·ra'ri·i (ē·rā'rĭ·ī) or ad ae·ra'ri·um (-rĭ·ŭm), having fiscal duties; a ‖prae'tor tu'te·la'ri·i (tū'tē·lā'rĭ·ī), having probate duties; and finally 16 in all. From 367 to 227 B.C. the special duties of the praetors were judicial; after that date certain of them became provincial governors. See also DIES FASTI, DIES NEFASTI.

prae·to'ri·al, pre·to'ri·al (prē·tō'rĭ·ăl; 181), adj. Praetorian.

prae·to'ri·an, pre·to'ri·an (prē·tō'rĭ·ăn; 181), adj. [L. praetorianus, praetorius.] 1. Of or pertaining to the Roman praetor; exercised by a praetor; specif., of or pertaining to, or created by, the praetor's equitable power.
2. [usually cap.] Of, pertaining to, or designating, the bodyguard of a Roman emperor.
3. Resembling or characteristic of the Praetorian soldiers, esp. as to corruption, political venality, etc.

prae·to'ri·an, pre·to'ri·an, n. 1. A person of praetorian rank, as an ex-praetor.
2. [cap.] A soldier of the Praetorian Guard.
3. One who defends an established order; a conservative.

praetorian cohort. Rom. Hist. a Under the republic, a picked body of troops which formed the guard of a praetor, or of a general in command of an army. b In form Praetorian cohort. A cohort of the Praetorian Guard.

praetorian gate. Rom. Antiq. That one of the four gates in a camp which opened from before the general's tent directly toward the enemy.

Praetorian Guard. Rom. Hist. a The emperor's bodyguard, instituted by Augustus and consisting at first of 9 and later of 10 cohorts. This body came to have great power, making and unmaking emperors. They were suppressed by Constantine in 312. They took their name from the praetorian cohort. b A member of the foregoing; a Praetorian.

praetorian law. [L. jus praetorium.] Rom. Law. A system of equity developed by the praetors. After the praetor acquired criminal jurisdiction, about 149 B.C., he came to exercise the right to allow an action, though not provided for by the law, or to refuse to allow an action that would strictly lie by the jus civile, and also the right to allow an equitable defense where the law provided no defense. What rules would be observed were announced by exercise of the jus edicendi, or right of making edicts (belonging also to the curule aediles and quaestors; see EDICT, 1).

‖prae·to'ri·um, pre·to'ri·um (prē·tō'rĭ·ŭm), n. [L. praetorium, fr. praetor.] Rom. Antiq. a A general's tent in a camp; hence, a council of war, because held in the general's tent. b The official residence of a governor; hence, a palace; a splendid country seat.

prag·mat'ic (prăg·măt'ĭk), adj. [L. pragmaticus busy, active, skilled in business, especially in law and state affairs, systematic, fr. Gr. pragmatikos, fr. pragma a thing done, business, fr. prassein to do; cf. F. pragmatique. See PRACTICAL.] 1. Of or pertaining to the affairs of a community or state; — chiefly in pragmatic sanction (see below).
2. Busy, esp. in an objectionable way; officious; meddling.
3. Stiff in one's opinion; conceited; opinionated; dogmatic.
4. Practical; matter-of-fact; pragmatical.
5. Dealing with events so as to show their interconnection. "Pragmatic history." Sir W. Hamilton.
6. Philos. a With Kant, prescribing the means necessary to attainment of happiness. b Of or pertaining to pragmatism, esp. to the philosophic pragmatism of Peirce and James; dealing with practical values or consequences.

prag·mat'ic (prăg·măt'ĭk), n. 1. A pragmatic sanction.
2. One skilled in affairs or business; hence, an agent. Obs.
3. An officiously busy person; a meddler; busybody; also, an opinionated or conceited person.

prag·mat'i·ca (prăg·măt'ĭ·kȧ), n.; pl. -ICAE (-sē). [Sp., pragmática, fr. LL. pragmatica sanctio (or jussio, etc.).] A pragmatic sanction.

prag·mat'i·cal (prăg·măt'ĭ·kăl), adj. 1. = PRAGMATIC, 1. R.
2. Of, pertaining to, or concerned with, the practice or the practical side of anything; practical; matter-of-fact.
3. Of, pertaining to, or experienced in, business or affairs; active; busy; businesslike; energetic; skilled. Obs.
4. Objectionably busy; forward; officious; meddlesome; also, conceited; dogmatic. "Pragmatical insolence." Scott.
5. Philos. = PRAGMATIC, 6 b.
Syn. — See OFFICIOUS.

prag·mat'i·cal'i·ty (prăg·măt'ĭ·kăl'ĭ·tĭ), n. Pragmatical quality.

prag·mat'i·cal·ly, adv. of PRAGMATIC, PRAGMATICAL.

pragmatic anthropology. Kantianism. Practical ethics.

prag·mat'i·cism (prăg·măt'ĭ·sĭz'm), n. 1. Pragmaticalness.
2. Philos. The philosophic doctrine of C. S. Peirce; — adopted by Peirce to distinguish his philosophy from other forms of pragmatism.

pragmatic sanction. Law. a During the Byzantine Empire, an imperial constitution or decree answering a request or petition of a college, municipality, or other public body, concerning its public affairs. b Hence [caps.], a solemn decree issued by the head of a state on a weighty matter and having the force of a fundamental law, as, in European history, that issued by Charles VII of France A.D. 1438, setting limits on the papal claims to exercise jurisdiction in France, or that first issued in 1713 and formally promulgated by Charles VI of Germany A.D. 1724, fixing the law of succession for the dominions of the Hapsburg house.

prag'ma·tism (prăg'mȧ·tĭz'm), n. 1. Pragmatic quality or state or an instance of it; as: a Officiousness; dogmatism; pedantic assertiveness; also, practicality; matter-of-factness. b In history and literature, the pragmatic (cf. PRAGMATIC, adj., 5), or philosophical, method.
2. Philos. Emphasis upon the application of ideas or the practical bearings of conceptions and beliefs; specif., the American movement in philosophy founded by C. S. Peirce and William James and continued by John Dewey and his followers. Characteristic doctrines of this movement are that the meaning of conceptions is to be sought in their practical bearings, that the function of thought is as a guide to action, and that the truth is pre-eminently to be tested by the practical consequences of belief.

prag'ma·tist (-tĭst), n. One who is pragmatic; as: a A busybody. b An adherent of pragmatism.

prag'ma·tist adj. Pragmatistic.

prag'ma·tis'tic (-tĭs'tĭk), adj. Of or pert. to pragmatism.

prag'ma·tize (prăg'mȧ·tīz), v. t.; -TIZED (-tīzd); -TIZ'ING (-tĭz'ĭng). To consider, represent, or embody (something unreal) as fact; to materialize; rationalize. — prag'ma·tiz'er (-tīz'ĕr), n.

Prague (prăg; präg), n. a Capital of Czechoslovakia. b The government of Czechoslovakia. c See TREATY, Table.

‖Prai'ri·al' (prā'rē·ăl'), n. [F., fr. prairie meadow.] See REVOLUTIONARY CALENDAR.

prai'rie (prâr'ĭ; 79), n. [F., an extensive meadow, fr. OF. praerie, fr. (assumed) VL. prataria, fr. L. pratum. Cf. PRADO.] 1. A meadow or tract of grassland; specif.: a An extensive tract of level or rolling land in the Mississippi Valley, characterized in general by a deep fertile soil, and, except where cultivated, by a covering of coarse grass without trees. The lack of forests has been attributed to the compactness of the soil, to Indian fires, and to low rainfall. b Less correctly, one of the plateaus into which the prairies proper merge on the west, whose treeless state is due to dryness. c A low, sandy, grass-grown tract in the Florida pine woods.
2. A color, yellowish red-yellow in hue, of low saturation and medium brilliance. Cf. COLOR.

prairie acacia. A low thornless shrub (Acacia angustissima) with feathery leaves and globose heads of yellow flowers.

prairie anemone. The pasqueflower Pulsatilla ludoviciana.

prairie antelope. The pronghorn.

prairie apple. = BREADROOT, 1.

prairie artichoke. The showy sunflower.

prairie aster. A violet-flowered perennial herb (Aster turbinellus) with solitary heads.

prairie bean. The Metcalfe bean.

prairie bergamot. An annual weedy herb (Monarda pectinata) with compact clusters of pink or whitish flowers.

prairie berry; pl. PRAIRIE BERRIES. The trompillo.

prairie bird's–foot trefoil. An annual plant (Hosackia americana) with red or rose-colored flowers.

prairie brant. The white-fronted goose.

prairie breaker. Agric. Mach. See PLOW, n., 1.

prairie brown. A color, red-yellow in hue, of high saturation and medium brilliance. Cf. COLOR.

prairie burdock. = PRAIRIE DOCK a.

prairie button snakeroot. A perennial herb (Liatris pycnostachya) having profuse spikes of purple flowers; — called also Kansas gay-feather.

prairie chicken. a A grouse (Tympanuchus cupido americanus) of the Mississippi Valley from Manitoba to Texas, distinguished as the greater prairie chicken. It has the upper part streaked and spotted with rufous and black and the under parts white evenly barred with blackish. On each side of the neck is a patch of bare inflatable skin. It is an important game bird. A smaller species (T. pallidicinctus), the lesser prairie chicken, occurs in western Texas. Cf. HEATH HEN. b Sometimes, the sharp-tailed grouse.

Prairie Chicken (Tympanuchus cupido americanus).

prac'ticed·ness, prac'tised·ness, n. See -NESS. prac·ti'cian·ism, n. See -ISM. prac'tis. Practise. Ref. Sp. prac'tise, prac'tis·er, etc. Vars. of PRACTICE, etc. prac'tist. Practised. Ref. Sp. prac'tive (prăk'tĭv), adj. Doing; active; practical; also, skillful; apt. Obs. prae'di·um ser'vi·ens (sûr'vĭ·ĕnz). See SERVITUDE. [JUDICIARY.] praedial servitude. See SERVITUDE. praedial tithes. See TITHE. prae'di·um dom'i·nans (prē'dĭ·ŭm dŏm'ĭ·nănz). See SERVITUDE, DOMINANT ESTATE. prae·lu'di·um (prē·lū'dĭ·ŭm), n. [ML.] = PRELUDE. prae'mi·um. ✝ PREMIUM.
praemunite. ✝ PREMUNITE.
Prae'nes·tin'i·an (prē'nĕs·tĭn'ĭ·ăn), n. See INDO-EUROPEAN LANGUAGES, Table.
prae·sid'i·um, n. = PRESIDIUM. praeter-. Var. of PRETER-. prae·to'ri·an·ism, n. See -ISM. prae'tor·ship, pre'tor·ship, n. See -SHIP. prae'to·ry. ✝ PRETORY.
prag·mat'i·cal·ness, n. See -NESS. prah (prä), n. Var. of PROA. praham, prahm (prăm). Vars. of PRAAM. [of PROA.] pra'hu (prä'hōō; prä'hōō). Var.

prairie clover. Any plant of the genus Petalostemon, having small, rosy or white flowers in dense heads or spikes.
prairie coneflower. A rough perennial herb (Lepachys columnifera) with a yellow head of few rays but an elongated disk of tubular flowers.
prairie crab or crab apple. = IOWA CRAB. prairie crocus. The pasqueflower Pulsatilla ludoviciana. prai'ried (prâr'ĭd), adj. Having prairies. prairie dock. a A tall weedy compass plant (Silphium terebinthinaceum) with broad heads of yellow ray flowers. b The American feverfew. prairie dog. An American burrowing rodent of the genus Cynomys, allied to the spermophiles and marmots; esp., the species C. ludovicianus of Great Plains from Montana to northern Mexico. The color is plain grayish or reddish buff with a black tip to the tail. Prairie dogs live in large colonies, or villages, throwing up a mound of earth at the mouth of each burrow.

Prairie Dog. (⅛) prai'rie–dog' weed. The fetid marigold. prairie evening primrose. A low caluescent herb (Anogra albicaulis) with pinnatifid leaves and rose-colored axillary flowers; also, more rarely, the closely related A. nuttallii. prairie falcon. A falcon (Falco mexicanus) similar to the Old World lanner. It is about 18 inches long, pale grayish brown above, and white streaked with brown below.

prairie false boneset. A perennial herb (Kuhnia suaveolens), more floriferous than the closely related false boneset (K. eupatorioides). prairie false dandelion. A false dandelion (Agoseris cuspidata), family Cichoriaceae, having a stout scape crowned by a solitary head of yellow ray flowers.
prairie false lupine. The yellow pea. prairie fire. The painted cup Castilleja coccinea. prairie fowl. A prairie chicken. prairie fox. The kit fox. prairie gentian. The Canada pest. prairie goose. Hutchins's goose. Texas.
prairie grouse. A prairie chicken. prairie grub. The hop tree.
prairie hare. The white-tailed jack rabbit. See JACK RABBIT. prairie hen. a A prairie chicken. b A clapper rail. prairie horned lark. The horned lark Otocoris alpestris praticola. prairie hyssop. The Virginia mountain mint. prairie itch. Med. Any of several itching affections of the skin observed in the northern and western United States. prairie June grass. = JUNE GRASS b. U. S. prairie larkspur. A white-flowered or, rarely, pale blue-flowered perennial herb (Delphinium virescens).
prairie lily. a The western red lily (Lilium umbellatum). b A rough-hairy perennial herb (Nuttallia decapetala) with a solitary, yellowish-white flower. c = EVENING STAR, 2. prairie locomotive. See LOCOMOTIVE, Table.
prairie lotus. The plant Hosackia americana. prairie mallow. = MOSS ROSE b. prairie marmot. A prairie dog. prairie mesquite. A low, spiny shrub (Prosopis glandulosa) closely related to the common mesquite (P. juliflora). prairie moneywort. A loosestrife (Steironema quadriflorum) having yellow flowers with apiculate petals. prairie oak. The Oregon oak. prairie owl. a A burrowing owl. b U.S. The short-eared owl. prairie phlox. A North American perennial herb (Phlox pilosa) with ciliate, lanceolate leaves and a terminal corymb of pink, purple, or white flowers. prairie pigeon. a The upland plover. b The golden plover. c Local, U. S. The pectoral sandpiper. prairie pine. The gay-feather Liatris spicata. prairie plover. a The upland plover. b The golden plover. c The mountain plover. prairie pointer. The shooting star (Dodecatheon meadia). prairie poppy. The showy primrose. prairie potato. = BREADROOT, 1. prairie rattlesnake. Any of several rattlesnakes of the prairie regions, esp. Crotalus confluentus, a small and slender species with dark blotches above, or Sistrurus catenatus, a small species which frequents wet places.
prairie rocket. Any of several western American species of Cheirinia having large yellow flowers.
prairie rose. A climbing rose (Rosa setigera) having usually trifoliolate leaves and large deep-pink flowers. Of several cultivated varieties, the Baltimore Belle is notable. prairie sabbatia. A prairie herb (Sabbatia campestris) with ovate-lanceolate entire leaves and solitary lilac-colored flowers.
prairie sage. A perennial cottony-white herb (Artemisia gnaphalodes) with numerous small paniculate heads of yellowish flowers.
prairie schooner. A long canvas-covered wagon used esp. by emigrants crossing the prairies. U. S. prairie senna. = PARTRIDGE PEA b. prairie smoke. a A North American perennial herb (Sieversia ciliata) with basal pinnate leaves, purple flowers, and plume-tipped fruit. See WILD FLOWERS, Plate. b The pasque flower Pulsatilla ludoviciana. prairie spurge. An annual, wiry weed (Chamaesyce nuttallii) with bright-green foliage and greenish-white, axillary, solitary flowers.
prairie squirrel. Any of certain spermophiles of the prairies of western North America, as Citellus franklini, C. tridecemlineatus, and C. richardsoni.
Prairie State. The State of Illinois; — a nickname. prairie sunflower. a An annual herb (Helianthus petiolaris) resembling the common sunflower (H. annuus). b The showy sunflower. prairie turnip. = BREADROOT, 1.

prairie vetchling. An everlasting pea (Lathyrus decaphyllus) with erect leaflets, angled stems, and showy purple flowers.
prairie violet. A stemless violet (Viola pedatifida) with palmately divided leaves and violet-colored flowers.
prairie wagon. A prairie schooner. prairie wake–robin. A perennial herb (Trillium recurvatum) with a dark-purple sessile flower. prairie warbler. A small warbler (Dendroica discolor) of eastern North America. The back is olive green spotted with rufous, the under parts yellow, and the sides of the head and body are streaked with black.
prai'rie-weed' (prâr'ĭ-wēd'), n. The shrubby cinquefoil Dasiphora fruticosa. prairie willow. A dry-land willow (Salix humilis) closely related to the sage willow S. tristis. prairie wolf. A coyote. prai-ril'ion (prā-rĭl'yŭn), n. [Dim. fr. F. prairie.] A small prairie. Now Rare.
prais'a-ble (prāz'ȧ-b'l), adj. Praiseworthy. — prais'a-ble-ness, n. — prais'a-bly, adv.
praise (prāz), v.; PRAISED (prāzd); PRAIS'ING (prāz'ĭng). [ME. preisen, fr. OF. preisier (later prisier, F. priser), fr. LL. pretiare to prize, fr. pretium price. See PRICE; cf. APPRECIATE, PRIZE to value.] Transitive: 1. To value; to appraise; also, to esteem; value; prize. Obs. exc. Dial. 2. To express approbation of; to laud; extol; commend; applaud. "Much I praised her nobleness." Tennyson. 3. To win or gain praise or commendation for. Obs. 4. To glorify (a god or a saint) by homage and ascription of perfections, esp. in song; to laud; magnify.
Praise ye him . . . all his hosts! Ps. cxlviii. 2.
—, Intransitive: To express praise.
Syn. — Eulogize, celebrate, glorify, magnify.
Ant. — Denounce; blame. See DECRY, CENSURE. praise, n. [From PRAISE, v.] 1. Act of praising, or state of being praised; commendation for worth or excellence; approval expressed; honor rendered because of excellence or worth; laudation.
Praise is the salt that seasons right to man. Young.
2. Specif.: The act of glorifying or extolling God or a god; worship, esp. worship by song, in distinction from prayer and other acts; as, a service of praise.
3. The object, subject, ground, or reason of praise. Archaic.
He is thy praise, and he is thy God. Deut. x. 21.
Syn. — Encomium, honor, eulogy, panegyric, plaudit, applause, acclaim, approbation, commendation.
Ant. — Reproof, blame, censure, condemnation, abuse.
☞ COMBINATIONS are:
praise-begging, adj. praise-giving, adj. praiseworthily praise-deserving, adj. praise-spoiled praiseworthiness praise-fed praise-winning, adj. praiseworthy praise'ful (prāz'fŏŏl; -f'l), adj. 1. Praiseworthy; laudable. Obs.
2. Full of, abounding in, or giving, praise; laudatory. — praise'ful-ly, n. — praise'ful-ness, n.
praise meeting. A religious service mainly of song. Local, U. S. prais'er (prāz'ẽr), n. One who praises; as: a Obs. An appraiser. b A lauder; eulogist. c A worshiper. prais'ing (-ĭng), adj. Laudatory. Cf. PRAISE, v. — prais'ing-ly, adv.
Pra-ja'pa'ti (prȧ-jä'pŭt'ĭ), n. [Skr. prajāpati, lit., lord of creation.] Vedic Myth. In the Brahmanas, the Creator, supreme deity, or cosmic principle. As such he inherits the original status of Varuna, and is equivalent to Brahman. Cf. PITRI b. praj'na (prŭj'nȧ), n. [Skr. prajñā.] Buddhism. 1. Supreme knowledge or wisdom, — personified as Praj'na-pa'ra-mi'ta, the primordial female energy or Shakti of Adi-Buddha.
2. [cap.] An important Mahayana scripture.
Pra'krit (prä'krĭt), n. [Skr. prakṛtā original, natural, usual, common, vulgar. See FOR; SANSKRIT.] The Aryan (Indo-Iranian) vernacular dialects of India as distinguished from Sanskrit; also, any one of these dialects. Three stages of Prakrit are: the Primary, including Pali and other vernaculars developed from Vedic Aryan as early as 250 B.C.; the Secondary, or medieval Aryan vernaculars of India; and the Tertiary, or modern vernaculars, developed from the latter, approximately since the 10th century. Prakrit is commonly restricted to the Secondary Prakrits. Prakrit and Pali became literary languages, vehicles respectively of Jainism and Buddhism. See INDO-EUROPEAN LANGUAGES, Table; cf. PALI. — Pra'krit, adj.
pra'kri-ti (prŭk'rĭ-tē), n. [Skr. prakṛti.] 1. Hindu Philos. Esp. in the Sankhya system, potential matter; nature; the phenomenal; matter which exists only conditionally, or as a material cause, making nature possible when united with the efficient cause, which is pu-ru'sha (pōō-rōō'shȧ) [Skr. puruṣa man], the ego or man.
2. Hinduism. The supreme goddess, equivalent to Maya or Shakti, as the inherent power of manifestation.
Pra-krit'ic (prä-krĭt'ĭk), adj. Pertaining to, from, or resembling, Prakrit; [sometimes not cap.] vernacular; dialectic.
Pra'la-ya (prŭl'ȧ-yȧ), n. [Skr., end, destruction.] Hindu Philos. The period of dissolution or destruction of the manifested universe at the end of a Kalpa; the end of the world. See YUGA. pra'line (prä'lēn; prô'-; prā'-), n. [F.] 1. A confection of nut kernels; usually of almonds, roasted in boiling sugar until brown and crisp. Sometimes, any of various other confections, as a cake of brown sugar containing pecan meats.
2. The color dark beaver.
prall'tril'ler (prăl'trĭl'ẽr), n. [G.] Music. A melodic embellishment consisting of a principal tone, a tone one degree higher, and the principal tone again, all played as quickly as possible; — called also inverted mordent.

Prälltriller. 1 As written; 2 As performed.

pram (prăm), n. Chiefly British. 1. Short for PERAMBULATOR, baby carriage. Colloq.
2. A milkman's hand cart. Slang.
pram (prăm). Var. of PRAAM.
Pram'ni-an (prăm'nĭ-ăn), adj. [L. Pramnium (sc. vinum), Gr. Pramnios (sc. oinos).] Gr. Antiq. Designating a wine named from an unidentified locality.
pra'na (prä'nȧ), n. [Skr. prāṇa breath, breath of life.] Vedic & Later Hindu Relig. Life breath or principle; any of the three or more vital currents; the principle of life moving in the human body.

prance (prăns; see Pron., § 83), v.; PRANCED (prănst); PRANC'ING (prăn'sĭng). [ME. prauncen, perh. fr. OF. paravancier, intens. of avancier to advance. See PAR, prep., PER-; ADVANCE.] Intransitive: 1. To spring or bound from the hind legs, or move by so doing, as a horse in high mettle.
Prancing, advancing with both hind feet nearly simultaneously and alternately with one forefoot. Stillman.
2. To ride on a prancing horse; to ride gaily or proudly.
3. To walk with ostentation or parade; to swagger.
4. To dance; to caper. Colloq.
—, Transitive: 1. To cause (a horse) to prance.
2. To put into a certain condition by prancing. Rare.
prance, n. Act of prancing; a prancing movement; hence, Colloq., swagger. pranc'er (prăn'sẽr), n. One who or that which prances; specif.: a Thieves' Slang. A horse. b A mettlesome horse. c Obs. Slang. A mounted robber or highwayman. d One who rides a prancing horse. e A dancer; caperer. pranc'ing (-sĭng), adj. That prances. See PRANCE, v. — pranc'ing-ly, adv.
pran'di-al (prăn'dĭ-ȧl), adj. [L. prandium a repast.] Of or pertaining to a repast, esp. dinner. Now Humorous.
prank (prăngk), v. t. [Origin uncert.] To fold; to make pleats in. Obs. prank, n. A fold or pleat. Obs.
prank (prăngk), n. [Perh. orig. a thing done to show off. Cf. PRANK to adorn.] A trick; specif.: a Now Obs. A malicious or harmful act. "Foul pranks." Shak. b Obs. A spell or act of magic or conjuring; — in late use applied to prestidigitation. c A gay or sportive action; a ludicrous or mildly mischievous act; a frolic; caper; practical joke.
prank, v. i.; PRANKED or PRANKT (prăngkt); PRANK'ING. 1. To play tricks maliciously or in the performance of magic. Obs.
2. To frolic; to play pranks; to cut up. Colloq.
prank (prăngk), v.; PRANKED or PRANKT (prăngkt); PRANK'ING. [Cf. MLG. prank pomp, display, D. pronk, G. prunk, and E. PRINK.] Transitive: 1. To adorn in a gay or showy manner; to dress or equip ostentatiously; figuratively, to dress up; as, to prank up the body. Cf. PRINK.
Mariners pranked out in sky-colored suits. Katharine Lee Bates.
2. To adorn; deck; spangle; — usually with with.
The cottage pranks with its holly and mistletoe. Zangwill.
—, Intransitive: To make ostentatious show. prank, adj. [Cf. PRANK to adorn.] Dressed up; smart. Obs. prank (dial. prăngk), v. i. To prance. Obs. exc. Dial. — n. Prancing. Rare.
pranked (prăngkt), adj. Also prankt. Adorned; ostentatiously decorated. prank'er (prăngk'ẽr), n. 1. A horse. Obs.
2. A dancer; caperer. Obs.
3. A prancing movement.
prank'ing, n. [See 5th PRANK.] Ostentatious adornment or dressing up; prinking. — prank'ing, adj. — prank'ing-ly, adv.
prank'ish, adj. Full of pranks; frolicsome; of the nature of a prank. — prank'ish-ly, adv. — prank'ish-ness, n. pran'kle (prăng'k'l), v. i. [From PRANK to prance.] To prance or caper lightly. Now Chiefly Dial. prank'some (prăngk'sŭm), adj. Prankish. — prank'some-ness, n. prank'ster (prăngk'stẽr), n. [See -STER.] One who plays pranks. Colloq., U. S. prank'y (-ĭ), adj.; PRANK'I-ER (-ĭ-ẽr); PRANK'I-EST. Given to playing pranks; characterized by pranks. prase (prāz), n. [F., fr. L. prasius, fr. Gr. prasios of a leek-green, fr. Gr. prason a leek.] Mineral. A variety of cryptocrystalline quartz, translucent and leek-green.
pra'se-o- (prā'zē-ō-; prā'sē-ō-). [See PRASE.] A combining form signifying green, and used specif. in chemistry in naming certain complex green crystalline cobalt compounds, as in pra'se-o-co-bal'tic chlo'ride, $Co(NH_3)_4Cl_2$. See COBALTAMMINE. pra'se-o-dym'i-a (-dĭm'ĭ-ȧ), n. [NL. See PRASEODYMIUM.] Chem. Praseodymium oxide, Pr_2O_3, obtained as a greenish-yellow powder.
pra'se-o-dym'i-um (-dĭm'ĭ-ŭm), n. [NL., fr. praeseo- + didymium.] Chem. A rare metallic element, one of the constituents of didymium (see NEODYMIUM); — so called from the green color of its salts. Symbol, Pr; at. no., 59; at. wt., 140.92. The metal is silvery white and corrodes rapidly in air. Abbr. Pr (no period).
pra'se-o-lite (prā'zē-ō-līt; prā'sē-ō-), n. [praseo- + -lite.] Mineral. A green alteration product of iolite. pra'sine (prā'zĭn; -zēn), adj. [L. prasinus, fr. Gr. prasinos, fr. prason a leek.] Having the green color of a leek; specif., Her., = VERT. Rare.
pra'sine, n. [See PRASINE, adj.] A green mineral; specif.: a Obs. Verdigris; green chalk. b In medieval glyptics, any green stone resembling an emerald; also, sometimes, chrysoberyl or emerald. c Pseudomalachite praso-. A combining form, Greek praso-, from prason, meaning a leek, as in pra-soph'a-gous (prȧ-sŏf'ȧ-gŭs), pra-soph'a-gy (-jĭ). See -PHAGOUS, -PHAGY. pra'soid (prā'zoid), adj. [prase + -oid.] Mineral. Resembling prase.
prat (prăt), n. 1. Buttock; — chiefly in pl. Old Cant.
2. A trousers pocket. Old Cant. prat, v. t. To spank; beat. Obs. "I 'll prat her." Shak. prat (Scot. prât), n. [AS. prætt. See PRETTY.] A trick; a roguish prank. Obs. exc. Scot. pra'tal (prā'tȧl; -t'l), adj. [L. pratum meadow.] Of, pertaining to, or growing or living in, meadows. Rare.
prate (prāt), v.; PRAT'ED (prāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); PRAT'ING (prāt'ĭng). [MD. & MLG. prāten. Cf. PRATTLE.] Intransitive: 1. To talk, esp. much and to little purpose; to be loquacious; to chatter; to speak foolishly; to babble; to tell tales; formerly, to speak boastingly or maliciously.
He does not prate about the sacredness of human life. Agnes Repplier.
2. a Obs. To give tongue; — said of hounds. b Dial. Eng. Of a hen, to make the distinctive noise indicating that she is about to lay. c Dial. Eng. To scold; — with at.
—, Transitive: To utter foolishly; to chatter; babble.
What nonsense would the fool, thy master, prate. Dryden.
Syn. — See CHAT.
prate (prāt), n. 1. Act of prating; trifling talk; unmeaning or idle loquacity; chatter.
2. Impudent talk; insolent boasting. Dial., Newfoundland. prate'ment (prāt'mĕnt), n. A prating. Rare.
pra-ten'si-an (prā-tĕn'shĭ-ăn; -sĭ-ăn), adj. [L. pratensis.] Pratal. Rare.

---

prai'rie-craft', n. See -CRAFT. prai'rie-dom, n. See -DOM. prai'rie-like', adj. See -LIKE. praisd. Praised. Ref. Sp. praise'less, adj. See -LESS. [Obs.] praise'ment, n. Appraisement. praise'proof' (66), adj. See -PROOF.
Pra'krit-ize, v. t. See -IZE. praktike. ✝ PRACTICE.
pra'leen. Var. of PRALINE. prame (prăm). Var. of PRAAM. prance'ful, adj. See -FUL. pran'come, n. [Cf. 3d PRANK.] Prob., prank; trick. Obs. pranc'y, adj. See -Y. pran'di-al-ly, adv. of PRANDIAL. prane. ✝ PRAWN, fish.
prang. ✝ PRONG. prank'ful, adj. See -FUL. — prank'ful-ness, n. prankt. Var. of PRANKED, past tense & past part. of PRANK. pranst. Pranced. Ref. Sp.
prao (prou). Var. of PROA. pra'se-o-di-dym'i-um, n. Chem. = PRASEODYMIUM. pra'se-o-dim'i-um. Praseodymium. Ref. Sp. pras'i-nous (prăz'ĭ-nŭs), adj. = [PRASINE.] prasne. ✝ PRASINE. pras'tha (prŭs'tȧ), n. sing. & pl. [Skr.] See MEASURE, Table. prat'chant, adj. Swaggering; conceited. Obs. prate'ful, adj. See -FUL.

prat'er (prāt'ĕr), n. One who prates; formerly, a boaster.

Pra'ter (prä'tĕr), n. [G., fr. It. prato meadow, fr. L. pratum. Cf. PRADO, PRAIRIE.] A famous park of Vienna, one of the finest in Europe, to the east of the city and bordered by the Danube. It was opened in 1766.

prat'i·lo'ma (prăt'ĭ·lō'mȧ), adv. [Skr.] Hindu Law. Literally, against the hair; — said of marriages between men of one class and women of a higher class, such marriages being generally considered unnatural; — opposed to anuloma.

prat'in·cole (prăt'ĭng·kōl; prā'tĭn-), n. [L. pratum meadow + incola inhabitant.] Any limicoline bird of the genus Glareola, esp. the common species (G. pratincola) of parts of Europe and Asia, and Africa. The upper parts are light brown, the throat buff bordered by a black line, the breast brownish, and the abdomen white.

Pratincole (Glareola pratincola). 1/9 pra·tin'co·line (prȧ·tĭng'kō·lĭn; -līn), n. A pratincole. — pra·tin'co·line, adj.

pra·tin'co·lous (-lŭs), adj. [See PRATINCOLE.] Biol. Living in meadows or low grassy situations.

prat'ing (prāt'ĭng), n. Foolish chatter; platitudinous discourse; formerly, also, boasting; evil speaking.

prat'ing, adj. Chattering foolishly; twaddling; formerly, also, boasting. — prat'ing·ly, adv.

pra·tique' (prȧ·tēk'; prăt'ĭk; F. prȧ'tēk'), n. [F., prop., practice. See PRACTIC; cf. PRACTICE.] Marine. Permission or liberty to hold intercourse given to a ship after compliance with quarantine regulations or on presenting a clean bill of health.

pra·ti'tya·sa·mut'pa'da (prȧ·tē'tyȧ·sȧ·mōōt'pä'dȧ), n. [Skr. pratītyasamutpāda.] Hindu Philos. The chain of causation. See NIDANA.

prat'tle (prăt'l), v. i. & t.; -TLED (-'ld); -TLING (-lĭng). [MLG. prätelen. See PRATE.] To talk or say much and idly; to prate; esp., to talk or say lightly and artlessly; to babble.

Syn. — See CHAT.

prat'tle, n. Trifling or empty talk or chatter; trivial loquacity; prate; babble; figuratively, a sound, as of a brook, like prattling.

Mere prattle, without practice. Shak.

prat'tle·ment (-mĕnt), n. Prattle. Rare.

prat'ler (prăt'lĕr), n. One who prattles, esp. a child.

prat'tling (-lĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of PRATTLE. Hence: adj. That prattles. — prat'tling·ly, adv.

prat'tling, n. The act or an instance of talking prattle; figuratively, a sound, as the chatter of birds, like that of one who prattles.

prat'tly (-lĭ), adj. Full of prattle.

prav'i·lege (prăv'ĭ·lĕj), n. [ML. pravilegium, fr. L. pravus bad, after privilegium (cf. PRIVILEGE).] An evil law. Obs.

prav'i·ty (prăv'ĭ·tĭ), n.; pl. -TIES (-tĭz). [L. pravitas, fr. pravus crooked, perverse.] 1. Depravity. "The pravity of the will." South.
2. Badness or foulness; esp., physical corruption. Obs.
3. Crookedness; physical deformity. Obs.

prawn (prôn), n. [ME. prane, of unknown origin.] 1. Any of numerous shrimplike decapod crustaceans having slender legs, long antennae, a large, strong, compressed abdomen, and a prominent, serrated rostrum. They mostly belong to Pandalus, Peneus, Palaemon, Palaemonetes, and allied genera. They are abundant in all tropical and temperate regions, both in fresh and salt water, and are extensively used as food. The common species of Europe and America range in length from one to six inches, but in the tropics some attain a length of nearly two feet. Often, also, one of the larger shrimps.

Prawn (Peneus setiferus). (¼)

2. The color shrimp pink.

prawn, v. i. To fish for prawns. — prawn'er (prôn'ĕr), n.

prawn'y (prôn'ĭ), adj. Of, pertaining to, or like, prawns.

Prax'e·an (prăk'sē·ăn), n. Eccl. Hist. A follower of Praxeas, who came to Rome from Asia Minor about the end of the 2d century, and thence went to Africa, and was a leader of the modalistic monarchians; hence, a modalistic monarchian. — Prax'e·an, adj. — Prax'e·an·ist (-ĭst), n.

-prax'i·a (-prăk'sĭ·ȧ). [NL.] Med. & Psych. A combining form, Greek -praxia, from praxis, meaning action, doing, used to denote performance of movements, as in echo*praxia,* para*praxia.*

Prax·id'i·ke (prăks·ĭd'ĭ·kē), n.; pl. -KAE (-kē). [Gr. Praxidikē.] Gr. Relig. 1. Goddess of retribution, sometimes represented as triple.
2. An epithet of Persephone. Cf. NEMESIS.

prax·in'o·scope (prăks·ĭn'ō·skōp), n. [F., fr. Gr. praxis action + -scope.] Optics. An instrument similar to the zoetrope and phenakistoscope, consisting of a polygonal box with pictures on the inside walls and mirrors in the center.

prax'i·ol'o·gy (prăk'sĭ·ŏl'ō·jĭ), n. [See PRAXIS; -LOGY.] A proposed science of conduct and its disorders.

prax'is (prăk'sĭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. praxis, fr. prassein to do. See PRACTICAL.] 1. Action; practice; specif.: a Exercise or practice of an art, science, or technical occupation; — opp. to theory. b Habit; custom; conventional conduct.
2. An example or form of exercise, or a collection of such examples, for practice, as in grammar; a means for practice or exercise; a practical example or model.

-prax'is (-prăk'sĭs). [NL.] Med. A combining form, Greek -praxis, from praxis, action, doing, used to denote therapeutic treatment, esp. by a (specified) agency, as in chiro*praxis,* radio*praxis.*

Prax·it'e·le'an (prăks·ĭt'ē·lē'ăn), adj. [Gr. Praxiteleios.] Of, pert. to, or in the style of, Praxiteles, a sculptor of the Second Attic school, renowned as the maker of independent statues, esp. of the female form. Cf. HERMES OF PRAXITELES.

pray (prā), v.; PRAYED (prād); PRAY'ING. [ME. preien, fr. OF. preier (F. prier), fr. L. precari, fr. prex, precis, a prayer, request; akin to Skr. prechati he asks, begs, inquires, AS. frignan, frīnan, frīegan to ask, inquire, G. fragen, Goth. fraihnan. Cf. DEPRECATE, IMPRECATE, POSTULATE, PRECARIOUS, PRITHEE.] Transitive: 1. To entreat; implore; specif.: a To make supplication to (a god). b To ask (someone) to do something. c To ask (someone) for, or on behalf of, another.

We pray you . . . be ye reconciled to God. 2 Cor. v. 20.

d To send up a prayer for; to supplicate concerning someone; — with over.

I was prayed over for total depravity. Barrett Wendell.

2. To ask or entreat to come; to invite. Obs.
3. To ask earnestly for (something); to supplicate for; crave. "I know not how to pray your patience." Shak.
4. a To effect; to accomplish, put, or bring, by praying; as, to pray a soul out of purgatory. b To overcome (one) by prayer; — with down or out; as, he prayed down his rival.

—, Intransitive: To make request with earnestness or zeal, as for something desired; to make entreaty or supplication; to offer prayer to a divine being; specif., to address a god with adoration, confession, supplication, and thanksgiving.

— I pray, or, now, by ellipsis, pray. I beg; I request; I entreat you; — used in asking a question, making a request, introducing a petition, etc.; as, Pray, allow me to go. Cf. PLEASE.

pray in aid, or pray aid. Eng. Law. To claim or call in aid. See AID, 4.

pray, n. A request; a prayer. Obs.

pray'a (prī'ȧ), n. [Pg. praia, lit., shore, fr. L. plaga region.] Beach; strand; specif. [cap.], in Hong Kong, a road bordering the shore; a bund.

pray'a·ble (prā'ȧ·b'l), adj. [OF. proiable, (assumed) preiable.] Capable of being addressed in prayer; exorable. Obs.

pray'er (prā'ĕr), n. One who prays; a supplicant.

prayer (prār), n. [ME. preiere, fr. OF. preiere (F. prière), fr. (assumed) VL. precaria, fr. L. precarius got by prayer, fr. precari to pray. See PRAY, v.] 1. a Act or practice or an instance of praying; beseeching; petition; supplication. b An earnest request to someone (for something); an entreaty.
2. Act of addressing supplication to a divinity or object of worship; the offering of adoration, confession, supplication, thanksgiving, etc., to a God; as, public prayer; secret prayer.

It is not necessary to dogmatize by saying that prayer is magic, or soliloquy, or communion, or petition for this and that, in order to see that it is the expression of a human need. Walter Lippmann.

3. The form of words used in praying; a formula of supplication; an expressed petition; esp., a supplication addressed to God; as, the Lord's prayer; a written prayer.
4. Often in pl. A form of religious service or worship for public or common use, consisting largely of prayers; as, Morning or Evening Prayer; family prayers.
5. A petition (to a god) for someone; hence, pl., ardent good wishes.
6. That prayed for; specif.: a That part of a petition or memorial, as to a legislature, that specifies the thing desired. b Law. That part of a bill in equity which specifies the relief sought.

Syn. — PRAYER, PETITION, SUIT, APPEAL. A PRAYER is an earnest entreaty or supplication addressed (esp.) to God, or to a person or body invested with power or authority; PETITION is often synonymous with prayer; the word also denotes a single clause of a prayer, or a formal request — in which (often) a number are associated — directed to some authority; a SUIT (as here compared) is a more or less humble or deferential petition, esp. to one in high station; an APPEAL is an earnest call, esp. for help or support. Cf. BEG.

☞ COMBINATIONS are:

prayer-answering, adj. prayer-hearing, adj. prayermaker prayer-clenched prayer-lisping, adj. prayermaking prayer-granting, adj. prayer-loving, adj. prayer-repeating, adj.

prayer barrel. = PRAYER WHEEL.

prayer bead. 1. pl. A string of beads by which prayers are counted; specif., a rosary.
2. The jequirity bean.

prayer book. 1. A book containing prayers used at divine service or in private devotions; specif. [caps.], the Book of Common Prayer.
2. Naut. A narrow piece of holystone used in the hand to scrub crevices in the deck. Cf. BIBLE, 8. Slang.

prayer carpet or mat. See PRAYER RUG.

prayer cloak. = TALLITH b.

prayer flag. Lamaist Buddhism. A banner inscribed with prayers. Tibet. Cf. PRAYER WHEEL.

Prayer for the Church Militant. In the Book of Common Prayer, the prayer "for the whole state of Christ's Church" said at the antecommunion.

prayer'ful (prâr'fŏōl; -f'l), adj. 1. Given to prayer; devout; characterized by, or indicative of, prayer; devotional.
2. Hence, earnest; carefully thorough. Often Jocose.
— prayer'ful·ly, adv. — prayer'ful·ness, n.

prayer in aid. Eng. Law. = AID PRAYER.

prayer meeting. A meeting or gathering for prayer to God, esp. one in which several or all offer prayer.

prayer mill. A mill that turns a prayer wheel.

prayer of access, prayer of humble access. [often caps.] See ACCESS, 8.

Prayer of Manasses. See OLD TESTAMENT.

Prayer of the Day. In a liturgy, the prayer designated for the particular day; the proper (sense 13) prayer. See COLLECT, n., 1 a.

prayer paper. Anthropol. A paper, upon which a prayer is written or printed, burned as a prophylactic magic or as a propitiation to a supernatural power, esp. in China, Tibet, and Siam.

prayer rug. A small Oriental rug used to kneel on when praying, and characteristically showing the design of a mihrab or prayer niche; — called also prayer carpet or mat. See MIHRAB.

prayer scarf or shawl. = TALLITH b.

prayer stick. An inscribed or symbolic stick designed as a devotional offering.

prayer stool. A stool to kneel on when praying.

prayer thong. The strap of a phylactery.

prayer tower. A minaret.

prayer wheel. Lamaist Buddhism. A wheel or drum containing prayers which are deemed efficacious when the wheel turns. See LAMA, Illust.

pray'ful (prā'fŏōl; -f'l), adj. A word of uncertain meaning in the folio edition of Shakespeare's Love's Labor's Lost (Act IV. sc. ii. l. 58). It is doubtfully emended to preyful in modern editions.

pray'ing (prā'ĭng), n. The act or an instance of making a prayer.

pray'ing, part. adj. That prays. — pray'ing·ly, adv.

praying carpet, mat, or rug. = PRAYER CARPET, etc praying cricket, insect, locust, or mantis. A mantis, esp. Mantis religiosa.

praying cylinder, drum, jenny, machine, or wheel. = PRAYER WHEEL.

praying scarf or shawl. = TALLITH b.

pre- (prē-; prĕ-). [F. or L.; F. pré-, fr. L. prae- (ML. also pre-), pref., prae, adv. & prep., before. See PRIOR; cf. PRETER-.] A prefix denoting priority (of time, place, or rank), occurring, esp. in verbs, in words from the Latin, and also freely combined with English words of Latin or other origin. Pre- is used: 1. With adverbial or attributive force: a Denoting priority of time, in the sense of before, previously or previous, fore-, as in *pre*judge, to judge beforehand; pre-enact; *pre*avowal, previous avowal; pre-existence. b Denoting priority of place, in the sense of at the front, anterior, fore-, chiefly with adjectives and nouns in scientific terminology, as in *pre*cerebral, *pre*abdomen, *pre*forceps. c Denoting priority of rank or degree, in the sense of greater, surpassing, etc., as in pre-eminent, *pre*ponderate, pre-excellence; — rarely an English formative. d Rare. Intensively, very, exceedingly, as in *pre*potent.
2. With prepositional force, entering into nouns in attributive constructions, or adjectives formed as if by parasynthesis on a preposition and noun, and denoting: Prior to, or preceding, in time or place (a specified person, place, condition, or thing); before; in front of; as in Pre-Cambrian, *pre*reformation, pre-Victorian, *pre*vertebral, *pre*occipital, pre-Islamic. Cf. POST-.
3. Educ. Denoting preparatory, esp. prerequisite, to (a type of training denoted or implied by the second element), as in *pre*college, pre-engineering, *pre*medical.
4. Petrog. Denoting that the factor designated by the second element predominates over some contrasting factor.

☞ The reference "See PRE-" is sometimes given as the only definition of a word beginning in pre-, if its meaning can readily be gathered from the definitions of the prefix and the root word.

preach (prēch), v.; PREACHED (prēcht); PREACH'ING. [ME. prechen, fr. OF. preechier, prechier (F. prêcher), fr. L. praedicare to cry in public, to proclaim, fr. prae before + dicare to make known. See DICTION; PREDICATE, PREDICT.] Intransitive: 1. To proclaim tidings; to announce publicly; specif., to proclaim the gospel; to discourse publicly on a religious subject, or from a text of Scripture; to deliver a sermon.

From that time Jesus began to preach. Matt. iv. 17.

2. To exhort; to discourse in the manner of a preacher; — now usually with implication of officiousness or tediousness.

—, Transitive: 1. To proclaim by public discourse; to utter in a sermon or a formal religious harangue.

That Cristes gospel truly wolde preche. Chaucer.

2. To inculcate (something) in public discourse; to urge by public teaching; to advocate earnestly by speech or writing.

My master preaches patience to him. Shak.

3. To deliver or pronounce; as, to preach a sermon.
4. To teach, instruct, or inform, by preaching. Obs.
5. To bring, put, affect, or effect, by preaching; as, to preach (one) asleep. "Preach me not out of my possessions." Marlowe.

preach down. To decry, oppose, silence, repress, humiliate, or threaten, by preaching.

preach up. To exalt, extol, commend, or advocate by preaching; as, to preach up equality.

preach, n. [Cf. F. prêche, fr. prêcher. See PREACH, v.] Preaching; religious discourse. Colloq. Hooker.

Pre'-A·chae'an (prē'ȧ·kē'ăn), adj. [See PRE-.] Pertaining to a period and culture in Greece earlier than the Achaean.

preach'er (prēch'ĕr), n. [ME. prechour, fr. OF. preecheor (F. prêcheur), fr. L. praedicator.] 1. One who preaches; specif.: a One who discourses publicly on religious subjects; one whose function is to preach sermons; a minister. b One who inculcates anything earnestly; an earnest exhorter. "No preacher is listened to but Time." Swift. c Obs. A preaching friar. d [cap.] The author of, or speaker in, the Book of Ecclesiastes; also, the book itself.
2. A preacher bird.

preacher bird. The red-eyed vireo.

preach'er·ess (prēch'ĕr·ĕs; -ĭs; 119), n. A female preacher.

preach'er·ize (-īz), v. i. To discourse in the manner of a preacher.

preach'i·fy (prēch'ĭ·fī), v. i.; -FIED (-fīd); -FY'ING. [preach + -fy.] To preach ineptly or tediously. — preach'i·fi·ca'tion (-fĭ·kā'shŭn), n. Both Colloq.

preach'i·ly (prēch'ĭ·lĭ), adv. Preachingly.

preach'ing, n. Act or art of a preacher or an instance thereof; a sermon; a public religious service.

preaching brethren. See DOMINICAN, n.

preaching cross. A cross, sometimes surmounting a pulpit, erected out of doors at a preaching place.

preaching friar. See DOMINICAN, n.

Preaching of Peter. See APOCRYPHA.

preach'man (prēch'mȧn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). A preacher; — so called in contempt. Obs.

preach'ment (prēch'mĕnt), n. [OF. preechement. Cf. PREDICAMENT.] A preaching, or that which is preached; a sermon; exhortation; esp., a tedious or unwelcome exhortation or discourse; a religious harangue; a homily.

Their habit of mind is unfavorable to preachment. Agnes Repplier.

preach'y (prēch'ĭ), adj.; PREACH'I·ER (-ĭ·ĕr); PREACH'I·EST. Given to preaching or having a preaching style; tedious; didactic. Colloq.

---

prater. † PRESTER. pra'tey, pra'tie, pra'ty (prā'tĭ), n.; pl. PRATEYS, PRATIES (-tĭz). [Ir. prāta, prāta.] = POTATO, n. Anglo-Ir.
Pra·tin'co·la (prȧ·tĭng'kō·lȧ), n. [NL. See PRATINCOLE.] Zool. Syn. of SAXICOLA. prat'i, prat'id, prat'ler. Prattle, etc. Ref. Sp.
Pratt truss (prăt). See TRUSS, n. prat'ty. Dial. var. of PRETTY.
pra'u (prä'ōō; prou), n. = PROA. prave (prāv), adj. [L. pravus.] Obs. a Depraved. b Deleterious. prave'ly, adv. Wickedly. Obs. prav'ous (prāv'ŭs), adj. [L. pravus.] Wicked; prave. Obs. praw'leen, praw'lin, praw'ling. Vars. of PRALINE. prayd. Prayed. Ref. Sp. prayer'less (prâr'lĕs; -lĭs), adj. See -LESS. — prayer'less·ly, adv. — prayer'less·ness, n. prayer'wise' (prâr'wīz'), adv. See -WISE. pray'ing·wise', adv. See -WISE.
pre'ab·do'men, n. See PRE-, 1 b. pre'ab·sorb', v. t. & i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'ab·sorb'ent, n. & adj.
pre·ab'stract, n. See PRE-, 1 a. pre'a·bun'dance, n. See PRE-, 1 a. — p, e'a·bun'dant, adj. — pre'a·bun'dant·ly, adv.
pre'ac·cept', v. t. & i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'ac·cept'ance, n.
pre·ac'cess, n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'ac·ces'si·ble, adj.
pre'ac·ci·den'tal, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'ac·ci·den'tal·ly, adv.
pre'ab·do'men, n. See PRE-, 1 b. pre'ac·com'mo·date, v. i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'ac·com'mo·dat'ing, adj. — pre'ac·com'mo·dat'ing·ly, adv. — pre'ac·com'mo·da'tion, n. pre'ac·com'plish, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'ac·com'plish·ment, n. pre'ac·cord', n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'ac·cord', v. i. — pre'ac·cord'ance, n. pre'ac·count', v. t. & i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'ac·count'ing, n. pre'ac·cred'it, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. pre'ac·cu'mu·la'tion, n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'ac·cu'mu·late, v. t. pre'ac·cuse', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'ac·cu·sa'tion, n. pre'ac·cus'tom, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'ac·cus'tomed, adj.
preace. † PRESS. [I b.] pre'ac·e·tab'u·lar, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. preach'a·ble, adj. See -ABLE.
preach'er·dom, n. See -DOM. preach'er·less, adj. See -LESS. preach'er·ling, n. See -LING, dim. suff. preach'er·ship, n. See -SHIP. pre'a·chieved', adj. See PRE-, 1 a. preach'i·ness, n. See -NESS. preach'ing·ly, adv. of preaching, pres. part. preacht. Preached. Ref. Sp.
pre·ac'id, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'a·cid'i·ty, pre·ac'id·ness, n. — pre·ac'id·ly, adv.
pre'ac·knowl'edge, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'ac·knowl'edg·ment, n.

---

pre'a·dam'ic (prē'ə·dăm'ĭk), adj. Prior to Adam.

pre·ad'am·ite (prē·ăd'ăm·ĭt), n. [Cf. F. préaadamite.]
1. An inhabitant of the earth before Adam.
2. One who held that men existed before Adam. Hist.
3. Specif., a follower of the doctrine, set forth by Isaac La Peyrère (1594–1676) in 1655, that only the Jews are descendants of Adam, the Gentiles being descendants of men who lived before Adam. ‡La Peyrère recanted, but a sect arose from his teaching.
— pre·ad'am·ite, adj.

pre·ad·am·it'ic (prē'ăd·ăm·ĭt'ĭk), ·it'i·cal (-ĭ·kăl), adj. Preadamite.

pre·ad'am·it·ism (prē·ăd'ăm·ĭt·ĭz'm), n. Belief in the existence of preadamites. Hist.

pre'ad·ap·ta'tion (prē'ăd·ăp·tā'shŭn), n. Adaptation prior in time to some specified change or condition; specif., Biol., adaptation (sense 2 b) which predisposes an organism for a specific environment.

pre·ad'junct (prē·ăj'ŭngkt), n. [See PRE-.] Gram. An adjunct standing before the term that it qualifies (hard hearts; glass blowers).

pre·ad·mis'sion (prē'ăd·mĭsh'ŭn), n. Literally, previous admission; specif., Engin., admission, as of steam or a combustible mixture, to the engine cylinder before the back stroke is completed, thus increasing the cushioning.

pre'ad·o·les'cent (prē'ăd·ō·lĕs'ĕnt; 128), adj. [See PRE-, 2.] Pertaining to or designating the period of life just preceding adolescence.

pre'ad·o·les'cent, n. A child who has nearly reached adolescence pre·ag'o·nal (prē·ăg'ō·năl; -n'l), adj. [See PRE-, 2; AGONY; -AL.] Med. Preceding the death agony, esp. immediately preceding it.

pre·ag'o·ny (-ăg'ō·nĭ), n.; pl. -NIES (-nĭz). [See PRE-.] Med. The period immediately preceding the death agony.

pre·al'la·ble (prē·ăl'ə·b'l), adj. [F. préalable.] Previous; preliminary. Rare. — pre·al'la·bly, adv. Rare.

pre'al·ve'o·lar (prē'ăl·vē'ō·lĕr; prē·ăl'vē·ō·lĕr), adj. [pre- + alveolus + -ar.] Phonet. Formed between the point or the blade of the tongue and the fore part of the teeth ridge.

pre'am'ble (prē'ăm'b'l; prē·ăm'b'l), n. [OF. preambule, fr. MLL. praeambulus walking before, fr. praeambulare to walk before, fr. prae before + ambulare to walk. See AMBLE.] 1. An introductory portion; an introduction or preface, as to a book, document, etc.; specif., the introductory part of a statute, which states the reasons and intent of the law or is used for other explanatory purposes, as to recite facts knowledge of which is necessary to an understanding of the law, to define or limit the meanings of words used in the law, etc. It may explain ambiguity in the law, but cannot modify the meaning of what is plain and certain (Sussex Peerage Case, 11 Cl. & F. 143 (H. of L.)). It usually begins with "Whereas."
2. An introductory fact or circumstance; a preliminary; esp., one that gives indication of what is to follow; a presage.
Syn. — See PREFACE.
Ant. — Epilogue, supplement, addendum.

pre'am'ble (prē'ăm'b'l; prē·ăm'b'l), v.; -AM'BLED (-b'ld); -AM'BLING. [LL. praeambulare to walk before.] Intransitive: 1. To walk or go before; to precede. Obs.
2. To make a preamble; to preface.
——, Transitive: 1. To preambulate beforehand. Obs.
2. [From PREAMBLE, n.] a Rare. To deliver as, or state in, a preamble. b To make a preamble to; to preface.

pre'am'bled (-b'ld), adj. 1. Having a preamble.
2. Treated of or stated in a preamble.

pre'am'bling (-blĭng), n. The act or an instance of making a preamble.

pre·am'bu·lar'y (prē·ăm'bū·lĕr'ĭ), adj. [Cf. F. préambulaire.] Of, pert. to, or of the nature of, a preamble; introductory; preliminary. Rare. "A preambulary tax." Burke.

pre·am'bu·late (-lāt), v. i. [LL. praeambulare.] 1. To preamble (sense 1). Obs.
2. To make a preamble or preface.

pre·am'bu·la'tion (-lā'shŭn), n. The act or an instance of making a preamble or preface.

pre·am'bu·la·to'ry (prē·ăm'bū·lə·tō'rĭ or, esp. Brit., -tĕr·ĭ), adj. 1. Going before; previous. Obs.
2. Of the nature of a preamble; introductory; preliminary.

pre'-A·mer'i·can (prē'ə·mĕr'ĭ·kăn), adj. Anthropol. Designating racial developments that took place before migrations to America.

pre·an'i·mism (prē·ăn'ĭ·mĭz'm), n. Anthropol. The theory that preceding animism there was a definite concept of the supernatural among primitive people.

pre'an·te'ri·or (prē'ăn·tē'rĭ·ĕr), adj. Gram. Designating a time anterior to one that is itself anterior to one referred to as past (I recalled that, before I had posted the letter, I had hesitated). Poutsma.

pre'an·ti·sep'tic (prē'ăn·tĭ·sĕp'tĭk), adj. Med. Of or pertaining to the period before the development of antisepsis; as, preantiseptic surgery.

pre'ap·pre·hen'sion (prē'ăp·rē·hĕn'shŭn), n. 1. An apprehension or opinion formed before examination or knowledge; a preconceived notion.
2. A fear of some evil that may come about; a foreboding.

pre'–Ar'mi·stice (prē'ĭr'mĭ·stĭs), adj. Preceding, or belonging to the time before, the Armistice of Nov. 11, 1918; as, the Belgian pre-Armistice debt; pre-Armistice negotiations.

pre'ar·range' (prē'ă·rānj'), v. t. To arrange beforehand.
— pre'ar·range'ment (-mĕnt), n.

pre'a·sep'tic (prē'ā·sĕp'tĭk), adj. Med. Of or pertaining to the period before the development of aseptic methods, as in surgery.

pre'a·tax'ic (-ə·tăk'sĭk), adj. Med. Occurring before ataxia; — applied to the early symptoms of locomotor ataxia.

pre·au'di·ence (prē·ô'dĭ·ĕns), n. Right to a prior hearing; specif., Eng. Law, precedence at the bar among lawyers.

pre·ax'i·al (prē·ăk'sĭ·ăl), adj. Anat. In front of the axis of the body; in the arm, designating the border along the radial side; in the leg, designating the border along the tibial side. — pre·ax'i·al·ly, adv.

pre·bac'il·lar'y (prē·băs'ĭ·lĕr'ĭ or, esp. Brit., prē'bă·sĭl'·ĕr·ĭ), adj. Med. Occurring before the appearance of bacilli.

pre·bel'lum (prē·bĕl'ŭm), adj. Antewar; occurring in the period before a war.

preb'end (prĕb'ĕnd), n. [OF. prebende, fr. LL. praebenda, prop., things to be furnished, neut. pl. gerundive of L. praebere to hold forth, allow, contr. fr. praehibere, fr. prae + habere to have, hold. See HABIT; cf. PROVENDER.]
1. Originally, a daily allowance at meals; hence, the stipend or maintenance granted out of the estate of a cathedral or collegiate church to a canon or member of a chapter thereof; also, the land or tithe from which the stipend comes, or the holding of it as a benefice.
2. A prebendary. Rare.

pre·ben'dal (prē·bĕn'dăl; -d'l), adj. Pertaining to a prebend or prebendary; holding a prebend.

prebendal stall. A prebendary's stall in a cathedral; hence, a prebendary's benefice.

preb'en·dar'y (prĕb'ĕn·dĕr'ĭ or, esp. Brit., -dĕr·ĭ), n.; pl. -DARIES (-ĭz). [ML. prebendarius. See PREBEND.]
1. A member of a cathedral or collegiate church chapter receiving a prebend in consideration for his officiating at stated times in the church; now, Ch. of Eng., an honorary canon with the title but not the emoluments of a prebend, most prebendal stalls having been disendowed by an act of 1840.
2. A prebendary's benefice or office; a prebend. Obs.

preb'en·date (-dāt), v. t. To present to a prebend.

pre·bra'chi·um (prē·brā'kĭ·ŭm; -brăk'ĭ·ŭm), n. [NL., fr. pre- + brachium.] Anat. & Zool. a The brachium of the superior colliculus (see CORPORA QUADRIGEMINA). b Zool. The propatagium. — pre·bra'chi·al (-ăl), adj.

pre·bron'chi·al (prē·brŏng'kĭ·ăl), adj. Zool. Situated in front of the bronchus; — applied esp. to an air sac on either side of the esophagus of birds.

Pre'–Cam'bri·an (prē'kăm'brĭ·ăn), adj. Geol. Prior to the Cambrian; pertaining to or designating all of geological history prior to the Cambrian, and to the rocks belonging to this time. See GEOLOGY, Chart; ARCHEAN; PROTEROZOIC; ALGONKIAN, 2. — n. The Pre-Cambrian rocks.

Pre–Cambrian shield. Geol. The nuclear area of Pre-Cambrian rocks present in each of the continents. The North American area is often called the Canadian shield.

pre·can'cel (prē·kăn'sĕl; -s'l), v. t.; -CAN'CELED (-sĕld; -s'ld) or -CAN'CELLED; -CAN'CEL·ING or -CAN'CEL·LING. [pre- + cancel.] To cancel (postage stamps) in advance of use, usually with the name of the city and State, sometimes with the name of the city alone. — pre'can·cel·la'tion (p.ē'kănsĕ·lā'shŭn), n.

pre·can'cel, n. Philately. A prencanceled stamp.

pre·can'cer·ous (prē·kăn'sĕr·ŭs), adj. [pre- + cancerous.] Med. Of or pert. to a period or state before a tumor with malignant potentiality actually becomes cancerous.

pre'ca·non'i·cal (prē'kə·nŏn'ĭ·kăl), adj. Earlier than the canonical; as, a precanonical Gospel.

pre'cant (prē'kănt; prĕk'ănt), n. [L. precans, -antis, pres. part., praying.] One who prays. Rare.

pre'can·ta'tion (prē'kăn·tā'shŭn), n. [LL. praecantatio, fr. L. praecantare to foretell, to enchant.] 1. A singing before; rehearsal. Obs.
2. A foretelling; prophesying. Rare.

pre'car·ci·nom'a·tous (prē'kär·sĭ·nŏm'ă·tŭs; -nō'mă·tŭs), adj. Med. Of or pert. to a period or state before a tumor potentially carcinomatous actually becomes a carcinoma.

pre·car'i·ous (prē·kâr'ĭ·ŭs), adj. [L. precarius obtained by, or depending on, begging or prayer, fr. prex, precis, prayer. See PRAYER, PRAY.] 1. Depending on the will or pleasure of another; held on sufferance; liable to be changed or lost at the pleasure of another; uncertain; as, precarious privileges.
2. Taken for granted; assumed; unfounded; uncertain; unwarranted; as, a precarious supposition or conclusion.
3. Dependent on circumstances or unknown causes or conditions; open to failure; insecure; characterized by instability; as, a precarious state of health; precarious fortunes. "Partial and precarious liberty." Macaulay.
4. Supplicant; begging; importunate. Obs.
5. Law. Of the nature of a precarium.
Syn. — Unsettled, dubious, insecure, unstable. — PRECARIOUS, UNCERTAIN. PRECARIOUS is much stronger than UNCERTAIN; the word implies such dependence upon future contingencies as involves a high degree of insecurity or instability; as, "Whoever supposes that Lady Austen's fortune is precarious is mistaken. . . . It is . . . perfectly safe" (Cowper); "a precarious subsistence" (Shelley). The use of precarious as a mere synonym for dangerous or hazardous is contrary to good usage.
Ant. — Secure, unshakable, stable, firm.
— pre·car'i·ous·ly, adv. — pre·car'i·ous·ness, n.

pre·ca'ri·um (prē·kā'rĭ·ŭm; 79), n.; pl. -RIA (-ə). [L.]
1. Roman Law. Anything granted or lent to be returned or redelivered at the will of the grantor; hence, Civil Law, a contract making a loan or grant upon such terms, or the tenure by which it is held; a tenancy at will.
2. Medieval European Feudal Law. Any of various estates or tenures that grew out of the original precarium characterized by more or less uncertainty or limitation of the duration and arduousness of the conditions of tenure. From the precarium was later developed the benefice.

pre·car'ti·lage (prē·kär'tĭ·lĭj), n. Embryol. The embryonic tissue from which cartilage is formed.

prec'a·ry (prĕk'ə·rĭ), n. Law. a Obs. = PRECARIUM. b A render of boon work (see 1st BOON, 3).

pre·cast' (prē·kăst'; 83), v. t.; -CAST'; -CAST'ING. To cast before; to cast (concrete slabs, piles, etc.) before placing.

pre·ca'tion (prē·kā'shŭn), n. [L. precatio.] Act of praying; supplication; entreaty. Obs.

prec'a·tive (prĕk'ə·tĭv), adj. [LL. precativus, fr. precari to pray. See PRECARIOUS.] 1. Precatory; beseeching; as, a precative word or mood.
2. Gram. Designating a form of the verb, properly expressing a wish or request; specif., in Sanskrit, an optative form with s (the sign of the sigmatic aorist) inserted between the optative suffix and the personal ending. It is not of frequent occurrence, but sometimes denotes other meanings of the optative mood as well as wishes.
— prec'a·tive·ly, adv.

prec'a·tive, n. Gram. The precative mood, or a verbal form denoting it.

precative disposition. Law. A disposition in a will using precatory words.

prec'a·to'ry (-tō'rĭ or, esp. Brit., -tĕr·ĭ), adj. [LL. precatorius.] Of, pertaining to, of the nature of, or expressive of, entreaty; supplicatory; as, a precatory benediction.

precatory absolution. See ABSOLUTION, 4.

precatory trust. Law. A trust created by precatory words. precatory words. Law. Words of recommendation, request, entreaty, wish, or expectation, employed in wills. Such words would formerly create a trust in many situations, esp. when addressed to a trustee, but now the tendency of judicial decision is otherwise.

pre'cau·sa'tion (prē'kô·zā'shŭn), n. Previous causation; foreordination.

pre·cau'tion (prē·kô'shŭn), n. [F. précaution, fr. LL. praecautio, fr. L. praecavere, praecautum, to guard against beforehand, fr. prae before + cavere to be on one's guard. See PRE-; CAUTION.] 1. Previous caution or care; caution previously employed; as, saved by precaution.
2. A measure taken beforehand to ward off evil or secure good or success; an act of foresight; a precautionary act; as, to take precautions against accident.
3. A caution or caveat given previously. Rare.

pre·cau'tion, v. t. [F. précautionner.] 1. To forewarn; to put (a person) on guard; to preadmonish.
2. To take precaution against; to guard against. Obs.
3. To say beforehand as a caution. Obs.

pre·cau'tion·al (-ăl; -'l), adj. Precautionary.

pre·cau'tion·ar'y (-ĕr'ĭ or, esp. Brit., -ĕr·ĭ), adj. Of, pertaining to, or of the nature of, a precaution; advising, suggesting, or using caution beforehand; as, precautionary signals, or warning.

pre·cau'tion·ar'y, n.; pl. -IES (-ĭz). A precaution. Rare.

pre·cau'tious (-shŭs), adj. Using precaution; precautionary. — pre·cau'tious·ly, adv. — pre·cau'tious·ness, n.

---

pre'ac·quaint', v. t., pre'ac·quaint'ance, n., pre'ac·quire', v. t. & i., pre'ac·quired', adj., pre'ac·quit', v. t., pre'ac·quit'tal, n., pre·act', v. t., pre·ac'tion, n., pre·ac'tive, adj., pre·ac'tive·ly, adv., pre'ac·tivi·ty, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·a·cute', adj. See PRE-, 1 a & d. — pre'a·cute'ly, adv. — pre·a·cute'ness, n.

pre'a·dapt', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'a·dapt'a·ble, adj.

pre'ad·di'tion, n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'ad·di'tion·al, adj. [1 a.]

pre'ad·dress', n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·ad'e·quate, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·ad'e·qua·cy, n. — pre·ad'e·quate·ly, adv.

pre'ad·here', v. i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'ad·her'ence, n. — pre'ad·her'ent, n. & adj.

pre·ad'jec·tive, n. & adj. See PRE-, 2. — pre'ad·jec·ti'val, adj.

pre'ad·journ', v. t. & i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'ad·journ'ment, n.

pre'ad·just', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'ad·just'a·ble, adj. — pre'ad·just'ment, n.

pre'ad·min'is·tra'tion, n., pre'ad·min'is·tra'tive, adj., pre'ad·min'is·tra'tor, n., pre'ad·mire', v. t., pre'ad·mir'er, n., pre'ad·mit', v. t., pre'ad·mon'ish, v. t., pre'ad·mo·ni'tion (prē'ăd·mō·nĭsh'ŭn), n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre'a·dopt', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'a·dop'tion, n.

pre'a·dore', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'ad·o·ra'tion, n.

pre'a·dorn', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'a·dorn'ment, n.

pre'a·dult', n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'a·dult'hood, n.

pre'ad·vance', v. t. & i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'ad·vance'ment, n.

pre'ad·ven'ture, n. & v. i. & i. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre'ad·vert'en·cy, n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'ad·vert'ent, adj.

pre'ad·ver·tise', v. t. & i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'ad·ver'tise·ment, n.

pre'ad·vice', n., pre'ad·vis'a·ble, adj., pre'ad·vise', v. t., pre'ad·vis'er, n., pre'ad·vi'so·ry, adj., pre·ad'vo·ca·cy, n., pre·ad'vocate, n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·ad'vo·val, pre·es'ti·val, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre'af·fect', v. t., pre'af·fec'tion, n., pre'af·fi·da'vit, n., pre'af·fil'i·ate, n. & v., pre'af·fil'i·a'tion, n., pre'af·firm', v. t. & i., pre'af·fir·ma'tion, n., pre'af·firm'a·tive, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre'af·flict', v. t., pre'af·flic'tion, n., pre'aft·er·noon', n. & adj., pre·aged', adj., pre·ag'gra·vate, v. t., pre·ag·gra·va'tion, n., pre'ag·gres'sion, n., pre'ag·gres'sive, adj., pre·agri·cate, v. i., pre'agri·ca'tion, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre'a·gree', v. i., pre'a·gree'ment, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·agri·cul'ture, n. See PRE-, 2. — pre'ag·ri·cul'tur·al, adj.

pre'a·larm', v. t. & n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·al'co·hol, adj. See PRE-, 2. — pre'al·co·hol'ic, adj. [2.]

pre'-Al·fre'di·an, adj. See PRE-.

pre·al'ge·bra, n. & adj. See PRE-, 3. — pre'al·ge·bra'ic, adj.

pre'al·kal'ic, adj. See PRE-, 4.

pre'al·lege', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'al·le·ga'tion, n.

pre'al·lot', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'al·lot'ment, n.

pre'al·low', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'al·low'a·ble, adj. — pre'al·low'a·bly, adv. — pre'al·low'ance, n.

pre'al·lude', v. i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'al·lu'sion, n.

pre'al·ly', n. & v. t. & i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'al·li'ance, n. — pre'al·lied', adj.

pre·al'pha·bet, pre'al·pha·bet'i·cal, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·al'tar, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·al'ter, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·al'ter·a'tion, n.

pre'a·mal'ga·ma'tion, adj. See PRE-, 2. [PRE-, 1 a.] pre'am·bas'sa·do'ri·al, adj. See] pre'am·bi'tion, n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'am·bi'tious, adj.

pre'am'bl. Preamble. Ref. Sp.

pre·am'bu·lar, adj. (pre·ăm'bū·lĕr), adj. PREAMBULARY.

pre'-Am'mon·it'ish, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'-Am'mon·ite, n. & adj.

pre·a'nal, adj. See PRE-, 1 b.

pre·a·naph'o·ral, adj. See PRE-, 2. [2.]

pre'an·es·thet'ic, adj. See PRE-, pre'an·nex', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre'an·nounce', v. t., pre'an·nounce'ment, n., pre'an·nounc'er, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre'an·te·pe'nult, ·pe·nul'ti·mate, adj. See PRE-, 2. [1 a.] pre'an·tic'i·pate, v. t. See PRE-, pre'an·tiq'ui·ty, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre'a·or'tic, adj. See PRE-, 1 b.

pre'ap·pear'ance, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre'ap·per·cep'tion, n., pre'ap·pli·ca'tion, n., pre'ap·point', v. t., pre'ap·point'ment, n., pre'ap·prise', v. t., pre'ap·pro·ba'tion, n., pre'ap·prov'al, n., pre'ap·prove', v. t. & i., pre·ap'ti·tude, n., pre·arm', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre'ar·rest', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'ar·rest'ment, n. [2.]

pre'-Ar·thu'ri·an, adj. See PRE-, pre'ar·tic'u·late, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre'ar·tis'tic, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre'-Ar'y·an, n. See PRE-, 2.

pre'as·cer·tain', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'as·cer·tain'ment, n.

pre'as·cit'ic, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre'as·signed', adj., pre'as·sume', v. i., pre'as·sur'ance, n., pre'as·sure', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre'-As·syr'i·an, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre'at·tach'ment, n., pre'at·tune', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. [1 b.]

pre·au'di·to'ry, adj. See PRE-, pre'-Au·gus'tan, adj. See PRE-, 2. [2.]

pre'-Au·gus·tine, adj. See PRE-, pre'a·ver', v. t., pre'a·vow'al, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·ax'i·ad (prē·ăk'sĭ·ăd), adv. [See 1st AD, 1.] = PREAXIALLY.

pre'-Bab'y·lo'ni·an, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·bach'e·lor, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre'-Ba·co'ni·an, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·bake', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·bal'ance, v. t. & i. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·bal'lot, v. i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·bal'lot·ing, n. [1 a.] pre·bank'rupt·cy, n. See PRE-, pre·bap·tis'mal, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·bap·tize', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·bar·bar'ic, pre·bar'ba·rous, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·bar'gain, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·bas'al (prē·bās'ăl; -ĭ), pre·bas'i·lar (-bās'ĭ·lĕr), adj. See PRE-, 1 b.

pre'be·lief', n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·be·lieve', v. t. & i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·be·liev'er, n. — pre'be·liev'ing, n. [1 a.] pre·be·lov'ed, adj. & n. See PRE-, preb'en·dar'y·ship, n. See -SHIP.

preb'end·er, n. [Cf. F. prébendier.] A prebendary. Obs.

preb'end·ship, n. Also preb'end·ry. A prebendaryship. Obs.

pre·ben·e·dic'tion, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·ben·e·fi'ci·ar'y, n. See PRE-, 1 a. [1 a.] pre·ben'e·fit, v. t. & i. See PRE-, pre·be·set', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·be·stow', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·be·stow'al, n.

pre·be·tray', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·be·tray'al, n.

pre·be·troth'al, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·bid', v. t. & i. & n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·bid'ding, n.

pre·bill', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·bless', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·bless'ing, n. [PRE-, 1 a.] pre·block·ade', n. & v. t. See] pre·bloom'ing, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·boast', n. & v. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·bod'ing (prē·bōd'ĭng), adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·boil', v. i. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·born', adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·bor'row·ing, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·boy'hood, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·breathe', v. t., pre·brid'al, adj., pre'·Brit'ish, adj., pre·broad'cast·ing, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·bro·mid'ic, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·bronze', adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·brute', adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·buc'cal, adj. See PRE-, 1 b.

pre'-Bud'dhist, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·budg'et, n. & adj. See PRE-, pre·budg'et·ar'y, adj. [1 a.

pre·bul'ly·ing, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre'bur·lesque', adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·burn', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre'-By·zan'tine, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·cal'cu·la·ble, adj., pre·cal'cu·late, v. t., pre'cal·cu·la'tion, n. See PRE-, 1 a. [1 a.] pre'-Cam'bridge, adj. See PRE-, pre'cam·paign', n. & adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre'-Ca'naan·it'ic, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·can'di·da·cy, n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·can'di·da·ture, n.

pre·can'ning, n. & adj. See PRE-, 1 a. [1 a.] pre·can'vass, v. t. & n. See PRE-, pre·cap'il·lar'y (prē·kăp'ĭ·lĕr'ĭ or, esp. Brit., -kə·pĭl'ə·rĭ), n. [pre- + capillary.] = ARTERIOLE.

pre·cap'i·tal·ist, adj., pre'cap·i·tal·is'tic, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre'cap·tiv'i·ty, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·cap'ture, v. t. & n. See PRE-, 1 a.

Pre'-Car'bon·if'er·ous, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·car'di·ac, adj. See PRE-, 1 b.

pre·ca'ri·a, n., pl. of PRECARIUM.

pre·car'ni·val, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre'-Car·o·lin'gi·an, adj. See PRE-, 2. [PRE-, 2.]

pre'·car·ti·lag'i·nous, adj. See pre'-Cath'o·lic, adj. See PRE-, 2. prec'a·tiv. Precative. Ref. Sp.

pre·cau'dal, adj. See PRE-, 1 b.

pre·ca′va (prē-kā′vȧ), n. [NL.] The superior or anterior vena cava. See VENA CAVA. — pre·ca′val (-vȧl), adj.

pre·ca′val si′nus (-vȧl). Embryol. A duct of Cuvier. See CARDINAL SINUS.

pre·ced′a·ble (prē-sēd′ȧ·b'l), adj. That can be preceded.

pre′ce·da′ne·ous (prē′sē-dā′nē-ŭs), adj. Preceding. Obs.

pre·cede′ (prē-sēd′; 66), v.; -CED′ED (-sēd′ĕd; -Id; 119); -CED′ING (-sēd′ĭng). [F. précéder, fr. L. praecedere, praecessum, fr. prae before + cedere to go, be in motion. See PRE-; CEDE.] Transitive: 1. To go before in quality or degree; to exceed; surpass. Obs.
2. To go before in rank, dignity, importance, or the like; take precedence of; — esp. of diplomatic or official ranks.
3. To be, go, or come before in arrangement or sequence; to be, go, or move before or in front of.
4. To go before in order of time; to be earlier than; to occur first with relation to anything.
5. To cause to be preceded; to preface; to introduce; — used with by or with before the instrumental object.
It is usual to precede hostilities by a public declaration. Kent.
6. Astron. Of a star, to rise earlier than and move in front of (another star) in the apparent rotation of the heavens.
—. Intrans.: To go or come before; have precedence.

pre·ced′ence (prē-sēd′ĕns; prĕs′ē-dĕns; prē′sē-), n. [See PRECEDENT, adj.] 1. = PRECEDENT, n. in any sense. Obs.
2. Act or state of preceding, or going before, in order of time; priority; as, one event has precedence of another; also, state or quality of being more important or valuable than; as, the thoroughbred takes precedence of the mongrel.
3. Act or state of going or being before in rank or dignity, or the place of honor; right to a more honorable place; superior rank; specif., ceremonial priority or order; as, barons have precedence of commoners. Hence, also, the order observed by persons of different rank on ceremonial occasions; as, the rules of precedence.
He (Henry James) accepts etiquettes, precedences, claims. H. G. Wells.
☞ Precedence is regarded as important at social functions in military, naval, political, diplomatic, and some ecclesiastical circles. Though based on the same general principles, actual precedence varies greatly from country to country. On occasions of ceremony in European capitals, everyone is assigned to his or her relative rank with the official sanction of the government. In the United States, however, an established code of precedence exists only by custom and tradition; it has varied slightly from time to time, no final authority has been published, and the relative ranks of certain officials are still in dispute.[1] In general, precedence is determined by any or all of three considerations: the relative importance (however determined) of the office or position held; the age or importance of the organization or unit represented; and the length of service of the individual in the office or position held or in the organization or unit.

I. THE UNITED STATES. The order of precedence for high officials in Washington is now approximately as follows:

The President of the United States
The Vice-President of the United States[2]
The Chief Justice of the United States[1]
Ex-Presidents of the United States
Ambassadors of Foreign Powers accredited to the United States
The Speaker of the House of Representatives
The Secretary of State[3]
Ministers of Foreign Powers accredited to the United States Associate Justices of the Supreme Court[1]
The Secretary of the Treasury
The Secretary of Defense
The Attorney General
The Postmaster General
The Secretary of the Interior
The Secretary of Agriculture
The Secretary of Commerce
The Secretary of Labor
The Director of Economic Co-operation
Governors of States (according to the date of admission of the State or, among the 13 original States, the population)
Senators
Members of the House of Representatives Secretaries of the Army, the Navy, and the Air Force (in order of appointment) Generals of the Army (five star) and Fleet Admirals (five star)
The Undersecretary of State
Chargés d'Affaires of Foreign Powers (accredited to the United States)
The Undersecretary of the Treasury
The Solicitor General
The First Assistant Postmaster General
The Undersecretary of the Interior
The Undersecretary of Agriculture
The Undersecretary of Commerce
The Undersecretary of Labor
The Undersecretaries of the Army, the Navy, and the Air Force (in order of appointment)

Officers of the Army, Navy, and Air Force are equal in corresponding ranks and precede according to date of rank. Retired officers rank with but after active officers. Inactive or former reserve officers do not customarily claim precedence on account of rank. The corresponding ranks in Army and Navy in order of precedence are:

Army	Navy
General of the Army	Fleet Admiral
General	Admiral
Lieutenant General	Vice-Admiral
Major General	Rear Admiral
Brigadier General	Commodore
Colonel	Captain
Lieutenant Colonel	Commander
Major	Lieutenant Commander
Captain	Lieutenant
1st Lieutenant	Lieutenant, junior grade
2d Lieutenant	Ensign

Corresponding ranks in the Air Force and in the Marine Corps follow the nomenclature of the Army.

A wife or a widow is always accorded the rank of her husband, but the sisters, daughters, daughters-in-law, and other members of the families of an official take no precedence. Even though they may act as hostesses for him, they hold no such rank except in his house. Unmarried daughters of the President, however, receive a courtesy rank ahead of the wives of minor officials, and the sister of one Vice-President has claimed the rank customarily accorded to a Vice-President's wife. Women members of Congress rank below the wives of congressmen of longer service, and above the wives of those more recently elected.
In Washington official society, first calls are ordinarily made by persons of lower rank upon persons of higher rank, but there are many traditional exceptions. For example, cabinet members and their wives call first upon members of the Senate, though the former take precedence at dinners and other social functions. At dinners, the ranking man sits at the right of the hostess, the second ranking man at her left, the third at the right of the lady at the right of the host, the fourth at the left of the lady at the left of the host, and so on. The ranking ladies are similarly arranged, beginning at the right of the host. In going out to dinner, the host ordinarily leads the way with the wife of the ranking guest, or, if his wife is not present, with the ranking lady, and the others usually follow in the order of precedence of the men, except that the hostess comes last of all with the man of highest rank; but on those few occasions when the President dines out, the hostess leads with the President, followed immediately by the host with the President's wife. When the ranking guest is the Vice-President, the hostess sometimes leads with him, his wife coming immediately after with the host, and the other guests following.
In the United States, hereditary titles convey no right to precedence, but clergymen are usually accorded precedence above most laymen, though there is no infallible rule for determining the exact relative rank of clergymen and high government officials.

II. ENGLAND. In English society, hereditary rank, ecclesiastical rank, official position, and personal honors and distinctions all play a part in determining precedence; and the weight attached to each has varied slightly from time to time, since it is affected not only by custom but also by royal decrees, statutes, and treaties. When men have two claims to precedence they are ranked according to the higher, and the same is true of women, with certain exceptions noted below. Foreign titles of nobility borne by British subjects afford their holders no precedence whatever in Great Britain. Certain offices and certain honorary societies entitle their holders to precedence in Scotland but not in England.

a Men. In England the order of precedence for men is as follows: the Sovereign, the Prince of Wales, younger sons of the Sovereign; grandsons, brothers, and uncles of the Sovereign in this order; the Sovereign's nephews, according to the seniority of their fathers; foreign ambassadors; Archbishop of Canterbury; Lord Chancellor of Great Britain; Archbishop of York; Prime Minister; Lord President of the Council; Speaker of the House of Commons; Lord Privy Seal (if of baronial rank); then the following state officers if dukes (1) Lord Great Chamberlain of England (when in actual performance of duty), (2) Lord High Constable (when existing); (3) Earl Marshal; (4) Lord High Admiral (when existing); (5) Lord Steward of the Household; (6) Lord Chamberlain of the Household; (7) Master of the Horse; other dukes;[4] eldest sons of dukes of the blood royal;[5] foreign ministers and envoys; the above state officers (Lord Great Chamberlain, etc.), if marquesses; other marquesses;[4] dukes' eldest sons;[5] the above state officers, if earls; other earls;[4] younger sons of dukes of the blood royal; marquesses' eldest sons;[5] dukes' younger sons; the above state officers, if viscounts;[4] earls' eldest sons;[5] marquesses' younger sons; bishops of London, Durham, and Winchester in this order; all other English bishops, in order of consecration; the above state officers (Lord Great Chamberlain, etc.), if barons; Secretaries of State, if barons; other barons;[4] Lords Commissioners of the Great Seal (when existing); Treasurer of the Household; Comptroller of the Household; Vice-Chamberlain of the Household; Secretaries of State below the rank of baron; High Commissioners; viscounts' eldest sons;[5] earls' younger sons; barons' eldest sons;[5] Knights of the Garter, if commoners; Privy Councilors; Chancellor of the Exchequer; Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster; Lord Chief Justice of England; Master of the Rolls; President of the Probate, Divorce, and Admiralty Division; the Lords Justices of Appeal (placed higher by some authorities); Judges of the High Court of Justice in order of appointment; viscounts' younger sons; barons' younger sons; sons of life peers; baronets of either kingdom concurrently, according to the dates of their patents; Knights Grand Cross of the Bath; Knights Grand Commanders of the Star of India; Knights Grand Cross of St. Michael and St. George; Knights Grand Commanders of the Order of the Indian Empire; Knights Grand Cross of the Royal Victorian Order; Knights Grand Cross of the British Empire Order; Knights Commanders of the above orders in the same sequence; Knights Bachelor; judges of the county courts of England and Wales and of the City of London Court, in order of appointment; sergeants-at-law; masters in lunacy; Companions of the Bath and of other orders in the sequence listed above; Companions of the Distinguished Service Order; Members (4th Class) of the Royal Victorian Order; Officers of the Order of the British Empire; Companions of the Imperial Service Order; eldest sons of younger sons of peers; baronets' eldest sons;[5] eldest sons of Knights of the Garter; eldest sons of other knights;[5] Members (5th Class) of the Royal Victorian Order; Members of the Order of the British Empire; baronets' younger sons; younger sons of knights;[5] esquires; gentlemen.[6] b Women. Among the hereditary nobility, women take the same rank as their husbands or as their eldest brothers. Daughters of peers rank immediately after the wives of their eldest brothers and before the younger brothers' wives. The daughter of a peer marrying another peer of lower degree takes the same rank as her husband, but one marrying a commoner retains her title and rank as the daughter of her father. Thus when the daughter of a duke has married a commoner she will take precedence above her sister who has married a baron. If, however, the widow of a peer or knight remarries, custom allows her to retain her former title and position by courtesy; and the widow of a baronet enjoys her precedence for life by right. If the daughter of a peer marries the son of a peer she takes precedence either as the daughter of her father or as the wife of her husband, whichever happens to give her the higher position, regardless of the title by which she may be addressed. The children of a living peer or baronet have precedence above those of his predecessor; but a dowager, while a widow, takes precedence above the wife of her husband's successor. In Great Britain, official rank on the husband's part does not, as a rule, give precedence to the wife, but there are a few exceptions, as in the case of the lady mayoress.

The order of precedence of women in England is as follows: the Queen; the Queen Mother; the Princess of Wales; the Sovereign's daughters; wives of the Sovereign's younger sons; the Sovereign's granddaughters; wives of the Sovereign's grandsons; the Sovereign's sisters; wives of the Sovereign's brothers; the Sovereign's aunts; wives of the Sovereign's uncles; the Sovereign's nieces; wives of the Sovereign's nephews; duchesses;[4] wives of the eldest sons of dukes of the blood royal; marchionesses;[4] wives of the eldest sons of dukes; daughters of dukes; countesses;[4] wives of younger sons of dukes of the blood royal; wives of eldest sons of marquesses; daughters of marquesses; wives of younger sons of dukes; viscountesses;[4] wives of eldest sons of earls; daughters of earls; wives of younger sons of marquesses; baronesses;[4] wives of Lords of Appeal in Ordinary; wives of eldest sons of viscounts; daughters of viscounts; wives of younger sons of earls; wives of eldest sons of barons; daughters of barons; maids of honor to the Queen Regnant, Queen Consort, or Queen Dowager; wives of Knights of the Garter; wives of younger sons of viscounts; wives of younger sons of barons; daughters of life peers; wives of the sons of life peers; wives of Dames Grand Cross of the Order of the British Empire; wives of Knights Grand Cross and of Knights Grand Commanders in the same sequence as their husbands; Dames Commanders of the Order of the British Empire; wives of Knights Commanders and Knights Bachelor in the same sequence as their husbands; Commanders of the Order of the British Empire; wives of Companions of the Bath, Star of India, St. Michael and St. George, and Indian Empire in this sequence; wives of Commanders of the Royal Victorian Order and of the Order of the British Empire; wives of Companions of the Distinguished Service Order; wives of Sergeants-at-Law; Officers of the Order of the British Empire; wives of Members (4th Class) of the Royal Victorian Order; wives of Officers of the Order of the British Empire; Companions of the Imperial Service Order; wives of Companions of the Imperial Service Order; wives of the eldest sons of the younger sons of peers; daughters of the younger sons of peers; wives of the eldest sons of baronets; daughters of baronets; wives of the eldest sons of Knights of the Garter; wives of the eldest sons of Knights Bachelor; daughters of knights; Members of the Order of the British Empire; wives of Members (5th Class) of the Royal Victorian Order; wives of Members of the Order of the British Empire; wives of the younger sons of the younger sons of peers; wives of the younger sons of baronets; wives of the younger sons of knights; wives of esquires; wives of gentlemen.[6]

III. SCOTLAND. a Men. In Scotland, the Lord High Commissioner to the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland (during the sitting of this assembly) precedes every man except the King and is followed by all other members of the royal family in the same order as in England. After the royal family, precedence is given to Lords Lieutenants of counties, Lords Provosts of cities, and Sheriffs Principal in this order, during their term of office and within the localities of their own jurisdiction; after them come the Lord Chancellor of Great Britain; the Moderator of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland (during office); the Prime Minister; the Keeper of the Great Seal of Scotland (Secretary for Scotland), if a peer; Keeper of the Privy Seal (if a peer); Hereditary High Constable of Scotland; Hereditary Master of the Household in Scotland; dukes;[4] eldest sons of dukes of the blood royal;[5] marquesses;[4] eldest sons of dukes;[5] earls;[4] younger sons of dukes of the blood royal; eldest sons of marquesses;[5] younger sons of dukes; Keeper of the Great Seal, if not a peer; Lord Justice General; Lord Clerk Register; Lord Advocate; Lord Justice Clerk; viscounts;[4] eldest sons of earls; younger sons of marquesses; barons;[4] eldest sons of viscounts;[5] younger sons of earls; eldest sons of barons;[5] knights of the Garter; Privy Councilors; Senators of the College of Justice (Lords of Session), including Chairman of the Scottish Land Court; younger sons of viscounts; younger sons of barons; Sons of Law Life Peers (Lords of Appeal in Ordinary); baronets; Knights of the Thistle; Knights of St. Patrick; Knights Grand Cross, Knights Grand Commanders, and Knights Commanders of other orders (Bath, Star of India, etc.) ranked as in England; Solicitor General for Scotland; Lyon King-of-Arms; Sheriffs Principal (when not within their own county); Knights Bachelor; Sheriffs Substitute; Companions of the Bath, Star of India, St. Michael and St. George, the Indian Empire, Royal Victorian Order, Order of the British Empire, and Distinguished Service Order in this sequence; Members (4th class) of the Royal Victorian Order; Officers of the Order of the British Empire; Companions of the Imperial Service Order; eldest sons of younger sons of peers; eldest sons of baronets; eldest sons of Knights of the Garter, Thistle, and St. Patrick; eldest sons of other knights; Members (5th class) of the Royal Victorian Order; Members of the Order of the British Empire; younger sons of baronets; younger sons of knights; King's Counsel; esquires; gentlemen.[6]

b Women. The order of precedence for women in Scotland is closely similar to that in England, because the governmental and ecclesiastical offices which complicate the order of precedence among the men do not ordinarily confer any precedence upon their wives. Four important differences between Scotland and England should, however, be noted: (1) Peers and hence peeresses of Ireland created before the Union are recognized in England but not in Scotland. (2) Knights of the Thistle and of St. Patrick and their wives and children have definite precedence assigned to them in Scotland but not in England. The wives of these knights in Scotland rank immediately after the wives of baronets, and before Dames Grand Cross of the Order of the British Empire. The wives of their eldest sons rank immediately after the wives of the eldest sons of Knights of the Garter. (3) In Scotland, wives of Senators of the College of Justice (Lords of Session), including the wife of the Chairman of the Scottish Land Court take the same rank as wives of Knights Bachelor, all taking precedence among themselves in order of their husbands' creation as knights or appointment as senators. (4) Wives of sergeants-at-law hold no special precedence in Scotland.

IV. ENGLAND: local. There is no complete written code of English county or city precedence; but the Lord Lieu-

[1] The relative rank of the Chief Justice and the ambassadors, and of foreign ministers and justices of the Supreme Court, has been disputed. Some authorities would place governors of States after representatives in Congress. When the Secretaries of War and of the Navy held cabinet status, prior to the National Security Act of 1947, the order of precedence included the Chief of Staff of the Army and the Chief of Naval Operations either before or after (according to differing authorities) representatives in Congress.

[2] Some authorities place the Vice-President immediately after the Chief Justice on those occasions when the President is present and the Vice-President is therefore held to be functioning merely as head of the Senate.

[3] Formerly the Secretary of State ranked below foreign ministers in American houses but above them in embassies and legations.

[4] In England peers and peeresses of the same degree take precedence as follows: England, Scotland, Great Britain (created before the union), Ireland (created before the union), Great Britain and Ireland (created since the union); and within these groupings according to the dates of their patents, the earlier ranking above the later. In Scotland the order is the same except that no special precedence is accorded to peers of Ireland created before the union.

[5] In the same order as their fathers. In Great Britain, hereditary precedence is ordinarily derived from the father, but a peeress in her own right can confer it upon her descendants.

tenant stands first in his own county, and the sheriff second. In London and other corporations, the order of precedence is mayor, aldermen, sheriffs, chief officers, and livery. At Oxford and Cambridge the high sheriff precedes the vice-chancellor.

V. CANADA. The order of precedence in Canada is as follows: the Governor General or officer administering the government; the Lieutenant Governors of Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Manitoba, British Columbia, Prince Edward Island, Saskatchewan, and Alberta in this order; the Prime Minister of Canada; Archbishops and Bishops, according to seniority; the Moderator of the Presbyterian Church in Canada; the General Superintendent of the Methodist Church in Canada; the corresponding head of the Baptist Church in Canada; members of the Cabinet, according to seniority; the Chief Justice of Canada; Members of the Privy Council not of the Cabinet, according to seniority; the Speaker of the Senate; the Speaker of the House of Commons; the Prime Ministers of the Provinces of Canada; the chief judges of the courts of law and equity, according to seniority, and the judges appointed to perform the duties of Chief Justice at Quebec and Montreal; the puisne judges of the Supreme Court of Canada, according to seniority; judges of the Exchequer Court of Canada; the Solicitor General of Canada; members of the Senate; the puisne judges of the courts of law and equity, according to seniority; members of the House of Commons; Chief of Staff of National Defense, Director of Naval Services, and Director of the Air Force, provided they are of the rank of major general or its equivalent, or of higher rank; members of the Executive Council (Provincial) within their Provinces; members of the Legislative Council within their Provinces; the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly within his Province; members of the Legislative Assembly within their Provinces.

VI. BRITISH COLONIES. In general, the order of precedence among British colonial officers is as follows: Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or officer administering the government; senior officer in command of the troops, if of the rank of general and the officer in command of his Majesty's naval forces on the station, if of the rank of an admiral, their own relative rank being determined by the King's regulations on that subject; bishop; chief justice; senior officer in command of troops if of the rank of colonel or lieutenant colonel, and the officer in command of naval forces, if of corresponding rank; members of the Executive Council; puisne judges; President of the Legislative Council; members of the Legislative Council; Speaker of the House of Assembly; members of the House of Assembly; Colonial Secretary;[1] commissioners or government agents of provinces or districts; Attorney General; Solicitor General; senior officer in command of troops, if below the rank of colonel or lieutenant colonel, etc.; Archdeacon; Treasurer;[1] Auditor General or Inspector General of Accounts;[1] Commissioners of Crown Lands;[1] Collector of the Customs;[1] Comptroller of the Customs;[1] Surveyor General;[1] Clerk of the Executive Council; Clerk of the Legislative Council; Clerk of the House of Assembly.

VII. ECCLESIASTICAL. In churches having a long tradition precedence is usually emphasized quite as much as in governmental and diplomatic society.

The Catholic Encyclopaedic Dictionary (1931) states that "the Pope always has first place and then the cardinals, even before other patriarchs; then bishops and other prelates, according to their rank, date of consecration and promotion determining the order amongst themselves. The Archbishop of Westminster always has precedence in England and Wales and the Archbishop of Baltimore in the United States. Secular clergy take precedence of regulars, among whom the order is canons regular, monks, friars, clerks regular; third orders come before confraternities, men before women. In processions, precedence is to some extent governed by local custom. The Latin rite has no priority; precedence is settled without any reference to rite."

[1] If not in the Executive Council.

Syn. — See PRIORITY.

pre·ced′en·cy (-(d)ĕn·sĭ), n.; pl. -CIES (-sĭz). Precedence.

pre·ced′ent (prĕ·sēd′ĕnt), adj. [F. précédent, fr. L. praecedens, -entis, pres. part. of praecedere. See PRECEDE.] 1. Going before in time; anterior; preceding; antecedent; as, precedent services. "A precedent injury." Bacon. 2. Going before in order or arrangement; as, a precedent theorem, law, chapter, rule, etc.
3. Taking precedence; exceeding in importance. Rare.
Syn. — See ANTECEDENT. Ant. — Subsequent, succeeding.

prec′e·dent (prĕs′ē·dĕnt; prē′sē-), n. [F. précédent. See PRECEDENT, adj.] 1. Obs. A thing or person that precedes; specif.: a Something that has just been mentioned; — chiefly in pl. b Something that happens before; a preceding circumstance or condition; an antecedent. c A forerunner. d A rough draft of a writing; an original. Shak. e A prognostic; a token; a sign. Shak.
2. Something done or said that may serve as an example or rule to authorize or justify a subsequent act of the same or an analogous kind; an authoritative example.
Examples for cases can but direct as precedents only. Hooker.
3. Obs. a A record of an act or acts that may serve as a guide or rule. b A model of conduct; a pattern. c An example; instance; specimen.
4. Law. A judicial decision, or a form of proceeding, or course of action, that serves as a rule for future determinations in similar or analogous cases; an authority to be followed in courts of justice.
Syn. — Usage; standard, model.

prec′e·dent (-dĕnt), v. t.; -DENT′ED; -DENT′ING. To furnish with, or support or justify by, a precedent.

prec′e·den′ta·ry (-dĕn′tə·rĭ), adj. Constituting a precedent. Rare.

prec′e·dent′ed (prĕs′ē·dĕn′tĕd; prē′sē-; -tĭd; 119), adj. Having a precedent; supported, justified, or sanctioned by a previous example of a like kind.

prec′e·den′tial (-dĕn′shăl), adj. 1. Of the nature of, or constituting, a precedent; having force as an example for imitation; as, precedential acts, a precedential case.
2. Having precedence; preliminary; antecedent.
3. Of or pertaining to social or official precedence.

pre·ced′er (prē·sēd′ēr), n. One who or that which precedes. Rare.

pre·ced′ing (prē·sēd′ĭng), adj. 1. That precedes; going before, as in order, rank, time, or place; foregoing.
2. Specif.: Astron. West of, that is, in the direction toward which stars appear to travel, by diurnal motion. See 2d FOLLOWING, 3.
Syn. — See ANTECEDENT. Ant. — Following, subsequent.

pre·cent′ (prē·sĕnt′), v. i. & t.; -CENT′ED; -CENT′ING. To act as precentor; to lead in singing.

pre·cen′tor (-sĕn′tĕr), n. [LL. praecentor, fr. praecinere to sing before, fr. prae before + canere to sing. See CHANT.] A leader of the singing of a choir or congregation; a directing singer. Specif.: a The leader of the choir in a cathedral. In the English cathedrals of the Old Foundation the precentor is usually a member of the chapter whose duties with regard to the singing are performed by a deputy called the succentor. In the cathedrals of the New Foundation he is one of the minor canons, or a chaplain, and performs the duties in person. b The choir chaplain of a church. c The leader of the congregational singing in churches which have no choir, and esp. in those in which there is no instrumental accompaniment to the singing. d = CORYPHAEUS, 3.

pre′cen·to′ri·al (prē′sĕn·tō′rĭ·ăl; 181), adj. Pertaining to a precentor.

pre·cen′to·ry (prē·sĕn′tō·rĭ), n.; pl. -RIES (-rĭz). The residence of a precentor of an English cathedral of the Old Foundation.

pre·cen′tral (prē·sĕn′trăl), adj. Anat. & Zool. a Situated in front of the central sulcus of the brain. b Of or pertaining to a precentrum.

pre·cen′tress (prē·sĕn′trĕs; -trĭs; 119), pre·cen′trix (-trĭks), n. [ML. praecentrix.] Female precentor.

pre·cen′trum (-trŭm), n. [NL.] Zool. a In certain of the lower vertebrates, a distinct anterior portion of the centrum of a vertebra, commonly bearing the neural and hemal arches; — opposed to postcentrum. b In certain fishes, one of an alternate series of vertebral centra having both hemal and neural arches, the intervening centra being without arches.

pre′cept (prē′sĕpt), n. [OF. or L.; OF. precept (F. précepte), fr. L. praeceptum, fr. praecipere to take beforehand, instruct, teach, fr. prae before + capere take. See PRE-; CAPABLE.] 1. An authoritative command; order; mandate. Obs.
2. A Any commandment, instruction, or order intended as a rule of action or conduct; esp., a command respecting moral conduct; an injunction. b A working rule or technical direction of an art. "No arts are without their precepts." Dryden.
3. Law. A command or order issued to another to do a thing and serving as his authority to act; as: a Feudal Law. The direction or command of a superior to an agent or official to admit a tenant to occupancy; as, the precept of sasine in Scots law. b Practice. An order, warrant, or writ issued pursuant to law to an administrative officer; usually, any command in the nature of process.
Syn. — Commandment, law, rule, direction, principle, maxim. See DOCTRINE.

pre′cept, v. t. Obs. a To assert (something) as a precept or rule. b To teach (one) by precepts.

pre·cep′tion (prē·sĕp′shŭn), n. [L. praeceptio.] 1. Obs. a A preconception; presumption. b Precept; command.
2. Instruction by a preceptor. Rare.
3. Rom. Law. The taking of a thing given as a legacy before the distribution of the estate of the testator.

pre′cept·ist (prē′sĕp·tĭst), n. [See -IST.] A maker of, or believer in precepts; a dogmatist. — pre′cept·ist, adj.

pre·cep′tive (prē·sĕp′tĭv), adj. [OF. or L.; OF. preceptif, fr. L. praeceptivus.] 1. Giving precepts; of the nature of a precept; mandatory; didactic; instructive; as, preceptive parts of the Bible.
2. Following, or according to, a precept. Obs.
— pre·cep′tive·ly, adv.

pre·cep′tor (prē·sĕp′tĕr), n. [L. praeceptor, fr. praecipere to teach; cf. F. précepteur. See PRECEPT.] 1. A teacher; instructor; tutor; specif., the master or principal of a school.
2. The head of a preceptory of Knights Templars.
3. Educ. At Princeton University, a member of the faculty, of any rank or title, who directs the reading and study of one or more small groups of students in a course or field, holding an informal weekly conference with each group.
4. Med. A practicing physician who takes an undergraduate medical student as an assistant and gives him personal training in the practice of medicine.

pre·cep′to·ral (prē·sĕp′tō·răl), pre′cep·to′ri·al (prē′sĕp·tō′rĭ·ăl; 181), adj. Of or pertaining to a preceptor. — pre′cep·to′ri·al·ly, adv.

pre·cep′tor·ate (prē·sĕp′tĕr·ĭt), n. The office of preceptor.

pre′cep·to′ri·al sys′tem (prē′sĕp·tō′rĭ·ăl; 181). A system instituted at Princeton in 1905 by Woodrow Wilson for individualizing college instruction by student conferences with and special work done under preceptors.

pre·cep′to·ry (prē·sĕp′tō·rĭ), adj. Preceptive.

pre·cep′to·ry (prē·sĕp′tō·rĭ), n.; pl. -RIES (-rĭz). [ML. praeceptoria an estate assigned to a preceptor, fr. L. praeceptor a commander, ruler, teacher, in ML., procurator, administrator among the Knights Templars. See PRECEPTOR.] A religious house of the Knights Templars, subordinate to the temple of the order in London; hence, the manor or estate supporting one, or the buildings appertaining to it; a commandery. See COMMANDERY, n., 2 a.

pre·cep′tress (-trĕs; -trĭs; 119), n. A female preceptor.

Pre′cepts of No′ah (prē′sĕpts). Eccl. Seven precepts alleged in the Talmud to have been given by God to Noah's sons: (1) Obey those in authority. (2) Shun idolatry. (3) Avoid blasphemy and perjury. (4) Avoid unnatural vice. (5) Shed no blood. (6) Avoid theft. (7) Do not eat parts of living animals. They are sometimes given in a different form.

pre·cep′tu·al (prē·sĕp′tū·ăl), adj. Of or pertaining to, or conveying, precepts. — pre·cep′tu·al·ly, adv.

pre′ce·ram′ic (prē′sē·răm′ĭk), adj. [pre- + ceramic.] Anthropol. Designating or pertaining to an age or culture prior to the period when pottery making appears.

pre′ces (prē′sēz), n. pl. [L., prayers, pl. of prex prayer. See PRAY, v.] Eccl. In liturgical worship, short petitions said in alternation by the minister and congregation.

pre·cess′ (prē·sĕs′), v. i.; -CESSED′ (-sĕst′); -CESS′ING. [Back formation from PRECESSION.] To progress with a movement of precession.
This . . . will cause the axis to precess about the tangent. Nature.

pre·cess′ (prē·sĕs′), n. [L. praecedere, praecessum, to go before.] That which precedes; a literary work to which a sequel has been written; — a suggested correlative of sequel.

pre·ces′sion (-sĕsh′ŭn), n. [LL. praecessio, fr. praecedere, praecessum, to go before. See PRECEDE.] 1. Act of going forward; procession; — apparently an error. Obs.
2. Act of preceding in time, rank, or order; precedence.
3. Mech. A change in the direction of the axis of a rotating body, as a spinning top, or gyroscope (which see), the effect of which is to rotate this axis (axis of spin) about a line (axis of precession) perpendicular to its original direction and to the axis (axis of torque, or axis of twist) of the twisting forces producing the change. See PRECESSION OF THE EQUINOXES. The cone traced in space by the axis of the body is called the cone of precession.
4. Phonet. Advancement of the place of articulation of a vowel, with narrowing.

pre·ces′sion·al (-ăl; -l), adj. Of or pert. to precession.

precession of the equinoxes. Astron. a A slow westward motion of the equinoctial points along the ecliptic, caused by the action of sun and moon upon the protuberant matter about the earth's equator, in connection with its diurnal rotation; — so called because either equinox, on account of its westerly motion, comes to the meridian sooner each day than the point it would have occupied if there were no motion of precession, and thus precedes that point continually with reference to the time of transit; — called specif. lunisolar precession. b A comparatively small eastward motion of the equinoxes caused by the action of the other planets in altering the plane of the earth's orbit; — called specif. planetary precession. c The combined effect of the lunisolar precession and the planetary precession; — called specif. general precession. The change is at the rate of about 50″ annually. Hence, a complete revolution is accomplished in a cycle of nearly 26,000 years, called the Platonic year, or great year, at the end of which the equinoctial points have about the same position among the stars as at its beginning.

pre′–Chel′le·an (prē′shĕl′ē·ăn), adj. Anthropol. Designating a culture period or age preceding the Chellean age and the Pleistocene of geology. It falls within the Tertiary of the Pliocene. It includes a late division of the eolithic in some classifications. The stone artifacts show the minimum of purposeful chipping. The climate was temperate and the large game animals were the horse, ox, bison, and deer.

pre·chord′al (prē·kôr′dăl; -d'l), adj. Embryol. Anterior to the notochord; — used specif. of the trabeculae of a developing cranium.

pre′ci·a′tion (prē′shĭ·ā′shŭn), n. [From APPRECIATION, DEPRECIATION.] The determination of price.

pre·cide′ (prē·sīd′), v. t. [L. praecidere.] To cut off. Obs.

‖pré′cieuse′ (prā′syûz′), adj. fem.; pl. -CIEUSES (F. -syûz′). [F., fem. of précieux precious. See PRECIOUS.] Overprecise; excessively nice. — n. An affected woman of polite society, esp. one of the literary women of the French salons of the 17th century. See PRECIOSITY, 2.

‖Pré′cieuses′ Ri′di′cules′, Les (prā′syûz′ rē′dē′kül′). [F.] A comedy (1659) by Molière, satirizing the précieuses of his time. It is Molière's first social satire of importance. See GORGIBUS.

pre′cinct (prē′sĭngkt; formerly accented pre·cinct′, as in Shakespeare & Milton), n. [ML. praecinctum, fr. L. praecingere, praecinctum, to gird about, encompass, fr. prae + cingere to gird, surround. See PRE-; CINCTURE.] 1. The enclosure bounded by the walls or other limits of a building or place or by an imaginary line around it; as, the precincts of a church; esp., pl., the region immediately surrounding a place; environs. "The precincts of light." Milton.
2. Specif., the inviolable spaces within the grith, mund, or peace of a house, borough, or the like, in the customary law of the Anglo-Saxons and some other Teutons.
3. A surrounding or enclosing line or surface; a boundary.
4. A district within certain boundaries, esp. one set out for governmental purposes; a minor territorial or jurisdictional division, as: a Eng. A district for which a high or petty constable is appointed. b A division of a city or town, as for police control. c U. S. A subdivision of a ward or county for election purposes, etc.

pre·cinct′ (prē·sĭngkt′), adj. [L. praecinctus.] Girt about. Rare.

pre·cinc′tion (prē·sĭngk′shŭn), n. [L. praecinctio, lit., a girdling.] Rom. Antiq. A broad landing place circling a theater or an amphitheater between two tiers of seats.

pre·cinc′tive (-sĭngk′tĭv), adj. Biogeog. Confined to an area specifically under discussion.

pre′ci·os′i·ty (prēsh′ĭ·ŏs′ĭ·tĭ), n.; pl. -TIES (-tĭz). [OF. preciosité, fr. L. pretiositas.] 1. Preciousness; something precious. Obs.
2. a Fastidious refinement, esp. in language. b Excessive refinement; specif., the affected purism and sententiousness characteristic of the French précieuses of the 17th century.
He had the fastidiousness, the preciosity, the love of archaisms, of your true decadent. L. Douglas.

pre′cious (prĕsh′ŭs), adj. [OF. precios (F. précieux), fr. L. pretiosus, fr. pretium price, worth, value. See PRICE.]
1. Of great price or value; costly; as, a precious stone.
2. Of great value or worth in an immaterial way, as morally or spiritually; very valuable; highly esteemed; dear; beloved; as, precious recollections. Cf. PRECIOUS BLOOD.
She [wisdom] is more precious than rubies. Prov. iii. 15.
3. a Particular; fastidious.
Lest that precious folk be with me wroth. Chaucer.
b Overnice; overrefined. Cf. PRÉCIEUSE, PRECIOSITY, 2.
Elaborate embroidery of precious language. Saintsbury.
4. a Egregious; arrant; complete; perfect; — an intensive; as, a precious funk; a precious fool; a precious rascal. b In ironical use, worthless; poor; bad.
5. Gems. a Of highest value commercially, because of beauty, rarity, and esp. hardness; — chiefly in phrase precious stone. Diamonds, rubies, sapphires, and emeralds are always ranked as precious stones; sometimes, others, as alexandrites and cat's-eyes, are included. The pearl, although not a stone, is ranked as a precious gem because of its beauty and rarity. b Designating a superior or relatively more valuable variety of a gem stone; as, precious garnet, opal, etc. (see GARNET, OPAL, etc.).
Syn. — See VALUABLE.
Ant. — Worthless, valueless.

prec′e·den′ta·ble (prĕs′ē·dĕn′tə·bl; prē′sē-), adj. See -ABLE.

precedent condition. Law. See CONDITION, n., 9.

prec′e·dent·less, adj. See -LESS.

pre·ced′ent·ly (prē·sēd′ĕnt·lĭ), adv. of PRECEDENT.

pre·cease′, pre·cease′ly (prē·sēs′, -lĭ), etc. Scot. vars. of PRECISE, etc.

pre·cel′, v. t. & i. [L. praecellere.] To surpass; excel. Obs.

pre·cel′e·brate, v. t. & i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·cel′e·brant, n. — pre′cel·e·bra′tion, n.

pre·cel′lence, pre·cel′len·cy, n. [LL. praecellentia.] Excellence; pre-eminence. Obs.

pre·cel′lent, adj. [L. praecellens, pres. part.] Excellent. Obs.

pre′-Celt′ic, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·cen′sure, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·cen′sus, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′-Cen·ten′ni·al, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·cen′tor·ship, n. See -SHIP.

pre·cep′tial (prē·sĕp′shăl), adj. Preceptive. Obs.

pre·cep′tiv. Preceptive. Ref. Sp.

precept of clare constat. See CLARE CONSTAT.

pre·cep′tor·ship, n. See -SHIP.

pre′cer·e·bel′lar, pre·cer′e·bral, adj. See PRE-, 1 b.

pre·cer′e·broid, adj. See PRE-, 1 b.

pre·cer′e·mo′ny, n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′cer·e·mo′ni·al, adj.

pre·cer′ti·fy, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′cer·ti·fi·ca′tion, n.

pre·ces′sor, n. [OF. precesseur, fr. LL. praecessor.] A predecessor. Obs.

pre·chal′lenge, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·cham′pi·oned, adj., pre·cham′pi·on·ship′, n. See PRE-2.

pre·charge′, v. t. & n., pre·chart′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′-Chau·ce′ri·an, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·check′, v. t. & n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·chem′i·cal, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·cher′ish, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·child′hood, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·chill′, v. t. See PRE-.

pre′-Chi·nese′, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·chlo′ric, adj. See PRE-, 4.

pre·chlo′ro·form, v. t., pre·choose′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·choice′, n.

pre·cho′roid, n. See PRE-, 1 b.

pre′-Chris′tian, adj., pre′-Chris′ti·an′ic, adj., pre′-Christ′mas, adj. See PRE-, 2.

Precht, Frau (frou prĕkt). = PERCHTA.

pre'cious (prĕsh'ŭs), adv. 1. = PRECIOUSLY. Obs.
2. Extremely; very; — an intensive. Colloq.
Precious little they cared for the imperial diet. John Fiske. pre'cious, n. 1. Beloved one; darling.
2. Preciosity. Henry James.
Precious Blood. R.C.Ch. The blood of Jesus shed for the redemption of mankind; — a title given to a devotion to Jesus as Saviour and to a feast celebrated on July 1. precious coral. The red coral (Corallium nobile). precious garnet. = PYROPE, 2. precious metals. The uncommon and highly valuable metals, esp. gold, silver, and platinum. precious miter. See MITER, n., 3. prec'i-pe (prĕs'ĭ-pē; prē'sĭ-pē), n. [See PRAECIPE.] Law.
1. A precept.
2. Var. of PRAECIPE.
prec'i-pe, n. [L. praeceps, praecipis and -cipitis.] A precipice. Obs. prec'i-pice (prĕs'ĭ-pĭs), n. [F. précipice, fr. L. praecipitium, fr. praeceps, -cipitis, headlong, fr. prae + caput, -pitis, head. See PRE-; CHIEF.] 1. A sudden or headlong fall. Obs.
2. A very steep, perpendicular, or overhanging place, as the face of a cliff; an abrupt declivity; a cliff.
Down some monstrous precipice. Keats.
3. Figuratively, a hazardous situation.
prec'i-piced (-pĭst), adj. Having, or characterized by, a precipice; as, a precipiced shore.
pre-cip'i-tance (prē-sĭp'ĭ-tăns), n.; pl. -TANCES (-tăn-sĕz; -sĭz; 119). [From PRECIPITANT.] Action, fact, or state of being precipitant, or precipitate; headlong descent, speed, or hurry; great haste; excessive or rash haste, as in resolving, forming an opinion, or executing a purpose; precipitation, rashness. "Precipitance of judgment." I. Watts.
pre-cip'i-tan-cy (-tăn-sĭ), n.; pl. -CIES (-sĭz). Quality of being precipitant or precipitate; unwise or excessive haste; precipitance; as, the precipitancy of youth.
pre-cip'i-tant (-tănt), adj. [F. or L.; F. précipitant, fr. L. praecipitans, -antis, pres. part. of praecipitare. See PRECIPITATE.] 1. Falling or rushing headlong; rushing swiftly, violently, or recklessly; moving or acting precipitately; falling perpendicularly. Specif., Chem., falling as a precipitate.
2. Unexpectedly, rashly, or foolishly brought on or hastened; very sudden or unexpected; abrupt; hasty; rash; headstrong. "Precipitant rebellion." Eikon Basilike.
— pre-cip'i-tant-ly, adv. — pre-cip'i-tant-ness, n.
pre-cip'i-tant, n. Chem. Anything which causes the formation of a precipitate. Also figuratively.
pre-cip'i-tate (prē-sĭp'ĭ-tāt), adj. [L. praecipitatus, past part. of praecipitare to precipitate, fr. praeceps headlong. See PRECIPICE.] 1. Falling, flowing, or rushing, with steep descent; hurled headlong; moving or moved with extreme speed or haste.
Precipitate the furious torrent flows. Prior.
2. Acting with unwise haste; overhasty; rash; headstrong; as, the king was too precipitate in declaring war.
3. Done, happening, passing, ending, etc., very quickly; extremely sudden or abrupt; as, a precipitate illness.
4. Done without, or exhibiting the lack of, due deliberation or care; hurried; said or done prematurely; as, a precipitate measure. "Our too precipitate course." Landor.
5. Very steep; precipitous. Obs.
Syn. — Abrupt, hasty, impetuous, sudden. See PRECIPITOUS. Ant. — Deliberate; cautious; gradual. pre-cip'i-tate (prē-sĭp'ĭ-tāt), v.; -TAT'ED (-tāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -TAT'ING (-tāt'ĭng). [See PRECIPITATE, adj.] Transitive:
1. To throw headlong; to cast or hurl down, as from a precipice or height. "Him from that height shall Heaven precipitate." Wordsworth.
2. To cause to move, act, proceed, etc., very rapidly; to urge or press on with eager haste or violence; to hurry; to cause to happen, or come to a crisis, suddenly, unexpectedly, or too soon; to hasten the occurrence of; as, to precipitate a journey, or a conflict.
Ruin . . . precipitated by religious persecution. J. R. Green.
3. Physics & Meteorol. To condense and so cause to fall as rain, etc.; as, vapor precipitated by cold.
4. a Figuratively, to clarify; to give (esp. a new or distinct) form to. "How fable first precipitated faith." Browning. b To liberate; to free from (something); to separate.
5. To cast down; overthrow; destroy; disorder. Obs.
6. Chem. To separate as a precipitate; as, water precipitates camphor from its alcoholic solution.
7. Spiritualism. To materialize.
—, Intransitive: 1. a Rare. To dash, fall, or plunge, headlong; to fall or descend steeply or suddenly. "So many fathoms down precipitating. Shak. b Obs. To rush or fall to ruin.
2. To move, act, etc., hastily or rashly. Rare.
3. To become separate or distinct, as if by precipitation. Specif.: a Chem. To separate from a solution as a precipitate. b Physics & Meteorol. To condense, as from a vapor. c Spiritualism. To materialize. pre-cip'i-tate (prē-sĭp'ĭ-tāt or, esp. Brit., -tĭt), n. [NL. praecipitatum.] 1. Chem. A substance separated from a solution in a concrete state in consequence of some chemical or physical change, as by the action of a reagent, of cold, etc., usually a solid, separated in an amorphous, or minutely crystalline form. The precipitate may fall to the bottom (whence the name), may be diffused through the solution, or may float at or near the top.
2. A product, result, or outcome of some process or action.
pre-cip'i-tat'ed (-tāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. 1. a Thrown or hurled downward. b Hurried; precipitate.
2. Chem., Physics, & Meteorol. Subjected to precipitation.
— pre-cip'i-tat'ed-ly, adv.
precipitated sulphur. Chem., etc. Sulphur obtained as a pale-yellowish or grayish amorphous powder by precipitation, as from the reaction of a polysulphide with an acid; — called also milk of sulphur or lac sulphuris and, erroneously, lac sulphur. It is used in treating skin affections and as a mild laxative, in hat cleaning, etc.
pre-cip'i-ta'tion (prē-sĭp'ĭ-tā'shŭn), n. [F. précipitation, fr. L. praecipitatio.] 1. Act or an instance of precipitating, or state of being precipitated; that which is precipitated; specif.: a Act of hurling or casting down; a falling headlong; a being hurled or thrown down; headlong fall. b Rare. Precipitousness. c Obs. Perpendicular descent.
2. a A moving, flowing, or rushing downward or onward with violence and rapidity; headlong rush. b Quick and hurried action; great hurry; undue, unwise, or rash haste; impetuosity. c The causing to happen hastily, suddenly, or unexpectedly; hastening; acceleration.
3. Chem. Act or process of precipitating from a solution; also, a precipitate.
4. Meteorol. A deposit on the earth of hail, mist, rain, sleet, or snow; also, the quantity of water deposited. Deposits of dew, fog, and frost are not regarded by the United States Weather Bureau as precipitation. Sleet and snow are melted.
5. Spiritualism. Materialization.
pre-cip'i-ta'tive (prē-sĭp'ĭ-tā'tĭv), adj. Tending to or inducing precipitation.
pre-cip'i-ta'tor (prē-sĭp'ĭ-tā'tĕr), n. [LL. praecipitator an overthrower.] One who or that which precipitates; specif.: a One who or that which precipitates some act or event; a hastener. b An operator of a precipitating machine. c Chem. & Physics. A precipitant; specif., an apparatus for causing precipitation.
pre-cip'i-tin (prē-sĭp'ĭ-tĭn), n. [See PRECIPITATE; -IN.] Immunol. A specific antibody developed in response to inoculations of a foreign protein and characterized by causing at first turbidity and later a flocculent precipitate when added to a clear filtrate or solution of its specific precipitinogen.
pre-cip'i-tin'o-gen (-tĭn'ō-jĕn), n. [See PRECIPITIN; -GEN a.] Immunol. Any protein (bacterial, plant, or animal) which, acting as an antigen, stimulates the production of a specific precipitin. — pre-cip'i-tin'o-gen'ic (-jĕn'ĭk), adj.
pre-cip'i-tous (prē-sĭp'ĭ-tŭs), adj. [Obs. F. précipiteux. See PRECIPICE.] 1. Steep like, or of the nature of, a precipice; consisting of, or characterized by, precipices; as, a precipitous cliff.
2. Dashing or rushing headlong; violently hurrying or hurried; precipitate. Rare.
3. Falling very quickly; very rapid; abrupt.
4. Hasty; rash; sudden; precipitate. Mrs. Browning.
Syn. — PRECIPITOUS, PRECIPITATE. PRECIPITOUS, in ordinary usage, denotes a physical quality only (see ABRUPT); as, a precipitous descent; PRECIPITATE applies to impulses or actions, which it characterizes as headlong, overhasty, or rash.
A granite basin, with steep and precipitous sides. G. Borrow.
A precipitate return to the house. T. L. Peacock.
Ant. — Gradual, slight, gentle, deliberate.
— pre-cip'i-tous-ly, adv. — pre-cip'i-tous-ness, n.
pré-cis' (prā-sē' or, esp. Brit., prā'sē, prĕs'ē), n. sing. & pl. [F. See PRECISE.] 1. A concise epitome or abstract, as of a book or a case; a brief summary of essential points, statements, or facts; as, a précis of French history.
2. Act or practice of writing such statements. Rare.
pré-cis' (prā-sē'; prā'sē; prĕs'ē), v. t.; PRÉ-CISED' (prā-sēd'; prā'sēd; prĕs'ēd); PRÉ-CIS'ING (prā-sē'ĭng; prā'sē'ĭng; prĕs'-ē-ĭng). To make a précis of; to summarize.
pre-cise' (prē-sīs'), adj. [F. précis, fr. L. praecisus cut off, brief, concise, past part. of praecidere to cut off in front, to cut off, fr. prae before + caedere to cut. See CONCISE.] 1. a Having determinate limitations; exactly or sharply defined or stated; definite; exact; not vague or equivocal; distinct; as, precise rules of conduct; a precise voice.
The law in this point is not precise. Bacon.
b Of tools or instruments, exact; accurate; as, a precise balance, rule, or liter measure, etc.
2. Strictly conforming to rule or usage; very nice; punctilious; scrupulous; ceremonious; sometimes, overnice; very strict, esp. as to religious observance; formerly, puritanical. "Precise in promise keeping." Shak.
3. Exact in statement, distinction, identification, or the like; minutely exact; as, a precise definition; the precise moment of departure.
Syn. — Accurate, particular. See CORRECT, adj.
Ant. — Loose, inexact, inaccurate, vague, approximate. pre-cise' (prē-sīs'), v. t.; -CISED' (-sīst'); -CIS'ING (-sīs'ĭng). [F. préciser.] To make precise; to state, define, or determine exactly or strictly; to particularize. Rare.
pre-cise', adv. Precisely. Obs.
pre-cise'ly, adv. In a precise manner; exactly; expressly; definitely; also, punctiliously.
pre-cise'ness, n. 1. Quality of being precise; definiteness.
2. Strictness in propriety or religious observance; puritanical scrupulousness. "Prejudiced preciseness." Yonge.
Syn. — See PRECISION.
pre-ci'sian (prē-sĭzh'ăn), n. One rigidly or ceremoniously exact in observing rules or forms; a very punctilious person, esp. in religious observance; a formalist; — formerly applied to the English Puritans. — pre-ci'sian, adj.
pre-ci'sian-ism (-Iz'm), n. Quality or state of being a precisian; practice of a precisian; specif., Puritanism.
pre-ci'sian-ist (-Ĭst), n. A precisian. pre-ci'sion (prē-sĭzh'ŭn), n. Prescinding; abstraction; also, reservation. Cf. PRESCISSION. Obs.
pre-ci'sion (prē-sĭzh'ŭn), n. [F. or L.; F. précision, fr. L. praecisio a cutting off. See PRECISE.] 1. Quality or state of being precise; exact limitation; exactness; accuracy; definiteness; also, Obs., an instance of this; a nicety.
I have left out the utmost precisions of fractions. Locke.
2. A precise or exact definition. Obs.
Syn. — PRECISION, PRECISENESS. PRECISION is commonly used in a good sense (cf. CORRECT, adj.); as, precision of thought or expression, precision in military evolutions. PRECISENESS is often used disparagingly, with the connotation of primness or excessive punctilio; as, "Savoring of Puritanism and overstrict preciseness" (Prynne). Cf. NICE, NEAT.
pre-ci'sion (prē-sĭzh'ŭn), adj. Adapted for extremely accurate scientific measurement.
☞ PHRASES are:

precision barometer	precision grinding	precision scale
precision block	precision instrument	precision screw precision caliper	precision lens	precision tool precision clock	precision meter	precision weight precision gauge	precision punch pre-ci'sion-al (-ăl; -l), adj. Having, or pertaining to precision. precision balance. A balance of precision. See BALANCE, n., 1. pre-ci'sion-er (prē-sĭzh'ŭn-ĕr), n. A precisionist. precision gauge block. See GAUGE BLOCK.

pre-ci'sion-ist (prē-sĭzh'ŭn-Ĭst), n. One who professes, practices, or lays great stress upon, precision, as in language or ritual; a purist. precision lathe. Mach. See 2d LATHE, 1.
pre-ci'sive (prē-sī'sĭv), adj. 1. Cutting off, separating, or defining one (thing or person) from all others; as, precisive censure; precisive abstraction.
2. Having, or marked by, precision or exactness.
‖pre-ci'so (prā-chē'sō), adj. [It., precise.] Music. Precise; exact; — a direction regarding time and accent.
pre-clin'i-cal (prē-klĭn'ĭ-kăl), adj. Med. 1. Of or pertaining to the period preceding clinical manifestations; as, the preclinical stage of a disease of slow onset.
2. Of or pertaining to the period preceding the clinical study of medicine; as, the preclinical years, usually the first two years of the prescribed medical course in the United States, devoted to the study of anatomy, physiology, pathology, etc.; preclinical studies.
pre-cli'val (prē-klī'văl), adj. [See PRE-; CLIVUS.] Anat. Designating a fissure on the superior surface of the cerebellum separating the anterior and posterior crescentic lobes, and the culmen and clivus monticuli.
pre-clude' (prē-klōōd'; 242), v. t.; -CLUD'ED (-klōōd'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -CLUD'ING (-klōōd'ĭng). [L. praecludere, praeclusum, fr. prae before + claudere to shut. See CLOSE, v.]
1. To put a barrier before; to close; to shut up; to shut out; to hinder; stop; impede; to close beforehand Valves preclude the blood from entering the veins. E. Darwin.
2. To shut out or obviate by anticipation; to prevent or hinder by necessary consequence or implication; to deter action of, access to, enjoyment of, etc.; to render ineffectual.
This much will obviate and preclude the objections. Bentley.
Syn. and Ant. — See PREVENT.
pre-clu'sion (prē-klōō'zhŭn; 242), n. [L. praeclusio. See PRECLUDE.] Act of precluding, or state of being precluded; a shutting out; prevention by anticipation. pre-clu'sive (-sĭv), adj. Shutting out; precluding, or tending to preclude; preventive (of). — pre-clu'sive-ly, adv.
pre'co-ag'u-la'tion (prē'kō-ăg'ū-lā'shŭn), n. Chemical treatment with a coagulant prior to filtration.
pre-co'cial (prē-kō'shăl), adj. [See PRAECOCES.] Zool. Designating birds whose young are covered with down and are able to run about when newly hatched; — opp. to altricial.
pre-co'cious (-shŭs), adj. [L. praecox, -ocis, fr. praecoquere to cook or ripen beforehand, fr. prae before + coquere to cook. See COOK; cf. APRICOT.] 1. Flowering or fruiting early or before the usual time; early or prematurely ripe or developed; — said of plants, etc. Rare.
2. a Exceptionally early in development; — used esp. of mental forwardness; as, a precocious child, precocious talents. b Prematurely developed; too forward in some respect. c Of, pertaining to or suggesting, precocity.
Syn. — See PREMATURE. Ant. — Backward, tardy.
— pre-co'cious-ly, adv. — pre-co'cious-ness, n.
pre-coc'i-ty (prē-kŏs'ĭ-tĭ), n.; pl. -TIES (-tĭz). [F. précocité.] Quality or state of being precocious; as: a Of plants, early flowering or ripeness; untimely ripeness. b Exceptionally early or premature development; esp., early development of the mental powers; forwardness. c Rare. Something embodying this, as a precocious child.
pre-cog'i-tate (prē-kŏj'ĭ-tāt), v. t. [L. praecogitatus, past part. of praecogitare.] To premeditate. Obs. — pre-cog'i-ta'tion (-tā'shŭn), n. Rare.
pre'cog-ni'tion (prē'kŏg-nĭsh'ŭn), n. [LL. praecognitio, fr. praecognoscere to foreknow; cf. obs. F. précognition. See PRE-; COGNITION.] 1. Previous cognition; foreknowledge.
2. Scots Law. An ex parte preliminary examination, esp. in a criminal case; also, the evidence so taken.
pre-cog'ni-tive (prē-kŏg'nĭ-tĭv), adj. Giving precognition.
pre'cog-nize' (prē'kŏg-nīz'), v. t. To know beforehand.
pre'cog-nosce' (-nŏs'), v. t. [L. praecognoscere to foreknow.] Scots Law. To examine in the proceeding of precognition.
pre'-Co-lum'bi-an, adj. Preceding, or belonging to the time before, the discovery of America by Columbus.
pre-com'mis-sure (prē-kŏm'ĭ-shŏŏr), n. The anterior commissure of the brain. See COMMISSURE, 2 c. — pre'-com-mis'su-ral (prē'kŏ-mĭsh'ū-răl; -kŏm'ĭ-sū'răl), adj.
pre'com-mun'ion (prē'kŏ-mūn'yŭn), n. The antecommunion. pre'com-pose' (prē'kŏm-pōz'), v. t.; -POSED' (-pōzd'); -POS-ING (-pōz'ĭng). To compose beforehand. — pre'com-po-si'tion (prē'kŏm-pō-zĭsh'ŭn), n. pre'con-ceive' (prē'kŏn-sēv'), v. t.; -CEIVED' (-sēvd'); -CEIV'-ING (-sēv'ĭng). To conceive, or form an opinion of, beforehand; to form a previous notion or idea of.
pre'con-ceived' (-kŏn-sēvd'), adj. Conceived or formed beforehand; — chiefly in the phrase preconceived idea pre'cious-ly (prĕsh'ŭs-lĭ), adv. of PRECIOUS. pre'cious-ness, n. See -NESS. pre-cip'it, n. [Cf. MF. precipite, n., F. précipiter, v.] Precipice. Obs.

---

pre-cip'i-ta-ble (prē-sĭp'ĭ-tă-b'l), adj. Chem. See -ABLE. — pre-cip'i-ta-bil'i-ty (-tă-bĭl'ĭ-tĭ), n.
pre-cip'i-tate-ly, adv. of PRECIPITATE.
pre-cip'i-tate-ness, n. See -NESS. prec'i-pi'tious (prĕs'ĭ-pĭsh'ŭs), adj. [See PRECIPICE.] Precipitous; also, precipitate. — prec'i-pi'tious-ly, adv. — prec'i-pi'tious-ness, n. All Obs.
pre-cir'cu-late, v. t. & i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'cir-cu-la'tion, n.
pre-cl'sion-ism, n. See -ISM.
pre-cl'sion-ize, v. t. See -IZE.
pre-cite' (prē-sīt'), v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'cit-a'tion, n. — pre-cit'ed, adj. [2.
pre-civ'i-li-za'tion, adj. See PRE-, pre-claim' v. t. & n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre-claim'ant, n. — pre-claim'er, n.
pre-clare', pre-clair', adj. [L. praeclarus.] Pre-eminent; illustrious. Obs. [See PRE-, 2.
pre-clas'sic, pre-clas'si-cal, adj.
pre-clas'si-fy, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'clas-si-fi-ca'tion, n. — pre-clas'si-fied, adj.
pre-clean', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre-clean'er, n. — pre-clean'ing, n.
pre-cler'i-cal, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. pre-clo-a'cal, adj. See PRE-, 1 b. pre-close', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre-clo'sure, n.
pre-clothe', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. pre-clud'a-ble, adj. See -ABLE.
pre-clu'siv. Preclusive. Ref. Sp. pre'coc-cyg'e-al, adj. See PRE-, 1 b. pre-coce', adj. [F. précoce.] Precocious. Obs. — n. A plant that flowers early. Obs. pre'co-ces. Var. of PRAECOCES. pre'co-e-ta'ne-an, n. One contemporary with, but older than, another. Obs.
pre-cog'ni-za-ble, adj., pre-cog'ni-zant, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. pre-coil', v. i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre-coil'er, n. pre'co-in'ci-dence, n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'co-in'ci-dent, adj. — pre'co-in'ci-dent-ly, adv.
pre-col-lapse', n. & v. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'col-laps'a-ble, adj. pre'col-lect', v. t., pre'col-lect'a-ble, adj., pre'col-lec'tion, n., pre'col-lec'tor, n. See PRE-, 1 a. pre-col'lege, n. & adj., pre'col-le'gi-ate, adj. See PRE-, 2 & 3. pre'col-lu'sion, n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'col-lude', v. i. — pre'col-lu'sive, adj.
pre-col'or, pre-col'our, n. & v. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre-col'or-a-ble, -col'our-a-ble, adj. — pre'col-or-a'tion, -col-our-a'tion, n. — pre-col'or-ing, -col'our-ing, n.
pre-com'bat, n. & v. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre-com'bat-ant, n.
pre-com-bine', v. t. & i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'com-bi-na'tion, n. [a. pre'com-bus'tion, n. See PRE-, 1 pre'com-bus'tion en'gine. See INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINE. pre'com-mand', n. & v., pre'com-mend', v. t., pre-com'ment, n. & v. See PRE-, 1 a. [2. pre'com-mer'cial, adj. See PRE-, pre'com-mit', v. t., pre-com'mune, n., pre'com-mu'ni-cant, n. i. & i., pre'com-mu'ni-ca'tion, n., pre'com-pare', v. t. — pre'-com-par'i-son, n., pre-com'pass, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. pre-com'pass, n. See PRE-, 2. pre'com-pel', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'com-pul'sion, n.
pre-com'pen-sate, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'com-pen-sa'tion, n. pre'com-pile', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'com-pi-la'tion, n. — pre'-com-pil'er, n. pre'com-ple'tion, n. See PRE-, 2. — pre'com-plete'ness, n. pre'com-pli'ance, n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'com-pli'ant, adj.
pre-com'pli-cate, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre-com'pli-ca'tion, n.
pre'com-pound', n., adj., & v., pre'com-pound'ing, n., pre-com'pound-ly, adv., pre'com-pre-hend', v. t., pre'com-pre-hen'sion, n., pre'com-pre-hen'sive, adj., pre'com-press', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. pre-com'rade-ship, n. See PRE-, 2. pre'con-ceal', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'con-ceal'ment, n. pre'con-cede', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'con-ces'sion, n. — pre'-con-ces'sive, adj. pre'con-ceit' (-kŏn-sēt'), n. A preconception. Obs. pre'con-ceit'ed, adj. Preconceived. Obs. [-ABLE.] pre'con-cei'v'a-ble, adj. See or notion, an opinion formed without adequate evidence or through prejudice, and not easily to be changed by new evidence.

pre·con′cept (prē·kŏn′sĕpt), n. A rudimentary idea, intermediate between an ordinary recept and a fully developed concept. Rare.

pre′con·cep′tion (prē′kŏn·sĕp′shŭn), n. Act or an instance of preconceiving; a conception or opinion previously formed. Hence, a prejudice; a prepossession.

pre′con·cep′tu·al (-sĕp′tū·ăl), adj. 1. Of or pertaining to a preconception.
2. Preceding or antedating a conception. Rare.

pre′con·cert′ (-sûrt′), v. t.; -CERT′ED; -CERT′ING. To concert or arrange beforehand; to settle by prior agreement.

pre·con′cert (prē·kŏn′sûrt), n. Something prearranged; a previous agreement or arrangement.

pre′con·cert′ed (prē′kŏn·sûr′tĕd; -tĭd; 119), adj. Previously arranged. — pre·con′cert′ed·ly, adv. — pre′con·cert′ed·ness, n.

pre·con′cer′tion (-sûr′shŭn), n. Preconcert. Rare.

pre′con·cer′tive (-sûr′tĭv), adj. Preconcerting. Rare.

pre′co·ni·za′tion (prē′kō·nĭ·zā′shŭn; -nĭ·zā′shŭn), n. [ML. praeconizatio, fr. praeconizare to proclaim, fr. L. praeco, -onis, a crier, a herald; cf. F. préconisation.] 1. A publishing by proclamation; a public proclamation.
2. R.C.Ch. A formal proclamation by the Pope in consistory of a person nominated to an ecclesiastical dignity.

pre′co·nize (prē′kō·nīz), v. t.; -NIZED (-nīzd); -NIZ′ING (-nīz′ĭng). [ML. praeconizare; cf. F. préconiser.] 1. To proclaim publicly; to publish; also, to commend publicly.
2. To summon publicly or by name.
3. R.C.Ch. Of the Pope, to approve by preconization.

pre′co·niz′er (prē′kō·nīz′ĕr), n. One who preconizes.

pre·con′quest (prē·kŏng′kwĕst; -kŏn′-), adj. Preceding, or belonging to times before the conquest of a country or people, esp., written pre′—Con′quest, before the Norman Conquest (1066).

pre′con·ques′tal (prē′kŏn·kwĕs′tăl; -t′l), adj. Preconquest.

pre′con·ques′tu·al (-tū·ăl), adj. Preconquest.

pre·con′scious (prē·kŏn′shŭs), adj. Psychoanalysis. Not present in consciousness but capable of being recalled without encountering any inner resistance or repression. See CENSORSHIP, 3.

pre·con′scious, n. — pre·con′scious·ly, adv. — pre·con′scious·ness, n.

pre′con·sign′ (prē′kŏn·sīn′), v. t.; -SIGNED′ (-sīnd′); -SIGN′ING. To consign beforehand. a Theol. Obs. To signify or symbolize beforehand. b To make a previous consignment of.

pre′con·so·nan′tal (prē′kŏn·sō·năn′tăl; -t′l), adj. Immediately preceding a consonant.

pre·con′tact (-kŏn′tăkt), adj. Anthropol. Pertaining to aborigines before their contact with civilization.

pre′con·tract′ (prē′kŏn·trăkt′), adj. Precontracted. Poetic.

pre′con·tract′ (prē′kŏn·trăkt′), v. t. & i.; -TRACT′ED; -TRACT′ING. To contract, engage, or stipulate previously.

pre·con′tract (prē·kŏn′trăkt; formerly also prē′kŏn·trăkt′, as in Shakespeare), n. A contract preceding another; esp., Law, an informal agreement of marriage made per verba de praesenti. In European law this generally constituted a valid marriage until the Council of Trent declared such contracts illegal; and formerly in English law it gave to either party a right to sue for celebration and rendered void a subsequent marriage celebrated in violation of it.

pre·cool′ (prē·kōōl′), v. t. [pre- + cool.] To cool beforehand; esp., to subject to a process by which the temperature of (fruit or the like) is reduced to a certain temperature before shipment. — pre·cool′er (-ĕr), n.

pre·cool′ing (-ĭng), n. Artificial cooling of fruit or other perishable commodities before placing in refrigerator cars.

pre·cor′a·coid (prē·kôr′ă·koid), adj. Zool. a Pertaining to or designating an anterior and ventral bony or cartilaginous element of the shoulder girdle in front of the coracoid proper. It occurs in many amphibians and reptiles, being often represented in the latter by a process of the coracoid. The clavicle is often closely united with it or replaces it. b The mesocoracoid of a fish. — pre·cor′a·coid, n.

pre·cor′di·a (prē·kôr′dĭ·ă), n. [NL., fr. pre- + L. cor, cordis, heart.] Anat. The part of the ventral wall of the trunk lying over the heart and stomach.

pre·cor′dial (prē·kôr′jăl; -kôrd′yăl; -dĭ·ăl), adj. [Cf. F. précordial.] Anat. Situated in front of the heart.

pre·cor′dial (prē·kôr′jăl; -kôrd′yăl; -dĭ·ăl), adj. Very cordial; also, very comforting. — pre′cor·dial′i·ty (prē′-kôr·jăl′ĭ·tĭ; -kôr·dĭ·ăl′-), n. — pre·cor′dial·ly, adv.

precordial anxiety. Med. See ANXIETY, a.

precordial pain. Med. Pain in the precordial region, a symptom in angina pectoris.

precordial region. a The region of the chest overlying the heart. b The epigastrium.

pre·cor′nu (prē·kôr′nū), n. [NL.] Anat. The anterior cornu of the lateral ventricle. See LATERAL VENTRICLE pre·cos′tal (-kŏs′tăl; -t′l), adj. Zool. Designating the short curved costal vein of the hind wings of most butterflies.

pre·course′ (prē·kôrs′; 181), v. t. [L. praecursus, past part. of praecurrere.] To run before; forerun; herald.

pre·cursor′, n. [L. praecursus, n.] Antecedent action. Obs.

pre′cox (prē′kŏks), adj. [NL., fr. L. praecox.] Psychiatry. Precocious; developing early. See DEMENTIA PRAECOX.

pre·crit′i·cal (prē·krĭt′ĭ·kăl), adj. [See PRE-; CRITICAL.] Med. Preceding a crisis; as, a precritical rise in the temperature of a patient.

pre·cru′ral (prē·krōōr′ăl), adj. Zool. In front of the leg or thigh.

pre·cu′ne·us (prē·kū′nē·ŭs), n. [NL., fr. pre- + cuneus.] Anat. The quadrate lobe of the brain. — pre·cu′ne·al (-ăl), adj. — pre·cu′ne·ate (-āt), adj.

pre·cur′rent (-kûr′ĕnt), adj. [L. praecurrens, -entis, pres. part.] 1. Forerunning.
2. Zool. Extending forward.

pre·cur′rer (-ĕr), n. Precursor. Obs.

pre·cur′sal (prē·kûr′săl), adj. Of or pert. to a precursor.

pre·curse′ (prē·kûrs′), v. t. [L. praecursus, past part. of praecurrere.] To run or happen before; herald.

pre·curse′, n. A forerunning. Obs.

pre·cur′sive (-kûr′sĭv), adj. Precursory; also, prognosticative.

pre·cur′sor (prē·kûr′sĕr), n. [L. praecursor, fr. praecurrere to run before, fr. prae before + currere to run. See COURSE.] 1. a One who or that which runs before, or precedes an event and indicates its approach; a forerunner; a harbinger. b One who precedes in some office or condition. c [cap.] John the Baptist.
2. Chem. A compound from which another compound is formed, esp. by natural processes; as, ethyl alcohol is the precursor of acetic acid in the formation of vinegar. Cf. ZYMOGEN.
3. [cap.] Irish Politics. One of those who were about ready to become Repealers;—from the name (Precursor Society) of a popular organization formed by O'Connell. Hist.
Syn. — See FORERUNNER.

pre·cur′so·ry (prē·kûr′sō·rĭ), adj. [L. praecursorius.] Of the nature of a precursor; preceding; preliminary; also, premonitory or indicating as a harbinger; as, precursory symptoms of a fever.

pred′a·ble (prĕd′ă·b'l), adj. [ML. praedabilis.] That may be preyed on. Obs.

pre·da′cean (prē·dā′shăn), n. [See PREDACIOUS.] A carnivorous animal.

pre·da′ceous (-shŭs), adj. Also pre·da′cious (prē·dā′-shŭs), adj. [L. praeda prey. See PREDATORY.] Living by preying on other animals; predatory; pertaining to predatory animals; as, predaceous instincts. — pre·da′ceous·ness, pre·da′cious·ness, n.

pre·dac′i·ty (prē·dăs′ĭ·tĭ), n.; pl. -TIES (-tĭz). Predacious quality or state.

pre′—Dar·win′i·an, adj. Pertaining to the period or to the beliefs prevalent prior to the enunciation of the Darwinian theory. — n. One who holds pre-Darwinian beliefs. — pre′—Dar·win′i·an·ism, n.

pre·date′ (prē·dāt′), v. t. 1. a To antedate, as a deed. b To attribute (something) to a date anterior to the true time.
2. To precede in date; to be earlier in time than.

pre·da′tion (prē·dā′shŭn), n. [L. praedatio, fr. praedari to plunder.] Depredation.

pred′a·tism (prĕd′ă·tĭz′m), n. [predatory + -ism.] Act, state, or fact of being predatory; — used esp. of animals which kill and eat their prey, as contrasted with parasitism.

pred′a·tive (-tĭv), adj. Predatory.

pred′a·tor (prĕd′ă·tĕr), n. [L. praedator.] One who or that which is predatory.

pred′a·to′ry (prĕd′ă·tō′rĭ or, esp. Brit., -tĕr·ĭ), adj. [L. praedatorius, fr. praedator plunderer, fr. praedari to plunder, fr. praeda prey. See PREY.] 1. Of, pertaining to, or characterized by, plundering, as predatory instincts; practicing rapine; given to plundering or robbery; plundering; pillaging; as, a predatory excursion or party.
2. Destructive; consumptive; injurious. Obs.
[Exercise] maketh the spirits more hot and predatory. Bacon.
3. a Living by preying upon other animals; predaceous. b Destructive; damaging (crops, buildings, etc.) by consumption; as, predatory insects or birds.
— pred′a·to′ri·ly (68), adv. — pred′a·to′ri·ness, n.

pre·daz′zite (prē·dăt′sīt; -dăz′ĭt), n. [From Predazzo, No. Italy.] Petrog. A crystalline limestone composed of calcite and brucite. It is very similar to pencatite but contains less brucite.

pre′de·cay′ (prē′dē·kā′), n. Premature decay.

pre′de·cease′ (prē′dē·sēs′), v. t. & i.; -DE·CEASED′ (-sēst′); -DE·CEAS′ING (-sēs′ĭng). To die before (someone, or, very rarely, some happening).

pre′de·cease′, n. Prior decease.

pre′de·ceas′er (prē′dē·sēs′ĕr), n. One who predeceases another.

pre′de·cess′ (-sĕs′), v. t. To be the predecessor of. Obs.

pre′de·ces′sion (prē′dē·sĕsh′ŭn), n. [See PREDECESSOR.] Act or state of preceding, or being a predecessor. Rare.

pred′e·ces′sor (prĕd′ĕ·sĕs′ĕr; prĕd′ē·sĕs′ĕr; or, esp. Brit., prē′dē-; 277), n. [ME. predecessour, fr. OF. predecesseur, fr. LL. praedecessor, fr. prae before + decessor one who withdraws from the province he has governed, as retiring officer, fr. decedere. See DECEASE.] 1. One who or that which precedes; esp., one who has preceded another in any state, position, office, etc.
2. A thing that precedes or has been succeeded; as, this edition is better than its predecessor.
3. An ancestor; progenitor; a forefather.
4. One who goes before; a leader; guide. Obs.
5. One who takes precedence in rank. Obs.
Ant. — Successor, follower.

pre·def′i·nite (prē·dĕf′ĭ·nĭt), adj. Predetermined; Logic, predesignate. — pre′de·fine′ (prē′dē·fīn′), v. t.

pre′def·i·ni′tion (prē′dĕf·ĭ·nĭsh′ŭn), n. Predetermination.

pre·del′la (prē·dĕl′ă; It. prā·dĕl′lä), n.; pl. -LE (-lā). [It.] 1. The step or platform on which an altar is placed; footpace; also, a painting or sculpture on the face of this.
2. A superaltar, retable, or gradin; also, a painting, sculpture, or the like along the front of a superaltar, or forming a border or frame at the foot of an altarpiece; gradino.
3. By extension, a similar appendage to any picture.

pre·den′ta·ry (prē·dĕn′tă·rĭ), adj. Paleontol. Designating a bone in the lower jaw of certain dinosaurs and situated in front of the dentary bones.

pre·den′tate (-tāt), adj. Paleontol. Predentary. — n. A predentary bone.

pre·den′tate, n. Paleontol. One of the Predentata, or Ornithischia.

pre·des′ig·nate (prē·dĕz′ĭg·nāt; -dĕs′-), adj. Logic. a Of a proposition, having the quantity of its subject indicated by a verbal sign, as all, none, etc. b Designated in advance; — applied specif. to a characteristic to be sought among a collection of particulars as a basis for induction.

pre·des′ig·nate (prē·dĕz′ĭg·nāt; prē·dĕs′-), v. t.; -NAT′ED (-nāt′ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -NAT′ING (-nāt′ĭng). 1. To designate beforehand.
2. Logic. To designate the quantity of (a term or proposition) by prefixing a sign of quantity (all; some; no).

pre′des·ig·na′tion (prē′dĕz·ĭg·nā′shŭn), n. 1. Act or an instance of predesignating; a previous selection or appointment.
2. Logic. A sign of quantity prefixed to a proposition or to one of its terms.

pre·des′ti·nar′i·an (prē·dĕs′tĭ·nâr′ĭ·ăn; 79), adj. Of or pertaining to predestination; holding or supporting the doctrine of predestination.

pre·des′ti·nar′i·an, n. 1. One who believes in or supports the doctrine of predestination, esp. in the theological sense. See PREDESTINATION, n., 2.
2. A fatalist.

pre·des′ti·nar′i·an·ism (-ĭz′m), n. The system or doctrine of the predestinarians; specif., Calvinism.

pre·des′ti·nate (prē·dĕs′tĭ·nāt), adj. [L. praedestinatus, past part. of praedestinare to predestine, fr. prae before + pre·con′cen·trate, v. i. & t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·con′cen·trate, n. — pre·con′cen·trat′ed, adj. — pre·con′cen·trat′ed·ly, adv. — pre·con′cen·tra′tion, n.

---

pre·con′cep′tion·al, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·con′cern′, n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·con′cern′ment, n.

pre·con′ces′sion, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·con′cier′. Preconceive. R.S.

pre·con′clude′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·con′clu′sion, n.

pre·con·cur′, v. i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·con·cur′rence, n.

pre·con·cur′rent, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·con·cur′rent·ly, adv.

pre·con·demn′, v. t., pre′con·dem·na′tion (-kŏn·dĕm·nā′-shŭn), n., pre·con·den·sa′tion, n., pre·con·dense′, v. t. & i., pre·con·di′tion (-kŏn·dĭsh′ŭn), n., pre·con·di′tioned (-ŭnd), adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·con·duct′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·con·duc′tion, n. — pre′-con·duc′tor, n.

pre·con·dy·lar, pre·con′dy·loid, adj. See PRE-, 1 b.

pre·con·fer′, v. i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·con′fer·ence, n.

pre·con·fess′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·con·fes′sion, n. [1 a.] pre·con·fide′, v. t. & i. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·con·fig′u·ra′tion, n., pre′-con·fig′ure, v. t., pre·con·fine′, v. t., pre·con·fin′ed·ly, adv., pre′-con·fine′ment, n., pre′con·firm′, v. t., pre·con·fir·ma′tion, n., pre·con·flict′, v. t. & n., pre′-con·form′, v. t. & i., pre·con·form′i·ty, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′con·found′, v. t., pre′con·fuse′, v. t., pre·con·fus′ed·ly, adv., pre·con·fu′sion, n., pre′-con·ge′ni·al, adj., pre·con·gest′-ed, adj., pre·con·ges′tion, n., pre·con·ges′tive, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′con·grat′u·late, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′con·grat′u·la′-tion, n.

pre′-Con′gre·ga′tion·al·ist, n. & adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre′-Con′gress, n. See PRE-, 2.

— pre′con·gres′sion·al, adj.

pre·con′i·zance (prē·kŏn′ĭ·zăns), n. = PRECONIZATION, 1. [1 a.] pre·con·jec′ture, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·con·nec′tion, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

— pre·con·nec′tive, n. & adj.

pre·con·nu′bi·al, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·con·quer, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·con·se·crate, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·con·se·cra′tion, n.

pre·con·sent′, n. & v. i. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·con·sid′er, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·con·sid′er·a′tion, n.

pre·con·sole′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·con·so·la′tion, n.

pre·con·sol′i·date, v. t. & i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·con·sol′i·dat′ed, adj. — pre·con·sol′i·da′tion, n.

pre·con·spir′a·cy, n. See PRE-, 2. — pre·con·spir′a·tor, n. — pre′-con·spire′, v. i. & i.

pre·con·sti·tute, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·con·stit′u·ent, n.

pre·con·struct′, v. t., pre·con·struc′tion, n., pre·con·sult′, v. i. & i., pre·con·sul·ta′tion, n., pre·con·sul′tor, n., pre·con·sume′, v. t., pre·con·sum′er, n., pre·con·sump′tion, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·con·tain′, v. t., pre′con·tained′, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·con·temn′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·con·tem·plate, v. t. & i., pre·con·tem·pla′tion, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

— pre·con·tem′po·ra′ne·ous, adj., pre·con·tem′po·rar′y, n. & adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·con·tend′, v. i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·con·ten′tion, n.

pre·con·tent′, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·con·tent′ly, adv. — pre′-con·tent′ment, n.

pre·con·test, n., pre·con·test′, v. t. [PRE-, 1 a.] pre·con·ti·nen′tal, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·con·trac′tive, adj., pre·con·trac′tu·al, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·con·trib′ute, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·con·tri·bu′tion, n. — pre·con·trol′ler·ess, adj.

pre·con·triv′ance (prē′kŏn·trīv′-ăns), n., pre·con·trive′, v. t. & i. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·con·trol′, n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·con·trolled′, adj.

pre·con·tro·ver′sy, n. See PRE-, 2. — pre′con·tro·ver′sial, adj.

pre·con·ven′tion, n. See PRE-, 2.

pre·con·ver·sa′tion, n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·con·ver·sa′tion·al, adj.

pre·con·vert′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·con·ver′sion, n.

pre·con·vey′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·con·vey′al, n. — pre·con·vey′ance, n.

pre·con·vict′, v. t., pre·con·vic′tion, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·con·vince′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·co′ny, n. [L. praeconium.] Public praise; extolment. Obs.

pre·cook′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·cook′er, n.

pre′·Co·per′ni·can, adj. See PRE-, 2. — pre′·Co·per′ni·can·ism, n.

pre·cop′y, n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·cor′di·um (prē·kôr′dĭ·ŭm), n. [NL.] = PRECORDIA.

pre·cor′ne·al, adj. See PRE-, 1 b.

pre·cor·o·na′tion, n. See PRE-, 2.

pre′cor·rect′, adj. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′cor·rec′tion, n. — pre′cor·rect′ly, adv. — pre′-cor·rect′ness, n.

pre′cor·res·pond′, v. i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′cor·res·pond′ence, n. — pre′cor·res·pond′ent, adj.

pre·cor′ri·dor, n. See PRE-, 1 b.

pre·cor·rupt′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′cor·rup′tion, n. — pre′-cor·rup′tive, adj. — pre′cor·rupt′ly, adv. — -rupt′ness, n.

pre·cos′mic, adj. See PRE-, 2. — pre·cos′mi·cal, adj.

pre·coun′sel, v. & n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·coun′sel·lor, n.

pre·cov′er, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·cov′er·ing, n.

pre·cre·ate′, v. t., pre′cre·a′tion, n., pre′cre·a′tive, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·cred′it, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·cred′i·tor, n.

pre·creed′, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·crit′i·cism, n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·crit′i·cize, v. i.

pre·cru′cial, adj. See PRE-, 1 b.

pre′·Cru·sade′, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·crys′tal·line, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·cule′, n. [F. (Rabelais), dim. fr. L. prex.] A prayer. Obs.

pre·cul′ti·vate, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·cul·ti·va′tion, n.

pre·cul′ture, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·cul′tur·al, adj. — pre·cul′tur·al·ly, adv.

pre·cure′, n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·cur·ric′u·lum, n. See PRE-, 2. — pre·cur·ric′u·lar, adj.

pre·cur′tain, n. See PRE-, 1 b.

pre·cy′clone, n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·cy·clon′ic, adj.

pre·cyn′i·cal, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·cys′tic, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·dam′age, n. & v. i. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·damn′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·dam·na′tion, n.

pre′·Dan′te·an, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·dark′, n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·dark′ness, n.

pre·da′ta, n. pl. See PRE-, 2.

pred′a·ti′tious, adj. [L. praedaticius, praedatilius.] Predatory. Obs.

pred′a·to′ri·ous, adj. Predatory. Obs.

pre·dawn′, n. & v. i. See PRE-, 2.

pre·day′, n., pre·day′light′, n., pre·day′time′, n. See PRE-, 2.

prede, n. & v. i. & i. [L. praeda prey.] Prey; plunder. Obs.

pre·deal′ing, n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·deal′er, n.

pre·death′, n. See PRE-, 2. — pre·death′ly, adj.

pre·de·bate′, n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·de·bat′er, n.

pre·deb′it, n. & v. i. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·debt′or, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·de·ceive′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′de·ceiv′er, n. — pre′de-cep′tion, n.

pre·de·ces′sive, adj. Preceding; previous. Obs.

pred′e·ces′sor·ship, n. See -SHIP.

pre·de·cide′, v. i. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′·de·ci′sion, n. — pre′de-ci′sive, adj.

pre′de·cla·ra′tion, n., pre′de-clare′, v. i., pre′dec·li·na′tion, n., pre′de·cline′, v. i., pre′de-cree′, n., pre′de·cree′, v. i., pre′-ded′i·cate, v. i., pre′ded·i·ca′-tion, n., pre′de·duct′, v. i. — pre′de·duc′tion, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′de·fault′, n. & v. i., pre′de-feat′, n. & v., pre′de·fect′, n., pre′de·fec′tive, adj., pre′de-fence′, n., pre′de·fend′, v. i., pre′de·fense′, n., pre′de·fi′ance, n., pre′de·fi′cien·cy, n., pre′de-fi′cient, adj., n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′de·fray′, v. i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′de·fray′al, n.

pre′de·fy′, v. i. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′de·gen′er·a·cy, n. See PRE-, 2. — pre′de·gen′er·ate, adj.

pre′de·gree′, n. See PRE-, 3.

pre′de·lay′, n. & v. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·del′e·gate, n. & v. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′del·e·ga′tion, n.

pre′de·lib′er·ate, adj. & v. t., pre′de·lib′er·at·e·ly, adv., pre′de-lib′er·a′tion, n., pre′de·lin′e·ate, v. t., pre′de·lin′e·a′tion, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′de·lin′quen·cy, n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′de·lin′quent, adj. — pre′de·lin′quent·ly, adv.

pre′de·liv′er, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′de·liv′er·y, n.

pre′de·lude′, v. i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′de·lu′sion, n.

pre′de·mand′, v. i. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′dem·o·crat′ic, adj. See PRE-, 2. — pre′de·moc′ra·cy, n.

pre′dem′on·strate, v. i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′dem·on·stra′tion, n. — pre′de·mon′stra·tive, adj.

pre·den′tal, adj. Phonet. = INTERDENTAL.

Pre′den·ta′ta (prē′dĕn·tā′tă), n. pl. [NL. See PRE-, 1 b; DENTATE.] Syn. of ORNITHISCHIA.

pre′de·ny′, v. i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′de·ni′al, n.

pre′de·part′, v. i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′de·par′ture, n. [PRE-, 2.]

pre′de·part′ment·tal, adj. See pre′de·pend′ence, n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′de·pend′a·ble, adj. — pre′de·pend′ent, n. & adj.

pre′de·plete′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′de·ple′tion, n.

pre′de·pos′it, n. & v. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′de·pos′i·to′ry, n.

pre′de·pre′ci·ate, v. i. & i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′de·pre′ci·a′-tion, n.

pre′de·pres′sion, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre′de·prive′, v. i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′de·pri·va′tion, n.

pre′de·rive′, v. i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′der·i·va′tive, n.

pre′de·scend′, v. i. & i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′de·scent′, n.

pre′de·scribe′, v. i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′de·scrip′tion, n.

pre′de·sert′, n. See PRE-, 2.

pre′de·sert′, v. i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′de·sert′er, n. — pre′de-ser′tion, n.

pre′de·serve′, v. i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′de·serv′ing, adj.

pre′de·sign′, v. i. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′des′ig·na·to′ry, adj. See 1st -ORY.

pre′de·sir′ous, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′des·o·la′tion, n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′des·o·late, adj. & v. i.

pre′de·spair′, n. & v. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′des′per·ate, adj. [1 a.] pre′des′pi·ca·ble, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′de·spise′, v. i. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′de·spond′, v. i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′de·spond′en·cy, n. — pre′de·spond′ent, adj.

pre′des′tin. Predestine. Ref. Sp.

pre′des′ti·na·ble, adj. See -ABLE.

pre′des′ti·nar′y, adj. Predestinarian. Obs.

destinare to determine. See DESTINE.] Predestinated; predestined; foreordained; fated; specif., Theol., foreordained by God's decree or eternal purpose. Archaic. — pre·des′ti·nate·ly, adv.

pre·des′ti·nate (prē·dĕs′tĭ·nāt), v. t.; -NAT′ED (-nāt′ĕd; -ĭd; 119); NAT′ING (-nāt′ĭng). [Cf. PREDESTINE.] To predetermine or foreordain; to predestine; specif., Theol., to appoint or ordain beforehand by divine purpose or decree; to pre-elect.

Whom he did foreknow, he also did predestinate to be conformed to the image of his Son. Rom. viii. 29.

Syn. — Destine, preordain, decree, foredoom.

pre·des′ti·nate, n. Theol. A person predestinated to eternal life.

pre·des′ti·na′tion (prē·dĕs′tĭ·nā′shŭn; prē′dĕs-), n. [LL. praedestinatio; cf. F. prédestination.] 1. Act of predestinating, or state of being predestinated; foreordination; fate; destiny.

I found this book . . . Mark the predestination! Browning.

2. Specif.: Theol. The purpose or decree of God from eternity respecting all events; esp., the preordination of men to everlasting happiness or misery; more esp., preordination to eternal life; election. Cf. REPROBATION; see CALVINISM; SEMI-PELAGIAN, n.; AUGUSTINIANISM.

Calvin's doctrine of predestination . . . includes in it the decree of reprobation. This the Lutheran confessions exclude. G. P. Fisher.

pre·des′ti·na′tion·al (-ăl; -ĭ), adj. Of or pertaining to predestination.

pre·des′ti·na′tion·ist (-ĭst), n. A predestinarian. — pre·des′ti·na′tion·ism (-ĭz′m), n.

pre·des′ti·na′tive (prē·dĕs′tĭ·nā′tĭv), adj. Predestinating. Rare.

pre·des′ti·na′tor (-nā′tĕr), n. [Cf. F. prédestinateur.] 1. One who predestinates.

2. A predestinarian. Obs.

pre·des′tine (prē·dĕs′tĭn), v. t.; -TINED (-tĭnd); -TIN·ING. [Cf. F. prédestiner. See PREDESTINATE.] 1. To destine, decree, determine, appoint, or settle, beforehand; to foreordain; to predestinate; to doom; specif., Theol., to foreordain by divine decree or eternal purpose.

It seemed as though every variety of wretchedness were predestined to the Kalmucks. De Quincey.

2. To foretoken or foretell irrevocably; — a loose use. Obs.

pre·des′ti·ny (-tĭ·nĭ), n. Predestination; fate. Rare.

pre′de·ter′mi·nant (prē′dē·tûr′mĭ·nănt), n. 1. A determinist. Obs.

2. One who or that which predetermines.

pre′de·ter′mi·nant, adj. [LL. praedeterminans, pres. part.] Predetermining. Rare.

pre′de·ter′mi·nate (-nāt), adj. Predetermined. — pre′·de·ter′mi·nate·ly, adv.

pre′de·ter′mi·nate (-nāt), v. t. To predetermine. Obs.

pre′de·ter′mi·na′tion (prē′dē·tûr′mĭ·nā′shŭn), n. [Cf. F. prédétermination.] Act of predetermining, or state of being predetermined; specif.: a A decision made beforehand or before due consideration. b A preordaining of what is to happen; previous appointment. c Theol. Predestination; as, the predetermination of God's will. d A previous tendency or direction (to). e A previous mental determination; a purpose formed beforehand.

pre′de·ter′mi·na′tive (-tûr′mĭ·nā′tĭv; -nə·tĭv), adj. Predetermining.

pre′de·ter′mine (prē′dē·tûr′mĭn), v.; -MINED (-mĭnd); -MIN·ING. [pre- + determine; cf. F. prédéterminer.] Transitive: 1. a Theol. To preordain; predestine. b To determine beforehand; to settle in advance; as, to predetermine the cost of a building.

2. To direct or give a previous tendency (to).

3. To bias; to prejudice; to prepossess.

—, Intransitive: To determine or resolve beforehand.

pre′de·ter′min·er (-mĭn·ĕr), n. One who or that which predetermines.

pre′de·ter′min·ism (-dē·tûr′mĭn·ĭz′m), n. The view that the development of the individual is predetermined by heredity. — pre′de·ter′min·is′tic (-ĭs′tĭk), adj.

pre′de·vote′ (prē′dē·vōt′), adj. Predevoted.

pre′de·vote′, v. t. 1. To devote or assign to beforehand.

2. To predestine; to foreordain.

pre′di·as·tol′ic (prē′dī·ăs·tŏl′ĭk), adj. Physiol. Before the diastole of the heart; as, a prediastolic murmur.

pred′i·a·to′ry (prĕd′ĭ·ə·tō′rĭ; -tōr·ĭ), adj. [L. praediatorius.] Of or pertaining to the sale of land. Obs.

pred′i·ca·ble (prĕd′ĭ·kə·b'l), adj. [Cf. F. prédicable, L. praedicabilis praiseworthy. See PREDICATE.] That may be predicated; affirmable; assertable. — pred′i·ca·bil′i·ty (-bĭl′ĭ·tĭ), pred′i·ca·ble·ness, n. — pred′i·ca·bly, adv.

pred′i·ca·ble, n. 1. That which may be predicated; esp., a general attribute or notion as affirmable of, or applicable to, a class; an attribute.

2. Logic. One of the five most general relations of attributes involved in logical division and predication, namely: genus, species, difference, property, and accident.

pre·dic′a·ment (prē·dĭk′ə·mĕnt; in sense 1, also prĕd′ĭ·kə-), n. [LL. praedicamentum that which is predicated, a quality; cf. F. prédicament. See PREDICATE; cf. PREACHMENT.] 1. The character, status, or classification assigned by a predication. Specif.: = CATEGORY, 1.

2. Condition; situation; state; esp., an unpleasant, unfortunate, or trying position, condition, or situation. "O woeful sympathy, piteous predicament." Shak.

3. Preaching. Obs.

Syn. — PREDICAMENT, PLIGHT, QUANDARY, DILEMMA are here compared in their nontechnical senses. PREDICAMENT and PLIGHT were originally applicable to good as well as bad conditions, but now commonly connote as their modifier "bad," "evil," or the like; predicament applies esp. to situations or positions, plight, to states or conditions, which are unfortunate, trying, or unpleasant; as, "Advice . . . may be of such nature that it will be painful to reject and yet impossible to follow it; and in this predicament I conceive myself to be placed" (Crabbe); "Had I but seen thy picture in this plight, it would have madded me: what shall I do now ? behold thy lively body so?" (Shak.). A QUANDARY is a state of puzzlement or perplexity; a DILEMMA is a perplexing alternative or choice; as, his question put me in a sad quandary; he was confronted by the dilemma of capitulating or starving. Cf. STATE.

pre·dic′a·men′tal (-mĕn′tăl; -tĭ), adj. Of or pert. to a predicament or the predicaments. — -men′tal·ly, adv.

pred′i·cant (prĕd′ĭ·kănt), adj. [L. praedicans, -antis, pres. part. of praedicare. See PREDICATE.] Uttering as an affirmation; preaching; addicted to preaching; as, the Dominicans are a predicant order.

pred′i·cant, n. One who preaches; a preacher; specif.: a A preaching friar; a Dominican. b = PREDIKANT.

pred′i·cate (prĕd′ĭ·kāt), v.; -CAT′ED (-kāt′ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -CAT′ING (-kāt′ĭng). [L. praedicatus, past part. of praedicare to proclaim. See PREACH.] Transitive: 1. a To proclaim; declare; affirm. b To preach. c Obs. To praise; to cry or preach up; to commend.

2. Specif., to assert to be a quality, attribute, or property (of); to affirm (one thing of another); Logic, to affirm of the subject; to make (a term) the predicate; as, to predicate whiteness of snow.

3. To found; to base (upon). See Syn., below.

4. Erroneously, to predict; foretell.

5. To imply; to involve an assertion.

—, Intransitive: To affirm something of another thing; to make an affirmation; to assert; to make a statement.

Syn. — PREDICATE, PREDICT. Predicate is often erroneously used for predict. But PREDICATE applies only to the affirmation of qualities, properties, or attributes, and never has future reference, as predict always does. The use of predicate in the sense of "base," as in "success predicated on efficiency," has no warrant in good usage.

pred′i·cate (prĕd′ĭ·kĭt), adj. [L. praedicatus, past part.] 1. Predicated.

2. Gram. Belonging to the predicate; predicated by a copula, link verb, or other verb of meager notional content; as, a predicate noun or adjective (Tom is captain, is brave, became captain, looked anxious).

pred′i·cate (-kĭt), n. [L. praedicatum, neut. past part.; cf. F. prédicat. See PREDICATE, v.] 1. Logic. That which is affirmed or denied of a subject. In these propositions, "Paper is white," "Ink is not white," whiteness is the predicate affirmed of paper and denied of ink.

2. Gram. The word or words in a sentence or clause which express what is said of the subject. The predicate is formed either by a notional verb, with or without objects or adverbial adjuncts, by a verb of incomplete predication with a complement, or by a copula or link verb with a noun or adjective. Where the predicate includes one or more objects or qualifying adjuncts, the whole predicate phrase is called the complete predicate, in distinction from the simple or kernel predicate word. Predicates may be compound (the pilot looked and listened).

3. An assertory title or appellation, as "Mother of God."

predicate nominative. Gram. A predicate noun or pronoun actually, or viewed as, in the nominative case (Caesar consul erat, Caesar was consul).

predicate objective. Gram. = OBJECTIVE COMPLEMENT.

predicate term. = PREDICATE, n., 1.

pred′i·ca′tion (prĕd′ĭ·kā′shŭn), n. [OF., fr. L. praedicatio.] 1. Act of proclaiming; also, act of preaching; hence, a sermon. Archaic & Scot.

2. Act or instance of predicating; affirmation; assertion. Specif.: a Gram., the expression of action, state, or quality by an element as constituting a predicate term; also, that which is so expressed. b Logic. The affirming something of; esp., assignment of something to a class.

3. Obs. a Praise; laudation. b Proclamation.

4. Erroneously, prediction; a foretelling.

pred′i·ca′tion·al (prĕd′ĭ·kā′shŭn·ăl; -ĭ), adj. Of the nature of a predicate.

pred′i·ca′tive (prĕd′ĭ·kā′tĭv or, esp. Brit., prē·dĭk′ə·tĭv), adj. [L. praedicativus.] 1. Expressing affirmation or predication; affirming; predicating. Specif., Gram.: a Having the force of a predicate. b = PREDICATE, adj., 2.

2. Preaching; sermonizing.

— pred′i·ca′tive·ly, adv.

predicative proposition. Logic. A categorical proposition.

pred′i·ca′tor (prĕd′ĭ·kā′tĕr), n. [F. prédicateur, fr. L. praedicator.] 1. One who or that which predicates or asserts.

2. A preacher; esp., a preaching friar.

pred′i·ca·to′ry (-kə·tō′rĭ or, esp. Brit., -tĕr·ĭ), adj. [Cf. LL. praedicatorius praising.] 1. Of or pertaining to preaching; preaching. Bp. Hall.

2. Marked by being proclaimed or set forth publicly; as, a predicatory absolution (see ABSOLUTION, 4).

pre′di·crot′ic (prē′dī·krŏt′ĭk), adj. Physiol. Preceding the dicrotic wave; designating esp. the pulse wave sometimes seen in a pulse curve or sphygmogram, between the apex of the curve and the dicrotic wave.

pre·dict′ (prē·dĭkt′), v.; -DICT′ED; -DICT′ING. [L. praedictus, past part. of praedicere to predict, fr. prae before + dicere to say, tell. See DICTION; cf. PREDICATE.] Transitive: 1. To mention beforehand or previously. Obs.

2. To tell or declare beforehand; to foretell; as, to predict the exact time of the return of a comet; to prophesy; presage; as, to predict war.

—, Intransitive: To make a prediction; to prophesy.

Syn. — Prognosticate, bode. See FORETELL, PREDICATE.

pre·dict′ (prē·dĭkt′), adj. [L. praedictus, past part.] Predicted. Rare.

pre·dict′, n. A prediction. Obs.

pre·dict′ed fir′ing (prē·dĭk′tĕd; -tĭd; 119). Gun. Firing at a point at which a moving target will arrive at the same time as the projectile, according to predictions made from observations.

pre·dic′tion (prē·dĭk′shŭn), n. [L. praedictio; cf. F. prédiction.] 1. Act of predicting, or foretelling; also, that which is foretold; a prophecy; as, a prediction of evil.

2. Obs. a A portent. Shak. b Something said before.

3. A property in a doctrine, a law, a relation of phenomena, etc., of forecasting the future by indicating probable or necessary results, tendencies, or the like; as, prediction in natural law.

Syn. — Prognostication, foreboding, augury.

pre·dic′tion·al (-ăl; -ĭ), adj. Of or pertaining to prediction; prophetic.

pre·dic′tive (prē·dĭk′tĭv), adj. [L. praedictivus.] 1. Predicting; prophetic.

2. Gram. See PROMISSIVE.

— pre·dic′tive·ly, adv. — pre·dic′tive·ness, n pre·dic′tor (prē·dĭk′tĕr), n. [ML. praedictor.] 1. One who or that which predicts.

2. Astron. See TIDE PREDICTOR.

pre·dic′to·ry (-tō·rĭ), adj. Predictive; prophetic.

pre′di·gest′ (prē′dĭ·jĕst′; prē′dī-), v. t.; -GEST′ED; -GEST′ING. To digest beforehand; to subject to predigestion. Hence, figuratively, to prepare for use; as, to predigest an author's work for school children.

pre′di·ges′tion (-dĭ·jĕs′chŭn), n. 1. Digestion too soon performed; hasty digestion. Obs.

2. Artificial digestion of food (as by enzymatic action) for use in illness or impaired digestion.

pre′di·kant′ (prä′dē·känt′), n. [D.] A preacher; specif., a Dutch Protestant minister.

pre′di·lect′ (prē′dĭ·lĕkt′), pre′di·lect′ed (-lĕk′tĕd; -tĭd), adj. [ML. praedilectus, past part.] Preferred; chosen. R.

pre′di·lec′tion (prē′dĭ·lĕk′shŭn; prĕd′ĭ-), n. [F. prédilection, fr. ML. praediligere to prefer, fr. L. prae before + diligere, dilectum, to love, choose. See DILIGENT.] A previous liking; a prepossession in favor of something; predisposition to choose or like; partiality; preference.

Syn. — Predisposition, bias, propensity, preference. — PREDILECTION, PREPOSSESSION, PREJUDICE agree in the idea of a predisposition either in favor of an object or against it. PREDILECTION implies an inclination to like; as, "For great men I have ever had the warmest predilection" (Carlyle); "natural predilection, re-enforced by theory" (W. Pater); "a predilection for the strange and whimsical" (Coleridge). In present usage, PREPOSSESSION almost always is favorable, PREJUDICE unfavorable. Prepossession implies a readiness to be impressed by an object previous to adequate acquaintance with it; prejudice implies a prejudgment without just grounds or sufficient knowledge; as, "the prepossessions of childhood and youth" (Stewart); "Those materials which the prepossessions of the age compelled him to make use of" (Wordsworth); "He had to contend with the prejudices which centuries of war had engraved in the bosom of the Scottish nation" (Scott); "Prejudice is blind" (Gibbon); "He is either biased in favor of a thing, or prejudiced against it" (T. Hardy); cf. "His figure would prejudice people in his favor" (Gray). Cf. BENT.

pre′dis·po′nent (prē′dĭs·pō′nĕnt), adj. Predisposing. — n. That which predisposes. — pre′dis·po′nen·cy (-nĕn·sĭ), n.

pre′dis·pose′ (prē′dĭs·pōz′), v.; -POSED′ (-pōzd′); -POS′ING (-pōz′ĭng). [pre- + dispose; cf. F. prédisposer.] Transitive: 1. To dispose or incline beforehand; to give a predisposition, or a favorable susceptibility or bias, to; to give a tendency to; to make liable; as, to predispose the mind to friendship; debility predisposes the body to disease.

2. To dispose of or bequeath beforehand.

—, Intransitive: To arrange or make a disposition beforehand.

pre′dis·posed′ (prē′dĭs·pōzd′), adj. Having a predisposition or inclination or tendency to, or toward (something). — pre′dis·pos′ed·ly, adv. — pre′dis·pos′ed·ness (-pōz′·ĕd·nĕs; -ĭd-; -nĭs; 119), n.

pre′dis·po·si′tion (prē′dĭs·pō·zĭsh′ŭn), n. [pre- + disposition.] Act of predisposing, or state of being predisposed; previous inclination, tendency, or propensity; predilection; previous fitness or adaptation; liability; susceptibility; as, a predisposition to anger or disease.

Syn. — Cf. PREDILECTION.

pre′dis·po·si′tion·al (-ăl; -ĭ), adj. Of, pertaining to, or tending to produce predisposition.

pre·dom′i·nance (prē·dŏm′ĭ·năns), n. [Cf. F. prédominance.] 1. Quality or state of being predominant; superiority; ascendancy; prevalence; predomination.

By predominance of thought oppressed. Wordsworth.

2. Astrol. Ascendancy; superiority in influence.

pre·dom′i·nan·cy (-nĕn·sĭ), n. Predominance.

pre·dom′i·nant (-nănt), adj. [Cf. F. prédominant. See PREDOMINATE.] Predominating; having the ascendancy over others; superior, as in strength, influence, authority, or position; prevailing; as, a predominant color.

Syn. — Superior, ruling, reigning, controlling, overruling. See DOMINANT. Ant. — Minor, secondary; underlying.

— pre·dom′i·nant·ly, adv.

---

pre·des′tind. Predestined. Ref. Sp.

pre·des′ti·tute, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′des·ti·tu′tion, n.

pre′de·stroy′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′de·struc′tion, n.

pre′de·tach′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′de·tach′ment, n.

pre′de·tail′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′de·tain′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′de·tain′er, n. — pre′de·ten′tion, n.

pre′de·tect′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′de·tec′tion, n. [Ref. Sp.] pre′de·ter′min. Predetermine.

pre′de·ter′mi·na·ble (prē′dē·tûr′mĭ·nə·b'l), adj. See -ABLE. — pre′de·ter′mi·na·bil′i·ty, n.

pre′de·ter′mind. Predetermined. Ref. Sp.

pre′de·test′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′de·tes·ta′tion, n. [PRE-, 1 a.] pre′det·ri·men′tal, adj. See pre′de·vel′op, v. t. & i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′de·vel′op·ment, n.

pre′de·vise′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′de·vo′tion, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′de·vour′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′di·ag·no′sis, n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′di·ag·nos′tic, adj.

pre′di·al (prē′dĭ·ăl), pre′di·al·ist, pre′di·al′i·ty, etc. Vars. of PREDIAL, etc.

pred′i·ca·bl. Predicable. Ref. Sp.

pred′i·cant·ess, n. A female preacher. Obs.

pre′-Dick·en′si·an, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·dict′a·ble (-dĭk′tə·b'l), adj. See -ABLE. — pre·dict′a·bil′i·ty, pre·dict′a·ble·ness, n. — pre·dict′a·bly, adv.

pre·dic′tate, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′dic·ta′tion, n. [ISAAC.]

Pre·dic′tions. See BICKERSTAFF.

pre·dic′tiv. Predictive. Ref. Sp.

pre·dic′tet, n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·di′e·tar′y, adj.

pre·dif′ter·ent, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·dif′ĭ·cul·ty, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·dil′i·gent, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·dil′i·gent·ly, adv.

pre′di·lu′vi·al, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre′di·lu′vi·an, adj. & n. = ANTEDILUVIAN.

pre′di·min′ish, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′di·min′ish·ment, n. — pre′dim·i·nu′tion, n.

pre·din′ner, n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·dine′, v. t. [PRE-, 2.]

pre′diph·the·rit′ic, adj. See pre′di·plo′ma, n. See PRE-, 3.

pre′dip·lo·mat′ic, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′di·plo′ma·cy, n.

pre′di·rect′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′di·rec′tion, n. — pre′di·rec′tor, n.

pre′dis·ble, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′dis·a·bil′i·ty, n.

pre′dis·ad·van′tage, n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′dis·ad·van·ta′geous, adj. — pre′dis·ad·van·ta′geously, adv.

pre′dis·a·gree′, v. i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′dis·a·gree′ment, n.

pre′dis·a·gree′a·ble, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. [PRE-, 1 a.] pre′dis·ap·point′ment, n. See pre′dis·as′ter, n. See PRE-, 2. — pre′dis·as′trous, adj.

pre′dis·cern′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′dis·cern′ment, n.

pre′dis·charge′, n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·dis′ci·pline, v. t. & n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′dis·close′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′dis·clo′sure, n.

pre′dis·con·tent′, n. & adj. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′dis·con·tent′ed, adj. — pre′dis·con·tent′ment, n.

pre′dis·con·tin′ue, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′dis·con·tin′u·ance, n. — pre′dis·con·tin′u·a′tion, n.

pre·dis′count, v. t. & n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·dis′count·a·ble, adj.

pre·dis′cour·age, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′dis·cour′age·ment, n.

pre′dis·course′, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′dis·cov′er, v. t., pre′dis·cov′er·er, n., pre′dis·cov′er·y, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·dis·cre′tion, n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′dis·cret′, adj. — pre′dis·cre′tion·ar′y, adj.

pre′dis·crim′i·nate, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′dis·crim′i·na′tor, n. — pre′dis·crim′i·na′tion, n.

pre′dis·cuss′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′dis·cus′sion, n.

pre′dis·grace′, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·dis·guise′, n. & v., pre′dis·gust′, n. & v. t., pre′dis·like′, n. & v. t.

pre′dis·miss′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′dis·mis′sal, n. — pre′dis·mis′so·ry, adj.

pre′dis·or′der, n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′dis·or′dered, adj. — pre′dis·or′der·ly, adv.

pre′dis·patch′, n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′dis·patch′er, n.

pre′dis·perse′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′dis·per′sion, n.

pre′dis·place′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′dis·place′ment, n. [1 a.] pre′dis·play′, n. & v. t. See PRE-, pre′dis·pos′a·ble, adj. See -ABLE.

pre′dis·pos′al, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′dis·pute′, n. & v. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·dis′pu·tant, n. — pre′dis·pu·ta′tion, n. [PRE-, 1 a.] pre′dis·re·gard′, n. & v. t. See pre′dis·rupt′, v. t. See PRE-, 2. — pre′dis·rup′tion, n.

pre′dis·sat′is·fac′tion, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′dis·so·lu′tion, n., pre′dis·solve′, v. t., pre′dis·suade′, v. t.

pre′dis·tinct′, adj., pre′dis·tinc′tion, n., pre′dis·tin′guish, v. t., pre′dis·tress′, n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·dis·trib′ute, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′dis·trib′u·tor, n. — pre′dis·tri·bu′tion, n.

pre′dis·trict, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′dis·trust′, n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′dis·trust′ful, adj.

pre′dis·turb′, v. t., — pre′dis·turb′ance, n., pre′di·ver′sion, n., pre′di·ver′t, v. t., pre′di·vide′, v. t., — pre′di·vid′er, n., — pre′di·vi′sion, n., pre′div′i·de·nd, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′di·vin′a·ble, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre′di·vine′, v. t. & i. [L. praedivinare; cf. obs. F. prédiviner.] To divine; presage. Obs. — pre′di·vi·na′tion, n. Obs.

pre′di·vin′i·ty, n. See PRE-, 2.

pre′di·vorce′, n. & v. t. & i. See PRE-, 2. — pre′di·vorce′ment, n.

pre·doc′tor·ate, n. See PRE-, 2.

pre′doc·u·men′ta·ry, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre′do·mes′tic, adj. See PRE-, 1 pre·dom′i·nant (prē·dŏm′ĭ·nănt), n. 1. One who or that which predominates.

2. A chief or besetting sin. Obs.
3. Biol. A dominant.

pre·dom′i·nate (prē·dŏm′ĭ·nāt), v.; -NAT′ED (-nāt′ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -NAT′ING (-nāt′ĭng). [pre- + dominate; cf. F. prédominer.] Intransitive: 1. To be superior, as in strength, influence, authority, or position; to have ascendancy or controlling influence; to prevail; to rule; to have the mastery; as, love predominated in her heart.
2. To exceed in number; preponderate.
3. Astrol. To be in ascendancy; to rule.
——, Transitive: To rule or prevail over; to control.

pre·dom′i·nate (-nāt), adj. Predominant. Rare. — pre·dom′i·nate·ly, adv.

pre·dom′i·na′tion (prē·dŏm′ĭ·nā′shŭn), n. Act or state of predominating; predominance. Specif., Astrol., ascendancy.

pre·dom′i·na′tor (-dŏm′ĭ·nā′tĕr), n. One who or that which predominates.

pre′–Dra·vid′i·an (prē′drȧ·vĭd′ĭ·ăn), pre′–Dra·vid′ic (-ĭk), adj. [See PRE-.] Designating a people or culture, chiefly in India, prior to the period of the Dravidians.

pre·dread′nought′ (prē·drĕd′nôt′), n. Nav. The heaviest type of battleship carrying mixed-caliber batteries, preceding the dreadnought. See DREADNOUGHT, n., 3.

pre′dy·nas′tic (prē′dĭ·năs′tĭk; -dĭ-), adj. Before the period of dynasties; specif., pertaining to that period in the history of ancient Egypt before the time of Menes and the establishment of the 1st dynasty (about 3400 B.C.).

pree (prē), n. & v. [For preve to prove. Oxf. E. D. See PROVE.] Taste; try; prove. Chiefly Scot. pree the mouth of. To kiss. Chiefly Scot.

pre′–ec·lamp′si·a (prē′ĕk·lămp′sĭ·ȧ), n. [NL.] Med. A morbid state preceding and leading to eclampsia. — pre′–ec·lamp′tic (-tĭk), adj.

pre′–ef·fi′cient (prē′ĕ·fĭsh′ĕnt; -′nt; -ĭ-), n. Biol. A predisposing cause.

pre′–ef·fi′cient, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′–ef·fi′cien·cy (-ĕn·sĭ; -′n·sĭ), n. — pre′–ef·fi′cient·ly, adv.

pre′–e·lec′tion (prē′ē·lĕk′shŭn), n. 1. a Election or choice by preference; preference; selection beforehand. b Theol. Election. See ELECTION, n., 7.
2. Election beforehand or by anticipation.

pre′–e·lec′tion, adj. Designating something happening, done, or said before an election; as, pre-election promises.

pre·em′i·nence (prē·ĕm′ĭ·nĕns), n. [F. or L.; F. prééminence, fr. LL. praeeminentia. See PRE-EMINENT.] 1. Quality or state of being pre-eminent; superiority in rank, position, excellence, etc.; precedence; distinction above others in quality, rank, etc.; as, pre-eminence in honor.

(Satan) great in power,
In favor, and pre-eminence. Milton.

2. An instance or case of the foregoing; a quality existing pre-eminently; a distinction. Rare.

pre·em′i·nen·cy (prē·ĕm′ĭ·nĕn·sĭ), n. Pre-eminence. Now Rare.

pre·em′i·nent (prē·ĕm′ĭ·nĕnt), adj. [L. praeeminens, -entis, pres. part. of praeeminere to be prominent, to surpass; cf. F. prééminent. See PRE-; EMINENT.] 1. Eminent above others; prominent among those who are eminent; superior, esp. in excellence; surpassing, or taking precedence of, others; as, pre-eminent in guilt.

Michael, the . . . pre-eminent angel. Browning.

2. Taller than; rising above (others). Rare.
— pre·em′i·nent·ly, adv. — pre·em′i·nent·ness, n.

pre·empt′ (prē·ĕmpt′), v. t. & i.; -EMPT′ED; -EMPT′ING. [See PRE-EMPTION.] 1. To settle upon (public land) with a right of pre-emption, esp., formerly, under the United States law (see PRE-EMPTION RIGHT); to take by pre-emption.
2. Hence (orig. figurative), to appropriate; take beforehand; seize upon to the exclusion of others; as, to pre-empt a seat, parking space, etc., to pre-empt an idea, a doctrine, catchword or the like. Colloq.
3. At bridge whist, to make a pre-emptive bid. See PRE-EMPTIVE BID.

pre·empt′i·ble (prē·ĕmp′tĭ·b'l), adj. Subject or liable to pre-emption.

pre·emp′tion (prē·ĕmp′shŭn), n. [pre- + emption; cf. F. préemption. See REDEEM.] 1. Act or right of purchasing before others; specif.: a Eng. Law. The privilege or prerogative formerly enjoyed by the king of buying provisions at an appraised valuation for his household in preference to others. The right was given up by virtue of 12 Chas. II c. 24 (1660). b The prior right belonging to persons standing in certain family, tribal, or neighborhood relations, as among various primitive peoples, to purchase property sold, or proposed to be sold, to a stranger at the price offered by the stranger. c International Law. The right of a belligerent to seize and purchase at appraised price other contraband of war than absolute contraband belonging to a neutral and en route to the enemy in its own territory or on the high seas or in unappropriated territory. d U. S. A pre-emption right; also, a piece of land occupied under it.
2. Hence, a taking possession of beforehand; appropriation to one's own use; seizure of. Colloq.

The villagers . . . exerted a right of pre-emption over the fallen timber. Mary Roberts Rinehart.

pre·emp′tion·er (prē·ĕmp′shŭn·ĕr), n. One who has a pre-emption right. Hence, also, a pre-emptor.

pre·emption right. Law. A right of pre-emption; specif., in the United States, the right given by the Federal public land laws (repealed March 3, 1891) to citizens of claiming and buying under certain conditions, a portion not exceeding a quarter section (160 acres) of public land.

pre·emp′tive (prē·ĕmp′tĭv), adj. Of, pertaining to, or of the nature of, pre-emption; having power to pre-empt; pre-empting. — pre·emp′tive·ly, adv.

pre·emp′tive, n. Pre-emptive right. Chiefly Australian.

pre·emptive bid. At bridge, a declaration that is aimed at shutting out shifts by the partner or bids by the adversaries.

pre·emptive right. The right to pre-empt; also, in Australia, land acquired or held by such right.

pre·emp′tor (prē·ĕmp′tôr), n. [Cf. LL. praeemptor.] One who pre-empts; specif., one who has pre-empted land.

pre·emp′to·ry (-tō·rĭ), adj. Of or pertaining to pre-emption.

preen (prēn), n. [AS. prēon a clasp, bodkin; akin to D. priem punch, bodkin, awl, G. pfriem, Icel. prjónn a knitting needle, pin.] A pin; a brooch; also, a hook; hence, a thing of trifling value. Now Dial.

preen, v. t. [AS. prēon a pin, brooch, fastening. See PREEN, n.] 1. To sew; stitch; pierce; prick. Obs.
2. To pin. Scot. & Dial. Eng.

preen (prēn), v.; PREENED (prēnd); PREEN′ING. [Prob. same word as prune to preen, but influenced by ME. prenen, preonen, to stick with a pin, pierce (cf. PREEN, n.). See PRUNE to preen.] Transitive: 1. To trim or dress with or as with the beak, as the feathers or fur; — said of birds and some animals.
2. To trim, dress, or smooth (oneself) up; to arrange one's clothing, hair, etc., fastidiously.
3. To plume, pride, or congratulate (oneself).

He preened himself upon his sapience. Amy Lowell.

——, Intransitive: To trim, dress, or make sleek.

preen, n. Act or instance of preening.

preen′er (prēn′ĕr), n. One who preens; specif., one who perforates gloves with a preen.

pre′–en·gage′ (prē′ĕn·gāj′), v.; -GAGED′ (-gājd′); -GAG′ING (-gāj′ĭng). Transitive: To engage beforehand; specif.: a To engage by previous contract; esp., to engage beforehand to marry. b To win over beforehand; to prepossess; to acquire beforehand; to bespeak. c To preoccupy; to forestall. d To engage in combat with beforehand.
——, Intransitive: To bind or engage oneself beforehand; to precontract.

pre′–en·gage′ment (-mĕnt), n. 1. Act of pre-engaging, or state of being pre-engaged; prior engagement or obligation; specif., a previous engagement to marry.
2. A preoccupation; a pre-existing business.

My pre-engagements to other themes were not unknown. Boyle.

preen gland. The uropygial gland.

pre·ep′ic (prē·ĕp′ĭk), adj. 1. Antedating the epic; — used esp. of Greek religion, mythology, or antiquities of an era before the Homeric poems.
2. More than epic; superepic. Rare.

pre′–es·tab′lish (prē′ĕs·tăb′lĭsh), v. t. To establish beforehand; to arrange, make, or sanction in advance of; esp., to prepare or give currency to (something, as a body of laws, customs, doctrines, dogmas, etc.) as a foundation for (something, as a government, church, religion or the like).

pre′–es·tab′lished (-lĭsht), adj. [pre- + established.] Settled or made secure beforehand; also, presumed to be pre-existent; as, the pre-established harmony supposed (as by Leibnitz) to exist between "mind" and "matter"; predestined.

pre′–es·tab′lish·er (-lĭsh·ĕr), n. One who or that which pre-establishes.

pre·ev′ite (prē·ĕv′ĭt), n. A woman before Eve.

pre′–ex·cel′ (prē′ĕk·sĕl′; -ĭk-), v. i. To excel greatly. Rare.

pre·ex′cel·lent (prē·ĕk′sĕ·lĕnt), adj. [Cf. obs. F. préexcellent.] Surpassingly excellent. — pre·ex′cel·lence, -len·cy, n.

pre′–ex′ile (prē′ĕk′sīl; -ĕg′zīl), adj. Pre-exilian.

pre′–ex·il′i·an (prē′ĕg·zĭl′ĭ·ăn; -ĕks·ĭl′ĭ·ăn), pre′–ex·il′ic (prē′ĕg·zĭl′ĭk; prē′ĕks·ĭl′ĭk), adj. [pre- + L. ex(s)ilium exile or E. exile.] Previous to the exile; specif., Jewish Hist., belonging to, or occurring in, the period before the Babylonish exile, that is, before about 600 B.C.

pre′–ex·ist′ (prē′ĕg·zĭst′; -ĭg-), v. i. & t.; -EX·IST′ED; -EX·IST′ING. To exist before.

pre′–ex·ist′ence (prē′ĕg·zĭs′tĕns; -ĭg-), n. Existence in a former state, or previous to something else; as: a Existence of the soul before its union with the body, esp. in the doctrine of transmigration. b Theol. As applied to Christ, variously interpreted as existence of his human soul prior to his physical conception; existence of the "heavenly man," or Messiah, before his first advent; eternal existence of the second person of the Trinity; eternal existence in God of a rational principle of self-revelation in the cosmos; and ideal existence in the mind and eternal purpose of God.

pre′–ex·ist′ent (-zĭs′tĕnt), adj. Existing previously; as, a pre-existent state; existing before something.

pre′–ex·ist′ent·ism (-tĕn·tĭz′m), n. The theory that the life of the soul antedates that of the body. — pre′–ex·is·ten′ti·ar′y (-zĭs·tĕn′shĭ·ĕr′ĭ; -ĕr·ĭ), n.

pre′–ex·po′sure (prē′ĕks·pō′zhĕr; -ĭks-), n. A preliminary exposure; specif., Photog., usually a slight uniform flash exposure, given to a sensitive film or plate prior to the main exposure.

pref′ace (prĕf′ĭs), n. [OF., fr. L. praefatio, fr. praefari to say beforehand, fr. prae before + fari, fatus, to speak. See FATE.] 1. Eccl. a [usually cap.] In liturgies, the first part of the Eucharistic prayer; specif., in the Roman rite, the prelude to the Canon. It consists of an exhortation to thanksgiving, said or sung responsively, and an offering of praise and glory to God, ending with the Sanctus. b The Preface for St. Cecilia's day in the Ambrosian liturgy (see LITURGY, 1).

Saint Ambrose in his preface list to say. Chaucer.

2. Something spoken as introductory to a discourse or written as introductory to a book or the like, usually by way of explanation of the object, scope, etc., of the discourse or literary composition; a proem; an introduction, or series of preliminary remarks; a prologue; foreword.

This preface leads to speech. Browning.

3. A brief paraphrase or comment formerly made upon a psalm before singing it in a Scottish church.
4. Figuratively, something introductory or preliminary.
Syn. — PREFACE, INTRODUCTION, PROLOGUE, PROEM, EXORDIUM, PREAMBLE, while often interchangeable in a general sense, have certain specific applications. PREFACE and INTRODUCTION apply esp. to books; a preface (often brief) is commonly explanatory of the object and scope of the work, of methods of treatment, sources of information, and the like; an introduction properly forms part of the body of the work itself. PROLOGUE (opposed to epilogue) is sometimes used of the introduction to a longer poem (as, the Prologue to "The Canterbury Tales"); it oftener applies to a brief composition spoken before a dramatic performance. PROEM is a somewhat bookish or formal word for a preface or introduction (esp. to a poem); EXORDIUM (a technical term of rhetoric) denotes the opening part of a discourse or (esp.) oration; a PREAMBLE is esp. the introductory part of a statute or resolution. Cf. PRELUDE.
Ant. — Conclusion, ending, close, finis, finale, epilogue, supplement, addendum.

pref′ace (prĕf′ĭs), v.; -ACED (-ĭst); -AC·ING (-ĭs·ĭng). Intransitive: 1. To make, speak, write, etc., a preface.
2. Formerly, to give a commentary upon a psalm about to be sung. Scot.
——, Transitive: 1. To say or write by way of preface. Rare.
2. Figuratively, to introduce; herald; to precede immediately. Rare.
3. To introduce by, or commence with, a preface; to furnish with a preface; as, to preface a book or discourse.
4. Figuratively, to put before or in front of; to front (with).
5. To precede by way of introduction; to be preliminary to.
6. Formerly, to paraphrase or comment on (a psalm). Scot.

pref′ac·er (prĕf′ĭs·ĕr), n. The maker or writer of a preface.

pre·fa′cial (prē·fā′shăl), adj. [From PREFACE, n.] Prefatory.

pref′ac·ist (prĕf′ĭs·ĭst), n. A prefacer.

pre·fac′tor (prē·făk′tĕr), n. Math. The first of two factors that are not commutable.

pre·fa′tor (prē·fā′tĕr), n. [L. praefari to say beforehand.] A prefacer. Rare.

pref′a·to′ri·al (prĕf′ȧ·tō′rĭ·ăl; 181), adj. Prefatory. — pref′a·to′ri·al·ly, adv.

pref′a·to′ry (prĕf′ȧ·tō′rĭ or, esp. Brit., -tĕr·ĭ), adj. Pertaining to, or of the nature of, a preface; introductory, as to a book; preliminary; as, prefatory remarks. — pref′a·to′ri·ly (-rĭ·lĭ), adv.

That prefatory addition to the Creed. Dryden.

pre′fect, prae′fect (prē′fĕkt), n. [OF. prefect (F. préfet), fr. L. praefectus, fr. praefectus, past part. of praeficere to set over, fr. prae before + facere to make. See PRE-; FACT. Cf. SURFEIT.] 1. In ancient Rome, any of various high officials or magistrates placed at the head of a particular command, charge, department, etc. The function and rank of the prefects varied widely.
2. A similar official in other ancient countries.

pre·dom′i·nat′ing·ly, adv. of predominating, pres. part.

pre·dom′ine, v. i. & i. [F. prédominer.] To predominate. Obs.

pre′do·nate′, v. i. See PRE-, 1 a.
— pre′do·na′tion, n. — pre·do′·nor, n.

pre·doom′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′–Do′ri·an, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre′–Dor′ic, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·dor′sal, adj. See PRE-, 1 b.

pre·doubt′, n. & v. See PRE-, 1 a.
— pre·doubt′er, n. — pre·doubt′ful, adj.

pre·draft′, n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·drain′age, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′dra·mat′ic, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·draw′, v. t. & i. See PRE-, 1 a.
— pre′draw′, n. — pre·draw′er, n.

pre·dread′, n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·drill′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′drill′er, n.

pre·drive′, v. t. & i. See PRE-, 1 a.
— pre·driv′er, n.

pre·dry′, v. t. See PRE-.

pre·du′pli·cate, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′du·pli·ca′tion, n.

pre·dusk′, n. See PRE-, 2.

pre′·Dutch′, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·dwell′, v. i. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′dy (prē′dĭ), adj. Ready. Obs.
— v. t. To prepare. Obs.

pre·dy′na·mite, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·earth′ly, adj. See PRE-, b.

pre·earth′quake′, n. See PRE-, 2.

pre′–East′er, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre′e·co·nom′ic, -e·co·nom′i·cal, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·ed′it, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′e·di′tion, n. — pre·ed′i·tor, n. — pre′·ed·i·to′ri·al, adj. — pre′·ed·i·to′ri·al·ly, adv.

pre·ed′u·cate, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.
— pre′·ed·u·ca′tion, n. — pre′·ed·u·ca′tion·al, adj. — pre′·ed·u·ca′tion·al·ly, adv.

preef (Scot. prēf). Var. of PROOF.

pre′·ef·fect′, n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′·ef·fec′tive′, adj. — pre′·ef·fec′tive·ly, adv. — pre′·ef·fec′tu·al, adj.

pre·ef′fort, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′·e·lect′, v. i., pre′·e·lect′, adj., pre′·e·lec′tive, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′·e·lec′tric, adj. See PRE-, 2.
— pre′·e·lec·tri·cal, adj. — pre′·e·lec′tri·cal·ly, adv.

pre′·el·e·men′tal, pre′·el·e·men′ta·ry, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·el′i·gi·ble, adj. & n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′·el·i·gi·bil′i·ty, n.

pre′·e·lim′i·nate, v. i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′·e·lim′i·na′tion, n. — pre′·e·lim′i·na′tor, n.

pre′·E·liz′a·be′than, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre′·e·man′ci·pa′tion, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′·em·bar′rass, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′·em·bar′rass·ment, n.

pre′·em·bod′i·ment, n., pre′·em·bod′y, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. [1 a.] pre′·e·mer′gen·cy, adj. See PRE-, pre′·e·mo′tion, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

— pre′·e·mo′tion·al, adj.

pre′·Em′pire, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre′·em′per·or, n.

pre′·em·ploy′, v. i. See PRE-, 1 a.
— pre′·em·ploy·ee′, n. — pre′·em·ploy′er, n. — pre′·em·ploy′ment, n.

pre·empt′iv. Pre-emptive. R. S.

pre′·en·a′ble, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′·en·act′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.
— pre′·en·ac′tion, n.

pre′·en·close′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.
— pre′·en·clo′sure, n. [PRE-, 1 a.] pre′·en·coun′ter, n. & v. i. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′·en·cour′age, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′·en·cour′age·ment, n.

preend. Preened. Ref. Sp.

pre′·en·deav′or, n. & v. i. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′·en·dorse′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′·en·dorse′ment, n. — pre′·en·dors′er, n.

pre·en′er·gy, n. See PRE-, 1 a.
— pre′·en·er·get′ic, adj.

pre′·en·force′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′·en·force′ment, n.

pre′·en′gi·neer′ing, adj. See PRE-, 3.

pre′·Eng′lish, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre′·en·joy′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.
— pre′·en·joy′a·ble, adj. — pre′·en·joy′ment, n.

pre′·en·large′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′·en·large′ment, n.

pre′·en·light′en, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′·en·light′en·er, n. — pre′·en·light′en·ing, adj. — pre′·en·light′en·ment, n.

pre′·en·list′, v. t. & i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′·en·list′ment, n.

pre′·en·roll′, v. t. & i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′·en·roll′ment, n.

pre′·en·tail′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.
— pre′·en·tail′, n. — pre′·en·tail′ment, n.

pre·en′ter, v. i. See PRE-, 1 a.
— pre·en′trance, pre·en′try, n.

pre′·en·ter·tain′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′·en·ter·tain′er, n. — pre′·en·ter·tain′ment, n.

pre′·en·thu′si·asm, n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′·en·thu′si·as′tic, adj.

pre′·en·ti′tle, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′·e·nu′mer·ate, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′·e·nu′mer·a′tion, n.
— pre′·en·vel′op, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.
— pre′·en·vel′op·ment, n.

pre′·en·vi′ron·men′tal, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. [PRE-, 2.]

pre′·ep·i·dem′ic, n. & adj. See] pre·ep′och·al, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre′·e·quip′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.
— pre′·e·quip′ment, n.

pre·eq′ui·ty, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′·e·rect′, v. t., pre′·e·rec′tion, n.

pre′·e·rupt′ v. i., pre′·e·rupt′·tion, n., pre′·e·rup′tive, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′·es·cape′, n. & v. i., pre·es′·cort, n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′·e·soph′a·ge′al, adj. See PRE-, 1 b. [1 a.] pre·es′say, n. & v. i. See PRE-, pre′·es·sen′tial, n. & adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′·es·tab′lish·ment, n. See -MENT. [lished. Ref. Sp.] pre′·es·tab′lisht. Pre-estabpre′·es·teem′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·es′ti·mate, v. t. & n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′·es·ti·ma′tion, n.

pre·es′ti·val. Var. of PRAESTIVAL. [ul-ly, n. See PRE-, 2.]

pre′·e·ter′nal, adj., pre′·e·ter′· pre′·e·vade′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

— pre′·e·va′sion, n.

pre′·e·vap′o·rate, v. i. & i., pre′·e·vap′o·ra′tion, n., pre′·e·vap′·o·ra′tor, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·ev′i·dent, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·ev′i·dence, n. — pre·ev′i·dent·ly, adv.

pre′·ev·o·lu′tion·al, pre′·ev·o·lu′tion·ar′y, adj. pre′·ev·o·lu′·tion·ist, n. See PRE-, 2.

pre′·ev·act′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.
— pre′·ev·ac′tion, n.

pre′·ex·am′i·na′tion, n., pre′·ex·am′ine, v. t., pre′·ex·am′in·er, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′·ex·cept′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.
— pre′·ex·cep′tion, n. — pre′·ex·cep′tion·al, adj. — pre′·ex·cep′tion·al·ly, adv. [1 a.] pre′·ex·change′, v. t. See PRE-, pre′·ex·cite′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

— pre′·ex·ci·ta′tion, n. — pre′·ex·cite′ment, n.

pre′·ex·clude′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′·ex·clu′sion, n. — pre′·ex·clu′sive, adj. — pre′·ex·clu′·sive·ly, adv.

pre′·ex·cur′sion, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′·ex·cuse′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·ex′e·cute, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.
— pre′·ex·e·cu′tion, n. — pre′·ex·ec′u·tor, n.

pre′·ex·empt′, v. i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′·ex·emp′tion, n.

pre′·ex·haust′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′·ex·haus′tion, n.

pre′·ex·hib′it, n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′·ex·hi·bi′tion, n.
— pre′·ex·hib′i·tor, n.

pre·ex·ist′en·cy, n. Pre-existence. Obs.

pre′·ex·pand′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.
— pre′·ex·pan′sion, n.

pre′·ex·pect′, v. i., pre′·ex·pect′·ant, adj., pre′·ex·pec·ta′tion, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′·ex·pe·di′tion, n. See PRE-, 1 a.
— pre′·ex·pe·di′tion·ar′y, adj.

pre′·ex·pend′, v. i. See PRE-, 1 a.
— pre′·ex·pend′i·ture, n. — pre′·ex·pense′, n. [PRE-, 1 a.] pre′·ex·pe′ri·ence, n. & v. i. See] pre′·ex·per′i·ment, n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′·ex·per′i·men′tal, adj.

pre′·ex·pi·ra′tion, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′·ex·plain′, v. t. & i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′·ex·pla·na′tion, n.

pre′·ex·plan′a·to′ry, adj.

pre′·ex·plode′, v. t. & i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′·ex·plo′sion, n.

pre′·ex·pose′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′·ex·pound′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′·ex·po·si′tion, n. — pre′·ex·pound′er, n.

pre′·ex·press′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′·ex·pres′sion, n. — pre′·ex·pres′sive, adj.

pre′·ex·pend′, v. t. & i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′·ex·ten′sive, adj. — pre′·ex·ten′sive·ly, adv. — pre′·ex·tent′, n.

pre′·ex·tinc′tion, n., pre′·ex·tin′guish, v. i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′·ex·tin′guish·ment, n.

pre′·ex·tract′, v. i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′·ex·trac′tion n.

preeze (prēz). Scot. & N. of Eng. var. of PRESS.

pre·fab′u·lous, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pref′ace·a·ble, adj. See -ABLE.

pre·fac′to·ry, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′fa·mil′iar, adj. See PRE-, 1 pre′fa·mil′iar·ly, adv.

pre·fa′mous, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·fash′ion, v. i. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·fa′tial, adj. = PREFACIAL.

pre·fa′tion, n. [L. praefatio; cf. OF. prefacion. See PREFACE.] Prefacing. Obs.

pre·fa′vor, n. & v. t., pre·fa′vor·a·ble, adj., pre·fa′vor·a·bly, adv., pre·fa′vo·rite, n. & adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·fear′ful, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.
— pre·fear′ful·ly, adv.

pre·feast′, n. See PRE-, 2.

3. In modern use, a president, chief officer, chief magistrate, or the like, as the head of any of the congregations of cardinals. Specif.: a In France, the chief administrative officer of a department. b Formerly, in China, the head of a fu, or prefecture; chih fu.
4. Figuratively, director, minister, or the like. Obs.
Venus . . . praefect of marriage. Ben Jonson.
5. a A student monitor or prepositor in English public or secondary schools and some American private schools. b In Jesuit schools, a dean; as, prefect of studies; prefect of discipline; — cap. when used specifically.

pre·fect (prē·fĕkt′), v. t. [L. praefectus, past part. of praefacere. See PREFECT, n.] Prefer; promote. Obs.

pre′fect ap′os·tol′ic (prē′fĕkt). = APOSTOLIC PREFECT.

pre′fect·ly, adj. Resembling a prefect; of or pertaining to a prefect.

prefect of police. The chief of police of Paris and the department of the Seine.

pre·fec′to·ral (prē·fĕk′tō·răl), adj. [F. préfectoral.] Prefectorial.

pre′fec·to′ri·al (prē′fĕk·tō′rĭ·ăl; 181), adj. [LL. praefectorius.] Of or pert. to a prefect. — pre′fec·to′ri·al·ly, adv.

prefectorial system. A system of school discipline and administration conducted with the aid of prefects. See PREFECT, n., 5 a.
In those days, . . . the prefectorial system — the system which hands over the life of a school to an oligarchy of a dozen youths of seventeen — was still in its infancy. Lytton Strachey.

pre′fec·to′ri·an (prē′fĕk·tō′rĭ·ăn), adj. Of or pertaining to a Roman prefect.

pre·fec′tu·al (prē·fĕk′tū·ăl), adj. Of or pertaining to school prefects.

pre·fec′tur·al (prē·fĕk′tūr·ăl), adj. Of or pertaining to a prefecture.

pre′fec·ture (prē′fĕk·tūr), n. [L. praefectura; cf. F. préfecture.] 1. The office, position, jurisdiction, or period of office, of a prefect; presidency; superintendency.
2. The official residence of a prefect.
3. The district governed by a prefect. Specif.: a Rom. Hist. Any of the four divisions into which the Empire was divided under Constantine. b China. = FU. c Japan. A subdivision or province for local administration, under a governor, a prefectural assembly, and a prefectural council. In Japan proper there are 47 prefectures: one do (Hokkaido), 3 fu (see FU b), and 43 ken.

prefecture apostolic. A district administered by a prefect apostolic.

pre′fe·cun·da′tion (prē′fē·kŭn·dā′shŭn; -fĕk·ŭn-), n. Physiol. The changes or conditions preceding fecundation, esp. in the female generative organs. — pre′fe·cun′da·to′ry (prē′fē·kŭn′dȧ·tō′rĭ or, esp. Brit., -tēr·ĭ), adj.

pre·fer′ (prē·fûr′), v.; -FERRED′ (-fûrd′); -FER′RING. [OF. preferer, fr. L. praeferre, fr. prae before + ferre to bear, carry. See PRE-; 1st BEAR. Cf. SUFFER.] Transitive: 1. a To put in a higher position, rank, or the like; to advance, as to an office or dignity; to raise; to exalt; to promote; to set forward; as, to prefer an officer to the rank of general. b Obs. To aid in bringing about or producing (a result).
2. To set above or before something else in estimation, favor, or liking; to regard or honor before another; to hold in greater favor; to choose (something or some person) rather; to like better;—often followed by to, before, or above.
3. To bring, put, or set (something) forward, or before one; hence: a To bring forward, or lay before one, for consideration, acceptance, judgment, etc. b To offer; to present; to proffer.
He spake, and to her hand preferred the bowl. Pope.
c To introduce or recommend. "He preferred himself to my favor." Mary Austin. d To submit for approval or action: as, to prefer an indictment, claim, prayer, or request.
Presently prefer his suit to Caesar. Shak.
4. Obs. a To go or be before in estimation; to outrank. b To put or set before or in front. c To refer; to attribute; to ascribe to.
5. Biol. To thrive best in; as, thermophilic bacteria prefer high temperatures, mosses prefer wet soil.
6. Eccl. To appoint to a benefice.
7. Law. To give a preference or priority to.
—, Intransitive: To choose; to have preference.
His soul refused to prefer between good and evil. William Roscoe Thayer.

Syn. — Choose, elect, select.

pref′er·a·bil′i·ty (prĕf′ĕr·ȧ·bĭl′ĭ·tĭ), n. Quality of being preferable; preferableness.

pref′er·a·ble (prĕf′ĕr·ȧ·b'l; 59), adj. [F. préférable.] 1. Worthy to be preferred, or chosen before something else; more desirable; as, a preferable scheme.
2. Exhibiting preference; preferred; preferential. Obs.
3. Law. Capable of being given legal preference or priority. — pref′er·a·ble·ness, n. — pref′er·a·bly, adv.

pref′er·ence (prĕf′ĕr·ĕns), n. [F. préférence.] 1. Act of preferring, or state of being preferred; the setting of one thing before or above another; higher estimation; predilection; prior choice; also, the power or opportunity of choosing; as, to give him his preference.
Leave the critics on either side to contend about the preference due to this or that sort of poetry. Dryden.
We fair ones show a preference too blind. Keats.
2. Archaic. a Preferability; precedence; superiority. b Preferment; promotion.
3. One who or that which is preferred; the object (person or thing) of choice or superior favor; as, which is your preference?
4. A preference share. Brit.
5. Card Games. A modification of vint, for three players with a 32-card pack. Ten cards are dealt to each player and two for the widow. Each player in turn may name the trump if he undertakes to win six tricks. For bidding, the suits rank hearts (preference), diamonds, clubs, and spades. The number of tricks is not named. The highest bidder takes the widow, discards two cards and names the trump. A pool is made by equal contributions and the bidder adding the amount he bids for naming the trump. The winner is paid from the pool according to the number of tricks won and the suit that is trump.
6. Econ. The act, fact, or principle of giving one or more countries legal advantages over others in international trade.
7. Law. Priority in the right to demand and receive satisfaction of an obligation, as the payment of a debt in full or in part.
8. Railroad Law. A special advantage given to a particular person, a particular locality, or a particular form of shipment — whether by the grant of a lower tariff or of extraordinary facilities for shipment. More commonly called discrimination in the United States.

Syn. — See ALTERNATIVE.

preference bond. Finance. a Brit. A bond, issued by a government, interest on which is payable before that on ordinary bonds. b U. S. An income bond.

preference freight. Railroads. = EXPEDITE FREIGHT.

preference share or stock. A share giving its owner a preference either as to receipt of dividends, to repayment in case of winding up, or as to both. In general, preference shares rank next after debentures, and are prior to ordinary stock. Brit.

pref′er·ent (prĕf′ĕr·ĕnt), adj. [L. praeferens, pres. part. See PREFER.] 1. Law. Having or enjoying a preference, or priority in the right to demand and receive satisfaction of an obligation; as, a preferent claim.
2. Exhibiting preference; preferential.

pref′er·en′tial (-ĕn′shăl), n. A distinguishing feature or quantity; esp., a preferential rate; specif., Chiefly Eng., in railroad law, a rate or system of rates involving preferences; — nearly equivalent to differential as used in American railroading. Cf. DIFFERENTIAL, n., 1, 2, & Note.

pref′er·en′tial, adj. 1. Of, pertaining to, or of the nature of, preference; as, preferential treatment; giving, indicating, or having, a preference or precedence; as, a preferential tariff, rate, or claim.
2. Econ. Of or pertaining to, or employing or creating, a preference in trade relations. See PREFERENCE, n., 6. — pref′er·en′tial·ly, adv.

preferential ballot. A ballot used in preferential voting.

preferential flotation. See SELECTIVE FLOTATION.

pref′er·en′tial·ism (prĕf′ĕr·ĕn′shăl·ĭz′m), n. Econ. The policy or system of granting preferences in international trade. See PREFERENCE, n., 6. — pref′er·en′tial·ist, n. & adj.

preferential motion. See STAR MOTION g.

preferential primary election. See PRIMARY ELECTION.

preferential stock. Finance. Preferred stock, esp. preference stock.

preferential tariff. A schedule of impost duties giving some nation or nations advantage over others, either by lower rates or special privileges preferential voting. Political Science. A system of voting, as at primaries or in municipal elections, in which the voters indicate their preference between two or more candidates for an office, so that if no candidate receives a majority of first choices the one receiving the greatest number of first and second choices together is nominated or elected. Cf. PROPORTIONAL REPRESENTATION; HARE SYSTEM.

pre·fer′ment (prē·fûr′mĕnt), n. 1. Act of bringing or putting forward; furtherance (of an act or scheme).
2. Act of preferring, or advancing in dignity or office; state of being advanced; advancement; promotion.
Promises of valuable preferment. Macaulay.
3. A position, appointment, or office of honor or profit; as, the preferments of the church.
4. A choosing, or state of being chosen; preference. Rare.
5. Law. Priority or seniority in right, esp. in the right to receive payment or the right to purchase property on equal terms as to consideration with others; preference.

pre·fer′red′ (prē·fûrd′), past tense & past part. of PREFER. — pre·fer′red·ly (prē·fûr′ĕd·lĭ; -ĭd·lĭ; prē·fûrd′lĭ), adv. — pre·fer′red·ness (-nĕs; -nĭs; 119), n.

preferred stock. a Stock which takes a dividend before other capital stock and on a distribution of assets participates ahead of the common stock, or, sometimes, which has priority over common stock in either of these respects; — so called in the United States, answering essentially to preference stock in British usage. b Brit. Common stock (often called B stock) that takes a certain dividend ahead of other (deferred) common stock (often called A stock). Cf. PREFERENCE STOCK.

pre·fer′rer (prē·fûr′ĕr), n. One who prefers; as: a Obs. Promoter; patron. b One who presents or submits something.

pre·fer′vid (prē·fûr′vĭd), adj. Perfervid.

‖pre′fet′ (prā′fĕt′), n. [F.] Prefect.

pre·fig′ur·ate (prē·fĭg′ûr·āt), v. t. [LL. praefiguratus, past part. See PREFIGURE.] To prefigure. Rare.

pre·fig′ur·ate (-ăt), adj. [LL. praefiguratus, past part.] Prefigured.

pre′fig·u·ra′tion (prē′fĭg·ū·rā′shŭn), n. [LL. praefiguratio.] Act of prefiguring, or state of being prefigured; representation by a previous figure or type; also, that which prefigures; a prototype. "Prophecies and prefigurations." Norris.

pre·fig′ur·a·tive (prē·fĭg′ûr·ȧ·tĭv), adj. [ML. praefigurativus.] Showing by prefiguration; prefiguring. — pre·fig′ur·a·tive·ly, adv. — pre·fig′ur·a·tive·ness, n.
Fancies and prefigurative superstitions. Hardy.

pre·fig′ure (prē·fĭg′ûr), v. t.; -FIG′URED (-ûrd); -FIG′UR·ING (-ûr·ĭng). [F. or L.; F. préfigurer, fr. LL. praefigurare, praefiguratum, fr. prae before + figurare to figure. See FIGURE; cf. PREFIGURATE.] 1. To show, suggest, or announce, by antecedent types and similitudes. "Whom all the various types prefigured." South. Hence, loosely, to foretell, to foreshadow.
A waking dream
Prefigured to his sense the Egyptian Lady. Wordsworth.
2. To figure to oneself, or imagine, beforehand.
Bonaparte . . . his eyes somber with prefigured destiny. Lowell.
3. To form or shape in front. Obs.

pre·fil′ter (prē·fĭl′tĕr), n. A preliminary filter. — pre·fil′ter, v. t.

pre·fi′nal (-fī′năl; -n'l), adj. Preceding that which is final; as, prefinal stages of an evolutionary process.

pre·fine′ (prē·fīn′), v. t. [L. praefinire, fr. prae before + finire to limit.] To limit, determine, or define beforehand. Obs.

pre′fine′ (prē′fīn′), n. Eng. Law A fee paid in levying a fine or suing out the writ of covenant.

pre·fix′ (prē·fĭks′; in senses 1, 2, and 4, prē·fĭks′), v. t.; -FIXED′ (-fĭkst′); -FIX′ING. [OF. prefixer, fr. prefix fixed beforehand, determined, fr. L. praefixus, past part. of praefigere to fix or fasten before, fr. prae before + figere to fix. See FIX.] 1. To set or appoint beforehand; to settle or establish antecedently. Now Rare. "Prefixed bounds." Locke.
And now he hath to her prefixt a day. Spenser.
2. To settle or determine in one's mind beforehand; to resolve on; purpose; make up (the mind) beforehand. Obs.
3. To put or fix before, or at the beginning of, another thing; to make, or add, as a prefix; as, to prefix a title to a book, a syllable to a word, a condition to an agreement.
4. Photog. To fix or make permanent beforehand.

pre′fix (prē′fĭks), n. [L. praefixum, neut. past part. of praefigere. See PREFIX, v.] 1. That which is prefixed, as a title to a person's name; esp., one or more letters or syllables combined or united with the beginning of a word to modify its signification, as pre- in prefix, con- in conjure. Prefixes are abstract and have merely formative function, as in unnecessary, foreordain, postpone. Cf. SUFFIX; COMBINING FORM.
2. Act of prefixing. Rare.
Ant. — Suffix, termination, ending.

pre′fix·al (prē′fĭk·săl; prē·fĭk′săl), adj. Of, pertaining to, or being, a prefix. — pre′fix·al·ly, adv.

pre′fix·a′tion (prē′fĭks·ā′shŭn), n. Formation or inflection by means of prefixes.

pre′fix·a′tion, adj. Photog. Pertaining to development or treatment prior to fixation.

pre·fixed′ (prē·fĭkst′; 66), past tense & past part. of PREFIX. Specif.: adj. a Being attached as a prefix. b Anat. Designating a type of lumbar plexus formed by spinal nerves at a higher or more anterior level than is usual in the species. Cf. POSTFIXED. — pre·fix′ed·ly (prē·fĭk′sĕd·lĭ; -sĭd·lĭ; 119), adv.

pre·fix′ion (prē·fĭk′shŭn), n. [F. préfixion.] A prefixing; as: a Obs. A fixing or appointing beforehand. b A placing of a word or particle before, esp. in combination with, a word.

pre·fix′ture (-fĭks′tūr), n. A prefixing; also a prefix.

pre·flec′tion, pre·flex′ion (prē·flĕk′shŭn), n. [pre- + flection.] Philol. Inflection by prefixes. Cf. POSTFLECTION.

pre·form′ (prē·fôrm′), v. t. [L. praeformare. See PRE-; FORM.] 1. To form beforehand; to shape previously. "Their natures and preformed faculties." Shak.
2. To fix or determine the form of beforehand.

pre′for·ma′tion (prē′fôr·mā′shŭn), n. 1. The act or an instance of forming beforehand; previous formation.
2. Biol. In full, theory of preformation. An old theory which held that every germ cell contained the organism of its kind fully formed and complete in all its parts, and that development consisted merely in increase in size from microscopic proportions to those of the adult. This theory, carried to its logical conclusion, becomes the incasement theory, or emboîtement. See INCASEMENT THEORY.
— pre′for·ma′tion·ar′y (-ĕr′ĭ; -ēr·ĭ), adj.

pre′for·ma′tion·ism (-ĭz′m), n. Also pre·form′ism (prē·fôr′mĭz′m). Biol. The theory of preformation. — pre′for·ma′tion·ist (-ĭst), n. — pre·form′ist (prē·fôr′mĭst), n.

pre·form′a·tive (prē·fôr′mȧ·tĭv), adj. 1. Preforming.
2. Philol. Prefixed as a formative element.

pre·for′ma·tive, n. Philol. A formative element at the beginning of a word; a prefix, as in Hebrew and other Semitic languages.

pre·formed′ (prē·fôrmd′), adj. Formed beforehand.

pre′for·mis′tic (prē′fôr·mĭs′tĭk), adj. In accordance with the biological theory of preformation.

pre′for·mu·la′tion (prē′fôr·mū·lā′shŭn), n. A distinct formulation appearing before the final one, as in the gradual perception of some obscure form in twilight. — pre·for′mu·late (prē·fôr′mū·lāt), v. t. & i.

pre·fron′tal (prē·frŭn′tăl; -frŏn′-; -t'l), adj. Anat. & Zool. Anterior to a frontal bone, convolution, or other structure. Specif.: a Designating a bone anterior and lateral to the frontal bone of some vertebrates, in teleost fishes the bone otherwise called ectethmoid. b Designating a plate or scale in the center or on each side of the head of certain reptiles and fishes which lies immediately in front of the frontal scale. — n. A prefrontal bone or scale.

pre·ful′gent (prē·fŭl′jĕnt), adj. [L. praefulgens, pres. part.] Surpassingly fulgent. Rare. — pre·ful′gence (-jĕns), pre·ful′gen·cy (-jĕn·sĭ), n. Rare.

pre′gan·gli·on·ic (prē′găng·glĭ·ŏn′ĭk), adj. Anat. Anterior to or proximal to a ganglion; specif., designating an efferent nerve fiber (usually medullated) arising from a cell body in the central nervous system and terminating in an autonomic ganglion.

pre·gem′i·num (prē·jĕm′ĭ·nŭm), n. [NL., fr. pre- + corpora quadri*gemina.*] Anat. The superior colliculus. See CORPORA QUADRIGEMINA.

pre′ge·ni′al (prē′jē·nĭ′ăl), adj. [See PRE-; 2d GENIAL.] Anat. & Zool. In front of the chin; esp., designating the anterior shields of the chin in reptiles.

pre′ge·nic′u·la′tum (prē′jē·nĭk′ū·lā′tŭm), n. Also pre′ge·nic′u·lum (-nĭk′ū·lŭm). [NL. See PRE-; GENICULATE.] Anat. The lateral geniculate body.

pre·gen′i·tal (prē·jĕn′ĭ·tăl; -t'l), adj. [pre- + genital.] Psychoanalysis. Pertaining to the period of the psychosexual life when the erotic interest is not yet organized about the reproductive organs and functions.

‖pre·ghie′ra (prā·gyā′rä), n. [It.] A prayer; specif., Music, a short instrumental composition in devotional mood.

pre·gla′cial (prē·glā′shăl), adj. Geol. Of or pertaining to the periods before the Glacial Period.

pre·glob′u·lin (-glŏb′ū·lĭn), n. Biochem. A conjugated protein held to occur in many cells, as the white corpuscles of the blood.

preg′na·bil′i·ty (prĕg′nȧ·bĭl′ĭ·tĭ), n. State or quality of being pregnable.

---

pre′fect's court. See PROBATE.
pre′fect·ship, n. See -SHIP.
pre·fed′er·al, adj. See PREFER, 2.
pre·fel′ic (prē·fĕl′ĭk), adj. See PRE-, 4. pre′fer·a·bi. Preferable. R. S. pre·ferd′. Preferred. Ref. Sp.
pref′er·ee′ (prĕf′ĕr·ē′), n. See -EE. pref′er·en·cy, n. [ML. praeferentia.] Preference. Obs.
pre′fer·men·ta′tion, n. See PRE-, 1 a. pre·fer′rous, adj. See PRE-, 4. pre·fer′tile, adj. See PRE-, 1 c. — pre′fer·til′i·ty, n.
pre·fer′ti·lize, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′fer·ti·li·za′tion, n.
pre·fes′ti·val, n. See PRE-, 2. pre·feu′dal, adj. Also pre′feu·dal′ic. See PRE-, 2. — pre·feu′dal·ism, n.
pre·fic′tion, n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·fic′tion·al, adj. [Ref. Sp.] pre·fig′ur·a·tiv. Prefigurative. pre·fig′ure·ment, n. See -MENT.
pre·fill′er, n. See PRE-, 1 a. pre·fi·nance′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·fi·nan′cial, adj. [1 a.] pre·fin′ish, n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. pre·fi′nite, adj. [L. praefinitus, past part.] Predetermined. Obs. pref′i·ni′tion (prĕf′ĭ·nĭsh′ŭn), n. [L. praefinitio.] Previous limitation; predetermination. Obs.
pre·fix′a·ble, adj. See -ABLE.
pre·fixt′. Prefixed. Ref. Sp. — pre·fixt′ly, adv. Ref. Sp.
pre·flag′el·late, adj. See PRE-, 2. pre·flat′ter, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·flat′ter·y, n.
pre·flo′ver, n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·flo′vor·ing, n.
pre·flight′, n. See PRE-, 1 a. pre·flood′, adj. See PRE-, 2. pre·flo·ra′tion, pre′fo·li·a′tion. Vars. of PREAFFLORATION, PREFOLIATION. [1 a.] pre·flow′er, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. pre·fool′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 c. pre′for·bid′den, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. pre·for′ceps, n. See PRE-, 1 b. pre′for·give′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.
— pre′for·give′ness, n. [1 a.] pre′for·got′ten, adj. See PRE-, 1 pre·form′ant (prē·fôr′mănt), n. Philol. = PREFORMATIVE, 2. pre·for′tu·nate, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·for′tu·nate·ly, adv. — pre·for′tune, n.
pre·foun·da′tion, n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·found′er, n.
pre·fract′, adj. [L. praefractus abrupt, indexible.] Obstinate; inflexible. Obs.
pre·fra′grance, n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·fra′grant, adj.
pre·frank′ness, n. See PRE-, 1 a. pre·fra·ter′nal, adj. See PRE-, 2. — pre·fra·ter′nal·ly, adv.
pre·fraud′, n. See PRE-, 1 a. pre′-free′-trade′, adj. See PRE-, 2.
pre·freeze′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. pre′-French′, adj. See PRE-, 2. pre·fresh′man, n. See PRE-, 2.
pre·friend′ly, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. pre·friend′ship, n. See PRE-, 1 a. pre·fright′, n. See PRE-, 1 a. pre·fright′en, v. t. — pre·fru·i′tion, n. Foretaste. Obs.
pre′ful·fill′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′ful·fill′ment, n.
pre·func′tion, n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·func′tion·al, adj.
pre·fu′ner·al, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. pre·fun·goi′dal, adj. See PRE-, 2. pre·fur′lough, n. See PRE-, 2.
pre·fur′nish, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. pre·gage′, v. t. Pre-engage. Obs.
pre·gain′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·gain′er, n.
pre·gal′va·nize, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. pre·gath′er, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·gath′er·ing, n.
pre·gen′er·ate, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′gen·er·a′tion, n.
pre′gen·er·os′i·ty, n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·gen′er·ous, adj. — pre·gen′er·ous·ly, adv.
pre′ge·o·log′i·cal, adj., pre′-Geor′gian, adj., pre′-Ger′man, pre′-Ger·man′ic, adj. See PRE-, 2.
pre·girl′hood, n. See PRE-, 1 a. pre·glad′den, v. t., pre·glad′ness, n. See PRE-, 1 a. pre·gle′noid, pre′gle·noi′dal, adj. See PRE-, 1 b.

---

preg'na·ble (prĕg'nȧ·b'l), adj. [F. prenable. See IMPREGNABLE.] 1. Capable of being taken, or captured; expugnable; assailable; vulnerable; as, a pregnable fort. Colgrave.
2. Erroneously, pregnant. Obs.

preg'nance (prĕg'nȧns), n. 1. Pregnancy. Obs.
2. Suggestiveness; implication.

preg'nan·cy (prĕg'nȧn·sĭ), n.; pl. -CIES (-sĭz). 1. Condition of being pregnant; state of being with young. See GESTATION, 3.
2. Hence: a Fertility, as of soil; fruitfulness. b Obs. Germinating quality. c Obs. Condition of being impregnated or infused with something.
3. Figuratively, fertility; inventiveness; of wit, readiness, or quickness; quality of being heavy with important contents, issue, significance, etc.; unusual consequence or capacity; latent significance or power; suggestiveness; potentiality.
4. Obs. a Quickness of apprehension or conception; — said esp. of young persons. b A promising young person.
5. Force or cogency (of an argument). Obs.

preg'nant (prĕg'nȧnt), adj. [L. praegnans, -antis, fr. prae before + the root of nasci to be born, gignere to beget; cf. F. prégnant. But in some senses fr., or confused with, F. preignant pressing, cogent, pres. part. of OF. preindre, earlier priembre, to press, fr. L. premere (cf. PRESS to squeeze). See GENDER, KIN, NATION.] 1. Being with young; breeding; teeming; gravid; gestating; preparing to bring forth.
2. Figuratively, about to produce; capable of producing.
To elucidate the ideals with which the modern world is pregnant is the original business of the moralist. Walter Lippmann.
3. Germinable; fruitful; fertile; teeming, as a soil. Obs.
4. Teeming with, or full of, ideas; fertile; inventive; ready; as, a pregnant mind or wit.
Wherein the pregnant enemy does much. Shak.
5. Full of promise; quick of apprehension, as a youth. Obs.
6. Ready to receive or act. Obs. "The pregnant hinges of the knee." Shak.
7. Heavy with important contents, significance, or issue; full of meaning, consequence, or results; weighty; containing latent significance or power; suggestive; potential; as, pregnant replies. "Pregnant with mischief." Peacock.
8. Pressing; cogent; forcible; convincing; hence, obvious; as, a pregnant example. "A pregnant proof." Blackstone.
9. Figuratively, big; swelling; of a sail, bellying. Chiefly Poetic.
10. Gram. Denoting that use of a verb which includes its object idea, where ordinarily the object would be expressed (to conduct, that is, a concert). Cf. ABSOLUTE, adj., 6 d.
Ant. — Barren, sterile; jejune, meaningless, empty.
— preg'nant·ly, adv. — preg'nant·ness, n.

pregnant construction. Gram. & Rhet. A construction in which more is implied than is said (the beasts trembled, that is, came trembling, forth from their dens).

pre·grac'ile (prē·grȧs'ĭl), adj. [pre- + L. gracilis slender.] Anat. Anterior to the slender lobe of the cerebellum. See POSTGRACILE.

pre·gust' (prē·gŭst'), v. t. [L. praegustare.] To taste before. — pre·gus'tant (-gŭs'tȧnt), adj. — pre'gus·ta'tion (prĕ'gŭs·tā'shŭn), n. — pre'gus·ta'tor (-tĕr), pre·gus'tic (prē·gŭs'tĭk), n. All Rare.

pre·hal'lux (prē·hȧl'ŭks), n. [NL. See PRE-; HALLUX.] Zool. A rudimentary extra toe, or a process appearing as a rudiment of a toe, on the preaxial side of the hallux, as in frogs, where it is often called the calcar.

pre·hal'ter (prē·hȧl'tĕr), n.; pl. -TERES (prē'hȧl·tē'rēz). [NL. See PRE-; 4th HALTER.] Zool. The squama of a dipterous fly.

pre'haus·to'ri·um (prē'hôs·tō'rĭ·ŭm), n. [NL.] Bot. A rudimentary haustorium.

pre'–Hel·len'ic (prē'hĕ·lĕn'ĭk; -lē'nĭk), adj. Pertaining to or characteristic of the phases and periods of civilization in Greek lands which preceded the rise of the Hellenic or classical Greek culture. See AEGEAN, MINOAN, HELLADIC, CYCLADIC, MYCENAEAN.

pre·hend' (prē·hĕnd'), v. t. [L. prehendere. See PREHENSILE.] To seize.

pre·hen'si·ble (prē·hĕn'sĭ·b'l), adj. Capable of being seized.

pre·hen'sile (prē·hĕn'sĭl; see -ILE), adj. [F. préhensile, fr. L. prehendere, prehensum, to lay hold of, seize, fr. pre- (for prae before) + hendere (in comp.). See GET; cf. APPREHEND, EMPRISE, PRISON, REPREHEND.] Adapted for seizing or grasping, esp. by wrapping around; as, the prehensile tail of a monkey. — pre'hen·sil'i·ty (prē'hĕn·sĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n.

pre·hen'sion (prē·hĕn'shŭn), n. [L. prehensio; cf. F. préhension. See PREHENSILE.] 1. Act of taking hold, seizing, or grasping, as with the hand or other member. Chiefly Zool.
2. Arrest; apprehension. Obs.
3. A taking possession, as of land; seizure. Rare.
4. Mental apprehension.

pre·hen'sive (prē·hĕn'sĭv), adj. Prehensile. — pre·hen'sive·ness, n.

pre·hen'sor (-sôr), n. [See PREHENSILE; -OR.] One who or that which lays hold, seizes, or arrests.

pre'hen·so'ri·al (prē'hĕn·sō'rĭ·ȧl; 181), adj. Prehensile.

pre·hen'so·ry (prē·hĕn'sō·rĭ), adj. Adapted to seize; prehensile.

pre'he·pat'ic (prē'hē·pȧt'ĭk), adj. [See PRE-; HEPATIC.] Anat. Anterior to or in front of the liver.

pre'he·pat'i·cus (-hē·pȧt'ĭ·kŭs), n. [NL.] Embryol. The connective and vascular tissues from which the interstitial part of the liver is developed.

pre'his·to'ri·an (prē'hĭs·tō'rĭ·ȧn; 181), n. A specialist in prehistoric archaeology.

pre'his·tor'ic (prē'hĭs·tŏr'ĭk; 149), adj. a Of, pertaining to, or existing in, the period before written history begins. b Humorous. Very old. "A bottle of . . . prehistoric port." Galsworthy.

pre'his·tor'i·cal (-ĭ·kȧl), adj. Prehistoric. — pre'his·tor'i·cal·ly, adv.

prehistoric archaeology. The study by scientific methods of the life of man before the dawn of history, based upon stone, pottery, and other artifacts found in and upon the earth, and upon fossilized human remains, etc.

pre'his·tor'ics (prē'hĭs·tŏr'ĭks), n. Prehistoric customs, etc., as a subject of study. Rare.

pre·his'to·ry (prē·hĭs'tō·rĭ), n. A history of the antecedents of an event; specif., prehistoric archaeology and anthropology; knowledge of man and his works before the written recording of historical facts.
The great problem of American prehistory is that of the genesis of the Indians. A. Hrdlicka.

prehn'ite (prān'ĭt; prĕn'ĭt), n. [After the Dutch Colonel van Prehn, who in 1774 brought it from the Cape of Good Hope.] Mineral. A pale-green mineral in crystalline aggregates having a botryoidal or mammillary structure, rarely in distinct crystals. It is a hydrous calcium aluminum silicate, $H_2Ca_2Al_2(SiO_4)_3$. H., 6–6.5. Sp. gr., 2.80–2.95.

prehn·it'ic ac'id (prān·ĭt'ĭk; prĕn-). Chem. A white, crystalline acid, $C_6H_2(CO_2H)_4$; 1,2,3,5-benzene-tetracarboxylic acid; — prob. so called from the resemblance of the wart-like crystals to the mammillae on prehnite.

pre·hu'man (prē·hū'mȧn), adj. [pre- + human.] 1. Antedating the appearance of human beings.
2. Anthropol. & Zool. Denoting or pertaining to any apelike animal, regarded as the ancestor of human beings. — n. A prehuman animal.

pre'hy·dra'tion (prē'hī·drā'shŭn), n. Chem. Preliminary hydration.

pre'hy·poph'y·sis (prē'hī·pŏf'ĭ·sĭs; -hĭ-), n. [NL., fr. pre- + hypophysis.] Anat. The anterior lobe of the pituitary body, the part derived from the pharynx. See PITUITARY BODY.

pre'ig·ni'tion (prē'ĭg·nĭsh'ŭn), n. Engin. Ignition in advance; specif., in an internal-combustion engine, ignition while the inlet valve is open or before compression is completed.

pre'–In'can (prē'ĭng'kȧn), n. A native of Bolivia, Ecuador, or Peru, of the prehistoric period preceding the rise of the Inca Empire. The archaeological remains of the period prove that some of the pre-Incan peoples possessed a culture superior in some respects to that of the Incas. See AYMARA; INCA, n.; NASCAN; QUECHUA; TIAHUANACAN; YUNCA.

pre'in·car'nate (prē'ĭn·kär'nȧt), adj. Theol. Of, pertaining to, or having, existence before incarnation; — said particularly of the Divine Son, or Logos, or of Jesus Christ.

pre'in·des'ig·nate (prē'ĭn·dĕz'ĭg·nȧt; -ĭn·dĕs'-), adj. Logic. Having no sign expressive of quantity; indefinite; — contrasted with predesignate.

pre·in'di·cant (prē·ĭn'dĭ·kȧnt), n. [pre- + indicant.] A prognostic. Rare.

pre'in·struct' (prē'ĭn·strŭkt'), v. t. To instruct previously or beforehand. — pre'in·struc'tion (-strŭk'shŭn), n. — pre'in·struc'tion·al (-ȧl; -l), adj. — pre'in·struc'tive (-tĭv), adj.

pre·in'su·la (prē·ĭn'sū·lȧ), n. [NL., fr. pre- + L. insula island.] Anat. The anterior part of the island of Reil.

pre·in'su·lar (-lĕr), adj. [See PRE-; INSULAR.] Anat. In front of the island of Reil.

pre'in·tone' (prē'ĭn·tōn'), v. t. Eccl. To intone beforehand in a low voice.

pre'i·o'ti·za'tion (prē'ĭ·ō'tĭ·zā'shŭn), n. Iotization.

pre·i'o·tize (prē·ī'ō·tīz), v. t. To iotize.

pre·ja'cent (prē·jā'sĕnt), adj. [OF., fr. L. praejacens, pres. part. of praejacere to lie in front.] 1. Pre-existing. Obs.
2. Situated in front. Rare.
3. Logic. Stated previously; an antecedent proposition from which another is developed.

pre·ja'cent, n. Logic. A prejacent proposition. Rare.

pre·judge' (prē·jŭj'), v. [F. préjuger, fr. L. praejudicare. See PREJUDICATE, adj.; cf. PREJUDICE.] Transitive: 1. To judge before hearing, or before full and sufficient examination; to decide or sentence by anticipation; to pass judgment on beforehand.
2. To judge unfavorably or condemn beforehand. Obs.
3. To affect prejudicially; prejudice; injure. Obs. Scot.
4. To anticipate the judgment of (another). Obs.
5. To pre-estimate; to valuate beforehand. Colloq.
—, Intransitive: To judge, esp. to pass adverse judgment (upon others), beforehand.

pre·judg'er (-jŭj'ĕr), n. One who prejudges; a prejudiced person.

pre·judg'ment, pre·judge'ment (-mĕnt), n. [F. préjugement.] Act of prejudging; examination; prejudice.

pre·ju'di·cate (prē·jōō'dĭ·kȧt; 242), adj. [L. praejudicatus, past part. of praejudicare to prejudge, fr. prae before + judicare to judge. See PRE-; JUDGE.] a Decided beforehand. b Preconceived. c Biased; prejudiced. — pre·ju'di·cate·ly, adv. — pre·ju'di·cate·ness, n. All Obs.

pre·ju'di·cate (-kȧt), v. t. & i. [L. praejudicatus, past part. Cf. PREJUDGE.] 1. To prejudice or act prejudicially. Obs.
2. To prejudge; esp., to condemn beforehand.
[He] prejudicates the business. Shak.
3. To foretell; — used chiefly in judicial astrology. Obs.

pre·ju'di·ca'tion (-kā'shŭn), n. 1. Act of prejudicating, or prejudging; prejudgment; opinion formed before. Rare.
2. Law. a Rom. Law. A preliminary inquiry and determination of issues not directly involved in the merits of an action. b A previous decision of a point; a precedent.

pre·ju'di·ca'tive (prē·jōō'dĭ·kā'tĭv; -kȧ·tĭv), adj. Prejudging. Rare.

pre·ju'di·ca'tor (-kā'tĕr), n. A prejudger; one who prejudges. Rare.

prej'u·dice (prĕj'ōō·dĭs; 249), n. [OF., fr. L. praejudicium, fr. prae before + judicium judgment. See JUDICIAL.] 1. Injury or damage due to some judgment or action of another, as in disregard of a person's right; resulting detriment; — now chiefly in phrases; as, in, or to, the prejudice of; without prejudice, specif., Law, without damage to, or detraction from, one's own rights or claims.
2. a Preconceived judgment or opinion; leaning toward one side of a question from other considerations than those belonging to it; prepossession; unreasonable predilection for, or objection against, anything; esp., an opinion or leaning adverse to anything without just grounds or before sufficient knowledge. "Indurated with prejudice." Henry Adams. b An instance of this; a prepossession; an unreasonable predilection, inclination, or objection.
Ignorance is the mother of prejudice. John Bright.
The power of most of the great prejudices that strain humanity lies deeper than the intellectual level. H. G. Wells.
3. Something detrimental or damaging. Rare.
4. Obs. a An opinion or judgment formed beforehand, or without due examination; a prejudgment; prejudication. b Injury in general; damage; detriment. c Foreseeing; prognostication. d An expectation; an anticipation.
Syn. — Bias; harm, hurt, damage, disadvantage. See PREDILECTION.

prej'u·dice (prĕj'ōō·dĭs; 249), v. t.; -DICED (-dĭst); -DICING (-dĭs·ing). [F. préjudicier. See PREJUDICE, n.] 1. To injure or damage by some judgment or action; to cause injury to; hence, generally, to hurt; damage; injure; impair; as, to prejudice a good cause. Now Chiefly Legal.
Seek how we may prejudice the foe. Shak.
2. To cause to have prejudice; to prepossess with opinions formed without due knowledge or examination; to bias the mind of; to give an unreasonable bent to; as, to prejudice a critic or a juryman. Also, Rare, to prepossess in favor of.
Suffer not any beloved study to prejudice your mind so far as to despise all other learning. I. Watts.
3. To judge beforehand, esp. unfavorably. Obs.

prej'u·diced (-dĭst), adj. Having a prejudice, prepossession, or bias for or against. — prej'u·diced·ly, adv.

prej'u·di'cial (-dĭsh'ȧl), adj. [Cf. OF. prejudicial.] 1. Tending to injure or impair; hurtful; damaging; detrimental.
His going away . . . was most prejudicial and most ruinous to the king's affairs. Clarendon.
2. Of the nature of prejudice; biased, possessed, or blinded by prejudices; prejudiced; as, a prejudicial eye. Obs.
3. Leading to premature judgment or unwarranted opinion.
Syn. — Injurious, disadvantageous.
Ant. — Favorable, propitious.
— prej'u·di'cial·ly, adv. — prej'u·di'cial·ness, n.

prej'u·di'cial (prĕj'ōō·dĭsh'ȧl), v. t. To bias. Obs.

pre'–ju·di'cial (prē'jōō·dĭsh'ȧl), adj. [LL. praejudicialis.] Rom. Law. Coming, or decided, prior to the hearing before the judex; — used of actions, also called interrogatory actions, in which preliminary issues were tried before litiscontestation.

---

pregnatorie. ✝ PRENOTARY.

pre·gold'en, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·golf'ing, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre'–Goth'ic, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·gra'cious, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·grade', v. i. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·grade', n. See PRE-, 3.

pre'grad·u·a'tion, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·gran'ite, n. & adj. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·gran·nit'ic, adj.

pre·grat'i·fy, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'grat·i·fi·ca'tion, n.

pre·gra·vate, v. t. [L. praegravatus, past part., deriv. of praegravis very heavy.] To weigh down. Obs. — pre'gra·va'tion, n. Obs.

pre'·Greek', adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·greet', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·greet'ing, n.

pre·gres'sion, n. [L. praegressio.] A going before. Obs.

pre·griev'ance, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·growth', n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre'guar·an·tee', n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·guar'an·tor, n.

pre·guard', v. t., pre·guess', n. & v., pre·guid'ance, n., pre·guide', v. t., pre·guilt', n., pre·guilt'y, adj., pre·guilt'i·ness, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre'·Hag', adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·han'di·cap, n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·han'dle, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·haps'. Dial. var. of PERHAPS.

pre·hard'en, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·har'mo·ny, n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'har·mo'ni·ous, adj. — pre'har·mo'ni·ous·ness, n.

pre·harsh', adj. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·harsh'ness, n.

pre·har'vest, n. See PRE-, 2.

pre·ha'tred, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·haunt', n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·haunt'ed, adj.

pre·has'ard, n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·has'ard·ous, adj.

pre·heal', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·hear'ing, n. See PRE-, 2.

pre·heat', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·heat'er, n.

pre·heat'ed, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre'–He·brew', adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·hem·i·plegic, adj. See PRE-.

pre·hen'sil. Prehensile. Ref. Sp.

pre'he·ro'ic, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·hes'i·tan·cy, n., pre·hes'i·tate, v. i., pre·hes·i·ta'tion, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre'hex·am'er·al, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre'–Hi'er·o·nym'i·an, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre'–Hin'du·ized, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre'–His·pan'ic, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·hold'er, n., pre·hold'ing, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre'–hol'i·day, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre'–Ho·mer'ic, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre'ho·ri'zon, n. See PRE-, 1 b.

pre·hor'ror, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·hos'tile, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·hos·til'i·ty, n.

pre'hu·mil'i·ate, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'hu·mil'i·a'tion, n.

pre·hu'mor, n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·hun'ger, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre'i·de'a, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre'i·den'ti·fy, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'i·den'ti·fi·ca'tion, n.

preif. ✝ PROOF, PROVE.

preignotary. ✝ PRENOTARY.

pre'il·lu'mi·nate, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'il·lu'mi·na'tion, n.

pre·il'lus·trate, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·il·lus·tra'tion, n.

pre·im'age, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·im·ag'ine, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·im·ag'i·nar'y, adj. — pre·im·ag'i·na'tion, n.

pre·im·bibe', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·im·bue', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·im'i·tate, v. t., pre·im·i·ta'tion, n., pre·im'i·ta·tive, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·im·mi·gra'tion, n. See PRE-, 2.

pre·im·pair', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·im·pair'ment, n.

pre·im·part', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·im·pe'ri·al, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·im·port', n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·im·por·ta'tion, n.

pre·im·por'tance, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·im·por'tant, adj. — pre·im·por'tant·ly, adv.

pre·im·pose', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·im·pos'al, n. — pre·im·po·si'tion, n.

pre·im·press', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·im·pres'sion, n. — pre'·im·pre·sive, adj.

pre·im·prove', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·im·prove'ment, n.

prein (Scot. prĕn). Scot. var. of PREEN, n.

pre·in·au'gu·ral, adj. See PRE-, 2. — pre·in·au'gu·rate, v. t.

pre'·in·can'ti·al, adj. & n. See PRE-, 2.

pre'·In·car'i·al, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·in·cen'tive, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·in·cline', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·in·cli·na'tion, n.

pre·in·clude', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·in·clu'sion, n.

pre·in·cor'po·rate, v. t. & adj. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·in·cor·po·ra'tion, n.

pre·in·crease', n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·in·debt'ed, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·in·debt'ed·ness, n.

pre·in·dem'ni·fy, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·in·dem·ni·fi·ca'tion, n. — pre·in·dem'ni·ty, n.

pre·in·de·pend'ence, adj. See PRE-, 2. — pre·in·de·pend'ent, adj. — pre·in·de·pend'ent·ly, adv. [PRE-, 2.]

pre'·In·di·an, n. & adj. See pre·in·di·cate, v. i., pre·in·di·ca'tion, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·in·dis·pose', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·in·dis·po·si'tion, n.

pre·in·duce', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·in·duce'ment, n. — pre'·in·duc'tion, n. — pre·in·duc'tive, adj.

pre·in·dulge', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·in·dul'gence, n. — pre'·in·dul'gent, adj.

pre·in·dus'tri·al, adj., pre·in'·dus·try, n. See PRE-, 2.

pre·in·fect', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·in·fec'tion, n.

pre·in·fer', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·in'fer·ence, n. [PRE-, 2.]

pre·in·fec'tion·al, adj. See pre·in·flict', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·in·flic'tion, n.

pre·in'flu·ence, n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·in·form', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·in·for·ma'tion, n.

pre·in·hab'it, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·in·hab'it·ant, n. — pre·in·hab·i·ta'tion, n.

pre·in·here', v. i. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·in·her'it, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·in·her'it·ance, n.

pre·in·i'tial, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·in·i'ti·a'tion, n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·in·i'ti·ate, n. & v. t.

pre·in·jure, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·in·ju'ri·ous, adj. — pre·in'ju·ry, n. [PRE-, 1 a & 2.]

pre·in·qui·si'tion, n. & adj. See pre·in·scribe', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·in·scrip'tion, n.

pre·in·sert', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·in·ser'tion, n.

pre·in·sin'u·ate, v. i. & i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·in·sin'u·at'ing, adj. — pre·in·sin'u·at'ing·ly, adv. — pre·in·sin'u·a'tion, n.

pre·in·spect', v. t., pre·in·spec'tion, n., pre·in·spec'tor, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·in·spire', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·in·stall', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·in·stal·la'tion, n.

pre·in·still', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·in·stil·la'tion, n.

pre·in·su·late, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·in·su·la'tion, n.

pre·in·sult', n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·in·sure', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·in·sur'ance, n. [PRE-, 1 a.] pre·in·tel·lec'tual, adj. See pre·in·tel'li·gence, n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·in·tel'li·gent, adj. — pre·in·tel'li·gent·ly, adv.

pre·in·tend', v. t., pre·in·ten'tion, n., pre·in·ter·cede', v. i., pre·in·ter·ces'sion, n., pre·in·ter·change', v. t., pre·in·ter·course, n., pre·in·ter·est, n. & v., pre·in·ter·fere', v. i., pre·in·ter·fer'ence, n., pre·in·ter·pret, v. t., pre·in·ter·pre·ta'tion, n., pre'·in·ter·pre·ta'tive, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. [PRE-, 2.]

pre·in·ter·view, n. & v. t. See pre·in·vent', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·in·ven'tion, n. — pre'·in·ven'tive, adj.

pre·in·ven·to'ry, n. See PRE-, 2.

pre·in·vest' (prē'ĭn·vĕst'), v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·in·vest'ment (-mĕnt), n.

pre·in·ves'ti·gate, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·in·ves·ti·ga'tion, n. — pre·in·ves'ti·ga·tor, n.

pre·in·vi·ta'tion, n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·in·vite', v. t. [1 a.] pre·in·vo·ca'tion, n. See PRE-, 1 pre·in·volve', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·in·volve'ment, n.

pre'Irish, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·ir·ri·ga'tion, n. See PRE-, 2. — pre·ir·ri·ga·tion·al, adj.

preise. ✝ PRAISE, PRESS, PRICE.

pre'–Is'lam, adj. & n. See PRE-, 2. — pre'–Is·lam'ic, adj. — pre'–Is'lam·ite, n. — pre'–Is·lam·it'ic, adj.

pre'–Is'ra·el·ite, adj. & n. See PRE-, 2. — pre'–Is'ra·el·it'ish, adj.

pre·is'sue, n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·is'su·ance, n.

Preis·val'sky's horse. See PRZEWALSKI'S HORSE.

pre'–Jew'ish, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre'–Jo·han'nine, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·jink'. Var. of PREJINK. Scot.

pre'–John·so'ni·an, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·jour·nal·is'tic, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·ju'di·ca·cy, n. Prejudice; prepossession. Obs.

pre·ju'di·cal, adj. Obs. a Prejudicial. b Prejudicial.

pre·ju'di·cant, adj. [L. praejudicans.] Prejudging. Obs.

prej'u·dice·less, adj. See -LESS.

prej'u·dice·proof' (66), adj. See -PROOF. [1 a.] pre'ju·di'ci·a·ble, adj. See PRE-, prej'u·di'cious (prĭj'ōō·dĭsh'ŭs), adj. Prejudicial; also prejudiced. Rare. — prej'u·di'cious·ly, adv. Rare.

---

pre·la'brum (prē·lā'brŭm), n. [NL.] Zool. The clypeus of an insect. Rare.

pre·lach'ry·mal (prē·lăk'rĭ·măl), adj. Med. In front of the lachrymal sac; as, a prelachrymal abscess.

pre·lac'te·al (-lăk'tē·ăl), adj. Zool. Preceding the milk teeth; — applied by some to certain rudimentary teeth of marsupials.

prel'a·cy (prĕl'ȧ·sĭ), n.; pl. -CIES (-sĭz). [ML. praelatia See PRELATE.] 1. The office or dignity of a prelate; a benefice held by a prelate.

2. Prelates collectively; the body of ecclesiastical dignitaries.

3. Church government by prelates; — chiefly a hostile term for episcopacy.

pre'lap·sar'i·an (prē'lăp·sâr'ĭ·ăn; 79), adj. [pre- + L. lapsus a falling.] Theol. Characteristic of, or pertaining to, the time or state before the fall of man.

prel'ate (prĕl'ĭt), n. [ME. prelat, fr. OF. prelat, fr. ML. praelatus, fr. L. praelatus, used as past part. of praeferre to prefer, but from a different root. See ELATE.] 1. An ecclesiastic of superior rank and authority; a dignitary of the church. Specif.: R.C.Ch. a An ecclesiastic who has jurisdiction in foro externo (see FORUM EXTERNUM), as pope, cardinal, archbishop, bishop, abbot, and the high officials of the Roman Curia. b One on whom the title and rank are conferred as a mark of honor. All such prelates carry the title Monsignor. They wear a distinctive costume and enjoy, especially in the higher ranks, special liturgical or ceremonial privileges. See PRECEDENCE.

2. A member of an episcopate; — often used invidiously esp. by those in conflict with the Church of England in the 17th century over the spiritual authority of bishops.

3. A chief priest, as of the Jews or druids. Obs.

4. A person in authority; a superior; chief; head. Obs.

5. A color, reddish-blue in hue, of high saturation and low brilliance. Cf. COLOR.

prel'ate (prĕl'ĭt), v. i. To act as a prelate. Obs.

prel'a·te'i·ty (prĕl'ȧ·tē'ĭ·tĭ), n. Nature of a prelate. Obs.

prel'at·ess (prĕl'ĭt·ĕs; -ĭs; 119), n. A woman prelate, as an abbess; also, humorously, the wife of a prelate.

pre·la'tial (prē·lā'shăl), adj. Prelatical.

pre·lat'ic (prē·lăt'ĭk), adj. 1. Of, pertaining to, of the nature of, or resembling, a prelate or prelacy.

2. = PRELATICAL, 2.

pre·lat'i·cal (-ĭ·kăl), adj. 1. = PRELATIC, 1.

2. Adhering to prelacy; — often used hostilely for episcopal. — pre·lat'i·cal·ly, adv. — pre·lat'i·cal·ness, n.

pre·la'tion (prē·lā'shŭn), n. [OF., fr. LL. praelatio preference. See PRELATE.] 1. A holding forth; utterance; pronunciation. Obs.

2. Act of preferring, or state of being preferred; preferment; promotion; hence, a dignity; preference. Now Rare.

3. Act of placing before or in front; prefixion. Obs.

prel'at·ish (prĕl'ĭt·ĭsh), adj. Prelatical; — used derogatorily. Milton.

prel'a·tism (prĕl'ȧ·tĭz'm), n. Prelacy; episcopacy or adherence to it; — chiefly derogative.

The councils . . . were foully corrupted with ungodly prelatism. Milton.

prel'a·tist (-tĭst), n. One who supports or advocates prelacy; hence, often hostilely, a High Churchman.

prel'a·tize (prĕl'ȧ·tĭz), v. t. & i. To make, or to be or become, prelatical; to bring under prelatical influence.

prel'at·ry (prĕl'ĭt·rĭ), n. Prelaty; prelacy. Rare.

prel'a·ture (prĕl'ȧ·tŭr), n. [F. prélature, fr. ML. praelatura.] a State or dignity of a prelate; also, an order of prelates; prelacy. b A prelatic benefice or bishopric.

pre·lect', prae·lect' (prē·lĕkt'), v. i. To discourse publicly; to lecture.

He would prelect over some thriving plant. Stevenson.

pre·lec'tion, prae·lec'tion (prē·lĕk'shŭn), n. [L. praelectio.] 1. A lecture or discourse read or delivered in public, as to students. "The prelections of Faber." Sir M. Hale.

2. A previous reading; a reading beforehand. Rare.

pre·lec'tor, prae·lec'tor (-tĕr), n. [L. praelector.] A reader, lecturer, or professor, as in a university; in Cambridge University, the college officer who supervises matriculation and graduation. Brit.

pre·lec'tress, prae·lec'tress (-trĕs; -trĭs; 119), n. A female lecturer. Rare.

pre·leg'a·cy (prē·lĕg'ȧ·sĭ), n.; pl. -CIES (-sĭz). Roman & Civil Law. A legacy payable before the testator's estate is distributed to heirs and general legatees. Hence: pre'leg·a·tee' (prē'lĕg·ȧ·tē'), n. — pre'le·gate' (prē'lĕ·gāt'), v. t.

pre'li·ba'tion (prē'lĭ·bā'shŭn), n. [LL. praelibatio, fr. praelibare to taste beforehand.] 1. A foretaste.

2. A preliminary offering. Rare.

pre·lim' (prē·lĭm'), n. & adj. Short for PRELIMINARY. Slang, U. S.

pre·lim'i·nar'y (prē·lĭm'ĭ·nĕr'ĭ or, esp. Brit., -nēr·ĭ), adj. [pre- + L. liminaris belonging to a threshold, fr. limen, liminis, threshold, entrance; cf. F. préliminaire, ML. praeliminaris. See LIMIT.] Introductory; previous; preceding the main discourse or business; prefatory; as, preliminary remarks; preliminary articles to a treaty; preliminary measures. Also, lying before; leading to; at the threshold of. "Hills that are preliminary to the mountains." John Burroughs.

Syn. — Preparatory; prior, precedent, antecedent.

Ant. — Subsequent, consequent.

pre·lim'i·nar'y, n.; pl. -IES (-ĭz). That which precedes a main discourse, work, design, or business; something introductory or preparatory; a preparatory step, measure, etc.; by ellipsis, a preliminary examination; as, the preliminaries to a negotiation; to take one's preliminaries. Chiefly in pl.

Syn. — Introduction, preface, prelude.

— pre·lim'i·nar'i·ly, adv.

pre·lim'it (prē·lĭm'ĭt), v. t. Also pre·lim'i·tate (-ĭ·tāt). To limit previously; to keep within prescribed bounds; as, a prelimited discourse. — pre·lim·i·ta'tion (prē'lĭm·ĭ·tā'shŭn), n.

pre·lin'gual (prē·lĭng'gwăl), adj. Previous to the use, acquisition, or development of language; as, an infant in the prelingual stage.

pre'lin·guis'tic (prē'lĭng·gwĭs'tĭk), adj. Prelingual.

pre'—Lin·nae'an (prē'lĭ·nē'ăn), adj. Biol. Of or pertaining to the period prior to the adoption of binomial nomenclature by Linnaeus; specif.: a Bot. Prior to 1753, the date of the first edition of his Species Plantarum. b Zool. Prior to 1758, the date of the tenth edition of his Systema Naturae.

pre·lit'er·ate (prē·lĭt'ĕr·ĭt), adj. [See PRE-; LITERATE.] Antedating the use of writing; as, a preliterate culture; preliterate peoples.

pre·lith'ic (prē·lĭth'ĭk), adj. [pre- + lithic.] Pertaining to a stage of human culture antedating the stone ages.

pre'lo·cal·i·za'tion (prē'lō·kăl·ĭ·zā'shŭn; -ĭ·zā'shŭn), n. Embryol. Segregation in the egg or early blastomeres of material destined to form particular tissues or organs.

pre·log'i·cal (prē·lŏj'ĭ·kăl), adj. Also pre·log'ic (-ĭk). Not yet logical; belonging to or characterized by a supposed primitive mode of thought with no regard to logical consistency.

pre·lo'ral (-lō'răl; 181), pre·lo're·al (-rē·ăl), adj. Zool. Situated in front of the lores.

prel'ude (prĕl'ūd; prē'lūd; 277), n. [F. prélude, fr. ML. praeludium, fr. L. praeludere. See PRELUDE, v.] 1. A preliminary play. Rare.

2. An introductory performance, action, event, etc., preceding and preparing for the principal or a more important matter; a preliminary part, etc.; an introduction; preface. Specif.: Music. a A strain, section, or movement introducing the theme or chief subject, as of a fugue, suite, etc., and even an oratorio or opera. b An opening voluntary in a service.

Syn. — PRELUDE, OVERTURE. PRELUDE suggests that which is preliminary or introductory to a larger or more important work or movement; OVERTURE, as here compared, suggests more grandiose or orchestral effect; as, "the prelude to some brighter world" (Tennyson); "The winds begin to . . . play their overture to thunder" (Wolcott). For technical musical distinctions, see defs.

Prel'ude, The. An autobiographical poem (completed 1805) by Wordsworth, described in a subtitle as the "Growth of a Poet's Mind."

prel'ude (prĕl'ūd; prē'lūd; formerly, and still occasionally prē·lūd'), v.; -UD·ED (-ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -UD·ING (-ĭng). [L. praeludere, praelusum, fr. prae before + ludere to play; cf. F. préluder. See LUDICROUS.] Intransitive: To give, or serve as, a prelude; to furnish an introduction; to be introductory; Music, to play an introduction or prelude.

We are preluding too largely, and must come at once to the point. Jeffrey.

——, Transitive: 1. To serve as prelude to; to precede as introductory; to introduce; to foreshadow.

[Music] preluding some great tragedy. Longfellow.

2. To play as a prelude; to play or perform a prelude to.

‖Pré'lude' à l'A'près'—mi'di' d'un Faune' (prā'lüd' à lȧ'-prē'mē'dē' dŭn fōn'). [F.] Literally, Prelude to the Afternoon of a Faun; — a symphonic poem for orchestra (1892) by Debussy. See TONE POEM.

pre·lud'er (prē·lūd'ĕr; prĕl'ū·dĕr), n. One who or that which preludes.

pre·lu'di·al (prē·lū'dĭ·ăl), adj. Of or pertaining to a prelude; of the nature of a prelude; introductory.

‖pre·lu'di·o (prā·lōō'dyō; E. prē·lū'dĭ·ō), n.; pl. -DI (prā·lōō'dē). [It.] Music. A prelude.

pre·lu'di·ous (prē·lū'dĭ·ŭs), adj. Preludial. — pre·lu'di·ous·ly, adv.

pre·lu'di·um, prae·lu'di·um (-ŭm), n. [ML. praeludium.] A prelude; introduction; preliminary. Now Rare.

His other griefs but dim preludiums were. J. Beaumont.

prel'u·dize (prĕl'ū·dīz; prē'lū-), v. i. To play or compose a prelude.

pre·lum'bar (prē·lŭm'bĕr), adj. In front of the lumbar vertebrae or region.

pre·lu'sion (prē·lū'zhŭn), n. [L. praelusio.] A prelude; introduction. Thackeray.

pre·lu'sive (-sĭv), pre·lu'so·ry (-sō·rĭ), adj. [See PRELUDE.] Of the nature of a prelude; introductory; indicating that something is to follow. "Prelusive trumpet blasts." Browning. — pre·lu'sive·ly, pre·lu'so·ri·ly, adv.

pre'—man' (prē'măn'), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn'). A hypothetical protohuman primate, the immediate predecessor of man.

pre'ma·ter'ni·ty (prē'mȧ·tûr'nĭ·tĭ), adj. [pre- + maternity.] Of, pertaining to, or designating, the condition or circumstances of an expectant mother; as, prematernity medical care.

pre'ma·ture' (prē'mȧ·tūr'; prē'mȧ·tŭr or, esp. Brit., prĕm'-ȧ·tŭr; 66; 277), adj. [L. praematurus, fr. prae before + maturus ripe. See MATURE.] 1. Mature or ripe before the proper or usual time. Obs.

2. Happening, arriving, existing, or performed before the proper or usual time; adopted, arriving, or received too soon; too early; untimely; as, a premature fall of snow; premature birth, opinion, decay, report.

Syn. — PREMATURE, PRECOCIOUS. That is PREMATURE which comes into being, happens, or arrives too soon; the word applies to actions, occasions, events, rather than to concrete things; that is PRECOCIOUS which is prematurely ripe or developed; the word refers esp. to mental powers; as, "a premature generalization" (Stewart); "God screens us evermore from premature ideas. Our eyes are holden . . . until the hour arrives when the mind is ripened" (Emerson); a premature frost; "precocious and conceited wits" (Cudworth). Cf. MATURE.

Ant. — Tardy, delayed, late; overripe.

— pre'ma·ture'ly, adv. — pre'ma·ture'ness, n.

pre'ma·ture' (see the adj.), n. Something which comes, happens, occurs, or the like, before the expected time; as: a An infant prematurely born. b Mil. A shell which bursts before the time set for its bursting.

pre'ma·ture', v. t. & i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'mat·u·ra'tion (prē'măt·ū·rā'shŭn), n.

pre'ma·tu'ri·ty (prē'mȧ·tū'rĭ·tĭ; prĕm'ȧ-; cf. PREMATURE, adj.), n. [F. prématurité.] Quality or state of being premature; specif.: a Early ripeness or flowering; — said of plants. b Early maturity or development; precocity. c Untimely maturity; undue earliness or haste; hastiness.

pre'max·il'la (prē'măks·ĭl'ȧ), n.; pl. -LAE (-ē). [NL. See PRE-; MAXILLA.] Anat. & Zool. One of a pair of bones of the upper jaw of vertebrates, situated between and in front of the maxillae; an intermaxilla. In man the premaxillae form the median anterior part of the superior maxillary bones, but in most other mammals they are distinct and bear the incisor teeth; in birds they are coalesced, forming the principal part of the upper mandible; in teleost fishes their supposed homologues constitute the anterior part of the upper jaw and usually bear teeth.

pre·max'il·lar'y (prē·măk'sĭ·lĕr'ĭ or, esp. Brit., -măks·ĭl'-ȧ·rĭ), adj. Anat. & Zool. Situated in front of the maxillary bones; designating, or pertaining to, the premaxillae; intermaxillary. — n. A premaxilla.

pre·me'di·a (-mē'dĭ·ȧ), n. [NL.] A premedian vein.

pre·me'di·al (-ăl), adj. & n. Premedian.

pre·me'di·an (-mē'dĭ·ăn), adj. Zool. a In front of the middle of the body. b Formerly, designating a vein of the wings of insects now regarded as a part of the media. — n. A premedian vein.

pre·med'ic (-mĕd'ĭk), n. A premedical student. Colloq.

pre·med'i·cal (-mĕd'ĭ·kăl), adj. [See PRE-; MEDICAL.] Med. Preceding medicine; specif., preceding and preparing for the regular study of medicine; as, the premedical course in a university; a premedical student.

pre'med·i·ca'tion (prē'mĕd·ĭ·kā'shŭn), n. Med. Preliminary medication, as the giving of a quieting drug before an operation.

pre'me·di·e'val·ism (prē'mē·dĭ·ē'văl·ĭz'm; -mĕd'ĭ-), n. Devotion to cults and ideas antedating a medieval period; primitiveness.

pre·med'i·tate (prē·mĕd'ĭ·tāt), v.; -TAT'ED (-tāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -TAT'ING (-tāt'ĭng). [L. praemeditatus, past part. of praemeditari, fr. prae before + meditari to meditate. See MEDITATE.] Transitive: To think on, and revolve in the mind, beforehand; to contrive and design previously.

With words premeditated thus he said. Dryden.

——, Intransitive: To think, consider, deliberate, or revolve in the mind, beforehand.

pre·med'i·tate (-tāt), adj. [L. praemeditatus, past part.] Premeditated. Obs. — pre·med'i·tate·ly, adv. Obs.

pre'med·i·ta'tion (prē'mĕd·ĭ·tā'shŭn), n. [F. or L.; F. préméditation, fr. L. praemeditatio.] Act of meditating beforehand; specif.: a Previous deliberation as to action; forethought; planning or contriving. b Thinking of beforehand. c Law. Consideration or planning of an act beforehand such as to show intent to commit that act; as, purchase of poison before a murder may evidence premeditation.

pre·med'i·ta'tive (prē·mĕd'ĭ·tā'tĭv), adj. Given to, or characterized by, premeditation.

pre·med'i·ta'tor (-mĕd'ĭ·tā'tĕr), n. One who premeditates.

pre'meg·a·lith'ic (prē'mĕg·ȧ·lĭth'ĭk), adj. Archaeol. Prior to the megalithic period.

pre·men'stru·al (prē·mĕn'stroō·ăl), adj. Physiol. & Med. Of or pertaining to the period just preceding menstruation; as, premenstrual changes in the uterus.

pre'me·rid'i·an (prē'mē·rĭd'ĭ·ăn; -mē-), adj. [See PRE-; MERIDIAN.] Before noon.

pre'me·tal'lic (-mē·tăl'ĭk), adj. Previous to the knowledge of the use of metals.

pre'mi·al (prē'mĭ·ăl), adj. [LL. praemialis.] Of the nature of a reward. Rare.

pre'mi·ant (-ănt), adj. [L. praemians, pres. part.] Rewarding. Rare.

pre'mi·ate (prē'mĭ·āt), v. t.; -AT'ED (-āt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -AT'ING (-āt'ĭng). [L. praemiari to stipulate for a reward.] To give a prize or premium to or for.

pre'mi·er (prē'mĭ·ĕr; prĕm'yĕr), adj. [F., fr. L. primarius of the first rank, principal. See PRIMARY.] 1. First in position, rank, or importance; chief; principal; leading; as, the premier place; (Obs.) premier minister.

2. First in time; earliest; most ancient; as, a premier peer, one bearing the oldest title of his degree.

pre'mi·er (prē'mĭ·ĕr; prē·mēr'; prĕm'yĕr; 277), n. 1. The first minister of state; more generally, chief officer; esp., the prime minister, as of France, Japan, or Poland. See PRIME MINISTER b: Forms of Address, in Appendix.

2. Roulette. A bet placed at the bottom of the first vertical column, or in the space marked P12, taking in the first 12 numbers (1 to 12) and paying 2 for 1.

pre'mi·er, v. i. To play the, or act as, premier.

pre'mi·er·al (-ăl), adj. Of or pertaining to a premier.

‖pre·mier' dan'seur' (prē·myā' dăn'sûr'), masc., pre·mière' dan'seuse' (prē·myâr' dăn'sûz'), fem. [F., lit., first dancer.] A dancer who takes the, or a, leading part in a ballet.

‖pre·mière' (prē·myâr'), adj. fem. [F., prop. fem. of premier first. See PREMIER, adj.] First; chief; as, a première danseuse. — n. fem.; pl. -MIÈRES (F. prē·myâr'). a The leading lady of a group, esp. in a theatrical cast. b (pron. usu. prē·mēr') A first performance, as of a play; a first night.

pre'mi·er·ess (prē'mĭ·ĕr·ĕs; prĕm'yĕr-; -ĭs; 119), n. The wife of a premier.

pre·mier' jus' (prē·myā' zhü'). [F., lit., first juice.] The first runnings of beef tallow obtained by heating the best portions of the fat (from the kidneys, bowels, and caul) to a temperature of not above about 50° C. (122° F.). It is used chiefly in making oleomargarine.

---

pre'-ju·di'ci·ar'y, prae'-ju·di'-ci·ar'y (prē'jōō·dĭsh'ĭ·ĕr'ĭ; -ēr·ĭ), adj. Rom. Law. = PRE-JUDICIAL.
pre·jun'ior, adj. See PRE-, 3. pre'ju·ris·dic'tion, n. See PRE-, 1 a. pre·jus'ti·fy, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·jus·ti·fi·ca'tion, n.
pre'-Jus·tin'i·an, adj. See PRE-, 2. pre·ju've·nile, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. pre·Kant'i·an, adj. See PRE-, 2. preke, n. The octopus. Obs. preket. † PRICKET. [See PRE-, 3.] pre·kin'der·gar'ten, n. & adj.
pre·kin'dle, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. pre·knit', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. pre·know', v. t., pre·know'edge, n. See PRE-, 1 a. pre'-Ko·ran'ic, adj. See PRE-, 2. pre·la'bel, n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. pre·la'bi·al, adj. See PRE-, 1 b. pre·la'bor, n. & v. i. See PRE-, 1 a. pre·lac'ri·mal. Var. of PRELACHRYMAL.
pre·lan'guage, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. pre'late·hood, n. See -HOOD. pre'late·ship, n. See -SHIP.
pre'-Lat'in, n. See PRE-, 2. [Obs.] prel'at·y (prĕl'ȧ·tĭ), n. Prelacy. pre·launch', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.
— pre·launch'ing, n. [2.]
pre'-Lau·ren'tian, adj. See PRE-, pre·law'ful, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.
— pre·law'ful·ly, adv. — pre·law'ful·ness, n.
pre·lease', n. & v. See PRE-, 1 a. pre·lector·ship, prae·lec'tor·ship, n. See -SHIP. [3.] pre·lec'ture, n. & adj. See PRE-, pre·le'gal, adj. See PRE-, 1 a & 3.
pre·leg'end, n. & adj. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·leg'end·ar'y, adj. [1a.] pre·leg'is·la'tive, adj. See PRE-, pre·li'a·ble, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.
— pre'li·a·bil'i·ty, n. pre'li·a'tion (prē'lĭ·ā'shŭn), n. [LL. proeliatio.] Battling. Obs.
pre·lib'er·al, adj. & n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'lib·er·al'i·ty, n.
— pre·lib'er·al·ly, adv.
pre·lib'er·ate, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.
— pre'lib·er·a'tion, n. [1 a.] pre·li'cense, n. & v. t. See PRE-, preliminary agreement. = BINDER, 13.
prel'in·pin'pin, n. See POWDER PIMPERLIMPIMP. pre·liq'ui·date, v. t. See PRE-, 2.
— pre·liq·ui·da'tion, n.
pre·lit'er·al, adj., pre·lit'er·al·ly, adv., pre·lit'er·al·ness, n. See PRE-, 1 a. pre·lit'er·ary, adj. See PRE-, 2. pre·lit'er·a·ture, n. See PRE-, 2. pre'lit·i·ga'tion, n. See PRE-, 1 a. pre·loan', n. & v. See PRE-, 1 a. pre·lo'cate, v. i. & i. See PRE-, 1 a. pre·loss', n. See PRE-, 1 a. [1 c.] pre'-Lu·ci·fe'ri·an, adj. See PRE-, pre·lu'siv. Prelusive. Ref. Sp.
pre'-Lu'ther·an, adj. & n. See PRE-, 2. pre·lux·u'ri·ous, adj. See PRE-, 2. pre'ma·chine', n. & adj. See PRE-, 2. pre·mad'ness, n. See PRE-, 1 a. pre'main·tain', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·main'te·nance, n.
pre·make', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·mak'er, n. — pre·mak'ing, n.
pre'-Ma·lay', pre'-Ma·lay'an, pre'-Ma·lay'sian, adj. See PRE-, 2. pre'man·dib'u·lar, adj. See PRE-, 1 b. pre·man'hood, n. See PRE-, 2. pre'ma·ni'a·cal, adj., pre·man'i·fest, adj. & v., pre'man·i·festa'tion, n. See PRE-, 1 a. pre'man'kind', n. See PRE-, 2. pre'man·u·fac'ture, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'man·u·fac'tur·er, n. — pre'man·u·fac'tur·ing, n.
pre·mar'i·tal, adj. [pre- + marital.] See PRE-, 2.
pre·mar'ry, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.
— pre·mar'riage, n. [PRE-, 2.]
pre'-Marx'i·an, adj. & n. See PRE-, 1 a. pre·mas'ter·y, n. See PRE-, 1 a. pre·match', n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. [PRE-, 1 a.] pre·mate', n. & v. t. & i. See pre·ma·te'ri·al, adj. See PRE-, 2. pre'mat·ri·mo'ni·al, adj. See PRE-, 2. [SEE ABORTION, 1.] premature delivery or labor.
pre·meas'ure, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.
— pre·meas'ure·ment, n. [1 a.] pre'me·chan'i·cal, adj. See PRE-, pre·me'di·ate, v. t. & i. To advocate; to mediate. Obs.
pre·med'i·cate, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. pre·me'di·e'val, adj. See PRE-, 2. pre·med'i·tat'ed·ly, adv. of premeditated, past part. [-NESS.] pre·med'i·tat'ed·ness, n. See pre·med'i·tat'ing·ly, adv. of premeditating, pres. part. pre'men·e·ran'dum, n. See PRE-, 1 a. pre·men'ace, n. & v. t. See PRE-, pre·men'tion, n. & v. t., pre·mer'it, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. [2.] pre'-Mes'si·an'ic, adj. See PRE-, pre·me·thod'i·cal, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. [PRE-, 2.] pre'-Meth'od·ist, n. & adj. See pre'mi·a, n., pl. of PREMIUM. Archaic.
pre·mid'night', n., pre·mid'sum'mer, n. & adj. See PRE-, 2. pre'mi·er·ship', n. See -SHIP.
pre·mil'i·tar'y, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre′mil·le·nar′i·an (prē′mĭl·ē·nâr′ĭ·ăn; 79), n. One who holds the doctrine of premillennialism. — adj. Pertaining to or designating the views of the premillenarians. — pre′mil·le·nar′i·an·ism (-ĭz′m), n.

pre′mil·len′ni·al (prē′mĭ·lĕn′ĭ·ăl), adj. Coming before the millennium; previous to the millennium; — said esp. of the Second Advent; pertaining to the present world. — pre′mil·len′ni·al·ly, adv.

pre′mil·len′ni·al·ism (-ĭz′m), n. Theol. The doctrine that the second coming of Christ precedes, and ushers in, the millennium; — opposed to postmillennialism. See MILLENNIUM, 2. — pre′mil·len′ni·al·ist (-ĭst), n.

pre′mil·len′ni·al·ize (-īz), v. i. To preach premillennialism.

pre′mil·len′ni·an (-mĭ·lĕn′ĭ·ăn), adj. Premillennial.

pre′mi·ous (prē′mĭ·ŭs), adj. [L. praemiosus, fr. praemium a premium.] Rich in gifts. Rare.

pre·mis′al (prē·mīz′ăl; -′l), n. The act or an instance of making or stating a premise.

prem′ise, prem′iss (prĕm′ĭs), n. [OF. premisse, fr. fem. of L. praemissus, past part. of praemittere to send before, fr. prae before + mittere to send. See MISSION.] 1. A proposition antecedently supposed or proved; a basis of argument; specif.: a Logic. A proposition stated or assumed as leading to a conclusion; either of the first two propositions of a syllogism, from which the conclusion is drawn. Thus: "All sinners deserve punishment: A B is a sinner." These propositions (the premises) being true or admitted, the conclusion follows, that A B deserves punishment. b Hence, a presupposition; something assumed or taken for granted, esp. something implied as a condition precedent.

The changes which modernity implies affect the premises of all human conduct. Walter Lippmann.

2. a Obs. A condition stated beforehand; a stipulation.

The premises observed,
Thy will by my performance shall be served. Shak.

b An antecedent happening or circumstance; — usually pl.

3. pl. Law. a Matters previously stated or set forth; hence: The part of a deed constituting all that precedes the habendum, orig., the first of the eight parts of an old-style deed. Its office is to state the names and additions of the parties, make the recitals necessary to explain the transaction, the consideration, and the certainty of the parties, and of the land to be conveyed. b The stating part of a bill in equity setting forth the causes of complaint, the parties against whom redress is sought, etc.

4. pl. Law. The property conveyed in a deed; hence, in general, a piece of land or real estate; sometimes, esp. in fire-insurance papers, a building or buildings on land; as, to lease premises; the premises insured. Sometimes loosely applied to personal property, as a vessel.

— in the, or these, premises. In regard to the matter or subject before mentioned or in question.

pre·mise′ (prē·mīz′), v.; -MISED′ (-mīzd′); -MIS′ING (-mīz′ĭng). [Cf. MF. premis, fem. premise, past part. of premettre to put first, to premise, fr. L. praemittere to send before. See PREMISE, n.] Transitive: 1. To send before the time, or beforehand; hence, to cause to be before something else; to employ previously. Obs. "If a cathartic be premised." E. Darwin.

2. To set forth beforehand, or as introductory to the main subject; to offer previously, as something to explain or aid in understanding what follows, esp. premises or first propositions, on which rest subsequent reasonings.

I premise these particulars that the reader may know that I enter upon it as a very ungrateful task. Addison.

3. To presuppose or imply (something) as pre-existent; to postulate as a condition precedent.

A morality of humanism presents far greater difficulties than a morality premised on theism. Walter Lippmann.

4. To introduce (something) by or with (some other thing).

——, Intransitive: To make a premise; to set forth something as a premise. "I should premise." Browning.

pre·mi′so·ry (prē·mī′zō·rĭ), adj. [See PREMISE, v.] Preceding; introductory; as, a premisory warning.

pre′mi·um (prē′mĭ·ŭm; 159), n.; pl. PREMIUMS (-ŭmz). [L. praemium, orig., what one has got before or better than others, fr. prae before + emere take, buy. See REDEEM.] 1. A reward or recompense; a prize to be won by being before another or others in a competition; reward or prize to be adjudged; bounty; as, a premium for good behavior or scholarship, for discoveries, etc.

To think it not the necessity, but the premium and privilege of life, to eat and sleep without any regard to glory. Burke.

2. Something offered or given for the loan of money; bonus; — sometimes synonymous with interest, but generally signifying a sum, or bonus, in addition to the capital.

Tempted to lend, by great premiums and large interest. Swift.

3. A sum in advance of, or in addition to, the nominal or par value of anything; as, he sold his stock at a premium.

4. a An additional wage given a worker for production above a specified amount. b A payment made for instruction in a trade or profession, esp., as formerly, under the apprentice system.

5. Card Games. Any special bonus agreed upon for unusual hands, such as for high bids at auction pinochle, slams at bridge, etc.

6. Econ. The excess in purchasing power, or exchange value, of one form of money over another of the same nominal value, as of gold dollars over paper ones (gold premium), or of silver dollars over paper ones (silver premium).

7. Insurance. The consideration paid, whether in money or otherwise, for a contract of insurance. The premium may take any of various nominal forms, as that of an initiation fee, an admission fee, an assessment, or a stipulated single or periodic payment, according to the nature of the insurance. The premium required solely to meet the risk assumed, that is, the amount that will just pay the insurance liability on its becoming due without paying any expenses or contingent charges, is called the net, or pure, premium, or, sometimes, the mathematical, or risk, premium; the sum of the net premium and the loading (which see) is the gross, or office, premium; the smallest single charge for which an insurer will write certain policies is known as a minimum premium; the pro-rata share of a total premium for the expired portion of a policy term is the earned premium; and a premium which becomes smaller per unit of insurance as the amount carried increases is a sliding-scale premium. In life insurance, specif., the amount required to meet the cost of insurance for each particular year is called the natural premium, this amount increasing from year to year for any given unit of protection; the sum that would meet the cost of insurance for the entire policy term in a single payment is called a single premium; the periodical sum required to meet the cost of insurance when distributed in a series of equal payments made annually, or at some other regular interval, is called a level premium, in which case the early payments exceed the cost of the actual protection and the later ones fall short of it.

— at a premium. Above par; hence, unusually valuable, as because of rareness; hard to get or find.

premium note. Insurance. A note given by the insured in payment of all or a portion of the premium.

‖pre′mi·um pu′di·ci′ti·ae (prē′mĭ·ŭm pū′dĭ·sĭsh′ĭ·ē). [NL.] Literally, the price of chastity; — used to designate the consideration of a contract for illicit cohabitation, which is generally enforceable only if under seal and for a past cohabitation. A contract for future intercourse is void.

premium system. Industrial Engin. A system for paying workmen in which the workman's hourly rate is guaranteed and a premium, usually a percentage of his hourly wage, is paid for doing the work in less than the standard time specified. In the Halsey premium system no limit is set to the amount the workman may earn. In the Rowan premium system the maximum a workman can earn is double his hourly rate.

pre·mo′lar (prē·mō′lẽr), adj. Anat. & Zool. In front of or preceding the molar teeth; specif., designating, or pert. to, certain teeth of mammals in front of the true molars (between them and the canines when the latter are present). In man there are two in each jaw on each side, termed, from their form, bicuspid teeth. Unlike the true molars, they are preceded by milk teeth, the milk molars, to which the term premolar has also been applied. — n. A premolar tooth.

pre·mon′ish (prē·mŏn′ĭsh), v. t. & i.; -ISHED (-ĭsht); -ISH·ING. [pre- + monish; cf. L. praemonere.] To forewarn; to admonish beforehand; to give previous warning. — pre·mon′ish·ment (-mĕnt), n. Rare.

pre′mo·ni′tion (prē′mō·nĭsh′ŭn), n. [LL. praemonitio. See PREMONISH.] 1. Previous warning, notice, or information; forewarning; as, a premonition of coming winter.

2. Anticipation of an event without conscious reason; presentiment; as, a premonition of evil or danger. Colloq.

pre·mon′i·tive (prē·mŏn′ĭ·tĭv), adj. Premonitory; forewarning.

pre·mon′i·tor (prē·mŏn′ĭ·tẽr), n. [L. praemonitor.] One who or that which premonishes.

pre·mon′i·to′ry (prē·mŏn′ĭ·tō′rĭ or, esp. Brit., -tẽr·ĭ), adj. [LL. praemonitorius.] Giving previous warning or notice; as, premonitory symptoms of disease. — pre·mon′i·to′ri·ly (-tō′rĭ·lĭ; -tẽr·ĭ·lĭ), adv.

Pre·mon′stra·ten′sian (prē·mŏn′strā·tĕn′shăn), n. [ML. Premonstratensis of or pert. to Prémontré, in France.] R.C.Ch. One of a religious order of regular canons founded by St. Norbert at Prémontré near Laon, France, in 1119; — called also White Canons (from their habit), Norbertines, and Premonstrants. Of this order, only a few houses now exist. Its original rule was strict. — Pre·mon′stra·ten′sian, adj.

pre·morse′ (prē·mōrs′), adj. [L. praemorsus, past part. of praemordere to bite off, fr. prae before + mordere to bite.] Literally, bitten off; hence, Chiefly Bot., terminated abruptly, or as if bitten off; irregularly truncate; as, a premorse root.

pre·morse′, n. The blue scabious.

pre·move′ (prē·mōōv′), v. t.; -MOVED′ (-mōōvd′); -MOV′ING (-mōōv′ĭng). [LL. praemovere.] To move or excite to action beforehand; specif., Theol., to inspire; to determine the action of (someone) beforehand. — pre·mo′tion (-mō′shŭn), n. — pre·move′ment (-mōōv′mĕnt), n. — pre·mov′er (-mōōv′ẽr), n.

pre·mul′ti·ply (-mŭl′tĭ·plī), v. t.; -PLIED (-plīd); -PLY′ING. Math. To take an operator as first factor in multiplying. — pre′mul·ti·pli·ca′tion (prē′mŭl·tĭ·plĭ·kā′shŭn), n. — pre·mul′ti·pli′er (prē·mŭl′tĭ·plī′ẽr), n.

pre·mun′dane (prē·mŭn′dān), adj. Existing before, or antedating, the creation of the world; antemundane.

pre·mu′ni·to′ry (prē·mū′nĭ·tō′rĭ), adj. Pertaining to a praemunire.

pre·mu′ta·tive (-mū′tā·tĭv), adj. Gram. Modifying by the use of prefixes.

pre′-My′ce·nae′an (prē′mī′sē·nē′ăn), adj. Pertaining to a civilization in Greek lands earlier than the period to which characteristic Mycenaean objects belong, as the Early and Middle Minoan periods.

pre·my′e·lo·cyte′ (prē·mī′ē·lō·sīt′), n. Zool. A parent cell of a myelocyte.

pre′name′ (prē′nām′), n. A first, or Christian, name.

Pre·nan′thes (prē·năn′thēz), n. [NL., fr. Gr. prēnēs with the face or head down, prone + -anthes.] Bot. A genus of North American and Asiatic perennial herbs (family Cichoriaceae) with lobed or pinnatifid leaves and small heads of drooping ligulate flowers. P. altissima is called rattlesnake root, and P. alba, white lettuce. Syn. Nabalus.

pre·nar′i·al (prē·nâr′ĭ·ăl), adj. Anat. Pertaining to or in front of the nostrils.

pre·na′sal (-nā′zăl; -z′l), adj. Situated in front of the nasal bones or region; designating a cartilage or bone in the snout of certain animals, as pigs. — pre·na′sal, n.

pre·na′tal (-tăl; -t′l), adj. Before birth. — pre·na′tal·ly, adv.

prenatal clinic. Med. A clinic to advise expectant mothers as to food, health, and preparation for childbirth.

pre·na′tal·ist (prē·nā′tăl·ĭst), n. Theol. One who believes in the prenatal divinity of Jesus.

pren′der, pren′dre (prĕn′dẽr), n. [F. prendre to take, inf. as n.] Law. The power or right of taking a thing without its being offered.

pre′ne·phrit′ic (prē′nē·frĭt′ĭk; -nē-), adj. Med. Occurring before nephritis.

pre·neu′ral (prē·nū′răl), adj. [See PRE-.] Anat. In front of or anterior to the neural plate; specif., designating a bone forming part of the carapace of the turtle.

pre·no′ble (-nō′b'l), adj. Eminently noble. Southey.

pre·nod′al (-nōd′ăl; -′l), adj. [pre- + nodus + -al.] Zool. Between the nodus and the base of the wing in insects.

pre·nom′i·nate (prē·nŏm′ĭ·nāt), v. t.; -NAT′ED (-nāt′ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -NAT′ING (-nāt′ĭng). [L. praenominatus, past part. of praenominare.] To forename; to mention previously. Rare. — pre·nom′i·na′tion (-nā′shŭn), n. Rare.

pre·nom′i·nate (-nāt), adj. [L. praenominatus, past part.] Prenominated. Obs.

pre′no·ta′tion (prē′nō·tā′shŭn), n. Observance beforehand; prognostication.

pre·note′ (prē·nōt′), v. t.; -NOT′ED (-nōt′ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -NOT′ING (-nōt′ĭng). [L. praenotare, fr. prae before + notare to note.] To note beforehand; prognosticate. Obs.

pre·no′tice (prē·nō′tĭs), n. Prenotion.

pre·no′ti·fy (prē·nō′tĭ·fī), v. t.; -FIED (-fīd); -FY′ING. To warn or notify in advance. — pre′no·ti·fi·ca′tion (prē′nō·tĭ·fĭ·kā′shŭn), n.

pre·no′tion (prē·nō′shŭn), n. [L. praenotio.] 1. A presentiment; premonition; foreknowledge. Rare.

2. Preconception; a preconceived idea formed without actual experience.

pren′tice, 'pren′tice (prĕn′tĭs), adj. Of, pertaining to, or characteristic of, an apprentice or learner; as, a prentice hand, prentice work, etc. Hence, inexperienced; not fully skilled.

pren′tice, 'pren′tice, n. Aphetic for APPRENTICE; specif.: Obs. a A learner. b = APPRENTICE, n., 4; — called also prentice of law.

pren′tice, v. t. To apprentice.

pren′tice·ship (-shĭp), n. Apprenticeship. Archaic & Dial.

pre·nun′ci·al (prē·nŭn′sĭ·ăl), adj. [See PRENUNCIATE.] Announcing beforehand, as, in paleontology, the transitory first representatives of a faunal type which foreshadow the return and establishment of that fauna in an area after an intervening absence.

pre·nup′tial (prē·nŭp′shăl), adj. Antenuptial.

prenuptial settlement. Antenuptial settlement. See SETTLEMENT, n., 2 b.

pren′zie (prĕn′zĭ), adj. [Cf. PRIMSIE.] A word of unknown meaning, prob. an error for some other word, in Shakespeare's Measure for Measure, III. i. 94 & 97.

pre·oc′cu·pan·cy (prē·ŏk′ū·păn·sĭ), n.; pl. -CIES (-sĭz). [See PREOCCUPATE.] 1. Act or right of taking possession before another or others; preoccupation; as, the preoccupancy of wild land.

2. The condition of being completely busied, or preoccupied.

pre·oc′cu·pate (-pāt), v. t. [L. praeoccupatus, past part. of praeoccupare to preoccupy. See PREOCCUPY.] Obs. 1. To anticipate; to take before; hence, to surprise; to forestall.

2. To prepossess; to prejudice.

pre·oc′cu·pa′tion (-pā′shŭn; 66), n. [L. praeoccupatio; cf. F. préoccupation.] 1. Act of preoccupying, or state of being preoccupied; prepossession; of the mind, engrossment.

2. Rhet. Prolepsis.

pre·oc′cu·pied (-ŏk′ū·pīd), adj. 1. a Engrossed; absorbed; lost in thought. b Already occupied; filled.

2. Biol. Previously applied to some other group and hence unavailable (according to the rules of nomenclature) for use in a new sense; — said of a generic or specific name.

Syn. — See ABSENT. Ant. — Thoughtless, carefree.

pre·oc′cu·pi′er (-pī′ẽr), n. One who or that which preoccupies.

pre·oc′cu·py (-pī), v. t.; -PIED (-pīd); -PY′ING (-pī′ĭng). [Cf. F. préoccuper. See PREOCCUPATE, OCCUPY.] 1. To prepossess; to engage, occupy, or engross the attention of, beforehand; to pre-engage; formerly, to bias.

I think it more respectful to the reader to leave something to reflections than to preoccupy his judgment. Arbuthnot.

2. To occupy, or take possession of, before another; as, to preoccupy a country not before held.

3. To fill beforehand; to occupy in advance of.

pre·oc′u·lar (prē·ŏk′ū·lẽr), adj. Anat. & Zool. In front of the eye, as the antennae of certain insects; — applied, specif., to any of several scales in certain reptiles. — n. A preocular scale or shield.

---

pre·min′is·ter, v. i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·min′is·try, n.

pre′mi·o, n. [It.] Premium. Obs.

prem′is. Premise. Ref. Sp.

pre′mis·rep′re·sent′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′mis·rep′re·sen·ta′tion, n.

prem′iss, n. = PREMISE.

pre·mis′sion, n. [MF.] A sending before. Obs.

pre·mit′, v. i. [L. praemittere to send before.] To premise. Obs.

pre·mix′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·mix′er, n. — pre·mix′ture, n.

pre·mize′, v. Premise. Ref. Sp.

pre·mod′el, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·mod′ern, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·mod′i·fy, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′mod·i·fi·ca′tion, n.

pre′-Mo·ham′me·dan, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·mold′, n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·mold′er, n. — pre·mold′ing, n.

pre′mo·nar′chi·al, adj., pre·mon′e·tar′y, adj., pre′-Mon·go′li·an, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre′mo·nop′o·lize, v. t., pre′mo·nop′o·ly, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·mon′strance, n. Premonstration. Obs.

Pre·mon′strant (prē·mŏn′strănt), adj. & n. = PREMONSTRATENSIAN.

pre·mon′strate (prē·mŏn′strāt), v. t. [L. praemonstratus, past part. of praemonstrare.] To show or represent beforehand. — pre′mon·stra′tion (prē′mŏn·strā′shŭn), n. — pre·mon′stra·tor (prē·mŏn′strā·tẽr), n. All Obs.

Pre·mon′stra·ten′sis, adj. & n. [ML.] = PREMONSTRATENSIAN.

pre′mon·u·men′tal, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·mor′al, adj. See PRE-, 2. — pre′mo·ral′i·ty, n. — pre·mor′al·ly, adv.

pre·mor′bid, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·mor′bid·ly, adv. — pre·mor′bid·ness, n.

pre·morn′ing, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·mor′tal, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·mor′ti·fy, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′mor·ti·fi·ca′tion, n.

pre·mor′tu·ar′y, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre′mo·sa′ic, or pre′-Mo·sa′ic, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre′-Mos′lem, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·mourn′, v. t. & i. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·mud′dle, n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′mu·nic′i·pal, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′mu·ni′re. Var. of PRAEMUNIRE.

pre′mu·nite′, v. t. [L. praemunitus, past part. of praemunire.] To fortify in front, or beforehand. Obs. — pre′mu·ni′tion (-mū·nĭsh′ŭn), n. Obs.

pre·mu′si·cal, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·mus′ter, n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·mu′ti·ny, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre′my·cot′ic, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·myth′i·cal, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pren′a·ble. ✝ PREGNABLE.

pre′-Na·po′le·on′ic, adj. See PRE-, 2. [PRENARIS.]

pre·na′res (prē·nā′rēz), n., pl. of pre·na′ris (-nā′rĭs), n.; pl. -RES (-rēz). [NL. See PRE-; NARE.] = NOSTRIL, 1.

pre·na′tion·al, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·na′tive, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·nat′ural, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·na′val, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

prene. Var. of PREEN. Now Dial.

pre·neb′u·lar, adj. Astron. See PRE-, 2. [1 a.] pre′ne·ces′si·tate, v. t. See PRE-, pre′neg·lect′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

— pre′neg·lect′ful, adj.

pre·neg′li·gence, n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·neg′li·gent, adj.

pre′ne·go′ti·ate, v. t. & i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′ne·go′ti·a′tion, n.

pre′ne·o·lith′ic, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre′neu·ral′gic, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre′-New·to′ni·an, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·night′, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre′-No·a′chi·an, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·no′men. Var. of PRAENOMEN.

pre·nom′i·nal. Var. of PRAENOMINAL.

pre·nom′i·nal, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre′no·min′i·cal (prē′nō·mĭn′ĭ·kăl), adj. = 1st PRENOMINAL.

pre′-Nor′man, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre′-Norse′, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·nos′tic, n. [See PROGNOSTIC.] Presage; omen. Obs.

pre·nos′ti·cate, v. t. & i. To prognosticate. Obs. — pre·nos′ti·ca′tion, n. Obs. — pre·nos′ti·ca′tive, adj. Obs.

pre·no′ta·ry, n. [ML. praenotarius assistant notary.] A prothonotary. Obs.

pren·sa′tion (prĕn·sā′shŭn), n. [L. prensatio, fr. prensare, freq. of prehendere, to seize.] A seizing. Obs.

prent. Dial. var. of PRINT.

pren′tice·hood, n. Also pren′tice·hed. Apprenticehood. Obs.

pren′tis·age, n. [Cf. F. apprentissage.] Apprenticeship. Obs.

pren′tist. Prenticed. Ref. Sp.

pre·nurse′, n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·num′ber·ing, n.

pre·nun′ci·ate, v. t. [L. praenunciatus, past part. of praenunciare.] To proclaim beforehand. Obs. — pre·nun′ci·a′tion (prē·nŭn′sĭ·ā′shŭn), n. Obs.

pre·nurs′er·y, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre′o·be′di·ence, n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′o·be′di·ent, adj.

pre′ob·ject′, v. i., pre′ob·jec′tion, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′ob·jec′tive, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·ob′li·gate, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′ob·li·ga′tion, n.

pre′o·blige′, v. t., pre′ob·serv′ance, n., pre′ob·ser·va′tion, n., pre′ob·ser·va′tion·al, adj., pre′ob·serve′, v. t., pre′ob·struct′, v. t., pre′ob·struc′tion, n., pre′ob·tain′, v. t., pre′ob·tain′a·ble, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′ob·trude′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′ob·tru′sion, n. — pre′ob·tru′sive, adj.

pre·ob′vi·ate, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·ob′vi·ous, adj., pre·ob′vi·ous·ness, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′oc·ca′sioned, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. [b & 2.]

pre′oc·cip′i·tal, adj. See PRE-, 1 pre′oc·clu′sion, n. See PRE-, 2.

pre′oc·cul·ta′tion, n. See PRE-, 2.

pre·oc′cu·pant, n. & adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·oc′cu·pa′tive, adj. See -IVE.

pre·oc′cu·pied·ly, adv. of PREOCCUPIED.

pre·oc′cu·pied·ness, n. See -NESS.

pre′oc·cur′, v. i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′oc·cur′rence, n.

pre′o·ce·an′ic, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·op′er·a′tive (prē-ŏp′ĕr·ā′tĭv), adj. See PRE-, 1 a & 2. Specif., Surg., occurring before an operation. — pre·op′er·a′tive·ly, adv.

pre′o·per′cle (prē′ō-pûr′k'l), pre′o·per′cu·lum (-kū·lŭm), n.; pl. -PERCLES (-k'lz); -PERCULA (-kū·lä). [NL. preoperculum.] Zool. A flat membrane bone in the gill cover of most fishes, lying immediately in front of the opercle.

pre′o·per′cu·lar (-kū·lĕr), adj. Zool. Designating, or pertaining to, the preopercle. — n. The preopercle.

pre′o·pin′ion (-ō-pĭn′yŭn), n. Opinion previously formed; prejudice. — pre′o·pin′ion·at′ed (-āt′ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj.

pre·op′tion (prē-ŏp′shŭn), n. Previous choice; also, the right or an instance of first choice.

pre·o′ral (prē-ō′rĕl; 181), adj. Zool. Situated in front of, or anterior to, the mouth. — pre·o′ral·ly, adv.

pre·or′bit·al (-ôr′bĭ·tĕl; -t'l), adj. Anat. & Zool. In front of the orbit; designating a large membrane bone situated just in front of the orbit in many teleost fishes.

pre·or′bit·al, n. Anat. & Zool. The preorbital bone or process.

pre′or·dain′ (prē′ôr·dān′), v. t. [pre- + ordain; cf. F. préordonner, LL. praeordinare.] To decree or ordain in advance; to order beforehand; to foreordain.

pre·or′der (prē-ôr′dĕr), v. t. To order or arrange beforehand; to foreordain.

pre·or′der, n. [See PRE-.] Com. An order for merchandise in advance of its manufacture or completion. Colloq., U. S.

pre′or·di·na′tion (prē′ôr·dĭ·nā′shŭn), n. [Cf. F. préordination.] Act of preordaining or foreordaining.

pre′or·gan′ic (prē′ôr·găn′ĭk), adj. Geol. Formed before the beginning of life.

prep (prĕp), adj. Short for PREPARATORY; as, prep school. U. S. — n. a U. S. A student in a preparatory course, esp. for college. b Eng. Study hour. c Eng. Preparation of study assignments. d A preparatory school. All Student Slang.

prep, v. t. & i. To prepare; esp., to prepare for college. Slang, U. S.

pre·paid′ (prē-pād′), or pre·pay′ (-pā′), sta′tion. Railroads. A station to which freight cannot be shipped C.O.D.; — contrasted with open station.

pre·pal′a·tal (prē-păl′ä·tăl; -t'l), adj. See PRE-, 1 b. Specif., Phonet., formed between the front of the tongue and the fore part of the hard palate.

‖pré′pa′ra′teur′ (prā′pä′rä′tûr′), n. [F.] Preparator; laboratory assistant.

prep′a·ra′tion (prĕp′ä·rā′shŭn), n. [F. préparation, fr. L. praeparatio. See PREPARE.] 1. Act or process, or an instance, of preparing; a fitting or making beforehand for a particular purpose, use, service, or condition; previous arrangement or adaptation; a making ready; equipment; training; formation; compounding; manufacture; as, the preparation of land for sowing; the preparation of troops for battle; preparation of drugs; preparation of a deed or document for execution, of a manuscript for printing, etc.
2. State of being prepared, or made ready; preparedness; readiness; fitness; as, a nation in good preparation for war.
3. That which makes ready, prepares the way, or introduces; a preparatory act or measure.
I will show what preparations there were. T. Burnet.
4. That which is prepared; something made, equipped, or compounded for a particular purpose; as: a Any medicinal substance fitted for use. b Anything treated for preservation or examination.
5. Obs. a An army or fleet. b An accomplishment; qualification. c A preface.
6. Bib. Ritual acts and observances preceding the Sabbath or other festival. Hence, day of preparation, the day before such a festival.
7. Eccl. Liturgical prayers or private devotions said by one preparing for a sacrament, esp. for the celebration of the Eucharist or in advance of communicating; also, the first part of the Communion service.
8. Educ. a Preliminary study, as for a recitation or speech. b Brit. Schools. A study hour.
9. Music. a The anticipation of a dissonant tone in the consonant chord next preceding. b The consonant tone thus about to become dissonant. See SUSPENSION.

prep′a·ra′tion·ist (-ĭst), n. One who believes in preparedness, esp. for war.

pre·par′a·tive (prē-păr′ä·tĭv), adj. [F. préparatif.] 1. Tending or serving to prepare or make ready; having the power of preparing, qualifying, or fitting; preparatory.
Laborious quest of knowledge preparative to this work. South.
2. Adapted for use in a preparatory process; as, a preparative room. Rare.

pre·par′a·tive, n. [F. préparatif.] That which prepares, or is preparative or preparatory; also, a preparation; a preparatory stage, treatment, process, or the like; specif., Obs., an omen.

pre·par′a·tive, adv. Preparatively.

pre·par′a·tor (-tĕr), n. [LL. praeparator.] One who prepares; formerly, esp., one who compounded or prepared medicines. Specif., a preparer of specimens for scientific uses.

pre·par′a·to′ry (-tō′rĭ or, esp. Brit., -tĕr·ĭ, -trĭ), adj. [ML. praeparatorius.] 1. Preparing, or serving to prepare, for something; introductory; preparative; as, a preparatory condition.
2. Being prepared; undergoing training or instruction for something to follow; as, a preparatory student.

pre·par′a·to′ry, n.; pl. -TORIES (-rĭz). A preparative. Also, short for preparatory school, etc.

pre·par′a·to′ry, adv. Preparatorily.

preparatory school. A school, usually private, preparing students primarily for college.

pre·par′don (prē-pär′d'n), n. A pardon or dispensation in advance of the commission of an act. — pre·par′don, v. t.

pre·pare′ (prē-pâr′), v.; -PARED′ (-pârd′); -PAR′ING (-pâr′-ĭng). [F. préparer, fr. L. praeparare, fr. prae before + parare to make ready. See PARE.] Transitive: 1. To fit, adapt, or qualify beforehand for a particular purpose, end, or condition; to make ready; to put into a state for use or application; to arrange or put in order beforehand; to put into the appropriate mental state, as by warning or instruction; to fit mentally; as, to prepare ground for seed; to prepare a lesson or speech; to prepare a boy for college.
Our souls, not yet prepared for upper light. Dryden.
2. To procure as suitable or necessary; to get ready beforehand; to provide; to equip; to fit out; hence, to make or form, esp. by some specified process; to compound; as, to prepare an entertainment, a medicine, food.
The Lord had prepared a great fish to swallow up Jonah. Jonah i. 17.
3. Music. a To anticipate and modify (a dissonance or its effect) by sounding the dissonant tone in the preceding consonant chord. b To lead up to (a tone or an embellishment) by a prefatory tone or tones; as, a prepared trill (one preceded by a turn or other grace).
—, Intransitive: 1. To make ready; to put things in order; to arrange; as, to prepare for hostilities.
2. To make oneself ready; to take the necessary previous measures; as, to prepare for death; to be in process of preparation.
Tea was preparing in the kitchen. Archibald Marshall.
3. To make oneself ready for a journey. Obs.
Syn. — Fit, adjust, qualify; make ready.

pre·pare′ (prē-pâr′), pre·pare′ment (-mĕnt), n. Preparation. Rare.

pre·pared′ (-pârd′), adj. Made ready, fit, or suitable beforehand; also, adapted; ready; equipped; fitted out; made. — pre·par′ed·ly (-pâr′ĕd·lĭ; -ĭd·lĭ; 119), adv.

prepared chalk. Pharm. Calcium carbonate freed of most of its impurities by elutriation.

prepared cutch. See CATECHU.

prepared flour. = SELF-RISING FLOUR.

pre·par′ed·ness (prē-pâr′ĕd·nĕs; -ĭd-; prē-pârd′-; -nĭs; 119), n. State of being prepared; readiness; specif., a state of military and naval preparation for adequate defense in case of possible hostilities.

prepared opium. Raw opium which has been treated to render it fit for smoking; — called also smoking opium. It contains about 8 per cent of morphine.

prepared roofing. Roofing consisting of asbestos felt or rag felt saturated with asphalt and assembled with asphalt cement; — called also roll roofing, composition roofing, or ready roofing.

prepared sizes. Mining. The four sizes of anthracite coal: broken, egg, stove, and chestnut. Cf. STEAM SIZES.

pre′pa·ren′tal (prē′pä·rĕn′tăl; -t'l), adj. [See PRE-; PARENTAL.] Preceding parenthood; as, preparental teaching of prospective mothers and fathers.

pre·par′er (prē-pâr′ĕr), n. One who or that which prepares; specif.: a In various occupations, as wool spinning, one who performs some regular preliminary operation. b Obs. Med. A preparative.

pre′pa·ri′e·tal (prē′pä·rĭ′ĕ·tăl; -t'l), adj. [See PRE-.] Anat. & Zool. a In front of parietal structures; — applied specif. to a plate or scale immediately in front of the parietal plate in snakes. b Designating the anterior part of the parietal convolutions of the brain. — n. A preparietal plate or scale.

pre·par′ing·ly (prē-pâr′ĭng·lĭ), adv. Preparatorily.

pre′pa·tel′lar (prē′pä·tĕl′ĕr), adj. Anat. In front of the patella; specif., designating a synovial bursa between the patella and the skin. Cf. HOUSEMAID'S KNEE.

pre·pay′ (prē-pā′), v. t.; -PAID′ (-pād′); -PAY′ING. To pay, or to pay the charge upon, in advance or beforehand.

pre·pay′ment (-mĕnt), n. Payment beforehand, or in advance.

pre·pe′ni·al (prē-pē′nĭ·ăl), adj. Anat. & Zool. Lying in front of the penis, as the scrotum of marsupials.

pre·pense′ (prē-pĕns′), adj. [From prepensed, fr. purpensed, after OF., purpensé meditated, past part. of purpenser, pourpenser, to meditate, plan, fr. pur- (fr. L. pro) + penser to think. See PANSY; cf. PREPENSE, v.] 1. Deliberated, contrived, or planned beforehand; preconceived; premeditated; aforethought; — usually placed after the word it qualifies; as, malice prepense (see MALICE, 4).
Impute ye as the action were prepense. Browning.
2. Deliberate; acting with premeditation; — of a person. Rare.

pre·pense′ (prē-pĕns′), v. t. & i.; -PENSED′ (-pĕnst′); -PENS′ING (-pĕn′sĭng). [From earlier purpense, fr. OF. purpenser. See PREPENSE, adj.] To think of or consider beforehand; to premeditate; to precontrive. Obs.

pre′per·ceive′ (prē′pĕr·sēv′), v. t.; -CEIVED′ (-sēvd′); -CEIV′ING (-sēv′ĭng). [pre- + perceive.] Psychol. To anticipate the appearance, sound, etc., of.

pre′per·cep′tion (prē′pĕr·sĕp′shŭn), n. Psychol. Ideal anticipation of a perception. — pre′per·cep′tive (-tĭv), adj.

pre·per′fect (prē-pûr′fĭkt; -fĭkt; 119), adj. Gram. Designating or pertaining to the perfect participle formed with having. Obs.

pre′-Per′sian (prē′pûr′zhăn; -shăn), adj. [See PRE-.] Gr. Hist. Belonging to a date in Athenian history earlier than the destruction of Athens by the Persians in 480 B.C.

pre′-Phid′i·an (-fĭd′ĭ·ăn), adj. Earlier in date and style than the characteristic work of Phidias and his school. It implies an archaic style.

pre·phrag′ma (-frăg′mä), n.; pl. -MAS (-mäz), -MATA (-mä·tä). [NL. See PRE-.] Zool. The anterior phragma of the notum of an insect.

pre·pink′ spray (-pĭngk′). Hort. A spray applied, esp. to apple trees, after the leaves and buds show but with no color apparent. Cf. PINK SPRAY.

pre′pla·cen′tal (prē′plä·sĕn′tăl; -t'l), adj. Embryol. Existing or arising before the formation of a placenta.

pre·pol′lence (prē-pŏl′ĕns), n. [LL. praepollentia.] Action or state of being prepollent; predominance; prevalence. Rare.

pre·pol′len·cy (-ĕn·sĭ), n.; pl. -CIES (-sĭz). Quality or state of being prepollent. Rare.

pre·pol′lent (-ĕnt), adj. [L. praepollens, pres. part. of praepollere to surpass in power, fr. prae + pollere to be powerful.] Superior in influence, power, or weight; predominant.

pre·pol′lex (-ĕks), n.; pl. -LICES (-ĭ·sēz). [NL. See PRE-; POLLEX.] Zool. An extra digit, or rudiment of a digit, on the preaxial side of the thumb.

pre·pon′der (prē-pŏn′dĕr), v. t. & i. [Cf. OF. preponderer.] 1. To prefer. Obs.
2. To preponderate. Now Rare.

pre·pon′der·ance (-pŏn′dĕr·ăns), n. [See PREPONDERANT.] 1. State of being preponderant; superiority or excess of weight, influence, power, number, etc.; an outweighing.
In a few weeks he had changed the relative position of all the states in Europe, and had restored the equilibrium which the preponderance of one power had destroyed. Macaulay.
2. Ordn. The excess of weight of that part of a cannon behind the axis of the trunnions over that in front. If the excess of weight is forward of the trunnions, it is sometimes called negative preponderance.

pre·pon′der·an·cy (-ăn·sĭ), n.; pl. -CIES (-sĭz). Quality of being preponderant; superior weight, influence, importance, etc.

pre·pon′der·ant (-ănt), adj. [L. praeponderans, -antis, pres. part. See PREPONDERATE.] Preponderating; outweighing; superior in weight, force, influence, etc.; predominant; as, of preponderant importance. — pre·pon′der·ant·ly, adv.

pre·pon′der·ate (-āt), v.; -AT′ED (-āt′ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -AT′ING (-āt′ĭng). [L. praeponderatus, past part. of praeponderare. See PRE-; PONDER.] Intransitive: 1. To exceed in weight; hence, to turn the scale; to incline or descend, as the scale of a balance; to gravitate more (to).
2. Figuratively, to exceed in influence, power, etc.; to prevail; predominate.
—, Transitive: 1. To outweigh; to exceed or surpass (something) in weight, force, influence, number, etc.; to overbalance. Obs.
An inconsiderable weight, by distance from the center of the balance, will preponderate greater magnitudes. Glanville.
2. To cause to be inclined; incline; dispose; decide. Obs.

pre·pon′der·ate, v. t. & i. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·pon′der·ate (-ăt), adj. Preponderant. — -ate·ly, adv.

pre·pon′der·at′ing (-āt′ĭng), adj. Dominating; prevailing; superior in number, importance, etc. — -at′ing·ly, adv.
Syn. — See DOMINANT.

pre·pon′der·a′tion (-ā′shŭn), n. [LL. praeponderatio.] Act or state of preponderating; preponderance; bias. Rare.

pre·pon′der·ous (prē-pŏn′dĕr·ŭs), adj. Preponderant. Rare. — pre·pon′der·ous·ly, adv. Rare.

pre·pon′tine (prē-pŏn′tĭn; -tīn), adj. Anat. In front of the pons.

pre·pose′ (prē-pōz′), v. t.; -POSED′ (-pōzd′); -POS′ING (-pōz′-ĭng). [F. préposer, fr. pré- (fr. L. prae) + poser. See POSE.] 1. Obs. a To place over as chief. b To place before; prefix; preface. c To put forward.
2. Gram. To place (a particle, a genitive, etc.) before the word with which it is grammatically connected.

prep′o·si′tion (prĕp′ō-zĭsh′ŭn), n. [F. and L.; F. préposition, fr. L. praepositio, fr. praeponere to place before, fr. prae before + ponere to put, place. See POSITION; cf. PROVOST.] 1. a Rare. The act or an instance of preposing, or placing before; also, the state or condition of being preposed. b Obs. A prefix; any particle or word used as a prefix. c Obs. Anything placed before (something).
2. Gram. A word generally with some meaning of position, direction, time, or other abstract relation, and connecting a noun or a pronoun, in an adjectival or adverbial sense, with some other word; a particle used with a noun, pronoun (in English in the objective case), or noun equivalent, to make an adjunct or adverbial phrase; — so called because usually placed before the word with which it is phrased (a bridge of iron; he comes from town; it is good for food). The qualifying phrase thus formed is often called a case phrase, as answering to an oblique case of an inflected noun. English prepositions often follow the pronouns they go with in interrogative and relative clauses, where the pronoun naturally begins the clause (Whom were you looking for? the box that it came in). Most of the English particles that are characteristically prepositions may function as adverbs as well (he could not break through; please step up). Certain phrasal forms are in effect compound prepositions (by means of; in regard to; on account of).
3. A proposition; an exposition; a discourse. Obs.

pre·po·si′tion, n. Position before. Cf. POSTPOSITION.

prep′o·si′tion·al (prĕp′ō-zĭsh′ŭn·ăl), adj. Of or pertaining to, or of the nature of, a preposition; as, a prepositional adjective or participle (a book worth a dollar; a delay pending inquiry); formed with a preposition; as, a prepositional phrase (hole in the wall), a prepositional transitive (she looked at him). — prep′o·si′tion·al·ly, adv.

prepositional object. Gram. An object made such by a preposition which is felt to be a loose affix giving transitive force to a verb (I was talking of art; she looked at pictures (cf., the pictures she looked at were costly).

prepositional phrase. See PHRASE, n., 6.

pre·pos′i·tive (prē-pŏz′ĭ·tĭv), adj. [LL. praepositivus; cf. F. prépositif.] Gram. Put before; prefixed. — n. A prepositive word. — pre·pos′i·tive·ly, adv.

pre·pos′i·tor, prae·pos′i·tor (-tĕr), n. [Alteration of L. praepositus. See PROVOST.] At some English public schools, a student entrusted with the discipline of other students; a monitor; — called also praepostor, prefect. — pre·pos′i·to′ri·al (-tō′rĭ·ăl; 181), adj.

---

pre·o′dor·ous, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. pre′oe·so·phag′e·al. Var. of PRE-ESOPHAGEAL. pre·of′fend′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·of′fense′, n. — pre′of·fen′sive, adj. — pre′of·fen′sive·ly, adv. — pre′of·fen′sive·ness, n.
pre·of′fer, n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·of′fer·ing, n.
pre′of·fi′cial, adj. See PRE-, 2. — pre′of·fi′cial·ly, adv. [Rare.] pre·om′i·nate, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. pre′o·mis′sion, n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′o·mit′, v. t.
pre·o′pen, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·o′pen·ing, n.
pre·op′er·ate, v. i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′op·er·a′tion, n. — pre·op′er·a′tor, n.
pre′op·pose′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′op·po·si′tion, n.
pre′op·press′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.
— pre′op·pres′sion, n. — pre′op·pres′sor, n.
pre·op′tic, adj. See PRE-, 1 b. pre′op·ti·mis′tic, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. pre′or·daind′. Preordained. Ref.
pre·or′di·nance, n. Antecedent decree. Obs. pre·or′di·nate, adj. [LL. praeordinatus, past part. See PREORDAIN.] Preordained. Obs.
pre·or′ga·nize, v. t. & i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′or·ga·ni·za′tion, n.
pre′o·rig′i·nal, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′o·rig′i·nal·ly, adv. [1 a. pre′or·na·men′tal, adj. See PRE-, pre′-Os·man′li, adj. See PRE-, 2. pre·out′fit, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. pre·out′line′, n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. [PRE-, 1 a. pre·o′ver·throw′, n. & v. t. See pre·pain′ful, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·pal′a·tine, adj. See PRE-, 1 b. pre′pa·le·o·lith′ic, pre′pa·lae·o·lith′ic, adj. See PRE-, 2. [PRE-, 2. pre′-Pa′le·o·zo′ic, adj. Geol. See pre·pan′ic, adj. See PRE-, 2. pre·par′a·ble (prē-pâr′ä·b'l), adj. See -ABLE. [Obs.
prep′a·rance, n. Preparation.
prep′a·rate, v. i. To prepare. Obs.
prep′a·rate, adj. [L. praeparatus, past part.] Prepared. Obs.
pre·par′a·tiv. Preparative. Ref. Sp. [ATIVE. pre·par′a·tive·ly, adv. of PREPARpre·par′a·to′ri·ly, adv. of PREPARATORY.
pre′par·lia·men′ta·ry, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. pre′par·oc·cip′i·tal, adj. See pre′par·ox·y·s′mal, adj. See PRE-, 2. pre′part′, n. Preceding part. Obs.

pre·par′take′, v. i. See PRE-, 1 a. pre·par′tic′i·pa′tion, n. See PRE-, 1 a. pre·par′ti·san, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. pre′par·ti′tion, n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. [PRE-, 1 a. pre·part′ner·ship, n. & adj. See pre·pat′ent, n. & v. i. See PRE-, 1 a. pre′-Pa·tri′cian, adj. See PRE-, 2. pre′pa·tri·ot′ic, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. pre′-Paul′ine, adj. See PRE-, 2. pre·pave′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·pave′ment, n.
pre·pay′a·ble, adj. See -ABLE.
pre′pe·dun′cle, n. See PRE-, 1 a. pre·pend′, v. i. [pre- + L. pendere to weigh.] To consider; meditate. Cf. PREPENSE, v. Obs. pre·pend′ent, adj. Overhanging in front. Obs.
pre·pen′e·trate, v. i. See PRE-, 1 a.

— pre′pen·e·tra′tion, n.
pre·pense′ly, adv. of PREPENSE. pre·pen′siv. Prepensive. Ref. Sp.
pre·pen′sive (prē-pĕn′sĭv), adj. Prepense. Obs.
pre·peo′ple, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. pre′per·i·to·ne′al, adj. See PRE-, 1 b. pre′-Per′mi·an, adj. See PRE-, 2.
pre′per·suade′, v. t., pre′per·sua′sion, n., pre′per·sua′sive, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. pre′per·ruse′, v. i. See PRE-, 1 a.
— pre′pe·ru′sal, n. [1 a. pre′pe·ti′tion, n. & v. i. See PRE-, pre′-Pe′trine, adj. See PRE-, 2.
pre′-Phar′a·on′ic, adj. See PRE-, 2.
pre·phthis′i·cal, adj. See PRE-, 2. pre′pig·men′tal, adj. See PRE-, 1 b. pre·pi′ous, adj. See PRE-, 1 c.

pre′pi·tu′i·tar′y, adj. See PRE-, 1 b. pre·place′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·place′ment, n.
pre·plant′, v. t. & i. See PRE-, 1 a. pre·plant′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. pre·pledge′, n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. pre·plot′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. pre′po·et′ic, pre′po·et′i·cal, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. [1 a. pre·poi′son, n. & v. t. See PRE-, pre′po·lice′, adj. See PRE-, 2.
pre·pol′ish, n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. pre′-Pol′ish, adj. See PRE-, 2. pre′pol′i·tic, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. pre′po·lit′i·cal, adj. See PRE-, 2.
— pre′po·lit′i·cal·ly, adv.
pre·pon′tile, adj. = PREPONTINE.
pre′por·tray′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.
— pre′por·tray′al, n.

---

pre·pos′i·ture, prae·pos′i·ture (prē·pŏz′ĭ·tūr), n. [LL. praepositura. See PREPOSITION; cf. PROVOST.] Office or dignity of a provost; a provostry, esp. of a priory or collegiate church.

pre′pos·sess′ (prē′pō·zĕs′), v. t.; -SESSED′ (-pō·zĕst′); -SESS′ING. 1. To preoccupy, as ground or land, or a place or position; to take previous possession of.

2. To preoccupy (one); to influence beforehand; to incline (one) to or toward (a belief, idea, etc.) so as to preclude other things; hence, to bias or prejudice; to give a previous inclination to, for or against anything; esp., to induce to a favorable opinion beforehand, or at the outset.

pre′pos·sessed′ (-zĕst′), adj. Prejudiced; infatuated with (a person or an idea, notion, etc.); having a fixed idea.

pre′pos·sess′ing (-zĕs′ĭng), adj. 1. Causing or creating prejudice. Now Rare.

2. Tending to invite favor; attracting confidence, favor, esteem, or love; attractive; as, a prepossessing manner. — pre′pos·sess′ing·ly, adv. — pre′pos·sess′ing·ness, n.

pre′pos·ses′sion (-pō·zĕsh′ŭn), n. 1. Prior occupancy; possession of beforehand. Now Rare.

2. Preoccupation of the mind by an opinion, or impression, already formed; preconceived opinion; bias; — now generally implying a favorable opinion; as, the prepossessions of childhood; the prepossessions of a bigot.

Syn. — Bent, predisposition, inclination. See PREDILECTION.

Ant. — Antipathy, aversion, prejudice.

pre·pos′ter·ous (prē·pŏs′tĕr·ŭs), adj. [L. praeposterus, fr. prae before + posterus latter. See POSTERIOR.] 1. Having that first which ought to be last; inverted in order. Obs.

2. Contrary to nature, reason, or common sense; irrational; utterly foolish. "Most preposterous conclusions." Shak.

3. Hence, absurd; nonsensical; ridiculous; grotesque.

His preposterous old dressing gown. Margaret Deland.

It's a preposterous attempt to try to live only for yourself and by yourself. Somerset Maugham.

Syn. — See FOOLISH. Ant. — Natural, rational, logical. — pre·pos′ter·ous·ly, adv. — pre·pos′ter·ous·ness, n.

pre·po′tence (prē·pō′tĕns), n. [F. prépotence.] Prepotency.

pre·po′ten·cy (-pō′tĕn·sĭ), n.; pl. -CIES (-sĭz). [L. praepotentia.] Quality or condition of being prepotent; predominance; now usually, Biol., a marked capacity on the part of an individual, strain, or the like, to transmit a character or characters to the offspring, irrespective of the other member of a cross. Such characters are now regarded as Mendelian dominants, being fully prepotent only when homozygous.

pre·po′tent (-tĕnt; 128), adj. [L. praepotens. See PRE-; POTENT.] 1. a Very powerful; superior in force, influence, etc. b More powerful than; predominating over.

2. Biol. Characterized by prepotency.

3. Psychol. More easily aroused than other responses and so taking precedence over them; as, the protective reflexes are prepotent over all others.

— pre·po′tent·ly, adv.

pre·pref′er·ence (prē·prĕf′ĕr·ĕns), adj. Finance. Having priority in preference; — said of securities or claims which precede preference shares or bonds, either as to payment of interest or dividends, or as to security for repayment of principal. Brit.

pre·print′ (prē·prĭnt′), n. A print made in advance of book or periodical publication; also, a portion of a larger work issued before publication of the whole, or an article issued before the publication of a periodical in which it is to appear. — pre·print′, adj.

pre′pro·fes′sion·al (prē′prō·fĕsh′ŭn·ăl), adj. Educ. Designating education preceding study for a profession.

pre·pu′ber·ty (prē·pū′bĕr·tĭ), n. [See PRE-.] Physiol. a The period immediately preceding puberty. b The period from about four years of age to puberty. — pre·pu′ber·al (-ăl), pre·pu′ber·tal (-tăl), adj.

pre′pu·bes′cent (prē′pū·bĕs′ĕnt; -′nt), adj. [pre- + pubescent.] Physiol. Prepuberal.

pre·pu′bic (prē·pū′bĭk), adj. Anat. & Zool. In front of the pubis; pertaining to or designating the prepubis.

pre·pu′bis (-bĭs), n. [NL. See PRE-; PUBIS.] Zool. a That part of the pubic bone of a reptile or bird which lies in front of the acetabulum. It is best developed in orthopod dinosaurs, in which it is regarded as the homologue of the true pubis of other reptiles and higher groups; but in birds it is derived largely from the ilium, and is more correctly known as the pectineal, or iliopectineal, process. b An epipubis or an epipubic bone.

pre′puce (prē′pūs), n. [F. prépuce, fr. L. praeputium, apparently fr. prae before + a L. word akin to White Russ. potka penis, and to Lith. pusti to swell, puslė bladder. See PUSTULE.] The foreskin. See PENIS. — pre·pu′tial (prē·pū′shăl), adj.

pre′-Pueb′lo (prē′pwĕb′lō), adj. Amer. Archaeol. Pertaining to or designating the prehistoric period, in the southwestern United States and the adjacent portion of Mexico, immediately preceding the period of the construction of the pueblos. See PUEBLO, adj.; BASKET MAKER.

pre·pu′pa (prē·pū′pă), n.; pl. -PUPAE (-pē). [NL., fr. pre- + pupa.] Zool. Any of certain holometabolic insects in the larval stage just preceding the change to a pupa, after the wings have been evaginated. — pre·pu′pal (-păl), adj.

pre·pu′ti·um (prē·pū′shĭ·ŭm), n. [L.] The prepuce. — pre·pu′tial (prē·pū′shăl), adj.

pre′py·ram′i·dal (prē′pĭ·răm′ĭ·dăl; -d′l), adj. Anat. Designating a fissure of the under surface of the cerebellum in front of the pyramid.

pre·ra′mus (prē·rā′mŭs), n. [NL., fr. pre- + ramus.] Anat. The vertical portion of the arbor vitae of the cerebellum.

Pre′-Raph′a·el·ite, n. a Strictly, a member of a society formed in England in 1848, and called the Pre-Raphaelite Brotherhood, signing their works with the letters P. R. B. after their names. The members were William Holman-Hunt, John Everett Millais, Dante Gabriel Rossetti, and James Collinson, painters; Thomas Woolner, sculptor; Frederick George Stephens, then a painter, afterwards chiefly a writer on art; and William Michael Rossetti, writer. The purposes of the society were to encourage fidelity to nature, sincerity, and delicacy of finish, in practical work and in criticism. b Popularly, any modern artist thought to be a would-be restorer of early ideals or methods, as one of the German painters often called Nazarenes, or one who paints and draws with extreme minuteness of detail. c Popularly, any Italian painter of an epoch before Raphael's time of fame and influence, i. e., about 1505. — Pre′-Raph′a·el·it′ic (-ĭt′ĭk), adj.

Pre′-Raph′a·el·ite, adj. 1. Of or pertaining to Pre-Raphaelitism or the Pre-Raphaelites, as a figure or landscape.

2. In form pre′-Raph′a·el·ite. Previous to Raphael.

Pre′-Raph′a·el·it′ism, n. Fine Arts. The principles, practice, or style of the Pre-Raphaelites (sense a).

pre′re·duc′tion (prē′rē·dŭk′shŭn), n. [See PRE-.] Biol. The reduction of chromosomes in the first instead of the second meiotic division.

pre·re′gal (prē·rē′găl), adj. Prior to a period of kings, as those of Israel.

pre·reg′nant (-rĕg′nănt), n. One who reigns before another. Obs.

pre′re·lease′ (prē′rē·lēs′), n. A release in advance of the usual or expected time; specif.: a Colloq. A showing of a play, esp. of a motion picture (usually only in part or in private view), before its release. b Steam Engines. Act of opening to the exhaust before the end of the stroke, in order to minimize back pressure.

pre′re·mote′ (-rē·mōt′), adj. Early in a remote series, esp. of causes or effects; extremely remote. Cf. POSTREMOTE.

pre·rep′tion (prē·rĕp′shŭn), n. A seizing or taking away (something) from before one. Obs.

pre·req′ui·site (prē·rĕk′wĭ·zĭt), adj. Required before: necessary as a preliminary to a proposed effect or end; essential as a condition precedent.

pre·req′ui·site, n. 1. Something required beforehand; something necessary to an end or effect; a condition precedent; as, the prerequisites of freedom.

2. Educ. A requirement, as completing an elementary course, which must be satisfied before admittance to advanced work; loosely, a course or study.

pre′req·ui·si′tion (prē′rĕk·wĭ·zĭsh′ŭn), n. [See PRE-; REQUISITION.] Requirement (of something) beforehand. Rare.

pre·rog′a·tī′val (prē·rŏg′ă·tī′văl; prē·rŏg′ă·tĭv·ăl), adj. Of or pertaining to, or of the nature of, a prerogative.

pre·rog′a·tive (prē·rŏg′ă·tĭv), adj. 1. Rom. Hist. Called on to vote, or privileged to vote, first; as, a prerogative century or tribe.

2. a Obs. Having a right of precedence or priority; superior in privilege; as, the king is prerogative. b Rare. Preeminent; having precedence; leading.

3. Belonging to a right of priority or precedence; privileged; characteristic of, or existing in virtue of, a superior privilege; as, prerogative power; a prerogative place.

4. Law. Of or pertaining to a prerogative court; as, prerogative records, procedure, etc.

pre·rog′a·tive (prē·rŏg′ă·tĭv), n. [OF., fr. L. praerogativa precedence in voting, preference, privilege, fr. praerogativus that is asked before others for his opinion, that votes before or first, fr. praerogare to ask before another, fr. prae before + rogare to ask. See ROGATION.] 1. A right of voting first. Obs. exc. Rom. Hist.

2. a Obs. Precedence; pre-eminence; first rank; advantage over others. "Then give me leave to have prerogative." Shak. b Civil Law. The privilege, advantage, or precedence attaching to one who holds an office.

3. A special quality in virtue of which one is superior; a distinctive worth or excellence; a superiority.

Man, whose prerogative it is to be in a great degree a creature of his own making. Burke.

4. A right to exercise a power or privilege in priority to, or to the exclusion of, others; esp., a right attached to an office or rank to exercise a special privilege or function; specif., an official and hereditary right, as the royal prerogative, which may be asserted without question, and for the exercise of which in theory there is no responsibility or accountability as to the fact and the manner of its exercise. In practice, however, the royal prerogative may be and has been limited by statute, and is generally (always in England) exercised on the advice of ministers, who are responsible to the legislative body, or by the power of public opinion.

The discretionary authority of the Crown originates generally, not in act of Parliament, but in the prerogative — a term which has caused more perplexity to students than any other expression referring to the constitution. The prerogative appears to be both historically and as a matter of actual fact nothing else than the residue of discretionary or arbitrary authority, which at any given time is legally left in the hands of the Crown. A. V. Dicey.

prerogative court. Law. Formerly, the court of either of the archbishops (of Canterbury or York in England or Armagh in Ireland), which had jurisdiction in all cases of wills or administrations where the deceased left bona notabilia (which see) in each of two or more dioceses, or, orig., goods of any value in more than one diocese. The jurisdiction of these courts was transferred to the Court of Probate by 20 & 21 Vict. c. 77 (1857) and by the Judicature Acts to the Probate Division of the Supreme Court of Judicature. A prerogative court was established in the colony of New Jersey, and the probate court of that State is still so called.

pre·rog′a·tived (prē·rŏg′ă·tĭvd), adj. Privileged; endowed with a prerogative; given some superiority.

prerogative instance. Logic. In induction, a crucial instance; an instance of first importance.

pre·rog′a·tive·ly, adv. By prerogative; by virtue of special privilege.

prerogative office. The office in which wills proved in a prerogative court were registered. Eng.

prerogative writ. Law. Any of certain writs issued originally, in England, by the exercise of the royal prerogative, and now in the discretion of the courts, and directed usually to the parties whose action is to be controlled and not to the sheriff. They are the writs of procedendo, mandamus, prohibition, quo warranto, and habeas corpus.

pre·rog′a·tiv′i·ty (prē·rŏg′ă·tĭv′ĭ·tĭ), n. State of having prerogatives. Rare.

pre·rupt′ (prē·rŭpt′), adj. [L. praeruptus, past part. of praerumpere.] 1. Broken off abruptly; hence, steep; precipitous.

2. Without introduction; sudden; abrupt.

pre·rup′tion (-rŭp′shŭn), n. An abrupt cutting off. Obs.

‖pre′sa (prā′sä), n.; pl. PRESE (-sā). [It., prop., a taking.] Music. A mark or cue (written S:, +, ※, etc.) indicating where the successive voice parts of a canon, etc., are to take up the theme; a lead.

pres′age (prĕs′ĭj; form. prē·sāj′), n. [F. présage, fr. L. praesagium, fr. praesagire to forebode, predict, fr. prae before + sagire to perceive keenly. See SEEK.] 1. Something which foreshows or portends a future event; a prognostic; an omen; an augury.

The surest presage of the Good they seek. Cowper.

2. A presentiment; a foreboding; also, foreknowledge; prescience.

Filled with melancholy presages of the future. Prescott.

If there be aught of presage in the mind. Milton.

3. A prognostication; a prediction.

One last high presage yet fulfill. Rossetti.

4. Ominous character; portent; as, of evil presage.

Syn. — Token, sign.

pre·sage′ (prē·sāj′), v.; -SAGED′ (-sājd′); -SAG′ING (-sāj′ĭng). [F. présager. See PRESAGE, n.] Transitive: 1. To give an omen, symptom, or warning, of; portend; preindicate; as, dreams that presage victory; a rise in a fever presages the crisis.

2. To have a presentiment of; to feel beforehand; to forebode. "Presaging the truth of visioned bliss." Shelley.

3. To foretell; to predict; to calculate in advance.

Lands he could measure, terms and tides presage. Goldsmith.

4. To point out; to show. Spenser.

—, Intransitive: To utter or make a prediction; to have a presentiment or foreknowledge; — sometimes used with of.

Syn. — See FORETELL.

pre·sage′ful (prē·sāj′fŏŏl; -f′l), adj. Full of presage or presages; ominous; prophetic; foreboding; foreknowing. "Dark in the glass of some presageful mood." Tennyson.

— pre·sage′ful·ly, adv.

pre·sage′ment (-mĕnt), n. A presaging, or that which is presaged; an omen; a foreboding; presentiment; prediction. Obs.

pre·sag′er (prē·sāj′ĕr), n. One who or that which presages.

pre·sa′gi·ent (prē·sā′jĭ·ĕnt), adj. That presages or has presages. Rare.

pre·sanc′ti·fied (prē·săngk′tĭ·fīd), adj. Preconsecrated; — found chiefly in designations of a special Eucharistic service in which elements that have been consecrated at a previous service are used. In the Latin Church this service is called Mass of the Presanctified, and is celebrated on Good Friday. In the Eastern churches it is called Liturgy of the Presanctified, and is celebrated chiefly on Wednesdays and Fridays in Lent, though permissible on any week day in Lent except Saturday or Annunciation Day.

pre·sanc′ti·fy (-săngk′tĭ·fī), v. t.; -FIED (-fīd); -FY′ING (-fī′ĭng). To sanctify or consecrate previously. See PRESANCTIFIED. — pre·sanc·ti·fi·ca′tion (prē′săngk·tĭ·fĭ·kā′shŭn), n.

pre′-Sar·gon′ic, adj. Preceding the time of Sargon of Akkad, who ruled about 2870 B.C.

---

pre·pos′i·tus. Var. of PREAPOSITUS. [-ARY.]

pre′pos·ses′sion·ar′y, adj. See pre′pos·ses′sor (prē′pō·zĕs′ĕr), n. See PRE-, 1 a. [Sp.] pre′pos·sest′. Prepossessed. Ref.

pre′post, n. [L. praepositus. See PROVOST.] Superior officer. Obs.

pre·pos′ter·ate, v. t. [L. praeposteratus, past part. of praeposterare.] To invert; reverse. Obs.

— pre·pos′ter·a′tion, n. Obs.

pre·pos′tor, pre′pos·to′ri·al. Vars. of PREAPOSTOR, PREAPOSTORIAL.

pre·pos′tor·ship, n. See -SHIP.

pre′po·ten′tial, n. See PRE-, 1 c.

pre·prac′ti·cal, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·prac′tice, v. i. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·pran′di·al, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′prep·a·ra′tion, n. See PRE-, 2.

pre·price′, v. t. & n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·pri′ma·ry, adj. See PRE-, 1 a & 3. — pre·pri′ma·ry, n.

pre·prim′ĕr, n. See PRE-, 3.

pre·prim′i·tive, n. & adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·print′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′pro·fess′, v. i. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′pro·hi·bi′tion, adj. See PRE-, 2. [1 a.] pre·prom′ise, n. & v. t. See PRE-, pre′pro·mote′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

— pre′pro·mo′tion, n.

pre′pro·nounce′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′pro·nounce′ment, n.

pre·prop′er·ous, adj. [L. praeproperus.] Overhasty. Obs. — pre·prop′er·ous·ly, adv. Obs.

pre′pro·phet′ic, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre′pro·stat′ic, adj. See PRE-, 1 b.

pre·prove′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′pro·vide′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

— pre′pro·vi′sion, n. [1 a.] pre′prov·o·ca′tion, n. See PRE-, pre′pro·voke′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·pru′dent, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

— pre·pru′dent·ly, adv.

pre′psy·chol′o·gy, n. See PRE-, 3.

— pre′psy·cho·log′i·cal, adj.

pre′pub·li·ca′tion, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·pub′lish, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·pu·cy, n. [L. praeputium.] The prepuce. Obs. [PUEBLO.

Pre′-Pueb′lo·an, adj. = PRE-pre·punc′tu·al, adj. See PRE-, 1 c.

pre·pun′ish, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

— pre·pun′ish·ment, n.

pre·pur′chase, n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·pur′chas·er, n.

pre·pur′pose, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′pu·lor′io, adj. See PRE-, 1 b.

pre·qual′i·fy, v. t. & i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′qual·i·fi·ca′tion, n.

pre·quar′an·tine, n. & adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·ques′tion, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·quote′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′quo·ta′tion, n.

pre·ra′ting, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·ra′di·o, adj. See PRE-, 2.

Pre′-Raf′fa·el·ite. Pre-Raphaelite. Ref. Sp.

pre·rail′road′, adj. See PRE-, 2.

— pre·rail′road·ite, n.

pre·rail′way′, adj. See PRE-, 2.

Pre′-Raph′a·el, adj. = PRE-RAPHAELITE. [-ISH.]

Pre′-Raph′a·el·it′ish, adj. See pre·ra′tion·al, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·read′y, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

— pre·read′i·ness, n.

pre·re′al·ize, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

— pre·re·al·i·za′tion, n.

pre·re·bel′lion, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·re·ceipt′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·re·ceive′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

— pre·re·ceiv′er, n.

pre·re·cite′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

— pre·re·cit′al, n.

pre·reck′on, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

— pre·reck′on·ing, n.

pre·rec′og·nize, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′rec·og·ni′tion, n.

pre·rec′om·mend′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′rec·om·men·da′tion, n.

pre·rec′on·cile, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

— pre·rec′on·cile′ment, n. — pre′rec·on·cil′i·a′tion, n.

pre′-Re′con·struc′tion, n. & adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·rec′tal, adj. See PRE-, 1 b.

pre′re·deem′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

— pre′re·demp′tion, n.

pre′re·fer′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·ref′er·ence, n.

pre′re·fine′, v. i. See PRE-, 1 a.

— pre′re·fine′ment, n.

pre′re·form′, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′ref·or·ma′tion, or pre′-Ref′·or·ma′tion, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre′re·form′a·to′ry, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre′re·fuse′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

— pre′re·fus′al, n.

pre′reg·is·ter, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

— pre′reg·is·tra′tion, n.

pre′reg·u·late, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

— pre′reg·u·la′tion, n.

pre′re·ject′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

— pre′re·jec′tion, n.

pre′re·joice′, v. i. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′re·late′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

— pre′re·la′tion, n. [1 a.] pre′re·la′tion·ship, n. See PRE-, pre′re·li′gious, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre′rel·uc·ta′tion, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′re·mit′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

— pre′re·mit′tance, n.

pre′re·morse′, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′re·move′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

— pre′re·mov′al, n.

pre′re·mu′ner·ate, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′re·mu′ner·a′tion, n.

pre′-Ren′ais·sance′, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·re′nal, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·rent′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·rent′al, n. [PRE-, 1 a.] pre′re·port′, n. & v. t. & i. See pre′rep·re·sent′, v. i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′rep·re·sen·ta′tion, n.

pre′re·pub′li·can, adj. See PRE-, 2. [1 a.] pre′re·quest′, n. & v. t. See PRE-, pre′re·quire′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

— pre′re·quire′ment, n.

pre·req′ui·sit. Prerequisite. Ref. Sp.

pre′re·sem′ble, v. t. & i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′re·sem′blance, n.

pre′re·solve′, v. t. & i. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′re·sort′, v. i. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′re·spect′a·ble, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′re·spect′a·bil′i·ty, n.

pre′re·spire′, v. i. See PRE-, 1 a.

— pre′res·pi·ra′tion, n.

pre′re·spon′si·ble, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′re·spon′si·bil′i·ty, n.

pre′res·to·ra′tion, adj. See PRE-, 2. [PRE-, 2.]

pre′-Res′to·ra′tion, adj. See pre′re·strain′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

— pre′re·straint′, n.

pre′re·strict′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

— pre′re·stric′tion, n. [1 a.] pre′re·turn′, n. & v. i. See PRE-, pre′re·veal′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′rev·e·la′tion, n. See PRE-, 1 a & 2. [1 a.] pre′re·venge′, n. & v. t. See PRE-, pre′re·verse′, n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a & 2. — pre′re·ver′sal, n.

pre′re·view′, n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′re·vise′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

— pre′re·vi′sion, n. [2.]

pre′re·viv′al, n. & adj. See PRE-, pre′-Rev′o·lu′tion, adj. See PRE-, 2. [PRE-, 2.]

pre′rev·o·lu′tion·ar′y, adj. See pre′rheu·mat′ic, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·rich′, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·right′eous, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·right′eous·ly, adv. — pre·right′eous·ness, n.

pre′ro·ga′tion, n. [OF.] Prerogative. Obs.

pre′ro·lan′dic (prē′rō·lăn′dĭk), adj. [See PRE-; ROLANDIC.] = PRECENTRAL a.

pre′-Ro′man, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre′ro·man′tic, n. & adj. See PRE-, 2. — pre′ro·man′ti·cism, n.

pre·route′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′rou·tine′, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·roy′al, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′roy′al·ly, adv. — pre·roy′al·ty, n.

pres. ✝ PRAISE, PRESS.

pre·sa′cral, adj. See PRE-, 1 b.

pre·sac′ri·fice, n. & v. i. & t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′sac·ri·fi′cial, adj.

pres′a·gie (prĕs′ā·jĭ), n. [L. praesagium.] Presage. Obs.

pre·sag′ing, pres. part. & verbal n. of PRESAGE. — pre·sag′ing·ly, adv.

pre·sa′gious, adj. Foreboding; ominous. Obs.

pres′a·gi′tion (prĕs′ā·jĭsh′ŭn), n. [L. praesagitio.] A presaging. Obs.

pre′sal·va′tion, n. & adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·san′guine, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·san′ĭ·tar′y, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre′sar·to′ri·al, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre′sat·is·fac′tion, n. See PRE-, pre′sat·is·fac′to·ry, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′sat·is·fy, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·sav′age, adj. See PRE-, 2. — pre·sav′age·ry, n.

pre′-Sax′on, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·say′ (prē-sā′), v. t.; -SAID′ (-sĕd′); -SAY′ING (-sā′ĭng). To preface by saying. Rare.

presby-. A combining form, Greek presby-, from presbys, an old man, used to denote old age, as in presbyopia.

pres′by·cou′sis, pres′by·cu′sis (prĕz′bĭ·kū′sĭs; prĕs′-), n. [NL., fr. presby- + -acousis.] Med. The condition of hearing less acutely, occurring in old age.

pres′by·ope (prĕz′bĭ·ōp; prĕs′-), n. Med. One who has presbyopia; a farsighted person.

pres′by·o·phre′ni·a (-ō-frē″nĭ·ȧ), n. [NL. See PRESBY-; -PHRENIA.] Psychiatry. A special form of senile dementia, occurring chiefly in women, and characterized by loss of memory to the point of disorientation, with preservation of mobility, loquacity, good spirits, and considerable mental alertness. — pres′by·o·phren′ic (-frĕn′ĭk), adj.

pres′by·o′pi·a (-ō′pĭ·ȧ), n. [NL., fr. Gr. presbys an old man + -opia.] Med. A defect of vision associated with advancing age. It is due to loss of elasticity of the crystalline lens, which produces difficulty of accommodation and recession of the near point of vision, so that objects very near the eyes cannot be seen distinctly without convex glasses.

pres′by·op′ic (-ŏp′ĭk), adj. Affected by presbyopia; also, remedying presbyopia; farsighted. — n. A presbyope pres′byte (prĕz′bīt; prĕs′-), n. [Gr. presbytēs an old man; cf. F. presbyte.] A presbyope.

pres′by·ter (prĕz′bĭ·tĕr; prĕs′-), n. [LL., an elder, fr. Gr. presbyteros. See PRIEST.] 1. An elder in the early Christian church, whose functions were not clearly distinguished from those of the bishop. Paul summoned the elders at Ephesus (Acts xx. 17) and told them to take heed to the flock "in the which the Holy Ghost hath made you bishops" (Acts xx. 28, R. V.).
2. In the Eastern and Latin churches, a priest.
3. In Presbyterian churches, an elder, especially a teaching elder, or minister. Now Rare.
4. [cap.] A Presbyterian. Obs.

pres·byt′er·al (prĕz·bĭt′ĕr·ăl; prĕs-), adj Presbyterial.

pres·byt′er·ate (-ăt), n. [ML. presbyteratus.] The office or position of a presbyter or elder; eldership; the body of elders collectively; a presbytery.

pres·byt′er·at′ed (-ăt′ĕd; -ĭd; 119), adj. Also pres·byt′er·ate (-ăt). Governed by presbyters or elders.

‖pres′by′tère′ (prĕz′bē′târ′), n. [F.] R.C.Ch. Presbytery; the residence of a parish priest in France.

pres′by·ter·ess (prĕz′bĭ·tĕr·ĕs; prĕs′-; -ĭs; 119), n. 1. Eccl. Hist. In the early medieval churches: a A female presbyter, or elder; one of those aged widows who were dedicated to the service of the church and constituted an ecclesiastical order. b The wife of a presbyter or priest, esp. one who came under the operation of the rule requiring the continence of clergymen; also, a priest's concubine.
2. Eastern Ch. A priest's wife.

pres′by·te′ri·al (prĕz′bĭ·tē′rĭ·ăl; prĕs′-), adj. [See PRESBYTERIAN.] Of or pertaining to presbyters or a presbytery; presbyterian.

Pres′by·te′ri·an (-ăn; 277), adj. [LL. presbyterium presbytery.] a [not cap.] Of or pertaining to a presbyter or presbyters, or ecclesiastical government by presbyters. b [cap.] Designating, or pertaining to, a church or churches which uphold church government by presbyters; of or pertaining to the doctrine, discipline, and worship of a communion so governed. The Presbyterian churches are Calvinistic in doctrine and have as essential principles: (1) the right of all the members of the church to a share in its government, which, however, is exercised not directly but through elders (see ELDER, n., 3) chosen or approved by them; (2) the recognition of only one order in the Christian ministry, all the members of which are equal and exercise all the functions of that ministry; and (3) the unity of the whole church, expressed in a graded system of church courts composed of ministers and elders. The courts are called by different names in different Presbyterian churches; in English-speaking countries the names most commonly used are kirk session (or session), presbytery, synod, and General Assembly (or General Synod). Some Presbyterian churches have an order of deacons, lay office bearers charged with the oversight of the temporal affairs of a congregation. Most of the Reformed churches on the continent of Europe and elsewhere are Presbyterian in polity, though they do not use the name. Most of the numerous schisms in Presbyterian churches have been due to differences of opinion as to the right relation of the church to the civil power. An organization, now called the Presbyterian Alliance, was formed in London in 1875 to promote co-operation between the Presbyterian churches of the world in matters of common interest; its General Council now meets every four years. It recognizes 113 Presbyterian churches or organizations throughout the world. The more important existing British and American Presbyterian churches are:

GREAT BRITAIN. — Church of Scotland: the national church of Scotland, formed as a result of the Scottish Reformation; organized under John Knox's leadership in 1560 (cf. AULD KIRK, THE). Since the union with the United Free Church of Scotland in 1929 it includes the large majority of all Scottish Presbyterians. Though recognized by the state as the national church, it is completely free from state control. Fundamentally Calvinistic in doctrine, it allows its members a large liberty of belief. — Reformed Presbyterian Church of Scotland: 1690; organized 1743. See CAMERONIAN, adj. & n., 1; COVENANTER, n., 2 c; COVENANTER CHURCH. The present church represents a small minority which refused to enter the union with the Free Church of Scotland in 1876. It is conservative in doctrine and practice. — Synod of United Original Seceders: 1842; the representative of the Secession Church (The Associate Synod, 1733. See ASSOCIATE PRESBYTERY; SECESSION, 2 c; BURGHER, n., 2; AULD LICHT b). The majority of the United Original Seceders joined the Free Church of Scotland in 1852, but a small minority held out, and continued under the old name. It is conservative in doctrine and practice. Another body, the United Secession, formed by a union of Seceder groups in 1827, united with the Relief Synod (1761; see RELIEF CHURCH) in 1847 to form the United Presbyterian Church (of Scotland). — Free Church of Scotland: 1843; see the Disruption under DISRUPTION. The present church represents a small minority which refused to enter the union with the United Presbyterian Church (of Scotland) in 1900, by which the United Free Church of Scotland was formed. See WEE FREE CHURCH. It is conservative in doctrine and practice. — Free Presbyterian Church of Scotland: 1893; formed by a small minority, chiefly in the Highlands, which seceded from the Free Church of Scotland when that church passed the Declaratory Act, permitting a certain freedom in the interpretation of its subordinate standards. It is very conservative in doctrine and practice. — United Free Church of Scotland: 1900; see Free Church of Scotland, above. The present church is a small minority which refused to enter the union with the Church of Scotland in 1929. — Presbyterian Church of England: 1876; formed by the union of Presbyterian bodies which were formerly connected with Scottish Presbyterian churches. It has recently admitted women to the eldership. — Presbyterian Church of Wales (called also Welsh Calvinistic Methodist Church or Connexion): originated in the Evangelical revival of the 18th century (1743); its ministers were first presbyterially ordained in 1811. — Presbyterian Church in Ireland: owes its origin to the Scottish settlement of Ulster in the early 17th century. It is strictly conservative in doctrine and practice. — Reformed Presbyterian Church of Ireland: organized 1792; an offshoot from the Reformed Presbyterian Church of Scotland.

BRITISH EMPIRE. — United Church of Canada: 1925; formed by a union of the Methodists, the Congregationalists, and the larger part of the Presbyterians. It is predominantly presbyterian in polity. The part of the Presbyterian Church in Canada which refused to enter the union continues under that name. — Presbyterian Church of Australia: a union of bodies of Scottish origin formed in 1901. — Presbyterian Church of New Zealand: a union of bodies of Scottish origin formed in 1901. — Presbyterian Church of South Africa: a union of bodies of Scottish origin formed in 1897. There is an independent native branch. — Dutch Reformed Church in South Africa: 1652; the church of the original Dutch settlers, an offshoot from the church in Holland, but strengthened by elements drawn from English-speaking Presbyterianism. There is an independent native branch.

UNITED STATES. — Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A.: early 17th century (first presbytery formed 1706); largest body; divided from 1745 to 1758 into Old Side and New Side, and from 1838 to 1869 into Old School and New School; joined in 1906 by a majority of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church, and in 1920 by the Welsh Calvinistic Methodist Church. — Cumberland Presbyterian Church: formed in 1810 by seceders from the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A.; the larger part of it rejoined that body in 1906; the minority retained the old name and constitution; its doctrine is Calvinistic with Arminian modifications. — Colored Cumberland Presbyterian Church: formed in 1869, after the Civil War, by the negro members of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church. — United Presbyterian Church of North America: formed in 1858 by the union of the greater part of the Associate Synod and the Associate Reformed Synod; strongly conservative in doctrine. — Presbyterian Church in the U. S.: formed in 1864 by the union of the United Synod of the Presbyterian Church and the Presbyterian Church in the Confederate States of America, which had separated from the New School and the Old School Presbyterian Churches, respectively, in 1858 and 1861, because of the strongly anti-slavery position adopted by these bodies; organizes its negro members in separate congregations; strongly conservative in doctrine. — Associate Synod of North America (Associate Presbyterian Church): organized in 1754 as the Associate Presbytery in connection with the Associate Synod in Scotland; continued as the Associate Presbytery of Pennsylvania by a small minority who refused to enter the union with the Reformed Presbytery in 1782; developed into the Associate Synod of North America in 1801; continued by another small minority who refused to enter the union with the Associate Reformed Presbyterian Church in 1858; encourages solemn public covenanting, opposes secret societies, sings psalms only in public worship. — Associate Reformed Presbyterian Church: formed in 1782 by a union of the majority of the Associate Presbytery with a majority of the Reformed Presbytery; in 1822 the Synod of the Carolinas separated itself from that church, of whose loyalty to the distinctive principles of the denomination it was doubtful, and took the name of the Associate Reformed Synod of the South; the rest of the church having united in 1858 with a majority of the Associate Synod to form the United Presbyterian Church of North America, the Synod of the South in 1913 resumed the old name; strictly Calvinistic in doctrine; sings psalms only in public worship. — Synod of the Reformed Presbyterian Church of North America: originated in 1752, in connection with the Reformed Presbytery of Scotland; constituted as the Reformed Presbytery in 1774; reorganized in 1798 by those who had refused to enter the union with the Associate Presbytery (by which the Associate Reformed Presbyterian Church was formed) in 1782; became a Synod in 1809; divided in 1833 into the Old Light and the New Light churches, the former retaining the name; strongly conservative in doctrine; its members will neither vote nor hold public office under the present constitution; connection with secret societies is prohibited; uses neither hymns nor instrumental music in public worship. — Reformed Presbyterian Church in North America, General Synod: constituted in 1833 by the New Light party in the Reformed Presbyterian Church, who held that participation in public affairs is a matter for individual decision; in other respects does not differ from the Synod of the Reformed Presbyterian Church in North America.

The Reformed Church in the United States (German Reformed Church), the Reformed Church in America (Dutch Reformed Church), and the Christian Reformed Church in North America are also Presbyterian in polity. See REFORMED, adj., 1.

Pres′by·te′ri·an (prĕz′bĭ·tē′rĭ·ăn; prĕs′-; 277), n. A supporter of Presbyterianism; a member of a Presbyterian church.

Pres′by·te′ri·an·ism (-ĭz′m), n. [Cf. F. presbytérianisme.] Church government by presbyters or elders; belief in, or adhesion to, such government; the faith and polity of the Presbyterian churches, taken collectively; the Presbyterian churches, taken collectively. See PRESBYTERIAN, adj.

Pres′by·te′ri·an·ize (-īz), v. t.; -IZED (-īzd); -IZ′ING (-īz′ĭng). To make or render Presbyterian.

Pres′by·te′ri·an·ly (-lĭ), adv. In a Presbyterian manner.

pres′by·te′ri·um (prĕz′bĭ·tē′rĭ·ŭm; prĕs′-), n. [LL.] = PRESBYTERY, 1 & 5.

pres′by·ter′y (prĕz′bĭ·tĕr′ĭ; -tĕr·ĭ; prĕs′-; formerly also accented pres·byt′er·y), n.; pl. -TERIES (-īz). [OF. presbiterie, fr. LL. presbyterium, fr. Gr. presbyterion. See PRESBYTER.] 1. The body of presbyters, esp. in an early Christian church. Luke xxii. 66; Acts xxii. 5; 1 Tim. iv. 14.
2. In Presbyterian churches, a court consisting of all the ministers of the congregations within a certain district, along with a representative elder (or elders) from each of these congregations. It is above the kirk session (or session) and below the synod in authority. Cf. CLASSIS, 3. In the 17th century in England the term was sometimes used of a congregational or parochial court, corresponding to the actual kirk session.
3. The district within which the congregations under the authority of a presbytery are situated; the jurisdiction of a presbytery.
4. The Presbyterian polity. Cf. EPISCOPACY; INDEPENDENCY, 3.
5. That part of a church reserved for the officiating priests, as the choir or sanctuary or both; properly, in ancient churches, that division east of the sanctuary containing the seat of the bishop and clergy. See CATHEDRAL, Illust.
6. The residence of the priest or priests of a parish; parochial residence; parsonage. Chiefly R.C.Ch.

pres·byt′i·a (prĕz·bĭt′ĭ·ȧ; prĕs-), n. [NL. See PRESBYTE.] Presbyopia. — pres·byt′ic (-ĭk), adj.

Pres′by·ti′nae (prĕz′bĭ·tī′nē; prĕs′-), n. pl. [NL.] Zool. The subfamily of Old World monkeys consisting of the langurs, guerezas, and proboscis monkey.

Pres·by′tis (prĕz·bī′tĭs; prĕs-), n. [NL., irreg. fr. Gr. presbytēs old man.] Zool. The genus consisting of the langurs.

pre·scap′u·la (prē·skăp′ū·lȧ), n. [NL., See PRE-.] Anat. The supraspinous part of the scapula.

pre·scap′u·lar (-lĕr), adj. a Anterior to the scapula. b Pertaining to or designating the prescapula.

pre·school′ (prē·skōōl′; 66), adj. Of, pertaining to, or designating, the period in a child's life, from infancy to the age of five, ordinarily preceding attendance at school.

pre′school′, n. A kindergarten or nursery school where children of preschool age, sometimes in age groups, are entered for observation and social and educational training.

pre′sci·ence (prē′shĭ·ĕns; prĕsh′ĭ-; formerly also accented pre·sci′ence), n. [OF., fr. LL. praescientia. See PRESCIENT.] Foreknowledge of events; foresight; specif., omniscience with regard to the future; as, with the prescience of a genius; divine omnipotence and prescience.

pre′–sci′ence (prē′sī′ĕns), adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre′sci·ent (prē′shĭ·ĕnt; prĕsh′ĭ-), adj. [F., fr. L. praesciens, -entis, pres. part. of praescire to foreknow, fr. prae before + scire to know. See SCIENCE.] Having or marked by prescience. "A feeling . . . not reminiscent but prescient of the future." Pater. — pre′sci·ent·ly, adv.

pre′sci·en·tif′ic (prē′sĭ·ĕn·tĭf′ĭk), adj. Before the development or the acquisition of scientific knowledge; often, unscientific; developed, discovered, or believed before being scientifically investigated.

pre·scind′ (prē·sĭnd′), v. [L. praescindere to cut off in front, fr. prae before + scindere to cut asunder. See SHED, v.] Transitive: 1. To cut short, off, or away; to sever. Now Rare.
2. To abstract by an act of attention; to detach for purposes of thought; to separate in consideration; — with from.
Tell me sincerely whether you can frame a distinct idea of Eternity in general, prescinded from and exclusive of all thinking and corporeal beings, all particular things whatsoever. Berkeley.
—, Intransitive: To abstract or detach oneself; — with from.

pre·scind′ent (prē·sĭn′dĕnt), adj. [L. praescindens, pres. part.] Prescinding. Rare.

pre·scis′sion (prē·sĭzh′ŭn), n. [See PRESCIND; cf. SCISSION.] Act of prescinding; specif., a kind of abstraction by prescinding nonessentials. Cf. 1st PRECISION.

pre·scribe′ (prē·skrīb′), v.; -SCRIBED′ (-skrībd′); -SCRIB′ING (-skrīb′ĭng). [L. praescribere, praescriptum, fr. prae before + scribere to write. See SCRIBE.] Transitive: 1. Obs. a To describe in advance; to foretell or make a prophecy of in writing. b To inscribe before or in front.
2. To lay down authoritatively as a guide, direction, or rule of action; to impose as a peremptory order; to dictate; direct; ordain; as, to prescribe regular hours of study.
3. To keep within limits or bounds; to restrain; to confine. Now Rare. "Prescribed her [the poet's Muse's] heights, and prun'd her tender wing." Pope.
4. Law. To outlaw or invalidate by prescription.
5. Med. To direct, designate, or order the use of, as a remedy; as, the doctor prescribed quinine.
—, Intransitive: 1. To give directions; to dictate.
A forwardness to prescribe to their opinions. Locke.
2. Law. a To claim a title to a thing by right of prescription. b To become by prescription invalid or unenforceable; as, certain rights prescribe in twenty years.
3. Med. To write or give medical prescriptions.
Syn. — Limit, control, order, guide.

pre·scribe′ (prē·skrīb′), pre·scrip′tion (-skrĭp′shŭn), etc. Erron. vars. of PROSCRIBE, PROSCRIPTION, etc. Obs.

pre·scrib′er (prē·skrīb′ĕr), n. One who prescribes.

pre·script′ (prē·skrĭpt′; prē′skrĭpt), adj. [L. praescriptus, past part. of praescribere; cf. F. prescrit. See PRESCRIBE.] Ordained or appointed by authority; prescribed; prescriptive.

pre′script (prē′skrĭpt), n. [L. praescriptum; cf. F. prescript.] That which is prescribed; as: a Direction; rule. b Obs. (pron. prē·skrĭpt′) A medical prescription.

pre·scrip′ti·bil′i·ty (prē·skrĭp′tĭ·bĭl′ĭ·tĭ), n. Quality or state of being prescriptible.

pre·scrip′ti·ble (prē·skrĭp′tĭ·b'l), adj. [Cf. F. prescriptible.] Depending on, or derived from, prescription; proper to be prescribed; subject to prescription.

pre·scrip′tion (-shŭn), n. [F., fr. L. praescriptio an inscription, preface, precept, demurrer, prescription (in sense 4), fr. praescribere. See PRESCRIBE.] 1. A prescribing or dictating; thing prescribed; direction; precript.
2. Circumscription; restraint; limitation. Obs.
3. Med. A written direction for the preparation and use of a medicine; a medical recipe; also, a prescribed remedy.
4. Rom. Law. a A plea or clause, placed at the beginning of the formula in an action, limiting the scope of the claim or the remedy, as to a certain time. b The operation of the law whereby rights might be acquired or extinguished by limitation of the time within which the owner might have his remedy under the praetorian law, as distinguished from usucapion; later, Civil Law, the operation of the law whereby rights might be established by long exercise of their corresponding powers (acquisitive prescription) or extinguished by prolonged failure to exercise such powers (extinctive prescription), usucapion and prescription having become merged. Extinctive prescription corresponds essentially to limitation of actions in English law.
5. Eng. & Amer. Common Law. A prescribing for title; the establishment of a claim of title to a thing by virtue of pres′bi·ter. Presbyter. Ref. Sp. pres′bi·te′ri·an. Presbyterian. Ref. Sp.

---

pres′by·a·cou′si·a, -a·cu′si·a, n. [NL., fr. presby- + -acousia.] Med. = PRESBYCOUSIS. pres′by·o′py (prĕz′bĭ·ō′pĭ; prĕs′-), n. [Cf. F. presbyopie.] = PRESBYOPIA. pres′by·te′ri·a prĕz′bĭ·tē′rĭ·ȧ; prĕs′bĭ·tē′rĭ·ȧ), n., pl. of PRESBYTERIUM. pres′by·te′ri·al·ly, adv. of PRESBYTERIAL. [anism. Obs.
Pres′by·ter·ism, n. Presbyteri-Presbyter John. = PRESTER JOHN. See PRESTER. pres′by·ter·ship′, n. See -SHIP.
pres′by·tism (prĕz′bĭ·tĭz′m; prĕs′-), n. Med. = PRESBYOPIA. pre·scaene′, n. [pre- + L. scaena, scena, stage.] Prelude. Obs.
pre·scap′u·la′ris (prē″skăp′ū·lā′rĭs), n. [NL.] = SUPRASPINATUS. pre·scene′, n. A preceding scene. Obs. — pre·sce′nic, adj. Obs.
pre′scho·las′tic, adj. See PRE-, 2. pre′sci·en′tial, adj. [LL. praescientia prescience.] Prescient. Obs.
pre′sci·ous (prē′shĭ·ŭs), adj. [L. praescius, fr. prae before + scius knowing.] Prescient. Obs.
pre·scout′, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.
pre·scored′, adj. See PRE-, 2.
pre·scrib′a·ble, adj. See -ABLE immemorial use and enjoyment; the right or title acquired by possession had during the time and in the manner fixed by law. Strictly common-law prescription applies only to the acquisition of incorporeal interests in land, such as easements or profits a prendre, as distinguished from acquisition of title by adverse possession, and is based upon the presumption, or legal fiction, that possession was originally acquired under a grant. The necessary period of enjoyment under the earlier law was for time immemorial (which see), but is now usually fixed by statute at 20 years.

pre·scrip'tion·ist (prē-skrĭp'shŭn·ĭst), n. Med. A compounder of prescriptions.

pre·scrip'tive (-tĭv), adj. [Cf. LL. praescriptivus of a demurrer or legal exception.] 1. Prescribing, or laying down rules or directions; as, prescriptive authority or documents.

2. Arising from, based on, or determined by, prescription (esp. in sense 4); as, a prescriptive right or title. Hence: a Established by tradition, usage, etc.; customary. "His prescriptive corner at the winter's fireside." Hawthorne. b Of or pertaining to a prescriptive right or title. Burke. — pre·scrip'tive·ly, adv. — pre·scrip'tive·ness, n.

pre'scrip·to'ri·al (prē'skrĭp·tō'rĭ·ăl; 181), adj. Designating time before the invention or learning of writing; hence, of or pert. to such an age; as, prescriptorial symbolism.

pre·scu'tum (prē·skū'tŭm), n.; pl. -TA (-tă). [NL. See PRE-; SCUTUM.] Zool. The anterior piece of the dorsal part, or tergum, of a thoracic segment of an insect. — pre·scu'tal (-tăl), adj.

pre·sem'i·nal (prē·sĕm'ĭ·năl), adj. Prior to fecundation.

pre·sem'i·nar'y (prē·sĕm'ĭ·nĕr'ĭ; -nēr·ĭ), adj. Preseminal.

pres'ence (prĕz'ĕns; -'ns; 232), n. [OF., fr. L. praesentia. See PRESENT.] 1. Act, fact, or state of being present, or of being in a certain place and not elsewhere, or of being within sight or call, at hand, or in some place that is being thought of; a being in company, attendance, or association; — opposed to absence; as, the presence of troops saved the city.

2. The part of space within one's ken, call, influence, etc.; immediate nearness or vicinity of one; proximity; also, formerly, presence chamber; as, to remove the hat in the presence of ladies. "In thy presence joy entire." Milton.

3. An assembly, esp. of persons of rank or nobility. Archaic.

Odmar, of all this presence does contain,
Give her your wreath whom you esteem most fair. Dryden.

4. The whole of the personal qualities of an individual; person; personality; esp., the person of a superior, as a sovereign. "The Sovran Presence thus replied." Milton.

5. Port; bearing; carriage; mien; air; personal appearance; sometimes, fine or stately bearing. "Rather dignity of presence than beauty of aspect." Bacon.

A graceful presence bespeaks acceptance. Collier.

6. An apparition; specter.

7. A person or being, esp. a divine or other invisible being, conceived as present. See REAL PRESENCE.

8. [often cap.] Eccl. The consecrated elements of the Eucharist regarded as identical with the body and blood of Christ; also, the manner in which Christ is present in the Eucharist. See REAL PRESENCE.

‖pré'sence' (prā'zäNs'), n. [F.] = PRESENCE, n., 4 & 5.

presence chamber or room. The room where a great personage receives company or those entitled to come into his presence.

pres'enced (prĕz'ĕnst), adj. Having presence, or bearing; as, magnificently presenced.

pres'ence·less (-ĕns·lĕs; -lĭs; 119), adj. Without presence or a presence.

presence of mind. Self-control so maintained in an emergency, in danger, or in an embarrassing situation, that one can say or do the right thing; unshaken calmness and readiness of thought.

pre·se'nile (prē·sē'nīl; -nĭl), adj. [pre- + senile.] Biol. & Med. Of or pertaining to the period preceding the development of senility in an organism or person.

pre'se·nil'i·ty (prē'sē·nĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. Premature senility.

pre·sen'sion (prē·sĕn'shŭn), n. [L. praesensio, fr. praesentire to perceive beforehand.] Presentiment; foreboding; anticipation; presensation. Now Rare.

pres'ent (prĕz'ĕnt; -'nt), adj. [OF., fr. L. praesens, -entis, that is before one, in sight or at hand, pres. part. of praeesse to be before, fr. prae before + esse to be. See SOOTH; cf. ABSENT.] 1. a Being before, in view, or at hand; being within reach, sight, or call, or within certain contemplated limits; being in a certain place and not elsewhere; — opposed to absent. b Existent in that which is considered or mentioned; as, oxygen is present. c Of known address; — sometimes appended to names on notes or letters to be delivered by hand; as, Mr. John Smith, Present.

2. Now existing, or in process; begun but not ended; now in view, being dealt with, or under consideration; being at this time; actual; contemporary; not past or future; as, the present session of Congress, state of affairs, instance.

I'll bring thee to the present business. Shak.

3. Now Rare. a Intent; attentive. b Having self-possession; collected. c Ready; quick in emergency; as, a present wit.

4. Archaic. a Accessible; available. b Favorable; propitious; — a Latinism.

5. Immediately operative or effective; immediate; instant; as, a present recompense, remedy, pardon. Obs.

6. Gram. Denoting, or pertaining to, time that now is or the time of speaking; as, the present tense; the present suffix in calls. As applied to verbals the time denoted by the present tense form is present only relatively to the time expressed by the verb in its clause (cf. I see you laughing, I saw you laughing). The English present participle is active and progressive, more clearly than present, in its force.

pres'ent, adv. At present; also, in or into one's presence; here. Obs.

pres'ent (prĕz'ĕnt; -'nt), n. [OF. See PRESENT, adj.]

1. Present time; the time being or contemplated; as, at this present. "Past and present, wound in one." Tennyson.

2. Present occasion or affair; business or action in hand.

3. Present possessions; money, etc., on hand. Rare. Shak.

4. Presence. Obs.

5. Gram. A present tense; also, a verb form denoting it.

6. pl. Law. Present letters or instrument, as a deed of conveyance, a lease, power of attorney, or other writing; as in "Know all men by these presents," that is, by the writing itself, "per has literas praesentes"; — rare in sing. — at present. At the present time; just now. "At present he regrets what he has done." Jane Austen. — for the present. For the time being; temporarily. — in present. Obs. a At present. b At once; without delay. c At the time (referred to). — this present. This present time. Obs.

pre·sent' (prē·zĕnt'), v.; -SENT'ED; -SENT'ING. [OF. presenter, fr. L. praesentare, fr. praesens, adj. See PRESENT, adj.] Transitive: 1. To bring or introduce into the presence of someone, esp. a superior; to introduce for acquaintance; as, to present an envoy to the king; (with the reflexive pronoun) to betake (oneself) into the presence of someone, esp. formally before a superior.

Now there was a day when the sons of God came to present themselves before the Lord. Job i. 6.

Specif.: a To dedicate by bringing before God. b To introduce formally at court, esp. to the sovereign. c To bring before university authorities for examination or to receive a degree. d To bring before the public; — of entertainments and entertainers.

2. To make a present or donation to; also, to furnish or provide (a person) by way of a present or gift; also, to court by gifts.

And with his gifts present Your lordships. Shak.
Octavia presented the poet for his admirable elegy. Dryden.

3. a To lay or put before a person for acceptance; to offer as a gift; to give or bestow formally; of things, to afford or furnish.

My last, least offering, I present thee now. Cowper.

b To hand or pass over, esp. ceremoniously; to deliver.

So ladies in romance assist their knight, Present the spear, and arm him for the fight. Pope.

c To offer or convey by way of message, greeting, compliment, etc.; as, present my regards.

4. To represent as a symbol or by impersonation; to act; personate; perform. Archaic.

5. To exhibit or offer to view or notice; as, to present a fine appearance; to bring to anyone's attention or cognizance; as, to present a subject; to show; display; set forth; describe.

6. Specif.: a To lay before, or submit to, a person or body for consideration or action; as, to present a memorial, petition, or indictment. b To aim, point, or direct, as a weapon. c To nominate for support at a public institution.

7. To make an open offer of; to proffer, as battle. Obs.

8. Eccl. To nominate to a benefice.

9. Law. a To lay, as a charge, before a court as an object of inquiry; to give notice officially of, as a crime or offense; to find or represent judicially; as, the grand jury presented many offenses. b To bring a formal public charge against; to accuse; specif., U. S., to bring an indictment or presentment against.

10. Med. & Obstet. To direct toward the opening.

—, Intransitive: 1. To make a presentation of a clergyman to the ordinary for institution, etc., to an ecclesiastical office. Chiefly Eccl. Law.

2. To present oneself or itself. Archaic.

3. To present a weapon, esp. a firearm.

4. To blow favorably; — of the wind. Obs.

5. Med. & Obstet. To be directed, specif. toward the opening of the uterus; — said esp. of parts of a fetus.

Syn. — See GIVE. Ant. — Accept, receive; take.

pre·sent' (prē·zĕnt'), n. 1. Mil. The position of present arms; as, to stand at present.

2. The position of presenting, or pointing, a firearm or other weapon as if to attack.

pres'ent (prĕz'ĕnt; -'nt), n. [OF.] Anything presented or given; a gift; a donation; as, a Christmas present; also, presentation.

Syn. — Grant, largess, benefaction, bounty. — GIFT, PRESENT, DONATION, GRATUITY, BOON. GIFT, the general term, applies to anything given; the word often (but by no means always) implies an intention to benefit or relieve; a PRESENT is ordinarily from an inferior or equal, and is always intended as a compliment or expression of good will; as, "The gift of God is eternal life" (Rom. vi. 23); "Sending portions one to another, and gifts to the poor" (Esth. ix. 22); "She used to define a present, 'That it was a gift to a friend of something he wanted or was fond of, and which could not be easily gotten for money'" (Swift); "Flowers and fruits are always fit presents" (Emerson); "Little odd presents of game, fruits, perhaps wine" (Lamb). DONATION, in modern usage, suggests esp. a gift to some public institution; a GRATUITY (cf. GRATUITOUS) is a gift (usually of money) to an inferior, commonly for some service; as, a donation to a hospital, a charitable society; a gratuity to a porter, a waiter. BOON (properly denoting a gift asked) is now esp. applied to any benefit or advantage regarded as freely bestowed; as, "If you mean to please any people, you must give them the boon which they ask" (Burke); "I ask justice from you, and no boon" (Sheridan); "An elfin storm . . . of haggard seeming, but a boon indeed" (Keats); the priceless boon of sleep. Cf. GIVE, PAY.

pre·sent'a·ble (prē·zĕn'tă·b'l), adj. [Cf. F. présentable.]

1. That can or may be presented to a person, to the mind, to a court, etc.; capable of or admitting of being offered, set forth, brought forward, or the like; as, emotions presentable only in music; a brief not yet in presentable form.

2. Having a bearing or appearance that will satisfy or give pleasure to others; in condition to be seen or inspected, esp. by the critical; as, soap and water made the dress presentable; a really presentable young woman.

3. Eccl. a Capable of presentation to the ordinary for institution into a benefice; — of a clergyman. b Admitting of the presentation of a clergyman; — of a benefice. — pre·sent'a·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), pre·sent'a·ble·ness, n. — pre·sent'a·bly (-blĭ), adv.

pre·sent'al (prē·zĕn'tăl; -t'l), n. A presenting. Rare.

present arms. Mil. The command in response to which the gun or other weapon is carried perpendicularly in front of the center of the body, the exact position varying with the arm and service; also, the position taken at such a command. See Illust.

Present Arms.

pres'en·ta'tion (prĕz'ĕn·tā'shŭn; prē'zĕn·tā'-shŭn), n. [OF., fr. LL. praesentatio.] 1. Act of presenting, or state of being presented; that which is presented; as: a Formal introduction, as at court. b A setting forth; offering; giving; bestowal; donation.

Prayers are sometimes a presentation of mere desires. Hooker.

c Representation; exhibition; appearance; show.

2. Something presented or given; a present; a gift.

3. Astron. The region of a celestial body, as of a planet, turned earthward at a particular time; — sometimes used as synonymous with opposition.

4. Com. = PRESENMENT (of a negotiable instrument).

5. Eccl. a The act, power, or privilege, esp. of a patron, of applying (usually by deed) to the bishop or ordinary for the institution of one nominated to a benefice; also, the appointment to a benefice through being so presented. Cf. COLLATION, NOMINATION. b Less correctly, the nomination by one authority, as a vestry, of a candidate to be appointed by another, as the bishop. c The clergyman so offered.

6. Med. The particular manner in which the child rests, in labor, with respect to the mouth of the uterus; as, face or breech presentation; — used in a corresponding sense of animals.

7. Philos. A datum of perception; a sense appearance; that element in the cognition of an object which is given by direct awareness, as distinguished from that which is added by association or thinking.

8. Psychol. Sensory appearance, whether in actual sensation or in a memory image.

— the Presentation. Eccl. See CANDLEMAS.

pres'en·ta'tion·al (prĕz'ĕn·tā'shŭn·ăl; prē'zĕn-; -'l), adj.

1. Of or pertaining to a presentation, presentations, or presentationism.

2. Presentative (sense 3); as, the presentational arts.

3. Having the character or function of presenting or rendering presentable, esp. to the mind; as, a presentational word (see WORD, n.).

4. Gram. = NOTIONAL, adj., 5 a.

presentation copy. A copy of a book or other similar publication, inscribed by the author, and used as a presentation.

pres'en·ta'tion·ism (prĕz'ĕn·tā'shŭn·ĭz'm; prē'zĕn-), n. Philos. a A theory of knowledge which holds that reality is immediately presented in perception, and which is opposed to the conception that external objects are merely represented by ideas. b = PHENOMENALISM a. c The doctrine that the psychical life is wholly made up of cognitive elements. — pres'en·ta'tion·ist, n. & adj.

Presentation of the Blessed Virgin Mary, Order of the. R.C.Ch. An order of nuns founded at Cork, Ireland, by Miss Nano Nagle in 1777 as an institute with simple vows and no enclosure, and raised to the rank of an order with solemn vows and strict enclosure by Pius VII in 1805. The nuns are bound by a vow to instruct young girls, esp. poor girls, in the faith. The order has spread to America, India, and Australia.

presentation time. Physiol. The minimum time of application of a given stimulus required to effect a response. Cf. REACTION TIME.

pre·sent'a·tive (prē·zĕn'tă·tĭv), adj. 1. Representative. Obs.

2. That presents or serves to present with vividness or clearness, as an image or abstraction; as, the presentative power of a poet.

3. Producing an aesthetic impression directly and independently of nature; nonrepresentative; nonimitative; as, the presentative arts; the presentative element in a cubist painting.

4. Eccl. Subject to presentation (sense 5 a); carrying with it the right of presentation; as, a presentative benefice, deanery, or advowson.

5. Philos. & Psychol. Of the nature of a presentation; known or capable of being known directly rather than through cogitation; as, the presentative elements in a cognition; also, having the power or function of apprehending directly; intuitive; perceptive; as, a presentative faculty; more widely, of, pertaining to, derived from, or concerned with, a presentation or presentations; as, presentative theories.

present contrary to fact, present neutral. Gram. See CONDITIONAL SENTENCE.

pres'ent·day' (66), adj. Now existing or occurring; current; also, contemporary.

pres'en·tee' (prĕz'ĕn·tē'), n. [See PRESENT, v.; -EE.] 1. One who is presented; specif., Eccl., one presented to a benefice.

2. One to whom something is presented.

pre·sent'er (prē·zĕn'tĕr), n. One who makes a present, presentment, or presentation; one presenting someone or something.

present his Englishry. See ENGLISHRY, 1.

pre·sen'tial (prē·zĕn'shăl), adj. [ML. praesentialis.] Present or pertaining to the present; immediate; specif., Gram., of certain tense forms of a verb, formed on the present stem. — pre·sen'ti·al'i·ty (-shĭ·ăl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — pre·sen'tial·ly, adv. All Now Rare.

pre·sen'tient (prē·sĕn'shĕnt), adj. [L. praesentiens, pres. part. of praesentire to perceive beforehand, fr. prae before + sentire to feel.] Apprehensive in advance; having a presentiment; — with of.

pre·sen'ti·ment (prē·zĕn'tĭ·mĕnt; 277), n. [MF. See PRESENTIENT.] 1. An impression, conviction, or feeling that something will or is about to happen; esp., an anticipatory fear; a premonition.

A strong presentiment that my existing opinions would ultimately give way. Newman.

2. An opinion or conception formed prior to knowledge; a prejudgment.

Reason has a presentiment of objects which possess a great interest for it. Kant (Max Müller).

Syn. — See APPREHENSION.

pre·sen'ti·men'tal (prē·zĕn'tĭ·mĕn'tăl; prē·sĕn'-), adj. Revealing or giving rise to a presentiment. Rare.

pres'ent·ist (prĕz'ĕn·tĭst), n. [present + -ist.] One who holds that Biblical prophecy, esp. that of the Apocalypse, is now in course of fulfillment. Cf. PRETERIST, FUTURIST.

pre·sen'tive (prē·zĕn'tĭv), adj. Bringing a conception or notion directly before the mind; presenting an object directly to the mind; specif., Gram., = NOTIONAL, adj., 5 a; — disting. from symbolic. Cf. FULL WORD. — pre·sen'tive·ly, adv. — pre·sen'tive·ness, n.

pre·sen'tive, n. Gram. A presentive word. Rare.

pres'ent·ly (prĕz'ĕnt·lĭ; -'nt·lĭ), adv. 1. In actual presence; in person; personally. Obs.

2. At present; now; as, the problem that presently occupies our attention; also, at the time indicated (by the verb).

3. a Now Dial. At once; immediately; forthwith.

And presently the fig tree withered away. Matt. xxi. 19.

b Soon; shortly; before long; after a little while; by and by: as, he will be here presently.

4. Without something intervening as in space or thought; directly; closely; consequently; by necessity; as, this matter presently concerns you; it does not presently follow.

pre·sent'ment (prē·zĕnt'mĕnt), n. [OF. presentement.]

1. Act of presenting, or state of being presented; presentation. "Upon the heels of my presentment." Shak. Specif.: a Now Rare. Offer as a gift; bestowal; also, delivery. b Representation, esp. in art or for entertainment; pre·scrip'tive. Prescriptive. Ref. Sp.

---

pre·scrive', v. t. [F. prescrire, 3d pl. pres. prescrivent, fr. L. praescribere; confused with L. praescribere.] To prescribe. — pre·scriv'er, n. Both Obs. Scot.

prese, ✝ PRAISE, PRESS, PRIZE. ‖pre'se, n., pl. of PRESA.

pre·seal', n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre'se·ance, n. [F. préséance.] Priority of place in sitting. Obs.

pre·search', n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·sea'son, n. See PRE-, 2. — pre·sea'son·al, adj.

pre·sec'u·lar, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre'se·cure', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·see', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre'se·lect', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre'-Se·mit'ic, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre'sen·sa'tion (prē'sĕn·sā'shŭn), n. = PRESENSION.

pre·sent'a·bl. Presentable. R.S.

pres'en·ta'ne·ous (prĕz'ĕn·tā'nē·ŭs), adj. [L. praesentaneus.] Obs. a Ready; quick. b Present.

pres'en·tar'y, adj. [L. praesentarius.] Present; current. Obs.

pre·sent'a·tive·ly, adv. of PRESENTATIVE.

pre·sen'tence, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·sen'tial·ness, n. See -NESS.

pre·sen'ti·ate (prē·zĕn'shĭ·āt), v. t. To make present. Obs.

pre·sen'tion, n. Presension. Obs.

also, that which is represented, as a play, portrait, image, etc. c A setting forth to view, notice, or consciousness; that which is presented or exhibited; delineation; statement; suggestion; exhibition.

Power to cheat the eye with blear illusion,
And give it false presentments. Milton.

2. Appearance or aspect as presented.
3. Commerce. The act of producing and offering at the proper time and place any document requiring to be accepted, paid, or the like, by another, esp. a note, bill of exchange, or the like.
4. Eccl. A formal complaint by the authorities of a parish to the bishop or archdeacon, at his visitation.
5. Law. a The notice taken, or statement made, by a grand jury of any offense or unlawful state of affairs from their own knowledge or observation, without any bill of indictment laid before them; as, the presentment of a nuisance; also, sometimes, an inquisition of office or an indictment. b The official notice in court (now abolished by the Copyhold Act of 1894) of the surrender of a copyhold estate. c In Victoria, Australia, a formal accusation made by the attorney general, the solicitor general, or any prosecutor for the king in the name of a law officer, on which indictable offenses are usually prosecuted in the Supreme Court or Court of General Sessions of the Peace.
6. Philos. a The appearing of something before the mind; a presentation. b The content of a perception or a thought as it stands before the mind.

presentment of Englishry. Eng. Law. The offering of proof of Englishry. See ENGLISHRY.

present perfect. Gram. Designating or pertaining to the tense denoting the act or state as completed at the time of speaking (I have written); also, the present perfect tense, or a verb form denoting it.

present tense. Gram. The tense of a verb which expresses action or being in the present time (I am writing, I write, or I do write). It is used not only of what occurs or is true at the time of speaking, but of what is habitual (he pays his debts), or always or necessarily true (the sun shines by day; a straight line is the shortest distance). As used for future events sure to happen (Christmas this year is on Friday) it is a relic of Old English, in which the present and future had the same form. See also HISTORICAL PRESENT.

present value or worth (of money payable at a future date). The principal which, drawing interest at a given rate, will amount to the given sum at the date on which this is to be paid; thus, interest being at 6%, the present value of $106 due one year hence is $100. See DISCOUNT, n., 1 b.

pre·serv'al (prē·zûr'văl), n. Preservation. — adj. Preservative.

pres'er·va'tion (prĕz'ĕr·vā'shŭn), n. [F. préservation.] 1. Act or process of preserving, or keeping from injury or decay; state of being preserved; as, preservation of life, fruit, game, etc.; a picture in good preservation.

Give us particulars of thy preservation. Shak.

2. Obs. a A preservative; a safeguard. b Something preserved.
Syn. — Safekeeping, conservation, saving.
Ant. — Decay, ruin, loss.

pre·serv'a·tive (prē·zûr'vă·tĭv), adj. [F. préservatif.] Having the power of preserving; tending to preserve.

pre·serv'a·tive (prē·zûr'vă·tĭv), n. That which preserves, or has the power of preserving; specif., Foods, a substance added to food products, esp. bottled food products, to preserve them against decay, as spice, sodium benzoate, etc.

pre·serv'a·tize (-tīz), v. t. [See -IZE.] To treat (food) with a preservative.

pre·serv'a·to'ry (-tō'rĭ or, esp. Brit., -tĕr·ĭ), adj. Preservative. Rare.

pre·serv'a·to'ry, n.; pl. -RIES (-rĭz). 1. A preservative. Obs.
2. A place for preserving, esp. foods.
3. A charitable house of refuge for unemployed, deserted, or destitute women and girls. Eng.

pre·serve' (prē·zûrv'), v.; -SERVED' (-zûrvd'); -SERV'ING (-zûr'vĭng). [OF. preserver, fr. LL. praeservare, fr. L. prae before + servare to save, preserve. See SERVE.] Transitive: 1. To keep or save from injury or destruction; to guard or defend from evil; to protect; save.

O Lord, thou preservest man and beast. Ps. xxxvi. 6.

2. To keep in existence or intact; as, to preserve records, old customs, or one's good name. Specif.: a To save from decomposition, as by refrigeration, curing, or treating with a preservative; as, to preserve specimens or skins to be stuffed; to preserve milk indefinitely. b To can, pickle, or similarly prepare (fruits or vegetables) for future use; as, to preserve peaches.
3. To maintain; to keep up; to retain in one's possession; as, to preserve silence, appearances, or an advantage.
4. Hunting & Fishing. To keep up and reserve for personal or special use; as, to preserve game or fish by raising and protecting it; to preserve a stream or field.
—, Intransitive: 1. To keep fresh or in its original state. Obs.
2. To make preserves.
3. To raise and protect game for purposes of sport.
Syn. — Keep, secure; uphold, sustain; defend, guard, shield; spare. See CONSERVE, DEFEND.
Ant. — Expose; endanger, imperil, waste, destroy, lose.

pre·serve', n. 1. That which preserves. Obs., exc. pl., spectacles colored to protect or conceal the eyes.
2. That which is preserved; a thing preserved. Obs., exc. specif.: a Fruit canned or made into jams, jellies, or the like; — commonly in pl.; as, a store of preserves. b Fruit cooked with sugar so as to keep its shape; as, plum preserve.
3. A place in which game, fish, etc., are preserved for purposes of sport, for food, etc.; — called also reserve. Cf. SANCTUARY, 4.
4. Any place, occupation, or the like, regarded as sacred to certain persons.

pre·serv'er (prē·zûr'vĕr), n. One who or that which preserves; specif.: a One who or that which preserves, defends, saves, or keeps from decay. b One who makes preserves. c One who preserves game or fish.

pre'ses (prē'sĕz), n. [L. praeses.] Presiding officer; president; chairman. Chiefly Scot.

pre·sex'u·al (prē·sĕk'shōō·ăl; -sĕks'ū-; cf. SEXUAL), adj. Preceding sexual development or maturity.

pre·show' (-shō'), v. t. To foreshow.

pre·side' (prē·zīd'), v.; -SID'ED (-zīd'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -SID'ING. [F. présider, fr. L. praesidere, fr. prae before + sedere to sit. See SIT.] Intransitive: 1. To occupy the place of authority, as of president, chairman, moderator, etc.; to direct, control, or regulate proceedings as chief officer; as, to preside at a public meeting; to preside over the senate.
2. To exercise superintendence, guidance, or control.

Some o'er the public magazines preside. Dryden.

3. To take or occupy the leading place; to be in the supreme or most conspicuous position. "The presiding excellence of the work." Yale Review.
4. Music. To be in the position of chief or featured instrumental performer, often as director of a group; — with at; as, to preside at the organ.
—, Transitive: To superintend or direct; to rule.

The troops of dead whom Hela . . . presides. M. Arnold.

pres'i·dence (prĕz'ĭ·dĕns), n. Direction; government; also, Rare, presidency.

The earliest development of ritual under the presidence of the Church of Rome. Pater.

pre'si·den'cia (prā'sē·dĕn'syä), n. [Sp., lit., presidency.] The town hall or government building. Phil. I.

pres'i·den·cy (prĕz'ĭ·dĕn·sĭ), n.; pl. -CIES (-sĭz). [Cf. F. présidence.] 1. Function or action of one who presides; superintendence; control and care.
2. Supremacy; superiority as in rank. Obs.
3. The office of president; specif. [often cap.], the office of president of the United States.
4. The term during which a president holds office; as, during the presidency of Madison.
5. Any of five divisions into which the British colony of the Leeward Islands is divided.
6. [often cap.] One of three great divisions, Madras, Bombay, and Bengal, of British India, forming provinces, which are administered by a governor, with executive councilors and Indian ministers, and a legislative council.
7. [cap. when used specifically.] Mormon Ch. A council of three, one president and two counselors, having jurisdiction in spiritual or temporal matters, either throughout the church, as in the case of the First Presidency (which see), or throughout a stake or within any unit, as a quorum. See STAKE, n.

pres'i·dent (prĕz'ĭ·dĕnt; 128), n. [OF., fr. L. praesidens, -entis, pres. part. of praesidere. See PRESIDE.] 1. One who presides; a ruler; governor; sovereign; head; now, one who is elected or appointed to preside, or control the proceedings of others. Specif.: a A presiding officer of a governmental body, as of an advisory council, of an administrative board, or of a legislative assembly; as, the Lord President of the Council (England). b The chief officer of a corporation, company, institution, society, or the like. c [often cap.] The chief executive officer of a modern republic. The president of the United States is elected once in four years by the majority of electors (which see) chosen by popular vote from the States, who now simply vote for the candidate nominated by the convention of the party which nominated them. The president is commander in chief of the Army and Navy of the United States and of the State militia when called into the service of the United States, sees that the laws are executed, makes treaties by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, recommends legislation, has great appointive powers, and the power of veto. He must be a natural-born citizen, thirty-five years of age, and a resident for 14 years within the United States. See Forms of Address, in Appendix; PRECEDENCE; DEMOCRATIC PARTY; DEMOCRATIC-REPUBLICAN PARTY; FEDERAL PARTY; REPUBLICAN PARTY.

LIST OF PRESIDENTS OF THE UNITED STATES

George Washington	1789–1797
John Adams	1797–1801
Thomas Jefferson	1801–1809
James Madison	1809–1817
James Monroe	1817–1825
John Quincy Adams	1825–1829
Andrew Jackson	1829–1837
Martin Van Buren	1837–1841
William Henry Harrison	1841–1841	(Apr. 4)
John Tyler	1841–1845
James K. Polk	1845–1849
Zachary Taylor	1849–1850	(July 9)
Millard Fillmore	1850–1853
Franklin Pierce	1853–1857
James Buchanan	1857–1861
Abraham Lincoln	1861–1865	(Apr. 15)
Andrew Johnson	1865–1869
Ulysses S. Grant	1869–1877
Rutherford B. Hayes	1877–1881
James A. Garfield	1881–1881	(Sept. 19)
Chester A. Arthur	1881–1885
Grover Cleveland	1885–1889
Benjamin Harrison	1889–1893
Grover Cleveland	1893–1897
William McKinley	1897–1901	(Sept. 14)
Theodore Roosevelt	1901–1909
William H. Taft	1909–1913
Woodrow Wilson	1913–1921
Warren G. Harding	1921–1923	(Aug. 2)
Calvin Coolidge	1923–1929
Herbert Hoover	1929–1933
Franklin D. Roosevelt	1933–1945	(Apr. 12)
Harry S. Truman	1945–1953
Dwight D. Eisenhower	1953–

d Formerly, the presiding officer of the council of the governor-general of India; now, since 1919, the presiding officer of the Legislative Assembly or of the Council of State. e The head of the hierarchy of the Mormon Church. With two counselors he forms the first presidency.
2. A protector; a guardian; a presiding genus. Obs.

Just Apollo, president of verse. Waller.

3. A kind of silk, or silk-and-wool, damask, for upholstery.

pres'i·dent (prĕz'ĭ·dĕnt), adj. [L. praesidens, pres. part.] Occupying the first rank or chief place; presiding. Archaic.

pre·sid'e·nt (prē·sĭd'ĕ·nt), n. [L. praesidium.] Remedy; help; succor; also, garrison; guard. Obs.

pre·sift', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·sign', v. t. = PRESIGNIFY. Archaic. [1 a.] pre·sig'nal, n. & v. t. See PRE-, 2 & 3.

pre·sig·nif'i·cant (prē'sĭg·nĭf'ĭ·kănt), adj. Presignifying. — pre·sig·nif'i·cance (-kăns), -nif'i·can·cy (-kăn·sĭ), n.

pre·sig'ni·fi·ca'tion (prē·sĭg'nĭ·fĭ·kā'shŭn), n. [LL. praesignificatio.] Act of presignifying; also, a presage; an omen.

pre'sig·nif'i·ca'tive (prē'sĭg·nĭf'ĭ·kā'tĭv; -kă·tĭv), adj. Carrying a presignification. Rare.

pre'sig·nif'i·ca'tor (-kā'tĕr), n. One who or that which presignifies. Rare.

pre·sig'ni·fy (prē·sĭg'nĭ·fī), v. t.; -FIED (-fīd); -FY'ING (-fī'ĭng). [L. praesignificare, fr. prae before + significare to signify.] To intimate or signify beforehand; to presage.

pre·sim'i·an (prē·sĭm'ĭ·ăn), adj. [See PRE-; SIMIAN.] Existing or happening before the existence of anthropoid apes.

pre·so'cial (-sō'shăl), adj. [See PRE-.] Sociol. Of or pertaining to a hypothetical era before the establishment of social groups; as, presocial man.

pre'–So·crat'ic, adj. Of or pertaining to Greek philosophy or philosophers before Socrates. The chief schools of the pre-Socratic period were the Ionic, the Pythagorean, the Eleatic, and the school of the atomists. The Sophists may also be included. — n. A pre-Socratic philosopher.

pre·sphe'noid (prē·sfē'noid), adj. Anat. Designating, or pertaining to, a median part of the vertebrate skull anterior to the basisphenoid, with which (and other sphenoid elements) it is usually united in the adult. It forms in man the anterior part of the body of the sphenoid. — pre·sphe'noid, n. — pre'sphe·noi'dal (prē'sfē·noi'dăl; -dĭ), adj.

pre·sphyg'mic (-sfĭg'mĭk), adj. [See PRE-; SPHYGMIC.] Physiol. & Med. Occurring before the pulse beat.

pre'spi·rac'u·lar (prē'spĭ·răk'ū·lĕr), adj. [See PRE-; SPIRACLE.] Zool. & Embryol. Anterior to the spiracle.

pre·sprīd', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·ship'ment, n.

pre·short'age, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·short'en, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

president. † PRECEDENT.

pres'i·dent-e·lect', n. See ELECT, adj., 2.

pres'i·dent·ess, n. See -ESS.

pres'i·den'tial·ly, adv. of PRESIDENTIAL.

pres'i·dent·ship', n. See -SHIP.

pre·sid'i·al·ly, adv. of PRESIDIAL.

pre·sid'i·ar'y (prē·sĭd'ĭ·ĕr'ĭ; -ĕr·ĭ), n. A guard. Obs.

pre·sid'i·ar'y, adj. [L. praesidiarius.] = 2d PRESIDIAL, 1.

pre·sid'i·al, adj. [L. praesidium A presiding over, defense, guard. See PRESIDE.] 1. Of or pertaining to a garrison; having a garrison; as, a presidial castle.
2. Of or pertaining to a presidio.

presidial court. Fr. Hist. Formerly, a court of justice in certain French cities which did not have a parliament.

pre·sid'ing (prē·zīd'ĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of PRESIDE.

Presiding Bishop. 1. Prot. Episc. Ch. A bishop, already consecrated, elected by the House of Bishops and ratified by the House of Deputies, for a term of six years. Formerly the office went automatically to the senior bishop by canon law. Between General Conventions he is the final authority of the Church.
2. Mormon Ch. The chief bishop, who has jurisdiction over the whole church.

presiding Bishopric. See BISHOPRIC, n., 4.

presiding elder. Meth. Ch. An elder, or fully ordained minister, commissioned by a bishop to have the oversight of the churches and preachers in a certain district; — now called in the Methodist Episcopal Church district superintendent.

presiding High Council. See HIGH COUNCIL.

presiding Patriarch. See PATRIARCH, n., 6 d.

pre·sid'i·o (prē·sĭd'ĭ·ō; Sp. prā·sē'dyō), n.; pl. -DIOS (-ĭ·ōz; Sp. -dyōs). [Sp.] A garrisoned place; a military post or fortified settlement; as, San Francisco was a Spanish presidio; also, a Spanish penal settlement.

pre·sid'i·um (prē·sĭd'ĭ·ŭm), n. Also, prae·sid'i·um. [L. praesidium, lit., a presiding over, hence, defense, aid.] a [sometimes cap.] In the government of the Russian Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, any one of a number of permanent administrative committees, meeting daily and acting with supreme power for a larger body in the intervals between sessions. In the U. S. S. R. the two bodies of the Supreme Soviet (see UNION CENTRAL EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE; SOVIET) elect its presidium of thirty-three members, including a president, one vice-president for each of the sixteen constituent republics, and a secretary. The highest body of each republic has its presidium. b Russian. A similar standing committee of any other organization, as of the Communist party.

pre'sig·nif'i·cant (prē'sĭg·nĭf'ĭ·kănt), adj. Presignifying. — pre'sig·nif'i·cance (-kăns), -nif'i·can·cy (-kăn·sĭ), n.

pre·sig'ni·fi·ca'tion (prē·sĭg'nĭ·fĭ·kā'shŭn), n. [LL. praesignificatio.] Act of presignifying; also, a presage; an omen.

pre'sig·nif'i·ca'tive (prē'sĭg·nĭf'ĭ·kā'tĭv; -kă·tĭv), adj. Carrying a presignification. Rare.

pre'sig·nif'i·ca'tor (-kā'tĕr), n. One who or that which presignifies. Rare.

pre·sig'ni·fy (prē·sĭg'nĭ·fī), v. t.; -FIED (-fīd); -FY'ING (-fī'ĭng). [L. praesignificare, fr. prae before + significare to signify.] To intimate or signify beforehand; to presage.

pre·sim'i·an (prē·sĭm'ĭ·ăn), adj. [See PRE-; SIMIAN.] Existing or happening before the existence of anthropoid apes.

pre·so'cial (-sō'shăl), adj. [See PRE-.] Sociol. Of or pertaining to a hypothetical era before the establishment of social groups; as, presocial man.

pre'–So·crat'ic, adj. Of or pertaining to Greek philosophy or philosophers before Socrates. The chief schools of the pre-Socratic period were the Ionic, the Pythagorean, the Eleatic, and the school of the atomists. The Sophists may also be included. — n. A pre-Socratic philosopher.

pre·sphe'noid (prē·sfē'noid), adj. Anat. Designating, or pertaining to, a median part of the vertebrate skull anterior to the basisphenoid, with which (and other sphenoid elements) it is usually united in the adult. It forms in man the anterior part of the body of the sphenoid. — pre·sphe'noid, n. — pre'sphe·noi'dal (prē'sfē·noi'dăl; -dĭ), adj.

pre·sphyg'mic (-sfĭg'mĭk), adj. [See PRE-; SPHYGMIC.] Physiol. & Med. Occurring before the pulse beat.

pre'spi·rac'u·lar (prē'spĭ·răk'ū·lĕr), adj. [See PRE-; SPIRACLE.] Zool. & Embryol. Anterior to the spiracle.

pre·spec'u·late, v. i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·spec·u·la'tion, n.

pre·spi'nal (prē·spī'năl), adj. See PRE-, 1 b.

pre·spi'nous (-spī'nŭs), adj. [pre- + spine + -ous.] = = PRESCAPULAR b.

pre·splen'dor, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre'sple·no·me·gal'ic, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·spoil', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a pre'spon·ta'ne·ous, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'spon·ta'ne·ous·ly, adv. — pre'spon·ta·ne'i·ty, n.

pre·spread', v. t., pre·sprīn'kle, v. t., pre·spur', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

press (prĕs), n. [For prest. See PRESS to force into service.] Impressment into service; specif., Obs. exc. Hist., compulsory enlistment or service; also, an official order or commission for impressing recruits.

press (prĕs), v. t.; PRESSED (prĕst) or, Rare, PREST; PRESS'ING. [For prest, prob. misunderstood as a past part. and confused also with press to squeeze; fr. prest ready money advanced, a loan, hence, earnest money given soldiers on entering service. See PREST, n.; cf. IMPRESS to levy.] To force (men) into service, esp. military or naval service; to impress. Hence: a To commandeer (boats, vehicles, etc.). b To constrain; to use against one's will or nature; as, an awl pressed to do duty as a screwdriver.

[Reason] Cares not for service, or but serves when prest. Pope.

— v. i. To impress sailors or troops.

press, v.; PRESSED or, Rare, PREST; PRESS'ING. [OF. presser, fr. L. pressare, fr. premere, pressum, to press; akin to L. prelum a press, wine press, and perh. to Russ. peret' to press, Lith. perti to beat, flog. Cf. EXPRESS, OPPRESS, PREGNANT, PRINT, REPRIMAND, SPRAIN.] Transitive: 1. To act upon by steady pushing or thrusting while in contact, in distinction from pulling; to crowd or compel by a gradual and continued exertion; to bear upon; to squeeze; compress; as, we press the ground when we walk; we press substances with hands, fingers, or arms; we are pressed in a crowd.

Good measure, pressed down, and shaken together. Luke vi. 38.

2. To exercise very powerful or irresistible influence upon or over; to constrain; force; compel.

Paul was pressed in the spirit, and testified to the Jews that Jesus was Christ. Acts xviii. 5.

Specif.: a To assail so closely as to harass; as, hard pressed by the enemy. b Obs. To oppress; to bear hard upon; beset. c To cause to feel constraint or distress; to burden in mind or spirit. d To put to straits; distress; as, pressed with want.

3. a To squeeze so as to extract the juice or contents of; also, to squeeze out, or express; as, to press grapes. b To squeeze in or with suitable instruments or apparatus, so as to compact, make dense, or smooth; to compress; as, to press cotton; specif., to smooth by ironing, as clothes.

4. To try to force or persuade; to entreat or request earnestly or strongly; to urge or inculcate with earnestness or importunity; to enforce; as, to press a person to come.

Be sure to press upon him every motive. Addison.

5. To cause to move by pressure; — with an adv. or prep.

6. To crowd; to throng. Archaic.

7. To execute by peine forte et dure. See PEINE.

8. To print. Archaic.

9. To drive or urge on the action, doing, execution, transaction, or the like, of; to hurry; hasten; ply hard; as, to press a horse in a race.

The posts . . . went out, being hastened and pressed on, by the king's commandment. Esther viii. 14.

10. a To make earnest request for; to seek or solicit strongly.

So by your sweet self I press now to speak. A. Craig.

b To lay stress or emphasis on; urge; emphasize; as, to press advice, an opportunity, one's point.

11. To clasp closely in an embrace or caress.

Leucothoë shook at these alarms,
And pressed Palemon closer in her arms. Pope.

—, Intransitive: 1. To force or push one's way through or ahead; to strain; speed ahead; also, to crowd; to throng; as, he pressed up to the platform. "They press in from all the provinces." Tennyson.

2. To use effort; to strive; also, to contend. Now Rare.

3. To use argument or similar pressure; to urge insistently; as, to press for an appointment.

4. To demand haste or speed in action; as, time presses.

5. To exert pressure; to bear weight; to weight; — with on or upon; as, to press lightly on a sore spot; care pressed upon his mind.

6. To be pressable; as, a fabric that does not press well.

7. Golf. To make an extra effort to hit hard, causing loss of proper smoothness and co-ordination in the stroke.

press the button. To set in motion or operation, as by touching a button that turns a switch.

press (prĕs), n. [OF. presse, fr. presser. See PRESS to squeeze.] 1. Archaic. a State of being crowded or thronged. b State of being hard pressed; straits; distress.

2. A crowd of single things; a throng.

They could not come nigh unto him for the press. Mark ii. 4.

3. a Act of pressing or thronging forward; a crowding.

In their throng and press to that last hold. Shak.

b Act of pressing; physical pressure.

4. An apparatus or machine by which any substance is cut or shaped, as by pressing, drawing, or stamping; by which an impression of a body is taken; by which a material is compressed, or packed; by which pressure is applied to a body; by which liquid is expressed out of anything; or by which a cutting tool, as a drill, is fed into the work by applied pressure; as, a punch press, a printing press, a packing press, a hydraulic press, a screw press, a drill press. See these terms. Also, the place or building containing a press or presses.

5. a An upright case or closet for the safe keeping of articles; as, a clothes press. b A large cupboard, or recess with doors, as for a bed.

6. That which is made by pressing; a crease; hence, a mental impression.

7. A printing press. See PRINTING PRESS. Also, the art, business, act, or process of printing; as, to go to press; in or at press.

8. A printing or publishing establishment; as, a university press; also, its personnel.

9 Urgent demands of business or affairs; urgency; as, a press of engagements.

10. The apparatus for execution by peine forte et dure.

11. Obs. a Force; compulsion. b Difficulty; affliction; oppression. c The thick or heat of battle. d Order; readiness.

12. Fencing. An act of pressing one's blade sharply against the adversary's blade in order to force an opening for an attack.

13. Journalism. a The newspapers and periodicals, collectively, of a city or country; with a qualifying word, newspapers and periodicals of a particular kind or class; as, the religious press; the Democratic press. b The comment or notice in newspapers and periodicals given to an event or a person, esp. in the form of criticism; also, the consensus of editorial opinion on a given topic; as, a good or bad press.

14. Photog. A printing frame.

☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:

press boy	press correspondent	press-noticed press bundler	press feeder	press operator
press clipper	press fitter	press-ridden press clipping	press-made	press tender

— in press. a Obs. In a crowd or melee; hence, in active endeavor. b Well pressed; — of attire. — to go to press. To begin to be printed; as, the work is now ready to go to press. See sense 7, above.

press (prĕs), adj. Concise; precise; exact. Obs.

press (prĕs), n. [Malay (in Sumatra) tupai press.] An East Indian tree shrew (Tupaia ferruginea).

press agent. An agent employed by a theater, dramatic company, or the like, to take care of advertising, press notices, and other publicity work; now, often, one who gives publicity to, or is employed to provide publicity for, a person, a business, or the like.

press'-a'gent, v. t.; -GENT-ED; -GENT-ING. To serve as press agent to; to provide publicity for. Colloq.

press'-a'gent-ry, n. Press agents, collectively; also, the function or activities of press agents; publicity. Colloq.

press bed. A bed which is set wholly within or folds into a press or cupboard with doors.

press'board' (prĕs'bōrd'; 181), n. a A kind of highly sized rag paper or board, sometimes containing a small admixture of wood pulp; — so called because used originally, as now, in presses for pressing and finishing knit underwear. b = FULLER BOARD. — press'board', adj.

press box. A box or a space reserved for members of the press, as at a game.

press bureau. A concern, or a department of an organization, which functions as a press agent.

press cake. A cake of compressed substance; as: a Gunpowder Mfg. The cake resulting from compressing the meal powder. b Sugar Mfg. The cake left when the limed juice is filtered through filter presses. c An oil cake.

press cloth. A kind of coarse cotton or linen cloth mixed with camel's hair, used in filtering, esp. in oil milling.

press copy. Office Practice. A copy (of a writing) made on a letter, or copying, press.

press corrector. A proofreader.

press cupboard. A variant of a court cupboard, with drawers or doors below the main shelf. Cf. COURT CUPBOARD.

press cutting or clipping. Any excerpt cut from a newspaper or periodical.

press drill. Agric. Mach. See 5th DRILL, 2 a.

pressed (prĕst), past tense & past part. of PRESS. Specif.: adj. 1. Compacted or molded by pressure; squeezed together or into some form.

2. Cookery. Of minced beef, chicken, ham, etc., set in a gelatin or gelatinous binding and shaped by pressure; also, in the trade, designating cooked ham or smoked beef (pressed beef) shaped by pressure for ease in slicing.

pressed amber. = AMBEROID.

pressed brick. Bricks which, before burning, have been subjected to pressure, to free them from imperfections of shape and texture.

pressed cheese. A hard cheese, as Cheddar, that has been subjected to pressure to remove the whey, to produce physical conditions essential to ripening, and to put it in a convenient form for handling.

pressed distillate. Petroleum Refining. The oil left after the paraffin has been separated from the paraffin distillate by cooling and pressing; pressed oil.

pressed glass. Glass pressed into molds while still plastic.

pressed oil. An oil, as a vegetable or petroleum oil, from which the easily solidified substances have been removed by cooling and pressing. Cf. PRESSED DISTILLATE.

pressed ware. Pottery produced by pressing clay into molds.

pressed wax. See WAX, n.

press'el (prĕs'ĕl; -l), n. [Coined fr. PRESS, v. t.] A push button attached to a flexible conductor.

press'er (prĕs'ĕr), n. [Cf. F. pressoir, and presseur.] One who or that which presses; esp., a worker or apparatus pressing clothing, food, or an article undergoing an industrial process; as: a Glass Mfg. One who presses glass in the mold. b Pottery. One who makes hollow ware, such as tureens and vegetable dishes, which is pressed into molds without the use of the wheel. c One who presses clothes, cloth, etc. d One who works a press. e Any of various devices or apparatus for pressing, as a wine press, etc.

presser bar. In knitting machines, a bar which closes the barbs of the needles.

presser foot. 1. The part of a sewing machine which rests on the cloth and presses it down on the machine table.

2. A presser shoe.

presser shoe. Mach. A shoe or foot to hold something down.

presser wheel. A wheel for pressing something, as in a knitting machine to close the barbs of the needles.

press'fat' (prĕs'făt'), n. [See PRESS, n., 4; FAT vat.] A vat for what is extracted by a wine or oil press. Hag. ii. 16 (A. V.).

press feeder. Print. One who feeds sheets into a press.

press fit. Mach. A force fit. See 5th FIT, 4.

press'-forge', v. t.; -FORGED'; -FORG'ING. Mach. To forge (work) on a forging press.

press gallery. A gallery for the press, esp. in a legislative chamber.

press gang, or press'gang' (prĕs'găng'), n. [For prest-gang. See PRESS to force into service, PREST, n.] A detachment of men under command of an officer empowered to force men into military, or esp. naval, service. Hist.

press'-gang', v. t. & i. To impress, or do the work of a press gang. Rare.

press'ing, pres. part. of PRESS. Hence: adj. Urgent; exacting; importunate; as, a pressing necessity. — press'ing-ly, adv.

press'ing, verbal n. of PRESS. Hence: n. a Act of one who or that which presses. b That which is squeezed out by pressure. c pl. Common papers for pamphlet and copy book covers.

pressing boards. Bookbinding. Hardwood boards, either with or without projecting metal edgings, used alternately between layers of books put in press to dry.

pres'sion (prĕsh'ŭn), n. [F., fr. pressio. See PRESS to squeeze.] 1. Act of pressing; pressure. Rare.

2. Impression; imprint. Herrick.

press iron. A laundry iron for pressing and smoothing.

Pres'si-ros'tres (prĕs'ĭ-rŏs'trēz), n. pl. [NL., fr. L. pressus pressed (past part. of premere) + rostrum beak; cf. F. pressirostre. See PRESS to squeeze.] Zool. A group of birds having a narrow compressed bill. Obs. — pres'si-ros'tral (-trăl), adj. Obs.

pres'sive (prĕs'ĭv), adj. [Obs. F. pressif.] a Obs. Urgent. b Showing or using pressure; oppressive.

press'man (prĕs'măn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). 1. One who manages, has charge of, or operates, a press, esp. a printing press; a printer trained for presswork.

2. One who presses something, as clothes, sponges, grapes.

3. Journalism. A writer or reporter for the press. Cant, Chiefly British.

press'man (prĕs'măn), n. [See 2d PRESS.] A man pressed into service, esp. military or naval service. Obs.

press'mark' (prĕs'märk'), n. 1. Libraries. A mark or number in a book, catalogue, etc., especially in English libraries, indicating the case, shelf, etc., where the book is located.

2. Print. A small disklike mark bearing a figure in white printed in the gutter margin of a sheet to indicate the number of the press upon which the job was run.

press'mark', v. t. & i. To put a pressmark on; to use pressmarks.

press'mas'ter (prĕs'măs'tĕr; 83), n. One empowered to impress for military or naval service. Obs.

press money. = PREST MONEY.

press of He·roph'i·lus (hĕ-rŏf'ĭ-lŭs). [After Herophilus, Gr. anatomist.] Anat. The confluens sinuum of the dura mater.

press of sail or canvas. Naut. As much sail as the state of the wind will permit.

pres'sor (prĕs'ĕr), adj. Physiol. Causing pressure or an increase of pressure; as, pressor nerve fibers, stimulation of which excites the vasomotor center, thus causing a stronger contraction of the arteries and an increase of the arterial blood pressure; — opposed to depressor.

press'pack' (prĕs'păk'), v. t. To pack, or prepare for packing, by means of a press.

press paper. = PRESSBOARD.

press'-pa'per, n. A paperweight.

press proof. Print. a The last proof for correction before sending to press. b A proof taken on a press, esp. to show impression, margins, color, etc.

press release. Journalism. Material furnished in advance to a newspaper for publication at a given future date.

press revise. Print. A proof for final revision.

press roll. Lumber Mfg. A live roll that presses and holds the moving lumber against the feed roll.

press'room' (prĕs'rōōm'; 200), n. A room in which presses are kept or operated, as in a printing establishment.

press sheet. = CLIPSHEET.

pres'sur·age (prĕsh'ĕr-ĭj), n. [F.] Rare. a Pressure. b The juice of the grape extracted by the press; also, a fee paid for the use of a wine press.

pres'sur·al (prĕsh'ĕr-ăl), adj. Pertaining to, caused by, or of the nature of, pressure; as, a pressural tide.

pres'sure (prĕsh'ĕr; 249), n. [OF., fr. L. pressura, fr. premere. See PRESS to squeeze.] 1. A pressing, or state of being pressed; specif., compression; a squeezing; as, pressure of the hand.

2. Painful bodily or mental feeling, as of weight or burden; a state of trouble or affliction; oppression; distress.

In the midst of his great troubles and pressures. Atterbury.

3. A constraining force, influence, or impulse of any kind; as, the pressure of poverty, of taxes; environmental pressure. "The pressure of danger." Macaulay.

4. Urgency of dispatch; as, the pressure of business.

5. Impression; stamp; character impressed. Shak.

6. Elec. Electromotive force.

7. Mech. a The action of a force against some opposing force; a force in the nature of a thrust, distributed over a surface. b The force or thrust exerted over a surface divided by the area of the surface.

8. Meteorol. Atmospheric pressure.

9. Psychol. A quality of sensation aroused by moderate compression of the skin.

Syn. — Squeeze, constraint, force; exigency

☞ COMBINATIONS and PHRASES are:

pressure blower	pressure register
pressure evaporator	pressure-regulating, adj.
pressure-fixing, adj.	pressure regulator
pressure governor	pressure-relieving, adj.
pressure indicator	pressure siphon pressure pump	pressure spring pressure-reciprocating, adj.	pressure tank pressure recorder	pressure-testing, adj.
pressure-reducing, adj.	pressure valve pressure atrophy. See ATROPHY, 1.

pressure boiler. A tank for the storing, under pressure, of hot water, which is drawn off as required, as in a dwelling house; also, sometimes, a vessel for heating liquids under pressure; an autoclave.

pressure bottle. 1. Chem. A bottle with a clamp for holding the stopper in place, used for conducting digestions at pressures greater than atmospheric.

2. Med. A bottle furnishing pressure, as by gravity flow of fluid from it to another bottle with consequent increase in pressure in the latter. From the second bottle gas may be ejected under pressure.

pressure box. A cistern at a considerable elevation, fed by a flume, ditch, or pipe, to supply water under a head.

pressure coil. = POTENTIAL COIL.

pressure cooker. See AUTOCLAVE.

pressure element. Kinematics. A fluid connection, as between an accumulator and a machine.

pressure fan. A fan supplying air under pressure.

pressure filter. A filter (sense 3) in which the pressure on the feed side of the filter medium is greater than that of the atmosphere.

pressure finger. Spinning. The spring finger or presser of a bobbin frame.

pressure foot. = PRESSURE SHOE.

pressure gauge. A gauge for indicating fluid pressure; a manometer; as: a A gauge on a steam boiler to indicate steam pressure. See BOURDON GAUGE. b A device to measure the pressure of an explosive, as when fired in a gun barrel. See RODMAN'S PRESSURE GAUGE.

pressure gradient. The rate of change of pressure normal horizontally to an isobar.

pressure gun. = GUN, 8 b.

pressure hull. Naut. That part of a submarine designed to withstand pressure when submerged, as distinguished from the superstructure, and sometimes from an outer hull, which are open to the water.

pressure ice. Ice in rough irregular ridges, formed in the arctic seas when large areas of sea ice press against each other.

pressure nozzle. Aeronautics. 1. A Pitot-static tube.

2. A combination of a venturi tube and either a Pitot or a static tube. Each of the two tubes is joined to a differential pressure gauge the scale of which is calibrated to indicate the velocity of air flow.

pressure point. = PRESSURE SPOT.

pressure producer. See PRODUCER, 4.

---

press'a·ble, adj. See -ABLE Press'burg (prĕs'bōōrg), n. See TREATY, Table.

press'dom, n. See -DOM.

press'ful, n. See -FUL.

press'i·ble, adj. = PRESSABLE.

pressing iron. = PRESS IRON.

press'ing·ness, n. See -NESS.

pres'si·tant, adj. [See 3d PRESS.] Gravitating; heavy. Obs.

press'ly, adv. Expressly; explicitly; also, concisely. Obs.

press'man·ship, n. See -SHIP.

press'ness, n. [L. pressus, past part. of premere to press + -ness.] Conciseness; terseness. Obs.

pressor. ‡ PRESSER.

pres'sure·less, adj. See -LESS.

pressure ridge. A ridge produced on floating ice by buckling or crushing under lateral pressure of wind or tide, or on a congealing lava flow by the continued movement of its liquid interior.

pressure sense. Psychol. The sense which responds to pressure, as on the skin or in the joints, giving sensations of pressure, contact, tickling, etc.; the sense of touch proper.

pressure spot or point. Psychol. One of the spots on the skin peculiarly sensitive to pressure; a touch spot.

pressure stage. Steam Turbines. The stage in the process of expansion and of energy transformation in which the steam, after expanding through a predetermined pressure range, gives up its acquired kinetic energy to the moving blades without further drop in pressure. When the steam passes from one pressure stage to another the foregoing process is repeated. Cf. VELOCITY STAGE.

pressure syllable. Phonet. A syllable thought to be characterized by a successive rise and fall of breath pressure. See Pron., § 59.

pressure tank. A tank in which a liquid is stored under pressure greater than atmospheric.

pressure tube. 1. Chem. A heavy tube containing reagents and hermetically closed so that interaction of the contents can be brought about at a much higher pressure than would be possible in an open tube.
2. Chem. & Physics. A tube for use with a manometer to show the pressure; a Bourdon tube.

pressure wires. Elec. Wires leading from various points of an electric system to a central station, where a voltmeter indicates the potential of the system at those points.

press warrant. A warrant given by the crown as authority to impress men into the navy. Obs. exc. Hist.

press wax. See WAX, n.

press'wom'an (prĕs'wŏŏm'ăn), n.; pl. -WOMEN (-wĭm'ĕn; -ĭn; 119). A woman member of the press.

press'work' (prĕs'wûrk'), n. 1. Work done on or by a press; specif.: a The operation, management, or product of a printing press; that branch of printing concerned with the actual production of impressions from type, plates, etc. b Cabinetmaking. Work consisting of a series of cross-grained veneers united by glue, heat, and pressure. c Metalworking. Act or process of pressing or drawing with dies or presses; also, the product of such work.
2. Usually press work. The work of a press agent. Chiefly Theat. Slang.

press'work'er (-wûr'kĕr), n. One who does presswork.

press yard. A yard of Old Newgate Prison, in London. Obs. exc. Hist.

prest (prĕst), n. [OF. (F. prêt), fr. (assumed) VL. praestitum, fr. past part. of L. praestare to stand before, to become surety for, to supply, fr. prae before + stare to stand. See PRE-; STAND. Cf. PRESS to force into service.] 1. Obs. a A loan of money; a loan. b An advance payment on wages, etc.; specif., prest money. c An enlistment with prest money.
2. Eng. Law. A duty formerly paid by the sheriff on his account into the exchequer, or for money in his hands.

prest, v. t. [OF. prester (F. prêter).] To pay out as an imprest; to lend; to hire or enlist by payment of an imprest. Obs.

prest (prĕst), adj. [OF. (F. prêt), fr. LL. praestus, fr. L. praesto, adv. See PRE-; STE. Cf. PRESTO.] Obs. a Ready; prompt; quick; prepared. b Neat; proper.

prest, adv. Quickly; readily; soon. Obs.

prest, v. t. [From PREST ready.] To make ready; hasten. Obs.

pre·stab'i·lism (prē·stăb'ĭ·lĭz'm), n. [G. prästabilismus. See PRE-; ESTABLISH.] Philos. a The Leibnitzian doctrine of pre-established harmony of body and mind. b With Kant, the view that the living organism embodies an initial tendency, or anlage, implanted by the First Cause, whereby its kind is reproduced.

prest'a·ble (prĕs'tȧ·b'l), adj. Payable; available for payment. Scot.

pre·sta'ble (prē·stā'b'l), adj. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'sta·bil'i·ty (prē'stȧ·bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n.

pre·state' (prē·stāt'), v. t.; -STAT'ED (-stāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -STAT'ING (-stāt'ĭng). [L. praestatus, past part. See PREST.] Civil Law. To perform; to furnish pursuant to an obligation; to undertake.

pres·ta'tion (prĕs·tā'shŭn), n. [F., fr. L. praestatio a performing, paying, fr. praestare. See PREST, n.] 1. Feudal Law. A rent, tax, or due paid in kind or in services, as in return for the lord's warrant or authority for taking wood.
2. Civil Law. A performance of something due upon an obligation.

prestation money. Ch. of Eng. Annual dues formerly paid by archdeacons and other dignitaries to their bishop.

pres'ter (prĕs'tĕr), n. [OF. prestre, fr. L. presbyter. See PREST.] A priest or presbyter. Obs., exc. as in Prester John, in the Middle Ages, a legendary Christian priest and king, whose dominions were assigned first (about the 12th century) to the Far East and later to Ethiopia or Abyssinia. Marvelous tales were told of his wealth, power, and conquests.

pres'ter (prĕs'tĕr), n. [L., fr. Gr. prēstēr, fr. pimpranai to kindle or burn.] Obs. a A hurricane or whirlwind attended with lightning. b A kind of venomous serpent. c One of the veins of the neck when swollen with anger.

pre·ster'nal (prē·stûr'nȧl; -n'l), adj. Anat. & Zool. a Of or pertaining to the presternum. b Prosternal.

pre·ster'num (prē·stûr'nŭm), n. [NL.] Zool. a The anterior segment of the sternum of a mammal; the manubrium. b The first or anterior division of the sternum of a thoracic segment of an insect.

‖pre·stez'za (prĕs·tĕt'sä), n. [It.] Music. Quickness; celerity. Rare.

pres'ti·dig'i·tal (prĕs'tĭ·dĭj'ĭ·tȧl), adj. [See PRESTIDIGITATOR.] Light-fingered. C. Reade.

pres'ti·dig'i·tate (-tāt), v. i. [From PRESTIDIGITATOR.] To perform legerdemain.

‖pres'tĭ'di'gi'ta'teur' (prĕs'tē'dē'zhē'tȧ'tûr'), n. [F.] A prestidigitator.

pres'ti·dig'i·ta'tion (prĕs'tĭ·dĭj'ĭ·tā'shŭn), n. [F.] Sleight of hand; legerdemain; juggling.

pres'ti·dig'i·ta'tor (-dĭj'ĭ·tā'tĕr), n. [F. prestidigitateur, fr. prestigiateur (see PRESTIGIATOR), after F. preste nimble (fr. It. presto) and L. digitus finger (see PRESTO; DIGIT).] One skilled in legerdemain or sleight of hand; a juggler. — pres'ti·dig'i·ta·to'ri·al (-tȧ·tō'rĭ·ȧl; 181), adj.

pres·tige' (prĕs·tēzh'; prĕs'tĭj; 277), n. [F., fr. L. praestigium delusion, illusion, praestigiae deceptions, jugglers' tricks, fr. praestringe, fr. praestringere to bind up, to blind. See PRE-; STRINGENT.] 1. A conjurer's trick; a sorcery; an illusion; a deception. Obs.

The prestiges of imposture. Bp. Warburton.

2. Power to charm, dazzle, or command admiration; hence, éclat; renown; as, a good name, but lacking in prestige; the fading prestige of an old school.
3. Ascendancy derived from general admiration or esteem; commanding position in men's minds.

The prestige, which once adhered to those who spoke by revelation, has passed to scientists. Walter Lippmann.

Syn. — See INFLUENCE.

Ant. — Notoriety, infamy, ignominy. See DISHONOR.

pres·tig'i·ate (prĕs·tĭj'ĭ·āt), v. t.; -AT'ED (-āt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -AT'ING (-āt'ĭng). [LL. praestigiare. See PRESTIGE.] To deceive as by magic or prestidigitation. Obs. — pres·tig'i·a'tion (-ā'shŭn), n. Obs.

pres·tig'i·a'tor (-ā'tĕr), n. [L. praestigiator, whence F. prestigiateur.] A prestidigitator; conjurer; also, a cheat. Rare. — pres·tig'i·a·to'ry (-ȧ·tō'rĭ; -tĕr·ĭ), adj. Obs.

pres·tig'i·ous (prĕs·tĭj'ĭ·ŭs), adj. [LL. praestigiosus; cf. F. prestigieux.] Obs. 1. a Conjuring. b Pertaining to, or of the nature of, conjuring or magic.
2. Having or manifesting prestige.
— pres·tig'i·ous·ly, adv. — pres·tig'i·ous·ness, n. Both Obs.

pres·tis'si·mo (prĕs·tĕs'sē·mō), adv. [It., superl. of presto.] At a very rapid pace; — chiefly a musical direction. — n. A movement or passage performed prestissimo.

prest money. [From PREST, n.] Money advanced to men on enlisting in the British service; imprest. Obs.

pres'to (prĕs'tō), adv. [It., quick, quickly, fr. LL. praestus. See PREST, adj.; cf. CULPRIT.] 1. Quickly; immediately; in haste; suddenly; — originally in magic. "Presto! begonel 't is here again." Swift.
2. Music. At a rapid pace; — used as a direction. Cf. PRESTISSIMO.

pres'to, adj. Hastily accomplished; rapidly performed; also, quickly passing; instantaneous; as, presto movements; to finish in presto time.

pres'to, n. 1. A magician's command, expressed by the word "presto!"
2. Music. A passage or movement in rapid tempo.

pres'to chang'o (prĕs'tō chān'jō). Also presto change. [presto + change.] Change quickly; — a magician's exclamation. Cant or Colloq.

pre·sto'mi·um (prē·stō'mĭ·ŭm), n. [NL.] Zool. Prostomium. — pre·sto'mi·al (-ȧl), adj.

Pres'ton salts (prĕs'tŭn; -t'n). Pharm. Smelling salts consisting of ammonium carbonate in ammonia water with some essential oil.

pre'su·bic'u·lum (prē'sŭ·bĭk'ū·lŭm), n. [NL. See PRE-.] Anat. The part of the hippocampal convolution lying between the subiculum and the main olfactory region.

pre·sum'a·ble (prē·zūm'ȧ·b'l), adj. [Cf. F. présumable.] That may be presumed, granted, supposed, or anticipated; esp., that seems entitled to belief without direct evidence.

pre·sume' (-zūm'; 242), v.; -SUMED' (-zūmd'); -SUM'ING (-zūm'ĭng). [OF. presumer, fr. L. praesumere, praesumptum, fr. prae before + sumere to take. See ASSUME.] Transitive: 1. To take upon oneself without leave, authority, or warrant; to undertake in rash defiance, in overconfidence, or in vain hope; to dare; venture.

We hear the Tartars . . .
Presume a bickering with your emperor. Marlowe.
Dare he presume to scorn us in this manner? Shak.

2. Obs. a To usurp. b To pretend; to profess.
3. To anticipate with confidence; to presuppose; expect.

To hope the best is pious, brave, and wise,
And may itself procure what it presumes. Young.

4. To take or suppose to be true, or entitled to belief, without examination or proof, or on the strength of probability; to take for granted; to infer; suppose; assume.

Every man is to be presumed innocent till he is proved to be guilty. Blackstone.

5. To raise a presumption of or that; as, a receipt for payment of rent presumes payment of prior rent.
—, Intransitive: 1. To assume without warrant or sufficient justification a right, a privilege, or the realization of a possibility or hope; to act, behave, or proceed presumptuously or on a presumption; as, ignorance presumes where knowledge is timid. "We must presume of energy enough." Browning.
2. To go beyond what is right, proper, or to be expected; to make encroachment; — with on or upon. "Do not presume too much upon my love." Shak.

pre·sume', n. [From PRESUME, v.] Presumption. Obs.

pre·sum'ed·ly (prē·zūm'ĕd·lĭ; -ĭd·lĭ; 119), adv. Presumably.

pre·sum'er (prē·zūm'ĕr), n. One who presumes.

pre·sump'tion (prē·zŭmp'shŭn; 206), n. [OF. presomption, presumpcion (F. présomption), fr. L. praesumptio. See PRESUME.] 1. The act or an instance of presuming (in any sense). Now Rare.
2. Quality of being presumptuous; presumptuous conduct or state of mind; inordinate pride, hope, or confidence; arrogance; effrontery; daring; specif., Eccl. overconfidence of salvation, esp. without one's effort or God's help.

I had the presumption to dedicate to you a very unfinished poem. Dryden.
Her hope presumption, and her faith a lie. Cowper.

3. Ground for presuming, or believing probable; presumptive evidence; strong probability.

Her feeble pulse gives strong presumption Death soon will end her. Burns.

4. That which is presumed, or supposed or believed on evidence that is probable, but not conclusive; an assumption; as, to question the grounds of one's presumptions; it is a reasonable presumption.
5. Law. An inference as to the existence of one fact not certainly known, from the known or proved existence of some other fact, founded on a previous experience or general knowledge of their connection (called a presumption of fact, or logical presumption) or founded on a rule or policy of the law requiring the inference to be made (called a presumption of law). A presumption of law may arise when the facts would not warrant a logical presumption; thus mere absence of a person without evidence of his having been seen or heard raises a presumption of law that the person is dead. This presumption is of the class called rebuttable presumptions, that may be rebutted by other evidence. The presumption that a child under seven years of age is incapable of committing a crime and the presumption that a person knows the laws are presumptions of law of the class (called irrebuttable presumptions) that the law does not allow to be rebutted, and are more properly classed as rules of substantive law, though many originated as presumptions of fact.

Syn. — Audacity, impudence, insolence. See ASSUMPTION.

Ant. — Modesty, deference, respectfulness.

presumption of survivorship. Law. At common law and in most American jurisdictions there is no presumption as to survivorship among two or more who die in a common disaster (as a shipwreck). In Roman and civil law there is sometimes a presumption that the stronger, or younger, survives an elder or feebler person.

pre·sump'tive (prē·zŭmp'tĭv), adj. 1. Presumptuous; arrogant. Now Rare.
2. Giving grounds for a presumption, or well-founded opinion or belief; as, presumptive evidence; also, based upon a presumption, or probability, or presumptive evidence of ownership, inheritance, culpability, or the like; as, a presumptive title to an estate.
3. That may be assumed or inferred to be true, real, accurate, or the like. "Sufficient material to enable me to make a presumptive likeness." C. D. Hazen.

presumptive evidence. Law. Evidence depending for its validity on presumptions; — equiv. to circumstantial evidence (which see).

presumptive heir. = HEIR PRESUMPTIVE.

pre·sump'tu·ous (prē·zŭmp'tū·ŭs), adj. [F. présomptueux fr. LL. praesumptuosus. See PRESUMPTION.] 1. Overweeningly proud, self-confident, or venturesome; full of, or manifesting, presumption; taking undue liberties; arrogant; as, presumptuous conduct, letters, or plans.
2. = PRESUMPTIVE, 2. Obs.

Syn. — Foolhardy, forward, haughty. See ARROGANT.

Ant. — Retiring, shy, modest; meek.

— pre·sump'tu·ous·ly, adv. — pre·sump'tu·ous·ness, n.

pre'sup·pos'al (prē'sŭ·pōz'ȧl), n. Presupposition.

pre'sup·pose' (prē'sŭ·pōz'), v. t.; -POSED' (-pōzd'); -POS'ING (-pōz'ĭng). [F. présupposer. See PRE-; SUPPOS.] 1. To suppose beforehand; to take for granted in advance; to postulate or assume antecedently or as antecedent; as, to presuppose knowledge on the part of one's listeners.
2. To require as an antecedent logical condition; to require with necessity or a priori; to imply; as, true knowledge of the external world presupposes the validity of perception.

pre'sup·po·si'tion (prē'sŭp·ō·zĭsh'ŭn), n. [Cf. F. présupposition.] Act of presupposing, or that which is presupposed: a preliminary assumption; a postulate.

pre'sup·pres'sion (prē'sŭ·prĕsh'ŭn), n. [pre- + suppression.] Effective work in fire control prior to any actual fire.

pre'sur·mise' (prē'sûr·mīz'), n. A presentiment. Shak.

pre'sur·mise', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·syl'vi·an (prē·sĭl'vĭ·ŭn; 159), adj. [See PRE-; SYLVIAN.] Anat. In front of the fissure of Sylvius, esp. the ascending branch of that fissure.

pre'syn·ap'tic (prē'sĭ·năp'tĭk), adj. Biol. Prior to synapsis, as certain meiotic events. — pre'syn·ap'sis (-sĭs), n.

pre·sys'to·le (prē·sĭs'tō·lē), n. Physiol. The interval just preceding the systole. — pre'sys·tol'ic (prē'sĭs·tŏl'ĭk), adj.

pret (prĕt), n. [Pol. pręt rod.] See MEASURE, Table.

pre·tan' (prē·tăn'), v. t.; -TANNED' (-tănd'); -TAN'NING. Leather Mfg. To tan prior to the main tanning. — pre·tan'nage (-ĭj), n.

---

pres'sure·proof' (66), adj. See -PROOF.

pres'sure·re·lief' ring. = RELIEF RING.

prest. Occasional or ref. sp. of pressed, past tense & past part. of PRESS. [1 a.] pre·stamp', n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1.

pre·stand'ard, n. & adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·stand'ard·ize, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'stand·ard·i·za'tion, n.

pres'tant (prĕs'tănt), n. [F., fr. It. prestante excellent, fr. L. praestans, -antis, pres. part. of praestare to stand before.] = PRINCIPAL, 14 a (1).

pre'sta·tis'ti·cal, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. [1 a & 2.]

pre·steam', adj. & v. t. See PRE-, 1.

pre·steel', n. & adj. See PRE-, 2.

pres·tig'i·on, n. Prestigiation. Obs.

pre·stim'u·late, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'stim·u·la'tion, n.

pre·stim'u·lus, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

prest'ly, adv. [See PREST, adj.] Quickly; promptly; eagerly; soon. Obs.

pre·stock', n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·store', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·stor'age, n. [1 a.] pre·straight'en, v. t. See PRE-, 1.

pre·strain', n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. [1 a.] pre·strength'en, v. t. See PRE-, 1.

pre·stress', n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·stretch', n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·strick'en, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·stric'tion (prē·strĭk'shŭn), n. [LL. praestrictio a binding fast, fr. praestringere, v.] Dazzlement. Obs.

pre·strug'gle, n. & v. i. See PRE-, 1.

pre·stub'born, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·stu'di·ous, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·stu'di·ous·ly, adv. — pre·stu'di·ous·ness, n.

pre·stud'y, v. i. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·stun'due', v. i. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre'sub·ject', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'sub·jec'tion, n.

pre'sub·mit', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'sub·mis'sion, n.

pre'sub·or'di·nate, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'sub·or'di·na'tion, n.

pre'sub·scribe', v. t. & i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'sub·scrib'er, n. — pre'sub·scrip'tion, n.

pre'sub·sist', v. i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'sub·sist'ence, n. — pre'sub·sist'ent, adj. [1 a.]

pre'sub·stan'tial, adj. See PRE-, 1.

pre·sub'sti·tute, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'sub·sti·tu'tion, n. — pre'suc·cess', n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'suc·cess'ful, adj. — pre'suc·cess'ful·ly, adv.

pre·suf'fer, v. t. & i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·suf'fer·ing, n.

pre'suf·fi'cient, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'suf·fi'cien·cy, n. — pre'suf·fi'cient·ly, adv. [2.]

pre·suf'frage, n. & adj. See PRE-, 1.

pre'sug·gest', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'sug·ges'tion, n. — pre'sug·ges'tive, adj.

pre·suit'a·ble, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·suit'a·bil'i·ty, n. — pre·suit'a·bly, adv.

pre'sul, n. [L. praesul president, orig., dancer.] Bishop. Obs.

pre·sum'a·bl. Presumable. Ref. Sp. [ABLE.]

pre·sum'a·bly, adv. of PRESUME-; pre'·su·me'ri·an, adj. & n. See PRE-, 2.

pre·sum'ing, pres. part. & verbal n. of PRESUME. — -ing·ly, adv.

pre·sump'tious, adj. Presumptuous. — pre·sump'tious·ly, adv. Both Obs.

pre·sump'tiv. Presumptive. Ref. Sp. [SUMPTIVE.]

pre·sump'tive·ly, adv. of PRESUMPTIVE.

pre'su·per·fi'cial, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'su·per·fi'ci·al'i·ty, n. — pre'su·per·fi'cial·ly, adv.

pre'su·per·flu·ous, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'su·per·flu'i·ty, n. — pre'su·per·flu·ous·ly, adv.

pre'su·per·in·tend'ence, n., pre'su·per·in·tend'en·cy, n. See PRE-, 2.

pre'su·per·vise', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'su·per·vi'sion, n. — pre'su·per·vi'sor, n.

pre'sup·ple·men'tal, adj., pre'sup·ple·men'ta·ry, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·sup'pli·cate, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'sup·pli·ca'tion, n.

pre'sup·ply', n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre'sup·pone', v. t. To presuppose. Obs.

pre'sup·port', n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. [-LESS.]

pre'sup·po·si'tion·less, adj. See PRE-, 1 b.

pre'sup·press', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·sup'pu·ra'tive, adj. See PRE-.

pre'su·preme', adj. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'su·prem'a·cy, n.

pre·sur'ger·y, n. See PRE-, 2 & 3.

pre·sur'gical, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre'sur·prise', n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'sur·pris'al, n.

pre'sur·ren'der, n. & v. t. & i. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre'sur·round', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. [1 a.] pre·sur·vey', n. & v. t. See PRE-.

pre'sus·cep'ti·ble, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'sus·cep'ti·bil'i·ty, n.

pre'sus·pect', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. pre'sus·pend', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'sus·pen'sion, n.

pre'sus·pi'cion, n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'sus·pi'cious, adj. — pre'sus·pi'cious·ly, adv. — pre'sus·pi'cious·ness, n.

pre'sus·tain', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·su'tural, adj. See PRE-, 1 b.

pre·swal'low, n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·sym'pa·thize, v. i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·sym'pa·thy, n.

pre·sym'pho·ny, n. See PRE-, 2. — pre'sym·phon'ic, adj.

pre'sym·phys'i·al, adj. See PRE-, 1 b.

pre·sym'tom, n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'sym·tom·at'ic, adj.

pre'-Syri'an, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre'sys·tem·at'ic, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'sys·tem·at'i·cal·ly, adv.

pre·tab'u·late, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·tab·u·la'tion, n.

pre·tan'gi·ble, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·tan'gi·bly, adv.

pre·tar'di·ly, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·tar'di·ness, n.

pre·tar'iff, n. & adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·taste', n. & v. i., pre·tast'er, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·tax·a'tion. Var. of PRAETAXATION. [1 a.] pre·teach', v. t. & i. See PRE-, 1.

pre·tech'ni·cal, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·tech'ni·cal·ly, adv.

pre·tel'e·graph, adj. See PRE-, 2. — pre'tel·e·graph'ic, adj.

pre·tel'e·phone, adj. See PRE-, 2. — pre'tel·e·phon'ic, adj.

pre·tell', v. i. & t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·tem'per·ate, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·tem'per·ate·ly, adv.

---

pre·tem′po·ral (prē·tĕm′pō·răl), adj. Prior to the beginning of time.

pre·tem′po·ral (-tĕm′pō·răl), adj. Anat. In front of the temporal bone.

pre·tend′ (prē·tĕnd′), v.; -TEND′ED; -TEND′ING. [ME. pretenden to try to reach, seek after, intend, fr. L. praetendere, praetentum, to stretch forward, pretend, simulate, assert, fr. prae before + tendere to stretch; cf. F. prétendre. See TEND, v. i.] Transitive: 1. a Obs. To hold out or put before one; to extend; also, to present; offer. Spenser. b Rare. To hold before, or put forward, as a cloak, veil, or disguise for something else.

Lest that too heavenly form, pretended
To hellish falsehood, snare them. Milton.

2. a To hold out the appearance of being, possessing, or performing; to profess; to make believe; to make pretense; to feign; sham; as, to pretend to be asleep. b To hold out, or represent, esp. falsely; to put forward or offer as true or real (esp. something untrue or unreal); to assert or allege, usually falsely; to show hypocritically or deceitfully; to feign; as, to pretend friendship.

3. To lay a claim to; to allege a title to; to claim. Now R.

Chiefs shall be grudged the part which they pretend. Dryden.

4. To put forward, assert, or allege as a ground, reason, pretext, or excuse. Now Rare.

5. To aspire to; undertake; attempt. Archaic.

6. Obs. a To intend; design; plot. b To claim. c To import; signify. d To portend; forebode.

—, Intransitive: 1. To tend forward; to direct one's course, efforts, etc.; aim; aspire; proceed. Obs.

My friend pretendeth to a place. G. Herbert.

2. To put in a claim; to allege a title; to lay claim; to make pretensions; — with to.

3. To simulate or feign a person, state, etc., as in play; to make believe; as, given to pretending.

4. To make court or suit; to seek in marriage; as, the baron pretends to the hand of the princess. A Gallicism.

5. To intend. Obs.

Syn. — See ASSUME.

pre·tend′, n. Pretension. Rare.

pre·tend′ant (prē·tĕn′dănt), n. [F. prétendant.] A pretender; a claimant; also, a suitor.

pre·tend′ant, adj. Of the nature of or pertaining to a pretendant. Obs.

pre·tend′ed (prē·tĕn′dĕd; -dĭd; 119), past tense & past part. of PRETEND. Hence: adj. a Obs. Intended; proposed. "Notice of their . . . pretended flight." Shak. b So-called; alleged; — revealing the speaker's bias; as, this pretended neutrality. c Professed or avowed but not genuine; in appearance only; as, pretended loyalty; a pretended friend. — pre·tend′ed·ly, adv.

pre·tend′er (-dĕr), n. One who pretends: a One who lays claim, or asserts a title (to something); a claimant; specif., a claimant to a throne; esp., now one who is held to have no just title. In English history the term is applied esp. [cap.] to the son (Old Pretender or the Pretender) and the grandson (Young Pretender) of James II, of the royal family of Stuart, who laid claim to the throne.

Confident pretenders to certainty. Glanvill.

b One who makes a false or hypocritical show; one who simulates or feigns.

Pre·tend′er·ism (prē·tĕn′dĕr·ĭz′m), n. [Pretender + -ism.] Jacobitism. See JACOBITE, n., 4.

pre·tense′, pre·tence′ (prē·tĕns′; prē′tĕns; 66), n. [AF. pretensse, fr. ML. praetensa, fem. of praetensus, for L. praetentus, past part. of praetendere. See PRETEND; cf. TENSION.] 1. A claiming or a claim made; now, usually, a claim or pretension not supported by fact even when indicated outwardly; as, a book without any pretense to style.

2. Pretentiousness; mere ostentation; also, a pretentious act, speech, profession, etc.; as, to be absolutely free from pretense. "He ranged himself against its windy pretenses from the start." Mencken.

3. An aiming, an aim, or an end aimed at; now, chiefly with at, an intending or an endeavor to arrive (at a specified end); an attempt; as, a catalogue with no pretense at completeness; a government that is a pretense at democracy.

4. a Obs. Intention. b Professed rather than real purpose or intention; pretext; excuse; also, cover; cloak.

Bought and kept a small terrier . . . under the baseless pretense that it was a stray animal. H. G. Wells.

5. Something alleged or believed on slight grounds; an unwarranted assumption. "To sniff at my mother's affectionate pretense of his being the head of the family." Mary Austin.

6. Act of holding out or offering to others something false or feigned; presentation of what is deceptive or hypocritical; deception by showing what is unreal and concealing what is real; false show; simulation; as, pretense of illness; under pretense of patriotism.

Syn. — Appearance, show, sham, affectation, fabrication, subterfuge, artifice. — PRETENSE, PRETEXT, PRETENSION, FEINT, PLEA. PRETENSE applies in general to that which is falsely or deceitfully held out as real or true; a PRETEXT is more specifically an ostensible reason or motive assumed in order to conceal the true one; as, "declining to dance before her, on a pretense of sickness, when in fact he was in perfect health" (Cowper); "the pretense that eludes the detection of others and that which deceives the pretender himself" (Brownell); "There was . . . no story, from his curious half-medical reading, he [Montaigne] would not find some plausible pretext to tell" (W. Pater). PRETENSION implies the assertion of a claim (whether true or false) to the possession of a certain character or of certain qualities; as, "[His] version . . . could make no pretension to verbal accuracy" (J. Fiske); "his pretension to the Epicurean conquest of a kingly indifference of mind" (W. Pater). A FEINT is a deceptive act or an assumed appearance, often of the nature of an artifice or stratagem; PLEA, as here compared, suggests an (often feigned) apology or excuse; as, "Oh stay! It was a feint . . . I said it but to awe thee" (Shelley); "I make a feint of excusing myself" (Lowell); "Old Hepzibah's scowl could no longer vindicate itself entirely on the plea of near-sightedness" (Hawthorne). Cf. ARTIFICE.

Ant. — Actuality, reality, verity; genuineness; simplicity.

pre·tense′, pre·tence′, v. t. To pretend; to offer; intend; to conceal or disguise with a pretense. Obs.

pre·tense′ (prē·tĕns′; prē′tĕns; 66), adj. [LL. praetensus. See PRETENSE, n.] Pretensed. Obs.

pre·ten′sion (prē·tĕn′shŭn), n. [Cf. F. prétention. See PRETEND; TENSION.] 1. An assertion or declaration whose truth is questioned or falsity suspected; an allegation of doubtful value; a pretext. "This [statement] was but an invention and pretension given out by the Spaniards." Bacon.

2. A claim or an effort to establish a claim; a formal demand for recognition of a title, right, privilege, or the like.

The controversy was put an end to by a treaty in 1818, in which the indefensible American pretension was abandoned. W. E. Hall.

3. A tacit, asserted or obvious claim, right, or title; a claim or call to attention, consideration, or honor, because of real or alleged superiority, merit, or ability; as, with no pretension to beauty; his pretensions to taste or to the title of gentleman; a town house of some pretensions.

4. Aspiration; intention. Now Rare.

5. Pretentiousness; a pretense or pretenses collectively.

That ironic contrast between the pretensions of a king and the actual necessities of his destiny. Pater.

Syn. — See PRETENSE.

pre·ten′sion·al (-ăl; -ĭl), adj. Of the nature of a pretension or pretense. Rare.

pre·ten′sive (prē·tĕn′sĭv), adj. Of the nature of a pretense or pretension; pretentious. — pre·ten′sive·ly, adv. — pre·ten′sive·ness, n. All Rare.

pre·ten′tious (prē·tĕn′shŭs), adj. [F. prétentieux. See PRETENSION.] Having or exhibiting pretensions or pretenses. Specif.: a Making or possessing claims, as to excellence, greatness, merit, etc.; ostentatious; showy; pompous; as, a pretentious home or style; pretentious oratory. b Characterized by effort or strain; making demands upon one's skill, ability, or the like; ambitious; as, too pretentious a program for this singer; a more pretentious picture than his last.

Syn. — See OSTENTATIOUS.

Ant. — Unpretentious, simple, unaffected, humble.

— pre·ten′tious·ly, adv. — pre·ten′tious·ness, n.

pre′ter- (prē′tĕr-). [L. praeter past, beyond, orig. compar. of prae before. See PRE-.] A prefix, Latin praeter-, from praeter, meaning: a Past, by, beyond, as in preterit, pretermit, preterlethal. b [LL. & ML.] Beyond the range or compass of, surpassing, super-, as in preternatural. For words below, see the word with which preter- (sense b) is combined.

pretercanine	preterhuman	preterpolitical preterchristian	preterintentional	preterrational preterconventional	preterlegal	preterregular preterdiplomatic	preternative	preterroyal preterdiplomatically	preternormal	preterscriptural preterequine	preternotorious	preterseasonable preteressential	preternuptial	pretersensual pre·ter (prē′tĕr), adj. [L. praeter past, beyond.] Preterit or past. Obs. — n. The past. Obs.

pre′ter·de·ter′mined (prē′tĕr·dē·tûr′mĭnd), adj. [See PRETER-.] More than determined. — pre′ter·de·ter′min·ed·ly (-mĭn·ĕd·lĭ; -ĭd·lĭ), adv.

pre′ter·gress′ (prē′tĕr·grĕs′), v. i. [L. praetergressus, past part. of praetergredi.] To go beyond or outside the limits or nature of. — pre′ter·gres′sion (-grĕsh′ŭn), n. Both Rare.

pre·te′ri·ent (prē·tĕr′ĭ·ĕnt), adj. [L. praeteriens, pres. part.] Transient. — pre·te′ri·ence (-ĕns), n. Both Rare.

pret′er·ist (prĕt′ĕr·ĭst; prē′tĕr-), n. [preter- + -ist.] 1. One whose chief interest or pleasure is in the past.

2. Theol. One who believes the prophecies of the Apocalypse to have been already fulfilled. Cf. PRESENTIST; FUTURIST, 1.

pret′er·ist, adj. Of or pertaining to the preterists or their views.

pret′er·it, pret′er·ite (prĕt′ĕr·ĭt), adj. [OF. preterit, fr. L. praeteritus, past part. of praeterire to go or pass by, fr. praeter beyond, by + ire to go. See PRETER-; ISSUE. Cf. SEDITION.] 1. Belonging wholly to the past; bygone; former. Now Rare.

Persons as thoroughly preterite as Romulus or Numa. Lowell.

2. Gram. Past; — applied esp. to a "past absolute" tense or tense form. See PAST TENSE.

pret′er·it, pret′er·ite, n. 1. Past; time past. Obs.

2. Gram. The preterit tense; also, a preterit word or form. See PAST TENSE.

pret′er·i′tion (prĕt′ĕr·ĭsh′ŭn), n. [LL. praeteritio; cf. F. prétérition.] 1. A passing or passage; the act or an instance of passing by or over; state of being passed by or over.

2. Law. A passing over in silence by a testator of one or more of his (then existing) heirs. In general in Roman and Civil law this avoids the will.

3. Rhet. Paraleipsis.

4. Theol. The Calvinistic doctrine that, having elected to eternal life such as he chose, God passed over the rest, so leaving them to eternal death. Cf. REPROBATION, 3.

pre·ter′i·tive (prē·tĕr′ĭ·tĭv), adj. Gram. Used only or esp. in preterit tenses, as certain verbs.

pre·ter′i·to-pre·sen′tial (prē·tĕr′ĭ·tō·prē·zĕn′shăl), adj. Gram. Preterit-present.

pret′er·it-pres′ent, pret′er·ite-pres′ent, adj. Preterit in form and origin but present in meaning; — said of certain Teutonic verbs, as ought, can (cf. AS. cunnan to know). — pret′er·it-pres′ent, pret′er·ite-pres′ent, n.

pre·ter·la′bent (prē′tĕr·lā′bĕnt), adj. [L. praeterlabens, -entis, pres. part. of praeterlabi to glide by.] Of a stream, flowing beside or by.

pre′ter·le′thal (-lē′thăl), adj. [See PRETER-; LETHAL.] Beyond or after death. Rossetti.

pre·ter·mis′sion (prē′tĕr·mĭsh′ŭn), n. [L. praetermissio. See PRETERMIT.] 1. The act or an instance of pretermitting; omission.

2. Rhet. Paraleipsis.

pre′ter·mit′ (-mĭt′), v. t.; -MIT′TED (-mĭt′ĕd; 119); -MIT′TING. [L. praetermittere, praetermissum, fr. praeter beyond + mittere to send. See MISSION.] 1. To let pass without mention, notice, or attention; to pass by or over; to omit; as, to pretermit all personal references in an account.

2. To neglect; to leave undone, unsaid, unused, etc.

That prayer did the losel but once pretermit. Browning.

3. To interrupt or break off; to intermit; to suspend.

pre′ter·mit′ter (prē′tĕr·mĭt′ĕr), n. One who pretermits.

pre′ter·nat′u·ral (prē′tĕr·năt′ū·răl), adj. [ML. praeternaturalis. See PRETER-; NATURAL.] Beyond, or different from, what is natural, or regular in nature; sometimes, supernatural; usually, not miraculous but strange and inexplicable; irregular; abnormal; as, a preternatural appearance.

This vile and preternatural temper of mind. South.

Syn. — See SUPERNATURAL.

— pre′ter·nat′u·ral·ly, adv. — pre′ter·nat′u·ral·ness, n.

pre′ter·nat′u·ral·ism (-ĭz′m), n. Quality or state of being preternatural; something preternatural; also, belief in the preternatural. — pre′ter·nat′u·ral·ist (-ĭst), n.

pre′ter·nat′u·ral′i·ty (-năt′ū·răl′ĭ·tĭ), n. Preternatural quality.

pre′ter·plu′per·fect (prē′tĕr·plōō′pûr′fĕkt; -fĭkt; 119), adj. & n. 1. Gram. = PAST PERFECT.

2. More than perfect. Humorous.

pre′ter·vec′tion (prē′tĕr·vĕk′shŭn), n. [L. praetervectio, fr. praetervehere to carry beyond.] A carrying past or beyond. Rare.

pre′test′ (prē′tĕst′), n. 1. A preliminary test to ascertain the equipment of a student at the beginning of a unit of instruction.

2. A preliminary test to train a student in methods of answering test questions.

pre·test′ (prē·tĕst′), v. t. & i. To test or give a test beforehand.

pre′text (prē′tĕkst; formerly, and still by some, prē·tĕkst′), n. [F. prétexte, fr. L. praetextus (or praetextum, prop. neut. of praetextus, past part.) fr. praetexere to weave before, allege as an excuse, fr. prae before + texere to weave. See TEXT.] 1. A purpose or motive alleged, or an appearance assumed, in order to cloak the real intention or state of affairs; excuse; pretense; cover; semblance.

2. Pretension, or claim. Rare.

Syn. — Excuse. See PRETENSE.

pre·text′ (prē·tĕkst′), v. t. To use or allege as a pretext.

Mrs. Aldwinkle pretexted a headache and sent her to bed. Aldous Huxley.

pre′text·ed (prē′tĕks·tĕd; -tĭd; 119), adj. Used as a pretext.

pre·tex′tu·ous (prē·tĕks′tū·ŭs), adj. Serving as or offering a pretext. Rare.

pre′tho·rac′ic (prē′thō·răs′ĭk), adj. [See PRE-; THORACIC.] Anat. Above or anterior to the thorax; specif., designating vertebrae above or anterior to those bearing thoracic ribs.

‖pre′ti·um (prē′shĭ·ŭm), n. [L.] Law. Worth; value; price.

‖pre′ti·um af·fec′ti·o′nis (ă·fĕk′shĭ·ō′nĭs). [L., the price of affection.] Law. A factitious value placed upon a thing by its owner because of some sentimental association or a whim.

‖pre′ti·um la·bo′rum non vi′le (lă·bō′rŭm nŏn vī′lē; 181). [L.] The value of labor is not trifling; — motto of the Order of the Golden Fleece. See ORDER, n., 1.

pre′ti·um pu·el′lae (pū·ĕl′ē). [L.] Law. Lit., the price of a maiden, i.e., the consideration for which a woman was bestowed in marriage by her guardian in some early systems, as formerly among the Teutonic races.

pre′tone′ (prē′tōn′), n. [pre- + tone.] The vowel or syllable immediately preceding the accented syllable.

pre·ton′ic (prē·tŏn′ĭk), adj. [pre- + Gr. tonos tension, accent. See TONIC, adj.] Philol. Situated or occurring immediately before the accent or in a syllable before the accented syllable.

pre·to′ri·al (prē·tō′rĭ·ăl; 181), adj. Praetorial; praetorian.

pretorial court. A proprietary court of the Colony of Maryland with jurisdiction of capital crimes. Hist.

Pre·to′ri·a se′ries (prē·tō′rĭ·ă; 159; 181). [From Pretoria, So. Afr.] Geol. The next to the uppermost subdivision of the Transvaal system of the pre-Devonian rocks of South Africa. It consists of shales, lavas, quartzite, tillite, and beds of iron ore.

pre·treat′ (prē·trēt′), v. t. To treat previously, as in the purification of water to treat with a coagulant before filtering. — pre·treat′ment (-mĕnt), n.

pre·trea′ty (prē·trē′tĭ), adj. [See PRE-.] Before a treaty; specif., before the Treaty of Versailles.

pre′tre·mat′ic (prē′trē·măt′ĭk), adj. [pre- + Gr. trēma, trēmatos, a hole.] Zool. & Embryol. Anat. Pertaining to or situated in the anterior wall of the first gill cleft; as, the pretrematic nerves.

pret′ti·fy (prĭt′ĭ·fī), v. t.; -FIED (-fīd); -FY′ING (-fī′ĭng). [pretty + -fy.] To make pretty; to adorn, esp. in a petty or overnice way. — pret′ti·fi′er (-fī′ĕr), n. — pret′ti·fi·ca′tion (-fĭ·kā′shŭn), n.

To prettify it . . . would be as unwise as inartistic. Century Mag.

pret′ti·kin (prĕt′ĭ·kĭn), n. [Dim. fr. AS. prætt a trick.] A trick; a feat. Shet. & Ork.

pret′ti·ly (prĭt′ĭ·lĭ), adv. of PRETTY. Specif.: a Dial. Gently; quietly. b Pointedly; aptly. c = PRETTY, adv., 2.

pret′ti·ness (prĭt′ĭ·nĕs; -nĭs; 119), n. 1. Quality or state of being pretty; also, something pretty.

The little daintinesses and prettinesses of Nature. Stephen Graham.

2. A pretty or prettyish action thing, characteristic, or remark; also, a pretty ornament; an affectation; a prettyism.

pret′ty (prĭt′ĭ), adj.; PRET′TI·ER (prĭt′ĭ·ĕr); PRET′TI·EST. [ME. prati, fr. AS. prættig crafty, sly, fr. præt, prætt, deceit, trickery; akin to ON. prettugr tricky, prettr a trick, D. part.] 1. Ingenious; clever; — of persons and their contrivances. Archaic.

2. a Pleasing by delicacy or grace; good-looking; comely; attractive, but not striking or impressive; of a pleasing and attractive form or color; having slight or diminutive beauty; neat or elegant without elevation or grandeur; pleasingly, but not grandly, conceived or expressed; as, a pretty face; a pretty flower; a pretty poem. b Pleasing to the mind; entertaining; interesting.

3. a Good; fine; excellent; — often ironical; as, a pretty trick; a pretty fellow. "A pretty muddle." T. Hughes. b Archaic & Scot. Stout; strong and brave; intrepid.

[He] observed they were pretty men, meaning not handsome, but stout, warlike fellows. Scott.

c Affectedly nice; foppish; finical.

The pretty gentleman is the most complaisant creature in the world. Spectator.

---

pre·tempt′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·temp·ta′tion, n.

pre·tence′, pre·tence′ful, pre·tence′less. VARS. OF PRETENSE, etc.

pre·tend′ence (prē·tĕn′dĕns), n. Pretension; pretense. Obs.

pre·tend′er·ship, n. See -SHIP.

pre·tend′ing·ly, adv. of pretending, pres. part.

pre·tend′ing·ness, n. See -NESS.

pre·tensed′, past tense & past part. of PRETENSE. — pre·tens′ed·ly, adv. Both Obs.

pre·tense′ful, adj. See -FUL.

pre·tense′less, adj. See -LESS.

pre·ten′sion·less, adj. See -LESS.

pre·tent′, v. t. & i. = PRETEND, v. t. & i. Obs.

pre·ten′ta·tive, adj. See PRE-, 1 d. Wotton.

pre′ter·im·per′fect, adj. & n. Gram. Imperfect. Obs.

preterit future, preterit future perfect. Gram. = PAST FUTURE, PAST FUTURE PERFECT.

pre′ter·it·ness, pret′er·ite·ness, n. See -NESS.

pre·ter′la·psed′ (prē′tĕr·lăpst′), adj. [L. praeterlapsus, past part. of praeterlabi to glide by.] Past; bygone. Obs.

pre·ter′mi·nal, adj. See PRE-, 1 b.

pre′ter·per′fect, adj. & n. Gram. = PERFECT, adj., 7, & n. Obs.

pre′ter·ret′ri·al, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre′ter·ri·to′ri·al, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′-Ter′ti·ar′y (prē′tûr′shĭ·ĕr′ĭ; -ĕr·ĭ), adj. Geol. See PRE-, 2.

pre·tes′ti·fy, v. i. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·tes′ti·mo·ny, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·tex′, n. t. [L. praetexere. See PRETEXT.] = PRETENSE, v. t. Obs.

pre·tex′ta. Var. of PRAETEXTA.

pre′-Thanks′giv′ing, adj. See PRE-, 2.

prethee. † PRITHEE.

pre′the·o·log′i·cal, adj. See PRE-, 3.

pre·thought′ful, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·thought′ful·ly, adv. — pre·thought′ful·ness, n.

pre·threat′en, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·thrill′, n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·thrust′, n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·tib′i·al, adj. See PRE-, 1 b.

pre·time′ly, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·time′li·ness, n.

pre·tinc′ture, n., pre·tire′, v. t., pre·to′ken, n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·ton′ic, n. & adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′tor, pre·to′ri·an, etc. Vars. of PRAETOR, etc. [RIUM.]

pre·to′ri·um. Var. of PRAETO-pre·tor′sion·al, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·tor′ture, v. t. & n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre′to·ry, n. [See PRAETORIUM, PRAETORIAN.] Obs. & A praetorium. b A praetorian; also [cap.], the Praetorian Guard. [2.]

pre·tour′na·ment, n. See PRE-.

pre·trace′, n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·tra′che·al, adj. See PRE-, 1 b.

pre·tra·di′tion·al, adj. See PRE-, 2. [pre·train′ing, n.] pre·train′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′trans·act′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·trans·ac′tion, n.

pre′tran·scribe′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′tran·scrip′tion, n.

pre·trans·late′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′trans·la′tion, n.

pre′trans·mit′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′trans·mis′sion, n.

pre′trans·port′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre′trans·por·ta′tion, n.

pre·trav′el, n. & v. t. & i. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·trib′al (prē·trĭb′ăl), adj. See PRE-, 1 a. [2.]

pre′-Tri·den′tine, adj. See PRE-, pre·try′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

4. Moderately large; considerable; as, he had saved a pretty fortune. Archaic & Dial.
Wavering a pretty while. Evelyn.
5. Fair; — of weather. Chiefly Southern U. S.

pret'ty (prĭt'ĭ; 71), adv. 1 Prettily; finely. Now Dial.
2. In some degree; moderately; considerably; tolerably; rather; as, I am pretty sure of the fact; pretty cold weather; also, alone or with much, well, etc., almost.
This is pretty much the case with all boys everywhere. S. Butler pret'ty, n.; pl. -TIES (-ĭz). A pretty person or thing; pretty one. Specif.: a Brit. The ornamental top of a glass. b U. S. A toy; knickknack. c pl. Dainty underwear.

pret'ty-. Combining form for pretty, adj. & adv.

pretty-behaved	pretty-humored	pretty-spoken pretty-faced	pretty-looking, adj.	pretty-toned pretty-footed	pretty-mannered	pretty-witted pret'ty-by-night', n. The four-o'clock Mirabilis jalapa.

pret'ty-face' (prĭt'ĭ-fās'), n. A Californian herb (Brodiaea ixioides) sometimes cultivated for its delicate yellow, purple-tinged flowers.

pret'ty-ism (-ĭz'm), n. Affectation or prettiness in style, manner, etc.; also, an instance of such affectation.

Pret'ty-man, Prince (prĭt'ĭ-măn). In the Duke of Buckingham's The Rehearsal, a farcical character who is sometimes a prince and sometimes a fisherman, parodying a character in Dryden's Marriage à la Mode.

pretty Nancy. Lobel's catchfly.

pretty penny. A considerable sum of money; as, his son's escapades cost him a pretty penny. Colloq.

pret'ty-pret'ty, n.; pl. -TIES (-ĭz). A knickknack. Colloq. — adj. Inanely pretty; namby-pamby.

pre'tu·ber'cu·lar (prē'tū·bûr'kū·lĕr), adj. Pretuberculous.

pre'tu·ber'cu·lous (prē'tū·bûr'kū·lŭs), adj. [See PRE-.] Med. Preceding the definite onset of tuberculosis; as, the pretuberculous stage of a disease ultimately recognized as tuberculosis.

pre'tym·pan'ic (prē'tĭm·păn'ĭk), adj. Designating, or pertaining to, the metapterygoid bone. — pre'tym·pan'ic, n.

pre·typ'i·fy (prē·tĭp'ĭ·fī), v. t.; -FIED (-fīd); -FY'ING (-fī'-ĭng). To prefigure; to exhibit previously in a type.

pret'zel (prĕt'sĕl), n. [G. prezel, brezel, fr. OHG. brezitella, fr. LL. or ML. dim. of L. brachium, arm; cf. It. bracciatello, ML. bracidelli. See BRACE, n.] A kind of brittle German biscuit in the form of a twisted ring, glazed by dipping in hot lye before baking, and salted on the surface.

pre·um'bo·nal (prē·ŭm'bō·năl; -n'l), adj. [See PRE-.] Zool. Situated before the umbones of a bivalve shell.

pre·vail' (prē·vāl'), v.; PRE·VAILED' (-vāld'); PRE·VAIL'ING. [F. prévaloir, fr. L. praevalere, fr. prae before + valere to be strong, able, or worth. See VALIANT.] Intransitive:
1. To wax strong; to increase in vigor. Obs.
2. To gain ascendancy or make a victorious stand by virtue of strength or superiority; to win mastery; to triumph; — often with over or against.
The gates of hell shall not prevail against it. Matt. xvi. 18.
The ungodly o'er the just prevailed. Burns.
3. To be or become effective or effectual; to succeed.
Yet has thy faith prevailed, and I am here. Shelley.
4. To urge successfully; to persuade or induce; — with on, upon, or with; as, I prevailed on him to wait.
5. To avail. Obs.
Nothing prevails, for she is dead. Marlowe.
6. To be or become common, general, or widespread; to be prevalent or frequent; to predominate; as, names which prevail in this region; dark complexions prevail among Italians.
7. To be or continue in use, currency, vogue, or the like; to obtain; as, a custom which then prevailed and still prevails.
—, Transitive: To prevail over or upon; to avail; to be of use or profit to. Now Rare.

pre·vail'a·ble (prē·vāl'ä·b'l), adj. That can prevail or be prevailed upon; also, available. Obs.

pre·vail'er (-ēr), n. One who prevails.

pre·vail'ing (prē·vāl'ĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of PREVAIL. Specif.: adj. a Having superior force or influence; efficacious; moving.
Saints shall assist thee with prevailing prayers. Rowe.
b Prevalent; most frequent; generally current; widespread; as, the prevailing disease of a climate; a prevailing opinion.
Syn. — General, common, widespread, extensive, predominant. — PREVAILING, PREVALENT, RIFE, CURRENT. PREVAILING applies esp. to that which is predominant, or which generally or commonly obtains; PREVALENT suggests esp. that which is widespread or which, esp. at a given time, prevails extensively; as, the prevailing opinion, a prevalent error; malarial fever is the prevailing disease of this region; smallpox was prevalent. But the two words are often used without clear distinction; as, the prevailing wind is from the east; "the prevalent east wind" (Hawthorne). RIFE suggests great or active prevalence, sometimes with the implication of profusion or abundance; as, "Rumor is already rife here as to Dr. Trefoil's successor" (Trollope); "spiritual maladies, so rife in our day" (Carlyle). CURRENT applies to that which is a matter of general use, knowledge, acceptance, or circulation; as, "Shakespeare used the current language of his day" (Lowell); "the current folly" (Pope). Cf. DOMINANT. Ant. — Unusual, rare.
— pre·vail'ing·ly, adv. — pre·vail'ing·ness, n.

prevailing westerlies. The average or normal winds of the middle latitudes.

pre·vail'ment (prē·vāl'mĕnt), n. Power to prevail or dominate. Rare.

prev'a·lence (prĕv'ä·lĕns), n. [F. prévalence, fr. ML. praevalentia. See PREVAIL.] The quality, condition, or fact, of being prevalent (in any sense); now, usually, frequent occurrence; general or widespread acceptance, usage, dissemination, or the like; as, the prevalence of burglaries, of a fashion, of radios, or of a rumor.

prev'a·len·cy (prĕv'ä·lĕn·sĭ), n.; pl. -CIES (-sĭz). [From ML.] Prevalence; also, Rare, a prevalent.

prev'a·lent (-lĕnt), adj. [L. praevalens, -entis, pres. part. of praevalere. See PREVAIL.] 1. Powerful; potent; influential; efficacious. Now Rare.
2. In ascendancy; victorious; dominant. Now Rare.
The Puritans, though then prevalent, did not think proper to dispute this great constitutional point. Hume.
3. Generally or widely accepted, current, practiced, or the like; generally or extensively existing; widespread; prevailing; as, a prevalent practice, disease, or opinion.
Syn. — Successful, efficacious, powerful. See PREVAILING.
— prev'a·lent·ly, adv. — prev'a·lent·ness, n.

prev'a·lent (prĕv'ä·lĕnt), n. Something prevalent. Rare.

prev'a·les'cent (prĕv'ä·lĕs'ĕnt; -'nt), adj. [See -ESCENT.] Becoming prevalent; increasing in prevalence. — prev'a·les'cence (-ĕns; -'ns), n. Rare.

pre·var'i·cate (prē·văr'ĭ·kāt), v.; -CAT'ED (-kāt'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); -CAT'ING (-kāt'ĭng). [L. praevaricatus, past part. of praevaricari to walk crookedly, to collude, fr. prae before + varicare to straddle, fr. varicus straddling, fr. varus bent outward or apart; prob. akin to L. vacillare to stagger, waver, and perh. to Skr. ūru thigh, shank. See VACILLATE; cf. DIVARICATE.] Intransitive: 1. To deviate; to go astray; to swerve from regularity or rectitude. Obs.
2. To deviate from the truth; to speak equivocally or evasively; to quibble; loosely, to lie; as, he prevaricates in his statement.
3. Law. To deviate from duty; esp.: a Rom. & Civil Law. Specif., to conceal a crime; also, to collude, as an advocate with the opposing party to an action in making a sham accusation or defense. b Obs. O. Eng. Law. To collude, as an informer or defendant, in order to conduct a sham prosecution; also, to violate a trust secretly.
—, Transitive: To transgress; to pervert. Obs.
Syn. — Evade. See EQUIVOCATE.

pre·var'i·ca'tion (prē·văr'ĭ·kā'shŭn), n. [L. praevaricatio.] Act or an instance of prevaricating; specif., a perversion of or a deviation from the truth; a statement that deviates from or perverts the truth; often, a lie.
The august tribunal of the skies, where no prevarications shall avail. Cowper.

pre·var'i·ca'tor (prē·văr'ĭ·kā'tĕr), n. [L. praevaricator.]
1. One who prevaricates, transgresses, or perverts; specif., one who quibbles or swerves from the truth.
2. At Cambridge University, a Master of Arts chosen to deliver an oration freely satirizing prominent persons. Hist.

pre·var'i·ca'to·ry (-tō·rĭ), adj. Of the nature of, or given to, prevarication.

pre·vas'cu·lar (prē·văs'kū·lĕr), adj. [See PRE-.] Development before the formation of vascular tissue, as the meristem of roots and shoots.

pre·ve'lar (-vē'lĕr), adj. [See PRE-.] Phonet. Formed between the back of the tongue and the fore part of the velum.

prev'e·nance (prĕv'ĕ·năns), n. [F. prévenance.] A going before; anticipation in order. "The law of prevenance is simply the law of phenomenal sequence." Ward.

‖pré've·nance' (prā'v'·nänsˊ), n. [F. See PREVENE.] Attentiveness to or anticipation of others' needs; an instance of such.

‖pré've·nant' (prā'v'·näns'), adj. [F.] Manifesting prévenance.

pre·vene' (prē·vēn'), v. t. & i.; -VENED' (-vēnd'); -VEN'ING (-vēn'ĭng). [L. praevenire; cf. F. prévenir. See PREVENT.] 1. To anticipate; hence, to forestall; prevent. Obs.
2. To take, overtake, or provide for in advance. Obs.
3. To come before. Rare.
4. Theol. = PREVENT, v. t. & i. Obs.

pre·ven'ience (prē·vēn'yĕns), n. 1. Prevenient character or action.
2. = PRÉVENANCE.

pre·ven'ient (-yĕnt), adj. [L. praeveniens, pres. part.]
1. Going before; preceding; hence, preventive.
2. Antecedent; anticipatory; foresighted.

prevenient grace. Theol. Grace which operates on the human will antecedent to its turning to God.

pre·vent' (prē·vĕntˊ), v.; -VENT'ED; -VENT'ING. [L. praevenire, praeventum, fr. prae before + venire to come. See COME; cf. REVENUE, VENTURE.] Transitive: 1. Archaic: a To anticipate (an occasion, an appointed time) by action, preparation, etc.; to be in readiness for. "We prevent the last great day" G. Herbert. b To anticipate (a question, objection, wish); to meet or satisfy in advance. "Sir George prevents every wish. He must make the best of husbands." Mrs. Inchbald. c To anticipate (one or one's acting); to act ahead of. "If you put such a question to her," cried Edmund, preventing his cousin's speaking, "Fanny will immediately say, 'no.'" Jane Austen. d To precede; to arrive before; to outrun. "O run, prevent them with thy humble ode." Milton.
2. To forestall; to frustrate; to deprive of hope or power of acting, operating, proceeding, etc.; to ward off; circumvent.
I'll teach them to prevent wild Alcibiades' wrath. Shak.
3. To keep from happening, existing, succeeding, etc., esp. by precautionary measures; to hinder the progress, appearance, or fulfillment of; to render impossible by advance provisions; as, rain prevented his coming; to seek to prevent war or the recurrence of a disease.
4. To hinder (one about to act, proceed, arrive, etc.); — usually with from; as, there is nothing to prevent us from going.
5. Obs. a To hasten (an event). b To occupy (esp. one's mind) in advance; to prepossess.
6. Theol. To anticipate with gracious help, as in predisposing to repentance and faith. See PREVENIENT GRACE. Archaic.
—, Intransitive: a To act or come before. b To exercise prevention; to interpose an obstacle.
Syn. — PREVENT, PRECLUDE, AVERT. PREVENT is the general term for hindering, checking, or stopping; to PRECLUDE is to hinder by excluding, or (esp.) to prevent by anticipative action; as, "a disaster of war that Caesar himself could not have prevented" (Shak.); "Prevent the danger, or prescribe the cure" (Cowper); "This manner of drawing off a subject . . . to the dregs, effectually precludes a revival of that subject . . . for some time for the future" (Goldsmith); "In wishing to put an end to pernicious experiments, I do not mean to preclude the fullest inquiry" (Burke). To AVERT is to prevent or turn aside (esp.) some threatened evil; as, "To live in constant fear of every accident . . . and to send up my hourly prayers to avert them from you" (Steele); "the satisfaction of averting war" (J. R. Green). Cf. FORESTALL. Ant. — Cause, incite, urge, force.

pre·vent'. Obs. past part. of PREVENT.

pre·vent'a·bil'i·ty (prē·vĕn'tä·bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. Quality or state of being preventable.

pre·vent'a·tive (prē·vĕn'tä·tĭv), n. Preventive; — an irregularly formed doublet. — pre·vent'a·tive, adj.

pre·vent'er (-tĕr), n. One who or that which prevents; as: a One who forestalls or anticipates another. b A preventive. c Naut. A temporary auxiliary rope, stay, bolt, or other contrivance. d Rhet. Prolepsis.

preventer plate. Naut. A heavy plate to hold the chains, or channels, to the side of a large ship. See PREVENTER c.

pre·ven'tion (prē·vĕn'shŭn; 232), n. [Cf. F. prévention.]
1. A going, or state of being, before; precedence. Obs.
2. Act of preventing or hindering; obstruction of action, access, or approach; thwarting; also, that which prevents; an obstruction; hindrance; preventive. South.
Cascа, be sudden, for we fear prevention. Shak.
3. Prejudice; prepossession. A Gallicism.
4. Obs. a Anticipation, as of needs; forestallment; hence, a precaution; a preventive. b An obstacle or obstruction. c A presentiment. d Preface; introduction.
5. Civil Law. The authority of one of a number of judges of concurrent jurisdiction to exercise that jurisdiction with respect to a cause of which he first takes cognizance.
6. Rhet. Prolepsis. Obs.

pre·ven'tion·ist (prē·vĕn'shŭn·ĭst), n. One versed in or employing preventive measures.

pre·ven'tive (prē·vĕn'tĭv), adj. [Cf. F. préventif.] 1. That prevents or tends to prevent; now, usually, making or aiming to make unlikely or impossible a specified or implied evil; devoted to or concerned with such prevention; precautionary; as, preventive measures; preventive medicine; preventive penology.
2. Of or pertaining to the English Coastguard service established to prevent smuggling. Obs.
— pre·ven'tive·ly, adv. — pre·ven'tive·ness, n.

pre·ven'tive, n. Something that prevents or is preventive. Specif.: a Med. Something taken to prevent disease; a prophylactic. b Obs. A member of the preventive service (see PREVENTIVE, adj., sense 2).

preventive medicine. That branch of medical science dealing with methods, as vaccination, etc., of preventing the occurrence of disease; prophylaxis.

pre'ven·to'ri·um (prē'vĕn·tō'rĭ·ŭm; 181), n.; pl. -RIA (-ä), -RIUMS (-ŭmz). [NL., fr. prevent + -orium.] An establishment where persons, esp. children, liable to contract disease, as tuberculosis, because of undernourishment, exposure, etc., receive prophylactic treatment, as by proper diet, fresh air, regulation of physical activity, etc.

pre·ver'nal (prē·vûr'năl; -n'l), adj. [See PRE-; VERNAL.] Early flowering or leafing; — said of certain plants that unfold their leaves or flowers before the rest of the plants in their locality.

pre·ves'i·cal (-vĕs'ĭ·kăl), adj. [See PRE-; VESICAL.] Anat. In front of a bladder, esp. the urinary bladder.

pre·vide' (prē·vīd'), v. t. [L. praevidere.] To foresee; provide. — prev'i·dence (prĕv'ĭ·dĕns), n.

pre'view' (prē'vū'), n. A view of a performance, exhibition, etc., before it is open to the public; specif., a showing or viewing of a motion picture before it is exhibited publicly.

pre'view' (prē'vū'), v. t. To see beforehand; specif., to view or to show in advance of public presentation.

pre'vi·ous (prē'vĭ·ŭs; 159), adj. [L. praevius going before, leading the way, fr. prae before + via the way. See VOYAGE.] 1. Going before, esp. in time; earlier; preceding; as, previous arrangements; also, antecedent; prior; — with to; as, a condition previous to this one.
2. Premature; untimely; unwarranted by developments; also, speaking, judging, etc., prematurely or too quickly. Colloq.
But Mrs. Fyne's fervent "thank goodness" turned out to be a bit, as the Americans . . . say, "previous." Joseph Conrad.
Syn. — Preceding, foregoing, former. See ANTECEDENT.
Ant. — Later, subsequent, following; future.

pre'vi·ous, adv. Previously; — usually with to.
A policy . . . advised previous to 1710. Newman.

previous examination. In Cambridge University, the first examination for the B. A. degree; — called also little go. Cf. RESPONSION, 3.

pre'vi·ous·ly, adv. Beforehand; antecedently; as, previously known or measured.

previous question. Parliamentary Practice. The question whether the main issue shall be voted on or not, at once, without further debate. The form of the question is: "Shall the main question be now put?" If the vote is affirmative, the matter before the body must be voted on as it then stands, without further general debate or the submission of new amendments. In the House of Representatives of the United States, and generally in America, a negative decision keeps the business before the body as if the motion had not been made; in the English Parliament it postpones consideration for the day, and until the subject may be again introduced. In American practice the object of the motion is to hasten action; in English practice the object is to get rid of the subject for the time being.

pre·vise' (prē·vīz'), v. t.; -VISED' (-vĭzd'); VIS'ING (-vĭz'-ĭng). [L. praevisus, past part. of praevidere to foresee. See PREVISION.] Now Rare. a To foresee. b To inform beforehand; to warn. Ld. Lytton.

pre·vi'sion (prē·vĭzh'ŭn), n. [F. or L.; F. prévision, fr. L. praevidere to foresee, fr. prae before + videre to see. See VISION.] Foresight; foreknowledge; prescience; also, a prognostication; a forecast.
The really exquisite things of life cannot be supplied by prevision at all. Gamaliel Bradford.

pre·vi'sion (-vĭzh'ŭn), v. t. & i. To foresee; to give or endow with prevision.

pre·vi'sion·al (prē·vĭzh'ŭn·ăl; -'l), adj. Characterized by prevision.

pre·vi'sive (prē·vī'sĭv), adj. Of or tending to prevision. Rare.

pre·vi'sor (prē·vī'zĕr), n. One who previses.

pre'vo·cal'ic (prē'vō·kăl'ĭk), adj. Phonet. Occurring immediately before a vowel.

pre'vo·ca'tion·al (prē'vō·kā'shŭn·ăl; -'l), adj. Educ. Pertaining to, or consisting in, instruction or work, esp. in manual training or practical arts, given or required before admission to a vocational school.

pret'ty·ish, adj. See -ISH.

pretty lady. = PROSTITUTE, n. 1. Colloq., Brit.

pre'-Tu'dor, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·ty'phoid, adj., pre'ty·pograph'i·cal, adj. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre'ty·ran'ni·cal, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·tyr'an·ny, n.

preu (prū), adj. [OF. (F. preux).] Doughty; valiant. Obs.

preud'hommie, n. [OF. preud-(h)ommie (F. prud'homie).] Probity. Obs.

pre·ul'ti·mate, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·ul'ti·mate·ly, adv.

pre'un·der·stand', v. t. & i. See PRE-, 1 a. [1 a.]

pre'un·der·take', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·un'ion, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre'u·nite', v. t. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·u'ti·lize, v. i. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·u'ti·liz'a·ble, adj. — pre'u·ti·li·za'tion, n.

‖preux' che·va'lier' (prū' shĕ·vä'lyā'). [F.] A brave knight.

pre'va·cate', v. i. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre'va·ca'tion, n. See PRE-, 2.

pre·vac'ci·nate, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'vac·ci·na'tion, n.

pre·vail'ance, n. = PREVALENCE.

pre·vaild', Prevailed. Ref. Sp.

pre·val'id, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·va·lid'i·ty, n. — pre·val'id·ly, adv.

pre·val'ue, n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·va·lu·a'tion, n.

pre'var·i·a'tion, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

preve. † PRIVY, adj.; PRIVE, deprive; PROOF; PROVE.

pre'veg·e·ta'tion, n. See PRE-, 2.

pre'v·e·nan·cy (prē'v'ĕ·nän·sĭ), n. = PRÉVENANCE. Rare.

pre·ven'ient·ly, adv. of PREVENIENT. [Sp.] pre·vent'a·bl. Preventable. Ref.

pre·vent'a·ble, adj. See -ABLE.

pre·vent'i·ble, adj. See -ABLE.

pre·vent'ing·ly, adv. of preventing, pres. part.

pre·ven'tion·al, adj. Preceding; also, preventive. Obs. — pre·ven'tion·al·ist, n. Obs.

pre·ven'tion·ism, n. See -ISM.

pre·ven'tion·proof' (66), adj. See -PROOF.

pre·ven'ture, n. & v. t. & i. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·vi'o·late, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'vi·o·la'tion, n.

pre'vi·ous·ness, n. See -NESS.

pre'-Vir·gil'i·an, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·ver'sion, n. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·ver'te·bral, adj. See PRE-, 1 b.

pre·ve'to, n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. pre'vi·a'tion, n. [Cf. LL. praeviare to go before.] Outlet. Obs.

pre'-Vic·to'ri·an, adj. See PRE-, 2. [1 a.] pre'vic·to'ri·ous, adj. See PRE-, pre·vig'i·lance, n. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·vig'i·lant, adj. — pre·vig'i·lant·ly, adv.

pre·vi'o·late, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre'vi·o·la'tion, n.

pre'vi·ous·ness, n. See -NESS.

pre'-Vir·gil'i·an, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre·viz'i·ble, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·viz·i·bil'i·ty, n. — pre·viz'i·bly, adv.

pre·viz'it, n. & v. t. & i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·viz'i·tor, n.

pre·vo'cal, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·vo'cal·ly, adv.

pre·vogue', n. See PRE-, 2.

pre·void', adj. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·void'ance, n.

pre'vo·lil'tion·al (prē'vō·lĭlsh'ŭn·ăl; -'l), adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre'-Vol'stead, adj. See PRE-, 2.

pre'vol·un·teer', n. & v. t. & i. See PRE-, 1 a.

pre·vo′mer (prē-vō′mĕr), n. Zool. The vomer of a non-mammalian vertebrate.

‖pre′vost′ (prā′vō′), n. [OF. See PROVOST.] In France, formerly, a royal or seignorial officer who had cognizance of civil causes.

‖pré′vôt′ (prā′vō′), n. [F.] 1. In France, a prevost or provost.

2. [not ital.] In Guernsey, an executive officer corresponding to the High Sheriff of an English county; also, a private bailiff.

prev′o·tal (prĕv′ō-tăl; -t'l), adj. Of or pertaining to a French prévôt, or prevost; as, a prevotal court.

pre·voy′ance (prē-voi′ăns), n. [F. prévoyance.] Prescience; foresight. — pre·voy′ant (-ănt), adj.

pre·war′ (prē-wôr′; 66), adj. Before the war, esp. the World War. — pre·war′, adv.

pre·warn′ (prē-wôrn′), v. t. & i. To forewarn. Rare.

prex′y (prĕk′sĭ), n. Also prex (prĕks). College president. Student Slang, U. S.

prey (prā), n. [ME. preie, praie, fr. OF. preie (F. proie), fr. L. praeda, prob. fr. the root of L. prehendere to seize. See PREHENSILE; cf. DEPREDATE, PREDATORY.] 1. Anything, as goods, etc., taken or got by violence, as from an enemy in war; spoil; booty; plunder. Archaic.

And they brought the captives, and the prey, and the spoil, unto Moses, and Eleazar the priest. Num. xxxi. 12.

2. Any animal that is or may be seized by another to be devoured; hence, a person given up or seized as a victim.

Already sees herself the monster's prey. Dryden.

3. Act of seizing upon; specif.: a Plundering; pillage; depredation; ravage. b Seizure to devour; devouring.

Hog in sloth, fox in stealth, . . . lion in prey. Shak.

4. The cattle driven from a common pasture to ascertain if there are any not rightfully there. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng.

5. Bib. That which is retrieved from a contest.

Syn. — See BOOTY.

prey (prā), v.; PREYED (prād); PREY′ING. [OF. preier, preer, fr. L. praedari, fr. praeda. See PREY, n.] Intransitive: 1. To make a raid or raids for the sake of booty; to commit depredations; — with over (Obs.), on, or upon; as, pirates that prey upon commerce.

2. To seize and devour prey; to commit violence or inflict harm in or through predaciousness; as, cats prey upon robins; sharpers that prey on the poor. "While kites and buzzards prey at liberty." Shak.

3. To have an injurious, destructive, or wasting effect; as, grief preyed upon his mind.

—, Transitive: 1. To plunder; pillage; rob; also, to take as prey. Obs.

2. To inspect the prey (def. 4) from (a common pasture). Dial.

prey. Var. of PRAY. Now Dial.

prey′er (prā′ĕr), n. One who or that which preys.

prey′ful, adj. Obs. 1. Disposed to take prey.

2. Rich in prey. See PRAYFUL. Shak.

prey′ing, pres. part. & verbal n. of PREY. Hence, adj. Exhausting; wasting; as, preying anxiety. — prey′ing·ly, adv.

pre·zon′al (prē-zōn′ăl; -'l), adj. [See PRE-; ZONE; -AL.] Anat. In front of or anterior to the pelvic girdle or arch.

pre′zone′ (prē′zōn′), n. [pre- + zone.] Immunol. The lower dilution of a serum in which the characteristically strong bactericidal action of greater dilutions is lacking; — called also prozone.

pre′zy·ga·poph′y·sis (prē′zĭ-gă-pŏf′ĭ-sĭs; prē′zĭg-ă-), n. [NL.] Anat. An anterior or superior zygapophysis. — pre′zy·gap′o·phys′i·al (prē′zĭ-găp′ō-fĭz′ĭ-ăl; prē′zĭg-ăp′ō-), adj.

Pri′a·can′thi·dae (prī′ă-kăn′thĭ-dē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Gr. priōn a saw + akantha a spine.] Zool. A family of small carnivorous spiny-finned fishes of tropical seas having the body short and covered with rough scales, the eyes large, and the mouth very oblique. The type genus, Pri′a·can′thus (prī′ă-kăn′thŭs), is represented on the American coasts by the bigeye. — pri′a·can′thid (-thĭd), n. & adj. — pri′a·can′thine (-thĭn; -thīn), adj. & n.

Pri′am (prī′ăm), n. [L. Priamus, fr. Gr. Priamos.] The last king of Troy. By Hecuba he was father of Hector, Paris, Helenus, Deiphobus, Polydorus, Troilus, Creüsa, Polyxena, Cassandra, and other children. He went in person to the Grecian camp and ransomed the body of Hector from Achilles. He was slain by Neoptolemus in the sack of Troy. Cf. ILUS; LAOMEDON.

Pri′a·pe′an (prī′ă-pē′ăn), n. [L. Priapeius pertaining to Priapus.] Gr. & Lat. Pros. A logaoedic verse in two cola, or metrical series, a Glyconic and a Pherecratic. It had at least three forms, of which the one especially so designated was as follows: – ⏑ | – ⏑ ⏑ | – ⏑ | – ⏑ ⏑ | ⏑ – ⏑ | – ⏑ ⏑ | ⏑ – ^. This has also been scanned as a kind of hexameter verse: thus, – ⏑ | – ⏑ ⏑ | – ⏑ – | – ⏑ | – ⏑ ⏑ | – –. See PROSODY.

Pri′a·pe′an, adj. [See PRIAPEAN, n.] 1. Of or pertaining to Priapus or his worship.

2. Of or pertaining to the Priapean (which see).

Pri·a′pi·an (prī-ā′pĭ-ăn), n. A devotee to Priapus. Obs.

pri′a·pism (prī′ă-pĭz′m), n. [LL. priapismus, fr. Gr. priapismos, fr. Priapus Priapus, the phallus.] 1. Med. A morbid and more or less persistent erection of the penis, esp. when caused by disease and without sexual desire.

2. A lewd act, image, etc.; also, indecency; debauchery.

Pri·ap′u·loi′de·a (prī-ăp′ū-loi′dē-ȧ), n. pl. [NL. See PRIAPISM.] Zool. A small group of sausage-shaped worms, commonly classed as an order of Gephyrea, differing from the typical Sipunculoidea in lacking tentacles, having the mouth and anus at opposite ends of the body, and usually bearing one or two caudal gills. It includes a single family, Pri′a·pu′li·dae (prī′ă-pū′lĭ-dē), of which the type genus is Pri·ap′u·lus (prī-ăp′ū-lŭs). — pri·ap′u·lid (-lĭd), n. — pri·ap′u·loid (-loid), adj.

Pri·a′pus (prī-ā′pŭs), n. [L., fr. Gr. Priapos.] 1. Gr. & Rom. Relig. The male generative power personified as a god, according to one myth, the son of Dionysus and Aphrodite, and regarded as protector of the life of vineyards and gardens, as well as of herds, bees, and fish. Lampsacus, on the Hellespont, was a center from which his worship spread. He belonged to the cult and literature of Hellenistic rather than of classical Greece.

2. [not cap.] A phallus.

Pri′a·pu′sĭ·an (prī′ă-pū′sĭ-ăn), adj. Of or pertaining to the worship of Priapus.

prib′ble–prab′ble (prĭb′'l-prăb′'l), n. [See PRABBLE.] Also pribble and prabble. Squabbling; inane chatter or discussion.

price (prīs), n. [ME. pris, fr. OF. pris (F. prix), fr. L. pretium; prop., exchange value, equivalent, and akin to Skr. aprātā without recompense, prati against, in return, equivalent to, Lett. pret, and to L. per through, prae before. See PER, PRE-; cf. DEPRECIATE, INTERPRET, PRAISE, PRECIOUS.] 1. Value; estimation; preciousness; excellence; worth. Archaic.

Her price is far above rubies. Prov. xxxi. 10.

2. In the broadest sense, the quantity of one thing that is exchanged or demanded in barter or sale for another; the exchange value of one thing expressed in terms of units of another thing; in the narrower and more common sense, the amount of money given, or set as the amount that will be given or received, in exchange for anything; specif., the amount at which actual current transactions take place in the market. These are the meanings of price in economics as well as in common language; but cost is often popularly used as synonymous with price, though not in economics. Economically the price that is (theoretically) proportionate to the cost (of production) is the natural or normal price. Adam Smith called the price in terms of money the nominal price; the price in terms of units of labor or services, the real price; and the distinction is sometimes useful, though either price is as real as the other.

We can afford no more at such a price. Shak.

3. The terms or consideration for the sake of which something is done or undertaken. Specif.: a That by which one is bribed. b A sum offered in reward for the apprehension of a person.

4. The cost at which something is obtained; as, the price of liberty is eternal vigilance.

5. In betting, the odds.

6. Obs.: a High estimation; fame; renown; also, esteem. b Prize; award. c Praise. d Pre-eminence; superiority; also, victory.

☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

price-cutting	price-fixing	price-reducing price-deciding	price-lowering	price-ruling
price-enhancing	price-raising	price-stabilizing

Syn. — PRICE, CHARGE, COST, EXPENSE, VALUE, WORTH are here compared in their ordinary use. PRICE and CHARGE designate what is asked or demanded, — in the case of price, esp. for goods or commodities, in the case of charge, esp. for services; COST and EXPENSE apply to what is given or surrendered for something, — cost designating somewhat specifically the price paid, expense implying disbursement or outlay in general; VALUE and WORTH denote that by virtue of which a thing is useful or desirable, — worth (in ordinary usage; cf. DESERT) suggesting esp. intrinsic excellence, or personal or moral value; for technical distinctions, see defs.; as, the price of wheat, the charge for transportation, the cost of provisions, traveling expenses; "The value of a work must be estimated by its use" (Johnson); "He loves me for my own true worth" (Tennyson); "A cynic is a man who knows the price of everything, and the value of nothing" (O. Wilde). Cf. COSTLY, VALUABLE. — at a price. With considerable cost or sacrifice. — of price. Of great value or worthiness; precious. Archaic. — what price. Of what value or use; — used interrogatively. Slang. — without price. Priceless.

price (prīs), v. t.; PRICED (prīst); PRIC′ING (prīs′ĭng). [ME. prisen. See PRIZE to value.] 1. To set a price on; to fix the price of. See PRICED, adj.

2. To ask the price of. Colloq.

3. Obs. a To pay the price of. Spenser. b To rate highly; to value.

price current. A statement or list of the prevailing prices of the merchandise, stocks, specie, bills of exchange, etc., dealt in, issued statedly or occasionally by dealers to their customers. It often gives other particulars, as import or export duties, drawbacks, etc.

priced (prīst), adj. Having a price set; — chiefly in combination, as high′–priced′, low′–priced′ (66).

price index. Econ. A statistical measure of commodity prices from which the purchasing power of money may be estimated. See INDEX NUMBER; cf. PRICE LEVEL.

price′ite (prīs′īt), n. [After Thomas Price, Am. metallurgist.] Mineral. A snow-white massive magnesium borate near colemanite in composition.

price′less (prīs′lĕs; -lĭs; 119), adj. 1. Beyond a price, esp. a monetary consideration; too valuable to be appraised, estimated, or adequately appreciated; often, in weakened sense, excessively high-priced; as, priceless happiness or liberty; a sale of priceless jewels.

The ineffable memory of all the priceless past, the ineffable certainty of the priceless future was in their kiss. Dorothy Canfield Fisher.

2. Not salable; of intangible value. Rare.

3. Surprisingly amusing, odd, or absurd. Colloq.

Isn't she altogether too priceless! Anne Douglas Sedgwick.

price level. Econ. An average of many commodity prices, calculated by the use of an index number.

price list. a = PRICE CURRENT. b In betting, a list of odds offered.

price of money. Finance. The rate at which capital may be borrowed; the rate of interest paid for credit.

pric′er (prīs′ĕr), n. One who prices articles; one who fixes prices.

prick (prĭk), n. [AS. prica a point, dot; akin to LG. prick, pricke, D. prik, Dan. prik, prikke, Sw. prick. Cf. PRICK, v.] 1. A mark made by a pointed instrument; a puncture; a point; a dot. Specif.: a A minute hole or wound. b The footprint of a hare.

2. Hence: Obs. a A punctuation mark; a diacritical point. b A minute part or particle; a point in space or time. c A mark denoting degree; degree; pitch. d Intent; aim; end. e A mathematical point. f A point or mark on the dial, noting the hour. "The prick of noon." Shak.

3. That which pricks; a pointed instrument or weapon; an upright tapering object; specif.: a Now Rare. A thorn or spine; also, Obs., a sting. b Archaic. A goad. c Obs. Figuratively, something that pains or stimulates; a cause of remorse or vexation; an incentive. d Now Dial. A skewer. e Obs. A pricket.

4. a A pricking, or sensation of being pricked; a stinging pain; remorse. "The pricks of conscience." A. Tucker. b Figuratively, a stab.

5. A roll, as of spun yarn or tobacco.

6. Archery. a Hist. The mark or spot in the center of a target; hence, a target, esp. one having such a mark. b A small piece of paper or the like, pinned to a butt as a mark.

7. Music. A note; later, a dot after a note or rest. Obs.

prick (prĭk), v.; PRICKED (prĭkt); PRICK′ING. [AS. prícian; akin to LG. pricken, D. prikken, Dan. prikke, Sw. pricka. See PRICK, n.; cf. PRIG.] Transitive: 1. To pierce slightly with something sharp-pointed; to make a puncture in; to drive a fine point into; as, to prick one with a pin; to prick holes in paper.

2. To affect with sharp pain; to sting, as with remorse.

They were pricked in their heart. Acts. ii. 37.

3. To ride or guide with spurs; to spur; goad; incite; urge; impel; — sometimes with on or off. Archaic.

My duty pricks me on to utter that. Shak.

4. To adorn by fastening on or sticking; to adorn in general; dress; prink; — often with up. Now Dial.

5. To mark or denote by a puncture; to designate by pricking; to choose; to mark.

Some who are pricked for sheriffs. Bacon.

6. To mark or outline by puncturing; to trace or form by pricking; as, to prick a pattern for embroidery.

7. To make sharp; to erect into a point; to raise, as something pointed; — said esp. of an animal's ears, as a horse or dog, and usually followed by up.

8. To pick out with or as with a pointed instrument.

9. To make by puncturing; — with into.

10. To propel, as a punt, by means of a long pole pushed against the bottom of a stream. Eng.

11. Obs. a To fix or insert by the point; to attach or hang by puncturing; to stick; as, to prick a paper on a wall. b To fix as by a point or pointed instrument; to set. c To record. d To render, as wine, acid or pungent; to turn.

12. Far. a To drive a nail into (a horse's foot) so as to cause lameness. b To nick.

13. Hunting. To search for the tracks of (a hare); to track (a hare) by its footprints.

14. Music. To write in by means of notes. Archaic.

15. Naut. a To run a middle seam through, as a sail. b To trace on a chart, as a ship's course; — often with off.

—, Intransitive: 1. a To prick something or cause a sensation of being pricked; also, to be prickly. b To be punctured; to feel a sharp pain, as by puncture; to give such a sensation; as, a sore finger pricks.

2. To spur onward; esp., to ride fast; to gallop. Archaic.

3. To thrust; — with at.

4. To become sharp or acid; to turn sour, as wine.

5. To point or be directed upward; to be erect.

6. To adorn oneself; to prink. Obs. exc. Dial.

7. Obs. a To make perceptible tracks; — said of a hare. b To aim, as at a point or mark.

8. Archery. To shoot at a prick.

prick down. To record by or as by pricking; check.

prick off or out. Hort. To transplant young seedlings from seed pans to flats, preparatory to final planting.

prick up. Plastering. To apply the first rough coat of plaster to (a wall, etc.).

prick up one's ears. To begin to listen alertly.

prick, adj. That pricks up, or stands erect; also, pricked up; listening; — said of an ear.

prick and praise. Also prick and price or prise. The highest praise or approbation; acclamation of prowess or excellence. Obs.

prick′ant (prĭk′ănt), adj. [From PRICK, v.] Obs. a Riding; errant (sense 1). b That pricks up or out.

prick ear. An ear carried stiffly erect.

prick′–eared′ (prĭk′ērd′), adj. Having erect, pointed ears; — applied esp. in the 17th century by the Cavaliers to the Roundheads, because their practice of cutting the hair close made their ears conspicuous. Cf. CROP-EARED, 2.

pricked (prĭkt), adj. Furnished with a prick or pricks; pointed; dotted; punctured.

The night is limitless, enormous, pricked with stars. Aldous Huxley.

prick′er (prĭk′ĕr), n. 1. One who pricks. Specif.: Hist. a A rider; esp., a light horseman. b One who pricked suspected witches with pins to test their sensitiveness, insensibility being regarded as proof of witchcraft.

2. That which pricks; a pointed instrument; a prickle; a prick; as: a Any of various needlelike or needle-pointed instruments for pricking holes. b A toothed roller or wheel for marking off a uniform dotted line, for pricking holes in leather prior to sewing, etc. c One who uses a small tool to separate stitches appearing on the surface of a shoe welt. d = CLIMBING IRON. e An iron rod for probing or sounding a bog, etc. f A thorn; a spine; a prickle.

Draftsman's Pricker.

3. Blasting. = NEEDLE, n., 8.

4. Founding. a A vent wire. b A pointed projection, as on a covering plate for a loam mold, to hold the sand.

5. Mining. a Eng. A pointed bar used esp. for bringing down coal from overhead. b = 1st SNUFFER, 3.

6. Naut. A steel spike, a kind of small fid or marlinespike, as for making eyelet holes in sailcloth.

prick′et (prĭk′ĕt; -ĭt; 119), n. [prick + -et.] 1. A spike or point on which a candle is stuck to hold it upright; hence, a candlestick with such a point.

2. A wax taper or candle for a pricket (sense 1). Obs.

3. [ME. priket; perh. so called from the state of his horns. See PRICK.] A buck in his second year; also, the unbranched horn of a young male deer; a dag. Rare.

4. = PRICKMADAM.

5. A pointed finial or small spire. Obs.

prick′foot′ (prĭk′fo͝ot′), n. A prickly Australasian plant (Eryngium vesiculosum).

prick′ing, pres. part. & verbal n. of PRICK. Hence: n. [AS. pricung.] Act of piercing or puncturing with or as with a sharp point; also, state or result of being pricked.

pricking note. Com. A customhouse order for the commanding officer of a ship to receive specified bonded or drawback goods for exportation or ship's stores. Eng.

pricking wheel. = PRICKER, 2 b.

prick′ish, adj. Easily pricked or irritated. Colloq.

prick′le (prĭk′'l), n. [AS. pricel; akin to LG. prickel, D. prikkel. See PRICK, n.] 1. A little prick; a small, sharp point; a fine, sharp process or projection, as from the skin of an animal, etc.; a spine; specif., Bot., a sharp, pointed process or emergence arising from the subepidermal tissue. See EMERGENCE, 4.

2. A pricking sensation; often, pl., a stinging as from prickly heat.

He decided, with hot prickles at the back of his neck, that a girl customer was giggling at him. Sinclair Lewis.

---

pre·vote′, n. & v. i. & i. See PRE-, 1 a. [PRE-, 1 a.] pre·war′rant, n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. pre·wash′, n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. prewe, † PRIVY, PROOF, PROVE.
pre·weigh′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. pre·wel′come, n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. pre·whip′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. pre·will′ing, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·will′ing·ly, adv. — pre·will′ing·ness, n.
pre·wire′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. pre·wire′less, adj. See PRE-, 2. pre·wit′ness, n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. pre·won′der, n. & v. i. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·won′der·ment, n.
pre·world′ly, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·world′li·ness, n.
pre·wor′ship, n. & v. t. & i. See PRE-, 1 a. pre·wor′thy, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. — pre·wor′thi·ly, adv. — pre·wor′thi·ness, n. [1 a.] pre·wound′, n. & v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. pre·wrap′, v. t. See PRE-, 1 a. preyd. Preyed. Ref. Sp.
pre·youth′ful, adj. See PRE-, 1 a. pre′zy·go·mat′ic (prē′zĭ-gō-măt′ĭk; -zĭg-ō-), adj. See PRE-, 1 b. pri′al (prī′ăl), n. Corrupt. of pair royal. Orig. Dial. Eng.
Pri′ape, n. Priapus. Obs.
Pri·ap′ic (prī-ăp′ĭk), adj. = PRIAPEAN, adj., 1.
Pri·ap′u·la′ce·a (prī-ăp′ū-lā′shē-ȧ), n. pl. [NL.] Syn. of PRIAPULOIDEA.
Pri′a·pu′li·da (prī′ă-pū′lĭ-dȧ), n. [NL.] Syn. of PRIAPULOIDEA.
Pri·a′pus (prī-ā′pŭs). D. Bib. pric′a·sour (prĭk′ȧ-sŏor; prĭk′ȧ-sōor′), n. A hard rider. Obs.
price. † PRIZE.
price′a·ble, adj. See -ABLE. — price′a·bly, adv.
price′less·ness, n. See -NESS. prick·a′do, n. A stab. Obs.
prick′ing·ly, adv. of PRICKING, pres. part.
prick′ing·up′, n. = SCRATCH COAT. prick′l. Prickle. Ref. Sp.

prick'le (prĭk'l), n. [Origin uncert.] 1. A wicker or willow basket orig. for fruit or flowers, but now chiefly a measure. Local, Eng.
2. A sieve of filberts, — about fifty-six pounds. Eng.

prick'le (prĭk'l), v. t.; PRICK'LED (-ld); PRICK'LING (-lĭng). To prick slightly, as with a prick or prickles; also, to produce pricks, prickles, or prickings, in. — v. i. To pierce, prod, or cause tingling, with or as with a prick or prickles.

prick'le-back' (-băk'), prick'le-fish' (-fĭsh'), n. A stickleback.

prickle cell. A type of cell found in the germinal layer of the skin and characterized by numerous spines or radiating processes. — prick'le-cell', adj.

prick'led (prĭk'ld), adj. Having prickles.

prickle grass. A weedy tropical grass (Tragus racemosus) with prickly burs, introduced into Texas.

prickle pear. = PRICKLY PEAR. Obs.

prick'ling, adj. Prickly. — prick'ling-ly, adv.

prick'louse' (prĭk'lous'), n. Also prick'-the-louse'. A tailor; — so called in contempt. Old Slang.

prick'ly (prĭk'lĭ), adj.; PRICK'LI-ER (-lĭ-ĕr); PRICK'LI-EST. 1. Full of sharp points, or prickles; covered with prickles; as, a prickly shrub.
2. Prickling; stinging; as, a prickly sensation.
3. Beset with prickles; thorny; vexatious; as, a prickly question; also, easily irritated; highly sensitive.
His [Carlyle's] prickly originality and sturdy independence had something Celtic about them. J. G. Roberton.

prickly apple. A common West Indian thorny shrub or small tree (Catesbaea spinosa); — called also Spanish guava and lily thorn.

prickly ash. A prickly aromatic shrub or small tree (Zanthoxylum americanum) with yellowish flowers appearing with the pinnate leaves. Also, the southern prickly ash, or Hercules'-club (Z. clava-herculis).

Prickly Ash (Zanthoxylum americanum).

prick'ly-back', n. = 2d BUCKLER, 3. b The stickleback.

prickly beauty. In Tasmania: a The Australasian shrub Pultenaea juniperina (family Fabaceae), having prickly leaves and yellow flowers. b A prickly-leaved tree fern (Alsophila australis).

prickly box. The whin, or gorse.

prickly broom. = PRICKLY BOX.

prickly bur. The fruit (bur) of the American chestnut (Castanea dentata).

prickly cedar. The cade (Juniperus oxycedrus).

prickly comfrey. The rough comfrey.

prickly elder. = HERCULES-CLUB c.

prickly fern. A North American fern (Polystichum braunii) having large evergreen fronds.

prickly fungus. Any fungus of the family Hydnaceae.

prickly gherkin. = GHERKIN a.

prickly glasswort. = GLASSWORT b.

prickly gooseberry. The wild gooseberry.

prickly grass. Any grass of the genus Echinochloa.

prickly heat. 1. Med. A noncontagious cutaneous eruption of red pimples, attended with intense itching and tingling of the parts affected, occurring usually in hot weather; — called also lichen tropicus. It is caused by inflammation of the skin around the sweat ducts.
2. Veter. A form of acne occurring in summer.

prickly juniper. An evergreen shrub or small tree (Juniperus Oxycedrus) with spiny-tipped leaves.

prickly lettuce. a A European annual wild lettuce (Lactuca virosa) with prickly stems and yellow flower heads. It is a troublesome weed in parts of the United States. b In Australia, the similar L. saligna.

Prickly Lettuce a. 1 Whole Plant; 2 Leaf; 3 Achene.

prickly locust. = ROSE ACACIA a.

prickly mimosa. a Australia. A plant of the genus Acacia (A. juniperina). b The kangaroo acacia.

prickly nightshade. = SANDBUR a.

prickly parsnip. The sea parsnip.

prickly pear. a Also prick'ly-pear' cac'tus. Any flat-jointed cactus of the genus Opuntia, as O. tuna, O. ficus-indica, etc., often used as food for stock. b The pear-shaped fruit widely used as food in tropical America. See 1st TUNA.

prickly pine. a Australia. The leopard tree. b In North America the lodgepole pine (Pinus contorta) or the table-mountain pine (P. pungens).

prickly poison. One of the Australian poison bushes (Gastrolobium spinosum).

prickly pole. A West Indian palm (Bactris plumeriana) the slender trunk of which bears many rings of long black prickles.

prickly poppy. Any plant of the genus Argemone, esp. A. mexicana, the Mexican poppy (which see).

prickly potato. = SANDBUR a. prickly saltwort. The glasswort Salsola kali. N. Z.

prickly samphire. Sea parsnip.

prickly shield fern. = PRICKLY FERN prickly spruce. = BLUE SPRUCE a. prickly tang. See 5th TANG.

prickly tea tree. An Australian shrub (Melaleuca styphelioides), with pubescent spikes of white flowers.

prickly thatch. A thatch palm (Thrinax microcarpa) of southern Florida and the West Indies.

prickly thistle. = CANADA THISTLE a. prickly thrift. Any plant with stiff and prickly foliage of the genus Acantholimon, esp. A. glumaceum.

prickly tree. A spiny, West Indian tree (Bucida spinosa) related to the black olive (B. buceras).

prickly wattle. The prickly mimosa Acacia juniperina.

prickly withe. A West Indian climbing cactus (Cereus triangularis) having prickly, triangular stems.

prickly yellow. = PRICKLY YELLOWWOOD b.

prickly yellowwood. a Prickly ash. b Any of several West Indian or continental tropical American trees of the genus Zanthoxylum. See YELLOWWOOD b. prick'mad'am (prĭk'măd'ăm), n. [F. trique-madame. Cf. TRIPMADAM.] Any of several species of stonecrop, used as anthelmintics. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng.

prick'ma-lee'rie (prĭk'mȧ-lēr'ĭ), adj. Prickmedainty. Scot.

prick mark. A pricked mark, point, or dot; specif., the exact center of a circle as pricked by a compass.

prick'me-dain'ty (prĭk'mē-dān'tĭ), adj. Affectedly nice or finical. — prick'me-dain'ty, n. Both Now Chiefly Scot.

prick post. Arch. & Engin. In a framed structure, a secondary or side post; sometimes, a queen post.

prick punch. A pointed steel punch to mark on metal.

prick'-punch', v. t. Mach. To mark (the work) with a prick punch.

prick'seam' (prĭk'sēm'), n. Glovemaking. A kind of seam often used in glovemaking, made by putting the pieces together and stitching through, thus leaving both edges exposed.

prick shaft. Archery. = BUTT SHAFT.

prick shooting. Archery. Shooting at a prick. See 1st PRICK, 6.

prick'shot' (prĭk'shŏt'), n. Archery. A shot at a prick; hence, the short range of prick shooting, as 100 feet.

prick song. 1. Music written, or noted; — so called from the points or notes. Obs.
2. Descant as distinguished from the cantus firmus; hence, contrapuntal music generally.

prick'spur' (prĭk'spûr'), n. A single-pointed spur. Hist.

prick stitch. A stitch used where material is very heavy, or where a stitched effect is not desired, and made by putting the needle back into the material very close to the point where it has just come out.

prick'tim'ber (prĭk'tĭm'bĕr), n. a The spindle tree Euonymus europaeus. b The red dogwood (Cornus sanguinea), the wood of which is used for skewers, etc.

prick wheel. = PRICKER, 2 b.

prick'wood' (prĭk'wŏŏd'), n. The pricktimber.

prick'y (-ĭ), adj. Prickly. Now Dial.

pride (prīd), n. [ME. pride, prude, prute, fr. AS. prȳte, fr. prūt proud; cf. ON. prȳthi valor, ornament. See PROUD.]
1. Quality or state of being proud; specif.: a Inordinate self-esteem; an unreasonable conceit of superiority in talents, beauty, wealth, rank, etc. Hence [cap.], this quality personified. See DEADLY SINS.
Those that walk in pride he is able to abase. Dan. iv. 37.
b A sense of one's own worth, and abhorrence of what is beneath or unworthy of oneself; lofty self-respect; a reasonable or justifiable feeling of one's position.
A people which takes no pride in the noble achievements of remote ancestors. Macaulay.
c A sense of delight or elation arising from some act or possession; as, parental pride.
Taking pride in her pretty tablecloth. Ruskin.
2. Proud or disdainful behavior or treatment; insolence or arrogance of demeanor; haughty bearing; disdain.
Let not the foot of pride come against me. Ps. xxxvi. 11.
3. Show; ostentation; display.
Pride, pomp, and circumstance of glorious war. Shak.
4. a Archaic. Decoration; adornment; beauty; — now only of a peacock or other bird with tail spread. b Highest pitch; elevation reached; loftiness; prime; glory; as, in the pride of one's life. c A group, band, or flock (of lions); — now only South Africa.
5. That of which one is proud; that which excites pride (sense 1); hence, the best in a group or class; the pick.
A bold peasantry, their country's pride. Goldsmith.
6. Obs. a State or position inciting to pride; glory. b Sense of power; fullness of animal spirits; mettle; hence, lust; sexual desire, esp. in a female beast. c Wantonness; excess; extravagance; overboldness. d Ostentatiousness. e Exuberance.

☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

pride-blind	pride-fed	pride-ridden pride-blinded	pride-inflamed	pride-sick
pride-bloated	pride-inspiring	pride-swollen

Syn. — Self-respect, self-esteem, self-approbation; egotism; arrogance, superciliousness, haughtiness, lordliness. — PRIDE, VANITY, CONCEIT, SELF-CONCEIT. PRIDE is a high esteem of oneself for some real or imagined merit or superiority; it may be either worthy and dignified, or inordinate and arrogant; VANITY is an excessive desire for the notice, approval, or praise of others; as, "Vanity and pride are different things, though the words are often used synonymously. A person may be proud without being vain. Pride relates more to our opinion of ourselves; vanity to what we would have others think of us" (Jane Austen); "Proud she may be in the sense of respecting herself; but pride in the sense of contemning others less gifted than herself deserves the two lowest circles of a vulgar woman's Inferno" (Holmes); "Old Auchinleck had, if not the gay, tail-spreading peacock vanity of his son, no little of the slow-stalking, contentious, hissing vanity of the gander" (Carlyle). CONCEIT, or SELF-CONCEIT, is overweening pride or self-esteem; as, "Philosophy, without his heavenly guide, may blow up self-conceit and nourish pride" (Cowper); "Of all arrogant baptisms of a book, this title . . . appears the most complacently conceited" (Byron). Cf. EGOISM; ARROGANT; PRIDE, v.

Ant. — Humility, modesty, abasement, humbleness; shame.

— in (his) pride. Her. With expanded tail; — said of a peacock or cock turkey so depicted.

pride (prīd), v.; PRID'ED (prīd'ĕd; -ĭd; 119); PRID'ING (prīd'ĭng). Transitive: 1. To adorn; glorify. Obs.
2. To indulge in pride; to take credit to; to rate highly; to plume; — used reflexively; as, to pride oneself upon one's skill.
3. To give (one) pride; to fill with pride.
4. To spread or expand, as a bird its feathers or tail. Obs.
—, Intransitive: 1. To be or grow proud; — sometimes with it.
2. To pride oneself; to take pride.

Syn. — PRIDE, PLUME, PIQUE. TO PRIDE oneself (upon, on) is to indulge one's pride, to PLUME oneself (upon, on), to display one's vanity, with regard to something; as, to pride oneself upon one's attainments, to plume oneself on a petty triumph. TO PIQUE (cf. PIQUE, EXCITE) oneself (on) is to take pride or satisfaction in something esp. as a special accomplishment; as, "Every Italian or Frenchman of any rank piques himself on speaking his own tongue correctly" (Walpole). Cf. BOAST; PRIDE, n.

pride (prīd), n. [Cf. ML. lampriida, lampreda, E. LAMPREY.] The sand pride.

Pride and Prejudice. A novel (1813) by Jane Austen with a plot turning on the struggle in the mind of Elizabeth Bennet between her pride and her love for Fitzwilliam Darcy. See BENNET, ELIZABETH.

pride'ful (prīd'fŏŏl; -fl), adj. Full of pride; haughty; also, elated. — pride'ful-ly, adv. — pride'ful-ness, n.
Gazing pridefully up at the bulk of the house he had built. Hergesheimer.

pride'ling (-lĭng), n. [See 1st -LING.] A youth with pride.

pride of Barbados. = BARBADOS PRIDE a.

pride of California. A Californian wild pea (Lathyrus splendens), with long climbing stems and large pink or violet flowers. It is cultivated for ornament.

pride of China. The China tree.

pride of Columbia. A species of phlox (Phlox speciosa), of the Pacific coast of the U.S., having white or pink flowers.

pride of India. The China tree.

pride of London. = LONDON PRIDE a.

pride of Ohio. The shooting star (Dodecatheon meadia).

pride of the Congo. The yellow calla.

pride of the desert. The camel.

Pride's Purge (prīdz). Eng. Hist. The forcible exclusion in December, 1648, from the Long Parliament of more than one hundred members favorable to compromise with the king; — so called from Col. Thomas Pride, commander of the force employed. Cf. RUMP PARLIAMENT.

prid'i-an (prĭd'ĭ-ăn), adj. [L. pridianus.] Of or pertaining to the day before, or yesterday. Rare.

Prid'win (prĭd'wĭn), n. King Arthur's shield, on which was a picture of the Virgin Mary.

prid'y (prīd'ĭ; prēd'ĭ), adj. [pride + 3d -y.] Proud; smart; handsome. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng.

‖prie'-dieu' (prē'dyŭ'), n. [F., lit., pray God.] A desk suitable for a person kneeling at prayers.

pri'er (prī'ĕr), n. Also pry'er. [From PRY.] One who pries; one who inquires narrowly, or is inquisitive.

priest (prēst), n. [ME. prest, preost, fr. AS. prēost, ult. fr. LL. presbyter, fr. Gr. presbyteros elder, older, n., an elder, compar. of presbys an old man, a chief; akin to Skr. purogava leader (prop., of a herd of cattle), and to E. FORE; COW. Cf. PRESBYTER.] 1. One who has received orders in any grade; a cleric; a clerk. Obs.
2. One authorized or ordained to perform sacerdotal functions, esp. in Jewish or Christian rites. Specif.: a R. C. & Eastern Churches. One who has received the highest order of the Christian ministry; one who offers the Eucharistic sacrifice; a Mass priest. b Churches of the Anglican Communion. One in the second order of clergy, below a bishop and above a deacon; — often called minister or clergyman. See Forms of Address, in Appendix. c Mormon Ch. One of the Aaronic priesthood above deacon and teacher in grade, and authorized to administer the sacrament of the Lord's Supper and to baptize.
3. One who performs a sacrificial, mediatorial, interpretative, or ministerial function; — often applied to Christ, and, after the Reformation, to any Christian believer; as, each Christian is his own priest.
4. One who serves, worships, interprets, etc. in the manner of a priest; as, a priest of art or nature.
5. An official minister of any religion; one of the clergy as distinct from the laity; one in the ecclesiastical profession.
War is the statesman's game, the priest's delight. Shelley.
☞ In the Authorized, Revised, and Douay Versions hiereus is translated priest; in the Douay Version, presbyteros is translated priest, ancient, or senior according to the interpretation in the Vulgate, but in the Authorized and Revised Versions it is rendered as elder.
6. Angling. A short club used to kill a captured fish. Chiefly British.

☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:

priest-baiting	priest-guarded	priest-led priest-catching	priest-harboring	priest-prompted priest-educated	priest-hating	priest-wrought

— to be one's priest. To be present at one's death; hence, to kill one; — in allusion to a priest's giving the last rites. Obs. exc. Scot.

priest (prēst), v. t. To ordain as priest; to make a priest of. — v. i. To perform priestly offices; to serve as a priest; — sometimes with it.

priest-. A combining form of priest, denoting both priest and, as in:

priest-astronomer	priest-monk	priest-prince priest-doctor	priest-noble	priest-ruler priest-hermit	priest-philosopher	priest-statesman priest-knight	priest-poet	priest-surgeon priest'al (prēs'tăl; -t'l), adj. Of priests; priestly. Rare.

priest'cap' (prēst'kăp'), n. Fort. A work of the redan type, having three salient and two re-entrant angles; — so named from its shape.

priest'craft' (prēst'krăft'), n. Professional knowledge and skill pertaining to the exercise of priestly functions; more often, derogatorily, the machinations of priests; priestly intriguing.

priest'-dy'nast, n. = PRIEST-KING.

priest-een' (prēst-ēn'), n. [See -EEN.] A young or newly ordained priest, — used contemptuously. Ir.

priest'er-y (prēs'tĕr-ĭ), n. Priests collectively. Contemptuous. Milton.

priest'ess, n. A woman priest, esp. of pagan antiquity.

priest'fish' (prēst'fĭsh'), n.; pl. -FISH, -FISHES (-fĭsh'ĕz; -ĭz; 119). See PLURAL, Note. A common nearly black Californian rockfish (Sebastosomus mystinus).

priest hole, or priest's hole. A secret room or place of concealment for a priest, as in some English houses during the time when Roman Catholic priests were proscribed.

priest'hood (prēst'hŏŏd), n. [AS. prēosthād.] 1. Office or dignity of a priest; priestly function; sacerdotal character.
2. Priests, taken collectively; the order of priests.
3. Mormon Ch. The authority given by ordination to speak and administer in the name of the Deity; also, the body of those so ordained. See AARONIC, MELCHIZEDEK.

priest'i-an'i-ty (prēst'ĭ-ăn'ĭ-tĭ; -yăn'ĭ-tĭ), n. Religion emphasizing the office or power of the priest; — analogous to Christianity. Contemptuous.

priest'-in-the-pul'pit, n. The cuckoopint.

priest'ism (prēst'ĭz'm), n. The influence, doctrines, principles, etc., of priests. Contemptuous.

priest'-king', n. A sacerdotal ruler; one who rules as king by right of his priestly office, as vicegerent of the deity.

---

prick'le-cone' pine. = BISHOP PINE.

prick'less, adj. See -LESS.

prick'li-ness (prĭk'lĭ-nĕs; -nĭs; 119), n. See -NESS.

prick'lows. Var. of PRICKLOUSE.

prick'ly-finned', adj. See FINNED.

prick'ly-fruit'ed, adj. See FRUITED.

prick'ly-tooth'ed, adj. See [-TOOTHED.

prick'proof' (66), adj. See -PROOF.

pricks, n. pl. = PRICK SHOOTING.

prickt. Pricked. Ref. Sp.

prick'ly-seed'ed, adj. See -SEEDED.

prick'-the-louse', n. = PRICKLOUSE.

pride'less, adj. See -LESS. — pride'less-ly, adv.

pride'weed', n. = HORSEWEED a.

prid'ing (prīd'ĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of PRIDE. — prid'ing-ly (-lĭ), adv. [var. of PREY.]

prie (prē). Scot & N. of Eng. prie. † PRY. [pari. of PRY.

pried (prīd), past tense & past prief, priefe. † PROOF.

pries (prīz), n., pl. of PRY.

priest'dom, n. See -DOM.

priest'head', n. Priesthood. Obs.

priest'ing, n. Exercise of the functions of priesthood. Obs.

priest'ish, adj. Priestlike.

priest'like' (prēst'līk'), adj. Like a priest; in the manner or character of or befitting a priest; priestly. — priest'-like', adv.

priest'ling, n. [See 1st -LING.] 1. A young priest; more often, a petty priest.
2. One devoted to or under the influence of priests. Rare.

priest'ly (prēst'lĭ), adj.; PRIEST'LI·ER (-lĭ·ĕr); PRIEST'LI·EST. Of or pertaining to a priest or the priesthood; sacerdotal; befitting or becoming a priest.

priestly blessing. Jewish Religion. A blessing of the people pronounced by the priests in accordance with the command and formula of Num. vi. 22–27. It is now usually pronounced only on festival days.

Priestly Code. Bib. See 1st LAW, 8. priest'-rid'den, adj Controlled or oppressed by a priest or priests. — priest'-rid'den·ness, n. Rare.

priest'shire (prēst'shĭr; -shēr), n. [AS. prēostscīr. See PRIEST; SHIRE.] An ecclesiastical parish. Hist.

priest's'-hood', n. The cuckoopint.

priest vicar. Ch. of Eng. A vicar choral in priest's orders; a minor canon.

prig (prĭg), v. t. & i.; PRIGGED (prĭgd); PRIG'GING (prĭg'-ĭng). 1. [Perh. orig., to ride off with. See PRICK, v.] To steal; filch; pilfer. Slang.
2. [Perh. an alteration of prick.] To haggle about (the price of a commodity); to bargain hard. Chiefly Scot.
3. To entreat; plead; beg. Chiefly Scot.
I wondered at her want o' pride in priggin' wi' him. Barrie.

prig, n. 1. A tinker. Obs.
2. [See PRIG to steal.] A thief; pilferer.

prig (prĭg), n. [Perh. var. of prick, in the sense to dress up, prink.] 1. Orig., a humorous or contemptuous designation for a person; as, a spruce prig.
And faith I agree with th' old prig to a hair. Burns.
Specif.: a A fop; a buck; a dandy. b A punctilious person; a precisian; esp., Obs., a Puritan; a nonconformist minister.
2. One who offends or irritates by obvious or rigid observance of the proprieties in speech, manners, conduct, etc.; one self-sufficient in virtue, culture, etc.
He is a clever, upright little prig. Landor.

prig, v. t. & i. 1. To ride. Cf. PRICK, v. t., 3, & v. i., 2. Obs. exc. Dial. Eng.
2. To prink; to make prim. Rare. Cf. PRICK, v. t., 7.

prig, adj. Priggish.

prig (prĭg), n. A small pan; a pitcher. Now Dial. Eng.

Prig', Bet'sey (bĕt'sĭ prĭg'). In Dickens's Martin Chuzzlewit, an ignorant day nurse, bosom friend of Sairey Gamp, with whom, however, she finally quarrels.

prig'ger (prĭg'ĕr), n. A thief. Cant.

prig'ger·y (-ĭ), n. [From PRIG to steal.] Thieving. Obs. Cant.

prig'ger·y (prĭg'ĕr·ĭ), n.; pl. -IES (-ĭz). Priggishness.

prig'ish (prĭg'ĭsh), adj. Thievish. Cant.

prig'gish, adj. Like or characteristic of a prig; as, a priggish display of learning; a priggish attitude towards one's fellows. — prig'gish·ly, adv. — prig'gish·ness, n.

prig'gism (-ĭz'm), n. Thievishness; roguery. Cant.

prig'gism, n. Self-conscious propriety, correctness, adherence to conventionality, etc.; priggishness.

prill (prĭl), n. [Orig. dial. in Cornwall.] A small piece or quantity. Obs. or Dial. Eng., exc.: a Mining. (1) A nugget of virgin metal. (2) Ore selected for excellence. b Eng. The button of metal from an assay.

prill, n. A stream; a rill. Now Dial.

prill, v. i. To turn sour; also, to get drunk. Cornwall.

pril'lion (prĭl'yŭn), n. [Cf. PRILL nugget, ore.] Tin extracted from the slag.

prim (prĭm), adj.; PRIM'MER (-ĕr); PRIM'MEST. [OF. prim, prin, prime, prime, first, principal, fine, delicate, fr. L. primus first. See PRIME, adj.; cf. PRIMP.] Formally neat or precise; stiffly decorous or nice; as, prim regularity; a prim person or parlor. "As prim and demure as ever!" Gay.
Pretty fairish for a prim Quakeress. Mrs. Carlyle.
Syn. — See NEAT.
Ant. — Disorderly, casual, haphazard, disarranged.
☞ COMBINATIONS (all adjectives) are:
prim-behaving prim-looking prim-mouthed prim-lipped prim-mannered prim-seeming prim (prĭm), v.; PRIMMED (prĭmd); PRIM'MING. Transitive: 1. To set (mouth, lips, etc.) primly; to give an expression of primness to. "Mouths dubiously primmed." Rose Macaulay. "Primming bitter lips before her glass." Masefield.

2. To primp; to arrange or dress affectedly or now, usually, demurely; — often with up or out; as, to prim her up like a Quakeress.
—, Intransitive: To make oneself or one's expression prim; to dress primly. "They wince and prim and pout." G. Meredith.

prim (prĭm), n. [Origin uncert.] a Obs. Slang. A paramour. b Obs. Lass; wench.

prim, n. A prim person or expression. Rare.

prim, n. The privet.

prim (prĭm), n. A young smelt or other small fish. Brit.

Prim, Obadiah. See PURE, SIMON.

pri'ma (prī'mȧ), n. [L., fem. of primus first.] Print. The first word of an ensuing signature; — so marked on the copy in reading proof, sheet by sheet; hence, the part of the copy containing this. Eng.

‖pri'ma buf'fa (prē'mä bōōf'fä). [It.] The first or chief female singer in an opéra bouffe.

pri'ma·cy (prī'mȧ·sĭ), n.; pl. -CIES (-sĭz). [OF. primacie (F. primatie), fr. ML. primatia, fr. LL. primas one of the first. See PRIMATE.] 1. State of being prime or first, as in time, place, rank, etc.; hence, precedence in authority, position, etc.; supremacy; as, the primacy of Homer as a poet.
2. Eccl. The office, rank, or character of a primate; the chief ecclesiastical station or dignity in a national church; specif.: a Anglican Church. The office or dignity of an archbishop. b R.C.Ch. With reference to the Pope, supreme episcopal jurisdiction as ruler of the universal church.

pri'ma don'na (prē'mȧ dŏn'ȧ); pl. PRIMA DONNAS (-ȧz), PRIME DONNE (It. prē'mä dōn'nā). [It., fr. primo, prima, the first + donna lady, mistress. See PRIME, adj.; DONNA.] The leading or a principal female singer in an opera or concert organization.

pri'ma fa'ci·e (prī'mȧ fā'shĭ·ē; fā'shĭ). [L., fr. abl. of primus first + abl. of facies appearance.] At first view; on the first appearance. — pri'ma-fa'ci·e, adj.

pri'ma-fa'ci·e case. A case established by prima-facie evidence. In a jury trial the introduction of such evidence is sufficient to support the claim that the case be sent to the jury.

prima-facie evidence. Law. Evidence sufficient in law to raise a presumption of fact or establish the fact in question unless rebutted.

pri'mage (prī'mĭj), n. [Cf. PRIME, adj.] 1. Marine. Formerly, a small gratuity or payment (sometimes called hat money) made by shippers to the captain for his particular care of the goods; now, usually, a small addition or percentage added to the freight and belonging to the owner. Cf. 2d AVERAGE, 2.
2. In Australia, a primary ad valorem revenue duty laid by the Commonwealth government upon imports.
3. Steam Boilers. Water carried over by priming.

‖pri'ma in'ter pa'res (prī'mȧ ĭn'tĕr pā'rēz). [L.] First (feminine gender) among equals.

pri'mal (prī'mȧl), adj. [ML. primalis, fr. L. primus first. See PRIME, adj.] 1. First; primary; original; primitive.
It hath the primal eldest curse upon 't. Shak.
2. First in importance; chief; as, primal councilors.
The primal duties shine aloft like stars. Wordsworth.
Syn. — See PRIMARY.

pri·mal'i·ty (prī·mȧl'ĭ·tĭ), n. Primal character or position. Rare.

pri'ma ma·te'ri·a (prī'mȧ mȧ·tē'rĭ·ȧ). [L.] = MATERIA PRIMA.

pri'mar, pri'mer (prī'mĕr), n. [L., primarius. See PRIMARY.] A student of the first grade in social rank (son of a nobleman) at St. Andrews University. Hist.

pri·mar'i·an (prĭ·mâr'ĭ·ȧn), n. A primary pupil. Rare.

pri'ma·ried (prī'mĕr·ĭd; -mȧ·rĭd), adj. Zool. Having primaries.

pri'ma·ri·ly (prī'mĕr·ĭ·lĭ; -mȧ·rĭ·lĭ; emphat. also prĭ·mâr'-ĭ·lĭ; 66), adv. In the first place; originally; pre-eminently; fundamentally; as, an action primarily based on policy.

pri'ma·ry (prī'mĕr·ĭ; prī'mȧ·rĭ), adj. [L. primarius, fr. primus first. See PRIME, adj.; cf. PREMIER, PRIMER, n.]
1. First in order of time or development or in intention; primitive; fundamental; original; initial.
The church of Christ, in its primary institution. Bp. Pearson.
These I call original, or primary, qualities of body. Locke.
2. First in dignity or importance; chief; principal; as, primary planets; a matter of primary importance.
3. a First with respect to order of derivation; firsthand; fundamental; radical; as, primary effects, meanings. b Of the first order in successive divisions, combinations, or ramifications; as, primary nerves, compounds.
4. First in order, as being preparatory to something higher; as, primary assemblies; primary schools.
5. Chem. Characterized by replacement in the first degree; resulting from the substitution of one of two or more atoms or groups; as, a primary salt or amine. Cf. SECONDARY, adj., 9; TERTIARY, adj. Specif., designating or characterized by a carbon atom united (by a single valence) to only one chain or ring member; as, normal primary butyl, $CH_3CH_2CH_2CH_2$-.
6. Educ. Belonging to the first stages of formal education, or those in which the pupil is trained in the rudiments of reading and writing. In the United States the first three grades of the elementary school are called primary grades and constitute the primary school.
7. Elec. In an induction coil or transformer, pert. to or designating the inducing current or its circuit; as, the primary coil; the primary winding. See INDUCTION COIL.
8. Geol. a Primitive; specif., paleozoic and older formations. b Of minerals or ores, formed first; esp., formed under igneous, pneumatolytic, or hydrothermal conditions; hypogene.
9. Gram. a Rare. Of first or elementary classification; as, and is a primary conjunction; up a primary adverb. b Rare. Standing apart as a primary term; — said of the genitive in such phrases as at Merriam's, at the tailor's, in distinction from the adjunct genitive (the tailor's bill). c See SECONDARY, adj., 13. d Denoting time reckoned from the time of speaking, as the present, preterit, future, and perfect; — distinguished from secondary, indicating a time anterior or posterior to a time spoken of, as the past perfect, past future, future perfect.
10. Med. Directly transmitted or developed; as, a primary infection; a primary tumor.
11. Phonet. Of vowels, narrow; tense; of consonants, formed with central opening in the oral passage.
12. Zool. Designating, or pertaining to, the principal quills of a bird's wing. See PRIMARY, n., 9.
☞ For some primary phrases, see the second word.
Syn. — PRIMARY, PRIME, PRIMITIVE, PRIMAL, PRISTINE, PRIMEVAL, PRIMORDIAL. That is PRIMARY which comes first in the order of development, or which is first in importance; PRIME applies to that which is first, esp. in rank, degree, or dignity; that is PRIMITIVE which is associated with origins or beginnings, esp. those which are more or less remote; the word often connotes antiquated or old-fashioned qualities; PRIMAL is poetical or elevated for primary or primitive; as, primary schools, the primary object of education; "[He] makes his moral being his prime care" (Wordsworth); the prime minister; primitive Christianity; "The implements with which he tilled his land were primitive and clumsy" (Allan Cunningham); "It hath the primal eldest curse upon 't, a brother's murder" (Shak.). That is PRIMEVAL which belongs to the first ages; that is PRIMORDIAL which is of the earliest origin or formation; as, "a bodily constitution of primeval or antediluvian health" (De Quincey); "This is the forest primeval" (Longfellow); the primordial protoplasm. That is PRISTINE (used esp. of qualities) which belongs to an early or to the original state; as, "an image of the pristine earth, the planet in its nakedness" (Wordsworth); "the Church revivified itself into pristine florid vigor" (Carlyle). Cf. NATIVE, OLD. Ant. — Secondary, minor, lesser.

pri'ma·ry (prī'mĕr·ĭ; prī'mȧ·rĭ), n.; pl. -RIES (-ĭz). 1. That which stands first in order, rank, or importance; a chief matter.
2. a U. S. A meeting of voters belonging to the same political party, in a township or other election district, at which the first steps are taken towards the nomination of candidates, as by choosing delegates to nominating conventions. In this sense a primary is often equivalent to a caucus (in sense 1 a). Cf. CAUCUS. b Commonly, a shortened form for PRIMARY ELECTION.
3. Any of a set of colors from which all other colors may be regarded as derived; hence, any of a set of stimuli from which all colors may be evoked by mixture. The additive, physiological, or fundamental primaries are red, green, and blue. See COLOR, n., 2. A psychological primary is one of the set of six colors (red, yellow, green, blue, black, and white) in terms of which all other colors may be described. In painting and other arts, red, blue, and yellow are regarded as the primaries, because paints or inks of these three colors can be mixed to secure all other hues. Each of these is called a subtractive primary, because each pigment absorbs from the incident white light some wave lengths which the others would reflect.
4. Short for PRIMARY SCHOOL. See PRIMARY, adj., 6.
5. Astron. a A planet as distinguished from its satellites. b The brighter component of a double star.
6. Elec. A primary coil (which see).
7. Gram. A word or word group taking the first rank, with a qualifier of the second rank (very hot days); also, either subject or object word in certain predicative word groups (night fell soon; night follows day); — used by Jespersen. See 5th RANK, 7; NEXUS, 3.
8. Physiol. Optics. A primary color sensation.
9. Zool. a One of the feathers or quills on the distal joint of a bird's wing. They are attached to the bones of the hand and its fingers, and are usually nine or ten in number, rarely eleven. The outermost, or first, primary is often much reduced in size in singing birds. See BIRD, Illust. b One of the forewings of an insect. c (1) In echinoderms, one of the first formed plates in the development of the skeleton after metamorphosis. (2) Specif., in sea urchins, an ambulacral plate extending half across the ambulacral area; also, the largest spine or one of the largest spines on any plate of the test or the tubercle bearing it. Cf. SECONDARY, n., 7.

primary accent. 1. The strongest stress in the pronunciation of a word of two or more syllables; the mark, usually (′), to indicate this; thus the primary accent is on the first syllables of horse'shoe' and reg'u·late'. Cf. SECONDARY ACCENT; see Pron. §§ 60–68.
2. Music. The "grammatical" accent immediately after a bar; the first and naturally chief accent of a measure.

primary alcohol. Chem. Any alcohol which possesses the group CH_3OH, and can be oxidized so as to form a corresponding aldehyde and acid having the same number of carbon atoms.

primary amine. See AMINE.

primary amputation. See AMPUTATION.

primary armament. Mil. In coast artillery, all cannon of greater than 10-inch caliber.

primary arrow release. See ARROW RELEASE.

primary battery. Elec. An assembly of two or more primary cells.

primary cell. Elec. A cell that converts chemical energy into electrical energy by irreversible chemical reactions. It cannot be recharged by passing an electric current through it. Cf. SECONDARY CELL.

primary circles. Astron. The four fundamental great circles of the celestial sphere, viz., horizon, equator, ecliptic, and galactic.

primary coil. Elec. In an induction coil or transformer, the coil through which the primary current passes.

primary colors. See COLOR, n., 2.

primary conveyance. Law. See CONVEYANCE, n., 4.

primary cortex. Bot. The periblem. See STEM, Illust.

primary coverts. See COVERT, n., 6.

primary current. Elec. An inducing current.

primary dementia. A form of stuporous insanity following exhaustion due to excesses, disease, etc.

primary discount. See CHAIN DISCOUNT.

primary education. The education given in a primary school. See PRIMARY, adj., 6.

primary election. Political Science. Frequently shortened to primary. A preliminary election at which direct nominations of candidates for office (direct primary) are made. Such elections are now generally held under State regulations rather than under party rules. They are usually held on the same day for all parties, employ the secret ballot, and select by a plurality vote. There are several types: the closed primary election, at which members of only one political party vote; the open primary election, at which voters may participate without making known their party allegiance; and the nonpartisan primary election, at which the names of candidates on the ballot have no party designation. A preferential primary election, or presidential primary, is one at which the voters express a preference for a presidential candidate, the result serving as a guide, without mandatory force, for the delegates to the national convention. Cf. also RUNOFF PRIMARY.

primary evidence. Law. The evidence primarily required by law as the best evidence of a fact to be proved; — chiefly used in relation to written documents, and (in general) requiring their contents to be proved by the documents themselves.

primary form. = SONG FORM.

primary grades. Educ. See PRIMARY, adj., 6.

primary group. Math. A finite group whose order is a power of a prime number.

primary growth. Bot. Growth by the activity of a primary meristem, resulting in an increase in length and the addition of appendages; — disting. from secondary growth.

primary hemorrhage. See HEMORRHAGE, n.

primary host. See 3d HOST, 3.

primary humors. The four humors. See HUMOR, n., 2 a. Hist.

primary lesion. Med. The initial lesion of a disease; specif., the chancre of syphilis.

primary linkage. See LINKAGE, 6.

primary lookout. See LOOKOUT, n., 1 b.

primary market. Econ. a A wholesale market large enough to dominate the trade in certain goods over a large area. b = PRIMARY POINT.

primary meeting. = PRIMARY, n., 2 a. primary memory. Psychol. Memory for what has occurred just a moment before.

primary meristem. See MERISTEM.

primary motion. The apparent westward drift of all the heavenly bodies, due to the earth's eastward axial turning.

primary parasite. See PARASITE, n., 3.

primary phosphate. See PHOSPHORIC ACID, 1.

primary planet. Astron. = PLANET, 1.

primary point. Com. Any of the large cities that receive agricultural products in large quantities direct from country shippers. Daily receipts at these places are called primary receipts, and daily shipments from them, primary shipments. U. S.

primary position. Physiol. Optics. The position assumed by the eyes when directed forward to a distant horizon, the body being erect; a position from which, without torsion of priest'less, adj. See -LESS. priest'let, n. See -LET.

priest'li·ness (prēst'lĭ·nĕs; -nĭs; 119), n. See -NESS. priest'ress, n. Priestess. Obs. priest'rid'. = PRIEST-RIDDEN.
Priests' Code (prēsts). Bib. = PRIESTLY CODE. See 1st LAW, 8. priest's'-crown', n. = DANDELION, 1. priest'ship, n. See -SHIP.
priest's hole. = PRIEST HOLE.
Priests of Mercy. = FATHERS OF MERCY. [Obs. exc. Dial.] prieve (prēv). Var. of PROVE.
prigd. Prigged. Ref. Sp. prig'dom, n. See -DOM. prig'gess, n. Fem. of PRIG. Rare.
prig'hood, n. See -HOOD. prig'man, n. A thief. Obs. Cant. prig'ster, n. = PRIGGER. Obs. prike, prikke. † PRICK.
‖pri'mae (prī'mē), adj., fem. of PRIMO. pri·mae'val. Var. of PRIMEVAL.
‖pri'mae vi'ae (prī'mē vī'ē). [L.] Literally, the primary passages; the alimentary canal. Obs.
primar. † PRIMAL.
pri'ma·ri·ness, n. See -NESS.

the ball of the eye, the lines of sight may be moved. In the primary position for convergence, the plane of regard is depressed until the eyes may be converged without rotation about the lines of regard.

primary quality. See QUALITY, n., 13 b.

primary rainbow. See RAINBOW, n., 1.

primary receipts. See PRIMARY POINT.

primary release. See ARROW RELEASE.

primary right. Law. See RIGHT, n., 2 b.

primary road. A principal road, usually State-maintained, in a recognized system of highways.

primary rocks. Geol. Formerly, the rocks supposed to have been first formed; — called also primitive rocks. The corresponding terms, secondary (Now Rare), tertiary, and quaternary rocks, designate successively later groups of strata.

primary root. The first root of a plant. It develops from the radicle.

primary salt. Chem. A salt derived from a polyacid in which only one acid hydrogen atom has been replaced by a base or basic radical.

primary school. See PRIMARY, adj., 6. — pri′ma·ry-school′ (66), adj. — primary scholar.

primary shipments. See PRIMARY POINT.

primary spermatocyte. Zool. See SPERMATOCYTE.

primary stimulus. See COLOR, n., 2.

primary syphilis. See SYPHILIS.

primary tissue. Bot. Tissue developed from a primary meristem. See MERISTEM.

primary triad. Music. One of the triads on the first, fourth, or fifth tone of any major or minor scale.

primary union. Surg. Union by the first intention. See INTENTION, n., 8. primary wood. Primary xylem.

primary xylem. The first woody tissue that a shrub or tree develops. See XYLEM.

pri′mate (prī′mĭt), n. [ME. primat, fr. OF. primat, fr. LL. primas, -atis, principal, chief, in ML., primate, fr. L. primus first. See PRIME, adj.] 1. One who is first in rank, quality, authority, or the like.

The prince . . . is the primate and pearl of nobility. Mulcaster.

2. Eccl. a R.C.Ch. Orig., a bishop possessing jurisdiction over other bishops in a province or provinces; later, a bishop who, as vicar of the Holy See, exercised authority over several provinces or metropolitans, or over a national church. Now the title is merely honorary. Though primates have the privilege of precedence over bishops and archbishops, they have no jurisdiction except by special grant. The Archbishop of Armagh is still called Primate of All Ireland, and the Archbishop of Dublin, Primate of Ireland. b Anglican Ch. A bishop of a see which ranks first in a province or provinces; an archbishop or metropolitan as presiding in his province or over other bishops. The Archbishop of Canterbury has the title of Primate of All England, and the Archbishop of York, that of Primate of England. The Archbishop of Armagh, in the Church of Ireland, has the title of Primate of All Ireland, and the Archbishop of Dublin, that of Primate of Ireland.

3. Zool. One of the Primates.

pri′mate (prī′mĭt), adj. Zool. Of or pertaining to a primate or the Primates.

Pri·ma′tes (prĭ·mā′tēz), n. pl. [NL.] Zool. The order of mammals consisting of man and the apes, monkeys, marmosets, and lemurs. It includes two suborders, Lemuroidea and Anthropoidea. See 1st MAN, 17; MONKEY, 1; LEMUR, 2. — pri·ma′tal (-tăl; -tĭ), adj. & n.

pri′mate·ship (prī′mĭt·shĭp), n. The office, dignity, or position of a primate; primacy.

pri·ma′tial (prĭ·mā′shăl), adj. [F., fr. ML. primatia. See PRIMACY.] Of or pertaining to a primate; having primacy.

primatial council. Eccl. See COUNCIL, n., 2 a.

pri·mat′ic (prĭ·măt′ĭk), adj. Primatial. Rare.

pri·mat′i·cal (prĭ·măt′ĭ·kăl), adj. Primatial.

Pri′ma·ve′ra (prē′mä·vā′rä), n. [It., spring.] A painting by Botticelli now in the Academy at Florence. It is an elaborate allegorical composition, with figures of Venus, Cupid, Flora, Spring, Zephyr, the three Graces, etc.

pri′ma·ve′ra (prē′mä·vā′rä), n. [Sp., lit., spring.] A Central American timber tree (Tabebuia donnellsmithii) with handsome yellow flowers; also, its hard light wood, often called white mahogany.

pri′ma·ve′ral (prī′mȧ·vē̆r′ăl), adj. Of or pertaining to early spring. Rare.

‖pri′ma vis′ta (prē′mä vēs′tä). [It., first sight.] Primero or a variation of it. Obs.

‖pri′ma vol′ta (vôl′tä). [It.] Music. The first time; — a direction indicating that the part so marked is to be performed the first time but omitted at the repetition.

prime (prīm), n. [See PRIME, adj.] 1. [AS. prīm, fr. L. prima (sc. hora) the first hour.] The first hour of the day; specif. [cap.], the first of the daytime canonical offices, in contradistinction to the nocturnal offices of Matins and Lauds. The artificial twelve-hour day ran from six to six, and Prime (called also Prime Song) was the office for the first hour.

2. The golden number. Archaic.

3. The first part; the earliest stage; the beginning or opening, as of the day, the year, the world, etc.; hence, the dawn; the spring. Chaucer.

In the very prime of the world. Hooker.

Saurians of the prime. Henry Adams.

4. The spring of life; youth; now, usually, the period of greatest health, strength, or beauty.

5. a The chief or best one of a group.

Prime of the flock, and choicest of the stall. Pope.

b That which is first in quality; the best part.

Give him always of the prime. Swift.

c In trade, an article, as of food, of an arbitrarily and variously limited superior class.

6. a Any of the first set of equal parts (originally and generally 60, sometimes 10) into which a unit, esp. a degree, is divided; a minute. b Hence, the accent [′] used to denote such a fraction and now also for many other purposes, as in algebra, thus a′ (to be read a prime).

7. An inch, as composed of twelve seconds in the duodecimal system; — denoted by [′]. See 1st INCH, 1.

8. Obs. a The new moon. b The general meeting (of a guild). c A cycle, as of the moon or weather.

9. Arith. A prime number.

10. Backgammon. The covering of six consecutive points in the path of one or more of the adversary's men.

11. Cards. In primero, a hand consisting of a card from each suit. Also, Obs., an old game, by some identified with primero.

12. Chem. Any number expressing the combining weight or equivalent of any particular element; — so called because these numbers were reduced to their lowest relative terms on the fixed standard of hydrogen as 1. Now Rare.

13. Fencing. The first of the chief guards.

14. Lumber. An export grade of yellow pine lumber varying in different countries but in general a very high grade, free from defects and largely heartwood; — sometimes called Savannah merchantable.

15. Math. = MINUTE, n., 7 a.

16. Music. a A tone represented by the same staff degree as a given tone. b The pitch relation between two such tones, or their simultaneous combination. The perfect prime, represented by the ratio 1: 1, is called also the unison. See INTERVAL, n., 8. c The tonic, or first tone, of a scale. d The fundamental of a compound tone as distinguished from the overtones; — more fully prime tone.

prime (prīm), adj. [OF., fr. L. primus first, a superl. corresponding to the compar. prior former. See PRIOR, adj.; cf. FOREMOST, PRIM, PRIMARY, PRINCE.] 1. First in order of time; original; primeval; primitive; primary.

"Prime forests." Tennyson.

She was not the prime cause, but I myself. Milton.

☞ In this sense the word is nearly superseded by primitive, except in the phrase prime cost.

2. Being in the spring, or prime, of life; having the vigor and freshness of youth; blooming. Now Rare.

His starry helm, unbuckled, showed him prime
In manhood where youth ended. Milton.

3. First in rank, degree, dignity, or importance; chief; as, prime minister. "Prime virtues." Dryden.

4. a First in excellence; of highest quality; as, prime wheat; a prime quality of cloth. b Obs. exc. Dial. Eng. In the best condition; ready.

5. Primary as opposed to derivative; as, a prime cause, postulate.

6. Marked with a prime [′]. See PRIME, n., 6.

7. Lecherous; lustful; lewd. Obs. Shak.

8. Math. a Divisible by no number except itself or unity; incomposite; as, 7 is a prime number. b Having no common divisor but 1; — used with to; as, 12 is prime to 25. Such integers are said to be relatively prime.

Syn. — See PRIMARY.

prime (prīm), v.; PRIMED (prīmd); PRIM′ING (prīm′ĭng). [In most senses prob. fr. prime, adj. or n.; in sense 3 perh. an alteration of ME. pruinen; cf. PRUNE to trim, as trees.] Transitive: 1. To prepare for firing, as a cannon, firearm, mine, or the like, by supplying with priming, or a primer.

2. Hence: a To put into working condition, as a pump by pouring water into the barrel or bucket, a gasoline-engine cylinder or carburetor by pouring gasoline into it, an induction electric machine by imparting a charge of static electricity to one armature. b To lay the first color, coating, or preparation upon (a surface), as in painting; also, Obs., to put cosmetics on. c To prepare; to make ready; to instruct beforehand; to post; coach; as, to prime a witness; boys primed for mischief.

3. a Now Dial. To trim or prune, as trees; — also figuratively. b Specif., in tobacco growing, to harvest by picking the leaves of (a plant). See PRIMING, 5.

4. To stimulate or intoxicate with drink. Slang.

5. Math. To mark with a prime mark.

—, Intransitive: 1. To prime a gun, a pump, etc.

2. To have a shortened tide day; — chiefly in pres. part. See LAG OF THE TIDE.

3. Obs. a To be in its prime, or first phase; — of the moon. b To have, take, or assume precedence; — sometimes, prime it.

4. Steam Boilers. To work so that steam is liberated in slugs or belches, resulting in fine water particles being mixed up with, and carried over by, the steam.

prime, adv. Primely. Colloq.

prime, v. i. Of a fish, to leap from the water.

prime, n. Priming, esp. of a gun. Obs.

prime conductor. Elec. The large conductor of a frictional electrical machine, serving to collect, accumulate, or retain the positive electricity.

prime cost. 1. Accounting. The combined cost of direct labor and material in the production of an article.

2. Com. & Econ. The direct or immediate cost of any commodity; — a term used with some looseness, but often specif. of the cost or expenses of producing or obtaining a commodity exclusive of any general expenses of management involved and of all profit on capital. See 3d COST, 6; cf. DIRECT COST.

prime factor. Arith. A factor that is a prime number.

prime interval. Music. See INTERVAL, n., 8.

prime′ly, adv. 1. Primarily; in the first place. Obs.

2. In a prime manner; excellently. Colloq. & Dial.

prime meridian. A meridian from the intersection of which with the equator longitude is counted, both east and west. That of Greenwich is almost universally used.

prime minister. a The first or chief minister of a ruler or state. b The responsible head of a ministry or executive government. The English prime minister controls the actions of the members of the cabinet and the ministers. He is nearly always the First Lord of the Treasury, who has no separate portfolio and has a control over practically all appointments that might have an important influence on the general policy of the government. In Canada, Australia, and South Africa the cabinet head is called prime minister, in the Provinces of Canada and the States of Australia, premier, and in New Zealand, usually premier. See Forms of Address, in Appendix; PRECEDENCE.

☞ While the terms prime minister and premier have been, and still frequently are, used without distinction, the former is generally more common except in the specific cases indicated above.

prime′–min′is·te′ri·al, adj. Of or pertaining to a prime minister.

prime′–min′is·ter·ship′, n. See -SHIP.

prime ministry. Office of prime minister.

prime mover. Mech. a A natural agency applied by man to the production of power; as: muscular force; the weight and motion of fluids, as water and air, or other fluids; and electricity, obtained by chemical action, and applied to produce alternation of magnetic force. b An initial source of motive power, as an engine, or machine, the object of which is to receive and modify force and motion as supplied by some natural source, and apply them to drive other machinery, as a water wheel, a water-pressure engine, a windmill, a turbine, a tidal motor, a steam engine or other heat engine, etc. c Figuratively, the original or the most effective force in any undertaking or work.

prime′ness, n. Quality or state of being prime.

prim′er (prĭm′ẽr), n. 1. One who or that which primes; specif., an instrument or device for priming; esp., a contrivance, as a cap, tube, or wafer containing percussion powder or other compound, for igniting an explosive charge and itself ignited by friction, percussion, or electricity. See PRIME, v. t., 2.

Section of a Simple Form of Primer. The Firing Wire (1) draws the Plunger (2) and the Serrated Piece (4) into the Chamber (3), 4, as it passes, igniting the Friction Composition (5) which ignites the Primer Charge (6).

2. = PRIMING, 2 b.

prim′er (prĭm′ẽr; prĭ′mẽr), adj. [OF. primier, premier. See PREMIER.] First; original; primary. Obs.

prim′er (prĭm′ẽr; Brit. now generally prĭ′mẽr), n. [ML. primarius. See PRIMARY.] 1. Orig., a prayer book, in Latin or English, containing the Little Office, Office of the Dead, psalms, prayers, etc., and used in teaching children to read.

2. A small elementary book for teaching children to read; a reading or spelling book for a beginner; hence: a Any small book of elementary principles of a subject.

As he sat in the school at his primer. Chaucer.

b Something that gives or is a means of giving rudimentary knowledge.

3. (pron. prĭm′ẽr) Print. Either of two sizes of type (long primer and great primer). See TYPE.

primer fine. O. Eng. Law. A fine due to the king on the writ or commencement of a suit by fine. Blackstone.

pri·me′ro (prĭ·mâr′ō), n. [Sp. primera, fr. primero first, fr. L. primarius. See PRIMARY.] An old game at cards, in which four cards were dealt to each player, each card having thrice its ordinary value.

prim′er·ole (prĭm′ẽr·ōl), n. [OF.] 1. Any of various early spring flowers, as the cowslip, daisy, and perhaps the primrose. Obs.

2. Figuratively, a young girl. Chaucer.

prim′er sei′zin or sei′sin (prĭm′ẽr sē′zĭn; prĭ′mẽr). Eng. Feudal Law. The right of the king to exact, from the heir of a tenant in chief seized of a knight's fee, if the heir be of full age, one year's profits of the land in addition to the ordinary relief if the lands were in immediate possession, or half a year's profits if the lands were in reversion expectant on a life estate. Orig., the king appears to have had a larger right. Primer seizin was abolished entirely in 1660 (by 12 Chas. II, c. 24).

prime sergeant or serjeant. A first sergeant. Eng.

Prime Song. See PRIME, n., 1.

prime tone. Music. = PRIME, n., 16 d.

pri·me′val (prī·mē′văl), adj. [L. primaevus, fr. primus first + aevum age. See PRIME, adj.; AGE.] Belonging to the first ages; pristine; original; primitive; primal. "This is the forest primeval." Longfellow. — pri·me′val·ly, adv. Syn. — See PRIMARY.

pri·me′val·ism (-lĭz′m), n. Primeval state or quality. Rare.

pri′me·ve′rin (prī′mĕ·vē′rĭn; -vĕr′ĭn), n. [F. primevère cowslip + -in.] Chem. A crystalline glucoside, $C_{20}H_{28}O_{13}$, found in the cowslip (Primula officinalis).

pri′me·ve′rose (-rōs), n. [primeverin + 2d -ose a.] Chem. A crystalline disaccharide, $C_{11}H_{20}O_{10}$, obtained by hydrolysis of primeverin, primulaverin, and other glucosides. On hydrolysis it yields dextrose and xylose.

prime vertical. Astron. The vertical circle at right angles to the meridian. It passes through the east and west points of the horizon. — prime′–ver′ti·cal (66), adj.

prime′–ver′ti·cal di′al. Astron. A sundial in which the shadow is projected on the plane of the prime vertical; a vertical south dial.

prime–vertical transit. Astron. A transit instrument mounted so that its telescope revolves in the plane of the prime vertical.

pri·mev′i·ty (prī·mĕv′ĭ·tĭ), n. Primeval origin; primitive existence.

pri·me′vous (prī·mē′vŭs), adj. Primeval. Rare.

prime western. Designating the lowest of the four recognized grades of commercial zinc; — a trade term.

prime white oil. Kerosene that is straw-colored; — one of five grades based on color. Trade Name.

primi-. A combining form, Latin primi-, from primus, first, meaning first-, used to denote for the first time, as in *primi*para. Cf. PROTO-.

Prim′i·a′nist (prĭm′ĭ·ā′nĭst), n. Eccl. Hist. A follower of Primianus, who was Donatistic bishop of Carthage, A.D. 392.

pri′mi·gene (prī′mĭ·jēn), adj. [L. primigenius.] Primigenial. Rare.

pri′mi·ge′ni·al (prī′mĭ·jē′nĭ·ăl), adj. [L. primigenus, primigenius. Cf. PRIMOGENITURE.] First formed or generated; original; primary; primal.

pri′mi·ge′ni·an (-ăn), adj. Primigenial. Rare.

pri′mi·grav′i·da (prī′mĭ·grăv′ĭ·dä), n. [NL., fr. L. primus first + gravida pregnant.] Med. A woman pregnant for the first time.

pri′mine (prī′mĭn), n. [L. primus first; cf. F. primine.] Bot. a The outermost of the two integuments of an ovule. b As used by some, the inner integument, which is formed earlier than the outer. Cf. SECUNDINE.

prim′ing (prĭm′ĭng), pres. part. & verbal n. of PRIME, v. Hence: n. 1. Act of one who primes something or someone.

2. a The powder or other material used to fire a charge in a firearm or in blasting; also, the placing of the material in position. b Paint. The first coating of paint, varnish, size, or the like, laid on a surface to be painted; also, the paint used for this first coat.

3. Brewing. A strong solution of sugar added to beer to give it body and make it more palatable.

4. Gas Mfg. The boiling over, as of a still when heated too rapidly.

5. Tobacco Growing. In harvesting tobacco, the pulling of the leaves from the growing plant; also, the leaves thus removed. With shade-grown tobacco this consists of several operations, beginning with lower leaves, which are known as first priming, second priming, etc.

priming boiler. A boiler which primes. Cf. 3d PRIME, v. i., 4.

priming charge. Mil. A small charge of easily detonated explosive used to ignite a main charge, as a propelling charge in a gun.

priming needle. Blasting. = NEEDLE, n., 8.

priming of the tide. See LAG OF THE TIDE.

priming valve. Steam Engin. A form of relief valve.

priming wire. A pointed wire used to penetrate the vent of a piece, for piercing the cartridge before priming.

primd. Primed. Ref. Sp.

prime′gilt′, n. [Cf. PRIMAGE; GELD payment.] = PRIMAGE, 1. Obs.

prime′–pow′er group. Math. = PRIMARY GROUP.

primerose. † PRIMROSE.

prime′-temps′, n. Also prime′-tide′, primetime′. [OF. prin tens (F. printemps), fr. L. primus first + tempus time.] Springtime. Obs.

‖pri′meur′ (prē′mœr′), n. [F.] Novelty.

pri·meve′, adj. [L. primaevus.] Primeval. Obs.

prim′i·ces (prĭm′ĭ·sēz), n. pl. [OF. primices (F. prémices), fr. L. primitiae. See PRIMITIAE.] First fruits. Obs.

pri′mi·ge′ni·ous (prī′mĭ·jē′nĭ·ŭs; 139), adj. Also pri·mig′e·nous (prĭ·mĭj′ē·nŭs). = PRIMIGENIAL.

pri·mip'a·ra (prĭ·mĭp'ȧ·rȧ), n. [L., fr. primus first + parere to bring forth.] Med. a A woman who has borne one child and no more. b A woman bearing her first child. — pri'mi·par'i·ty (prī'mĭ·păr'ĭ·tĭ), n.

pri·mip'a·rous (prī·mĭp'ȧ·rŭs), adj. [See PRIMIPARA; cf. OVIPAROUS.] Belonging to a first birth; bearing young for the first time.

pri·mip'i·lar (prĭ·mĭp'ĭ·lĕr; prī'mĭ·pĭ'lĕr), adj. [L. primipilaris, fr. primipilus the centurion of the first cohort of a Roman legion, fr. primus pilus the division made up of the triarii in the Roman army.] Of or pertaining to the first maniple or the chief centurion of the triarii of a Roman army.

pri·mi'ti·ae (prī·mĭsh'ĭ·ē), n. pl. Formerly also pri·mi'ti·as (-ȧz). [L., fr. primus first. Cf. PRIMICES.] Law. First fruits; specif., the annates or year's first fruits, of an ecclesiastical benefice. See FIRST FRUITS b. — pri·mi'tial (-mĭsh'ăl), adj.

prim'i·tive (prĭm'ĭ·tĭv), adj. [F. primitif, fr. L. primitivus, fr. primus first.] 1. Of or pertaining to the beginning or origin; earliest in time; first; original; as, primitive ages or religion; our primitive ancestors.

2. Of or pertaining to the earliest ages, as of man or civilization, or the earliest period, as of Christianity or an art; as, primitive tools or morals; the primitive church; primitive lack of perspective.

3. Original; primary; radical; not derived; as, a primitive verb in grammar.

4. Characterized by a quality or qualities belonging or ascribed to the original state of man, an institution, etc., as naturalness, mildness, simplicity, etc.; as, to live in primitive fashion.

A really primitive people nowhere exists. McLennan.

5. Of or pertaining to the denomination or denominations of Primitive Baptists, Methodists, etc.

Originally, perhaps, members of some primitive sect, they were now in the natural course of things members of the Church of England. Galsworthy.

6. Biol. a Primordial. b Ancient, archaic, little evolved, persistent; — said of species or groups whose structure more or less closely approximates that of their early ancestral types; as, the opossums are primitive mammals; the tuatara is a primitive type of reptile, etc. Cf. PROMORPH.

7. Geol. Earliest formed; fundamental; — applied esp. to the crystalline rocks of the Archean.

Syn. — First, pristine; aboriginal, ancient, antiquated. See PRIMARY.

Ant. — Modern, recent, contemporary, present.

— the Primitive Church. The body of Christian believers of about the first three centuries A.D. and their simple organization for worship, charity, etc.

prim'i·tive (prĭm'ĭ·tĭv), n. 1. A primitive ancestor, inhabitant, or member; specif., a primitive Christian.

2. That which is primitive; the origin, or collectively, the origins, as of man. Rare.

3. [cap.] A Primitive Methodist. Dial. Eng.

4. a An artist of a period before the culminating development of his art, as a painter or sculptor of the period between the decay of classic art and the middle of the 15th century, or before Mosaccio and Donatello. b A modern imitator or follower of such an artist. c A work of art produced by either of the above.

5. Gram. A radical or root word, as distinguished from a derivative.

6. Math. The algebraic or geometric form from which another is derived, as by differentiation; the finite equation equivalent to a differential equation (or equation of differences), called complete when it has the full number of arbitrary constants; the curve or surface of which another is the reciprocal or polar.

primitive area. Any of a number of large tracts within the United States national forests (esp. in Colorado) set aside for preservation in natural condition, no alteration or development, beyond measures for fire prevention, being permitted.

primitive axis. Embryol. An elongated thickening of the mesoblastic and hypoblastic layers of the blastoderm, extending forward from the anterior end of the primitive streak.

Primitive Baptists. See 2d BAPTIST, 2.

primitive chord. Music. A chord the lowest note of which is its root or fundamental; — opp. to derivative.

primitive circle. Spherical Projection. The circle cut from the sphere to be projected, by the primitive plane.

primitive colors. Primary colors. See COLOR, n., 2.

primitive elastic limit. See ELASTIC LIMIT a.

Primitive Friends. See FRIEND, n., 6.

primitive Germanic. Proto-Germanic.

primitive groove. Embryol. A depression or groove in the epiblast of the primitive streak. It is not connected with the medullary groove.

primitive group. Math. A transitive group of substitutions on n letters such that all the substitutions of the group which omit a given letter form a group involving all the other letters. See IMPRIMITIVE GROUP.

primitive horde. The horde in primitive times. See HORDE, n.

Primitive Methodist Church, Primitive Methodist Connexion. See METHODIST, n., 2.

primitive minor scale. See 6th SCALE, 11 a.

prim'i·tive·ness, n. The quality or state of being primitive; conformity to primitive style or practice.

primitive optic vesicle. See OPTIC VESICLE a.

primitive ova. = PRIMORDIAL OVA.

primitive pair. Math. Any pair of complex numbers, α and β, such that all the numbers of a given network are representable in terms of them in the form $l\alpha + m\beta$ where l, m are integers, positive, negative, or zero.

primitive parallelogram. Geom. A parallelogram determined by a primitive pair and the origin of the complex plane.

primitive plane. Spherical Projection. The plane upon which the projections are made, generally containing some principal circle of the sphere, as a meridian.

primitive rocks. Geol. = PRIMARY ROCKS.

primitive segment. Embryol. Any one of the transverse segments into which the body of the embryo of vertebrates becomes marked off by the formation (beginning first in the neck region) of a series of distinctly limited masses of mesoblast cells on each side of the medullary tube. They are called also mesoblastic somites, and protovertebrae. (These terms, as well as primitive segment, are used both of the segments thus marked off and of the masses of mesoblast which determine them.) Though the tissues of the primitive segments eventually give rise to the vertebrae of the adult, their planes of separation do not coincide with, but alternate with, those of the future vertebrae.

primitive sheath. = NEURILEMMA a.

primitive streak or trace. Embryol. An opaque band which appears in the vertebrate blastoderm in the axial line of the future embryo, but somewhat behind the place where the embryo proper begins to develop. In it the epiblast and hypoblast are not distinguishable as distinct layers; along each side the mesoblast begins to differentiate.

primitive water. Geol. Water originating within the earth.

prim'i·tiv·ism (prĭm'ĭ·tĭv·ĭz'm), n. Belief in the superiority of primitive life, Christianity, etc.; specif.: a The doctrine, or the practice of the doctrine, that man should return to nature (see sense 9). b In art, adherence to or reaction to that which is primitive. c Primitive Methodism. — prim'i·tiv·ist (-ĭst), n. — prim'i·tiv·is'tic (-ĭs'tĭk), adj.

prim'i·tiv'i·ty (-tĭv'ĭ·tĭ), n. Primitiveness.

prim'ly, adv. In a prim or precise manner.

prim'ness, n. Quality, state, or an instance of being prim; affected formality or niceness; preciseness; stiffness.

‖pri'mo (prē'mō), adj. masc.; pri'ma (-mȧ), adj. fem. [It.] Music. First; chief; as, pri'mo te·no're (tā·nō'rā), the leading tenor. — n. a The first or leading part, as in a duet or trio. b = PRIMA VOLTA. — adv. In the first place; first; also, in the first (year).

pri'mo·ge'ni·al (prī'mō·jē'nĭ·ăl; 159), adj. [See PRIMIGENIAL.] Rare. a Erron. var. of PRIMIGENIAL. b Primogenitary.

pri'mo·gen'i·tal (prī'mō·jĕn'ĭ·tăl; -t'l), adj. Of or pertaining to primogeniture; primogenitary.

pri'mo·gen'i·tar'y (-jĕn'ĭ·tĕr'ĭ; -tēr·ĭ), adj. Of, pertaining to, characterized by, or characteristic of, primogeniture.

pri'mo·gen'i·tive (-tĭv), n. Primogeniture. Shak. — adj. Primogenital. Rare.

pri'mo·gen'i·tor (prī'mō·jĕn'ĭ·tŏr), n. [ML., fr. L. primus first + genitor a begetter.] An ancestor; a forefather.

pri'mo·gen'i·ture (-tûr), n. [ML. primogenitura, fr. L. primus first + genitura a begetting, birth, generation, fr. genere, gignere, to beget; cf. F. primogéniture, L. primogenitus first-born. See PRIME, adj.; GENUS, KIN.] 1. State of being the first-born of the children of the same parents; seniority by birth in a family having the same father and mother.

2. Law. An exclusive right of inheritance belonging to the first-born; specif., in English law, the right that belongs to the eldest son or, failing lineal descendants, the eldest male in the next degree of consanguinity, to take all the real estate of which the ancestor died seized and intestate, to the exclusion of all female and younger male descendants of equal degree. This rule has never been applied to female descendants; they take as coparceners. Primogeniture was formerly common in Europe, but has now disappeared except for its survival in the English system (which was introduced by the Normans) and in the rules of descent of the crown in various European countries, the rule by primogeniture here being extended in England and some other countries to females as well as males. In England it now exists only in the descent of the crown, the descent of peerages, and by the terms of family settlements.

pri·mog'e·nous (prī·mŏj'ē·nŭs), adj. Of or pertaining to the first stage or phase of a genesis or an organic or social evolution.

We meet a type of man who is far past the primogenous condition. Müller-Lyer.

‖prim'·o'mo (prē·mō'mō), n. [It.] Principal actor or male singer at a theater.

‖pri'mo·prime' (prī'mō·prīm'), adj. Very first; strictly original.

pri'mo·prim'i·tive, adj. Earliest of that which is primitive.

pri·mor'di·al (prī·môr'dĭ·ăl), adj. [LL. primordialis, fr. L. primordium the beginning, fr. primus first + ordiri to begin a web, to begin; cf. F. primordial.] 1. Of, pertaining to, or constituting, the beginning; first created or existing; in its original form or state; initial; rudimentary; as, primordial matter; the primordial condition of man.

2. First in order, as in a series, succession, or development; primary; fundamental; elemental; as, primordial rights.

3. Biol. Originally or earliest formed in the growth of an individual or organ; primitive; — opposed to definitive.

4. Geol. Cambrian. Obs.

Syn. — See PRIMARY.

pri·mor'di·al, n. An origin; a first principle or element. Now Rare.

primordial cell. Bot. A cell without a cell wall. Cf. CELL, n., 9.

pri·mor'di·al·ism (prī·môr'dĭ·ăl·ĭz'm), n. Persistence of the primordial state. H. Spencer.

pri·mor'di·al'i·ty (-ăl'ĭ·tĭ), n. Something primordial; primordial character.

primordial meristem. Primary meristem. See MERISTEM.

primordial ova. Anat. & Embryol. Large cells in the germinal epithelium and in the sexual cords or egg tubes derived from it. They occur in embryos of both sexes, but more abundantly in the female, and from them the true eggs are believed to be derived.

primordial utricle. Bot. The cytoplasmic lining of the cell wall in a fully developed vacuolated cell.

pri·mor'di·ate (prī·môr'dĭ·ăt), adj. Primordial. Rare.

pri·mor'di·um (prī·môr'dĭ·ŭm), n.; pl. -DIA (-ȧ). [L., the first beginning.] 1. A beginning; origin.

2. Biol. The rudiment or commencement of any part or organ. Cf. ANLAGE, 1.

prim·os'i·ty (prĭm·ŏs'ĭ·tĭ), n. [prim + -osity.] Prudery; primness. Rare.

pri'most (prē'mōst), n. [Nor.] A whey cheese.

primp (prĭmp), v.; PRIMPED (prĭmpt); PRIMP'ING. [Cf. PRIM.] Intransitive: To dress or behave in a formal or affected manner; — often with up, around, etc. Orig. Dial.

— Transitive: 1. To dress up; — usually reflexive.

2. To prim or purse (one's lips). Rare.

prim'rose' (prĭm'rōz'), n. [ME. prymerose, an alteration of primerole, fr. OF. primerole, a derivative fr. ML. primula, fr. L. primus first; cf. OF. primerose. See PRIME, adj.]

1. Any plant or flower of the genus Primula, esp. of the common English species P. veris (the cowslip), or of the various cultivated species, as P. polyantha, P. sinensis, and P. obconica. See PRIMULA, 1; WOODLAND PRIMROSE.

2. The evening primrose.

3. The flower, esp. of youth or innocence; also, an innocent. Now Rare.

4. The color primrose yellow.

☞ COMBINATIONS are:

primrose-colored	primrose-leaved	primrose-sweet
primrose-decked	primrose-scented	primrosetide
primrose-dotted	primrose-spangled	primrosetime primrose-haunted	primrose-starred	primrose-tinted prim'rose' (prĭm'rōz'), adj. Of or pert. to the primrose; of the color of a primrose; abounding in primroses; hence, flowery; gay. "The primrose path of dalliance." Shak.

prim'rose', v. i. To seek for or gather primroses.

Child with child primrosing. Edmund Blunden.

Prim'rose', Charles. The vicar in Goldsmith's Vicar of Wakefield, a man devout, guileless, and charitable, and priding himself on supporting the Whistonian doctrine that it is unlawful for a priest of the Church of England, after the death of his first wife, to marry again. His wife, Deborah Primrose, is noted for her housewifery, and her desire to appear genteel; Moses Primrose, one of his children, displays blundering simplicity.

prim'rosed' (-rōzd'), adj. Abounding in primroses.

primrose family. The Primulaceae.

primrose green. A color, yellow in hue, of medium saturation and very high brilliance. Cf. COLOR.

Primrose League. Eng. Politics. A league of Conservatives, founded in 1883. Its members are called "knights" and "dames" and its branches "habitations." It is so called because the primrose was associated with the Conservative statesman Benjamin Disraeli, the anniversary of whose death, April 19, is called Primrose Day.

primrose path. See PRIMROSE, adj.; hence, the course or a life of sensual pleasures.

primrose peerless. An herb (Narcissus biflorus) of southern Europe, with grasslike leaves and usually two white to yellowish flowers.

primrose tree. The evening primrose Oenothera biennis. Eng.

primrose willow. Any plant of the genus Jussiaea (family Onagraceae), in allusion to the willowlike leaves.

primrose yellow. A color, reddish-yellow in hue, of medium saturation and high brilliance; — called also snapdragon. Cf. COLOR.

prim'ros'y (prĭm'rōz'ĭ), adj. Rare. a Primrosed; primrose-colored. b Of or characteristic of the Primrose League.

prim'sie (prĭm'sĭ), adj. Prim; demure. Scot.

Prim'u·la (prĭm'ū·lȧ), n. [ML. See PRIMROSE.] 1. Bot. a A large genus of perennial acaulescent herbs typifying the family Primulaceae; the primroses. They have large tufted basal leaves and showy variously colored flowers with a salver-shaped corolla bearing five stamens within its tube. The species are chiefly European and Asiatic, a few North American. The most important garden types are the auriculas, descended from P. auricula; the Chinese primroses, from P. sinensis, P. obconica, etc.; the baby primrose (P. forbesii); the oxlip P. elatior; and the polyanthus, from P. polyantha. See COWSLIP a. b [not cap.] A plant or flower of this genus.

2. [not cap.] A synthetic dye, one of Hofmann's violets.

primula acid. Chem. Primulic acid.

Prim'u·la'ce·ae (-lā'sē·ē), n. pl. [NL. See PRIMULA.] Bot. A family of herbs, the primrose family, typifying the order Primulales. They have perfect regular flowers, with a deciduous rotate or campanulate corolla and a superior ovary. There are about 30 genera and 700 species, of wide distribution, chiefly in the Northern Hemisphere. The most important genera are Primula, Dodecatheon, Cyclamen, and Lysimachia. — prim'u·la'ceous (-shŭs), adj.

Prim'u·la'les (-lā'lēz), n. pl. [NL.] Bot. An order of gamopetalous dicotyledonous herbs, shrubs, or trees comprising the families Primulaceae, Plumbaginaceae, Theophrastaceae, and Myrsinaceae, distinguished by the one-celled ovary with a central and basal placenta.

prim'u·lav'er·in (-lăv'ĕr·ĭn), n. Also -la·ve'ro·side (-lȧ·vē'rō·sīd; -vĕr'ō-; -sĭd), -la·ve'ro·sid. [See PRIMULA; PRIMEVERIN.] Chem. A crystalline glucoside, $C_{20}H_{32}O_{13}$, isomeric with primeverin and occurring with it.

pri·mu'lic ac'id (prĭ·mū'lĭk). A crystalline or amorphous saponin obtained from the cowslip Primula veris.

prim'u·line (prĭm'ū·lĭn; -lēn; 156), n. [From PRIMULA. See PRIMROSE, 4.] A yellow dye prepared by heating paratoluidine and sulphur together and sulphonating the product. When diazotized on the fiber and developed with a phenol or amine, it yields any of a series of colors (primuline colors) the nature of which depends on the particular developer used.

Prim'u·li'nus (prĭm'ū·lī'nŭs), n. [NL.] Hort. A class or type of garden gladioli, with mostly hooded ruffled flowers, derived, in part, from the South African species Gladiolus primulinus; — often called Primulinus hybrids.

‖pri'mum mo'bi·le (prī'mŭm mōb'ĭ·lē). [L.] With Aristotle, the highest physical sphere, or heaven of the fixed stars, which is in immediate contact with God and derives its circular motion, the most perfect of all motions, directly from him; hence, as an addendum to the Ptolemaic astronomy, the ninth (later the tenth) and outermost concentric sphere, carrying the spheres of the fixed stars and the planets in its daily revolution. Cf. CRYSTALLINE HEAVEN.

pri'mus (prī'mŭs), adj. [L.] Literally, first; — used to designate the eldest either in years or seniority of attendance among boys of the same surname in English schools. Secundus, tertius, etc., designate the second, third, etc., in order.

‖Pri'mus (prī'mŭs), n. [L., the first.] The first in dignity of the bishops of the Scottish Episcopal Church of Scotland, who has, however, no metropolitan authority.

Pri'mus, n. A trade-mark for a kind of portable oil-burning cookstove often used by arctic explorers; hence [often not cap.], a stove bearing this trade-mark; — called also primus stove, primus heater.

‖pri'mus in'ter pa'res (ĭn'tĕr pā'rēz). [L.] First among his peers.

‖pri'mus mo'tor (mō'tôr). [ML.] Prime mover; originally, God.

prim'wort' (prĭm'wûrt'), n. a = PRIVET, 1 a. b Obs. Any primulaceous plant. Lindley.

prim'y (prĭm'ĭ), adj. Being in its prime. Rare.

prince (prĭns; 232), n. [OF., fr. L. princeps, -cipis, the first, chief, fr. primus first + capere to take. See PRIME, adj.; CAPABLE. Cf. PRINCIPAL.] 1. The one of highest rank; a sovereign; a monarch; — now rarely applied to a female. Specif., the title of the sovereign of a principality; as, the Prince of Monaco.

2. A title given to the son of a sovereign, or to other members of a royal family; as, the Prince of Wales. In England it is also, as a courtesy title, sometimes given to dukes, marquises, and earls of the royal family. See Forms of Address, in Appendix.

3. In certain European countries, a title of nobility ranking in some cases above, in others below, that of duke. It is used to translate German Prinz or Fürst and Russian knez.

4. One at the head of, or very eminent in, a class or profession; one who is pre-eminent; as, a prince of poets or of navigators; a merchant prince.

prim'i·tiv. Primitive. Ref. Sp.
prim'i·tive·ly, adv. of PRIMITIVE. prim'i·ty, n. [L. primus first.] Primacy. Obs.

prim'mer. + PRIMER. pri'mo·gen'e·trix (prī'mō·jĕn'ē·trĭks), n. [NL.] Fem. of PRIMOGENITOR.

pri'mo·gen'it, adj. [L. primogenitus.] First-born. Obs. pri'mo·gen'i·ture·ship', n. See -SHIP.

pri·mor'di·a, n., pl. of PRIMORDIUM. [DIAL.] pri·mor'di·al·ly, adv. of PRIMORDIAL. pri'mo te·no're (prē'mō tā·nō'rā). See PRIMO, adj.

prim'print (prĭm'prĭnt), n. [Cf. dial. prim, primp, prini, privet, E. privet.] = PRIVET a. Obs.

primuline yellow. = GOLDENROD, 2. [Obs.] prin, adj. [OF.] Slender; lean. prin (prĭn; prĕn). Var. of PREEN

☞ COMBINATIONS are:

princecraft	prince-protected	prince-ridden
prince-killing, adj.	prince-proud	prince-trodden prince- (prĭns-). A combining form of prince, denoting both prince and, as in:

prince-abbot	prince-general	prince-priest prince-angel	prince-poet	prince-primate prince-duke	prince-president	prince-teacher prince (prĭns; 232), v. i.; PRINCED (prĭnst); PRINC'ING (prĭn'sĭng). To play, or act the part of, the prince; — often with it.

Prince, The. [It. Il Principe.] A treatise on politics and government (1513) by Machiavelli. See BIOG.

prince'age (prĭn'sĭj), n. Princes collectively. Rare.

Prince Albert. 1. A long double-breasted frock coat for men. 2. A type of man's house slipper with a low counter and goring on each side.

Prince Arthur. In Spenser's Faerie Queene, a representation of King Arthur symbolizing magnificence.

prince'-bish'op, n. Hist. A bishop whose see was a feudal principality of the Holy Roman Empire.

Prince Charles spaniel. An English toy spaniel having a black, tan, and white coat.

Prince Charming. The suitor who fulfills the dreams of his beloved; — from the Cinderella story.

prince consort. The husband of a queen regnant.

prince'dom (prĭns'dŭm), n. 1. The jurisdiction, sovereignty, rank, or estate of a prince. 2. = PRINCIPALITY, 2 & 3.

prince elector. = ELECTOR, 2.

Prince gray. The color crane.

Prince Hal (hăl). In Shakespeare's Henry the Fourth, the Prince of Wales.

Prince Henry. In Shakespeare's King John, the son of John, afterward King Henry III.

prince'hood (prĭns'hŏŏd), n. State, rank, or characteristics of a prince.

Prince'ite (prĭns'īt), n. A member of the Agapemone.

prince'kin (-kĭn), n. A diminutive prince.

prince'let, n. A petty prince.

prince'like', adj. Princely. — adv. In a princely manner.

prince'ling, n. A petty or a little prince.

prince'ly (prĭns'lĭ), adj.; PRINCE'LI-ER (-lĭ-ĕr); PRINCE'LI-EST. 1. Of or relating to a prince; regal; royal; of highest rank or authority; as, princely birth or power. 2. Befitting or characteristic of a prince; munificent; magnificent; regal; noble; as, princely virtues; a princely fortune. "Most princely gifts." Shak.
Syn. — See KINGLY.

prince'ly, adv. In a princely manner; in a manner befitting a prince. Now Rare.

Prince of Abissinia, the. See RASSELAS.

Prince of Darkness. a The Devil; Satan. b Ahriman.

Prince of Destruction. Tamerlane (1333–1405), who ruthlessly overran a large part of Asia.

Prince of Liars. Fernão Mendes Pinto (d. 1583), a Portuguese traveler who published an account of his travels full of what were believed to be extravagant fictions; — originally so called by Cervantes.

Prince of Peace. Jesus Christ; — alluding to Isaiah ix. 6.

prince of the Apostles. St. Peter; — alluding to Matthew xvi. 18. In pl., applied to St. Peter and St. Paul.

Prince of the Church. = CARDINAL, 1.

Prince of the Ode. Pierre de Ronsard (1524–85), a celebrated French lyric poet.

Prince of the Power of the Air. Satan; — so called in Ephesians ii. 2.

prince of the senate. In ancient Rome, the senator first called in the roll. He was usually of consular and censorial rank.

Prince of the Sonnet. Joachim du Bellay (1524–60), a French poet.

Prince of this World. Bib. Satan.

Prince of Wales. 1. The eldest son, or heir apparent, of the British sovereign. The title was first conferred (1301) by Edward I on his eldest son, afterwards Edward II; but the Black Prince, eldest son of Edward III, was the first to whom the principality was granted under the present limitations. Although the heir apparent is born Duke of Cornwall, the title of Prince of Wales is created anew for each holder. See Forms of Address, in Appendix; PRECEDENCE. 2. A size of paper. See PAPER, Table.

Prince'-of-Wales''-heath' (-hĕth'), n. A South African shrub (Erica perspicua) grown for its profusion of white flowers.

prin'ceps (prĭn'sĕps), adj. [L.] First; original; — used esp. of a first edition or a copy belonging to a first edition.

prin'ceps, n.; pl. PRINCIPES (prĭn'sĭ-pēz). [L. See PRINCE.] a One who or that which is first; specif.: a Rom. Empire. The head of the state. b See LEGION, 1. c A.-S. Hist. Any of various chief officials, esp. the headman of a tribe or pagus. d A princeps edition of a work or a copy of it.

‖prin'ceps cer·vi'cis (prĭn'sĕps sûr·vī'sĭs). [L. cervicis of the neck.] Anat. The largest branch of the occipital artery. It descends along the back of the neck and divides into a deep and a superficial branch.

‖prin'ceps pol'li·cis (pŏl'ĭ·sĭs). [L. pollicis of the thumb.] Anat. A branch of the radial artery which passes along the ulnar side of the first metacarpal, dividing into branches running along the palmar side of the thumb.

prince regent. A prince who is ruler of a country during the minority, absence, or disability of the nominal sovereign. Specif. [caps.], Eng. Hist., George, Prince of Wales (later George IV), who was regent 1811–20.

prince royal. The eldest son of a sovereign.

Prince Ru'pert's drop (rōō'pĕrts). = RUPERT'S DROP.

Prince Rupert's metal, Prince's metal. An alloy of the appearance of brass said to have first been made by Prince Rupert, and stated variously to have been of copper and arsenic, and copper and bismuth.

prince's'-feath'er (prĭn'sĕz-; -sĭz-; 119), n. a A showy annual plant (Amaranthus hybridus hypochondriacus) often cultivated for its dense usually red spikes. b A plant (Persicaria orientalis) with broadly ovate leaves and slender drooping crimson spikes; — often called gentleman's-cane. c The common lilac (Syringa vulgaris). d = LONDON PRIDE a.

Prince's lengths. Archery. The three distances — 100, 80, and 60 yards — of the York round.

prince's pine. a The jack pine Pinus banksiana. b The pipsissewa Chimaphila corymbosa.

Prince's reckoning. Archery. The standard of counting hits on the target as gold 9, red 7, blue 5, black 3, white 1, prescribed by the Prince of Wales in 1792 and adopted at the Grand National Archery Meeting at York in 1844.

prin'cess (prĭn'sĕs; -sĭs; 119; see note below), n. [F. princesse. See PRINCE.] 1. A female prince; a woman having sovereign power, or the rank of a prince. Archaic.

So excellent a princess, as the present queen. Swift.

2. The daughter or granddaughter of a sovereign; also, a female member of a royal family. See Forms of Address, in Appendix; PRECEDENCE.

Wrong not her birth, she is a royal princess. Shak.

3. The consort of a prince; as, the Princess of Wales.
4. A woman pre-eminent in her state or power; a queen; — also applied to something personified as feminine.

☞ In British use, when the word is attributive, the usual pronunciation is prĭn'sĕs, -sĭs; as Prin'cess Alice, Prin'cess Elizabeth, prin'cess dowager; otherwise prĭn-sĕs' or prĭn'sĕs.

Princess, The. A narrative poem (1847) by Tennyson. It is a discussion of the place of women, esp. in education, and in society.

prin'cess, v. i. To act or play the princess; — with it.

Prin'cess Bo·kha'ra. See BOKHARA, 2.

prin·cesse' (prĭn·sĕs'; prĭn'sĕs, -sĭs), adj. Also prin'cess (prĭn'sĕs; -sĭs). [F., a princess.] Designating a one-piece, close-fitting dress or slip.

prin'cess·ly, adj. That is, is like, or befits, a princess.

princess pine. = PRINCE'S PINE.

princess regent. A princess who is ruler of a country during the minority or absence of the nominal sovereign; also, the wife of a prince regent.

princess royal. The eldest daughter of a sovereign.

princess tree. The tree Paulownia tomentosa.

Prince'ton or'ange (prĭns'tŭn). [From Princeton University, N. J.] A color, reddish red-yellow in hue, of very high saturation and high brilliance. Cf. COLOR.

prince'wood' (prĭns'wŏŏd'), n. a The tropical American tree Cordia gerascanthus; also, its strong, elastic wood. b The tropical American shrub or tree Exostema caribaeum. The bark affords bitters.

princ'i·fied (prĭn'sĭ·fīd), adj. Princelike.

princ'i·fy (prĭn'sĭ·fī), v. t. [See -FY.] To make into a prince.

prin'ci·pal (prĭn'sĭ·păl; -p'l), adj. [OF., fr. L. principalis fr. princeps. See PRINCIPLE.] 1. Highest in rank, authority, or importance; chief; directing; head; as, the principal dancer in a ballet; the principal keeper in a prison; the principal men of a city.
2. Main; leading; outstanding; important; — formerly also in comparative and superlative degrees; as, the principal streets; one of his principal arguments.

Wisdom is the principal thing, therefore get wisdom. Prov. iv. 7.

3. Very good; prime. Obs. exc. Scot.
4. Of or pert. to a prince; princely. A Latinism. Obs.
5. Gram. a = MAIN, adj., 7. b See PRINCIPAL PART. c Gr. & Lat. Gram. See SECONDARY, adj., 13 a.
Syn. — Prime, foremost. Ant. — Minor, lesser, subordinate.

prin'ci·pal (prĭn'sĭ·păl; -p'l), n. 1. A leader, chief, or head; one who takes the lead; one who acts independently, or who has controlling authority; as, the principal of a faction, a firm, etc.; the principals in a war; — distinguished from subordinate, abettor, auxiliary, assistant, etc.
2. a A capital sum placed at interest, due as a debt, or used as a fund; — distinguished from interest or profit. b Of an estate or portion of an estate of a decedent, in general, the corpus, or main body of the estate, portion, devise, or bequest; — distinguished from income.
3. A fundamental point; — now confused with principle.
4. One of the turrets or pinnacles of waxwork and tapers with which a funeral hearse was formerly decorated.
5. One fighting or pledged to fight a duel. Cf. SECOND, n.
6. Obs. a pl. Principal persons; notables. b The chief part or point. c Source; origin; also, the original from which a copy is made.
7. Arch. & Engin. The construction which gives shape and strength to a roof, generally one of several trusses of timber or iron. Also, loosely, the most important member of a piece of framing.
8. Ch. of Eng. Official principal. See OFFICIAL a.
9. Educ. A presiding or chief executive officer of any of certain kinds of educational institutions. In Great Britain the heads of many colleges, and, in the United States, those of most schools and many academies, are called principals.
10. Falconry. Either of the two outermost primaries of a hawk's wing.
11. Fine Arts. a The chief motive or feature in a work of art. b An original work of art.
12. Gram. Primary. Rare.
13. Law. a One who employs another to act for him; the person from whom an agent's authority is derived; — disting. from agent. Cf. SERVANT. b One primarily liable on an obligation, as disting. from an endorser, surety, etc. c The chief actor in a crime, or an abettor present at it; — distinguished from an accessory. d O. Eng. Law. Any of the chief movables of a decedent such as constituted an heirloom, mortuary, or heriot.
14. Music. a A kind of organ stop; specif.: (1) In English organs, the chief open metallic stop, an octave above the open diapason, a 4-foot stop on the manual, an 8-foot stop on the pedal. (2) [cap.] An octave or 4-foot stop; — used in compound names; as, Dulciana Principal. b A kind of trumpet used in old orchestral music, as that of Handel. c A fugue subject; — opposed to answer. d A soloist or chief performer.

— in principal. Principally.

prin'ci·pal, adv. Principally. Obs.

‖prin'ci·pal' (prēn'sē·päl'; 138), n.; pl. -PALES (-päl'lăs). [Sp.] A leading man or one of the first citizens of a town; also, a member of a municipal council. Phil. I.

principal axis. 1. Mech. a Each of three mutually-perpendicular directions at every point of a rigid body, the directions being such that the products of inertia of the body about the three planes, each of which contains two of the three directions, vanish. b Of a stress: See PRINCIPAL STRESS.
2. Geom. a Of a conic: The diameter through the foci. b More generally, of any curve: A diameter bisecting rectangularly a system of parallel chords. c Of a quadric: Any of three lines in which the principal planes of the quadric intersect two and two, as in an ellipsoid.

principal challenge. Law. See CHALLENGE, n., 7.

principal distance. See PERSPECTIVE, n., 2.

principal focus. See FOCUS, n., 6.

principal form. Philos. The form which constitutes or determines a species.

principal function. Dyn. The integral (as to the time) of the Lagrangian function, that is, of the kinetic less the potential energy.

prin'ci·pal'i·ty (prĭn'sĭ·păl'ĭ·tĭ), n.; pl. -TIES (-tĭz). [OF. principalité, fr. LL. principalitas pre-eminence, excellence; cf. F. principalité, principauté. See PRINCIPAL.] 1. State or quality of being principal; supreme station or power; headship; pre-eminence. Now Rare.

Your principalities shall come down, even the crown of your glory. Jer. xiii. 18.

2. The state, office, or authority of a principal, or sometimes, a prince. Now Rare.
3. The territory or jurisdiction of a prince, or the country which gives title to a prince; as, the principality of Wales.
4. A spiritual being (good or evil) of a high order (Rom. viii. 38); specif., pl., in medieval angelology, one of the nine orders of angels. See CELESTIAL HIERARCHY.
5. Princeliness. Byron.

prin'ci·pal·ly (prĭn'sĭ·păl·ĭ), adv. In a principal manner; in the chief place or degree; primarily; chiefly; mainly.

principal meridian. Surv. Any of the true geographical meridians established by authority of the Surveyor General of the United States which serves as the meridian of reference for subdividing public lands in a given region. Cf. GUIDE MERIDIAN.

principal moment. Mech. One of the three moments of inertia of a body about its principal axes of inertia at a point.

prin'ci·pal·ness, n. The quality of being principal.

principal parameter. Math. See PARAMETER, n., 3 c.

principal part. Gram. One of the inflectional forms of a verb, from which the rest can be derived, or which exhibit its different stems (rego, regere, rexi, rectus). In an English verb the principal parts are the present and past tense forms and the perfect participle (sing, sang, sung).

principal plane. a = PICTURE PLANE. See PERSPECTIVE, n., 2. b = INVARIABLE PLANE. c Math. (Of a central quadric) a plane through the center perpendicular to the line joining the two points of contact with the quadric of the two tangent planes which are parallel to the given plane. There are usually only three principal planes and they are mutually orthogonal. d Optics. Planes perpendicular to the axis and passing through the principal points of an optical system. The two points where the principal planes are intersected by an incident ray and its corresponding emergent ray lie on a line parallel to the axis.

principal plane of symmetry. See SYMMETRY, 3.

principal point. a See PERSPECTIVE, n., 2. b Optics. Either of two points on the optic axis of a lens, so related that a ray from any point of the object directed toward one principal point will emerge from the lens in a parallel direction, but directed through the other principal point.

principal quantum number. Physics. A scalar quantum number which determines to a first approximation the energy and dimensions of an electron orbit within the atom. Symbol, n.

principal radii of curvature of a surface. Math. The greatest and the least of the radii of curvature of all normal sections of the surface through a given point P. of the surface.

principal rafter. One of the upper diagonal members of a roof truss, supporting the purlins and common rafters, or those joints to which the roof boarding is secured. See ROOF, Illust.

principal ray. Perspective. Principal visual ray.

principal reaction. Chem. See SIMULTANEOUS REACTION.

principal section. a Cryst. A plane passing through the optical axis of a crystal. b Any plane perpendicular to the edge of a prism.

principal stress. 1. Engineering. A stress normal to an area on which no shearing stress exists.
2. Mech. Any of the three simple compressive or tensile stresses situated along three definite axes (called principal axes) at right angles to each other, to which any complex stress in a body can be resolved.

principal tangent. Math. = ASYMPTOTIC LINE.

principal visual ray. See PERSPECTIVE, n., 2.

principal work. In a pipe organ, the open cylindrical pipes collectively, giving the typical organ quality of tone. See PRINCIPAL, n., 14 a.

prin'ci·pate (prĭn'sĭ·pāt), n. [L. principatus; cf. F. principat.] 1. Princely power; supreme rule. Now Rare.
2. Obs.: a A prince; a principal person. b One of the seventh order of angels; a principality (sense 4).
3. A principality (sense 3).
4. The power or term of a princeps. See PRINCEPS a.

‖prin'ci·pe (It. prēn'chē·pā; Sp. -thē·pā; 138; Pg. prēn'sĭ·pĕ), n. [It. principe, Sp. & Pg. príncipe.] A prince; specif., in Spanish and Portuguese use, a title applied to the eldest son of a king. Cf. INFANTE.

prin'cipe (prĭn'sĭp), n. [F.] = PRINCIPLE. Obs.

prin·cip'i·a (prĭn·sĭp'ĭ·ȧ), n., pl. of PRINCIPIUM.

Prin·cip'i·a (prĭn·sĭp'ĭ·ȧ), n. pl. [L., principles.] A mathematical treatise, published, in Latin, 1687, by Sir Isaac Newton, explaining his discovery of the law of universal gravitation. See GRAVITATION, n., 3.

prin·cip'i·ant (prĭn·sĭp'ĭ·ănt), adj. [LL. principians, pres. part. of principiare to begin, fr. principium. See PRINCIPLE.] Relating to first principles or beginnings. — n. A beginner. Obs.

prin·cip'i·ate (-ăt), adj. [LL. principiatus, past part. of principiare to begin.] Original; initiatory. Obs. — v. t. To begin; initiate. Obs.

prin·cip'i·a'tion (-ā'shŭn), n. Analysis into elemental parts. Rare.

prin·cip'i·a'tive (prĭn·sĭp'ĭ·ā'tĭv; -ȧ·tĭv), adj. Originating. Obs.

prin·cip'i·um (prĭn·sĭp'ĭ·ŭm), n.; pl. -IA (-ȧ). [L. See PRINCIPLE.] 1. A principle; ultimate origin; esp., pl., first principles; fundamentals; elements; as, Newton's Principia.
2. [L., a principle] In medieval universities, the first public lecture or disputation of a bachelor candidate, by which, with the chancellor's license, he became an actual master or doctor; — called also inception, whence the day set for such ceremonies was called commencement day, as still observed in American colleges and schools.

prin'ci·ple (prĭn'sĭ·p'l), n. [OF. principe, fr. L. principium beginning, foundation, fr. princeps, -cipis. See PRINCE.] 1. Beginning; commencement; original state. Obs.
2. A source, or origin; that from which anything proceeds; fundamental substance or energy; primordial substance; ultimate basis or cause.

The soul of MAN is an active principle. Tillotson.

The assumption, universal among the ancients and in the Middle Ages, that there were principles of heat and cold, dryness and moisture, etc., led directly to a belief in alchemy. J. S. Mill.

3. An original faculty or endowment.

Nature in your principles hath set [benignity]. Chaucer.

---

prince'head', n. Princehood. Obs.

prince'less, adj. See -LESS.

prince'li·ness, n. See -NESS.

Prince'-of-Wales''-feath'er. a = PRINCE'S-FEATHER b. b = CRAPE FERN. N. Z.

prince'ship, n. See -SHIP.

prince's'-plume', n. = PRINCE'S-FEATHER b.

prin'cess-dom, n. See -DOM.

prin'cess-like', adj. See -LIKE.

prin'cess-ship, n. See -SHIP.

prin'ci-pal-ship', n. See -SHIP.

Prin'ci·pes (prĭn'sĭ·pēz), n. pl. [NL., fr. L. princeps, -cipis, chief.] Syn. of ARECALES.

prin'ci·pes, n., pl. of PRINCEPS.

prin·cip'i·al (prĭn·sĭp'ĭ·ăl), adj. Initial. Obs.

‖prin·ci'pi·is ob'sta (prĭn·sĭ'pĭ·ĭs). See OBSTA PRINCIPIIS.

prin'ci·pl. Principle. Ref. Sp.

prin'ci·pled. Principled. Ref. Sp.

---

4. A fundamental truth; a comprehensive law or doctrine, from which others are derived, or on which others are founded; a general truth; an elementary proposition or fundamental assumption; a maxim; an axiom; a postulate.

A principle ascertained by experience is more than a mere summing up of what has been specifically observed in the individual cases which have been examined; it is a generalization grounded on those cases. J. S. Mill.

5. a A settled rule of action; a governing law of conduct; an opinion, attitude, or belief which exercises a directing influence on the life and behavior; a rule (usually, a right rule) of conduct consistently directing one's actions; as, a person of no principle; the principles of a party. b Devotion to what is right and honorable as a trait of character.

My pride, not my principle . . . kept me honest. Defoe.

6. a Essential character; essence. b Any constituent which characterizes a substance, or gives it essential properties; as, the active principle of a drug.

7. The means of achieving a purpose or producing a result by some artificial device, esp. a mechanical contrivance; that which applies, modifies, or combines mechanical powers to produce a result. If new and applied to a useful purpose it is patentable. Hence, its mode of construction or working.

8. Obs. a pl. Rudiments. b An element, component, or ingredient. c A motive force. d A seed or embryo.

9. [cap.] Christian Science. Specif., divine Principle; — a synonym for God.

10. Old Chem. = ELEMENT, n., 1.

Syn. — PRINCIPLE, RULE are here compared in the sense of that which exercises governing or guiding influence. PRINCIPLE emphasizes the idea of fundamental truth or general application; RULE, that of more specific direction or regulation; as, to follow certain principles of administration, to lay down certain administrative rules; "Throughout a considerable part of conduct, no guiding principle . . . enables us to say whether a proposed course is even relatively right" (H. Spencer); "A long string of aphorisms, and maxims, and rules, for the conduct of life" (Cowper). Cf. DOCTRINE, AXIOM.

—in principle. As generally desirable or fundamentally sound, but objectionable in its particulars or details; as, to accept a proposition in principle.

prin'ci·ple (prĭn'sĭ·p'l), v. t.; PRIN'CI·PLED (-p'ld); PRIN'CI·PLING (-plĭng). To instill principles into; to ground or fix, in a principle or principles; to incite or move as an animating principle; — now chiefly in past part., esp. in combinations; as, high-principled; low-principled.

Let an enthusiast be principled that he or his teacher is inspired. Locke.

principle of acceleration. = LAW OF ACCELERATION.

prin'ci·ple of Ar'chi·me'des (är'kĭ·mē'dēz). = ARCHIMEDEAN PRINCIPLE.

principle of continuity. Math. a = GEOMETRIC CONTINUITY. b The fact that for any set of (real) numbers less than any given number there is a certain smallest number that is greater than any number of the set or as great as any.

principle of contradiction. Logic. See LAWS OF THOUGHT.

principle of d'A'lem'bert' (dȧ'lăN'bâr'). [After Jean le Rond d'Alembert, French mathematician.] Mech. The principle that if, from the force externally applied to each body at each instant, there is taken away the force required to produce the change of motion of the body which takes place at that instant, the remainder must be balanced by, and equal and opposite to, the internal force acting on the body in question.

principle of duality. Geom. The principle that from geometric theorems other theorems, called correlative theorems, may be derived by interchanging the one-to-one correspondent elements in a correlation, as in the analytic treatment of a geometric theorem in which the coordinates used may be interpreted either as the co-ordinates of a point or of a line (in the plane) or of a point or plane (in space). The correlative theorems are obtained by interchanging in the original theorems the word point by line, in the case of a point or line in the plane, or the word point by plane, in the case of a point or plane in space, and conversely; as, from the theorem stating that a straight line cuts a conic in two points, by the principle of duality, the correlative theorem stating that two tangents may be drawn to a conic from a point is obtained.

principle of equivalence. Physics. See RELATIVITY.

principle of excluded middle, of identity. Logic. See LAWS OF THOUGHT.

principle of indeterminacy or indeterminateness. Physics. The principle (announced by Werner Heisenberg, German physicist) that it is not possible to measure accurately the position and the velocity of a particle at the same time and that the more accurately either can be measured the less accurately the other can be measured.

principle of least action. Dyn. A fundamental principle of dynamical theory stating that the action between two points on the actual trajectory of a dynamical system has a stationary value as compared with the action along neighboring trajectories between the same two points in which the time is correlated with the co-ordinates in such a way that the energy of the system is not varied.

principle of least time. = FERMAT'S LAW.

principle of segregation. The principle that contrasting factors or genes (allelomorphs) pass to separate germ cells during maturation. Cf. MENDEL'S LAW.

prin'cox (prĭn'köks), n. Also prin'cock (-kŏk). [Prob. fr. prim + cock.] A coxcomb; a pert youth. Archaic.

prin'cum-pran'cum (prĭng'kŭm-prăng'kŭm), n. [Cf. PRANK a trick.] Queer behavior; a prank; specif., the cushion dance; also, finery; affectation. Obs.

prine (prīn), n. The bar-tailed godwit. Local, Eng.

prin'gle (prĭng'g'l), v. i. & t. [A blend of prinkle and tingle.] To tingle annoyingly; to cause a tingling or to tingle.

In the golden light and pringling air. Christopher Morley.

prink (prĭngk), v.; PRINKED (prĭngkt); PRINK'ING. [Appar. fr. PRANK to adorn.] Transitive: To dress up; to deck; to bedeck with finery; to preen. "The thousand and one emporiums which patch and prink us." Galsworthy.

—, Intransitive: To dress or arrange oneself for show; — often with up.

prink, v. i. To act, esp. to walk, affectedly or mincingly. Dial. Eng.

prink, v. i. To glance; wink. Obs. exc. Dial.

prink'er (prĭngk'ẽr), n. One who prinks.

prin'kle (prĭng'k'l), v. t. & i. [Cf. PRICKLE.] To tingle; prickle. Chiefly Scot.

prink'y (prĭngk'ĭ), adj. Bedecked.

print (prĭnt), n. [ME. printe, prente, priente, preinte, fr. OF. priente, preinte, fr. prient, preint, past part. of preindre to press, print, fr. L. premere. See PRESS to squeeze; cf. PRINT, v.] 1. A mark made by impression; a line, character, figure, or indentation, made by the pressure of one thing on another; as, the print of a seal in wax or a foot in sand; the print of one's education on his character.

2. a A stamp or die for molding or impressing an ornamental design upon an object; a mold; as, a butter print. b That which receives an impression, as from a stamp or mold; as, a print of butter.

3. Printed state or form; as, put into print.

4. a Printed matter; esp., a printed publication, as a newspaper or other periodical. b An edition. c Newsprint.

5. Printed letters; the impression taken from type, esp. regarded as to excellence, form, size, etc.; as, small print; large print; clear print; this line is in print.

6. An impression taken from anything. Specif.: a A picture, design, or the like, taken by transfer from an engraved plate, a lithographic stone, or the like, usually on paper; as, sporting prints. See ENGRAVING, n., Citation. b An intaglio impression reproducing in reverse an original having somewhat slight relief; also, a cast or impression in relief taken from such an intaglio.

7. A printed cloth; a fabric figured by stamping, esp. calico or cotton cloth.

8. Obs. a A mark serving as a symbol. b An image. c A vestige; trace. d A printing press; also, printing.

9. Founding. = CORE PRINT.

10. Motion Pictures. A developed film, containing positive images, as printed from the negative.

11. Photog. a A copy made on a sensitized surface, as from a negative or from a drawing on transparent paper. b A negative made from a positive.

Syn. — See IMPRESS.

—in print. a In a printed form; issued from the press; published; as, his book is now in print. b Now Dial. To the letter; with accurateness, nice adjustment, or precision. "All this I speak in print." Shak. c Still on sale by the publisher; not out of print. —*out of print. Not in the regular market, or not procurable from the publisher, the edition printed being exhausted; — said of books, etc.

-print. A combining form of the noun print, denoting: a An impression made by, as in finger*print.* b Something to be printed on, as in news*print.*

print (prĭnt), v.; PRINT'ED; PRINT'ING. [ME. printen, prenten, fr. printe, prente, an impress. See PRINT, n.; cf. IMPRINT, v.] Transitive: 1. To fix or impress, as a stamp, mark, character, idea, etc., into or upon something or someone.

A look will print a thought that never may remove. Surrey.

2. To stamp something in or upon, as with a seal or dye; to make an impression or mark upon by pressure, or as by pressure.

3. To press so as to make an imprint.

Printing their proud hoofs in the receiving earth. Shak.

4. To make by or as by pressing or stamping.

5. Specif., to strike off an impression or impressions of, from type, or from stereotype, electrotype, or engraved plates, or the like; in a wider sense, to do the typesetting, presswork, etc., of (a book, edition, etc.); as, to print books, newspapers, pictures; also, to cause this to be done; to publish in print; as, to print the disclosures.

6. To stamp or impress with characters, figures, patterns, or the like, transferred by pressure from plates, types, or the like; as, to print cards; also, to transfer an impression of; — often with on; as, to print a design on calico.

7. To form in characters like those of type (other than script); as, a letter printed by a child.

8. Photog. To make (a positive picture) from a negative, a drawing on transparent paper, or the like, upon a sensitized surface; to produce on printing-out paper; — sometimes with out. Also, to make a negative from a positive.

—, Intransitive: 1. a To use or practice the art of typography; to take impressions of letters, figures, or electrotypes, engraved plates, etc. b To produce printed matter.

2. To publish a book, article, music, or the like.

3. To write letters (symbols) or words in distinctively typographical characters; as, to print with a pen.

Syn. — See PUBLISH.

print (prĭnt), adj. Printed; also, clear; bright. Scot. & Dial.

print'a·ble (prĭn'tȧ·b'l), adj. 1. Capable of being printed or of being printed from.

2. Worthy to be published; capable of being lawfully or properly published; — usually with a negative.

— print'a·bil'i·ty (-bĭl'ĭ·tĭ), n. — print'a·ble·ness, n.

print cloth. Woven cotton cloth prepared for printing.

print cutter. Photog. A person or knife that cuts prints.

print'ed (prĭn'tĕd; -tĭd; 119), adj. Having a design impressed by printing; as, plain and printed silks.

print'er (prĭn'tẽr), n. 1. One who prints; esp.: a One who prints, or works at the business of printing, books, newspapers, engravings, etc., as a typesetter or pressman. b Formerly, a publisher of printed matter. c A photographer who prints from negatives. d One who operates a motion-picture printer (sense 2 b). e One who prints colors or patterns on textiles, pottery, wallpaper, etc.

2. Any of certain devices used for printing; as: a Photog. A box with ground or opal glass front, containing a lamp, and having fitted into one side and facing the lamp a printing frame with a hinged back. b Motion Pictures. A machine for printing positives from negatives (or vice versa) either by contact or by optical projection. c Teleg. An instrument that records the message at the receiving end in printed characters.

print'er's dev'il (prĭn'tẽrz). 1. A young apprentice in a printing office who does chores, and often becomes very black with dust or ink (whence the name devil).

2. A machine formerly used for washing the ink from composition rollers and putting them into boxes.

printer's ink. Printing ink, esp. the common black variety; hence, printed matter; as, the power of printer's ink.

print'er·y (prĭn'tẽr·ĭ), n.; pl. -ERIES (-ĭz). a A place where cloth is printed. b A printing office or shop.

print'ing (prĭn'tĭng), n. 1. Act, art, or practice of impressing letters, characters, or figures on paper, cloth, or other material; the business of a printer, including typesetting and presswork, with their adjuncts; typography. Printing from engraved wooden blocks was practiced by the Chinese as early as the 8th century A.D.; in the 13th century the initial letters in certain manuscripts were stamped from similar blocks. But the invention of typography in Europe practically began with the use of movable metal types by Johannes Gutenberg at Strasbourg and Mainz, 1438–45. Lourens Janszoon Costet, of Haarlem, is said to have printed from metal types at about the same time as Gutenberg. See PRINTING PRESS.

2. Photog. Act or art of producing a positive photographic picture from a negative on sensitized paper; act or art of making photographic prints. See PRINT, v. t., 8.

3. Ceramics. Act or art of decorating pottery by means of transfer papers printed with mineral colors or of gelatin sheets printed in oil. The colors are fixed by firing.

4. Amount printed at one time.

5. pl. Paper used for printing on.

printing frame. Photog. A holder in which a negative is held in uniform close contact with sensitized paper for exposing the latter to light in order to make a print.

print'ing-out', n. Photog. A process by which cloud effects or other features not in the original negative are introduced into a photograph by printing from another negative.

printing machine. A printing press operated by power. Chiefly British.

printing office. A business establishment in which printing (sense 1) is done.

print'ing-out' (66), adj. Photog. Pertaining to, used in, or designating a method of printing, in which the image is fully brought out by the direct actinic action of light without subsequent development by means of chemicals; as, printing-out paper (abbr. P.O.P.), which requires fixing and toning to make the image permanent and give it a satisfactory color.

A 2-Revolution Perfecting Press, with diagrammatic view showing manner of operating. Paper (1) from the Feedboard (2) is fed to the first Cylinder (3) which carries it through a complete revolution, during which one side of the paper is printed as it comes in contact with the Form (9). The paper then passes to the second Cylinder (4) which carries it through approximately half a revolution, during which the unprinted side of the paper receives an impression from the second Form (10). Leaving the second cylinder, the paper is carried by the Delivery Cylinder (5) to the Fly (6), a device which, operated by a Rod-and-spring Mechanism (18, upper illust.), after receiving the paper, swings through the arc indicated by the arrows, depositing the paper on the Stack (7). Rollers (17) moistened with oil remove from the second cylinder any ink offsetting from the printed paper.

While the paper is passing through the cylinders, the Bed (8, 8) carrying the Forms (9, 10) is driven back and forth on the Rollers (11) by the Bed-driving Mechanism (16). At the same time ink from the Ink Fountains (12, 12) is conveyed by the Ink-distributing Rollers (13, 13) to the Ink Plates (14, 14) which, moving back and forth with the Forms, carry the ink to the Inking, or Form, Rollers (15, 15) which, finally, apply the ink to the forms before they pass under the cylinders.

One form of Printing Press.

printing press. Any of numerous machines for making printed impressions on paper, board, tin, etc., from an inked surface, as of types (including also electrotypes, prin·cip'u·lus (prĭn·sĭp'ū·lŭs), n. [NL.] Dim. of PRINCE. Stevenson.

prin'kum-pran'kum. Var. of PRINCUM-PRANCUM.

[prin'ta/nier' (prĭn'tȧ'nyĕr'), prin'ta/nière' (-nyĕr'), adj. = à LA PRINTANIÈRE. [MAIL, 3.] printed paper post. See 6th print'er-dom (prĭn'tẽr·dŭm), n. See -DOM.

print'er-like', adj. See -LIKE. printing ink. See INK, n., 1.

stereotypes, etc.), wood blocks, copper plates, lithographic stones, or the like. The earliest form of printing press was the simple screw hand press; later forms were the flat-bed cylinder press, introduced about the beginning of the 19th century, the platen press, and the rotary press. In the flat-bed cylinder press a revolving cylinder presses against a flat bed containing the printing form which passes underneath. The rotary press employs revolving cylinders for both the printing form and the impressional surface. Cf. CYLINDER PRESS, PERFECTING PRESS, PLATEN PRESS, ROTARY PRESS, WEB PRESS.

printing telegraph. = PRINTER, 2 c.

print'less (prĭnt'lĕs; -lĭs; 119), adj. Chiefly Poetic. a Making no imprint; leaving no trace. "Time's printless torrent." Shelley. b Bearing or taking no imprint. "Lighting on the printless verdure." Keats.

print'line' (prĭnt'lĭn'), n. A unit of space and circulation sometimes used in calculating advertising rates for publications. It is one agate line, a column wide (about 2¼ inches), in one copy of a publication.

print'script' (-skrĭpt'), n. Writing in letters like print.

print shop. a A shop in which prints are sold. b A printing establishment.

print trimmer. = PRINT CUTTER.

print'works' (prĭnt'wûrks'), n. A factory where calico or other cloth, wallpaper, or the like, is printed.

pri'o-dont' (prī'ō-dŏnt'), adj. [See PRIODONTES.] Zool. Having small mandibles; — said of some polymorphic insects, esp. certain stag beetles. Cf. TELEODONT.

Pri'o-don'tes (-dŏn'tēz), n. [NL., fr. Gr. priōn saw + odōn, odontos, tooth.] Zool. The genus constituted by the giant armadillo.

pri'on (prī'ŏn), n. [NL., fr. Gr. priōn a saw.] Any of several petrels of the southern hemisphere, formerly included in a genus Prion. The fairy prion (Pseudoprion turtur) is a common Australian species.

-prion. [NL.] See PRIONO-.

Pri'o-ni'nae (prĭ'ō-nī'nē), n. pl. [NL., fr. Gr. priōn a saw.] Zool. A subfamily of cerambycid beetles having the prothorax prolonged outward into a thin, more or less toothed margin. It is sometimes ranked as a family and called Pri-on'i-dae (prĭ-ŏn'ĭ-dē). The species are large, and brown or black in coloration; their larvae burrow into the roots or wood of plants. The type genus, Pri-o'nus (prĭ-ō'nŭs), occurs in Europe and North America. — pri'o-nine (prī'ō-nĭn; -nīn), adj. & n. — pri-on'id (prĭ-ŏn'ĭd), n. & adj.

One of the Prioninae (Prionus laticollis).

pri-o'no- (prĭ-ō'nō-), prion-. Zool. A combining form, Greek priono-, prion-, from priōn, meaning a saw, as in Prionodesmacea, prionodont. The terminal form -prion is used in generic names esp. in ichthyology.

Pri-o'no-des-ma'ce-a (prĭ-ō'nō-dĕs-mā'shē-ȧ; -dĕz-), n. pl. [NL., fr. priono- + Gr. desmos bond.] A division of bivalves typically having the hinge prionodont; — equiv. to the orders Protobranchia and Filibranchia. — pri-o'no-des-ma'cean (-shăn), n. & adj. — pri-o'no-dēs-ma'ceous (-shŭs), pri-o'no-dēs-mat'ic (-măt'ĭk), adj.

pri-on'o-dont (prĭ-ŏn'ō-dŏnt), adj. [prion- + -odont.] Zool. Having a sawlike row of many simple and similar teeth; serrate.

Pri-o'no-pi'nae (prĭ-ō'nō-pī'nē), n. pl. [NL., fr. prion- + Gr. ōps face.] Zool. A subfamily of Old World passerine birds consisting of the wood shrikes. The typical genus is Pri-o'nops (prĭ-ō'nŏps). — pri-on'o-pine (prĭ-ŏn'ō-pĭn; -pīn), adj.

Pri-o'nus (prĭ-ō'nŭs), n. [NL.] Zool. See PRIONINAE.

pri'or (prī'ĕr), n. [ME. prior, priour, fr. AS. prior (fr. L.), and fr. OF. priour, prior, priur (F. prieur), fr. L. prior former, superior, in ML. a prior. See PRIOR, adj.] 1. Orig., any monastic superior; later, among the Benedictines and their offshoots the chief obedientiary who had been known as praepositus (provost); hence: a The coadjutor of an abbot ranking next to him in the monastery (claustral prior). b The superior or ruler of a priory (conventual prior). c The head of a house of canons regular as the Augustinian, or of the Dominicans, the Carthusians, or the Servites. d With grand, the commandant of a priory of any of various orders of military monks, as the Hospitalers. e With general, the head of the Carthusian order. See Forms of Address, in Appendix.

2. The head of a guild or business house. Now Rare.

3. [It. priore, pl. priori.] One of the six magistrates to which the government of Florence was entrusted in 1282.

pri'or (prī'ĕr), adj. [L., former, superior, better, compar. of OL. pri before; akin to L. primus first, priscus ancient, pristinus previous, to L. prae before, and prob. to L. privus single, peculiar. See FOR; cf. PRE-, PRICE, PRIME, adj., PRISTINE, PRIVILEGE.] Preceding in the order of time; earlier and therefore taking precedence; previous; as, a prior discovery or obligation; also, with to, antecedent in time, importance, etc.; anterior; as, conception is prior to creation; this duty is prior to all others.

Syn. — See ANTECEDENT. Ant. — Subsequent, succeeding.

pri'or-a-cy (prī'ĕr-ȧ-sĭ), n. Priorate. Rare.

pri'or-al (-ăl), adj. Of or pertaining to a prior. Rare.

prior analytics [Gr. ta analytika protera.]. That part of the logical writings of Aristotle which deals with the doctrine of the syllogism. See ARISTOTELIAN LOGIC.

prior art. Patent Law. The processes, devices, and modes of achieving the end of an alleged invention which were known or knowable by reasonable diligence before and at its date.

pri'or-ate (prī'ĕr-ĭt), n. [ML. prioratus.] 1. The dignity, government, office, or time of office, of a prior.

2. Prior; a community under a prior.

pri'or-ess (prī'ĕr-ĕs; -ĭs; 119), n. [OF. prioresse.] A nun whose position in an order of women corresponds to that of prior in an order of men. Cf. PRIOR, 1 b & c.

pri'o-ris'tic (prī'ō-rĭs'tĭk), adj. Of or pertaining to Aristotle's work called "Prior Analytics." Cf. POSTERIORISTIC. — pri'o-ris'ti-cal-ly (-tĭ-kăl-ĭ), adv.

pri'or-ite (prī'ĕr-īt), n. [After G. T. Prior (b. 1862), Brit. mineralogist.] Mineral. A titano-niobate of yttrium, cerium, and other rare-earth metals, isomorphous with blomstrandine.

pri-or'i-ty (prĭ-ŏr'ĭ-tĭ), n.; pl. -TIES (-tĭz). [OF. priorité, fr. ML. prioritas. See PRIOR, adj.] 1. Quality or state of being prior, or antecedent in time; as, priority of birth; priority of claim.

2. Precedence; superiority in rank, position, privilege, or the like; as, the priority in law of liens on a property.

3. An order that takes priority over all others.

4. Biol. Precedence in date or position of publication. See LAW OF PRIORITY.

Syn. — PRIORITY, PRECEDENCE. PRIORITY refers esp. to order of time, PRECEDENCE to order of rank or dignity; as, "In payment of debts he must observe the rules of priority" (Blackstone), "None sure will claim in Hell precedence" (Milton); to take precedence in the order of priority of appointment. Cf. ANTECEDENT, ASCENDANCY.

pri'or-ly (prī'ĕr-lĭ), adv. Previously.

Prior Mimamsa or Mimansa. See MIMAMSA.

pri'or-ship (prī'ĕr-shĭp), n. State or office of a prior; priorate.

prior to. Before; — chiefly with verbal nouns; as, prior to going to New York.

pri'o-ry (prī'ō-rĭ), n.; pl. -RIES (-rĭz). [ME. priorie, fr. AF. priorie, fr. ML. prioria. See PRIOR, n.] 1. A religious house ranking next below an abbey, the superior of which bore the title prior, if a man, or prioress, if a woman (see PRIOR). Of such houses there were two sorts; one where the prior was chosen by the inmates, and governed as independently as an abbot in an abbey; the other, often called a cell or obedience, where the priory was subordinate to an abbey, and the prior was placed or displaced at the will of the abbot.

2. = PRIORATE, 1. Rare.

3. A house of an order of military monks.

Syn. — See CLOISTER.

pris'a-ble (prĭz'ȧ-b'l), adj. Law. Subject to prisage.

pri'sage (prī'zĭj), n. [F. prise a taking; cf. ML. prisagium prisage. See 3d PRIZE.] O. Eng. Law. a The right of the crown to take one tun of wine from every ship importing from 10 to 20 tuns, and 2 tuns from every ship importing 20 or more, or the wine so taken. By charter of Edward I butlerage was substituted for this. b The share of merchandise taken as lawful prize at sea which belongs to the king or admiral.

pri'sal (-zăl; -z'l), n. [AF. prisel, fr. F. prise. See 3d PRIZE.] Law Hist. a Seizure under legal or customary privilege. b The action of taking something as a prize; also, something taken as a prize. See PRIZE, 3 b.

Pris'ca (prĭs'kȧ), n. Priscilla; — so called in 2 Tim. iv. 19. See PRISCILLA, 2. pris'can (-kăn), adj. [L. priscus.] Primitive. Rare.

Pris'ci-an (prĭsh'ĭ-ăn; prĭsh'ăn), n. [After Priscian, the Roman grammarian.] A grammarian; also, a grammar; — in the phrases, "Priscian a little scratched," designating a slight grammatical error, and, "breaking Priscian's head," defiantly violating grammatical dogmas. — Pris'ci-an-ist, n. Rare.

Pris-cil'la (prĭ-sĭl'ȧ), n. [L. Priscilla or Gr. Priskilla; cf. L. priscus primitive, ancient.] 1. Fem. proper name.

2. A Christian convert who, with her husband, Aquila, was associated with Paul in missionary work. Acts xviii.

3. A Puritan maiden, Pris-cil'la Mul'lens (mŭl'ĕnz; -lnz), wooed by John Alden as intercessor for Capt. Standish. See COURTSHIP OF MILES STANDISH.

4. The color fog blue.

Pris-cil'lian-ist (prĭ-sĭl'yăn-ĭst), n. Eccl. Hist. a A Montanist; — sometimes so called after Priscilla, a prophetess associated with Montanus the founder. b An adherent or follower of Priscillian, bishop of Avila (c. A.D. 380–385), leader of a party of ascetic enthusiasts in Spain, who was condemned, put to torture, and beheaded, with four companions, on charges of heresy and sorcery — the first to suffer death for heresy at the instance of the Church. Priscillian and his followers were declared to be Manichaeans and practitioners of magic. In addition, they were accused of modalism, Docetism, of asserting that the soul shares the divine substance and denying the resurrection of the body. The sect survived in Spain until after 572. — Pris-cil'lian-ism (-lĭz'm), n.

Pris-cil'lian-ist, adj. Of or pertaining to the Priscillianists or their beliefs.

prise (prīz), n. & v. Var. of PRIZE, a lever; PRIZE, to force.

prise (prīz; prēz), n. & v. Var. of PRIZE, capturing, estimate; specif. = PRISAGE. Hist.

prism (prĭz'm; 172), n. [LL. prisma, fr. Gr. prisma, fr. prizein, priein to saw.] 1. Geom. A solid whose bases or ends are similar, equal, and parallel polygons, the faces being parallelograms. ☞ Prisms are often named from their bases, as triangular, quadrangular, rhombic, etc. The volume of a prism may be found by multiplying the area of its base by its altitude.

Prism.

2. Something shaped or formed like a geometrical prism.

3. Optics. A transparent body bounded in part by two plane faces which are not parallel. The line in which these meet is called the edge of the prism.

4. Cryst. A form the faces of which are parallel to one axis; specif., one whose faces are parallel to the vertical axis, in distinction from dome. The prism, in the specific sense, is called a prism of the first order, or unit prism, when each face intersects two lateral axes in unit ratio; a prism of the second order, or deuteroprism, when each face intersects one lateral axis and is parallel to the other, or, in the hexagonal system, when it intersects two of the lateral axes at twice the distance at which it cuts the third; and a prism of the third order when each face intersects the lateral axes at unequal but simply proportional distances. The macroprism, brachyprism, orthoprism, and clinoprism each differ from the unit form in making a relatively greater intercept on that one of the lateral axes which is indicated for each one by its name. The nomenclature used for the various pyramids is exactly analogous. Some authors now call any form a prism whose intersection edges are all parallel.

5. Extended senses: a Something which refracts light or produces an effect of or suggestive of a spectrum. b A prismatic effect; pl., prismatic colors. c pl. See PRUNES AND PRISMS.

6. Figure Weaving. = PATTERN BOX.

-prism. Cryst. A combining form of the noun PRISM.

pris'mal (prĭz'măl), adj. Prismatic.

pris-mat'ic (prĭz-măt'ĭk), adj. [Gr. prisma, -atos, prism.] 1. Of, pertaining to, or resembling, a prism; as, a prismatic form or cleavage.

2. Formed by a prism; resembling the colors formed by the refraction of light through a prism; as, prismatic effects; prismatic spectrum colors, tints (see SPECTRUM; COLOR, n., 2).

3. Hence, highly colored; brilliant; as, the prismatic life.

4. Cryst. Orthorhombic.

Syn. — See IRIDESCENT.

pris-mat'i-cal (prĭz-măt'ĭ-kăl), adj. Prismatic (sense 1.)

pris-mat'i-cal-ly, adv. of PRISMATIC, -MATICAL.

prismatic astrolabe. Astron. A portable instrument consisting of a small telescope, a 60° prism, and a mercury reflecting basin, by which determinations of time, latitude, and azimuth may be obtained from star observations.

prismatic borax. Chem. Ordinary borax. See BORAX.

prismatic coefficient of fineness of displacement. Shipbuilding. The ratio of the volume of displacement of a ship to that of a prism equal in length to the distance between perpendiculars of the vessel and in cross section to that of the immersed midship section.

prismatic compass. Surv. A hand compass provided with a triangular glass prism so adjusted that the compass can be read while one takes the sight.

prismatic glass. = PRISM GLASS.

prismatic reflector. A right-angled, totally reflecting prism.

prismatic saltpeter. See SALTPETER, n., 1.

prismatic spectrum. See SPECTRUM, 2.

prismatic sulphur. See SULPHUR, 1.

Prismatic Compass. a Prism.

pris'ma-tize (prĭz'mȧ-tīz), v. t. To make into prisms. — pris'ma-ti-za'tion (-tĭ-zā'shŭn; -tĭ-zā'-), n. Both Rare.

pris'ma-toid (prĭz'mȧ-toid), n. [Gr. prisma, -atos, prism + -oid.] Geom. A solid with rectilinear edges the vertices of which lie in two parallel planes and the intersection of which by any plane parallel to these is a polygon. — pris'ma-toi'dal (prĭz'mȧ-toi'dăl; -d'l), adj.

prism binocular. A binocular in which a shortened telescopic tube is secured by letting the light pass back and forth between Porro prisms arranged to twice reflect totally the rays from the object viewed and form an erect image.

Prism Binocular. A ray from the object entering at the Object Glass (1), is twice reflected by the Porro Prisms (2, 2) before passing to the Concave Lens (3) and the Eyepiece (4). 5 Focusing Screw; 6 Lens Adjustment.

prism diopter or dioptre. An arbitrary standard of prismatic deflection used by oculists, equal to that of a prism that deflects a beam of light one centimeter on a plane placed at a distance of one meter.

prismed (prĭz'md), adj. Formed or refracting like a prism.

prism glass. Glass with one side smooth and the other side formed into sharp-edged ridges so as to reflect the light that passes through.

prism level. Surv. A kind of dumpy level with a mirror over the level tube, and a pair of prisms so placed that the position of the level bubble can be determined by the level-man without moving his head from the eyepiece.

pris'moid (prĭz'moid), n. [Cf. F. prismoïde.] A solid like a prism but having unequal ends or bases so that the faces are trapezoids instead of parallelograms. — pris-moi'dal (prĭz-moi'dăl; -d'l), adj.

prism spectroscope. See SPECTROSCOPE.

prism telescope. = TELESCOPE.

prism'y (prĭz'm·ĭ; -mĭ), adj. Prismatic; prismed.

pri-som'e-ter (prĭ-sŏm'ē-tĕr; prī-), n. [Gr. prisis a sawing, severing + -meter.] An apparatus for measuring the time of setting of cement.

pris'on (prĭz'n), n. [OF., fr. L. prehensio, prensio, a seizing, arresting, fr. prehendere, prendere, to lay hold of, to seize. See PREHENSILE; cf. 3d PRIZE, MISPRISION.] 1. A place or state of confinement or restraint, esp. of persons; imprisonment; as, to put in prison; to condemn to prison.

Bring my soul out of prison. Ps. cxlii. 7.

2. Specif., a building or other place for the safe custody or confinement of criminals or others committed by lawful authority, or the state of being confined in such a place. The use of prisons as places of punishment and reformation of criminals dates from late in the 17th century, their prior use having been as places of detention or seclusion only. Prison includes every place of custody under legal process or lawful arrest; but it is usually specifically applied to the place of confinement of convicted criminals, in the United States esp. a State prison (which see).

3. A prisoner. Obs.

☞ COMBINATIONS are:

prison-bound	prison-caused	prison-made prison-bred	prison-escaping, adj.	prison-making, adj.
prison-bursting, adj.	prison-free	prison-taught pris'on (prĭz'n), v. t.; -ONED (-'nd); -ON-ING. To imprison; to confine; to keep in restraint. Now Dial. & Poetic.

pris'on, adj. Of or pert. to a prison; serving in or as a prison.

prison bars, prison base. Prisoner's base.

prison bird. = JAILBIRD.

prison breach or breaking. Law. The act by which a prisoner escapes by force and violence from a place in which he is lawfully in custody.

pris'on-er (prĭz'n-ĕr; prĭz'nĕr), n. [OF. prisonier (F. prisonnier).] 1. A person under arrest, in custody, or in prison; one involuntarily restrained; a captive; as, a prisoner of justice, of war or at the bar; to take one prisoner.

2. Mach. a A piece of metal fitted into the segments of a flywheel rim so as to hold them together. Usually, it is held in place by taper keys or close-fitting bolts. b A metal link recessed on both sides so that when fitted hot into an appropriate opening in two segments of a flywheel rim, the contraction of the link draws the segments together; — called also shrink link.

Syn. — PRISONER, CAPTIVE. PRISONER is the general term for one who is in custody or deprived of liberty; a CAPTIVE is one who is held in bondage, esp by force; as, "conveyed to the tower, a prisoner" (Shak.); "like captives bound to a triumphant car" (id.); prisoners of war; "a poor miserable captive thrall" (Milton).

Pris'on-er of Chil-lon' (shĭ-lŏn'). François Bonivard (1493–1570), a Swiss patriot, whose imprisonment by the Duke of Savoy for six years in the castle of Chillon is immortalized by Byron in his poem of this name.

prisoner of the Vatican. The Pope; — from the papal refusal to leave the Vatican grounds from 1870, when the control of Rome passed to the Kingdom of Italy, until 1929, when the Vatican City was established as an independent papal state.

Pris'on-er of Zen'da, The (zĕn'dȧ). A romantic novel (1894) by "Anthony Hope" (Sir Anthony Hope Hawkins).

pris'on-er's base (prĭz'ŭn-ẽrz; prĭz'nẽrz). [Orig. prisoners' bars. See BASEBALL.] A very old game, now played chiefly by children. It has various forms, the common feature being that players are touched, or tagged, as they attempt to run between stations or bases. Called also prisoner's bar or bars.

prison house. A prison; — usually figurative.

The idea that her present life was a prison house of which he held the key of escape. H. G. Wells.

pris'on-ment (prĭz'ŭn-mĕnt), n. Imprisonment. Now Rare.

pris'on-ous (-ŭs), adj. Like or suggesting a prison. Rare.

prison psychosis. Psychiatry. Any form of mental disturbance brought on by imprisonment, often manifested by delusions of innocence, persecution, or pardon.

priss (prĭs), v. i. To act or dress in a prissy or fussy manner; — usually with up. Colloq., U. S. pris'sy (prĭs'ĭ), adj. [A blend of precise and sissy.] Prim and precise; sissified; finicky. Colloq., U. S. — pris'si-ly, (-ĭ-lĭ), adv. — pris'si-ness, n.

pris'tane (prĭs'tān), n. [L. pristis shark + -ane.] Chem. A colorless saturated liquid hydrocarbon, $C_{18}H_{38}$, obtained from the liver oils of various sharks.

‖pris'tav (prĭs'tăf), n. Also pris'taw. [Russ. pristav.] In Russia, a police official; an overseer; a commissioner.

pris'tine (prĭs'tēn, -tĭn, or, esp. Brit., -tīn; 277), adj. [L. pristinus. See PRIOR, adj.] Belonging to the earliest period or state; original; primitive; hence, uncorrupted by civilization or the world; as, pristine innocence, manners, or vigor.

Syn. — See PRIMARY.

Pris'tis (prĭs'tĭs), n. [L., fr. Gr. pristis.] Zool. The genus of fishes containing the living sawfishes.

Pris'to-dus (prĭs'tō-dŭs), n. [NL., fr. Gr. pristis a sort of fish + -odus.] Paleontol. A genus of Paleozoic sharks with, probably, but one tooth in each jaw.

pritch (prĭch), v. t. [Var. of PRICK.] To pierce holes in; prick. Now Dial.

pritch (prĭch), n. [Cf. PRICK.] a Dial. Eng. A pointed spike or staff. b Obs. Pique; offense. c Dial. Thin beer; — in this sense often spelled prich.

Prit-char'di-a (prĭ-chär'dĭ-ȧ), n. [NL., after William Thomas Pritchard, consul at Fiji in 1860.] Bot. a A small genus of ornamental fan palms of the Pacific islands, commonly called loulu, having cuneate or flabelliform leaves with bifid segments. The leaves are used for making fans and hats. P. pacifica is cultivated for ornament. b [not cap.] A plant of this genus.

1/350

Pritchardia (P. pacifica).

pritch'el (prĭch'ĕl), n. [Cf. PRICKLE.] Any of various iron-pointed tools, esp. one used by blacksmiths for punching or enlarging nail holes in a horseshoe.

prith'ee (prĭth'ē; -ĭ), interj. [For earlier preythe (I) pray thee. See PRAY.] An exclamation expressing request. Archaic.

prit'tle-prat'tle (prĭt'l-prăt'l), n. [See PRATTLE.] Empty talk; prattle; also, a chatterer. — v. i. To prattle. Contemptuous.

pri'us (prī'ŭs), n. [L., former, previous, neut. of prior.] That which precedes or takes precedence; a precondition.

pri-vac'i-ty (prĭ-văs'ĭ-tĭ), n. [From privacy, after publicity.] State of being private or of avoiding publicity. Rare.

pri'va-cy (prī'vȧ-sĭ; Brit. also, prĭv'ȧ-sĭ; 277), n.; pl. -CIES (-sĭz). [From PRIVATE.] 1. State of being apart from the company or observation of others; seclusion; as, unwilling to disturb his privacy.

2. A place of seclusion or retreat; solitude; private apartment. "Her sacred privacies all open lie." Rowe.

3. Private or clandestine circumstances; secrecy; as, to confer in privacy.

4. A private or personal matter; a secret. Now Rare.

5. Obs. a = PRIVITY, 2 & 3. b Familiarity; intimacy.

pri-va'do (prĭ-vä'dō; -vā'dō), n. [Sp., fr. L. privatus. See PRIVATE.] A private friend; a confidant. Obs.

pri'vant (prī'vănt), n. [L. privans, pres. part. See PRIVATE.] A privative attribute. — adj. Denoting a privant. Both Rare.

‖Pri-vat'do-cent' (prē-vät'dō-tsĕnt'), n.; G. pl. -DOCENTEN (-tsĕn'tĕn). Also Pri-vat'do-zent'. [G., fr. privat private + docent, dozent, teacher. See DOCENT.] An unsalaried university lecturer or teacher, esp. in Germany, remunerated by students' fees.

pri'vate (prī'vĭt), adj. [L. privatus apart from the state, peculiar to an individual, private, prop. past part. of privare to bereave, deprive, fr. privus single, private, set apart. See PRIOR, adj.; cf. DEPRIVE, PRIVY, adj.] 1. Belonging to, or concerning, an individual person, company, or interest; peculiar to oneself; unconnected with others; personal; one's own; not public; not general; separate; as, a man's private opinion; private property; a private purse; private expenses or interests; a private secretary; a private wrong; specif., of an act, bill, etc., relating only to a particular person or class or classes of persons and hence not receiving judicial notice by the courts; — opposed to public.

2. Sequestered from company or observation; not open to the public; secret; secluded; solitary; — said of a place, thing, or person; as, a private room; private prayer; I wish to be private.

3. a Not invested with, or engaged in, public office or employment; not public in character or nature; as, a private citizen; private life; private schools.

A private person may arrest a felon. Blackstone.

b Of or pertaining to one's nonofficial activities; as, private correspondence or pupils.

4. Not publicly known; not open; secret; as, a private negotiation, conversation, understanding. Cf. CONFIDENTIAL.

5. Obs. a Peculiar or particular. b Confidential. c Having secret or private knowledge; privy. d Maintaining secrecy; uncommunicative; as, to be private in carrying out instructions.

Ant. — Public, common.

pri'vate (-vĭt), n. 1. One not in public life or office. Archaic.

2. pl. The private parts; the genitals.

3. Obs. a A secret message; a private communication. b Personal interest; particular business. c Private opinion. d Privacy; retirement. e An intimate. f = PRIVY, 2.

4. Mil. A soldier below the grade of a noncommissioned officer, — from 1948 in the U. S. Army, next above a recruit. — in private. Secretly; not openly or publicly.

pri'vate (prī'vĭt), v. t. Obs. a To deprive. b To make or keep private. — adj. Deprived. Obs.

private attorney. See ATTORNEY, n., 2.

private bank. An unincorporated bank conducted by an individual or a partnership.

private car. Railroads. a Any car operated but not owned by a railroad. b A passenger car assigned for the private use of company officials or others.

private carrier. Law. A carrier of passengers or goods who does not hold himself out for public employment so as to be legally a common carrier (which see).

private checker. See 1st CHECKER b.

private company. Law. a = PRIVATE CORPORATION a. b Eng. Law. An incorporated company with not more than fifty shareholders, which does not invite public subscription to its shares and restricts the right of its shareholders to transfer their holdings.

private corporation. Law. a Any corporation not a public corporation. See CORPORATION, 4. b Eng. Law. A private company.

private cost. See 3d COST, 6.

pri'va-teer' (prī'vȧ-tēr'), n. [From PRIVATE.] 1. An armed private vessel which bears the commission of the sovereign power to cruise against the commerce or war vessels of the enemy. See LETTER OF MARQUE. The Declaration of Paris, Art. I (April 16, 1856), declares that privateering "is and remains abolished by the signatory powers." The United States, though not a signatory, has never since commissioned privateers. Cf. VOLUNTEER NAVY.

2. The commander, or one of the crew, of a privateer.

pri'va-teer' (prī'vȧ-tēr'), v. i.; -TEERED' (-tērd'); -TEER'-ING. To cruise in or as a privateer.

pri'va-teers'man (-tērz'mȧn), n.; pl. -MEN (-mĕn). An officer or seaman of a privateer.

private, first class. Mil. An enlisted man next below a corporal and above a private, — as of 1948 in the U. S. equal in grade to the former corporal, but not a noncommissioned officer. Abbr. Pfc. or Pfc private gold coins. Gold coins struck by other than governmental authority, notably in California (1849–1855), Colorado (1860–1861), Georgia (1830), North Carolina (1831–1840) (Bechtlers), Oregon (1849) (beavers), and Utah (1849–1860) gold (Mormon); — called also territorial gold.

private international law. See INTERNATIONAL PRIVATE LAW.

private judgment. Freedom of the individual in coming to his own conclusions, esp. in matters of religion, unhindered by political or ecclesiastical interference; — claimed as a right ("the right of private judgment") in the Protestant Reformation and by all modernists and liberals.

private law. That division of the law which delimits and secures individual interests, that is, which defines and secures private rights. In the civil law, that part which adjusts the relations of individuals with each other is private law, while the part which adjusts the relations of individuals with the state and the part which has to do with the organization and conduct of the machinery of government are public law. But in the common-law system, for historical reasons, the parts having to do with adjustment of relations of individuals with the state are largely referred to private law.

pri'vate-ly (prī'vĭt-lĭ), adv. In a private, secret, or unofficial, way.

privately printed. Printed at a private press or for private distribution.

private Mass. = MISSA PRIVATA.

pri'vate-ness (prī'vĭt-nĕs; -nĭs; 119), n. The quality or state of being private; privacy.

private nuisance. See NUISANCE, 2.

private press. A press controlled and operated by a private person or persons; usually, one that publishes in limited quantities books not otherwise obtainable, or special editions for private or restricted distribution.

private school. Any school, esp. any elementary or secondary school, conducted by individuals or a group, often for profit. Specif.: a In British usage, such an institution, further distinguished from a public school (sense a). b In the United States, Scotland, and British colonies and dominions, such a school distinguished from a public school (sense b) and, more narrowly from a free school (public, parochial, etc.)

private secretary. A confidential or social secretary in the service of an individual.

private siding. Railroads. = SIDING, n., 6 b.

private soldier. = PRIVATE, n., 4.

private station. Radio. A transmitting station carrying on a message service for business purposes but not open to the public.

private sweepstake. A sweepstake (sense 3) to which no money or other prize is added, and which, previous to closing, has not been advertised.

private view. An invitation exhibition of works of art, etc.

private way. a A right of private passage over another man's ground. b A passage or road over private ground.

private wrong. See 3d WRONG, 4.

pri-va'tion (prī-vā'shŭn), n. [OF., fr. L. privatio. See PRIVATE.] 1. A depriving; deprivation; esp., a depriving of rank or office; specif., R.C.Ch., suspension.

2. The state occasioned or existent because of absence or deprivation, as of a positive quality or qualities; also, an instance of such; as, evil is a privation of good; darkness is the privation of light.

3. State of being deprived of that which is desired for comfort or needed for existence; destitution; want; hardship; as, to undergo severe privations.

4. Logic. The absence of positive character or existence; thus, darkness is not a reality but a mere privation.

priv'a-tive (prĭv'ȧ-tĭv), adj. [L. privativus; cf. F. privatif. See PRIVATE.] 1. Causing privation; depriving; as, to exercise privative power.

2. Characterized by privation; not positive; negative.

Privative blessings, blessings of immunity. Jer. Taylor.

3. Indicating, signifying, or predicating privation, negation, or the absence of a quality or qualities; as, a privative prefix (a-; un-, non-); a privative term (blind); alpha privative; the idea of a vacuum is a privative conception. Cf. PRIVATION, 4.

priv'a-tive (prĭv'ȧ-tĭv), n. 1. Something characterized by privation.

Blackness and darkness are indeed but privatives. Bacon.

2. Logic. A privative term.

3. a Gram. A privative prefix or suffix. See PRIVATIVE adj., 3. b A word denoting the negation of a quality otherwise inherent (dumb; voiceless).

private intercession. See INTERCESSION, 2.

private jurisdiction. Scots Law. Exclusive jurisdiction.

priv'a-tive-ly (prĭv'ȧ-tĭv-lĭ), adv. In a privative manner; also, Obs., exclusively.

privative proposition. Logic. A proposition which states that a certain attribute is removed from or absent from the subject.

priv'et (prĭv'ĕt; -ĭt; 119), n. [Cf. Scot. privie, E. dial. prim, primp, print. Perh. for primet; perh. from being cut and trimmed. Cf. PRIE, n., PRIM, adj., PRIME to prune, PRIMPRINT.] 1. a An ornamental Eurasian and north African shrub (Ligustrum vulgare), with half-evergreen leaves and small white flowers; also, any of various other species of the same genus; as, the California privet, ibolium privet, etc. The privets are widely planted for hedges. b The shrub Forestiera acuminata.

2. A color, yellowish yellow-green in hue, of low saturation and low brilliance. Cf. COLOR.

priv'et a-de'li-a (ȧ-dē'lĭ-ȧ; ȧ-dēl'yȧ). The shrub Forestiera acuminata.

priv'et an-drom'e-da (ăn-drŏm'ē-dȧ). A much-branched shrub (Xolisma ligustrina), family Ericaceae, with small, white, bell-shaped flowers in panicled racemes.

privet honeysuckle. A low, Chinese, evergreen shrub (Lonicera pileata) having privetlike foliage and violet-purple fruit.

-priv'ic (-prĭv'ĭk). A combining form from Latin privus, without, denoting deficient in a (specified) element, as in calcipriv*ic.*

